- 12 sister. And she answered him, Do not, my brother, do not force me; for no such thing ought to be done in Israel: commit not this
- 13 base deed. For whither could I transfer my shame? and even thou wilt be accounted as one of the profligates in Israel. Now, therefore, I pray thee, speak to the king; for he will not withhold me from thee.
- 14 Howbeit he would not hearken to her voice; but, being stronger than she, forced her, and lay with her.
- 15 Then Amnon hated her exceedingly; so that the hatred with which he hated her, was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, Arise, be gone. And she said to him, 16 This treatment is causeless. Sending me thus away, is a greater injury than that which thou hast before done to me. Yet 17 he would not hearken to her; But called his servants, who attended on him, and said, Put out now this woman from me, and bolt the door after her. Now Tamar had 18 on her a garment of various colours: for such robes the king's virgin daughters "anciently" wore. Then his servants brought her out, and bolted the door after her. And Tamar put ashes on her head, and 19 rent her garment of various colours, which she had on, and laid her hand on her head, and went along crying. And Absalom, her 20 brother, said to her, Hath Amnon, thy brother, been with thee? yet be thou silent, my sister: he is thy brother: regard not this thing. So Tamar abode disconsolate in her brother Absalom's house.

But when king David heard of all these 21 things, he was very wroth: "yet he would not grieve the heart of Amnon; because he loved him, as being his first-born son." And 22 as to Absalom, he spoke to his brother neither good nor bad: although Absalom hated Amnon, because he had forced his sister Tamar. And after two full years, 23 Absalom had sheep-shearers in Baal-hazor, which is beside Ephraim; and Absalom invited all the king's sons. And Absalom: 24 came to the king, and said, Behold now thy servant hath sheep-shearers; let the king, I beseech thee, and his servants, go with thy servant. And the king said to Absalom, 25 Nay, my son, let us not all now go, lest we be chargeable to thee. And although he urged him, yet he would not go; but blessed him. Then said Absalom, If "thou wilt not 26 go," I pray thee, let my brother Amnon go with us. And the king said to him, Why should he go with thee? But Absalom so 27 urged him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

"Absalom made a feast like the feast of a king;" And Absalom commanded his servants, saying, Observe now when Amnon's heart is raised with wine, and when I say to you, Smite Amnon; then kill him, fear not:

10. Inner chamber] It is certain that, as Amnon had dismissed his attendants, he retired where he might most conveniently accomplish his purpose.

12, 13. Tamar spoke like a prudent woman; and gave her half brother the most suitable advice; but passion is deaf to reason and propriety.

15. Hated her] This change of passion in a brutal breast is not uncommon. When he had accomplished his purpose, and then reflected on the probable consequences of it, he detested the beautiful Tamar, whom he had violated.

16. Sending me thus away] It was not a greater sin, but a greater mischief, because it would publish her shame, and be a public scandal on the whole family.

18. For the reason of the version the learned reader may consult note, Hebrew Bible.

20. Hath Amnon been with thee] Absalom covered his suspicions in the most decent and prudent phrase. He knew Amnon's character to be a bad one, or he never would have suspected that he could be guilty of such a thing.

21. The addition to the text is so suitable to the character of David, and the context, that it should be admitted; and so in the 28th verse. (a) Sept. Vulg.

26. If thou wilt not go] So the Syriac, Houbigant, 'If the king will not, I pray, &c.'

have not I commanded you? be courageous 29 and valiant men. And the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and each mounted his mule, and fled.
 30 And while they were yet on the way, tidings came to David, saying, Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is 31 not one of them left. Then the king arose, and tore his garments, and lay on the ground; and all his servants stood by with 32 their clothes rent. And Jonadab, the son of Shimeah, David's brother, spoke and said, Let not my lord suppose that they have slain all the young men, the king's sons, for Amnon only is dead; for this hath been determined on by Absalom from the day that he 33 forced his sister Tamar. Now, therefore, let not my lord the king take the thing to heart, to think that all the king's sons are dead:
 34 for Amnon only is dead; and Absalom will have fled. And the young man who kept the watch, raised his eyes, and looked, and, behold, by the way of the hill side, behind him, there were many people coming.
 35 And Jonadab said to the king, Behold, the king's sons are coming: as thy servant said,
 36 so it is. And as soon as he had made an end of speaking, behold the king's sons came, and raised their voice and wept: and the king also, and all his servants, wept 37 exceedingly. But Absalom had fled, and went to Talmai, the son of Ammihud, king of Geshur.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1027. Joab, perceiving David's inclination, suborns a woman of Tekoah to excite, by a parable, David to bring home Absalom; he returns; his beauty, and his children.

AND 'David' mourned for his son 'many 38 days.' But when Absalom, who had fled and gone to Geshur, had been there three 39 years, King David longed for Absalom; for he was comforted concerning Amnon, seeing he was dead.

1 Now Joab, the son of Zeruiah, perceived that the king's heart was towards Absalom.
 2 And Joab sent to Tekoah, and brought thence a wise woman, and said to her, I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on now mourning apparel; and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman who hath a long time mourned for the dead. And go to the king, and speak on this manner to him. And Joab put the words in her mouth

And when the woman of Tekoah 'went' 4 to the king, she fell on her face to the ground, and made obeisance, and said, Help, O king. And the king said to her, What aileth thee? 5 And she answered, I am indeed a widow woman; for my husband is dead. And thy 6 handmaid had two sons, and they two strove together in the field, and there was none to part them, but the one smote the other, and slew him. And, behold, the whole family 7 have risen against thy handmaid, and they said, Deliver up him that smote his brother, that we may kill him, for the life of his brother whom he hath slain; and we will destroy even the heir. Thus would they 8 extinguish my remaining coal, and leave to my husband neither name nor one remaining upon the face of the earth. And the king 9 said to the woman, Go to thy house, and I will give charge concerning thee. And the woman of Tekoah said to the king, My lord, O king, the iniquity be on me, and on my father's house; and may the king and his throne be guiltless. And the king said, 10 Whosoever saith aught to thee, bring him to me, and he shall no more trouble thee. Then said she, I pray thee, let the king 11 remember, for the sake of Jehovah, not to suffer the multitude of blood-avengers to destroy any more, lest they destroy my son. Now therefore I am come to speak of this 15 thing to my lord the king, because the people have made me afraid: and thy handmaid said, I will now speak to the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his handmaid. For the king may so 16 hear as to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of every one, who would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of God. Thy handmaid also said, The word 17 of my lord the king may now be comfortable: for as an angel of God is my lord the king, to discern good and bad: and may Jehovah thy God be with thee. And he said, As Jehovah liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth. Then the 12 woman said, Let thy handmaid, I pray thee, speak one word to my lord the king. And 13

32, 33. Jonadab, who had contrived the plan of seduction for Amnon, either conjectured the cause of Absalom's attack, or he might have heard him express his intention to avenge the dishonour of his sister.

37—39. These verses are joined to the following chapter, as containing the reason of Joab's contrivance. (a) (v) Vers. Chap. XIV. 4—7. Every reader must admire the art with which Joab by this woman prevailed on the king to restore Absalom. The case supposed was in point; and the decision of the king in favour of the woman was certainly against himself, in that he did not recall Absalom. (v) Vers.

11. Here are transposed the 15—17 verses, as clearly their proper place. For the woman in these verses continues to speak of her own son, and of the assistance that she expected to receive from the king to secure him; but how could she do this after she had acknowledged that the whole was a fable, intended to represent the king's conduct towards his exiled son Absalom? This transposition removes every difficulty and makes the narrative consistent. In the 12—14 verses the woman urges the opinion and decision of the king, and applies it to the point intended.

13. Concerning one of the people The common version is, 'against the people of God.' The preposition will admit either sense; but the context requires the sense given.

he said, Say on. And the woman said, On what ground then hast thou thus decided concerning one of the people of God? From the word the king speaketh, he is guilty, in as far as the king bringeth not home his banished son. For we must needs die, and become as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; (for God excepteth no person;) let the king devise means, so that his banished son may no longer be banished from him. Then the king answered and said to the woman, Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I am about to ask thee. And the woman said, Let my lord the king now speak.

19 And the king said, Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this? And the woman answered and said, As thou livest, my lord the king, the thing is altogether as my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he charged me, and put all these words in the mouth of thy handmaid, To give this turn to the discourse: thy servant Joab has done this thing. But my lord is wise; is wise as an angel of God, to know all things which are on the earth.

21 And the king said to Joab, Behold, now, I grant this request: go then, and bring back the young man Absalom. And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and made obeisance, and thanked the king: and Joab said, To day thy servant knoweth that I have found favour in thine eyes, my lord the king, in that the king hath fulfilled the request of his servant. So Joab set out and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the king said, Let him turn to his own house; but let him not see my face. So Absalom turned to his own house, but saw not the king's face.

25 Now in all Israel there was no one so much praised as Absalom for his beauty; from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.

26 And when he polled his head, which he did from time to time, because it burdened him; and when he polled it the hair of his head weighed two hundred shekels, according to the king's standard. And to Absalom were 27 born three sons, and one daughter, whose name was Tamar: she was a woman of a beautiful countenance.

Absalom had now dwelt two full years 28 in Jerusalem, and had not seen the king's face. Absalom then sent for Joab, that he 29 might send him to the king; but he would not come to him: and when again he sent a second time, he would not come. "Absalom" therefore said to his servants, See, Joab's field is near mine, and he hath barley there; go and set it on fire. And Absalom's servants set the field on fire. "And the servants of Joab came to him, with their garments rent, and said, The servants of Absalom have set fire to thy field." Then 31 Joab arose, and came to Absalom to his house, and said to him, Why have thy servants set fire to my field? And Absalom 32 answered Joab, Behold, I sent to thee, saying, Come hither, that I may send thee to the king, to say, Why came I from Geshur? better were it for me to have been there still: now therefore let me see the king's face; and if there be iniquity in me, let him put me to death. So Joab came to the 33 king, and told him: and when he had called for Absalom, he went to the king, and with his face to the ground he made obeisance to the king: and the king embraced Absalom.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1024. Absalom, by various arts, gains the esteem of the people, and under pretence of a vow goes to Hebron, and there erects the standard of revolt and rebellion, David flies from Jerusalem, where Absalom soon arrives.

AND after this, Absalom prepared for 1 himself chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him. And Absalom rose up 2 early, and stood on the way side, that led to the palace-gate: and when any man who had a law-suit came to the king for judgment, then would Absalom call to him, and say, Of what city art thou? And he would say, Thy servant is of such, or such a tribe of Israel. Absalom would then say to him, 3 See, thy cause is good and right; but there

14. For God excepteth no person] The words of the text are ambiguous, and variously rendered. Houbigant renders, 'God doth not take away life. Yea, it is his counsel that one exiled from him should not be utterly rejected.' The verb נָסַח denotes, among many other significations, to forgive, to spare. Compare Gen. xviii. 24, 26; Exod. x. 17, &c.; and נָסַח often signifies person. 'God will spare no person; all must die.' This is connected with what precedes. I consider, with Geddes, the king understood, and have supplied it for the sake of perspicuity.

20. As wise as an angel] Harmer has shown that it is the superstitious belief in the east, that their kings are privileged with the possession of the highest wisdom. Was this a compliment to David? or did the woman believe what she said?

26. Two hundred shekels] According to Bochart this would be about 3 lbs 2 oz. of our weight; but it is not certain what was the weight of the Jewish shekel, at different periods. This is mentioned as something singular and unusual. Some would explain, by supposing, that the shekel here is used not for the weight but the value. His hair was worth two hundred shekels.

27. Three sons] These probably died young, as it is said that Absalom had no son; chap. xviii. 18. He called his daughter after her aunt.

30. (a) Sept.

31—33. Absalom had most probably now formed the design of obtaining the crown; and it was necessary to his success that he should be introduced to court. His conduct towards Joab, and the message he sends to the king, display his temper and ambition.

CHAP. XV. 3. Thy cause is good and right] Thus he flattered all; and by his state, his beauty, condescension, and affability, he gained the affection of great numbers.

- is no man deputed by the king to hear thee.
- 4 Absalom was moreover wont to say, Oh that I were made a judge in the land, that every man who hath any suit or cause might come to me, and I would do him justice.
- 5 And when any man came nigh to make obeisance, he was accustomed to put forth his hand, and take hold of him and embrace him.
- 6 And after this manner did Absalom to all Israel, who came to the king for judgment: thus Absalom stole away the hearts of the men of Israel.
- 7 And at the end of "four" years Absalom said to the king, I pray thee let me go to Hebron and perform my vow, which I made to Jehovah. For thy servant made a vow while I abode at Geshur in Syria, saying, If Jehovah shall indeed bring me back to Jerusalem, then will I serve Jehovah. And the king said to him, Go in peace. So he set out, and went to Hebron.
- 10 But Absalom had sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom is made king in Hebron.
- 11 And with Absalom went from Jerusalem two hundred invited men: but they went in their simplicity, and they knew not any thing.
- 12 And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, David's counsellor, from his city Giloh, while he offered sacrifices. Thus was the conspiracy strengthened; and the people with Absalom continually increased.
- 13 And there came a messenger to David, saying, The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.
- 14 And David said to all his servants who were with him at Jerusalem, Arise, let us flee; for we shall not else escape from Absalom: make haste to depart, lest he suddenly overtake us, and bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword.
- 15 And the king's servants said to the king, Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall appoint.
- 16 And the king went forth, and all his household after him. And the king left only ten women, concubine-wives, to keep the house.
- 17 Thus the king went forth, and all "his servants" after him, and abode at Beth-amer-
- 18 hack. And all his servants were mustered

7. Four years] The common text has forty, which is manifestly erroneous. David reigned only forty years; and if we follow the text, the rebellion of Absalom would occur long after David was dead.—To Hebron] Why to Hebron? It may be answered because there he was born, and there David began his reign. (v) Syr. Vulg.

8, 9. Absalom's request seemed so just and pious, that David, without reluctance, granted it. He was doubtless pleased to discern any thing like gratitude to God, in his favourite son.

12. Sent for Ahithophel] Ahithophel was capable of doing great mischief, as he was one of David's privy counsellors. Some suppose that he was angry at David's affair with Bath-sheba, who was his granddaughter.

14. And smite the city] David chose to leave Jerusalem before him; and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the Gathites, (six hundred men,) who had followed him from Gath, were mustered before the king.

Then said the king to Ittai, the Gathite, 19 Why shouldst thou go along with us? return to thine own place, and abide with the new king: for thou art a stranger, and also an exile. Thou camest but yesterday, and 20 should I this day make thee wander up and down with us? seeing I go whither I can, return thou, and take back thy brethren: mercy and truth be with thee. And Ittai 21 answered the king, and said, As Jehovah liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, surely in what place my lord the king shall be, whether it be my lot to die or to live, there assuredly will thy servant be. David then 22 said to Ittai, Go and pass on. And Ittai, the Gathite, passed on, and all his men, and all the little ones who were with him. And 23 all the country and all the people as they passed along, wept with a loud voice. Thus the king himself passed over the brook Kidron, and all the people passed over, towards the way of the wilderness.

And lo, Zadok also, and all the Levites 24 were with him, bearing the ark of the covenant of God: and they set down the ark of God; and Abiathar offered before it, until all the people had wholly passed out of the city. And the king said to Zadok, Carry 25 back the ark of God into the city: if I shall find favour in the eyes of Jehovah, he will bring me back, and show me both it, and its habitation: But if thus he shall say, I have 26 no delight in thee; behold, here am I, let him do to me as seemeth good in his own eyes. The king also said to Zadok, the 27 priest, Observest thou? Return in peace to the city, and your two sons with you; Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar. See, I will linger in the plain of 28 the wilderness, until there come word from you to certify me. Zadok therefore and 29 Abiathar carried back the ark of God to Jerusalem; and they abode there.

And David went up by the ascent of 30 mount Olivet: and he wept as he went up, and had his head covered, and his feet bare.

that he might prevent a surprise, and not expose it to the horrors of a siege. He did not know how it stood affected to him, as Absalom had many adherents there.

17. Beth-amerhack] I have followed Houbigant, Dathe, and others, in considering בית המרתק as a proper name; for no proper sense can be given if the words be considered as appellatives. (v) Sept. MSS.

19—21. Ittai discovers a strong attachment to David, and resolves to share with him all dangers. It is not improbable that he, and the six hundred men with him, had renounced idolatry, and embraced the worship of the true God.

23. The brook Kidron] This was in the valley between Jerusalem and the mount of Olives. In the hot season it usually dried up. Compare xxvi. 36, and John xviii. 1.

30. And he wept as he went up] He did so to express

And all the people who were with him covered every one his own head; and they 31 went up, weeping as they went. And one told David, saying, Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, O Jehovah, I pray thee, turn the 32 counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness. And when David had come to the top of the mount, where he worshipped God, behold, Hushai, the Archite, came to meet him, with his coat rent and earth upon his head.
 33 To him David said, If thou pass on with me, thou wilt be a burden to me: But if thou return to the city, and say to Absalom, I will be thy servant, O king! as I have been thy father's servant, so will I now also be thy servant: thou mayest then de-
 35 feat for me the counsel of Ahithophel. And is there not with thee, Zadok and Abiathar, the priests? so whatsoever thou shalt hear from the king's house, thou shalt tell it to 36 Zadok and Abiathar, the priests. Behold, they have with them their two sons, Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, and Jonathan, the son of Abiathar; and by them ye can send to me
 37 every thing that ye may hear. So Hushai, David's friend, went back to the city, as Absalom entered Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1023. Ziba's false accusation; and Shimei's insulting conduct towards David, which he bears with submission; Hushai admitted to Absalom's council; the counsel of Ahithophel.

1 AND when David was a little past the top of mount Olivet, behold, Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth, met him with a couple of saddled asses, and upon them two hundred loaves of bread, and a hundred bunches of dried grapes, and a hundred clusters of figs,
 2 and a skin-bottle of wine. And the king said to Ziba, What meanest thou by these? And Ziba said, The asses are for the king's household, to ride on; and the bread and clusters of fruit for the young men to eat; and the wine, that such may drink as become
 3 faint in the wilderness. And the king said, And where is thy master's son? And Ziba said to the king, Behold, he abideth at Jerusalem: for he said, To-day the house of Israel may restore to me the kingdom of my father. Then said the king to Ziba, Behold, to thee I give all that belonged to Mephibosheth. And Ziba, 'making obeisance,' said, May I find favour in thine eyes, my lord the king.

And when king David came to Bahurim, 5 behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was Shimei, the son of Gera. He came out, and reviled as he went along. And he cast 6 stones at David, and at all the servants of king David; at all the people and all the mighty men who were on his right hand and on his left. And thus said Shimei 7 when he reviled, Get off, get off, thou man of blood, thou worthless man. Jehovah 8 now returneth on thee all the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; and Jehovah delivereth the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son. Behold now, thine own wickedness seizeth thee; for a man of blood thou art. Then 9 said Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, to the king, Why should this dead dog revile my lord the king? let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head. And the king said, 10 What have you to do with me, ye sons of Zeruiah? Thus let him revile on; if Jehovah hath said to him, Revile David, who shall then say, Why hast thou done so? Moreover, David said to Abishai, and to all 11 his servants, Behold, my own son, the offspring of my own body, seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite revile me? Let him alone, and let him re- 12 vile on; for Jehovah hath bidden him. It may be that Jehovah will regard my affliction; and that Jehovah will return good to me for his reviling this day. And as David 13 and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the side of the opposite hill; and reviled as he went on, and threw stones at him, and cast dust. And the king, and all 14 the people who were with him, came to Ephim, and refreshed themselves there.

And Absalom, and all the people, the 15

his deep humiliation, shame, and concern. He wept for his own sins, and for the unnatural behaviour of his son, and the marks of divine displeasure that attended it.

31. Ahithophel] David seems to have had a great regard for him, and to have felt sensibly the defection of such a man. On this occasion he wrote the 41st psalm.

32. Top of the mount] Perhaps the very same place where our Lord looked on Jerusalem and wept over it. See Luke xix. 37, &c.

33—37. Severe casuists have condemned this conduct of David, as at variance with the proper line of his duty. If the use of stratagems in war may be justified, David only acted as wisdom and sound policy dictated. It is thought that David now wrote the 3d and 43d psalms.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Clusters of figs] This is the version of the Sept. and Vulg. and those translators must have known what the word רִפְּף precisely signified.

3, 4. Ziba was already made rich, through Mephibosheth; and his false accusation betrayed alike his ingratitude and treachery. He coveted his master's inheritance; and David was too hasty in bestowing it. (v) Sept. Chald.

7, 8. When he reviled] This term is preferred to curse, as the language which follows contains nothing but reviling and railing. He unjustly charges David with shedding the blood of the house of Saul; and represents him as an usurper and a tyrant; and mentions Absalom's rebellion to sting and vex him.

9—12. Abishai's request shows, that David maintained strict discipline in his army; and the reflections of David are equally wise, submissive, and pious.

14. Came to Ephim] The following adverb there, shows that עִפְיִם must be the name of a place. It is usually rendered 'weary.'

men of Israel, had come to Jerusalem; and 16 Ahithophel was with him. And Hushai, the Archite, David's friend, came to Absalom; and Hushai said to Absalom, Long 17 live the king! long live the king! And Absalom said to Hushai, Is this thy kindness to thy friend? why wentest thou not 18 with thy friend? And Hushai said to Absalom, Nay; but whom Jehovah and this people, and all the men of Israel choose, his 19 will I be, and with him will I abide. And again, whom ought I to serve, if not his own son? as I have served in thy father's presence, so will I be in thy presence.
 20 Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, Give counsel, among you, what we shall do.
 21 And Ahithophel said to Absalom, Go into thy father's concubines, whom he hath left to keep the house; that all Israel may hear how odious thou hast made thyself to thy father: so will the hands of all that are with 22 thee be strengthened. So they spread Absalom a tent upon the top of the house; and Absalom went in to his father's concu-
 23 bines in the sight of all Israel: For the counsel which Ahithophel gave was, as if a man had inquired at the oracle of God: such was every counsel of Ahithophel, both with David and with Absalom.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1023. Ahithophel's counsel overthrown by Hushai's; secret intelligence sent to David; Ahithophel goeth home and hangeth himself.

1 AHITHOPHEL now said to Absalom, Let me, I pray, choose out twelve thousand men, and I will set out and pursue David this night. And I shall come upon him while he is weary and weak-handed, and terrify him: and, while all the people that are with
 3 him flee, I will smite the king only. And I will bring back all the people unto thee, 'as a bride is brought to her husband;' (for only one man's life thou seekest;) and the
 4 whole people shall have peace. This counsel seemed good to Absalom and to all the elders of Israel. Then said Absalom, Call
 5 now Hushai, the Archite, also, and let us likewise hear what he hath to say. So
 6 Hushai came to Absalom; and Absalom spoke to him saying, After this manner hath Ahithophel counselled: shall we follow his counsel or not? Speak thou. And Hushai

 7 said to Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath given is not good at this time. For, said Hushai, thou knowest that thy 8 father and his men are valiant, and they are chafed in their minds, as a bear of the forest bereaved of her whelps. Also, thy father is a man of war, and will not lodge with the people. Behold, he is now hid in some pit,
 9 or in some other place; and should it happen that some of these your men should fall at the first onset, then every one who heareth
 10 of it will say, There is a slaughter among the people who follow Absalom. And thus, even the valiant, whose heart is as the heart
 11 of a lion, will be utterly dismayed; for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and valiant are those men who are with him. I therefore counsel that all Israel
 12 be gathered to thee, from Dan even to Beersheba, numerous as the sand on the sea-shore; and that thou go to battle, in thine own person. So shall we come upon him in 13 whatever place he may be found, and will attack and fall on him as the dew falleth on the ground: and of him and of all the men who are with him not so much as one shall 14 be left. Or if he get into a city, then shall all Israel bring ropes to that city, and drag 15 it into the torrent, until there be not one small stone found there. And Absalom and 16 all the men of Israel said, The counsel of Hushai, the Archite, is better than the counsel of Ahithophel. For Jehovah had appointed to defeat the good counsel of 17 Ahithophel, to the intent that Jehovah might bring evil upon Absalom.

Then said Hushai to Zadok and to Abiathar, the priests, Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and thus have I counselled. Now therefore send quickly, and tell David,
 16 saying, Lodge not this night in the plain of the wilderness, but speedily pass over the Jordan; lest the king, and all the people who are with him, be swallowed up. Now
 17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz were waiting at En-rogel; for they durst not be seen to come into the city; and a damsel went and told

16—19. Hushai discovers great address; he neither prays personally for Absalom, nor promises him allegiance. He intimates that he was not governed by private affection, but considered the voice of the people as the voice of God; and was bound to prefer the public good to private affection and obligation.

21—23. We here see the denunciations of Nathan fulfilled. This counsel of Ahithophel was designed to make the breach between Absalom and David irreparable, and to cut off all hope of reconciliation.

CHAP. XVII. 3. Ahithophel proposes to command in person, to disperse the attendants of David, and seize and put him to death. Absalom assents to this, as perhaps thinking the guilt would rest on Ahithophel. (v) Sept.

8—10. Hushai argues speciously from the known valour of David and his friends; and the consequence of a failure in the first attack. The least repulse at such a juncture might be fatal to the cause.

[2. Attack and fall on him] I have thus rendered the word וַיִּפֹּל in allusion to what follows. The Chald. uses the same verb in each part of the verse. The metaphor is beautiful, a large army overspreading the country.

13. All that Hushai wanted by this advice was, to gain time for David to gather his forces and put them in order; and as it suited Absalom's vanity and cruelty, he readily fell in with it.

17. En-rogel] This was a well not far from Jerusalem.

- them; and they went and told king David.
 18 Nevertheless, a lad saw them, and told Absalom: but they both went on with speed, and came to a man's house in Bahurim, who had a cistern in his court. Into it they 19 went down; And the woman took and spread a covering over the mouth of the cistern, and spread on it pounded corn, that the thing might not be known. And when
 20 Absalom's servants came to the woman, they said, Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathan? And the woman said to them, They are gone over the brook. And when they had sought, but could not find them, they 21 returned to Jerusalem. And, after they had departed, the other came up out of the cistern, and went and told king David, and said to David, Arise, and pass quickly over the water; for thus hath Ahithophel coun-
 22 selled against you. Then David arose, and all the people who were with him, and they passed over the Jordan. By the morning light there was not one who had not passed over the Jordan.
 23 Now when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddled his ass, and set out, and went home to his own city; and he put his household in order, hanged himself and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father.
 24 David had now come to Mahanaim; and Absalom had passed over the Jordan, he 25 and all the men of Israel with him. And Absalom made Amasa captain of the host instead of Joab. This Amasa was the son of a man, whose name was ^vJether, an Ishmaelite," who went in to Abigail, the daughter of Nahash, sister to Zeruiah, Joab's 26 mother. So Israel with Absalom encamped in the land of Gilead.
 27 And when David had come to Mahanaim, Shobi, the son of Nahash, from Rabbah of the Ammonites, and Machir, the son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, and Barzillai, the 28 Gileadite of Rogelim, Brought beds, and basins, and earthen vessels; and wheat, and barley, and flour, and parched corn, and beans, and lentiles, and parched pulse, And 29 palm-honey, and butter, and sheep, and cow-milk cheese, for David, and for the people who were with him, to eat; for they said, The people in coming through the desert, are hungry, and weary, and thirsty.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1023. David reviews his army, and gives charge concerning Absalom; the forces of Absalom are conquered, himself slain, and the news brought.

DAVID now numbered the people who 1 were with him, and set captains of thousands and captains of hundreds over them. And 2 David sent forth a third part of the people under the command of Joab, and a third part under the command of Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and a third part under Ittai, the Gathite. And the king said to the people, I myself also will surely go forth with you. But the people answered, 3 Thou shalt not go forth: for should we be compelled to fly, they will not regard us; nor will they regard us, should half of us be slain: for they will account thee of more importance, than ten thousand of us: it is, therefore, better that thou succour us from the city. And the king said to them, What 4 seemeth to you best I will do. And the king stood by the gate side, and all the people came out by hundreds and by thousands. And the king charged Joab and 5 Abishai and Ittai, saying, Spare, for my sake, the young man Absalom. And all the people heard, when the king gave to all the captains this charge concerning Absalom.

So the people went out into the field 6 against Israel: and the battle was in the forest of Ephraim; Where the people of 7 Israel were slain before the servants of David; and there was a great slaughter there, that day, of twenty thousand men. For the battle was thence scattered over 9

18. A cistern in his court] This must have been now dry, and of some capacity, to contain these two young men. The device of the woman in covering the mouth of the cistern, and spreading pounded corn, was well calculated to prevent suspicion. I have followed the Vulg. in rendering הריפח pounded corn; corn, which, having been soaked in water, was dried in the sun, and then pounded till the husk came off. This was commonly done to barley.

23. Now when Ahithophel] He perceived that by gaining time, David would easily prevail; and probably, disgusted and mortified at the rejection of his counsel, he departed, and became his own executioner.

24. Mahanaim] This city was in Bashan, in the tribe of Gad, a little north of the Jabbok; and not far from the lake of Ginneroth, or Genesaret. Compare Gen. xxxii. 2, 23; Josh. xiii. 26.

25. This Amasa was] Concerning Ithra's name and nation, Sept. calls him Jether: and so does the Hebrew also, at 1 Kings ii. 32, and 1 Chron. ii. 17, an Ishmaelite. So apt are scribes to mistake in words that are nearly alike. Of all of them the reading of the Hebrew here is the least probable; for if he had been an Israelite, there had been no need of mentioning his nation. (v) 1 Chron. ii. 17.

27. Shobi, the son of Nahash] He was probably made governor of the country, in the room of Hanun his brother who had treated David's ambassadors so ill. He might have disapproved that indignity, and showed his gratitude by coming so seasonably to David's relief. Machir had been the faithful friend of the house of Saul, and guardian of Mephibosheth. Barzillai was very old, but rich, wise, and pious. These brought a plentiful supply for the king and his troops; and alike showed their unshaken loyalty and generosity.

CHAP. XVIII. 4. This reasoning was forcible, and doubtless David must have felt thankful, that he was spared the necessity of going to fight against his own son in person; and Providence so ordered it, that he might not interpose to save Absalom's life.

5. Spare, for my sake] So the Sept. render; and the known affection of David for Absalom supports this sense. In the 12th verse we have a different, but synonymous word, 'preserve, for my sake.'

6. The forest of Ephraim] One body of David's forces

the face of the whole country; and the forest devoured, that day, more people than the sword devoured. And Absalom was overtaken by the servants of David: for Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a turpentine-tree, so that his head was entangled in the turpentine-tree, and he hung between the heavens and the earth; for the mule that was under him, passed away. And a certain man saw this and told Joab, and said, Behold, I saw Absalom hanging in a turpentine-tree. And Joab said to the man who told him, And behold thou sawest him, and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? And I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle. And the man said to Joab, Though I should receive a thousand shekels of silver in my hand, I would not put forth my hand against the king's son, for in our hearing the king charged thee and Abishai and Ittai, saying, Preserve, for my sake, the young man Absalom. Or, had I thus done falsely, it would have been at the risk of "my own life:" for there is no matter hid from the king, and thou thyself wouldst have stood up against me. Then said Joab, I must not tarry thus with thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the midst of the turpentine-tree. And ten young men who bore Joab's armour surrounded and smote Absalom, and slew him. And Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing Israel: for by this Joab kept back the people. And they took Absalom and cast him into a great pit in the forest, and laid a very great heap of stones upon him: and all Israel fled, every one to his own home. Now Absalom had, in his life-time, taken and reared up for himself a monument, which is in the king's dale; for he said, I have no son to keep my name in remembrance; and he called the monument after his own name: and it is called to this day, Absalom's monument.

9 Then said Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok, Let me now run, and bear the king tidings, came out of the wood, the other lay in ambush on the skirts of it. The men who came out of the wood seeming to fly before Absalom into the wood again, he pursued them, upon which the other part of David's army closed in, and thus Absalom and his people were hemmed in and easily destroyed.

11. Ten shekels and a girdle] Harmer, from De Tot's Memoirs, has illustrated the custom of giving money and pelisse for the service he had performed. So would Joab have rewarded this man for the slaughter of Absalom. Some conceive the military girdle meant, signifying that he would have given to him a command. Compare Isa. xxii. 21.

13. At the risk of my own life] The sense is given rather than the idiom. (v) Versions.

how that Jehovah hath avenged him of his enemies. And Joab said to him, Thou shalt not bear tidings this day. Another day indeed thou mayest bear tidings; but this day thou shalt bear no tidings, because the king's son is dead. Then said Joab to 21 Cush, Go tell the king what thou hast seen. And Cush bowed himself to Joab, and ran. Then said Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok, yet 22 again to Joab, But howsoever, let me, I pray thee, also run after Cush. And Joab said, Why wouldst thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings ready? But howsoever, 23 said he, let me run. And he said to him, Run. Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and overran Cush. And David was 24 sitting between the two gates; and the watchman was walking on the wall, on the top of the gate; and he raised his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone. And 25 the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, If he be alone he bringeth tidings. And he came apace, and drew 26 near. And the watchman saw another man running! and the watchman called to the porter, and said, Behold another man running alone. And the king said, He also bringeth tidings. Again, the watchman 27 said, The running of the foremost appeareth to me like the running of Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok. And the king said, He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings. And 28 Ahimaaz called, and said to the king, Success! And he fell down to the earth on his face before the king, and said, Blessed be Jehovah, thy God, who hath delivered up the men who had rebelled against my lord the king. And the king said, Is the young 29 man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab, the king's servant, sent thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I know not what was the cause of it. And the king 30 said to him, Turn aside, and stand here. And he turned aside, and stood still. And, 31 behold, Cush came; and Cush said, Tidings, my lord the king: for Jehovah hath avenged thee this day of all those who rose up against thee. And the king said to Cush, Is the 32 young man Absalom safe? And Cush answered, The enemies of my lord the

14. I must not tarry thus] Some would render, 'Not so will I delay with thee.' And Houbigant thinks the true reading is, 'Not so; I will stab him before thee.'

18. The king's dale] The vale where Absalom had erected his pillar, Wells supposes the same as noticed Gen. xiv. 17. Josephus asserts it was only two furlongs from Jerusalem; and it is conjectured to be the same as that called the valley of Jehosaphat. Here the words מצבה and דל are used as synonymous.

20. Because the king's son] Regard to Ahimaaz made Joab wish to send the tidings by some other; but his opportunity at length prevailed, and he followed Cush.

24. Success] Ahimaaz mentions only the victory; and leaves Cush to relate the fate of Absalom.

king, and all that rise against thee for evil, 33 be as that young man is. And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom! my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1023. Joab recalls David to a sense of his duty, who returns to his kingdom; Shimei meets him, and is pardoned; interview with Mephibosheth and Barzillai, &c.

- 1 AND it was told Joab, that, lo! the king was weeping and mourning for Absalom;
- 2 And that the victory of that day was turned into mourning to all the people: (for when the people, that day, heard it said that the
- 3 king was grieved for his son, The people stole away, that day, into the city, like people who steal away, through shame, when
- 4 they have fled in battle;) And that the king had covered his face, and that the king was crying with a loud voice, O my son, Absalom! O Absalom, my son, my son! Joab
- 5 then went into the house to the king, and said, Thou hast this day affected with shame all thy servants, who have now saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and
- 6 the lives of thy concubines; In showing that thou lovest thine enemies and hatest thy friends. For thou hast this day made it manifest, that thou regardedst neither thy chiefs nor thy servants: for I now perceive, that if Absalom were alive, and all of us, this day, dead, then all would be right in
- 7 thine eyes. Now, therefore, arise, go forth, and speak kindly to thy servants: for, by Jehovah I swear, if thou go not forth, not a man will remain with thee this night: and this will be worse to thee than any evil which hath befallen thee from thy youth until now.
- 8 Then the king arose, and sat in the gate. And they told all the people, saying, Behold, the king sitteth at the gate. And all the people presented themselves to the king.

32. Be as that young man is] The delicate manner in which Cushai communicates the intelligence must strike every reader. Without mentioning his name, or the manner in which he had met his end, he only covertly notices it. Here is an instance of address, of the same kind as that of Cicero, in his noble defence of Milo, who, instead of mentioning the murder, said, 'His servants only did what every one would have his servants to do in like circumstances.'

33. O Absalom, my son] This pathetic lamentation must excite the sympathies of every parent. It is, however, impossible to account for it, unless we admit that David lamented the death of this young man, with all his sins upon his guilty head.

CHAP. XIX. 1—4. For the punctuation of these verses the learned readers may consult the Vulg. and Dathe.

5. Affected with shame] Geddes renders 'affronted.' The whole of Joab's address was suitable to the state of David's affairs; and well calculated to bring him to a sense of his own interest and duty.

2, 10. After the loss of Absalom, the people returned to

Now Israel had fled, every man, to his own home; and all the people, throughout all the tribes of Israel, blamed one another saying, The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he fled out of the land on account of Absalom. And Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore, will ye not speak ye not a word of bringing back the king?

And king David sent to Zadok and Abiathar, the priests, saying, Speak to the elders of Judah, saying, Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his own house, seeing that the speech of all Israel has come to the king, in his present abode? I am my brethren, ye are my own bone and flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king? Say also to Amasa, My own bone and flesh art thou; God do so and so more, and more also, if thou be not captain of the host continually, in the room of Joab. Thus he inclined the heart of all the men of Judah, even to a man; so that they sent this word to the king, Return thou, and thy servants. So the king returned, and came to the Jordan. And Judah came to Gilgal, to go to meet the king, to conduct the king over the Jordan.

And Shimei, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, who was of Bahurim, hasted and went down with the men of Judah to meet David. And with him were a thousand men of Benjamin; Ziba, the servant of the house of Saul, also was with him, and his fifteen sons, and his twenty servants. And he went over the Jordan, before the king. And 'performed the service' of bringing over the king's household, and in doing what he thought good. And Shimei, the son of Gera, fell down before the king, when he had come over the Jordan; And said to the king, Let not my lord impute to me my iniquity, nor do thou remember what thou a sense of duty, and blamed each other for encouraging rebellion, and for their remissness in bringing back the king.

11. Sent to Zadok] It seems that many of the men of Judah had joined with Absalom; and David might that unless hope of pardon was held out to them, civil war might be the consequence. Through the priests attempted to negotiate a reconciliation; and the attempt was successful.

13. Say also to Amasa] Amasa was his nephew, he was particularly desirous to bring over to his in and who (judging his own case desperate) might persuade Judah to hinder or delay the king's return.

18. And performed the service] The common version here, is unsupported either by the sense of the present or any of the versions. The Sept. and Syr. are followed by 19, 20. Let not my lord! He pleaded, that he came to submit to him; and it is remarkable that he calls himself of the house of Joseph, being a Benjamite, of the family of Saul. He would have come ill recommended to David under that character, therefore he mentions the host servant perversely did the day that my lord the king went out of Jerusalem, so that the king should take it to his heart. For thy servant doth know that I have sinned: therefore, behold, I am come the first, this day, of all the house of Joseph, to go down to meet my lord the king. But Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, answered and said, Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he reviled Jehovah's anointed? And David said, What have you to do with me, ye sons of Zeruiah, that ye should this day be adversaries to me? Shall there any man be put to death this day in Israel? For do I not know that I am this day king over Israel? Therefore the king said, Thou shalt not die. And the king swore to him.

And Mephibosheth, the grandson of Saul, came down to meet the king; and he had neither dressed his feet, nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed, until the day that he came back in peace. And when he had come from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king said to him, Why wentest thou not with me, Mephibosheth? And he answered, My lord, O king, my servant deceived me: for thy servant said, Let an ass be saddled for me, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king; because thy servant is lame. And he hath slandered thy servant to my lord the king; but my lord the king is as an angel of God: do therefore what is good in thine eyes. For all my grandfather's house were but dead men before my lord the king: yet didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thy own table. What right therefore have I yet to cry any more to the king? And the king said to him, Why speakest thou any more of thy matters? I say, Thou and Ziba divide the land. And Mephibosheth said to the king, Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is come again in peace to his own house.

And Barzillai, the Gileadite, came down from Rogelim, and went over the Jordan with the king, to conduct him over the Jordan. Now Barzillai was a very aged man, eighty years old: and he had provided the king with provisions, while he lay at Mahanaim; for he was a very rich man. And the king said to Barzillai, Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me in Jerusalem. And Barzillai said to the king, 34 How long have I to live, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem? I am this 35 day eighty years old: and can I discern between good and evil? Can thy servant taste what I eat or what I drink? Can I listen any more to the voice of men-singers or women-singers? Why then should thy servant be yet a burden to my lord the king? And why would the king recompense me with such a reward? Let thy servant just 36 go over the Jordan with the king: And then 37 let thy servant, I pray thee, return, that I may die in my own city, near the grave of my father and my mother. But behold thy servant Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him what shall seem good to thee. And the king answered, 38 Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do to him that which shall seem good to thee: and whatsoever thou shalt require of me, that will I do for thee. And all the 39 people went over the Jordan. And when the king had come over, the king kissed Barzillai, and blessed him; and he returned to his own place. Then the king went to 40 Gilgal, and Chimham went on with him; and all the people of Judah conducted the king, and also half the people of Israel.

And, behold, all the men of Israel came 41 to the king, and said to the king, Why have our brethren, the men of Judah, stolen thee away? and have brought the king, and his household, and all David's men with him, over the Jordan? And all the men of Judah 42 answered the men of Israel, Because the king is our near kinsman: why then are ye angry on this account? Have we so much as eaten at the king's cost; or hath he given to us any gift? And the men of Israel 43 answered the men of Judah, and said, We have ten parts in the king, and we also have more interest in David than ye: why then did ye despise us, so as not first to advise with us about bringing back our king? But the words of the men of Judah were more fierce than the words of the men of Israel.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1022. Sheba heads those who are disaffected towards David; Amasa treacherously slain by Joab, who pursues Sheba; the head of Sheba delivered to Joab.

AND there happened to be there a worth- 1 seph, a tribe the nearest akin to the other, Benjamin being as beloved brother.

21—24. The sons of Zeruiah were undoubtedly brave, as sanguinary men. David's determination to spare even his enemies was wise and politic.

24. And Mephibosheth] It is evidently the design of the author to exculpate this prince from any share in the rebellion, by stating these tokens of his grief.

29. Thou and Ziba divide the land] David had before given all to Ziba; he now makes an equal division of the property between Ziba and Mephibosheth.

32. A very rich man] So the Vulg. renders, and the context supports this version.

34—38. How long have I to live] The king's kindness would be ill bestowed upon him, as his relish for the pleasures of a court and of the senses was almost gone; besides, he would rather be a burden than of any service, and would only stand in the way of those who might be useful.

- less man, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjamite: and he blew a trumpet, and said, We have no part in David, nor have we any portion in the son of Jesse: every man to his tents, O Israel. So all the men of Israel revolted from David, and followed Sheba, the son of Bichri: but the men of Judah adhered to their king, and conducted him from the Jordan even to Jerusalem.
- 3 And David came to his own house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten concubine-wives, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in ward, and fed them, but went not in to them. So they were shut up and lived like widows unto the day of their death.
- 4 Then said the king to Amasa, Assemble to me the men of Judah, within three days, and be thou here present. So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah: but he tarried longer than the set time which he had appointed him. And David said to 'Joab,' Now shall Sheba, the son of Bichri, do us more harm than did Absalom: take thou thy lord's servants, and pursue him, lest he obtain possession of fenced cities, and escape us. So there went after Joab, his own men, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and all the mighty men: and they went out of Jerusalem, to pursue Sheba, the son of Bichri. When they were come to the great stone which is in Gibeon, Amasa came to them. Now the garment which Joab had put on, was girded about him with a girdle, in which, a sword in its sheath, hung by his loins; but as he went on he let it fall out.
- 9 And Joab said to Amasa, Art thou in health, my brother? And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. But Amasa observed not the sword that was in Joab's other hand: so he smote him with it in the groin, and shed his bowels out upon the ground, though he did not repeat the stroke: so he died. Joab, and Abishai his brother, then pursued Sheba, the son of Bichri. And one of Joab's men stood by 'Amasa, (who was weltering in his own blood, on the highway') and said, He that favoureth Joab, and he that is for David, let him go after Joab. But when the man saw that the whole people stood still, he removed Amasa out of the highway into the field, and cast a cloth upon him: for he saw that every one that came to him stood still. When he was removed out of the highway, all the people went on after Joab, to pursue Sheba, the son of Bichri. And Sheba went through all the tribes of Israel to Abel-beth-maachah; and all the dissatisfied assembled, and went after him. But they came and besieged him in Abel-beth-maachah, and cast up a bank against the city, which stood opposite the outward wall; and all the people who were with Joab, battered the wall, to throw it down.

Then cried a wise woman out of the city, Hear, hear; say, I pray you, to Joab, Come near hither, that I may speak with thee. And when he had come near to her, the woman said, Art thou Joab? And he answered, I am. Then she said to him, Hear the words of thy handmaid. And he answered, I hear. Then she spoke, saying, They were wont to speak in old time, saying, Make, indeed, sure inquiry, and then act accordingly. 'We are' peaceable and faithful in Israel: thou seekest to destroy a mother-city in Israel: why wouldst thou swallow up the inheritance of Jehovah? And Joab answered and said, Far, far be it from me, that I should swallow up or destroy. The matter is not so; but a man of mount Ephraim, Sheba, the son of Bichri, by name, hath rebelled against the king, against David: only deliver him up and I will depart from the city. And the woman said to Joab, Behold, his head shall be thrown to thee over the wall. The woman then, in her wisdom, went to all the

He therefore recommended his son, as more fit for a court, and more desirous of enjoying the honours of it.

CHAP. XX. 2. So all the men of Israel] This must be understood in a limited sense, to signify, all those who were disaffected.

4. Then said the king to Amasa] David often attempted to get rid of Joab and his brothers, but was hitherto unsuccessful. He now appoints Amasa to the chief command; most probably to mortify Joab, and to conciliate the ten tribes, among whom Amasa seems to have been a favourite.

6. (v) Syr. Arab.

8. He let it fall out] I think it evident that the sword did not fall by accident, but by design; and he took it, most probably in his left hand, while with his right he took hold of Amasa's beard to salute him. This was then, and is now, a mark of the highest respect. See note, Hebrew Bible.

9—13. Joab could not brook a rival; and for this and other deliberate murders, he deserved the end which awaited him.

11. (r) From verse 12.

14. Sheba went] To render the text clear I have given the noun instead of the pronoun; and with Houbigant others consider Abel-beth-maachah, the name of the city as read in the next verse. It was situated at the extremity of the portion of Naphtali, in the Anti-Lebanon, and on the river Chrysorroas.—And all the dissatisfied assembled. Some make these inhabitants of Beeroth, which is not at all probable. From the Sept. we may conjecture they read הנכרי, which from the verb נכר may signify those estranged, alienated, which is the best sense; and which have adopted.

18. Make, indeed, sure inquiry at Abel] I have followed Dathe in this version, and suppose that for some reason the people of this city were celebrated for their knowledge and sagacity. The city seems to have been large. Compare verse 14, 19. The woman reprehends Joab for attacking the city before he had inquired whether the citizens had willingly received him, and were actually his abettors. The Syr. and Arab. read for Abel נביאי, prophets. The Sept. and Chald. are incoherent. I believe the sense is that given. 19. (v) Chald.

people; and they cut off the head of Sheba, the son of Bichri, and threw it out to Joab. And he blew a trumpet, and they retired from the city, every man to his own home. And Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

Now Joab was over all the host of Israel; Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, was over the Cherethites and over the Pelethites. And Adoram was over the tribute; and Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, was recorder. And Sheva was scribe; and Zadok and Abiathar were the priests. And Ira also, the Jairite, was a chief minister to David.

CHAPTER XXI.

2. 1021. In consequence of a famine, the Gibeonites are avenged; the Philistine giants are slain, and the sons of Saul and Jonathan are buried.

THERE WAS a famine in the days of David three years, year after year; and David inquired of Jehovah. And Jehovah answered, It is on account of Saul, and his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites. Now the Gibeonites were not of the race of Israel, but of the remnant of the Amorites; and the Israelites had sworn to preserve them: but Saul, in his zeal for Israel and Judah, sought to destroy them. And king David called for the Gibeonites and said to them, What shall I do for you, and with what shall I make an atonement, that ye may bless the inheritance of Jehovah? And the Gibeonites said to him, We will have neither silver nor gold from Saul nor from his house; nor shalt thou kill any man in Israel for us. And he said, What ye shall say, that will I do for you. And they answered the king, The man who would have consumed us, and who formed the design of utterly destroying us in every district of Israel; Let seven men of his sons be delivered to us, that we may hang them up before Jehovah in Gibeah-of-Saul.

2. And they cut off the head] Thus ended this second attempt to subvert the throne of David. When the rebel was pressed he was given up as a sacrifice, and his powers were in mercy suffered to escape.

6. And Ira also] Dathe suspects that the words, and sons of David were chief ministers, have been omitted here this verse. Compare chap. viii. 18.

CHAP. XXI. 1. There was . . . in the days of David] In the transactions here recorded occurred, is not particularly stated. They could not occur after the rebellion of Sheba, but most probably in the early part of David's reign.—Slew the Gibeonites] We have no account of this act in the history of Saul; some think it was when the Gibeonites were slain at Nob.

2. In his zeal for] Under pretence of zeal for the interests of his own people, he slew or banished the Gibeonites; and most probably gave their land and wealth to his own relatives, who now possessed it. 1 Sam. xxii. 7.

6. (9) The chosen of Jehovah] These words are wanting in the Syr. and Arab, and it is not probable, that the Gibeonites would honour Saul, their cruel enemy, with this title.

8. Merab] That an error has occurred in the text is past

And the king said, I will give them. But 7 the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, because of Jehovah's oath that was between them, between David and Jonathan, the son of Saul. But 8 the king took the two sons of Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah, whom she bare to Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth; and the five sons of Merab," the daughter of Saul, whom she had born to Adriel, the son of Barzillai, the Meholahite: And he delivered 9 them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them on the hill before Jehovah. Thus the seven fell together, and were put to death in the first days of harvest, in the beginning of the barley harvest.

And Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah, took 10 sackcloth, and spread it for herself upon the rock, from the beginning of harvest until water dropped from the heavens upon them, and suffered neither the birds of the air to rest on them by day, nor the beast of the field to attack them by night. And it was 11 told David what Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done. And 12 David went and took the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan, his son, from the men of Jabesh-gilead, who had stolen them from the street of Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hung them up, when the Philistines had slain Saul in Gilboa. And 13 he brought up thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan, his son; and they gathered the bones of those lately hanged. And the bones of Saul, and Jonathan his 14 son, buried they in the country of Benjamin, in Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father: and they performed all that the king commanded. And after this God was entreated for the land.

Moreover the Philistines had again war 15 with Israel; and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines. David had now become doubt. We are told that Michal had no children, chap. vi. 23: and we are informed that Merab, not Michal, was married to Adriel; 1 Sam. xviii. 19. During David's banishment from the court of Saul, Michal was married to Phaltiel. 1 Sam. xxv. 44, and 2 Sam. iii. 15.

9. And they hung them] Michaelis contends that the meaning of the word יָקַע is, that after they were slain, the bodies were nailed to wood, in the manner of those crucified, and left there to perish. In this case the law, Deut. xxviii. 23, was not observed.

10. Until rain from the heavens] It was in consequence of a long drought, that David was commanded to execute these men, for their injustice towards the Gibeonites; and they seem to have been condemned to hang up till rain fell. The attention of Rizpah to the dead manifested her affection; and it should seem that she watched the bodies for some time, but how long is not stated.

11—14. David seems to blame himself for having neglected to inter the bones of Saul, and of Jonathan his friend, in a suitable manner; and the conduct of Rizpah led him now to perform the funeral rites, by transferring their bones to the sepulchre of their father.

16 feeble. And Izhibi-benob, who was of the race of the Rephaites, the brass of whose spear weighed three hundred shekels, and who was girded with a new sword, thought to have slain David: But Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, succoured him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David swore to him, saying, Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, lest thou quench the lamp of Israel. And after this, there was another battle with the Philistines at "Gezer:" then Sibbechai, the Hushathite, slew Saph, who was of the race of the Rephaites. Again there was another battle with the Philistines at Gob, where Elhanan, the son of Jair, a Bethlehemite, slew "Lahumi, the brother" of Goliath, the Gathite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. And there was yet another battle at Gath where was a man of great stature, who had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, twenty-four in number; and he also was of the race of the Rephaites. And when he defied Israel, Jonathan, the son of Shimeah, the brother of David, slew him. These four, of the race of the Rephaites of Gath, fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1019. After his deliverance from his enemies, David composed this most excellent song of thanksgiving.

1 AND David spoke to Jehovah the words of this song; in the day that Jehovah delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, 2 and from the hand of Saul: And he said, Jehovah! my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer: 3 My God, my rock, in whom I trust; My shield, my safe retreat, my tower, my refuge, My saviour, who saveth me from violence. 4 I called on Jehovah, worthy to be praised, And from mine enemies I was saved. 5 The "billows" of death had encompassed me, Destructive floods had filled me with terror: 6 The cords of Hades enclosed me; The snares of death were laid for me! 7 In my distress I called on Jehovah;

17. The lamp of Israel] This is a beautiful metaphor, and contains a delicate compliment to the venerable warrior.

18. At Gezer] I adopt this as the preferable reading, because this was on the confines of Israel, adjoining the Philistines, Josh. xvi. 3, and 1 Chron. xx. 4.

19. For the text followed, the writer of 1 Chronicles xx. 5, 6, must be consulted; and Kennicott has shown how the present has been corrupted. In short, the one text is plain and coherent; this, as it stands, makes Elhanan slay Goliath, contrary to fact.

CHAP. XXII. 3. My safe retreat] It is well known that the Hebrews used the term יָרֵךְ not only for a horn, but to denote a hill, or elevated place. Compare Isa. v. 1. in the original.

4. Worthy to be praised] The future is here, as often, used for the perfect tense.

And to my God, I cried aloud:

From his temple, he heard my voice,

And my cry came to his ear.

Then the earth shook and trembled;

The foundations of the mountains rocked—

They shook, because he was wroth.

From his nostrils ascended a smoke,

And from his mouth a devouring flame:

Flakes of fire were kindled by it.

He bowed the heavens and descended:

And thick darkness was under his feet.

He rode on a cherub, and did fly:

Swiftly did he fly on the wings of the wind!

He placed darkness around him, as his cover;

[of the skies!

His pavilion was dark waters—thick clouds

From the brightness of his presence]

His thick clouds were dispelled

Into hail-stones and flakes of fire!

For Jehovah thundered from the heavens: 1

And the Most High sent forth his voice.

His arrows he shot, and scattered his enemies; [them.

He multiplied lightnings, and confounded

The channels of the sea were then seen; 1

The foundations of the globe were discovered,

At thy rebuke, O Jehovah,

At the furious blast of thine anger!

He sent from on high, he laid hold on me; 1

He drew me up out of many waters.

He delivered me from my powerful enemies, 1

From those who hated me, who were stronger than I. [me,

In the day of my calamity they had surprised 1!

But Jehovah was a staff to support me.

He brought me into a place of liberty; 2!

He delivered me, because in me he delighted.

Jehovah rewarded me according to my righteousness, [recompensed me.

According to the purity of my hands, he

Because I had kept the ways of Jehovah, 2!

And had not wickedly departed from my

God— [me,

Because all his judgments had been before 2!

And his statutes I had never rejected—

Because with him I had been sincere, 2!

And kept myself from the iniquity charged on me— [righteousness;

Jehovah hath rewarded me, according to my 2!

5. (v) Psa. xviii. 4.

6. Hades] This term is adopted as best answering the original, and as it is become almost naturalized. It means the invisible state, into which men go at death. Hence the 'cords of Hades' are the pains and disposes which bring on death, and hurry mortals into that state.

7—15. It is not improbable that David in some of his battles might be favoured with victory in the midst of a thunder-storm. Compare Judges v. 4, &c. This would give occasion to this sublime description.

16—24. In these verses David celebrates the wonderful deliverance wrought for him; and states the cause of it to be his own integrity and uprightness.

25—29. The sense is, that God deals with men according to their character and deeds. In the last verse I follow the text of Psa. xviii. 27, 28.

According to the purity of my hands in his sight.
 26 To the merciful, thou also art merciful ;
 With the upright, thou dealest uprightly ;
 27 With the pure, thou also art pure ;
 But, with the stubborn, thou too art stubborn :
 28 For, an afflicted people thou savest,
 'But the haughty' thou bringest down.
 29 Truly 'tis thou, Jehovah, who lightest my lamp :
 'My God,' who enlightenest my darkness.
 30 By thine aid I have broken through troops ;
 Through my God I have scaled ramparts :
 31 A God, whose way is perfect ;
 The word of Jehovah is tried ;
 A shield is he to all those who trust in him.
 32 Who, truly, is a God, save Jehovah ?
 Or who a firm rock, besides our God ?
 33 The God who girdeth me with strength :
 And rendereth my way smooth ;
 34 Maketh my feet like those of the hinds ;
 And on my high places maketh me stand
 35 Who traineth my hands to war [firm :
 And 'maketh' my arms like a bow of brass.
 36 With thy saving shield thou protectest me,
 And thy right hand supporteth me ;
 And thy condescension maketh me great.
 37 Thou makest ample room for my steps,
 That the soles of my feet may not slip.
 38 I pursued mine enemies and overtook them ;
 I turned not back, till they were destroyed.
 39 I smote them so that they could not rise up :
 'They fell down beneath my feet : [battle ;
 40 For thou didst gird me with strength for
 Thou didst subdue my foes under me.
 1 Thou gavest me the necks of mine enemies ;
 That those who hated me I might destroy.
 2 'They cried, but there was none to save them ;
 To Jehovah, but he answered them not.
 3 Then I beat them small, as dust before the wind ;
 [streets.
 I trampled them down like the mire of the 4 Amid the contentions of the people, thou didst preserve me,

30. Broken through troops] See note, Hebrew Bible.
 34. On my high places] The circumstance of standing on the high places, or mountains, is applied to the hind or stag by Xenophon, Lib. de Venat ; compare Habakkuk i. 19. That expression, my high place, in both the sacred writers, may be explained to signify (still alluding to the hind) the person's usual haunts or places of residence.

35. I have followed the versions in this rendering. The sense is, God had given the knowledge of war and strength in fight.

44. Amid the contentions] He alludes to the civil war after the death of Saul.

50. Among the nations] Those subject to himself. He could instruct them in the knowledge of God, and by his wings afford them matter of praise.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Now these, though later] It is not improbable, that this short prophetic ode might be the last which David wrote, 1 Kings ii.—The pleasant Psalmist literally, 'pleasant in the psalms of Israel.'

3. A just ruler over] These words contain the substance of what God had promised ; and they cannot be applied

And hast placed me at the head of nations. 45
 A people I knew not, now serve me ;
 As soon as they heard of me, they obeyed.
 Foreign nations have submitted to me ;
 Foreign nations languish with fear, 46
 And tremble in their own strong-holds.
 Jehovah liveth ! and blessed be my rock ! 47
 And exalted be the God of my salvation !
 The God who hath avenged my cause, 48
 And hath subdued the people under me ;
 Delivering me from all mine enemies, 49
 Yea, above my foes thou hast raised me :
 From the violent man thou hast rescued me.
 Therefore I will praise Jehovah, among the 50
 nations ;
 I will sing praises to his name :
 Who worketh great deliverance for his king, 51
 Who showeth kindness to his anointed,
 To David and to his seed for ever.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1018. The last words, or the last sacred ode, of David ; a catalogue of David's worthy and brave men.

Now these, though later, are the words of 1
 David.

Thus saith David, the son of Jesse ;
 The man who was highly exalted saith ;
 The anointed of the God of Jacob ;
 The pleasant Psalmist of Israel.

The spirit of Jehovah speaketh by me, 2
 And his word is on my tongue.
 The God of Israel hath said to me ; 3
 To me the Rock of Israel hath promised,
 A just ruler over mankind,
 Who will rule in the fear of God.

As the morning light when the sun 4
 ariseth ;
 A morning cloudless and resplendent ;
 As the grass from the earth after rain ;—
 Is not my house thus with God ? 5
 For with me he hath made an everlasting covenant,
 Wisely ordered in all points and sure.
 Truly in this is all my salvation ; [plish ?
 And mine every desire will he not accom-with propriety to Solomon. For how could he be said to be a ruler over mankind ? This is certainly the sense when בָּרַךְ is used absolutely, without any restrictive or qualifying term. The just ruler then must signify the future Messiah, who sprang from David, and whose kingdom was to be universal.

5. Is not my house] This line is clearly the apodosis or application of the beautiful comparison in the preceding verse ; and this naturally contributes great assistance in ascertaining its genuine sense : 'As lovely as the morning, when the sun ariseth ; a morning, not gloomy, threatening tempests and hurricanes, but cloudless and bright ; as flourishing as grass from the earth after rain ; so shall my house or family abide, splendid in rank and in honours ; flourishing until he come, who is to be the just ruler over mankind ; and when every other branch is cut off, flourishing for ever.' Such I take to be the import of this passage. That ו is used as an interrogative particle see Nold. and Michaelis. Compare Isa. xxxvi. 19, with 2 Kings xvii. 34. In the Syr. and Chald. this signification is common.—For with me] This is the reason of his confidence and hope.

- 6 But lawless men, all of them,
Are like thorns, to be thrust away,
(For they cannot be taken with the hand,
7 But the man who would cut them up,
Must have an ax and a spear-shaft,)
And to be burned, in the place, with fire.
- 8 These are the names of the worthies who belonged to David: 'Jashobeam,' the 'Hachmonite,' was chief of the first three. 'He at one time, raising his spear,' penetrated 9 through three hundred men. And next to him, and one of the first three mighty men, was Eleazar, the son of Dodo, the Ahohite.
'He was with David' at 'Pasdammim:' where the Philistines were assembled to battle, and the men of Israel were giving 10 way; And he arose, and smote the Philistines, until his hand which had stuck to his sword, was weary: and by him Jehovah that day wrought a great deliverance; and 11 the people followed him only to spoil. And next to him was Shammah, the son of Agee the Hararite. And the Philistines were assembled at Lechi, where was a piece of ground full of 'barley:' and the 12 people fled from the Philistines. But he stood in the midst of the ground, and defended it, and smote the Philistines: thus by him, Jehovah wrought a great deliver-13 ance. And those 'three' chiefs of the thirty went, and came down to David to the 'rock,'
to the cave of Adullam: and the Philistines
'were encamped' in the valley of Rephaim.
- 14 Now while David was in that hold, and a garrison of the Philistines was at Bethlehem, 15 David longed, and said, Who will give me a draught of water from the well of Beth-16 lehem, which is by the gate? Then those three mighty men broke through the host of the Philistines, and drew water from the well of Bethlehem, which was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David; but 'David'
would not drink it, but poured it out as a 17 drink-offering to Jehovah. And he said, Far be it from me, O Jehovah, that I should do this thing: 'shall I drink' the blood of these men, who went for it at the risk of their lives? He therefore would not drink
it. These things did those three worthies.

6. But lawless men] Is there not here a reference, not only to the punishment of the wicked in general, but to the lawless, wicked Israelites, who, when the just king should come, would not submit to his law? The metaphor in this view has peculiar force and propriety. As thorns are cut up and burned with fire, in the place where they grew, so shall these sinners be cut off and consumed in their own land.

8. Chief of the first three] Every critic knows that this catalogue in both the texts and the versions is strangely corrupted. It was a comparison of this catalogue with that in Chronicles, that laid the foundation of Kennicott's great work, and the subsequent labour of De Rossi.—Penetrated through] So the word חלל often signifies. (v) 1 Chron. xi. 11.

9. And one of the first three] In order to understand

And next to them was Abishai, the brother of Joab, the son of Zeruiah, the chief of the second three. For he, raising his spear, penetrated through three hundred men; and had the first name, among the second three. Of the three, he was the most honourable, and became their chief; yet he attained not the rank of the first three. And next to him was Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, (the son of a wealthy man of Kabzeel,) great in exploits. He slew two huge lions of Moab: he went down also and slew another lion in the midst of a pit, in time of snow. He, moreover, slew an Egyptian five cubits high: and though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand, he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear. These things did Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada; and hence had a name among the second three worthies. He was more honourable than the thirty, but he attained not the rank of the first three. And David set him over his own guard. Asahel, the brother of Joab, was over the thirty, and one of the second three worthies. The names of David's thirty mighty men were, Elhanan, the son of Dodo, of Bethlehem; Shammah, the Harodite; Elikah, the Harodite; Helez, the Pelonite; Ira, the son of Ikkesh, the Tekoite; Abiezer, the Anethothite; Sibbechai, the Hushathite; Ittai, the Ahohite; Maharai, the Netophathite; Heled, the son of Baanah, a Netophathite; Ittai, the son of Ribai, from Gibeah of the children of Benjamin; Benaiah, the Pirathonite; Hurai, of Nahal-Gaash; Abi-albon, the Arbathite; Asmaveth, the Barhumite; Eliahba, the Shaalbonite; Beni-Hashem, a Gizonite; Jonathan, the son of Shammah, the Hararite; Ahiam, the son of Shacar, the Hararite; Eliphelet, the son of Ahasbai, the Maachashite; Eliam, the son of Ahithophel, the Gilonite; Hezrai, the Carmelite; Naarai, the son of Arabai; the Arbite; Joel, the son of Nathan; of Zobah; Bani, the Gadite; Zelek, the Ammonite; Nahari, the Beerothite, armour-bearer to Joab, the son of this, the reader must observe that of the thirty-seven br men here mentioned, there were six more distinguished than the rest; and of these six, one ternary, or trio, was deemed superior to the second ternary. (v) 1 Chron. 13. So verse 11.

10, 11. He arose] Here the parallel place is corrupt and must be corrected by this. What was done by Shammah is there ascribed to Eleazar.

13. To the rock] Houbigant and Cappellus admit it to be the genuine reading. (v) 1 Chron. xi. 15.

16—18. Geddes conjectures that a name of one of David's worthies has been dropped out of the text; unless we Kennicott we make him out of Asahel. I consider it the only way of explaining the place. For the various reading of the names, consult Hebrew Bible, and compare parallel place. (a) 1 Chron. xi. 16—19.

38 Zeruiah; Ira, an Ithrite; Gareb, an Ithrite; Uriah, the Hethite. In all thirty-seven.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1017. The sin of David in numbering the people; the judgment brought on the kingdom; the plague stayed by David's repentance, and an altar built to God.

- 1 AND the anger of Jehovah was again kindled against Israel, "because an adversary stood up against Israel," and moved David against them to say, Go number Israel and Judah. For the king said to Joab, who was with him, the captain of the host, Go now through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, and number ye the people, that I may know the number of the people. And Joab said to the king, May Jehovah thy God add to the people, how many soever they be, a hundred-fold; and may the eyes of my lord the king see it: but why should my lord the king delight in this purpose? Notwithstanding, the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the other chiefs of the host. So Joab, and the chiefs of the host, went out from the presence of the king to number the people of Israel.
- 5 And they passed over the Jordan, and encamped on the right side of Arero, a city that lieth within the river of Gad, and toward Jazer. Then they went to Gilead, and to the land of Tahtim-hodshi; and they came to Dan-Jaan, and about to Zidon. Thence they went to the strong hold of Tyre, and to all the cities of the Hivites, and of the Canaanites; and they proceeded to the south of Judah, to Beer-sheba. And when they had gone through the whole land, they came to Jerusalem, at the end of nine months and twenty days. And Joab gave to the king the sum of the number of the people: and there were in Israel, eight hundred thousand valiant men, who drew the sword; and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

And David's heart smote him, after that 10 he had numbered the people. And David said to Jehovah, I have greatly sinned by what I have done: and now I beseech thee, O Jehovah, take away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have done very foolishly. As 11 soon as David arose in the morning, the word of Jehovah came to the prophet Gad, David's seer, saying, Go and say to David, 12 Thus saith Jehovah; Three things I offer to thee; choose for thyself one of them, that I may do it to thee. So Gad came to 13 David, and said to him, Shall a famine of "three" years come to thee, in thy land? Or wilt thou flee three months before thine enemies, while they still pursue thee? Or wilt thou have a pestilence of three days in thy land? Consider now, and see, what answer I shall return to him who sent me. And David said to Gad, I am greatly dis- 14 tressed: let us fall now into the hand of Jehovah; for many are his mercies: but let me not fall into the hand of man. "Thus David chose the pestilence."

"It was now the time of wheat harvest;" 15 and Jehovah sent a pestilence upon Israel from the morning until "mid-day;" and there died of the people, from Dan to Beer-sheba, seventy thousand men. And when 16 the angel stretched out his hand to destroy Jerusalem, Jehovah repented of the evil, and said to the angel, who destroyed the people, It is enough: stay now thy hand. And the angel of Jehovah was by the threshing-floor of Araunah, a Jebusite. And 17 David spoke to Jehovah when he saw the CHAP. XXIV. 1. Because an adversary] It is not usual to mention the anger of God, without stating the cause of it; but as the text now stands, God is angry, and his anger leads him to move David to number the people. The words preserved in the parallel place give us this cause, "Because an adversary," perhaps one of David's wicked counsellors, moved him, and he complied with the suggestion, so as to say, 'Go, &c.'

2. That I may know] One would think from this, that David's design was innocent; for if a shepherd ought to know the number and state of his flock, so a king should know the number and state of his people.

3. The right side of Arero] This is not Arero on the Arnon, but Arero by Rabbah; on the west side of the torrent Jabbok, called here the torrent of Gad, because it passed through the territory of that tribe.—Within the river] That is, as I understand it, on the interior side of the torrent. The encampment was between Arero and Jazer: whence, as from a centre, they made a survey and muster of the Reubenites and Gadites.

6. And about to Zidon] That is, to the border of the land belonging to Zidon; for Zidon was not a part of the territory of Israel. So we must understand the next verse.

9. Eight hundred] Josephus has nine hundred thousand; and 1 Chronicles, it is eleven hundred thousand, and four hundred and seventy thousand for Judah. I have preferred the lesser number, as most probably the true one, or at least nearer the truth; for in these accounts there is no absolute certainty. 1 Chron. xxi. 6.

10. And David's heart smote him] Divines have assigned various things, as constituting the sin of David in this census of the people. Michaelis alone has given a just account of this transaction. The design of David was to force all the Israelites to perform military service, and to engage in new wars for the purpose of conquest. Two arguments support this opinion: 1. The opposition which Joab made to the measure. Joab saw that this measure was opposed to the liberties of the people, and hence he opposed it. 2. In taking this census, David did not employ magistrates or priests, as was done before, but the army. From this, it appears that David feared that the people would make resistance; to prevent which, or to suppress any disturbances which might arise, soldiers were sent.

13. Famine of three years] This I take to be the true reading, as we have three months, and three days mentioned after. (v) Sept. 1 Chron. xxi. 12.

14. (a) Sept.

15. Until mid-day] The other reading refers to the three days mentioned for the pestilence in the 13th verse; but if the pestilence had raged the specified time, I think it will be difficult to account for what is said, that Jehovah repented of the evil, and said 'it is enough.' This shows that Jehovah, being merciful, punished less than he had threatened. (a) Sept.

angel who smote the people, and said, Lo, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly : but these sheep, what have they done? let thy hand, I pray thee, be on me, and on my father's house.

- 18 And Gad came, that day, to David, and said to him, Go, build an altar to Jehovah on the threshing-floor of Araunah, the Jebusite. And David, according to the saying of Gad, went up as Jehovah had commanded.
- 20 And Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming on towards him : and Araunah went out and made obeisance to the king, with his face to the ground. And
- 21 Araunah said, Why is my lord the king come to his servant? And David said, To buy of thee the threshing-floor, to build an altar to Jehovah, that the pestilence among the people may be stayed. And Araunah said 22 to David, Let my lord the king take and offer up what seemeth good to him. Behold, here are oxen for a burnt-offering, and threshing instruments, and the ox-gear for wood. All these things Araunah offered to 23 give to the king. And Araunah said to the king, May Jehovah thy God accept thee. And the king said to Araunah, Nay ; but I 24 will surely buy it of thee, at a price : nor will I offer burnt-offerings to Jehovah my God, of that which cost me nothing. So David bought the threshing-floor, and the oxen, for fifty shekels of silver. And David 25 built there an altar to Jehovah, and offered burnt-offerings and feast-offerings. Thus Jehovah was entreated for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel.

18. On the threshing-floor] This hill, where Araunah's barn now stood, was the place where Abraham had offered his son : for this place is called, 2 Chron. iii. 1, mount Moriah. So Josephus observes. Here Solomon built the temple : here the old prophecy, Gen. xxii. said, that the Lord would make provision of a lamb for a burnt-offering ; Jehovah-jireh : from which word jireh, joined to the word Saltem, (the name of a place close by,) was made, as many critics think, the name Jerusalem, where our blessed Saviour was offered.

24. Fifty shekels of silver] If this reading be genuine, it must only be the price of the threshing-floor and oxen : and the parallel place, 1 Chron. xxi. 36, must refer not to the threshing-floor only, but to the whole of mount Moriah, and the buildings on it, which David purchased afterwards for the temple.

25. Thus Jehovah was entreated] In the other account it is said, that God sent fire from heaven, in token of his favour, and consumed the victims. And by the appearance of the angel and this testimony of God's favour and regard, David probably determined to build the temple on this mount.

I. KINGS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE title of these two books is taken from the contents ; as they contain the history of Judah and Israel, from Solomon to the Babylonish captivity ; including a period of nearly five hundred years. It is not known by whom they were written. Some ascribe them to Ezra ; but it is more probable that they were compiled by some of the prophets or priests, from the public records, except some of the last chapters of the second book. Calmet has observed, that the author, or authors, do not seem so much concerned to write a political history, as to describe what relates to the temple and to religion.

This first book comprises a history of about one hundred and nineteen years ; containing an account of the death of David, the reign of Solomon, his building of the temple, his wisdom, his riches, and fall ; the division of the kingdom under his son, and the history of four kings of Judah, and eight of Israel.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1015. David's age and infirmities ; Adonijah's attempt to be king : Nathan's contrivance to secure the throne to Solomon ; Solomon crowned, &c.

- 1 KING David was now old and advanced in years ; and they covered him with clothes, 2 but he got no warmth. His servants, therefore, said to him, Let a young woman, a virgin, be sought for my lord the king : and let her wait on the king, and be a nurse to him, and let her lie in thy bosom, that 3 my lord the king may get warmth. So they sought for a beautiful young woman through all the districts of Israel ; and they found Abishag, a Shunemite, and brought her to the king. And the young woman was 4 most beautiful ; and she became nurse to the king, and waited on him ; but the king knew her not.

Then Adonijah, the son of Haggith, ex- 5 alted himself, saying, I will be king ; and he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. Nor 6 had his father grieved him, by saying, Why doest thou so? He was, moreover, a very handsome man ; and was born next after CHAP. I. 2. Be a nurse to him] The notion of warming or cherishing attributed to נִסְתָּר, Michaelis considers to be without any authority. That Abishag became his nurse, and one of his wives, the following history makes certain.

6. Grieved him] An extreme indulgence of his children seems to have been one of David's greatest failings ; and he experienced the unhappy consequences of it.—And was born next] He was not the son of the same mother as Ab-

7 Absalom. And his designs were disclosed to Joab, the son of Zeruiah, and to Abiathar the priest; and they, siding with Adonijah, 8 helped him. But Zadok, the priest, and Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, and Nathan, the prophet, and Shimei, and "his companions," the mighty men, who belonged to 9 David, were not with Adonijah. And Adonijah slew sheep and oxen, and fat cattle, by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by Enrogel, and invited all his brethren, the king's sons, and all the men of Judah, the king's 10 servants. But Nathan, the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and Solomon, his brother, he invited not.

11 Nathan then spoke to Bath-sheba, the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard, that Adonijah, the son of Haggith, reigneth, and David, our lord, knoweth it 12 not? Now, therefore, come, let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son 13 Solomon. Haste and go in to king David, and say to him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear to thy handmaid, saying, Assuredly, Solomon, thy son, shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? Why 14 then doth Adonijah reign? Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I also will come in after thee, and confirm thy words.

15 And Bath-sheba went in to the king, into the chamber; and the king was very old; and Abishag, the Shunemite, waited on the 16 king. And Bath-sheba bowed, and made obeisance to the king. And the king said 17 "to her," What wouldst thou? And she said to him, My lord, "the king," thou sworest by Jehovah, thy God, to thy handmaid, "saying," Assuredly, Solomon, thy son, shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my 18 throne. And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord, the king, thou 19 knowest it not: And he hath slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep, in abundance, and hath invited all the sons of the king, and Abiathar, the priest, and Joab the captain of the host; but Solomon, thy servant, hath 20 he not invited. And "now," my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are on thee; that thou wouldst tell them, who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king, after him. Otherwise, when my lord the king shall 21 sleep with his fathers, it will be, that I and my son Solomon will be counted offenders.

And lo, while she yet talked with the 22 king, Nathan, the prophet, also came in. And they told the king, saying, Behold 23 Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, he bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground. And Nathan said, My lord, O king, hast 24 thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and sit upon my throne? For he is gone 25 down this day, and hath slain oxen and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath invited all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar, the priest; and, behold, they are eating and drink- 26 ing in his presence, and saying, Long live the king Adonijah! But me, thy servant, and Zadok, the priest, and Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant, Solomon, hath he not invited. Is this thing 27 done by my lord the king? and hast thou not showed to thy servant who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?

Then king David answered and said, 28 Call to me Bath-sheba. And she came into the king's presence, and stood before the king. And the king swore, and said, As 29 Jehovah liveth, who hath redeemed my soul out of every distress, Even as I swore to 30 thee by Jehovah, the God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day. Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the 31 ground, and made obeisance to the king, and said, Long live my lord, king David.

King David then said, Call to me Zadok, 32 the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, and Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king. The king also said 33 to them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and make Solomon, my son, ride upon my own mule, and bring him down to Gihon; salom; for the mother of Absalom was not Haggith, but Maacah, 2 Sam. iii. 3. David's oldest son, Amnon, was slain by Absalom; Chiliab, his second, most probably died young, as he is not mentioned afterwards. Absalom fell in the rebellion which he excited; so that Adonijah, the fourth, was the oldest living; and if the throne had been hereditary, it was his by right. God however disposed of it as he pleased, and had clearly intimated that Solomon should reign after David.

9. En-rogel] Josephus says this fountain was in the royal gardens, without the city. Antiq. book vii. ch. 14.—All the men of Judah] From this account it appears that many supported Adonijah's interest.

12. Save thine own life] It is supposed that Adonijah would cut off his brother, as a rival of the throne; and when the succession is not settled by law, but depends on popular favour, or parental partiality, what mischiefs follow!

16. (a) Syr. Arab. MSS. 17. (a) Sept. Syr.

20. That thou wouldst tell] It is implied in this passage, either that David had, by virtue of the covenant made with the people, a right to appoint his successor, or that, as an inspired prophet, he submitted this to him. Compare 1 Chron. xxii. 9—11. (v) Versions and MSS.

27. And hast thou not showed] Nathan intimates that he had before told him who should succeed him; but by putting it in the interrogative form, it is given in a manner the most delicate and respectful.

33. To Gihon] The name of a fountain, called also Siloam in the New Testament, which was without the walls of the city, but near to them, according to Reland. It was at the bottom of mount Moriah.

- 34 And let Zadok, the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, anoint him there king over Israel; and blow ye with the trumpet, and say,
 35 Long live king Solomon. Ye shall then come up with him, when he cometh, that he may sit upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead: for him I appoint to be 36 ruler over Israel and over Judah. And Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, answered the king, and said, Amen: so may Jehovah, the 37 God of my lord the king, say also. As Jehovah hath been with my lord the king, even so may he be with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my 38 lord David. So Zadok, the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, and Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites and the Pelethites, went down, and made Solomon ride upon king David's own mule, and 39 brought him to Gihon. And Zadok, the priest, took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon, And they blew the trumpet; and all the people said,
 40 Long live king Solomon! And all the people came back with him, and they played on flutes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth was rent with their sound.
 41 And Adonijah and all his guests heard it when they had done eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, Why is this noise and uproar in the city?
 42 And while he yet spoke, Behold, Jonathan, the son of Abiathar, the priest, came: and Adonijah said to him, Come in; for thou art a worthy man, and bringest good tidings.
 43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, Verily, our lord, king David, hath 44 made Solomon king. And the king hath sent with him Zadok, the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, and Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have made him ride upon 45 the king's own mule; And Zadok, the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, have anointed him king in Gihon; and they are come up thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again. This is the noise that ye have 46 heard. And also Solomon sitteth on the 47 throne of the kingdom. And moreover, the king's servants came to bless our lord king David, saying, God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. And the 48 king bowed himself upon the bed. And also thus said the king, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, who hath now given to me one to sit on my throne, mine eyes even seeing it. And all the guests, who were with 49 Adonijah, were afraid, and rose up, and went every one his own way.

And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, 50 and arose, and went, and caught hold on the horns of the altar. And it was told Solomon, saying, Behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon; for, lo, he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar, saying, Let king Solomon swear to me to-day that he will not slay his servant with the sword. And Solomon said, 52 If he will show himself a worthy man, there shall not a hair of his head fall to the ground; but if wickedness be found in him, he shall die. So king Solomon sent and they 53 brought him down from the altar. And he came and bowed himself to king Solomon; and Solomon said to him, Go to thy house.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1015. David's last instructions to Solomon; his death, and Solomon's succession; the punishment of Adonijah, Joab, and Shimei.

Now the day of David's death drew 1 near; and he charged Solomon his son, saying, I am going the way of all the earth: 2 so be thou strong, and show thyself a man. And keep the charge of Jehovah, thy God, 3 so as to walk in his ways, to observe his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself: That Jehovah may 4 confirm his word which he spoke concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth, with all their heart and with all their soul, some one of thy posterity shall not fall to be on the throne of Israel.

Moreover, thou knowest also what Joab, 5 the son of Zeruiah, did to me; what he did to the two captains of the hosts of Israel, to Abner, the son of Ner, and to Amasa, the son of Jether, whom he slew, and in peace shed the blood of war! With the blood of war he stained his girdle which was upon his loins, and his shoes which were on his feet. Thou shalt, therefore, do according to 6 thy wisdom, and shalt not let his hoary head go down in peace to the grave. But show 7

42. A worthy man] The common version valiant seems here improper. They have rendered מַלְאִי by the term I have adopted in the 52d verse. The information of Jonathan destroyed the hopes of Adonijah and his party; and they dispersed, and fled away for safety.

52. (v) Syr. Chald. Arab.

53. Go to thy house] When we consider the attempt of Adonijah, this conduct of Solomon was mild, and founded in the wisest policy.

CHAP. II. 6. Shalt not let his hoary head] David knew that a man like Joab, who had been guilty of deliberate murder, and who could brook no superior, might endanger the peace of the kingdom. He was now engaged to support Adonijah, and so far in actual rebellion. How could David with propriety then forgive him? As to Shimei, David fulfilled his promise; he only engaged that he would not put him to death; and he left it to Solomon to treat him as he thought just, in reference to his future conduct.

- kindness to the sons of Barzillai, the Gileadite, and let them be of those that eat at thy own table: for so they supported me when I fled from before Absalom, thy brother.
- 8 And, behold, with thee is Shimei, the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, who grievously reviled me on the day when I went to Mahanaim: but he came down to meet me at the Jordan, and I swore to him by Jehovah, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword. Now, therefore, hold him not guiltless: for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do to him; and his hoary head bring thou down with blood to the grave. So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of
- 11 David. Now the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty-three
- 12 years reigned he in Jerusalem. And Solomon sat upon the throne of David, his father; and his royal power was greatly established.
- 13 Adonijah, the son of Haggith, then came to Bath-sheba, the mother of Solomon. And she said, Comest thou peaceably? And
- 14 he said, Peaceably. He said, moreover, I have somewhat to say to thee. And she
- 15 said, Say on. And he said, Thou knowest that the royal power was mine; and all Israel regarded me as about to reign: the royal power is, however, turned about, and become my brother's: for it was his from
- 16 Jehovah. And now I ask of thee one request; deny me not. And she said to
- 17 to him, Say on. And he said, Speak, I pray thee, to Solomon, the king, (for he will not deny thee,) that he will give to me
- 18 Abishag, the Shunemite, to wife. And Bath-sheba said, Well; I will speak for thee to the king.
- 19 Bath-sheba therefore went to king Solomon, to speak to him for Adonijah. And the king rose up to meet her, and bowed himself to her, and sat down on his throne, and caused a seat to be set for the king's mother; and she sat on his right hand.

7. They supported me] Barzillai is only mentioned 2 Sam. xvii. 27; but there can be no doubt that his sons came also to bring the provisions for the support of David and his men. Compare 2 Sam. xix. 37, 38.

12. His royal power] The Hebrew בליתו not only signifies a kingdom, in the proper sense, but the kingly or regal power, the sovereignty, or as the term kingdom is used, in the New Testament, for the regal power, or act of reigning.

15. Regarded me] Literally, 'set their faces on me.' Adonijah pleads the loss of what he had a right to expect, as a reason why Solomon should give him Abishag to wife.

20. I will not deny thee] Bath-sheba said the request was trifling; and so she might think. She might suppose, that as Abishag had only slept with David as his nurse, she might with propriety be married to any other. Had Solomon seen the matter in the same light, he would not have denied her request.

Then she said, I ask of thee one small request; deny me not, I pray thee. And the king said to her, Ask, my mother: for I will not deny thee. And she said, Let Abishag, the Shunemite, be given to Adonijah, thy brother, to wife. And king Solomon answered and said to his mother, And why dost thou ask Abishag, the Shunemite, for Adonijah? ask for him the royal power also; (for he is my elder brother :) even for him, and for Abiathar, the priest, and for Joab, the son of Zeruiah. Then Solomon swore by Jehovah, saying, God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not spoken this word against his own life. Now therefore, as Jehovah liveth, who hath established me, and set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath given to me progeny, as he promised, Adonijah shall, this day, be put to death. And king Solomon gave orders to Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada; and he fell upon him and put him to death.

And to Abiathar, the priest, the king said, Go to Anathoth, unto thine own fields; for thou art worthy of death; but I will not, at this time, put thee to death, because thou didst bear the ark of the Lord Jehovah, before David my father, and because thou hast shared in all the distresses with which my father was distressed. Thus Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being high priest to Jehovah; so that the word of Jehovah was fulfilled, which he spoke at Shiloh concerning the house of Eli.

Then tidings came to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled unto the tabernacle of Jehovah, and caught hold on the horns of the altar. And it was told king Solomon that Joab had fled unto the tabernacle of Jehovah; and that he was beside the altar. Then Solomon sent Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, saying, Go, fall upon him. And Benaiah came to the tabernacle of Jehovah, and said to him, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay;

22. Ask for him the royal power] It has already been hinted, that the wives and concubines of a deceased king became the property of his successor. Compare 2 Sam. iii. 7; xvi. 21. Solomon had before ordered Adonijah to his own house, and promised, that if he would show himself a worthy man, not a hair of his head should be injured. He now perceives, that he was aspiring to the crown; and that he could not be secure, until Adonijah, Joab, and Abiathar, his advisers, were removed. He therefore resolves on the execution of Adonijah and Joab, and the banishment of Abiathar.

26. Hast shared in all] Here the sense is given with Dathe, as the idiom is neither clear nor elegant.

27. So that the word of Jehovah] I have rendered here as we should often render; for it is at least doubtful, whether, in the punishment of Abiathar, Solomon had any design to fulfil the word of God; but the historian remarks, that in his degradation the word of Jehovah was accomplished.

"I will not come forth," but here I will die. And Benaiah brought the king word, saying, Thus spoke Joab, and thus he answered
 31 me. And the king said to him. Do as he hath spoken, and slay him there, and bury him; that thou mayest take away the innocent blood, which Joab shed, from me, and 32 from the house of my father. For Jehovah will return his blood upon his own head, since he fell upon two men more righteous and better than himself; whom, my father David not knowing, he slew with the sword; Abner, the son of Ner, chief of the host of Israel, and Amasa, the son of Jether, chief 33 of the host of Judah. Their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab, and upon the head of his seed for ever; but upon David, and upon his seed, and upon his house, and upon his throne, there shall 34 for ever be peace from Jehovah. Then Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, went up, and fell upon him, and slew him; and he was buried in his own house in the wilderness.
 35 And the king put Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, in his room over the host; and Zadok, the priest, did the king put in the room of Abiathar.
 36 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said to him, Build for thyself a house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and never go out thence any whither. For on the day that thou goest out, and passest over the brook Kidron, know thou for certain that thou shalt surely die: thy blood shall 38 be upon thy own head. And Shimei said to the king, The sentence is proper; as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days. But at the end of three years, two of the servants of Shimei ran away to Achish, son of Maachah, king of Gath. And some one told Shimei, saying,
 40 Behold, thy servants are in Gath. And Shimei arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to seek his servants; and Shimei went, and brought his servants
 41 from Gath. And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and had returned. And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said to him, Did I not adjure thee by Jehovah, and protest to thee, saying, Know thou, for certain, that on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, thou shalt surely die? and thou saidst to me, The sentence which I have heard is proper. Why then hast thou 43 not kept the oath of Jehovah, and the command with which I charged thee? The king 44 said moreover to Shimei, Thou knowest all the wickedness (of which thy heart is conscious) that thou didst to David my father. Jehovah, therefore, returneth thy wickedness upon thy own head; And king Solomon 45 shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before Jehovah, for ever. The king then gave orders to Benaiah, the 46 son of Jehoiada, who went out and fell upon him, and put him to death.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1014. Solomon's marriage; his offering at Gibeon; his judgment between the two harlots.

THE royal power being thus established 1 in the hand of Solomon, Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and took to wife Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David, until he had made an end of building his own house, and the house of Jehovah, and the wall of Jerusalem round about.

Still the people sacrificed on high-places, 2 because, until those days, there was no house built to the name of Jehovah. And though 3 Solomon loved Jehovah, walking in the statutes of David his father, yet he sacrificed and burnt incense on high places. And the 4 king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that was the great high-place: a thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

In Gibeon Jehovah appeared to Solomon 5 in a dream by night; and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. And Solomon said, 6 Thou hast showed to thy servant David, my father, great mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart towards thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou hast given to him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. And 7 now, O Jehovah, my God, thou hast made thy servant king, instead of David my father:

30. But here wilt I die? Joab perhaps thought that Solomon would either regard the altar, so as not to slay him; or, that he would die there, in hope that God, whose altar it was, would be gracious to him. (a) Versions.

42. Did I not adjure thee? So Matthew rendered; Cranmer and the Bishops, 'did I not charge thee with an oath.'

46. Gave orders to Benaiah? It appears from this chapter, that the execution of criminals was the duty of the king's chief officer.

CHAP. III. 1. Pharaoh's daughter? In no part of scripture is Solomon blamed for this alliance with the royal house of Egypt; and yet we know that the Egyptians were idolaters. Did Solomon then stipulate, that the Egyptian princess should renounce the worship of her own gods, and conform to the Jewish law? This is fairly presumable, and what the law required. Some consider Solomon as typical of Messiah, and this marriage as shadowing the union of Jew and Gentile in the Christian church.

4. The great high place? The most noted and most frequented high-place, because the tabernacle and the altar of Moses were there. Compare 1 Chron. xxvi. 39, and 2 Chron. i. 3, 5, 6. Solomon kept here some of the sacred feasts, and during the festival offered a thousand burnt-offerings.

7. A very young man? Solomon could not be less than twenty years old when he became king; so that to render a little child, when the words do not necessarily imply it,

- and I am only a very young man; I know
 8 not how to conduct affairs. And thy servant is in the midst of thy people whom thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.
 9 Give, therefore, thy servant an understanding heart to judge the people, that I may discern between good and evil: for who else can judge this thy so great a people?
 10 And the request which Solomon had made
 11 was acceptable to Jehovah. And God said to him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern what is right; Behold I grant to thee thy request: lo, I give thee a wise and understanding heart; so that there hath been none like to thee before thee, nor after 12 thee shall any arise like to thee. And I also give to thee what thou hast not asked, both riches, and honour: so that there shall not be any among the kings like to thee all thy 13 days. And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as thy father David walked, then I will 14 lengthen thy days. And Solomon awoke; and, behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, and offered up burnt-offerings, and feast-offerings, and made a feast for all his servants.
 16 Then came there two women, who were harlots, to the king, and stood before him.
 17 And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.
 18 And the third day after I was delivered, this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house; we two only were in the house.
 19 And this woman's child died in the night;
 20 because she overlaid it. And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thy handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.
 21 And when I arose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear. And the other woman said, Nay; but the 22 living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spoke 23 before the king. Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the one dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the one dead, and my son is the one living. And the king said, 24 Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king. And the king said, 25 Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other. Then the 26 woman whose the living child was spoke to the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it. Then the king answered 27 and said, Give to her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is its mother. And 28 when all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had given, they revered the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1014. Solomon's principal officers; the flourishing state of his kingdom; his great wisdom.

Thus king Solomon was king over all 1 Israel. And these were his chief officers; 2 Azariah, the son of Zadok the priest, Elihoreph and Ahiah, the sons of Shisha, were 3 scribes; Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, the recorder: And Benaiah, the son of 4 Jehoiada, was over the host: and Zadok and Abiathar were the high-priests: And 5 Azariah, the son of Nathan, was over the governors of provinces: and Zabud, the son of Nathan, was the chief officer, and the king's own friend: And Ahishar was 6 over the household; and Adoniram, the son of Abda, was over the tribute.

And Solomon had twelve officers over all 7 Israel, who provided victuals for the king is strange. The meaning is, 'I am but young, and inexperienced in the affairs of government.' Compare Numb. xxvii. 17, Deut. xxxi. 2, Josh. xiv. 11.

10. Was acceptable to Jehovah] As Solomon's prayer is stated to have been made in a dream, it has been objected that there could be nothing acceptable in it. It may be replied, that the dream indicated the subject which had occupied his mind before; and showed what was then his prevailing desire. Nor is it improbable, that he repeated this prayer, when he awoke; and so turned what had passed in his mind asleep, into devout and ardent requests.

16-29. The case here was difficult to determine. The character of the women was alike; so that the declaration of the one was not deserving of more credit than that of the other. There was no other evidence to incline and determine the judgment. The only way to ascertain which was the mother, was to try which showed maternal affection and tenderness. On this principle he ordered that the child should be divided by a sword into two parts, one of which should be given to each. Such an order must have been heard with horror; but when the decision was made, how much must their admiration have been raised!

28. The wisdom of God] That is, a godlike or divine wisdom.

CHAP. IV. 3. Were the scribes] These were like our clerks of court. They wrote down causes, examined witnesses, and sometimes distributed justice.—His recorder] Historiographer would, perhaps, be the better rendering. It appears to have been his duty to record all matters of importance which respected foreign relations, as well as all interesting occurrences in the land.

5. Was the chief officer] It is certain that the term denotes a chief governor, or one who administers the king's affairs. 2 Sam. viii. 18.

and his household; each man his own 8 month in a year made provision. And these are their names: , the son of 9 Hur, in mount Ephraim: , the son of Dekar, in Makaz, and in Shaalbim, and 10 Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan: , the son of Hesei, in Aruboth; to him pertained Sochoh, and all the land of Hopher:
 11 , the son of Abinadab, in all the region of Dor; who had Taphath, the daughter 12 of Solomon, to wife: Baana, the son of Ahilud; to him pertained Taanach and Megiddo, and all Beth-shan, which is by Zartanah beneath Jezreel, from Beth-shan to 13 Abel-meholah, and beyond Jokneam: , the son of Geber, in Ramoth-gilead; to him pertained the towns of Jair, the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead; to him also pertained the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, threescore great cities with walls
 14 and brazen bars: Ahinadab, the son of 15 Idda, had Mahanaim: Ahimaaz was in Naphtali; he also took Basmath, the daugh-
 16 ter of Solomon, to wife: Baanah, the son
 17 of Hushai, was in Asher and in Aloth:
 Jehoshaphat, the son of Paruah, in Issa-
 18 char: Shimei, the son of Elah, in Benjamin:
 19 Geber, the son of Uri, was in the country of Gilead, in the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og, king of Bashan; and he was the only governor, who was in the land.

21 *And Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the river unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt: they brought presents, and served Solomon all the days of his life.

22 And Solomon's provision for one day was thirty cores of fine flour, and sixty cores of 23 common flour; Ten fat oxen, and twenty oxen of the pastures, and a hundred sheep beside harts, and roebucks, and fallow deer, 24 and fatted fowl. For he had dominion over all the region on this side the river, from Tiphseh even to Azzah, over all the kings on this side the river: and he had peace on all sides round about him.: And Judah and 25 Israel dwelt safely, every man under his vine, and under his fig-tree, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, all the days of Solomon.

And Solomon had "four" thousand stalls 26 of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. And those fore-named 27 governors provided victuals for king Solomon, and for all that came to king Solomon's table, each one, in his own month: they suffered nothing to be wanting.

Barley also and straw for the horses 28 and dromedaries brought they to the place where these were, each according to his charge.

And God gave to Solomon wisdom and 29 understanding exceedingly great: and largeness of heart, like the sand which is on the sea-shore. And Solomon's wisdom was 30 superior to the wisdom of all the people of the east: and to all the wisdom of Egypt.
 For he was wiser than all other men; than 31
 Ethan, the Ezrahite, or Heman, or Chalcol, or Darda, the sons of Mahol: and his name was famous among all the nations around.
 And he spoke three thousand proverbs: and 32 his songs were a thousand and five. And 33
 he discoursed on trees, from the cedar-tree which is on Lebanon, even unto the hyssop that groweth out of the wall: he discoursed also on beasts, and on fowls, and on creeping things, and on fishes. And men from all 34 people came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, who had heard of his wisdom.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1014. Hiram congratulates Solomon; he furnishes timber to build the temple, &c.

AND Hiram, king of Tyre, sent his ser- 1 vants to Solomon; for he had heard that they had anointed him king instead of his father: for Hiram was always an affectionate friend of David. And Solomon sent to 2
 Hiram, saying, Thou knowest how that 3
 David, my father, could not build a house

8.  the son of Hur] The proper name of five of these prefects has been dropped out of the text, nor do any of the versions retain them. The context proves the omission. For in the other names, we have first the proper name, and then is added the name of the father.

20. Judah and Israel were many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, eating and drinking and making merry. This verse Geddes rejects as spurious. It is wanting in the Sept. It has no connexion with the narrative.

21. Unto the land] That is, including the land of the Philistines; for his dominion extended to the border of Egypt.

22. Thirty cores] The core, or homer, contained ten ephas. The epha about ten of our pecks. See the tables.

25. Every man under his vine] This is a beautiful image of the peace, security, and felicity of Solomon's reign.

26. Four thousand] The reading of the parallel place is, doubtless, the true one. All the versions have here forty, a number incredible and disproportionate. The lesser number Michaelis thought too great

30. All the people of the east] The Arabians and Egyptians were celebrated for their knowledge of astronomy, and other sciences; and the Greek philosophers generally went into Egypt to perfect their own attainments.

31. Wiser than Ethan] These celebrated Israelites are mentioned 1 Chron. ii. 6. Some suppose it was this Heman who composed the 88th and 89th psalms. See the titles to them.

32. Three thousand proverbs] Had all the works of Solomon been preserved, they would have contributed much to the elucidation of the scriptures. We have but a few of his proverbs, and it is doubtful whether we have any of the songs here mentioned, unless the Song of Songs be one.

CHAP. V. 1. Sent his servants] The next clause indicates that Hiram did this at the commencement of Solomon's reign.

3. Thou knowest] David's intention to build a house for God was well known to Hiram, by the great preparations which he had made. 1 Chron. xxviii. 12—19, and xxix.
 2, &c.

to the name of Jehovah, his God, on account of the wars which beset him on every side, until Jehovah put his enemies under the soles of his feet. But now Jehovah, my God, hath given me rest on every side; there is neither adversary nor evil occurrence. And behold I purpose to build a house to the name of Jehovah, my God, as Jehovah spoke to David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy stead, he shall build a house to my name. Now, therefore, command thou that they hew for me cedar trees, out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants: and for thy servants I will give thee according to all that thou shalt appoint: for thou knowest that among us there are none who have skill to hew timber, like to the Sidonians.

And, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly, and said, Blessed be Jehovah, who this day hath given to David a wise son, to reign over this great people. And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have considered the things about which thou sentest to me; I will do according to all thy desire, in respect to cedar-trees, and fir-trees. My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea; and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place which thou shalt appoint to me, and will cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayest receive them: but thou shalt accomplish my desire, in giving food for my household.

Thus Hiram gave to Solomon cedar-trees and fir-trees, according to all his desire.

And Solomon gave to Hiram twenty thousand cores of wheat for food to his household, and twenty cores of pure oil: thus Solomon gave to Hiram yearly. And Jehovah gave to Solomon wisdom, as he had promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and they two made a mutual league.

And king Solomon raised a levy out of all Israel; and the levy was thirty thousand men. And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month by courses; a month they were in Lebanon, and two months at home: and Adoniram was over the levy.

Solomon had, moreover, seventy thousand men, who carried burdens; and eighty thousand stone-hewers in the mountains; Besides the chief overseers of Solomon, who were over the work, three thousand and three hundred, who governed the people that wrought in the work. And the king commanded, and they brought great stones, costly stones, and squared stones, to lay the foundation of the house. Thus Solomon's workmen, and Hiram's workmen, and the Gibeonites, hewed and prepared timber and stones to build the house.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1012. The building of the temple; its separate apartments, furniture, &c. Solomon's other buildings.

Now it was in the four hundred and eightieth year from the departure of the Israelites out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that he began to build the house of Jehovah. And the house which king Solomon built for Jehovah was in length sixty cubits, and in breadth twenty cubits, and in height thirty cubits. And the porch before the temple was in length twenty cubits, according to the breadth of the house; its breadth from the house ten cubits. And he made windows for the house, which might be opened or shut; And adjoining the wall of the house he built galleries round about: round about, adjoining the wall, both of the temple and of the oracle. He built also round about, side-cells. The nethermost gallery was five cubits broad, and the middlemost was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for on the outside of the walls of the temple, he made narrowed rests round about, that the gallery-beams might not be fastened in the walls of the house. For, when the house was building, it was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer nor axe, nor any other iron tool heard in the house, while it was building. In the 'lowest' gallery there was an entrance on the right side of the house: and they went up with winding stairs to the middlemost gallery, and from the middlemost to the third gallery. Thus he built the house, and finished it, and covered the house with

6. Like to the Sidonians] From this, it appears, that Tyre and Sidon formed but one kingdom. Both Tyre and Sidon were distinguished commercial cities, and their ships carried on the whole trade of that period. The arts flourished among them, and they were celebrated not only for their nautical skill, but for their architecture.

9. Bring them down from Lebanon] This lofty mountain did then, and does still, abound with the finest cedars, pines, and firs; and this circumstance contributed to raise Tyre, by affording materials for ships, &c.

11. Cores] See note to chap. iv. 22.

18. The Gibeonites] I consider הגבילים a proper name, a Gebal was a city near to Lebanon. Compare Josh. xiii. 5. Ezek. xxvii. 8.

CHAP. VI. 4. Be opened or shut] So both Dathe and Michaelis render. Perhaps lattices which could be closed or opened at pleasure.

5. Galleries] Which were divided into a number of side-cells; as below: it is unknown how many, as their length is not mentioned.

8. In the lowest] The reading I have adopted is confirmed by the fifth verse, as well as the versions of the Sept. and Chald. The text has middle.

- 10 beams and boards of cedar. And the galleries he built about the whole house. five cubits high: and they rested on the house by beams of cedar.
- 11 And the word of Jehovah came to Solomon, saying, In respect to this house which thou art building, if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, so as to walk according to them; then will I perform my word to thee, which I spoke to David thy father: And I will dwell among the Israelites, and will not forsake my people Israel.
- 12 And Solomon built the house and finished it. And having built the walls of the house he covered the inside with wood, with boards of cedar up to the ceiling; but the floor of the house he covered with planks of fir.
- 13 And at the further end of the house, he lined twenty cubits, both floor and walls, with boards of cedar: this he constructed for the inner ORACLE. Thus forty cubits were left for the outer house or temple.
- 14 And the cedar of the inner house was carved with knops and open flowers: all was cedar; there was no stone seen. And this inner house he appointed to be the oracle, in which was to be put the ark of the covenant of Jehovah. And the front of the oracle was twenty cubits in length, and its breadth twenty cubits, and its height twenty cubits: and he overlaid it with pure gold; and so he overlaid the altar of incense. Thus Solomon overlaid the inner house with pure gold: and he made chains of gold along the front of the oracle; and he overlaid it with gold.
- 15 And the whole house he completely overlaid with gold; also the whole altar which was by the oracle he overlaid with gold.
- 16 And within the oracle he made two cherubs, of wild olive wood, ten cubits high.
- 17 And the one wing of the cherub was five cubits, and the other wing of the cherub five cubits; so that from the extremity of the one wing to the extremity of the other, was ten cubits. And the other cherub was ten cubits: both the cherubs were of one measure and one size. The height of the one cherub was ten cubits, and so was that of the other cherub. And he placed the cherubs in the midst of the inner house: and the wings of the cherubs were expanded so that the wing of the one cherub touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their other wings touched one another in the midst of the house. And he overlaid the cherubs with gold. And he carved all the walls of the house round about with carved figures of cherubs, and palm trees, and open flowers within and without the oracle.

And the floor of the house, within and without the oracle, he overlaid with gold.

And for the entrance of the oracle he made doors of wild olive wood: the lintel of the side posts was a fifth part of the breadth of the house. The two door-leaves were also of wild olive wood; on which he carved cherubs, and palm trees, and open flowers; and he overlaid the doors with gold; and spread gold upon the cherubs, and upon the palm trees. Thus also he made for the door of the temple posts of wild olive wood, a fourth part of the breadth of the temple. And the two door-leaves were of fir tree; the one leaf turned on two hinges, and the other leaf turned on two hinges. And he carved thereon cherubs, and palm trees, and open flowers: and covered them with gold fitted for the carved work. And he built the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar beams.

In the fourth year was the foundation of the house of Jehovah laid, in the month Zif; And in the eleventh year, in the month Bul, which is the eighth month, was the house finished in all its parts, and according to its designed form. Thus was he seven years in building it.

But in building his own house, Solomon was thirteen years more. And when he had wholly completed his own house, He built the house of the forest of Lebanon. Its length was a hundred cubits, and its breadth fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits, raised upon four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams upon the pillars. And it was covered above with cedar upon the beams, which lay upon sixty pillars, fifteen in a row. And there were three rows of windows, and in those three rows, light was opposite to light. And all the apertures and posts of the windows were square: and light was opposite to light in three rows. He then

21. Along the front] These chains seem to have been designed to suspend the veil, which separated the oracle from the temple.

23. Of wild olive wood] Literally, 'of oily wood,' which Michaelis explains to mean the oleaster, which abounds in Judea, and which is very durable.

31. Entrance of the oracle] From this, it should seem, that there was a partition wall extending, at least, part of the way between the oracle and temple: most probably, on each side in which the doors were made.

CMAR. VII. 1. The Greek version has the first twelve verses at the end of the chapter. These seem out of their place, if the order of time be regarded; but as the historian had mentioned the time in which the temple was building, he very naturally adds the time which Solomon spent in completing his other works. I have, therefore, joined the verses to the sixth chapter.—Thirteen years more] Compare 2 Chron. viii. 1.

2. House of the forest] This appears to have been the country residence of Solomon, and not far from Jerusalem. It is probable that it was thus called on account of the plantations with which it was surrounded.

made a porch with pillars; its length was fifty cubits, and its breadth thirty cubits: and the area of the porch was before those pillars, and over them were thick planks.

- 7 He next made a porch for the throne where he might judge, hence called the judgment-porch: and it was covered with cedar from the floor to the ceiling. And his own apartment, where he sat, was a court-hall, behind the porch, of like workmanship. Solomon made also a house for Pharaoh's daughter, whom he had taken to wife, like to this porch. All these were built of costly stones, squared to a measure, and cut with saws, within and without, even from the foundation to the coping.* And the foundation was of costly stones, and great stones, stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits.
- 11 And above these were costly stones, squared to a measure, and cedars. And the great court round about was of three rows of hewed stones, and a row of cedar beams, both for the inner court of the house,* and for the porch of the house.

CHAPTER VII.

18. C. 1003. Hiram sent for; makes the two brass pillars, molten sea, lavers, &c.

- 13 AND king Solomon had sent and brought Hiram from Tyre. He was the son of a widow woman, of the tribe of Naphtali, (though his father was a man of Tyre,) a worker in brass; and he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and knowledge to work all sorts of brass work. And he came to king Solomon, and wrought all his works. And he cast two pillars of brass, each pillar eighteen cubits: and a line of twelve cubits was the circumference of each pillar. And he made two capitals of molten brass, to be placed on the tops of the pillars: the height of the one capital was five cubits, and the height of the other capital was five cubits: And "he made" net-works and wreaths of chain-work, for the capitals, which were upon the top of the pillars;

6. He then made a porch] The porch was probably in the form of a piazza. The pillars were placed at some distance from the wall, either on one side only, or all around: and that space was covered with a thick flooring, to keep out the rain and afford a shady walk.

9. The words without the great court are omitted as evidently unnecessary. For if the whole building, within and without, was made of costly stones, &c. there is no necessity to add and so without, &c.

12. The writer is giving an account of the house of the forest of Lebanon, and not of the temple; and therefore Jehovah should be omitted.

17. And he made] It has been justly observed by Michaelis and others, that although the ornaments of those pillars are minutely described, yet it is not easy to find equivalent terms in modern languages; and it is difficult to render them properly. (a) (v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

18. In the common text, the words that correspond to pillars and pomegranates, have changed places. Indeed the whole of this and the next verse is strangely misarranged

"a net-work" for the one capital, and "a net-work" for the other capital. And he made 18 to cover the capitals, which are on the tops of the pillars, two rows of pomegranates, round about the net-work of one capital; and so he did for the other capital. And the capitals 19 which were upon the top of the pillars had four cubits of lily works. And above this, 20 about the swelling which was by the net-work of the capitals, on the two pillars, were rows of pomegranates; two hundred on the one capital, and two hundred on the other capital. And he set up the pillars in the 21 porch of the temple; and he set up the right-side pillar, and called its name Jachin [IT SHALL STAND]; and he set up the left-side pillar, and called its name Boaz [IN STRENGTH]. And upon the top of the pillar he placed lily work: thus the work of the pillars was completed.

And he made a molten sea, from one 23 brim to the other, ten cubits: it was wholly round; its height was five cubits; and a line of thirty cubits compassed it round. And under its brim were knops encompass- 24 ing it, ten in a cubit; encompassing the sea round about; the knops were in two rows, cast when it was cast. It stood upon 25 twelve oxen, three looking towards the north, and three looking towards the west, and three looking towards the south, and three looking towards the east: and the sea was so placed above them, that all their hinder parts were inward. And the sea was a hand- 26 breadth thick, and its brim was wrought like the brim of a cup with flowers of lilies. It contained two thousand baths.

He also made ten laver-stands of brass; 27 four cubits was the length of one stand, and four cubits its breadth, and three cubits its height. And the workmanship of the 28 stands was this: they had frame-bands, and the frame-bands were between the supporters. And on the frame-bands which were 29 between the supporters, were lions, oxen, and cherubs: and upon the supporters, both and mutilated. I have endeavoured to render them intelligible.

21. Jachin—Boaz] I believe the right name of the former is Jachan, which is that of the Greek version: the English of which is, It-shall-stand. The other signifies In strength, or Strongly. Perhaps the artist meant the latter a continuation of the former: It shall stand firmly. Some conjecture that there was an inscription on each pillar, the first word of which is that given. They were intended more for ornament than use.

23. Molten sea] The Hebrews called any collection of waters sea. So the lake of Genesareth and others are called in the gospels; and here, this term is applied to a large vessel, containing two thousand baths, which was used for various purposes in the temple-service.

25. Twelve oxen] These were not only intended for its support, but for ornament, and Daubuz considers them as cherubs.

28. Frame-bands] Among other senses the word מִסְכָּה denotes a border, a piece, which closes and shuts up others.

above and below the lions and oxen, were 30 joints of excellent workmanship. And every stand had four brazen wheels, and brazen axle-trees. And at its four corners were undersettlers; molten undersettlers beneath 31 the laver, by each of the joints. And its mouth was within the capital, and was a cubit high: but its mouth, without, was a cubit and a half, corresponding to the workmanship of the stand: and also near to its mouth were engravings, square, not round, 32 with their frame-bands. And under the frame-bands were the four wheels; and the axle-trees of the wheels were fixed to the stand: and the height of a wheel was a 33 cubit and a half. And the work of the wheels was like the work of a chariot wheel; their axle-trees, and their naves, and their felloes, and their spokes, were all molten.
 34 And there were four undersettlers to the four corners of each stand: and the under-35 setters were of the stand itself. And at the top of the stand was a circle, half a cubit high, and from the top of the stand itself, 36 arose its arms and frame-bands. And on the plates of its arms and on its borders, he engraved cherubs, lions, and palm-trees, in the open parts, at the joinings around.
 37 After this manner he made the ten stands:
 all of them had the same casting, measure,
 and size.

38 Then he made ten brazen lavers: each laver contained forty baths; and each laver was four cubits, in diameter. Upon every one of the ten stands he placed one laver.
 39 And five of the stands he placed on the right side of the temple, and five on the left side of the temple; and the sea he placed 40 at the south-east corner of the temple. Also Hiram made the other lavers, and the shovels and the basins.

Thus Hiram completed all the work which he did for king Solomon, for the 41 house of Jehovah: The two pillars, and the bowls of the capitals, which were on the top of the two pillars; and the two networks, to cover the two bowls of the capitals, 42 which were on the top of the pillars; And four hundred pomegranates for the two networks, two rows of pomegranates for the one net-work, to cover the two bowls of the capitals which were upon the pillars; 43 And the ten stands, and the ten lavers on the stands; And one sea, and twelve oxen 41 under the sea; And the pans, and the 42 shovels, and the sprinkling basins, and all these utensils, which Hiram made for king Solomon, for the house of Jehovah, were of polished brass. In the plain of the Jordan 46 did the king cast them; in the clay ground between Succoth and Zarthan. And Solo- 47 mon left all the vessels unweighed; for so very great was the quantity of brass, that it was not ascertained.

And Solomon made all the other utensils 48
 of the house of Jehovah: the golden altar, and the golden table, upon which was placed the presence-bread. And the chandeliers of 49 pure gold, (five on the right side, and five on the left,) before the oracle, with their flowers, and lamps, and the snuffers of gold;
 The bowls also and the knives, and the 50 sprinkling basins, and the spoons, and the censers of pure gold; and the golden hinges; both for the doors of the inner house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the outer-house, or temple. And when 51 all the work which king Solomon made for the house of Jehovah was finished, Solomon then brought all the things which David, his father, had dedicated; the silver, and the gold, and the vases, he put among the treasures of the house of Jehovah.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1005. *The feast of the dedication of the temple;
 Solomon's prayer, and his feast-offerings.*

THEN Solomon assembled "all" the elders 1 of Israel, all the heads of the tribes, the paternal chiefs of Israel, unto king Solomon in Jerusalem, that they might bring up the ark of the covenant of Jehovah out of the city of David, which is in Zion. And 2
 all the chief men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at the feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month;
 And all the elders of Israel came, and the 3 priests "and the Levites" took up the ark.
 And they brought up the ark of Jehovah, 4 and the congregation-tabernacle, and all the holy vessels which were in the tabernacle; even these the priests and the Levites brought up. And king Solomon, and the 5 whole assembled congregation of Israel with him, were sacrificing before the ark, sheep and oxen that could not be told or num-

I have followed Geddes, as best expressing the sense here.
 Others render openings.

29. Joints of excellent] So the Syriac translator rendered;
 but for what purpose these joints were made, I cannot conjecture. The whole description is minute, but as the terms are ambiguous, it is impossible to understand it completely.

39. On the right side] The stands and lavers were placed, not within the temple, but in the court before the temple.

45. Polished brass] The ancient translators generally understood it to be a finer sort of brass, known by the name of Corinthian.

CHAP. VIII. 1. (a) Versions and MSS.

2. Seventh month] On the 15th of this month the feast of booths was kept; and it is probable, that the feast of the dedication preceded, and continued seven days. See ver.
 65. This time was chosen as most convenient for the people, the harvest and vintage being finished.

3. (a) 2 Chron. v. 4.

6 bered for multitude. Thus the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of Jehovah into its place, into the oracle of the temple, the most holy place, under the wings of the cherubs. For the cherubs spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubs covered both the ark and its staves. And though the staves were so long that the end of the staves might be seen within the holy oracle, yet they could not be seen without: and there they are to this day. There was nothing in the ark, but the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when Jehovah made a covenant with the Israelites, on their coming out of the land of Egypt.

10 Now when the priests had come out of the holy place, a cloud filled the house of Jehovah. So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud; for the glory of Jehovah had filled the house of Jehovah.

12 Then spoke Solomon, Jehovah said that he would dwell in the dark cloud. I have assuredly built for thee a house of abode, a place for thy perpetual residence. And the king turned his face about, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel; and the whole congregation of Israel stood up: and he said, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, who, with his own hand, hath fulfilled, what, with his own mouth, he promised to David, my father, saying, From the day that I brought my people out of Egypt, I have not chosen a city out of any of the tribes of Israel to build a house, that my name might be there revered; but I have chosen David to be over my people Israel. Now it was the purpose of David, my father, to build a house to the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel. But Jehovah said to David, my father, Inasmuch as it is thy purpose to build a house to my name, thou hast done well to form such a purpose. Nevertheless, thou shalt not build the house! but thy son who shall come from thy own loins, he shall build the house to my name. Now, Jehovah hath performed his word which he spoke; for I am risen up instead of David, my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, as Jehovah promised, and have built a house to the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel. And I have assigned there a place for the ark, in which are the tables of the covenant of Jehovah, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

And Solomon stood before the ark of Jehovah, in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands towards the heavens; And he said, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, there is no God like thee, in the heavens above, or on the earth below, who keepest covenant, and showest mercy to thy servants who walk before thee with their whole heart: Who hast kept with thy servant David, my father, what thou didst promise to him: and what thou spoked with thy own mouth, with thine own hand hast thou fulfilled, as is this day seen. Therefore now, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, keep still with thy servant David, my father, what thou didst promise to him, saying, Some one of thy posterity shall not fail to sit, in my presence, on the throne of Israel; provided that thy children take heed to their way, so that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me. And now, O God of Israel, let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spoked to thy servant David, my father. But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heavens, yea the highest heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built? Yet have thou respect to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Jehovah, my God, to hearken to the cry and to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee this day: That thine eyes, night and day, may be open towards this house; towards the place of which thou hast said, My name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken to the prayer which thy servant may make towards this place. And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of

8. Within the holy oracle] The cherubs covered the ark with their wings, but when the high-priest went into the oracle, the staves by which the ark had been carried might be seen, but could not be seen without when the door of the oracle was open. If this be not the sense of the passage, I confess that I do not understand it. The common version is a contradiction in terms.

9. There was nothing] From this it appears, that the golden urn full of manna, the rod of Aaron, and the book of the covenant, or the authentic and genuine copy of the law, written by Moses, must have been placed before the ark, or by it. Compare Exod. xvi. 33, 34. Numb. xvii. 10. and Heb. ix. 4.

12. Jehovah said] He alludes to Lev. xvi. 2; and infers from the cloud, that Jehovah had chosen this house for his own residence.

18, 19. Solomon gives the sense of Nathan's message to David, and not the words. See 2 Sam. vii. 2—17. I have preferred the meaning to the literal version.

22. And Solomon stood] From the fuller account in 2 Chron. vi. 12, we learn that a platform of brass was set up in the court of the temple, on which Solomon first stood to call the attention of the people, and kneeled down and prayed.

27. But wilt God] The loftiest conceptions of the divine nature, of God's incomprehensible greatness and his omnipresence, are here finely expressed. He contrasts the temple, which he had built, with the temple of the heavens; and considering the infinitely superior glory of the latter, he hesitates, he doubts, whether Jehovah, who inhabits it, will dwell with man upon earth! Or it is the language of holy admiration at his condescension and grace, who would deign to dwell there by the token of his presence.

thy people Israel, when they shall pray towards this place : and hear thou then in the heavens thy own dwelling-place ; and when thou hearest, forgive.

- 31 If a man offend his neighbour, and he put him to his oath, and the oath be made 32 before thine altar, in this house ; Then hear thou in the heavens, and do justice to thy servants, condemning the wicked, by bringing his own guilt upon his own head ; and justifying the righteous by rendering to him, according to his own righteousness.
- 33 And if thy people Israel be smitten before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee, and turn again to thee, and confess thy name, and pray, and make supplication 34 to thee in this house ; Then hear thou, in the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them back to the land which thou gavest to their fathers.
- 35 When the heavens are shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee ; if they pray towards this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, 36 when thou hast afflicted them : Then hear thou, in the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy servants, of thy people Israel ; teach thou them the good way in which they ought to walk, and send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.
- 37 If there be in the land famine, if there be pestilence, blasting, mildew, locust ; or if there be caterpillar, or if their enemy besiege them in "any" of their cities ; whatsoever
38 plague, whatsoever disease there be : Then hear thou, in the heavens thy own dwelling-place, the prayer and supplication made by any man, by any of the people of Israel, by any man who knoweth the plague of his own heart, and spreadeth forth his hands towards 39 this house ; And forgive, and do and deal with every man according to his ways, as thou knowest his heart ; for thou, thou only, knowest the hearts of the children of men :
40 That they may fear thee all the days that they live in the land, which thou gavest to our fathers.
- 41 Moreover concerning a stranger, who is not of thy people Israel, but cometh from a 42 far country for the sake of thy name ; (For they have heard of thy great name, and of thy strong hand, and of thy out-stretched arm ;) if he shall come and pray towards 43 this house ; Hear thou in the heavens, thy own dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for : that all the people of the earth may acknowledge thy name, so as to fear thee, like thy people Israel ; and that they may know that this house, which I have built, is called by thy name.

If thy people go out to battle against 44 their enemy whithersoever thou mayest send them, and shall pray to Jehovah towards the city which thou hast chosen, and towards the house which I have built to thy name : Then hear thou, in the heavens, 45 their prayer and supplication, and maintain their cause.

If thy sin against thee, (for there is no 46 man that sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them up to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives to the land of the enemy, far or near ; If in the land whither they are carried cap- 47 tives, they reflect and repent, and make supplications to thee in the land of those who carried them captives, saying, We have sinned, and have done perversely, we have committed wickedness ; And return to thee 48 with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies, who had led them away captives, and pray unto thee towards the land which thou gavest to their fathers, towards the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name : Then hear thou, in the hea- 49 vens thy own dwelling-place, their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their cause : And forgive thy people the sin that 50 they have committed against thee, and all the transgressions whereby they have offended thee ; and move the compassion of those who carried them captive, that they may have mercy on them. For they are 51 thy people and thine inheritance, whom thou broughtest out of Egypt, from the midst of an iron furnace. Thus do thou 52 attend to the supplication of thy servants, to the supplication of thy people Israel, to hearken to them in all that they call for to thee. For thou didst separate them from 53 among all the people of the earth, to be thine own inheritance, as thou spakest by Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord Jehovah.

And when Solomon had made an end of 54 praying all this prayer and supplication to Jehovah, he arose from before the altar of Jehovah, from kneeling on his knees, with his hands spread out towards the heavens ; And he stood, and blessed the whole con- 55 gregation of Israel with a loud voice saying, Blessed be Jehovah, who hath given rest 56 to his people Israel, according to all that he promised : there hath not failed one word of 37, 39. I have transposed the order of the words, for the sake of perspicuity. There is a redundancy in the text, which it is difficult to translate verbally and clearly. (v) Sept. Arab.

all his good promise, which he promised by 57 Moses his servant. May Jehovah our God be with us, as he was with our fathers; may 58 he never leave us, nor forsake us. May he incline our hearts to himself, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, which 59 he commanded our fathers. And may these my words, with which I have made supplication before Jehovah, be nigh to Jehovah our God, day and night, that he may maintain the cause of his servant, and the cause of his people Israel, and grant them daily 60 what they need: That all the people of the earth may know that Jehovah, and none 61 else is God. Let your heart therefore be perfect with Jehovah our God, to walk in his statutes, and to keep his commandments, as at this day.
 62 And the king, and all Israel with him,
 63 offered sacrifice before Jehovah. And Solomon offered a sacrifice of feast-offerings, which he offered to Jehovah, two and twenty thousand oxen, and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep. Thus the king and all the Israelites dedicated the house of Je-64 hovah. The same day did the king hallow the middle court which was before the house of Jehovah: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and wheat-offerings, and the fat of the feast-offerings: because the brazen altar which was before Jehovah was too little to receive the burnt-offerings, and the wheat-offerings, and the fat of the feast-65 offerings. And at that time Solomon held a feast, and all Israel with him, a great congregation, from the entrance of Hamath unto the river of Egypt, before Jehovah our God, seven days and seven days; fourteen 66 days. On the eighth day he sent the people away: and they blessed the king, and went into their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the good which Jehovah had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 992. God's second appearance to Solomon in a vision; Solomon's present to Hiram; his conduct towards the remaining part of the Canaanites; his ships sent to Ophir.

1 AND, when Solomon had finished the building of the house of Jehovah, and the king's house, and whatever else it was Solo-2 mon's desire or pleasure to do, Jehovah appeared to Solomon the second time, as he had appeared to him in Gibeon. And 3

 Jehovah said to him, I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, which thou hast made before me: I have hallowed this house which thou hast built, to put my name there for ever; and mine eyes and my heart shall 4 be there perpetually. And if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments; Then I will establish the throne 5 of thy kingdom over Israel for ever, as I promised to David thy father, saying, Some one of thy posterity shall not fail to sit upon the throne of Israel. But if ye or your 6 children turn away from following me, and will not keep my commandments and my statutes which I have set before you, but go and serve other gods, and worship them;
 Then will I cut off Israel out of the land 7
 which I have given them; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight; and Israel shall be a proverb and a by-word among all people!
 And at this house, which was so highly 8 celebrated, every one that passeth by shall be astonished, and shall hiss; and they shall say, Why hath Jehovah done thus to this land, and to this house? And some 9 shall answer, Because they forsook Jehovah their God, who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt; and they have adhered to other gods, and have worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath Jehovah brought all this evil upon them.

Now at the end of twenty years, when 10
 Solomon had built the two houses, the house of Jehovah, and his own palace; As Hiram, 11
 the king of Tyre, had furnished Solomon with cedar-trees and fir-trees, and with gold, according to all his desire, king Solomon then gave to Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. And Hiram came from Tyre 12 to see the cities which Solomon had given to him; but they pleased him not. And he 13 said, What cities are these which thou hast given to me, my brother? And he called them the land of Cabul, as they are called to this day. Now Hiram had sent to the 14 king a hundred and twenty talents of gold.

And this is the reason of the levy of board- 15

65. Entrance of Hamath] This means from one extremity of the land to another, Hamath being situated on the north, and the river of Egypt on the south.

66. On the eighth day] That is, counting from the first day of the last seven; which we learn, from 2 Chron. vii.
 10, was the 23d day of the month.

CHAP. IX. 3-9. In this vision, Solomon is assured of the divine favour in case of obedience, but in case of apostasy to idols, both he and the kingdom should experience
 the reward of their deeds

8. Which was so highly] So the text of 2 Chron. vii. 21; and the sense is given rather than the idiom.

13. The land of Cabul] The sense of these words has not been ascertained. The Sept. renders border-land.
 Josephus asserts, that the word in the Phœnician tongue signifies displeasing. Michaelis proposes to render from the Arabic, the land given for a debt. This suits the connexion; as Hiram had advanced to Solomon a hundred and twenty talents of gold.

service which king Solomon raised: it was in order to build the house of Jehovah, and his own house, and Millo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazor, and Megiddo, and 16 Gezer, (For Pharaoh, king of Egypt, had came up and taken Gezer, and burnt it with fire, and slain the Canaanites who dwelt in the city, and given it as a present to his 17 daughter, the wife of Solomon; But Solomon rebuilt Gezer,) and Beth-horon the 18 nether, and Baalath, and Tadmor in the wilderness, in the land "of Zobah." And all the store-cities which Solomon had, and cities for his chariots, and cities for his horsemen, and whatever Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in the 20 whole land of his dominion. And all the people who remained of the Amorites, Hethites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, 21 who were not the posterity of Israel, But the posterity of those who were left in the land, whom the Israelites were not able utterly to destroy; upon those did Solomon levy a tribute of bond-service to 22 this day. But of the Israelites did Solomon make no bondmen; but they were men of war, and his own servants, and his chiefs, and his captains, and his charioteers, and 23 his horsemen. These were the chief of the overseers of Solomon's works, five hundred and fifty, who directed the people who wrought at the work.

24 After Pharaoh's daughter had come up out of the city of David to her own house which "Solomon" had built for her, he then 25 built Millo. And three times in a year did Solomon offer burnt-offerings and feast-offerings upon the altar which he built to Jehovah; and when he had finished the house, he burnt incense upon the altar which was before Jehovah.

26 And king Solomon built ships at Ezion-geber, which is by Eloth, on the shore of 27 the Red sea, in the land of Edom. And Hiram sent in the ships, with the servants of Solomon, his own servants, who were 28 experienced mariners. And they went to Ophir, and thence fetched gold; four hundred and twenty talents, and brought it to king Solomon.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 992. The queen of Sheba visits Solomon; his amazing wealth and grandeur.

AND when the queen of Sheba heard of 1 the fame of Solomon, "and of" the name of Jehovah, she came to try him with questions. And she came to Jerusalem with a very great 2 retinue; with camels bearing spices, and very much gold, and precious stones. And when she was introduced to "king" Solomon, she conversed with him concerning all things which were in her mind. And Solomon 3 replied to all her questions: there was nothing hidden from the king which he told her not. And when the queen of Sheba 4 had seen all Solomon's wisdom; and the house which he had built, And the food of 5 his table, and the station of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, with their apparel, and his cup-bearers, and his burnt-offerings, which he offered in the house of Jehovah; there was no more spirit in 6 her. And she said to the king, True 6 was the report which I heard in my own land, of thy acts and of thy wisdom. Yet 7 that report I believed not, until I came, and saw with mine eyes: and, behold, the half had not been told to me: thy wisdom and greatness far exceed the report which I heard. Happy thy men! happy these thy 8 servants, who stand continually before thee, and hear thy wisdom! Blessed be Jehovah, 9 thy God, who was so pleased with thee, as to set thee on the throne of Israel: through Jehovah's everlasting love to Israel, he appointed thee king, to execute judgment and justice. And she gave to the king a 10 hundred and twenty talents of gold, and a very great store of spices, and precious stones; there came no more such abundance of spices as those which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon. And king Solomon 13 gave to the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, besides what Solomon gave to her of his royal bounty. So she

18. Tadmor in the land of Zobah] Compare 2 Chron. viii. 3. This is generally supposed to be the city called by the Greeks Palmyra, whose ruins are yet so magnificent. It has been visited by some of our own countrymen, and accurately described. See Dawkins and Wood's Ruins, &c.

19. In Lebanon] Houbigant contends that Solomon had no part of mount Lebanon within his territory. Though I conceive that this is not true, Lebanon being the north boundary of Judea; yet, as the term is used here in connexion with Jerusalem, it is probable that what is before called the forest of Lebanon is meant.

24. (a) Versions.

25. Three times in the year] At the three great annual feasts. See Introduction, p. 49. He doubtless offered at other times free-will offerings, but in a more particular manner he honoured the festivals.

28. They went to Ophir] Michaelis maintains that this place was in Arabia-Felix, but others think that the time employed in the voyage renders it probable that it denotes some place in the East Indies. The editor of Calmet supposes some place up the Indus is meant.

CHAR. X. 1. Queen of Sheba] Sheba was part of Arabia-Felix, which lay south of Canaan; and therefore she is called the queen of the south. Her country was bounded by the ocean, and therefore she is said to come from the uttermost parts of the earth.—To try him] It was an ancient diversion among princes to propose curious and difficult questions, in order to try each other's sagacity and skill. See Judg. xiv. 12. (v) Versions. 2. (a) MSS.

5. No more spirit in her] That is, she was lost in astonishment and admiration, as the next verse intimates.

13. This verse is evidently out of its place. It is so connected with the 10th, that with Houbigant I have transposed it these.

returned and went to her own country, she and her servants.

11 And the ships also of Hiram, which brought gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenty of almug-trees, and precious stones. And the king made of the almug-trees balustrades for the house of Jehovah, and for his own palace; harps also and psalteries for the singers: such almug-trees have not come, nor been seen to this day.

14 Now the weight of gold which came to Solomon in one year was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold: Besides what he received from the port-collectors, and from the traffic of the spice-merchants, and from all the kings of Arabia, and from the governors of the land. And king Solomon made of all this, two hundred shields of beaten gold: each shield containing six hundred shekels of gold. And he made three hundred smaller shields of beaten gold; each shield containing three minas of gold: and the king put them in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

18 Moreover, the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold. 19 The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne, behind, was round: and there were arm-stays on each side of the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the arm-stays. And on the six steps, on the one side and on the other, stood twelve lions: the like had not been made in any kingdom. And all the drinking vessels of king Solomon were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; none were of silver: for in the days of Solomon it was accounted 22 of no value. For the king had at sea ships of Tarshish, which, with the ships of Hiram, once in three years went to Tarshish, bringing gold, and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

23 Thus king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth in riches and in wisdom. And all "the kings of" the earth sought to Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put into his heart. And 25 they brought every man his present, utensils of silver, and utensils of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, and mules; a rate year by year. So Solomon collected 26 chariots and horsemen; and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he stationed in the chariot-cities, and with himself, at Jerusalem. And the king made silver as plentiful in 27 Jerusalem as stones; and cedars made he abundant as the sycamores which are in the vale.

And Solomon had horses brought out of 28 Egypt and from Coa: the king's merchants received them from Coa at a stated price. And a chariot was brought up out of Egypt 29 for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty: and so were they brought for all the kings of the Hethites, and for the kings of Syria.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 992. Solomon's idolatry, and its consequences; the divine displeasure, the enemies raised up against him, his death and successor.

BUT king Solomon loved many foreign 1 women, besides the daughter of Pharaoh, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians, and Hethites; Of the nations, concerning 2 which Jehovah said to the Israelites, Ye shall not go into them, neither shall they come in unto you: for they will assuredly turn away your heart after their gods: to these Solomon was affectionately attached. And he had seven hundred wives, princesses, 3 and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned away his heart. For when 4 Solomon was old, his wives turned away his heart after other gods; and his heart was not perfect with Jehovah, his God, like the heart of David, his father. For Solomon 5 went after Ashtarothe, the goddess of the Sidonians, and after "Chemosh, the god of Moab," and after Molech, the detestable idol of the Ammonites. And Solomon did 6 evil in the sight of Jehovah, and went not fully after Jehovah, like David his father.

24. (a) Chald. 1 MS.

28. From Coa] So the Sept. and Vulg. render, which seems most natural. Linon yarn has nothing to support it.

CHAP. XI. 1. Pharaoh's daughter] She was properly queen, and no blame is attached to him for marrying her. But in marrying so many besides, he violated two precepts—that of forbidding the king to multiply wives, and that of marrying women of the nations of Canaan.

3. Seven hundred wives] Like the kings of the east, he collected this vast number, partly for state. Darius Codomanus was accustomed to take in his camp no fewer than three hundred, and Le Comte tells us that the emperor of China had a vast number, chosen for their beauty, many of whom the emperor never so much as saw.

5. The clause added in the Syr. and Arab. versions is supported by the 7th verse.

12. Almug-trees] Parkhurst supposes that the lignum-vitæ-tree is intended, while others the sandal-tree. It must have been a valuable kind.

13. The port-collectors] Literally, searchers. Geddes renders, miners, I think without any probability.

17. Three minas] Or three hundred shekels. Compare 2 Chron. ix. 16.

22. Ships of Tarshish] So called because employed in trade to that place. Most moderns suppose that Tartessus, in Spain, is meant. Thus Solomon carried on trade with the Tyrians, along the whole Mediterranean sea, as well as along the Red Sea, to India. Michaelis contends that the ships of Solomon went down the Red Sea, doubled the Cape of Good Hope, and coasted Africa to Tartessus in Spain. The time employed in the voyage supports this opinion; yet as the Tyrians were well acquainted with the Mediterranean, it is natural to suppose they would have returned that way home.

7 For Solomon built a high-place for Chemosh, the detestable idol of Moab, on the hill which is before Jerusalem, and for Molech, the 8 detestable idol of the Ammonites. And so he did for all his foreign wives, who burnt incense and sacrificed to their own gods.
9 Jehovah was now angry with Solomon, because his heart was turned from Jehovah, the God of Israel, who had appeared to
10 him twice; And had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods; but he did not observe
11 that which Jehovah commanded. Wherefore said Jehovah to Solomon: Inasmuch as thou doest thus, and observest not my covenant and my statutes, which I commanded thee, I will assuredly rend from thee the kingdom, and will give it to thy 12 own servant. Notwithstanding, in thy days I will not do it, for David thy father's sake; but I will rend it out of the hand of thy 13 son. Yet I will not rend away the whole kingdom; but will give one tribe to thy son, for David my servant's sake, and for Jerusalem's sake, which I have chosen.
14 Jehovah then stirred up an adversary to Solomon, Hadad, the Edomite; who was 15 of the royal seed of Edom; For when David smote Edom, and Joab, the captain of the host, had gone up to bury the slain, after he had smitten every male in 16 Edom; (For six months did Joab remain there with all Israel, until he had cut off 17 every male in Edom;) Hadad fled, he and certain Edomites, the servants of his father with him, and went into Egypt; Hadad being then but a little boy. And they
18 set out from Midian, and went to Paran; and they took men with them from Paran, and they went to Egypt, unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt; who gave to him a house, and appointed for him victuals, and gave to 19 him land. And Hadad found great favour in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him to wife the sister of his own wife, the sister
20 of Tahpenes, the queen. And the sister of Tahpenes bare to him Genubath, his son, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house; and Genubath was in Pharaoh's household, 21 among the sons of Pharaoh. And when

Hadad heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab, the captain of the host was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, Let me depart, that I may go to my own country. Then Pharaoh said to him, But what hast thou wanted with me, that, behold, thou seekest to go to thine own country? And he answered, Nothing; still I request that thou wouldst let me go.

And God stirred up another adversary to him, Hezion, the son of Eliadah, who fled from his lord, Hadadezer, king of Zobah: And he collected men to him, and became captain over a band, when David slew them of Zobah, and they went to Damascus, and dwelt there, and they made Hezion king in Damascus. And he was an adversary to Israel all the days of Solomon, besides the mischief that Hadad did, who reigned over Edom, and infested Israel.

And Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, an Ephraimite of Zereda, Solomon's servant, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow woman, rebelled against the king. And this was the occasion of his rebelling against the king. Solomon built Millo, and repaired the breaches of the city of David his father. The man Jeroboam was a man of valour; and Solomon seeing that the young man was industrious, made him ruler over all the imposts of the house of Joseph. Now it happened at the time when Jeroboam went from Jerusalem, that the prophet Ahijah, a Shilonite, met him in the way; and he had clad himself with a new garment; and they two were alone in the field; And Ahijah caught the new garment that was on him, and rent it in twelve pieces: And he said to Jeroboam, Take ten pieces for thyself: for thus saith Jehovah the God of Israel, Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee: (But he shall have one tribe for my servant David's sake, and for Jerusalem's sake, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:) Because he hath forsaken me, and worshipped Ashtaroth, the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh, the god of the Moabites, and Molech, the god of the Ammonites, and hath not walked in my ways by doing

13. One tribe] That is, the great tribe of Judah, with the small tribe of Benjamin. Josephus has two tribes.

15. (v) Versions.

16. Joab] In 1 Chron. xviii. 12, it is Abishai not Joab, that is said to have slain the Edomites. Perhaps it was after this victory that Joab went to complete the slaughter.

19. The queen] That is, the principal wife, or sultana.

28. Imposts of the house of Joseph] That is, of the two tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, or perhaps the former only is intended, as being far more numerous than the latter. Jeroboam, finding the Ephraimites vexed on account of the imposts, took the opportunity of gaining their confidence by entering into their views, and, perhaps, of fomenting a spirit of discontent.

29. The prophet Ahijah] He was a native of Shiloh, and one of those who wrote the annals of Solomon's reign, 2 Chron. ix. 29; and he is thought to be the person who spoke to him twice from God; once when he was building the temple, chap. vi. 12, and once when he apostatized in this chapter, ver. 11.

33. I have followed the versions and MSS. in reading in the singular number; and I think that Solomon, and not the people, is intended.

what is right in mine eyes, and by keeping my statutes and my judgments, like David 34 his father. Yet I will not take any part of the kingdom out of his hand; but I will maintain him prince all the days of his own life, for the sake of David my servant whom
I have chosen, because he kept my com-35 mandments and my statutes: But out of his son's hands I will take the kingdom, 36 and will give to thee, ten tribes. And to his son I will give one tribe, that David my servant may have a lamp always before me in Jerusalem, the city which I have cho-37 sen for myself to put my name there. And thee will I take, and thou shalt reign over all that thy soul desireth; for thou shalt be king over Israel. And it shall be, if thou 38 wilt hearken to all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do what is right in mine eyes, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did, that I will be with thee, and build for thee a sure house, as I have built for David, 39 and I will give Israel to thee; And I will,
on this account, afflict the house of David, 40 but not for ever. Solomon therefore sought to kill Jeroboam; but Jeroboam arose and fled into Egypt, to Shishak, king of Egypt, and was in Egypt, until the death of Solomon.
41 And the rest of the acts of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the book of the acts of Solo-42 mon? And the time that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years.
43 And Solomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David, his father;
and Rehoboam, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 975. Rehoboam refusing the old men's counsel, ten tribes revolt under Jeroboam.

1 AND Rehoboam went to Shechem: for all Israel had come to Shechem to make him
2 king. And when Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who was yet in Egypt, whither he had fled from the presence of king Solomon, had heard of Solomon's death, then Jero-3 boam returned from Egypt: And they sent and invited him to the assembly. And Jeroboam and the whole congregation of Israel came, and spoke to Rehoboam, saying, Thy father made our yoke grievous: 4 now, therefore, make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee. And he said to them, Depart yet for 5 three days, then come again to me. And the people departed.

And king Rehoboam consulted with the 6 old men who stood before Solomon his father, while he yet lived, and said, How do ye advise me to answer this people? And 7 they spoke to him, saying, If thou wilt be a servant to this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants for ever. But he neglected the counsel 8 which the old men gave to him, and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him, and attended on him. And 9 he said to them, What counsel give ye that we may answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father put upon us lighter? And the young 10 men who had grown up with him spoke to him, saying, Thus shalt thou speak to this people who spoke to thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it lighter to us; thus shalt thou say to them,
My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins. And now, whereas my father 11 loaded you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke; my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

So on the third day Jeroboam and all the 12 people came to Rehoboam, as the king had appointed, saying, Come to me again the third day. And the king answered the peo- 13 ple roughly, and neglected the counsel which the old men gave him; And spoke 14
to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy,
and I will add to your yoke; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions. Wherefore the king 15 hearkened not to the people; for Jehovah so overruled this affair that he might perform his promise, which he had made by

CHAP. XII. 2. Returned from Egypt] The present text has, and dwelled in Egypt: but the parallel place in 2 Chron. x. 2, has returned from Egypt. And so the Vulg.
here, which is the right reading.

3. And they sent] That is, the Israelites, as distinguished from the tribes of Judah and of Benjamin.

4. Our yoke grievous] They most probably refer to the tribute which Solomon exacted for his buildings, the maintenance of his court, and of his horses and chariots. See chap. iv. 7.

7. Speak good words] Nothing could be more suitable than this advice. They show a thorough knowledge of human nature; and had Rehoboam made concessions, the consequence might have been as they stated.

8. Young men] It was a custom in many countries to educate with the heir to the throne young noblemen of nearly the same age. Calmet commends this custom for two reasons; as stimulating the prince to manly exercises by emulation; and as gaining a knowledge of the temper and talents of those who were to be under him in the offices of the state. The counsel of Rehoboam's companions was rash and imperious; and he must have been weak and foolish to follow it.

11. With scorpions] The scorpion was a cruel engine of punishment. It was, we learn from Ephraim, a long bag of leather filled with sand, and stuck full of spikes.

15. So overruled this affair] I have given the sense in preference to the idiom.

Ahijah, the Shilonite, to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

- 16 So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not to them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? or what inheritance in the son of Jesse? to your own homes, O Israel; now see to thine own house, David. So Israel 17 departed to their own homes. But as for the Israelites who dwelt in the cities of 18 Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them. Then king Rehoboam sent "Adoniram," who was over the tribute; and all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died: while king Rehoboam with difficulty got into his chariot, 19 to flee to Jerusalem. So Israel rebelled against the house of David, and continue a 20 distinct kingdom to this day. For, when all Israel heard that Jeroboam had come again, they sent and invited him to the assembly, and made him king over all Israel: none followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah only.
- 21 And when Rehoboam had come to Jerusalem, he assembled the whole house of Judah with the tribe of Benjamin, a hundred and eighty thousand chosen men, who were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to bring back the kingdom to Rehoboam, the 22 son of Solomon. But the word of God came to Shemaiah, the man of God, saying,
23 Speak to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to the whole house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the remnant of the people of the other tribes, saying,
24 Thus saith Jehovah, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren, the Israelites: return every man to his house: for this thing is from me. They hearkened, therefore, to the word of Jehovah; and according to the word of Jehovah they returned home.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 975. Jeroboam's policy; prophecy against him; the old prophet seduced, and slain by a lion.

- 25 JEROBOAM then built Shechem, in mount Ephraim, and dwelt there; and he went 26 out thence, and built Peniel. And Jeroboam said in his heart, Now will the kingdom return to the house of David: If this 27 people go up to offer sacrifice in the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, then will the heart of this people turn again to their own lord, to Rehoboam, king of Judah, and they will kill me, and go again to Rehoboam, king of Judah. So the king took counsel, and 28 made two golden calves, and said to the men of Israel, It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: behold thy gods, O Israel, who brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. And he set the one at Bethel, and 29 the other he placed at Dan. And this thing 30 became the occasion of sin: for the people went to worship either before the one at Bethel, or the other at Dan. And he made 31 sacred houses on high-places; and made priests of any of the people, who were not of the sons of Levi. And Jeroboam ordained 32 a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, like to the feast which is kept in Judah: and he offered upon the altar which he had erected in Bethel, sacrificing to the calves which he had made; and he placed in Bethel the priests of the high-places which he had made. Thus he 33 offered on the altar which he had erected in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month which his own heart had devised; and ordained a feast to the Israelites: and he offered upon the altar, and burnt incense.

But, behold, a man of God came from 1 Judah, by the command of Jehovah, to Bethel; and Jeroboam stood by the altar to burn incense. And he cried against the 2 altar by the command of Jehovah, and said, O altar, altar, thus saith Jehovah; Behold, a child shall be born to the house of David, Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high-places who burn incense upon thee, and upon thee shall be burnt human bones. And he gave a sign 3 the same day, saying, This is the sign of what Jehovah hath spoken, Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes, which are upon it, shall be poured out. And when king 4 Jeroboam heard what the man of God said, who cried against the altar in Bethel, he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, Lay

18. Adoniram] This completes the climax of Rehoboam's folly. He had neglected the advice of his father's counsellors, and the Ephraimites had renounced their allegiance on account of their burdens or taxes; and to appease them he sends Adoniram, who was over the tribute; of course, the most obnoxious man he could send.

21. A hundred and eighty thousand] From the following history, it appears that the two tribes which adhered to the house of David, were equal to the other ten.

26. Now the kingdom] Had he feared God and trusted in him, there would have been no need of this policy. The Lord would have fulfilled his own word.

28. Two golden calves] These, like that of Aaron's, at Horeb, were designed to be representations of the God of Israel; which was a violation of the first command. They sometimes worshipped the gods of the surrounding nations, together with the God of Israel; but this was worshipping him through an idolatrous medium.

29. At Bethel . . . and at Dan] Bethel had long before been a place of worship.—And the Danites had erected for their own tribe a molten image at Dan. Compare 1 Sam. x. 3, and Judg. xviii. 29.

32. On the fifteenth day] This was a full month later than the day appointed by the law of Moses.

CHAP. XIII. 2. Josiah by name] This is a remarkable prediction, which we find came to pass about 360 years after. See 2 Kings xxiii. 15, 16.

3—6. These signs are so remarkable, that one would naturally suppose they would have made a deep impression on the mind of the king and of the people, and have led them to repentance; but they produced no effect.

hold on him ; but his hand, which he had put forth against him, became stiff, so that 5 he could not pull it in again to him. The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the command of Jehovah. And the king spoke
 6 and said to the man of God, Entreat, I pray thee, Jehovah, thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me. And the man of God besought Jehovah, and the king's hand was restored to him, and became as it was before. And the king said to the man of God, Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and I will give thee a reward.
 7 But the man of God said to the king, If thou wouldst give to me half thy house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place : For so was I charged by the command of Jehovah,
 8 saying, Eat no bread, nor drink any water, nor return by the same way which thou shalt go. So he went another way, and returned not by the way in which he had come to Bethel.
 9 Now there dwelt an old prophet in Bethel ; and his sons came and told him all the works which the man of God had done that day in Bethel : the words which he had spoken to the king, them they told also to their 10 father. And their father said to them, What way went he ? (For his sons had seen what way the man of God went, who had come 11 from Judah.) Again he said to his sons, Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him the ass : and he rode thereon, And went after the man of God, and found him sitting under a turpentine-tree : and he said to him, Art thou the man of God who camest from 12 Judah ? And he said, I am. Then he said to him, Come home with me, and eat bread. And he said, I cannot return with thee, nor go in with thee : neither will I eat bread, nor drink water with thee in this place :
 13 For by the command of Jehovah, it was said to me, Thou shalt neither eat bread, nor drink water there ; nor shalt thou return by 14 the way in which thou shalt go. He said to him, I also am a prophet as thou art ; and an angel spoke to me by the command of Jehovah, saying, Bring him back with thee into thy house, that he may eat bread and drink water. "Thus" he deceived him ; So 19 that he went back with him, and ate bread in his house, and drank water.

But, while they sat at table, the word 20 of Jehovah came to the prophet who had brought him back : And he cried to the man 21 of God who came from Judah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Forasmuch as thou hast disobeyed the command of Jehovah, and hast not kept the precept with which Jehovah, thy God, charged thee, But camest back, 22 and hast eaten bread and drunk water in the place, of which he said to thee, Neither eat bread, nor drink water ; thy carcass shall not come to the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And after he had eaten bread, and drunk 23 "water," he saddled for him an ass, for the prophet whom he had brought back. But 24 when he was gone a lion met him by the way, and slew him : and his carcass was cast down on the way, and the ass stood by it ; the lion, also, stood by the carcass. And, behold, 25 some men passed by, and saw the carcass cast down on the way, and the lion standing by the carcass : and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt. And 26 when the prophet who had brought him back from the way, heard, he said, It is the man of God, who disobeyed the command of Jehovah : Jehovah hath, therefore, delivered him to the lion, who hath torn him, and slain him, according to the word of Jehovah, which he spoke to him. And he spoke to his sons, 27 saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him. And he went and found his carcass cast down in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcass : the lion had not eaten the carcass, nor torn the ass. And the prophet took up the carcass of the 28 man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back : and the old prophet came to the city, to mourn and to bury him. And 30 he laid his carcass in his own sepulchre ; and mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother ! And after he had buried him, he spoke 31 to his sons, saying, When I am dead, then bury me in the sepulchre in which the man of God is buried ; lay my bones beside his

11. An old prophet] The account of this prophet is encumbered with difficulties. The sons appear to have attended the worship of the calves, and I cannot but think that though he might have been favoured with some divine communications, yet, like Balaam, he was a wicked man. I suspect that having learned the reply of the man of God to Jeroboam, he formed the purpose of pursuing him, and inviting him back, with the design of bringing some calamity upon him, for the prediction which he had uttered. If this be just, he was one who supported Jeroboam's interest. Nor does his wish to be buried in the same grave with the man of God militate against this view of his character. It is only like that of his prototype Balaam, 'Let me die the death of the righteous.' Josephus asserts that he was a false prophet.

18. Thus he deceived him] He might wish to ensnare him and lessen the impression his prediction had made ; and, perhaps, the man of God might think that the divine prohibition had respect only to idolaters.

20—30. The language of the old prophet, and the event which followed, have been thought to support his claim to a true prophet. This may be admitted, but it will not follow that he was a good man. God constrained him to denounce his judgment on his servant for hearkening to his lies, but I cannot think that he uttered it willingly, unless he was lost to all sense of sin and shame. Let his character be what it might, he perceived that the prediction of the man of Judah was from God, and would be accomplished. 23. (a) Sept. Syr.

32 bones: For the denunciation, which, by the command of Jehovah, he proclaimed against the altar of Bethel, and against all the houses of the high-places, which are in the cities of Samaria, shall assuredly come to pass.

33 After this denunciation, Jeroboam returned not from his evil way, but again made of any of the people priests of the high-places: whosoever would, he consecrated him, and he became one of the priests of the high-

34 places. And this thing occasioned such sin in the house of Jeroboam, as to cause it to be cut off, and destroyed from the face of the earth.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 956. Jeroboam sendeth his wife disguised to Ahijah, the prophet, to consult him respecting his son Abijah, who was sick. He denounceth God's judgments.

1 At that time Abijah, the son of Jeroboam, 2 fell sick. And Jeroboam said to his wife, Arise, I pray thee, and disguise thyself, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam; and go to Shiloh: behold, there is Ahijah, the prophet, who told me that I 3 should be king over this people. And take with thee ten loaves of bread, and cakes, and a pot of honey, and go to him that he may tell thee what shall become of the child.

4 And Jeroboam's wife did so: for she arose, and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. Now Ahijah could not see; for his eyes were set through age.

5 And Jehovah said to Ahijah, Behold, the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son; for he is sick: thus and thus shalt thou say to her: for it will be, when she cometh in, that she will feign herself another. Now when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, he said, Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam; why feignest thou thyself another? for I am sent to thee with heavy tidings.

7 Go, tell Jeroboam; Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee 8 prince over my people Israel, And rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to thee: and yet thou hast not been like my servant David, who kept my commandments, and who followed me with all his heart, by doing only what was right in 9 mine eyes; But hast done evil above all that were before thee: for thou hast gone and made for thyself other gods, and molten images, to provoke me to anger; and me thou hast cast behind thy back: Therefore, 10 behold, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut off from Jeroboam every male, whether bond or free, in Israel: the remnant of the house of Jeroboam I will clear away, as a man cleareth away dung till it be all gone. Him that dieth of 11 Jeroboam's posterity in the city, shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth in the field, shall the fowls of the air eat; for Jehovah hath spoken it. Arise thou, therefore, and go 12 to thine own house: and when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die. And all 13 Israel shall mourn for him and bury him: for he only of Jeroboam's posterity shall find a grave; because in him there is found some good thing towards Jehovah, the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam. More- 14 over, Jehovah will raise up to himself a king over Israel, who will, one day, and that soon, cut off the house of Jeroboam. For Jehovah will smite Israel, as a reed is 15 shaken in the water, and he will root up Israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and scatter them beyond the river, because they have made their idol-groves, provoking Jehovah to anger. And 16 he will give up Israel because of the sins of Jeroboam, who hath both sinned, and caused Israel to sin.

And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, 17 and came to Tirzah; and when she came to the threshold of the door, the child died; And they buried him: and all Israel mourned 18 for him according to the word of Jehovah, which he spoke by his servant Ahijah, the prophet. And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he reigned, behold, they are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And the days which 20 Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty years: and he slept with his fathers, and Nadab his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 958. History of the reigns of Rehoboam, Abiah, and Asa, kings of Judah.

AND Rehoboam, the son of Solomon. 21 reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was "sixteen" years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which Jehovah chose out of all the CHAP. XIV. 3. Ten loaves] These were designed as a present to the prophet, conformably to the custom of the east. Jeroboam sent his wife on this errand, that it might not be known to his subjects. For if it had been known that he had no confidence in his own gods, nor in his own priests and prophets, the eyes of the people must have been opened, and this might have led them to reject him and return to the house of David.

10. Whether bond or free] I have followed Gesenius, in this version. I am not however certain, whether the preceding words should not be rendered, every dog, as I Sam. xxv. 22.

14. Will one day] Most moderns so render.

21. His mother's name] It is singular that Solomon had only one son, though he had so many wives: and it must have been mortifying that this son was weak and foolish.

(v) Sept.

tribes of Israel, to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naamah, an Ammonite. And Judah did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and they provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they committed, above all that their fathers had done. For they also constructed for themselves high-places, and statues, and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree. And there were also sodomites in the land; and they did according to all the abominations of the nations whom Jehovah cast out before Israel.

And in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem: And he took away the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and the treasures of the king's house; he even took away all: and he took away all the golden shields, which Solomon had made. And king Rehoboam made in their stead brazen shields, and committed them to the hands of the chief of the guard, who kept the door of the king's house. And when the king went into the house of Jehovah, the guard bore them and brought them back into the guard chamber.

Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days. And Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And Abiah, his son, reigned in his stead.

Now in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, Abiah became king over Judah. Three years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Absalom. And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: and his heart was not perfect with Jehovah his God, like the heart of David his grandfather. Nevertheless, for David's sake Jehovah his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and to establish Jerusalem: Because David did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, and turned not aside from whatever he commanded him all the days of his life, save only in the affair of Uriah the Hethite. And there was war between Abiah the son of Rehoboam and Jeroboam, all the days of his life. Now the rest of the acts of Abiah, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And Abiah slept with his fathers; and they buried him in the city of David; and Asa his son reigned in his stead.

And in the twentieth year of Jeroboam, king of Israel, Asa became king over Judah. And forty-one years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Anah, the daughter of Absalom. And Asa did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, like David his father. And he took away the sodomites out of the land, and removed all the idols which his father had made. And also Maachah, his grandmother, he removed from being queen, because she had made a horrible idol in a grove; and her idol Asa destroyed, and burnt by the brook Kidron. But the high places were not wholly removed; yet Asa's heart was perfect with Jehovah all his days. And he brought into the house of Jehovah the things which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, silver and gold.

And there was war between Asa and Baasha, king of Israel, all their days. For Baasha, king of Israel, went up against Judah, and fortified Ramah, that he might prevent any from going over to Asa, king of Judah. Then Asa took all the silver and the gold which remained of the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and of the treasures of the king's house, and delivered them into the hand of his servants: and king Asa sent them to Ben hadad, the son of Tabrimon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, who dwelt at Damascus, saying, Let there be a league between me and thee, as there was between my father and thy father; behold, I have sent to thee a present of silver and gold; come and break thy league with Baasha, king of Israel, that he may depart from me. So Ben-hadad hearkened to king Asa, and sent the chiefs of his hosts against the cities of Israel, and smote Ijon, and Dan, and Abel-beth-maachah, and all Chinneroth, with the whole land of Naphtali. And when Baasha heard of it, he left off fortifying Ramah, and dwelt at Tirzah. Then king Asa assembled by proclamation all Judah; none was exempted: and they took away

25. Shishak, king] Hitherto, the kings of Egypt were called Pharaoh, but it seems that this name was now sinking into disuse. It is probable, that Jeroboam had excited the king of Egypt to invade Judah, to prevent an attack on himself; and hence we can account for the Egyptians returning, without molesting any of the cities of Israel. Compare 2 Chron. xii. and xiii.

31. Abiah] This is the true name of the son of Rehoboam. The variations have occurred through the negligence of scribes. I have omitted the words repeated from the 31st verse of the Sept. and Syr.

CHAP. XV. 6. Between Abiah] The addition to the common text, found in the versions, is here absolutely necessary; the words omitted in the next verse are a mere repetition of the first part of this.

10. Anah] It is not probable that Absalom had two daughters of the name of Maachah; I have, therefore, adopted the reading of the Sept. here.

13. A horrible idol] Supposed to be a Priapus or Phallus. To such objects the Hindoos yet pay homage. Compare 2 Chron. xiv. and xv.

16—19. This policy of inviting the neighbouring kings to assist them, at last proved the ruin of both Judah and Israel. Compare 2 Chron. xvi.

the stones of Ramah, and its timber, with which Baasha had fortified it; and with them king Asa fortified Geba of Benjamin, 23 and Mizpeh. The rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his might, and all that he did, and all the cities which he built, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. In the time of his old age he was diseased in 24 his feet. And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers, in the city of David; and Jehoshaphat, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 954. History of the reigns of Nadab, Baasha, Elah, Zimri, and Omri, kings of Israel.

25 NADAB, the son of Jeroboam, began to reign over Israel, in the second year of Asa, king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two 26 years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin, by which he caused Israel 27 to sin. And Baasha, the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him; and Baasha smote him at Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines; for Nadab and 28 all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon. Even in the third year of Asa, king of Judah, did Baasha 29 slay him, and reigned in his stead. And when he had become king, he smote the whole house of Jeroboam; he left not to Jeroboam undestroyed any that breathed: according to the word of Jehovah, which he had spoken by his servant Ahijah, the Shi- 30 lonite: Because of the sins of Jeroboam which he committed, and which he caused Israel to commit; provoking the anger of 31 Jehovah the God of Israel. Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of 32 Israel. And there was war between Asa and Baasha, king of Israel, all their days. 33 In the third year of Asa, king of Judah, began Baasha, the son of Ahijah, to reign over Israel, in Tirzah; and he reigned 34 twenty-four years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and walked in the ways of Jeroboam, and in his sin by which he caused 1 Israel to sin. The word of Jehovah, therefore, came to Jehu, the son of Hanani, 2 against Baasha, saying, Forasmuch as I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel; and thou hast walked in the ways of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sin, and by their 3 sins to provoke me to anger: Behold, I will take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house; and will make thy house like the house of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat. Him that dieth of the posterity 4 of Baasha in the city, shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth of his posterity in the fields, shall the fowls of the air eat. 'Thus 7 the word of Jehovah came, by the prophet Jehu, the son of Hanani, against Baasha, and against his house, for all the evil that he did in the eyes of Jehovah, in provoking him to anger with the works of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam; and on this account God slew him. Now the rest 5 of the acts of Baasha, and what he did, and his might, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Baasha slept 6 with his fathers, and was buried in Tirzah; and Elah, his son, reigned in his stead.

In the twenty-sixth year of Asa, king of 8 Judah, began Elah, the son of Baasha, to reign over Israel in Tirzah; and he reigned 9 two years. And his servant Zimri, chief captain of half his chariots, conspired against him; and, while he was getting drunk, in Tirzah, in the house of Arza, steward of his house in Tirzah, Zimri went in and smote 10 him, and killed him, (in the twenty-seventh year of Asa, king of Judah,) and reigned in his stead. And as soon as he began to 11 reign, and was seated on his throne, he slew the whole house of Baasha: he left not a single male, either kindred or friend. Thus 12 did Zimri to the house of Baasha, according to the word of Jehovah, which he had spoken against Baasha, by Jehu the prophet; On 13 account of all the sins of Baasha, and the sins of Elah his son, which they committed, and by which they caused Israel to sin, so as to provoke Jehovah, the God of Israel, to anger with their idols. Now the rest of 14 the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

In the twenty-seventh year of Asa, king of 15 Judah, Zimri reigned at Tirzah seven days. And the people were encamped against Gibbethon, which then belonged to the Philistines. And when the people who were en- 16 camped heard it said, Zimri hath conspired, and hath also slain the king: all Israel then made Omri, the chief captain of the host, king over Israel, that day in the camp. And 17 Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah. And 18 when Zimri saw that the city would be

CHAP. XVI. 7. This verse seems redundant. Houbigant transposes it after the 4th. If it be retained, this is, doubtless, a better arrangement. For it cannot be thought that the writer, after having finished the transactions of Baasha's reign, would, while relating those of his successor, return again to them.

13. Of all the sins] There is a remarkable similitude between the destruction of Baasha's family and Jeroboam's; the son of each reigned but about two years; they were both slain; there was no successor to either family; and both were slain while the same city was besieged.

18. A retired part] I have given the sense here. Zimri taken, he went into a retired part of the palace, and burnt the palace, over himself, 19 and died; For his sins which he committed, by doing evil in the eyes of Jehovah, by walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin which he did, in causing Israel to 20 sin. Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and the conspiracy which he made, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

21 The people of Israel were now divided into two parties: the one half of the people followed Tibni, the son of Ginath, to make him king; and the other half followed Omri.

22 But the people who followed Omri prevailed against the people who followed Tibni, the son of Ginath; so when Tibni was 23 killed, Omri reigned. In the thirty-first year of Asa, king of Judah, began Omri to reign over Israel; and he reigned twelve years. Six years he reigned in Tirzah;

24 When he bought the hill Samaria of Samar, for two talents of silver; and built a city on the hill, and called the name of the city which he had built, after the name of Samar, 25 owner of the hill, Samaria. But Omri did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and was more 26 wicked than any that were before him. For he wholly walked in the way of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, and in his sin, by which he caused Israel to sin, so as to provoke Jehovah, the God of Israel, to anger with 27 their idols. Now the rest of the acts of Omri which he did, and his might, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

28 And Omri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria; and Ahab his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 918. The reign of Ahab, against whom Elijah prophesied; the miracles wrought by him.

29 AND in the thirty-eighth year of Asa, king of Judah, began Ahab, the son of Omri, to reign in Israel: and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria, twenty-two years. And Ahab, the son of 30 Omri, did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, above all that were before him. And as if it had 31 been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, he took to wife Jezebel, the daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Sidonians; and went and served Baal, and worshipped him: For he reared 32 up an altar to Baal, in the temple of Baal, which he had built in Samaria: Ahab also 33 made a grove. Thus Ahab did more to provoke Jehovah, the God of Israel, to anger than all the kings of Israel that were before him. In his days Hiel, the Bethelite, re- 34 built Jericho: he laid its foundation in the death of Abiram his first-born, and in the death of his youngest son Segub, he set up its gates, according to the word of Jehovah, which he had spoken by Joshua, the son of Nun.

And "the prophet" Elijah, the Tishbite, 1 from "Tishbi" of Gilead, said to Ahab, As Jehovah, the God of Israel, liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be these years, either dew or rain, but according to my word. And the word of Jehovah came 2 to him, saying, Go hence, and turn east- 3 ward; and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, which is before the Jordan. And it 4 shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to sup- 5 port thee there. So he went and did according to the word of Jehovah: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, which is before the Jordan. And the ravens 6 brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank "water" of the brook. And it came 7 to pass after a while, that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

And the word of Jehovah came to him, say- 8 ing, Arise, go to Zarephath, which belongeth 9 wished to lay that palace in ruins, which he saw he must not occupy.

22. When Tibni was killed] I think that the context proves that Tibni did not die a natural death, as our common version supposes. In the circumstances in which the people were, a rival to the throne would not be suffered to die in peace.

24. Samaria] From Samar. In the Hebrew, according to the Masoretical punctuation, there is Shomron, from Shemer. But as the town is always called Samaria in the New Testament, and in our public version of the Old, I retain that name; and call its owner Samar, the better to show the derivation.

31. Jezebel] She was a heathen princess, and to marry her was contrary to the divine command. She was an infamous woman; we read of her whoredoms, idolatries, and persecutions of God's prophets in Rev. ii. 20.

34. Rebuilt Jericho] This is probably added, as a proof of the hardened state to which the inhabitants of Bethel had been brought, by their worship of Jeroboam's calf. Hiel would rebuild Jericho, in defiance of the execration of Joshua; he found, by experience, that what the good man had said, was the word of God.

CHAP. XVII. 1. From Tishbi] With the Sept. I consider the word as a proper name, for the common rendering affords no pertinent sense. (a) Sept.

2. The brook Cherith] This seems to have been one of those rapid torrents which run down from the mountains, and form deep ravines in their way. Such are frequently to be seen in the northern parts of this island.

4. The ravens] So all the ancient versions render; except, perhaps, the Arabic. Some moderns, however, think the rendering wrong; and make the word in the original a proper name; denoting either the Arabians, or the inhabitants of Horbo, or Orbo, at some small distance from Scythopolis, according to Jerom.—I see no cogent reason to depart from the common rendering; so much the less, as it is certain that ravens are wont to nestle in such ravines as are above mentioned. The other rendering has, nevertheless, its probability: and the reader may choose for himself.

6. (a) Versions.

9. There to support thee] He was not sent to any of the rich or great men in Sidon, but to a poor widow, who was probably a proselyte to the Jewish religion.

to Sidon, and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee. So he arose and went to Zarephath.

10 And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, there was a widow woman gathering sticks: and he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel,

11 that I may drink. And as she was going to bring it, he called to her and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thy

12 hand. And she said, As Jehovah thy God liveth, I have nothing baked, but only a handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse: and, behold, I am gathering sticks, that I may go in and prepare it, for myself and my son, that we may eat it and 13 die. And Elijah said to her, Fear not; go and do as thou hast said: but make me of it a little cake first, and bring it to me, and afterwards make for thyself and thy son.

14 For thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, The barrel of meal shall not waste, nor shall the cruse of oil fail, until the day that Jehovah sendeth rain upon the earth. And she went and did according to the word of Elijah; and she, and he, and her household, 16 ate of it many days. And the barrel of meal wasted not, nor did the cruse of oil fail, according to the word of Jehovah, which he had spoken by the prophet Elijah.

17 Now after these things, it came to pass, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so grievous, that there was no breath left in

19 him. And she said to Elijah, What hast thou to do with me, O thou man of God? Hast thou come to me, to call my sin to 19 remembrance, and to slay my son? And he said to her, Give to me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into an upper room, where he abode,

20 and laid him upon his own bed. And he cried to Jehovah, and said, O Jehovah, my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn by slaying

21 her son? He then stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried to Jehovah, and said, O Jehovah, my God, I pray thee let this child's soul return to him. And Jehovah heard the prayer of Elijah; and the soul of the child returned into him. And Elijah took the child, and brought him down from the upper room, into the house, and delivered him to his mother: and Elijah said, See, thy son liveth. And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of Jehovah is truly in thy mouth.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 906. Elijah, sent to Ahab, meeteth Obadiah; his proposal to Ahab; he slayeth the prophets of Baal, and obtaineth rain.

Now after many days, in the third year, 1 the word of Jehovah came to Elijah, saying, Go, show thyself to Ahab; and I will send rain upon the earth. And Elijah went to 2 show himself to Ahab. And famine prevailed in Samaria. And Ahab called Obadiah, 3 who was the steward of his house. (Now Obadiah greatly feared Jehovah: So that 4 when Jezebel cut off the prophets of Jehovah, Obadiah took a hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water.) And Ahab 5 said to Obadiah, "Come, let us go" through the land, unto all the fountains of water, and unto all the brooks: perhaps we may find grass to save the horses and mules alive, that we lose not all the cattle. And 6 they divided the land between them, to pass through it: Ahab went one way by himself; and Obadiah went another way, by himself.

But as Obadiah was on the way, behold, 7 Elijah met him; and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said, Art thou my lord Elijah? And he answered him, I am: go, 8 tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here. But 9 "Obadiah" said, In what have I sinned, that thou wouldst deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me? As Jehovah 10 thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when they said, He is not there; he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that thou wert not to be found. And now 11

14. Thus saith Jehovah] This he said to try her faith and obedience. She might have possibly pleaded, that she must sustain herself and her son first; that she had none to spare; that if he was a prophet he must work a miracle, and so provide for himself. But her faith silences all these objections, and therefore was almost as miraculous as the supply itself.

16. Wasted not] It was according to her faith; it lasted them for two years; what was taken out was immediately supplied by the divine power.

18. My sin to remembrance] She takes it for granted that Elijah, by his prophetic spirit, had discovered some of the sins of her former life. God is said to remember sin, when he punishes it; and not to remember, or forget, when he forgives.

24. Now by this I know] This miracle was not only intended to establish Elijah's character, but, most probably, to be a remarkable proof of the resurrection, and the existence of the soul in a separate state.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. In the third year] Reckoning from his flight. The drought continued, according to James v. 17, and our Lord, Luke iv. 25, three years and a half; so that six months elapsed before that Elijah went to the brook Cherith.

4. A hundred prophets] Most likely these were Levites devoted to the study of the law, some of whom might occasionally be inspired. Jezebel hated and would have destroyed them all, if possible. It is singular that Obadiah should live in the court of Ahab, and more so that his life should be preserved. 5. (a) Sept.

9. In what have I sinned] The following verses explain the meaning of Obadiah in this. Should Elijah not be found, Obadiah would be slain, for not having seized him or put him to death. (a) Syr. Vulg. MSS.

thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, behold, Elijah 12 is here. And as soon as I am gone from thee, it may be, that the Spirit of Jehovah shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he may slay me. Now I, thy servant, have feared Jehovah from my youth.
13 Hath it not been told my lord what I did,
when Jezebel slew the prophets of Jehovah,
how I hid a hundred men of Jehovah's prophets, by fifty in a cave, and fed them with 14 bread and water? Yet now thou sayest,
Go, tell thy lord, behold, Elijah is here: so 15 that he may slay me. And Elijah said, As Jehovah, the God of hosts, liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself to him this day.
16 So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told 17 him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah. And when Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, 18 Art thou he who troubleth Israel? But he answered, I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of Jehovah, 19 and followed other gods. Now therefore send, and assemble to me, into mount Carmel, all Israel, and the prophets of Baal, four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves, four hundred, who eat 20 at Jezebel's table. So Ahab sent unto all the Israelites, and assembled the prophets unto mount Carmel. And Elijah came to all the people, and said, How long halt ye between two opinions? if Jehovah be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him. And the people answered him not a 22 word. Then said Elijah to the people, I am the only remaining prophet of Jehovah;
but Baal's prophets are four hundred and 23 fifty men. Let two steers be given to us; and let them choose one steer for themselves, and cut him in pieces, and lay the pieces on wood, but put no fire under: and I will dress the other steer, and lay him on wood, 24 but put no fire under: And call ye on the name of your god, and I will call on the name of Jehovah: and the god that an-swereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, This proposal 25 is good. Elijah then said to the prophets of Baal, Choose ye one steer for yourselves, and dress him first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under. And they took the steer, which 26 was given them, and they dressed him; and called on the name of Baal from morning

even until noon, saying, O Baal, hear us.
But there was no voice; no answer. And they leaped about the altar which they had made. And at noon, Elijah mocked them 27 and said, Cry still louder: though he is a god, yet he may be musing; or he may be employed; or on a journey; or, perhaps he is asleep, and must be awaked. They then 28 cried still louder, and cut themselves, according to their custom, with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them. And when mid-day was past, though 29 they continued their rites until the time of offering the evening sacrifice, there was no voice, no answer, no regard paid to them.

Elijah then said to all the people, Come 30 near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And he repaired the altar of Jehovah, which had been broken down.
And Elijah took twelve stones, according to 31
the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, (to whom the word of Jehovah came, saying, Israel shall be thy name:) And with 32 the stones he built an altar to the name of Jehovah: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two seals of seed. And he put the wood in order, and 33 cut the steer in pieces, and laid the pieces on the wood, and said, Fill four jars with water, and pour it on the burnt-sacrifice, and on the wood. And he said, Do it the second 34 time. And they did it the second time.
And he said, Do it the third time. And 35 they did it the third time. And the water ran round about the altar; and the trench was even filled with water. It was now the 36 time of offering the evening sacrifice, when Elijah, the prophet, drew near, and said, O Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, let it be known this day, that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things by thy command. Hear me, O Jehovah, hear me, 37 that this people may know that thou Jehovah art God; and turn back their hearts.
Then the fire of Jehovah fell, and consumed 38
the burnt offering, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water

19. I have not troubled] Ahab charges the famine on the prophet who predicted it; he repels the charge, and points out with boldness and energy the true cause, however uncourtly such language might be deemed. The proposal he makes to assemble the prophets of Baal, and to see who or what was the cause of the calamity, and to endeavour to remove it, Ahab could not but deem fair.

24. That answereth by fire] God had frequently appeared in favour of his people, by consuming the victims offered to him by fire from heaven, Levit. ix. 24, and Judg. vi. 21.

27. He may be musing] The heathens ascribed the weaknesses of men to their gods. According to Homer, Jupiter sometimes went abroad, sometimes slept, &c. How different the view which the prophets give us of the true God, who neither slumbereth nor sleepeth, and who is in every place, beholding the evil and the good!

29. Continued their rites] They acted the prophet, in their motions and gesticulations. How fine the remark with which the verse concludes, 'Yet there was no voice,' &c.

34. Do it the third time] This shows the confidence of the prophet, or rather his full assurance, that God would now appear to confound his enemies, and to raise the drooping spirit of his friends.

39 which was in the trench. And when all the people saw this, they fell on their faces; and they said, Jehovah, he is God; Jehovah, he is God. And Elijah said to them, Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape. And they took them; and Elijah brought them to the brook Kishon, and slew them there.

41 And Elijah said unto Ahab, Go eat and drink; for there is a sound of abundance of rain. So Ahab went up to eat and to drink; and Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; and he cast himself down upon the earth, and put his face between his knees; And said to his servant, Go up now, look towards the sea. And he went up, and looked, and said, There is nothing. And he said, Go again seven times. And at the seventh time, he said, Behold, there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say to Ahab, Prepare thy chariot, and get down, that the rain stop thee not. And it came to pass in the mean while, that the heavens were black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode and went to Jezreel.

46 And the hand of Jehovah was on Elijah; and he girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 906. Jezebel threateneth Elijah, who fleeth; he goes to Horeb, where God appears to him, and sends him to anoint Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha.

1 AND Ahab told Jezebel, all that Elijah had done; and also how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, So let the gods do to me, and more also, if, by to-morrow about this time, I make not thy life as the life of one of them. And 'he was afraid,' and arose, and went for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belonged to Judah. And there he left his servant; But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness; and he went and sat down under a broom-tree: and he requested for himself, that he might die; and said, It is enough: now, O Jehovah, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers. And as he lay and slept under the broom-tree, behold, an angel touched him, and said to him, Arise, eat. And he looked, and behold, at his head was a cake baked on coals, and a cruse of water. And he ate and drank, and lay down again. And the angel Jehovah returned and touched him a second time, and said, Arise, eat; because a long journey is appointed to thee. And he arose, and ate and drank, and went in the strength of that food, forty days and forty nights, unto Horeb, the mount of God.

And he came thither to a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of Jehovah came to him, and said to him, What doest thou here, Elijah? And he said, I have been very jealous for Jehovah, the God of hosts: for the Israelites have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, I only am left; and they seek to take away my life. And he said, Go forth, and stand upon the mount before Jehovah. And, behold, Jehovah passed by, and there was a great and strong wind rending the mountains, and breaking in pieces the rocks before Jehovah; but Jehovah was not in the wind: and after the wind was an earthquake; but Jehovah was not in the earthquake: And after the earthquake, a fire; but Jehovah was not in the fire: and after the fire, a still small voice, and there was Jehovah. And when Elijah heard this, he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out, and stood in the entrance of the cave. And, behold, a voice came to him, and said, What doest thou here, Elijah? And he said, I have been very jealous for Jehovah, the God of hosts: because the Israelites have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, I only am left; and they seek to take away my life. And Jehovah said to him, Go, return

39. Jehovah, he is God] That is, we acknowledge him to be the only true and living God. Elijah availed himself of the impression made on the people, and engaged them to cut off the prophets or priests of Baal.

41. There is a sound] God now intimated to his servant that he would send rain; and by this, still more establish his mission as his prophet to Israel. The event soon verified his intimation.

CHAP. XIX. 2. So let the gods] Jezebel was greatly enraged, and resolved to make the prophet a public example of her vengeance. Her passion clearly deprived her of prudence; and she, by sending a message to him, led to his escape.

3. And he was afraid] This shows the justness of the apostle's remark, that Elijah was a man of like passions with ourselves. (v) Versions, MSS.

4. A broom-tree] This is now generally adopted as the sense of the word. The prophet now wishes to die and go home, perhaps thinking that he had done no good, by all his efforts to reform Israel. In this desponding frame the Lord was mindful of him.

8. Forty days] The distance of Horeb from Beer-sheba is little more than a hundred miles; and the prophet had gone a day's journey into the wilderness. This may justly induce suspicion, that the true reading is four days, &c. Errors in numbers have most frequently occurred; yet there is no variety of reading either in the versions or manuscripts. That God can support without food, for any length of time, cannot surely be doubted. Moses fasted forty days and forty nights, and our Lord in like manner.

11, 12. These awful appearances displayed the majesty of God, while the still small voice indicated his mercy. In short, he meant to assure the prophet, and by him his people, that he would not employ storms and tempests, but the soft words of persuasion and kindness, in order to reclaim Israel and maintain his own worship. Though the persons he is sent to anoint will bring judgment on Israeli on thy way from the wilderness to Damascus; and when thou comest thither, anoint 16 Hazael to be king over Syria. And Jehu, the son of Nimshi, shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel; and Elisha, the son of Shaphat, of Abel-meholah, shalt thou anoint 17 to be prophet in thy stead. And it shall be, that he who escapeth the sword of Hazael, shall Jehu slay; and he who escapeth the 18 sword of Jehu, shall Elisha slay. Yet seven thousand men in Israel will I reserve to myself; all who have not bowed their knees to Baal; all who have not kissed him with their mouth.

 19 So he departed thence; and found Elisha, the son of Shaphat, and he was plowing, twelve yoke of oxen going before him; and he was with the twelfth: and Elijah passed on to him, and cast his mantle upon him.
 20 And he left the oxen, and ran after Elijah, and said, Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and I will follow thee. And he said to him, Go, return: for what 21 have I done to hinder thee? So he returned from him, and took a yoke of oxen, and slew them, and boiled their flesh with the wood of the ox-gear, and gave to the people, and they did eat. Then he arose, and went after Elijah, and attended on him.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 899. Ahab, being denied Naboth's vineyard, is grieved; Jezebel suborns false witnesses, and Naboth is condemned; Elijah denounceth God's judgments against Ahab.

1 AFTER these occurrences, the following happened. Naboth, the Jezreelite, had a vineyard, which was in Jezreel, near to the palace of Ahab, king of Samaria. And Ahab spoke to Naboth, saying, Give to me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a green garden, because it is near to my house: and I will give to thee, for it, a better vineyard than it; or, if it seem good to thee, I will
 3 give thee the worth of it in money. And Naboth said to Ahab, Jehovah forbid that I should give the inheritance of my fathers vexed and displeased, because of the word which Naboth, the Jezreelite, had spoken to him; for he had said, I will not give to thee the inheritance of my fathers. And he laid himself down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no food.

But Jezebel, his wife, came to him, and said to him, Why is thy spirit so vexed, that thou wilt eat no food? And he said to her, Because I spoke to Naboth, the Jezreelite, and said to him, Give to me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it; and he answered, I will not give thee my vineyard. And Jezebel, his wife, said to him, Dost thou now exercise royal authority over Israel? Arise, eat food, and let thy heart be joyful: the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite, I will give to thee. She then wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal; and sent the letters to the elders and nobles of the city, in which Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth at the head of the people: Then bring two lawless men before him, who may testify against him, saying, 'Naboth hath blessed' the gods, especially Molech. And then carry him out, and stone him that he may die. And the men of his city, the elders and the nobles, who dwelt in his city, did as Jezebel had sent to them: as was written in the letters which she had sent to them. They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth at the head of the people. And there came two lawless men, and sat before him; and these lawless men testified against him, against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth hath blessed the gods, especially Molech. They then carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones so that he died. Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

And when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, she said to Ahab, Arise, take possession of the vineyard of

for their idolatry, yet he will reserve seven thousand to support his own cause. (a) Sept.

18. Who have not kissed] This was one method of adoration, either to kiss the image, or to kiss the hand and to stretch it towards the image.

21. So he returned from him] That is, from the prophet, as I understand it, and went home, and having invited the people, made a feast-sacrifice of some of his oxen; and then he followed Elijah.

CHAP. XXI. 1. In the Greek version, this chapter follows the 19th; and the order of the history supports this arrangement. In the present order the narrative of the wars of Israel with the Syrians is broken and interrupted.

2. Spoke to Naboth] The proposal of Ahab was fair; and the reason of Naboth's refusal ought to have satisfied him. It was the inheritance of his fathers. Attachment to one's home, to the place of our birth, is natural; and few men would wish to part with it. He considered that he was bound by the obligations of religion to keep it.

4. Would eat no food] How a little thing may disturb a proud, or a covetous mind!

10. Blessed the gods] There are five places where our translators have rendered בָּרַךְ to blaspheme, or curse, here and in the 13th verse, Job i. 5, and 11: ii. 5, and 9. In all these places the Sept. Syr. and Vulg. render to bless; and the word has no other signification in any of the oriental tongues. This version specifies the crime laid to Naboth's charge to be idolatry, which was capital, according to Deut. xvii. 2—7. And though Jezebel was herself a gross idolater, she availed herself of that law to obtain her object.

11—14. The elders of Jezreel did not hesitate to do as Jezebel ordered. They perhaps dreaded the vengeance of this unprincipled woman; and, influenced by their fears, they became guilty of this unjust deed.

Naboth, the Jezreelite, which he refused to give to thee for money: for Naboth is not 16 alive, but dead. And when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, he rose up to go down to take possession of the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite.

17 And the word of Jehovah came to Elijah, 18 the Tishbite, saying, Arise, go down to meet Ahab, king of Israel, in Samaria: behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth; for he is gone down thither to take possession of it. 19 And thou shalt speak to him, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? Again thou shalt speak to him, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, In 'whatsoever place' the dogs licked up the blood of Naboth, shall the dogs lick up 20 even thine own blood. And Ahab said to Elijah, Hast thou met me, O mine enemy? And he answered, I have met thee; because thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the 21 eyes of Jehovah. Behold, (saith Jehovah), I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity, and will cut off from Ahab every male, whether bond or 22 free, in Israel; And I will make thy house like the house of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha, the son of Ahijah, for the provocation with which thou hast provoked me to anger, in having 23 caused Israel to sin. And concerning Jezebel, Jehovah hath also spoken, saying, The dogs shall eat Jezebel under the wall of Jez- 24 reel. Him who dieth of Ahab's posterity in the city, the dogs shall eat; and him who dieth in the field, shall the fowls of the air eat. 25 Now there had been none like to Ahab, who, stirred up by Jezebel, his wife, sold himself to work wickedness in the eyes of 26 Jehovah. And he committed great abominations, by going after vile idols, according to all that the Amorites did, whom Jehovah 27 cast out before the Israelites. But when Ahab heard these words, he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his body and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and walked mournfully. 28 And the word of Jehovah came to Elijah, the Tishbite, saying, Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before me? because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring the evil in his days; but in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 901. Ben-hadad besiegeth Samaria; the Syrians are slain and the king taken, whom Ahab dismisseth.

AND Ben-hadad, the king of Syria, assem- 1 bled his whole host; thirty-two kings attended him, with horsemen and chariots: and he went up and besieged Samaria, that he might subdue it. But he first sent messengers into 2 the city to Ahab, king of Israel, who said to him, Thus saith Ben-hadad, Thy silver and 3 thy gold is mine; thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest, are mine. And the 4 king of Israel answered and said, My lord, O king, according to thy saying, I am thine, and all that I have. And the messengers returned, 5 and said, Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, saying, I sent to thee, saying, Thou shalt deliver up to me thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children; So to-morrow about this time, 6 I will send my servants to thee, and they shall search thy house, and the houses of thy servants; and whatsoever is most desirable in 'their' eyes, they shall seize, and take it away. Then the king of Israel called all 7 the elders of the land, and said, Mark, I pray you, and see how this man seeketh mischief: for he sent to me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver, and for my gold; and I denied him not. And 8 all the elders and all the people said to him, Hearken not, nor consent. Wherefore he 9 said to the messengers of Ben-hadad, Tell my lord the king, All that thou didst send for to thy servant at the first, will I do: but this thing I cannot do. And the messengers departed, and brought him this message. And Ben-hadad sent to him, and said, The 10 gods do so to me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that follow me. And the king of 11 Israel answered, and said, Say to your lord, Let not him who girdeth on his armour, boast as if he were pulling it off. And as 12 soon as Ben-hadad, who was then drinking with the other kings, in booths, heard this message, he said to his servants, Make an attack. And they attacked the city.

And, behold, there came a prophet to 13

16. He rose up to go] Ahab by this showed the same injustice as his wife; if he did not suggest the deed, he approved of it.

19. In whatsoever place] So the Greek translators render.

20. Hast thou met me] Ahab, on the sight of the prophet, conscious of his crime, expected some denunciation; and he regarded the prophet, for telling him what would be the effects of his sins, as his enemy.

27. Mournfully] Literally, groaning, and hence kindness and compassion, according to Michaelis. Parkhurst renders, deriving from a different root, with a downcast look. The connexion supports the sense given.

CHAP. XX. 3. Thy silver] By this he claims the sovereignty; and Ahab by his answer was willing to be his tributary.

6. So to-morrow] Ben-hadad, not satisfied with the submission of Ahab, demands the whole of what he thought proper to take out of Samaria. This demand rouses the spirit of the people to resistance. (r) Versions.

11. Boast as if he were] This is a very significant metaphor. Dathe renders, 'Do not triumph before the victory is obtained,' which is the sense intended.

12. Make an attack] This hasty order shows the want of prudence; and is what might be expected from a king carousing with his vassals.

Ahab, king of Israel, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Hast thou seen all this great multitude? behold, I will deliver it into thy hand this day; and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah. And Ahab said, By whom? And he said, Thus answereth Jehovah, By the young men belonging to the chiefs of the provinces. Then he said, Who shall order the battle? and he answered, Thou. Then he numbered the young men belonging to the chiefs of the provinces, and they were two hundred and thirty-two: and after them he numbered all the people, all the Israelites, seven thousand. And they went out at noon; but Ben-hadad, and the thirty-two kings, his auxiliaries, were drinking in booths. And the young men belonging to the chiefs of the provinces went out first; and Ben-hadad sent out, and they told him, saying, There are men come out of Samaria. And he said, Whether they be come out for peace, or war, take them alive. But those young men belonging to the chiefs of the provinces, who went out of the city, and whom the army followed, slew every one his man, and the Syrians fled; and Israel pursued them; but Ben-hadad, the king of Syria, escaped on a horse with the horsemen. And the king of Israel went on, and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter. And the prophet came to the king of Israel, and said to him, Go, strengthen thyself, and wisely consider what thou shouldst do: for at the return of the year, the king of Syria will come up against thee. And the servants of the king of Syria said to him, Their gods are gods of the hills; therefore they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and assuredly we shall be stronger than they. And do this thing, Remove the kings every one from his place; and put captains in their stead: And raise an army, like the army which thou hast lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot: and we will fight against them in the plain, and assuredly we shall be stronger than they. And he hearkened to their voice, and did so. For, at the return of the year, Ben-hadad numbered the Syrians, and went up to Aphek, to fight against Israel. And the Israelites were numbered, 27 and completed, and went against them; and the Israelites encamped opposite to them, like two small flocks of goats; but the Syrians filled the country.

And there came a man of God, and spoke 28 to the king of Israel, and said, Thus saith Jehovah, Because the Syrians have said, Jehovah is God of the hills, but he is not God of the valleys, I will, therefore, deliver all this great multitude into thy hand, and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. And 29 they encamped seven days, one over against the other: but, on the seventh, they advanced to battle; and the Israelites slew of the Syrians in one day a hundred thousand footmen. But the remainder fled to the 30 city Aphek; and there a wall fell upon this remainder of twenty-seven thousand men. And Ben-hadad fled, and came into that city, and hid himself in an inner-chamber.

And his servants said to him, Behold 31 now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings: let us, we pray thee, put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes about our necks, and go out to the king of Israel, perhaps he will save thy life. So they girded sackcloth on their loins, and 32 put ropes about their necks, and came to the king of Israel, and said, Thy servant, Ben-hadad, saith, I pray thee let me live. And he said, Is he yet alive? he is my brother. Now the men diligently observed 33 and hastily caught the word, and they said, Thy brother Ben-hadad liveth. Then he said, Go bring him. Then Ben-hadad came forth to him: and he caused him to come up into the chariot. And Ben-hadad said 34 to him, The cities, which my father took from thy father, I will restore; and thou shalt make streets for thyself in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria. Then said Ahab, I will send thee away with this covenant. So he made a covenant with him, and sent him away.

And a certain man, of the sons of the prophets, said to his neighbour, by the command of Jehovah, Smite me, I pray thee. And the man refused to smite him. Then said 36 he to him, Because thou hast not obeyed

14. By the young men] Those were selected for their spirit and courage; and it was evident that, if they succeeded in their attack, dismay would spread through the Syrian camp. The result was accordingly.

24. Remove the kings] Ben-hadad's counsellors considered the tributary kings as not heartily engaging in his cause; and as the probable cause of their last defeat. They speak in the style of idolaters, but the policy of their advice in proposing to fight in the plains, where their cavalry might be of essential service, was wise and good.

27. Like two small flocks] The historian could not better express the smallness of the Israelite army. Goats are never seen in large flocks like sheep.

30. A wall fell upon] That is, upon the main body of them. They were perhaps endeavouring to fortify themselves in some shaken tower, the walls of which gave way and destroyed many. Kennicott labours to prove that this word signifies here not a wall, but, reading as many MSS. do, רוחמה, the Simoom or pestilential wind, by which, in his opinion and that of many others, the army of Sennacherib was destroyed.

31. And ropes about our necks] These were to indicate, that they considered their lives at the mercy of Ahab; and they intended also to excite his mercy and compassion.

the voice of Jehovah, behold, as soon as thou art departed from me, a lion shall slay thee. And as soon as he had departed from him, a lion found him, and slew him.

37 Then he found another man, and said, Smite me, I pray thee. And the man smote him, so that in smiting he wounded him. And the prophet departed, and waited for the king by the way, and disguised himself by a "bandage" on his face. And as the king passed by, he cried unto the king: and he said, Thy servant went out into the midst of the battle; and, behold, a man turned aside and brought a man unto me and said, Keep this man: if by any means he be missing, then shall thy life go for his life, or else thou shalt pay a talent of silver.

40 And as thy servant was busy here and there, he was gone. And the king of Israel said to him, 'Thou thyself hast decided thy doom.

41 And he hastily removed the bandage from off his face; and the king of Israel perceived that he was one of the prophets.

42 And he said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man whom I appointed to utter destruction, therefore thy life shall go for his life, and 43 thy people for his people. Then the king of Israel went home vexed and displeased; and he came to Samaria.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 897. Ahab, seduced by false prophets, is slain at Ramoth-Gilead. History of the reign of Jehoshaphat.

1 THREE years passed without war between Syria and Israel. But in the third year, Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, came down to the king of Israel; And the king of Israel said to his servants, Know ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is ours? and yet we delay taking it out of the hand of the king of

4 Syria. And he said to Jehoshaphat, Wilt thou go with me to battle, to Ramoth-gilead? And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, As thou art disposed, so am I; as thy people, so my people, as thy horsemen, so my horsemen. Yet Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, Inquire now, I pray thee,

6 what is the will of Jehovah. Then the king of Israel assembled the prophets, about four hundred men, and said to them, Shall I go

38. By a bandage on his face] This rendering arises from the change of a single letter, so like that they have been often mistaken for each other, and is supported by the Sept. How could ashes on the head disguise the face of the prophet? A bandage might serve this purpose, and might be so placed as to hide the wound he had received.

CHAP. XXII. 6. For Jehovah] This shows, that although these were false prophets, yet, at that time, both they, and their king, acknowledged the God of Israel.

7. By whom we may] Jehoshaphat seems to doubt the declarations of Ahab's prophets; and to wish to consult some one whose character was better established.

11. Horns of iron] These were symbols of power; and against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, Go up; for Jehovah shall deliver it into the hand of the king. And Jehoshaphat said, Is there no prophet of Jehovah here besides, by whom we may inquire? And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, There is yet one man, Micaiah, the son of Imlah, by whom we may inquire of Jehovah; but him I hate; for he doth not prophesy good concerning me, but evil. And Jehoshaphat said, Let not the king say so. Then the king of Israel called an officer, and said, Bring quickly hither Micaiah, the son of Imlah. And the 10 king of Israel and Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, sat each on his throne, having put on their robes, in a void place, at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets prophesied before them. And 11 Zedekiah, the son of Chenaanah, made for himself horns of iron, and said, Thus saith Jehovah, With these shalt thou push the Syrians, until thou have destroyed them. And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, 12 Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper: for Jehovah shall deliver it into the king's hand. Now the messenger, who had gone to call 13 Micaiah, spoke to him, saying, Behold now, the words of the prophets declare good to the king with one mouth: let thy word, I pray thee, be like their word, and speak what is good. And Micaiah said, As Jeho- 14 vah liveth, what Jehovah saith to me, that will I speak. So he came to the king. 15 And the king said to him, Micaiah, shall we go against Ramoth-gilead, to battle, or shall we forbear? And he answered him, Go and prosper; for Jehovah will deliver it into the hand of the king. And the king said to 16 him, How often shall I adjure thee that thou speak to me only the truth, in the name of Jehovah? "Micaiah" then said, I saw all 17 Israel scattered upon the hills like sheep that have not a shepherd, and Jehovah said, These have no masters: let them return every man to his own house in peace. And 18 the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good, but evil, concerning me? Again 19 "Micaiah" said, Hear thou, therefore, the word of Jehovah. I saw Jehovah sitting on the false prophet intimated the power of Ahab, and how he should prevail.

13. Be like their word] This address of Ahab's messengers shows the spirit of Ahab's prophets; they adapted their pretended gift to promote his designs and flatter him.

15. Jehovah will deliver] Micaiah must have spoken these words in an ironical tone, as the king adjures him to speak the truth.

17. (a) Sept. Syr. and so ver. 19.

19—23. This is not a real representation of any thing done in the heavenly world, as if God was at a loss for expeditors, or had any hand in the sins of his creatures; but it is a parabolical or visionary representation, to let them

- his throne, and all the host of the heavens standing by him, on his right hand and on his left. And Jehovah said, Who will notice Ahab, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one said on this manner, and another said on that manner. A spirit then came forth and stood before Jehovah, and said, I will entice him. And Jehovah said to him, By what means? And he answered, I will go forth, and I will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And Jehovah said, Thou shalt entice him, and prevail also; go forth, and so do. Now, therefore, behold, Jehovah hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these thy prophets; for Jehovah hath spoken evil concerning thee.
- But Zedekiah, the son of Chenaanah, went near, and smote Micaiah on the cheek, and said, How hath the spirit of Jehovah departed from me, to speak by thee? And Micaiah said, Behold thou shalt see in that day, when thou shalt go into an inner-chamber to hide thyself. And the king of Israel said, Take Micaiah, and carry him back to Amon, the governor of the city, and to Joash, the king's son; And say, Thus saith the king, Put this man in the prison, and feed him with the bread of affliction, and with the water of affliction, until I come in peace. And Micaiah said, If thou indeed return in peace, Jehovah hath not spoken by me. He also said, Hearken, O people, every one of you.
- Then the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, went up to Ramoth-gilead. And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, I will disguise myself, and enter into the battle; but put thou on thy robes. And the king of Israel disguised himself, and went into the battle. Now the king of Syria charged his thirty-two captains who commanded his chariots, saying, Fight neither with small nor great, save only with the king of Israel. And when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, Surely this is the king of Israel; and they turned aside to fight against him. But Jehoshaphat called out; And when the captains of the chariots perceived that he was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.
- And a certain man drew a bow at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the joints of the harness; and he said to the driver of his chariot, Turn thy hand, and carry me out of the host; for I am wounded. But the battle increased on that day; and the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Syrians, and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst of the chariot; and in the evening he died." Then, about the going down of the sun, a proclamation was made throughout the host, saying, Every man to his city, and every man to his own country.

Thus the king died and was brought to Samaria; and they buried the king in Samaria. And they washed the chariot, and rinsed his armour in the pool of Samaria; and the dogs licked up his blood; according to the word which Jehovah had spoken. Now the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and the ivory house which he constructed, and all the cities which he built, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. So Ahab slept with his fathers; and Ahaziah, his son, reigned in his stead.

And Jehoshaphat, the son of Asa, began to reign over Judah, in the fourth year of Ahab, king of Israel. Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Azubah, the daughter of Shilhi. And he walked in all the ways of Asa his father; he turned not aside from it, doing what was right in the eyes of Jehovah. For the remnant of the Sodomites, who were left in the days of his father Asa, he removed from the land. Only the high-places were not entirely removed; still the people sacrificed, and burnt incense on the high-places. And Jehoshaphat made peace with the king of Israel: And as there was then no king of Edom, but a deputy for the king of Judah, Jehoshaphat built ships of Tarshish, at Ezion-Geber, to go to Ophir, for gold. Then said Ahaziah, the son of Ahab, to Jehoshaphat, Let my servants go with thy servants in the ships: "to which Jehoshaphat consented." "But they went not; for the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber." Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, and the might which he exercised, and how know there was a higher king, that his providence was concerned about the affairs of this world, and that he has various ways of bringing about his purposes. (a) Sept. Syr.

The expression, Jehovah hath put a lying spirit, only means he hath suffered Ahab's prophets to be guilty of prophesying lies in his name. At least this seems to me the sense.

24. Hearken, O people] Micaiah boldly appeals to the whole multitude, that they might mark what he said, and judge by the event of its truth. He risks his prophetic character upon the truth of his prediction.

43—50. These verses have, from some accident, been strangely misplaced. I have followed Geddes in the order adopted, which is consistent with itself and with the account in Chronicles.

49. To which Jehoshaphat consented] The present text has, 'He would not consent'; but this is wholly inconsistent with 2 Chron. xx. 36, and the change is easily accounted for. I have therefore followed Houbigant and he warred, are written in the chronicles of Israel and Judah. And Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers; and was buried with his fathers in the city of David; and Jehoram, his son, reigned in his stead.

others in reading לל for לו; which being nearly similar in sound, have in other instances been exchanged.

50. Here, with Coverdale and Matthew, I end the first book of kings: a much more proper division than the common one, which disjoins a part of the same reign.

II. KINGS.

INTRODUCTION.

This book contains a history of more than three hundred years; giving an account of the decline of the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, and the ruin of both. The former was finally subverted, and the people of the latter were carried captive to Babylon. In the first seven chapters, we have the incidental history of the prophets Elijah and Elisha; and in what follows, that of eleven kings of Israel and fifteen of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 896. The reign of Ahaziah, king of Israel; the miracles of Elijah.

- 51 IN the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, Ahaziah, the son of Ahab, began to reign over Israel, in Samaria; and
- 52 he reigned two years over Israel. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and walked in the way of his father, and in the way of his mother, and in the way of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin.
- 53 For he served Baal, and worshipped him, and provoked to anger Jehovah, the God of Israel, according to all that his father had done.
- 1 Now, after the death of Ahab, Moab rebelled against Israel. And Ahaziah had fallen through a lattice in his upper-chamber, in Samaria, and was sick. And he sent messengers, and said to them, Go, inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, whether
- 3 I shall recover of this disease. The angel Jehovah then said to Elijah, the Tishbite, Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them, Is it because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of
- 4 Ekron? Now, therefore, thus saith Jehovah, Thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art laid, but shalt surely die. And Elijah went "and told them."
- 5 And the messengers returned to him, and he said to them, Why have ye returned?
- 6 And they said to him, A man came to meet us, and said to us, Go, return to the king who sent you, and say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Is it because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore, thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art laid, but shalt surely die. And he said to them, What was the habit of the man who came to meet you, and spoke to you these words? And they answered him, He was clothed with a hairy garment, and girt about the loins with a leathern girdle; and he said, It is Elijah, the Tishbite. The king then sent to him a captain of fifty, with his fifty men. And he went up towards him: for behold he sat on the top of a mountain. And he spoke to him, O man of God, the king saith, come down. And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, If I be a man of God, fire will come down from the heavens, and consume thee and thy fifty men. And fire came down from the heavens, and consumed him and his fifty men. Again the king sent to him another captain of fifty, with his fifty men. And he answered and said to him, O man of God, thus saith the king, Come down quickly. And Elijah answered and said to him, If I be a man of God, fire will come down from the heavens, and consume thee and thy fifty men. And the fire came down from the heavens, and consumed him and his fifty men.

Yet again the king sent a third captain of fifty with his fifty men. And the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell on CHAP. I. 2. Baal-zebub] Perhaps this Philistine idol was celebrated for his aid in removing diseases; and this idolatrous king sent to him for this purpose.

3, 4. Is it because] The many proofs that God had given of his power to save, should have led the king to apply to him. The message sent to him was as unwelcome as it was unexpected. (a) Sept.

7. What was the habit] I so render the term חֵטֶם

after Dathé, on account of the answer which the messengers return. They do not describe his person, but his dress.

9. The king saith, Come down] There can be little doubt, but the design of the king was to punish the prophet, perhaps to slay him.

10. Fire will come down] I render in the future, because the imperative indicates something of passion in the prophet; and because I consider the prophet as predicting

- his knees before Elijah, and besought him and said to him, O man of God, I pray thee, let my life, and the life of these fifty men, thy servants, be precious in thy sight.
- 14 Behold fire came down from the heavens, and consumed the two captains of the former fifties, with their fifties: therefore, let
- 15 my life now be precious in thine eyes. And the angel Jehovah said to Elijah, Go down with him: be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went down with him unto the
- 16 king. And he said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Inasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, is it because there is not a God in Israel, of whom thou canst inquire? Therefore, thou shalt not come off that bed on which thou art laid, but shalt surely die.
- 17 So he died, according to the word of Jehovah, which Elijah had spoken. And because he had no son, Jehoram, "his brother,"
- 18 reigned in his stead.* Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah, "and all" that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 896. Elijah, attended by Elisha, divideth the Jordan, and is taken up to heaven; Elisha enjoys his spirit and works miracles.

- 1 JEHOVAH now intending to take up Elijah in a whirlwind into heaven, Elijah went
- 2 with Elisha from Gilgal. And Elijah said to Elisha, Abide here, I pray thee; for Jehovah hath sent me to Bethel. But Elisha said, As Jehovah liveth, and as thyself
- 3 livest, I will not leave thee. So they went down to Bethel. And the sons of the prophets, who were at Bethel, came forth to Elisha, and said to him, Knowest thou that Jehovah will take away thy master this day from thee? And he said, Yea, I know, be
- 4 silent. Again Elijah said to him, Elisha, abide here, I pray thee; for Jehovah hath sent me to Jericho. But he said, As Jehovah liveth, and thyself livest, I will not leave thee. So they came to Jericho. And the sons of the prophets, who were at Jericho, came to Elisha, and said to him, Knowest thou that Jehovah will take away thy master this day from thee? And he answered, Yea, I know, be ye silent. Again Elijah said to him, Abide, I pray thee, here; for Jehovah hath sent me to the Jordan. But he said, As Jehovah liveth, and as thyself livest, I will not leave thee. So they both went on together. And fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood to view afar off; and they two stood by the Jordan. And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, so that they both went over on dry ground.

And when they had gone over, Elijah said to Elisha, Ask what I shall do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Elisha said, I pray thee, let a double portion of thy spirit be given to me. And he said, Thou art bold in thy request: if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it will so be to thee, but if thou see me not, it will not be. Now as they still went on, and talked, behold, a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, parted them asunder; and Elijah went up in a whirlwind into heaven.

And Elisha saw, and he cried out, My father! my father! the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof! And when he saw him no more, he took hold of his own clothes, and rent them in two pieces. And he took up the mantle of Elijah which had dropped from him, and went back, and stood by the bank of the Jordan; And he took the mantle of Elijah which had dropped from him, and smote the waters, "but the waters were not divided;" and he said, Where now is Jehovah, the God of Elijah? And again he smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither: and Elisha passed over.

And when the sons of the prophets, who were opposite at Jericho, saw him, they said, what would now happen, to show the king the truth of the message sent.

17. (o) In the second year of Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, Sept. Val. Omitting this, there is no necessity for supposing that Jehoram was made prorox as some do. (a) Versions.

CHAP. II. 2. Thyself livest] Here the term נָפֶשׁ is used for the pronoun; and to me, this is more emphatical than the idiom.

3. Sons of the prophets] That is, young men educated in the schools of the prophets. It was intimated to them, that Elijah was about to be removed.—From thee] I follow Jerom and others in regarding רֵאשִׁית as used for the pronoun: in this construction, it can have no other sense. Compare ver. 9, in the original.

9. A double portion of thy spirit] The most common explanation is, that Elisha speaks as a first-born son, to whom a double portion of the father's goods belonged, and who succeeded him. Geddes conjectures the sense is, "Let there be a repetition of thy spirit; let me possess the same spirit of wisdom, power, and zeal, and fortitude in maintaining the cause of true religion." The remark of the sons of the prophets supports this view of the text. Compare ver. 15.

10. It will not be] His seeing him could have no material influence to bestow the blessing: but he had a secret impression on his mind that there would be a correspondence between his seeing him taken away, and God's granting the petition. By this means he would be led to keep his mind more attentive to the wonderful scene, and more fit to bear witness of it.

12. The chariot of Israel] Most expositors explain this, as derived from the fiery chariot and horses which separated between Elijah and Elisha. The words seem proverbial, and denote one who is considered as the guard and defence of his country. The same words are applied to Elisha, where there was no appearance of fiery chariots and horses, chap. xiii. 14.

14. The waters were not] Whoever reads the common text attentively, will perceive that something is wanting. The words supplied from the Vulg. and Sept. fill up this deficiency, and render the passage more clear and coherent.

The spirit of Elijah resteth on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and bowed themselves to the ground before him. And they said to him, Behold now, there are with thy servants, fifty strong men; let them go, we pray thee, and seek thy master: whom perhaps the Spirit of Jehovah hath borne away, and cast upon one of the mountains, or into one of the valleys. And he said, Send them not. But, when they urged him with importunity, he said, Send. They sent, therefore, fifty men; and they sought three days, but found him not. And when they came again to him, (for he abode still at Jericho,) he said to them, Did I not say to you, Go not?

And the men of the city said to Elisha, Behold now, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my lord seeth: but the water is bad, and the ground causeth abortions.

And he said, Bring to me a new pan, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him. And he went forth unto the waterspring, and cast the salt into it, and said, Thus saith Jehovah, I have healed these waters; there shall not be therein any more death, or cause of abortion. So the waters were healed, and continue good unto this day, according to the word which Elisha spoke.

And thence he went on to Bethel; and as he was going up by the way, there came young lads out of the city, and mocked him, and said to him, Ascend too, thou bald-head; ascend too, thou bald-head. And he turned back, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of Jehovah. And there came forth two she-bears out of the wood, and tore of them forty-two boys. And he went thence to mount Carmel; and thence he returned to Samaria.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 896. Joram's reign; the Moabites revolt; victory over them.

1 Now in the eighteenth year of the reign of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, Joram, the son of Ahab, began to reign over Israel, in Samaria; and he reigned twelve years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah; but not like his father, and his mother: for he put away the statue of Baal which his father had made. Yet he cleaved unto the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin; from them he did not depart.

Now Mesha, king of Moab, who reared cattle, sent as a tribute to the king of Israel, a hundred thousand lambs, and a hundred thousand wethers, with their wool. But when Ahab was dead, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. And at that time king Joram went out of Samaria, and numbered all Israel. And he sent to Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, saying, The king of Moab hath rebelled against me; wilt thou go with me against Moab to battle? And he said, I will go: as thou art disposed, so am I; as thy people, so my people; as thy horsemen, so my horsemen. And he said, Which way shall we go up? And he answered and said, The way through the wilderness of Edom.

So the king of Israel went, and the king of Judah, and the king of Edom; but, after a circuitous march of seven days, there was no water for the host, and for the cattle that followed them. And the king of Israel said, Alas! that Jehovah hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab! But Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of Jehovah, that we may inquire of Jehovah by him? And one of the king of Israel's servants answered and said, Here is Elisha, the son of Shaphat, who attended on Elijah. And Jehoshaphat said, The word of Jehovah is with him. So the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat, and the king of Edom, went down to him. And Elisha said to the king of Israel, What have I to do with thee? go to the prophets of thy father, and to the prophets of thy mother. And the king of Israel said to him, Nay:

16—18. Hath borne away, and cast] The sons of the prophets seem to have had some such notion as Geddes. Elisha at last permitted them to search, that their fruitless labour might convince them that he had ascended to the regions of the blessed.

19. And the ground causeth] I have adopted the marginal versions as more agreeable to the text. The noxious quality of the water might affect the produce of the ground, through which it flowed, and occasion among the cattle abortions. Hence when the waters were healed, the produce of the ground became wholesome. The means adopted, were only designed as a token that God would effect the miracle.

23. Young lads] From comparing Gen. xliii. 8. 1 Kings iii. 7. it appears that the original not only means children, but young men, from fourteen up to twenty, who were capable of any riotous proceedings. Now these came out of Bethel, the seat of idolatrous worship; and seeing Elisha, who had been the attendant of Elijah, and who, having for some time resided at Jericho, was known to be his successor as prophet of the true God; these young lads designedly insulted and reproached him. With many expositors, I think the verb עלה should be understood in allusion to the ascension of Elijah. In this view their impiety appears more glaring; they wish that all God's prophets may be removed; or they ridicule the idea of the miracle. The want of respect to age may be added as another ingredient in their offence. Hence Elisha was justified in maintaining his character, and in denouncing the divine curse upon them.

CHAP. III. 4. Wethers] I have followed Le Clerc in this version, because it is not probable that such a number of rams would be kept. This must have been a heavy impost on the Moabites.

9. There was no water] Owing to the season, it is most probable, the usual wells, where they expected to find water, were dried up; hence they found themselves in danger of perishing.

11. Who attended on Elijah] Literally, 'who poured water on the hands of Elijah.' A servant is described by one part of service; and this is a frequent idiom.

13. What have I to do] Elisha paid no regard to the king of Israel, knowing him to be an idolater, and who for Jehovah hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of 14 Moab. And Elisha said, As Jehovah of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, surely, were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, I would 15 not look towards thee, nor see thee. But now bring to me a minstrel. And it came to pass, while the minstrel played, that 'the 16 Spirit' of Jehovah came upon him. And he said, Thus saith Jehovah, make this 17 valley full of ditches. For thus saith Jehovah, Ye shall not see wind, nor shall ye see rain; yet that valley shall be filled with water, that both ye, and your cattle, and 18 your beasts may drink. And this is but a light thing in the eyes of Jehovah: he will deliver the Moabites also into your hand.

 19 And ye shall smite every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall fell every good tree, and stop up every well of water, and mar
 20 every good piece of land, with stones. And the next morning, when the wheaten-offering was to be offered, behold, there came water by the way of Edom, and the country was filled with water.
 21 And when all the Moabites heard that the kings had come up to fight against them, they assembled all that were able to put on armour, both young and old; and they stood on the borders of their own land.
 22 And they arose up early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water; and the Moabites saw the water on the other side as
 23 red as blood. And they said, This is blood: the kings are surely slain, and they have smitten one another: now, therefore, Moab
 24 to the spoil. And when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up and smote the Moabites, so that they fled before them; but they went on smiting the Moabites, even into their own country. And they demolished the cities, and on every good piece of land cast every man his stone, and filled it; and every well of water they stopped up; and every good tree they felled. The walls of Kir-haraseth were only left; and the slingers surrounded and smote it.
 26 But when the king of Moab saw that the battle would be too vigorous for him, he took with him seven hundred swords-men, to break through to the king of Edom; but they could not. He then took his eldest son who should have reigned in his stead, and offered him a burnt-offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation amongst the Israelites; and they departed from him, and returned to their own land.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 895. Elisha multiplieth the widow's oil; giveth a son to the Shunemite, and, when dead, raiseth him to life.

Now a certain woman, the wife of one of the sons of the prophets, cried unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant, my husband, is dead; and thou knowest that thy servant feared Jehovah. Now the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen. And Elisha said to her, What shall I do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thy handmaid hath not any thing in the house, save a pot of oil. Then he said, Go about, and borrow from all thy neighbours vessels, empty vessels; borrow not a few. And when thou art come in, thou must shut the door upon thee and upon thy sons, and pour out into all those vessels; and thou must set aside that which is full. So she went from him, and having borrowed vessels, shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out. And when the vessels were full, she said to her son, Bring me yet another vessel. And he said to her, There is not a vessel more. And the oil stayed. Then she came and told the man of God. And he said, Go, sell the oil, and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children on the rest.

And at another time it happened, that Elisha passed to Shunem, where was a rich woman; and she constrained him to eat bread. And afterwards as often as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread. And she said to her husband, Behold now, I perceive that this man, who continually passeth by, is a holy man of God. Let us make a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall; and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, only sought to Jehovah, either from deference to Jehoshaphat or from fear.

15. The spirit of Jehovah] I have preferred this reading because more usual, and because, if we render רוח came, it is more proper. In sense, the phrases, 'the hand of Jehovah was upon him,' and 'the spirit of Jehovah came upon him,' are synonymous. (v) Chald. MSS.

19. And mar every] Harmer thinks, that they were to erect stones on every good piece of land, prohibiting its future cultivation, according to a custom of the Arabs. It is probable gardens, and such like cultivated land, is only meant.

20. There came water] Without wind or rain, this water came; and it must be regarded as produced miraculously. For how could a quantity in such an arid clime be obtained in an ordinary way?

23. This is blood] The reflection of the sun produced this illusion, and led to the defeat of the Moabites.

24. But they went on] I have followed the Greek translators, as giving the best sense, and retaining the genuine text.

27. And offered him] To whom did he offer him? I think to the tutelary divinity of the city, which from its name was the same. (See Buxtorf on תור.) This conduct of the king of Moab shocked the Israelites, so that they departed.

CHAP. IV. 7. Go sell the oil] In this manner, the prophet relieved the distressed widow, and delivered her sons from being taken and sold for bondmen.

8. Rich woman] So our old translators, Coverdale and Matthews. So Luther, and other foreign translators.

10. A little chamber] This denotes a building, called by the Arabs yet an Oleah, generally at some distance from the house, like a summer-house in our gardens.

and a seat, and a lamp, that when he cometh
 11 to us, he may turn in thither. Now it happened one day, that he came thither, and he turned into the chamber, and lay there.
 12 And he said to Gehazi, his servant, Call this Shunemite. And when he had called 13 her, she stood before him. And he said to him, Say now to her, Behold, thou hast been careful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? Wouldst thou be spoken for to the king, or to the captain of the host? And she answered; I dwell among mine
 14 own people. And he said, What then is to be done for her? And Gehazi answered, Verily, she hath no child, and her husband
 15 is old. And he said, Call her. And when he had called her, she stood at the door.
 16 And he said, About this season, according to the time of life, thou shalt embrace a son. And she said, Nay, my lord, man of 17 God, do not deceive thy handmaid. But the woman conceived, and bare a son at the season, according to the time of life, as Elisha had said to her.
 18 And when the child was grown, it happened one day, that he went out to his father
 19 to the reapers. And he said to his father, My head, my head. And he said to a lad, 20 Carry him to his mother. And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, and 21 then died. And she went up, and laid him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the door upon him, and went out.
 22 And she called to her husband, and said, Send me, I pray thee, one of the young men, and one of the asses, that I may run to the man of God; and I will soon return.
 23 And he said, Why wouldst thou go to him to day? it is neither new moon, nor sabbath. But she said, It is proper for me to 24 go. She then ordered an ass to be saddled, and said to her servant, Drive on; slack not
 25 my riding, except I bid thee. So she went, and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And when the man of God saw her afar off, he said to Gehazi, his servant,
 26 Behold, yonder is the Shunemite: Run now, I pray thee, to meet her, and say to her, Is it well with thee? well with thy husband? well with the child? And she answered, 27 Well. But when she came to the man of God to the hill, she laid hold on his feet; and Gehazi came near to thrust her away.

And the man of God said, Let her alone, for her soul is distressed within her: although Jehovah hath hidden from me the cause, and hath not told me of it. Then she said, 29 Did I desire a son of my lord? did I not say, Do not deceive me? Then he said to Gehazi, 29 Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thy hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and lay my staff upon the face of the child. And the mother 30 of the child said, As Jehovah liveth, and as thy self livest, I will not leave thee. And he arose, and followed her. And Gehazi 31 passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but there was neither voice nor any attention. So he returned to meet him, and told him, saying, The child is not awaked. And when Elisha 32 entered the house, behold, the child was dead, and laid upon his bed. He went in 33 therefore, and shut the door upon them two, and prayed to Jehovah. And he went up, 34 and lay upon the child, and put his own mouth upon his mouth, and his own eyes upon his eyes, and his own hands upon his hands: and he stretched himself upon the child; and the flesh of the child became warm. He then returned, and walked to 35 and fro in the house; and went up, and stretched himself upon him; and the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. And he called Gehazi, and said, 36 Call this Shunemite. So he called her. And when she had come into him, he said, Take up thy son. Then she went in and fell 37 at his feet, and bowed herself to the ground, and took up her son, and went out.

And Elisha came to Gilgal; and there 38 was a dearth in the land; and the sons of the prophets were sitting before him: and he said to his servants, Set on the great pot, and boil pottage for the sons of the prophets. And one went out to the field to gather 39 mallows, and found a wild-gourd, and gathered his lap full of wild-gourd leaves, and came and shred them into the pot of pottage: for they knew them not. So they poured 40 out for the men to eat. But as they were eating of the pottage, they cried out, and said, O man of God, death is in the pot. And they could eat no more. But he said, 41 Bring meal, and cast it into the pot: and this being done, he said, Pour out for the

13. I dwell among] That is, I live among my friends, and want nothing from the king or his servants.

16. According to the time] Compare Gen. xviii. 10, and note there.

23. It is neither new moon] By this it appears, that it was usual to visit the prophets at such seasons; most probably, for religious instruction. She seems not to have informed her husband of the death of her son.

29. Salute him not] Elisha, by this, wished Gehazi to make the greatest haste. For their salutations were tedious and ceremonious.

32—36. Were the means Elisha used, in themselves sufficient to restore suspended animation? I think they were not; as he must have been dead some time; and consequently while Elisha made use of them, he was looking to God by prayer and faith, to restore the life of this child, which at length was done. This was a striking miracle.

people, that they may eat. And there was nothing hurtful in the pot.
 42 And there came a man from Baal-shalisha, and brought the man of God bread of the first fruits, twenty loaves of barley, and full green ears of corn. And he said,
 43 Give to the people that they may eat. And his servant said, What! should I set this before a hundred men? He said again, Give to the people that they may eat: for thus saith Jehovah, They shall eat, and shall 44 leave. So he set the loaves before them, and they did eat, and left, according to the word of Jehovah.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 893. Naaman being sent to the king of Israel, is cured of his leprosy; Elisha refuseth his presents; Gehazi taking them, is smitten with the leprosy.

1 Now Naaman, chief captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honourable, because by him Jehovah had given deliverance unto Syria. He was also a man of valour, but a leper.
 2 And some Syrian hordes had gone out and had brought away captive, out of the land of Israel, a little girl; and she waited on
 3 Naaman's wife. And she said to her mistress, Would to God my lord were with the prophet who is in Samaria! for he would recover him from his leprosy. And Naaman
 4 went in, and told his lord, saying, Thus and thus saith the girl who is from the land of Israel. And the king of Syria said,
 5 Depart, go thither; and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed, and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand shekels of gold, and ten changes
 6 of raiment. And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, which was to this purport: When this letter cometh to thee, thou must recover from his leprosy Naaman, my servant; behold, I have sent him with it.
 7 And when the king of Israel had read the letter, he rent his clothes, and said, Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man sendeth to me to recover a man from his leprosy? Consider, now, I pray you, and see how he seeketh an occasion of quarrelling with me.

43. Before a hundred men] From this we collect that the loaves were small, most probably only like our rolls.

CHAP. V. 4. And Naaman went] The connexion of this with the following verse renders it clear that Naaman should be supplied as understood in the text; for it may easily be supposed that his wife would inform him what the girl said. So the Vulg. Dathe, and others.

6. Thou must recover] This letter alarmed the king of Israel, and he considered it as only a pretext to undertake war against him. Indeed there was no such power with him. The prophet could do what the king could not.

10—12. The remedy prescribed seemed, to Naaman, inadequate to produce the effect, and his pride was wounded that the prophet should not so much as come out to him.

14. Seven times] There is a marked respect to this

But when Elisha, the man of God, heard 8 that the king of Israel had rent his garments, he sent to the king, saying, Why hast thou rent thy garments? Let now Naaman come to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel. So Naaman came with 9 his horses and with his chariot, and waited at the door of the house of Elisha. And 10 Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, Go and wash, seven times, in the Jordan, and thy flesh shall be restored to thee, and thou shalt be clean. But Naaman was wroth, 11 and went away, and said, Behold, I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of Jehovah, his God, and touch with his hand the place; and remove the leprosy. Are not Abana and 12 Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage. But one of his servants 13 came near, and spoke to him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing wouldst thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean? Then he went down, 14 and washed himself seven times in the Jordan, according to the word of the man of God: and his flesh was restored like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean.

And he returned, with all his attendants, 15 to the man of God, and went and stood before him: and he said, Behold, now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel: now, therefore, I pray thee, receive a present from thy servant. But he 16 said, As Jehovah liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none. And he urged him to receive it; but he refused. And 17 Naaman said, Let there, I pray thee, be given to thy servant, two mules' burden of earth; for thy servant will henceforth offer neither burnt-offering nor sacrifice to other gods, but to Jehovah. In this one thing 18 Jehovah pardon thy servant: When my master goeth into the temple of Rimmon to worship there, and he leaneth on my hand, and I bow myself in the temple of Rimmon; when I bow myself in the temple of Rimmon, will Jehovah pardon thy ser-number throughout the scriptures, originally derived, I think, from the number of days in which God made the world. The verbs וָרַחַץ and טָבַל are used here as synonyms.

15. Receive a present] Literally, 'blessing;' but the word in this connexion obviously has the sense given. Compare Gen. xxxiii. 11. The prophet permitted Naaman to approach him when he had complied with his direction and received a cure.

18. When I bow myself] Our Dr. Lightfoot and others would render in the past tense, and make this a confession of his idolatry, and a prayer that he might receive forgiveness. In answer, he is remarked, first, that all the ancient versions render as our common version. Secondly, this version is most agreeable to the text, the words naturally 19 vant in this thing? And he said to him, Go in peace.

20 He had departed from him but a little way, when Gehazi, the servant of Elisha, the man of God, said, Behold, my master hath spared that Syrian, Naaman, by not receiving from him what he brought; but, as Jehovah liveth, I will run after him, and get something from him. So Gehazi followed Naaman. And when Naaman saw him running after him, he lighted down from the chariot to meet him, and said, 22 Is all well? And he said, All is well. My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, there are now come to me, from mount Ephraim, two young men of the sons of the prophets: give them, I pray thee, a talent of silver, and two changes of garments. And Naaman said, Be pleased to accept two talents. And he urged him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants; and they bore them before him. But when he came to the barriers, he took them from their hand, and stowed them in a house; and he let the men go, and they departed.

25 And he went in, and stood before his master. And Elisha said to him, Whence comest thou, Gehazi? And he said, Thy servant hath been no where. And he said to him,

26 Went not I, in mind, with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee; at the time that thou receivedst the silver? So thou mayest purchase garments, and oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and men servants, and maid

27 servants; But the leprosy of Naaman shall cleave to thee and to thy seed for ever. And he went out from his presence a leper, white as snow.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 893. Elisha causeth iron to swim; he discloseth the king of Syria's counsel, and at his request the Syrian army is smitten with blindness.

1 AND the sons of the prophets said to Elisha, Behold now, the place where we suggesting it;—and thirdly, Naaman proposes a case, which must happen in the discharge of his duty. It appears to have been his duty, as chief commander, to attend the king, when he went to worship; and when he did this, he asks, 'Will Jehovah pardon him?' Is such an act to be regarded as sinful, and inconsistent with the worship which Jehovah requires? If the act be considered in a civil light, he might bend in respect to the king, without regarding the idol.

22. My master hath sent] How easily can a man invent falsehoods, to promote his own interest!

24. To the barriers] The sense of the word מִצְדֵּי is doubtful. The Greek and Vulg. render, in the dark; others, in a secret place; and some, to an elevated place. I adopt, with Dathe and others, this sense; and suppose that the earth raised as a mound to the walls of the city is meant.

26. Went not I, in mind] Jehovah had suggested to the prophet's mind the whole transaction of his covetous and wicked servant.

dwell with thee is too strait for us. Let us go, we pray thee, unto the Jordan, and take thence every man a beam, and let us make for ourselves a place there, where we may dwell. And he answered, Go ye. And one said, Be pleased, I pray thee, to go with thy servants. And he answered, I will go. So he went with them. And when they came to the Jordan, they cut down wood. But as one was felling a beam, the axe-head fell into the water; and he cried, and said, Alas, master! for it was borrowed. And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he showed him the place. And he cut down a stick, and cast it in thither; and caused the iron to swim. He then said, Take it up to thee. And he put out his hand, and took it.

Then the king of Syria made war against Israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying, In such and such a place, I will lie in wait. And the man of God sent to the king of Israel, saying, Beware that thou pass not such a place; for there the Syrians lie in wait. And the king of Israel sent to the place which the man of God told him and warned him of; and he was thus, not once, nor twice, saved from the ambush laid there. And the mind of the king of Syria was much troubled on account of this thing; and he called his servants, and said to them, Will ye not tell me who betrays us to the king of Israel? And one of his servants said, None, my lord, O king; but Elisha, the prophet, who is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel the words which thou speakest in thy bed chamber.

And he said, Go and spy where he is, that I may send and fetch him. And it was told him, saying, Behold, he is in Dothan. Therefore sent he thither horses, and chariots, and a great host; and they came by night, and encompassed the city. And when the servant of the man of God had risen early, and gone forth, behold, a host with horses and chariots encompassed the city. And his servant said to him, Alas, my master! what shall we do? And he answered, CHAP. VI. 2. Unto the Jordan] This school of the prophets seems to have been at Jericho or at Gilgal, both which places were not far from the Jordan. The banks of the Jordan were anciently covered with wood, as, in some places, they still are.

8, 9. Lie in wait] I have followed Houbigant in this version; and the whole narrative supports it. Dathe renders to the same purpose.

12. Elisha the prophet] The cure of Naaman must have spread the fame of Elisha among the Syrians; and it is probable, that some might be induced to inquire more particularly concerning his miracles, and thence infer that he detected their schemes.

13. Dothan] A city not very far from Samaria. Gen. xxxvii. 17. The king resolved that he would surprise and carry off the prophet; as if the God who, by him, had defeated his past stratagems, could not defeat his present one.

Fear not; for they that are with us are more 17 than they that are with them. And Elisha prayed, and said, O Jehovah, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And Jehovah opened the eyes of the young man;
and he saw: and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round 18 about Elisha. And when they came down towards him, Elisha prayed to Jehovah, and said, Smite this people, I pray thee, with blindness. And he smote them with blindness, according to the word of Elisha.
19 And Elisha said to them, This is not the way, nor is this the city: follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom ye seek.
20 But he led them to Samaria. And when they had come into Samaria, Elisha said,
O Jehovah, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And Jehovah opened their eyes, and they saw; and, behold, they 21 were in the midst of Samaria. And the king of Israel said to Elisha, when he saw them, My father, shall I smite? shall I 22 smite? And he answered, Thou shalt not smite. Wouldst thou smite even those whom thou hast taken captive with thy sword and with thy bow? Set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go 23 to their master. And he prepared great provision for them; and when they had eaten and drank, he sent them away, and they went to their master. So the hordes of Syria, for some time, came no more into the land of Israel.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 892. The siege of Samaria; Elisha foretelleth plenty; the unbelieving lord trodden to death.

24 Now after this, Ben-hadad, king of Syria, assembled all his host, and went up, and 25 besieged Samaria. And there was a great famine in Samaria; and, behold, they besieged it, until an ass's head was sold for eighty shekels of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of vetches for five shekels of silver.
26 And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman to him,
27 saying, Help, my lord, O king, and he said,

17. Horses and chariots of fire] This appearance was designed to represent the care of Providence and the manner in which God preserved his servant.

21. Shall I smite?] The king of Israel seems eager to despatch these men; but the reply of the prophet checks him.

22. Wouldst thou] It is not usual to smite men taken captive in war, and wouldst thou smite those who are in this particular manner brought into thy power?

25. Cab of vetches] Bochart has clearly proved that חריצים was a name given to a kind of pulse, or vetches, which abounded in Judea. The fourth part of a cab was less than a pint of our measure: and five shekels for so small a quantity proves the severity of the famine. Geddes justly observes that the common translation dove's dung is ridiculous.

27—29. Compare Deut. xxviii. 53—57.

If Jehovah do not help thee, whence can I help thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the wine-press? And the king said to her, 28
What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said to me, Give thy son that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow. So we boiled my son, and ate 29 him; and I said to her on the next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him: and she hath hid her son.

And when the king heard the words of the 30 woman, he rent his garments; and he passed by upon the wall, and the people looked;
and, behold, he had sackcloth within upon his body. Then he said, God do so and 31 more also to me, if the head of Elisha, the son of Shaphat, shall stand on him this day.
Elisha was then sitting in his own house, 32 and the elders sitting with him; and the king sent a man, one of his own attendants:
but ere the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, Know ye not that this son of a murderer hath sent to take off my head?
Observe, when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door: is not the sound of his master's feet behind him? And while he was yet talking with 33 them, the messenger came, and the king who had followed him, and he said, Behold, this evil is from Jehovah, what can I any more expect from Jehovah? Then Elisha said, 1
Hear ye the word of Jehovah; Thus saith Jehovah, To-morrow about this time shall a seah of fine flour be sold for a shekel,
and two seahs of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria. Then a lord, on whose 2 hand the king leaned, answered the man of God, and said, Behold, were Jehovah to make windows in the heavens, this thing might be? And he said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat of it.

Now there were four leprous men at the 3 entrance of the gate: and they said one to another, Why should we sit here until we die? If we say, we will enter into the city, 4 then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we abide here, we die also.

31. Shall stand on him] Had Elisha encouraged the king to hold out by promises of deliverance? The context seems to require this; and the king falls into a rage because this deliverance was delayed; as if the delay was owing to the prophet.

32. Son of a murderer] Ahab had been guilty of shedding innocent blood, and especially the blood of Naboth.
Joram seems to have repented of his rash oath, and to have followed the messenger to prevent the execution of the prophet.

33. The close of the 32d verse makes it evident that the king followed the messenger; and the 17th and 18th verses of chap. vii. lead us to believe that it was the king who addressed the prophet, and to whom Elisha spoke, as well as to others.

CHAP. VII. 1. A seah] Somewhat more than a peck.

Now, therefore, come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians; if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die. And they rose up in the twilight, to go to the camp of the Syrians: and when they had come to the outermost part of the camp of the Syrians, behold there was no man there. For 'Jehovah' had made the host of the Syrians to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, the noise of a great host: and they said one to another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired against us the kings of the Hethites, and the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us. Wherefore they arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents, and their horses, and their asses, even the camp, as it was, and fled for their life. And when these lepers came to the outermost part of the camp, they went in to one tent, and ate and drank, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and hid it; and they came again, and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it. They then said one to another, We do not well; this day, being a day of good tidings, and we are silent: and should we delay till the morning light, we shall meet with the punishment of our guilt: come now, and let us go and tell the king's household. So they came and called to the gate keepers of the city; and they told them saying, We went to the camp of the Syrians, and, behold, neither man, nor the voice of man, was there, but horses tied, and asses tied, and the tents as they were. And the gate-keepers proclaimed this within, and told it to the king's household.

And the king arose in the night, and said to his servants, I will now show you what the Syrians intend to do to us. They know that we are famished; they are, therefore, gone out of the camp, to hide themselves in the field, saying, When they come out of the city, we may seize them alive, and so get into the city. And one of his servants answered and said, Let some take, I pray thee, two of the five horses which remain, (for, behold, they only remained, of all the multitude which were in Israel, unsummed,) and let us send and see. They took, therefore, two horsemen; and the king sent after the host of the Syrians, saying, Go and see. And they went after them to the Jordan; and, lo, all the way was full of garments and utensils, which the Syrians had cast away in their haste. And the messengers returned, and told the king. And the people went out, and spoiled the tents of the Syrians. So a seah of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel, according to the word of Jehovah.

And the king appointed the lord, on whose hand he leaned, to have the charge of the gate; and the people trod him down in the gate, and he died, as the man of God had said, who spoke when the king came down to him. And it came to pass as the man of God had spoken to the king, saying, Two seahs of barley for a shekel, and a seah of fine flour for a shekel, shall be sold, to-morrow, about this time, in the gate of Samaria. And that lord answered the man of God, and said, Now, behold, were Jehovah to make windows in the heavens, such a thing might be? And he said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat of it. And so it fell out unto him; for the people trod him down in the gate, and he died.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 891. The Shunemite hath her land restored; Ben-hadad dies, and Hazael succeedeth him; Jehoram's wicked reign, and death.

Before this period, Elisha had spoken to the woman, whose son he had restored to life, saying, Arise, and go, thou and thine household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst sojourn: for Jehovah hath called for a famine; yea, a famine of seven years is coming on the land. And the woman arose, and did according to the word of the man of God: and she went with her household, and sojourned seven years in the land of the Philistines. Now at the end of the seven years, the woman returned out of the land of the Philistines: and she went to implore the king to restore her house and her land. The king was then talking with Gehazi, the servant of the man of God, saying, Tell me, I pray thee, all the great things that Elisha hath done. And as he was telling the king how he had restored a dead body to life, behold the woman, whose son he had restored to life, came to implore the king to restore her house and her land.

6. The kings of the Egyptians] We find only the king of Egypt mentioned in other places, and it is probable that some scribe, having written מלכ before, repeated it, without considering that it could not be proper. (v) MSS. King.

13. Two of the five horses] For the text adopted, and the reasons, the learned reader may consult the note on the passage in my Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Before this period] Compare chap. iv. 38.—A famine of seven] Did the siege of Samaria occur about this period? This will account for its great severity; as no sufficient quantity of provisions could be stored up, and as the Syrians, by foraging, &c. would only increase it. Geddes contends that it happened before.

4. The king was then talking with Gehazi] This too seems a proof that the transaction happened at a prior period: while Gehazi was yet the attendant of Elisha; and before his leprosy. For it is not probable that the king of Israel would converse so familiarly with a leper. Our interpreters, to solve the difficulty, make him speak to him at a distance.

And Gehazi said, My lord, O king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom 6 Elisha restored to life. And the king asked the woman, and she told him. So the king appointed for her a certain officer, saying, Restore all that was hers, and the whole produce of the field, since the day that she left the land, even until now.
 7 And Elisha went to Damascus; and Ben-hadad, the king of Syria, was sick; and it was told him, saying, The man of God is come hither. And the king said to Hazael,
 8 Take a present in thy hand, and go, meet the man of God, and inquire of Jehovah by him, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?
 9 So Hazael went to meet him, and took a present with him, even of every good thing of Damascus, forty camels' burden, and came and stood before him, and said, Thy son Ben-hadad, king of Syria, hath sent me to thee, saying, Shall I recover of this disease? And Elisha said to him, Go, say to him, Thou mayest certainly recover: yet Jehovah hath showed me that he shall surely 10 die. Then having looked him in the face, steadfastly, and long, the man of God wept.
 11 And Hazael said, Why weepeth my lord? And he answered, Because I know the evil which thou wilt do unto the Israelites. Their strong holds wilt thou set on fire; and their young men thou wilt slay with the sword; and their children thou wilt dash in pieces; and rip up their women
 12 with child. And Hazael said, For what is thy servant, a dog only, that he should do this great thing? And Elisha answered, Jehovah hath showed me that thou shalt be 13 king over Syria. So he departed from Elisha, and went to his master; who said to him, What said Elisha to thee? And he answered, He told me that thou mayest as-surely recover. But it happened on the 15 morrow, that he took a fly-net, and dipped it in water, and spread it on his face, and he died: and Hazael reigned in his stead.

And in the fifth year of Joram, the son 16 of Ahab, king of Israel, Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, began to reign. Thirty-two years old was he when 17 he began to reign; and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And he walked in the 18 ways of the kings of Israel, and did like the house of Ahab; for the daughter of Ahab was his wife. But, although he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, Yet Jehovah would 19 not destroy Judah for David his servant's sake, as he had promised him both to give to him and to his children a lamp always.

In his days Edom revolted from under 20 the hand of Judah, and made a king over themselves. So Jehoram went over to Zair, 21 and all the chariots with him; and he rose by night, and smote the Edomites who had encompassed him, and the captains of the chariots: and the people fled to their own homes. Yet Edom revolted from under 22 the hand of Judah unto this day; and at the same time Libnah revolted. And the 23 rest of the acts of Jehoram, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And Jehoram slept with his 24 fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David: and Ahaziah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 884. The reign of Ahaziah, and the conspiracy of Jehu against the king of Israel.

In the twelfth year of Joram, the son of 25 Ahab, king of Israel, did Ahaziah, the son of Jehoram, king of Judah, begin to reign. Two and twenty years old was Ahaziah, 26

6. Restore all that was hers] Restore the land, and pay the worth of its produce, deducting the expense of cultivation.

7—9. The cure of Naaman, and the many other proofs which the Syrians had of the power of Jehovah, made them respect his prophet, and on his visiting Damascus, the sick king is desirous to learn from him what would be the event of his complaint.

10. Go, say to him] All the versions follow the Keri, לך, in this passage. The text has the negative, 'Thou shalt not recover.' Many MSS. follow the Keri; and I consider it the true reading—First, because Hazael reports this to be the answer of the prophet, ver. 14; and secondly, because there appears to be a designed opposition between what might be and what would in fact be the event of the complaint. The disease was not in its own nature mortal, so that he might recover; but through the means improperly used, or through the violence of Hazael, death would be the consequence.

11. Steadfastly and long] I derive the word from שׁוּב, and so both the Chaldee and Arabic derived it. The common version, deriving from שׁוּב, is here improper. For why should the prophet be ashamed?

13. A dog only] That is, how can I, who am a man of low condition, do such great things? The common version, which makes Hazael speak as if he were offended that the prophet should think him capable of such inhumanity and barbarous deeds, is inconsistent with the close of the verse. If this had been the sense, how could he style it this great thing? The version given, is that of the best modern translators. The answer of the prophet supports this view of the passage, as it shows how he was to do these great things; not as a private individual, but as a king.

14. He told me] Hazael only reports the first part of Elisha's answer: but studiously conceals the second; not to offend his master.

15. That he took a fly-net] In the holy scriptures, the very ambiguity of the original should be regarded. Now there is nothing said which makes it clear that Hazael took the fly-net; on the other hand, the text rather suggests that the king did this himself. And if his complaint was a fever, he might adopt this as a speedy remedy, but which stopping the perspiration, occasioned his death. According to Josephus, this king was greatly beloved by his subjects; and if Hazael had murdered him, would he have been raised to the throne? We are not informed that Ben-hadad had any children; and Hazael might succeed him by the choice of the people.

16. The words omitted, Jehoshaphat being then king of Judah, are inconsistent with the account given in 2 Chron. xxi. 1. Jehoram did not begin his reign before his father died. (c) Syr. MSS.

when he began to reign; and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Athaliah, the granddaughter of 27 Omri, king of Israel. And he walked in the way of the house of Ahab, and did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, like the house of Ahab: for he was related to the house of Ahab.
28 And he went with Joram, the son of Ahab, to war against Hazael, king of Syria, at Ramoth-gilead; and the Syrians wounded
29 Joram. And king Joram went back to be healed in Jezreel, of the wounds which he had received from the Syrians, at Ramoth, when he fought against Hazael, king of Syria. And Ahaziah, the son of Jehoram, king of Judah, went down to see Joram, the son of Ahab, in Jezreel, because he was sick.
1 And Elisha, the prophet, called one of the sons of the prophets, and said to him, Gird up thy loins, and take this vial of oil in thy
2 hand, and go to Ramoth-gilead: And when thou comest thither, look out there for Jehu, the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi; and go in, and call him from among his brethren, and bring him into an inner-chamber; Then take the vial of oil, and pour it upon his head, and say, Thus saith Jehovah, I anoint thee king over Israel. Then open the door, and flee, and tarry not.
4 So the young man, the young prophet,
5 went to Ramoth-gilead. And when he came, behold, the captains of the host were sitting; and he said, I have a message to thee, O captain. And Jehu said, To which among us all? and he said, To thee, O captain. And he arose, and went into the house: and the young prophet poured the oil on his head, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, I anoint thee king over the people of Jehovah, over
7 Israel. And thou shalt smite the house of Ahab, thy master, that I may avenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of Jehovah, at the hand of Jezebel. For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; and I will cut off every male from Ahab, whether bond or free, in 9 Israel; And I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha, the son of 10 Ahijah: And the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the field of Jezreel; no one shall bury her. And he opened the door and fled.

Then Jehu came forth to the servants of 11 his lord: and one said to him, Is all well? why came this madman to thee? And he said to them, Ye know the man, and his conversation. And they said, False; tell us 12 now. And he said, Thus and thus spoke he to me, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, I anoint thee king over Israel. They then 13 hastily took every man his garment, and put them under him, on the top of the stairs, and blew with trumpets, saying, Jehu is king. So Jehu, the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of 14 Nimshi, conspired against Joram. Now Joram and all Israel had defended Ramoth-gilead against Hazael, king of Syria; But 15 king Joram had returned to Jezreel, to be healed of the wounds which he had received from the Syrians, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Jehu said, If it be your mind, let no one escape out of the city to go to tell this to Jezreel. Then Jehu 16 rode in a chariot, and went to Jezreel; for Joram lay there. And Ahaziah, king of Judah, had come down to see Joram, And 17 the watchman, who stood on the tower of Jezreel, spied the company of Jehu as he came, and said, I see a company. And Joram said, Take a horseman, and send to meet them, and let him say, Come ye in peace? So there went one on horseback to 18 meet him, and said, Thus saith the king, Come ye in peace? And Jehu said, What hast thou to do with peace? turn thou behind me. And the watchman told, saying, The messenger came to them, but returneth not. Then he sent out a second on horse- 19 back, who came to them, and said, Thus saith the king, Come ye in peace? And Jehu answered, What hast thou to do with peace? turn thou behind me. And the 20 watchman told, saying, He came also unto them, but returneth not: and the driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Nimshi; for he driveth with speed. And Joram said, 21 make ready. And his chariot was made ready. And Joram, king of Israel, and Ahaziah, king of Judah, went out, each in his chariot; and they went out against Jehu, and met him in the field of Naboth, the Jezreelite. And when Joram saw Jehu, 22 he said, Comest thou in peace, Jehu? And he answered, How in peace, while the idolatries and sorceries of thy mother Jezebel are so many? Joram then turned his hands 23

26. Granddaughter] Omri was the father of Ahab; and in the 18th verse we are expressly told, that his mother was the daughter of Ahab. So the margin renders the text.

CHAP. IX. 1. Go to Ramoth-gilead] From this, it appears that the army of Israel abode at Ramoth, after the battle with the Syrians.

11. This madman] The young prophet is thus described; perhaps, both from his habit, and the vehement manner in which he might be agitated, when about to deliver the message of Jehovah.

13. Hastily took every] They must have been ready for this revolt before. Indeed, the conduct of the house of Ahab was sufficient to rouse all against them.

13—20. This revolt of the army was unknown to the king, until their approach to Jezreel discovered it. The watchman at length discovered that the driving of marching was like that of Jehu.

and fled, and said to Ahaziah, Treason, O 24 Ahaziah. But Jehu drew a bow with his full strength, and smote Joram between his shoulders; and the arrow went through his heart, and he sunk down in his chariot.
 Then said Jehu to Bidkar, his captain, 25 Take him up and cast him into a part of the field of Naboth, the Jezreelite: for I remember how, that when I and thou rode together after Ahab, his father, Jehovah 26 laid this burden upon him, saying, As surely (saith Jehovah) as I saw yesterday the blood of Naboth, and the blood of his sons, so I will requite thee in this field, saith Jehovah. Now, therefore, take him up, and cast him into that field, according to the word of Jehovah.
 27 But when Ahaziah, the king of Judah, saw this, he fled by the way of the garden-house. But Jehu followed him, and said, Smite him also in the chariot, "And they smote him in the chariot," at the ascent to Gur, which is by Ibleam. And he fled to 28 Megiddo, and died there. And his servants carried him in a chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre, with his 29 fathers, in the city of David. And in the eleventh year of Joram, the son of Ahab, Ahaziah became king over Judah.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 884. Jezebel dashed to pieces; seventy of Ahab's sons slain; worshippers of Baal slain.

30 Now when Jehu had come to Jezreel,
 Jezebel heard; and she painted her eyebrows, and attired her head, and looked out 31 at a window. And as Jehu entered at the gate, she said, Had Zimri peace, who slew 32 his master? But he turned up his face towards the window, and said, Who, who is on my side? And there looked out to him 33 two or three eunuchs. And he said, Throw her down. So they threw her down: and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses, which trod upon her.
 34 And he went into the palace, and ate and drank; and he then said, Go, look for this accursed woman, and bury her: for she was 35 a king's daughter. And they went to bury her; but they found no more of her than the skull, and the feet, and the palms of her 36 hands. So they returned and told him.
 And he said, This is the word of Jehovah, which he spoke by his servant Elijah, the Tishbite, saying, In the district of Jezreel shall dogs eat the flesh of Jezebel; And 37

 the carcass of Jezebel shall be as dung upon the face of the field in the district of Jezreel;
 so that they shall not say, This is Jezebel.

Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. 1
 And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria, unto the rulers of the "city," to the elders, and to those who brought up Ahab's children, saying, As soon as this letter cometh 2 to you, seeing your master's sons are with you, and there are with you chariots and horses, a fenced city also, and armour:
 Look out even the best and fittest of your 3 master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house.
 But they were exceedingly afraid, and said, 4
 Behold, two kings stood not before him:
 how then shall we stand? And he that was 5 over the house, and he that was over the city, the elders also, and those who brought up the sons of Ahab, sent to Jehu, saying, We are thy servants, and will do all that thou shalt bid us; we will not make any man king: do thou what is good in thine eyes.
 He then wrote to them a second letter, say- 6
 ing, If ye be for me, and will hearken to my voice, take off the heads of your master's sons, and come to me to Jezreel, by this time to-morrow. Now the king's sons, seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, who had brought them up. And 7 when the letter came to them, they took the king's sons, and slew them, seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent them to him, to Jezreel.

And there came a messenger, and told 8 him, saying, They have brought the heads of the king's sons. And he said, Lay them in two heaps, at the entrance of the gate, until the morning. And when the morning 9 came, he went out, and stood, and said to all the people, Ye are righteous: behold, I conspired against my master, and slew him:
 but who hath slain all these? Now, know, 10 that nothing of the word of Jehovah, which he spoke concerning the house of Ahab, shall fall to the ground; for Jehovah will do what he spoke by his servant Elijah. Jehu 11 then slew all that remained of the house of Ahab, in Jezreel, and all his great men and

30. Painted her eye-brows] This custom is noticed in Jer. iv. 30, and continues in the east to this day. They stain the eye-lids with a black powder, or plumbago. Did this woman attire herself to allure Jehu? If this was her purpose, she miserably failed.

33. Which trod upon her] I am convinced that this is the sense of the text, and not that Jehu dismounted to insult this fallen princess by treading her under his feet.

35. They found no more of her] The dogs, which abound in the east, and live by what they can find in the streets, had devoured the chief parts of the body. Compare 1 Kings all cut off.

his intimate friends, and his priests, until he left to him none remaining.

12 And he arose and departed, and was going to Samaria; but at the shearing-house on the way, Jehu met with the brethren of Ahaziah, king of Judah, and said, Who are ye? And they answered, We are the brethren of Ahaziah; and we are going down to salute the children of the king, and the children of the queen of Israel. And he said, Take them alive. And they took them alive, and slew them at the pit of the shearing-house, forty-two men; neither left he any of them.

15 And when he had departed thence, he met Jonadab, the son of Rechab: and he saluted him, and said to him, Is thy heart as right 'with my heart,' as my heart is with thy heart? And Jonadab answered, It is. If it be, give, said Jehu, to me thy hand. And he gave him his hand; and he took him up to him into the chariot. And he said, Come with me and see my zeal for Jehovah. So he made him ride in his chariot. And when he came to Samaria, he slew all that remained unto Ahab, in Samaria, till he had destroyed him, according to the word of Jehovah, which he spoke by Elijah.

18 And Jehu assembled all the people, and said to them, Ahab served Baal a little; but Jehu will serve him much. Now, therefore, call unto me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests; let none be wanting: for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal; whosoever shall be wanting shall not live. But Jehu did this in subtilty, to the intent that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal. And Jehu said, Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal. And they proclaimed it. And Jehu sent through all Israel: and all the worshippers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left that came not. And they came into the temple of Baal; and the temple of Baal was full from end to end to the other. And he said to him who was over the vestry, Bring forth vestments for all the worshippers of Baal. And he brought them forth vestments. And Jehu went, and Jonadab, the son of Rechab, into the temple of Baal, and said to the worshippers of Baal, Search, and see that there be here with you none of the servants of Jehovah, but the worshippers of Baal only. And when they went in to offer 24 sacrifices and burnt-offerings, Jehu appointed eighty men without, and said, The man who letteth escape one of these men, whom I have brought into your hands, his own life shall go for his. And as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt-offering, Jehu said to the guard and to the captains, Go in, and slay them; let none come forth. And they smote them with the edge of the sword; and the guard and the captains cast them out. They then went into the inner-sanctuary of the temple of Baal; And they brought the statues out of the temple of Baal, and burned them. And having destroyed the statues of Baal, they demolished the temple of Baal, and made it into dung-houses, which continue unto this day. Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel.

Nevertheless, from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin, by erecting the golden calves at Bethel and at Dan, from them Jehu departed not. And yet Jehovah said to Jehu, Because thou hast done well in executing what is right in mine eyes, and hast done to the house of Ahab according to all that was in my heart, thy children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel. But Jehu took no care to walk with his whole heart, according to the law of Jehovah, the God of Israel; nor departed from the sins of Jeroboam, who caused Israel to sin. In those days Jehovah began to cut off Israel: for Hazael smote them in all the districts of Israel; From the Jordan eastward; the whole land of Gilead; the Gadites, and the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon; even Gilead and Bashan.

Now the rest of the acts of Jehu, and all that he did, and all his might, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Jehu slept with his fathers: and they buried him in Samaria. And Jehoahaz, his son, reigned in his stead. And the time that Jehu reigned over Israel, in Samaria, was twenty-eight years.

AND when Athaliah, the mother of Ahaziah, saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed royal. But Jeho-

12-14. Jehu thus treated the relatives of Ahaziah, as being connected with the house of Ahab. They had not heard, it seems, of the revolution which had occurred.

15. Is thy heart? That is, dost thou entertain the same regard for me as I do for thee? If thou do, give me thy hand. Pilkington observes, that he requested him to give him his hand, as an assurance that he would assist him in his designs. Compare Ezra x. 19. Jonadab and his posterity lived in tents, and abstained from wine. Compare Jer. xxxv. 6, &c. (a) Sept.

22. Over the vestry. That is, the room in which the vestments were placed.

26. Inner sanctuary. I have so rendered after Dathe, from the Arabic sense of عز, in which language it signifies a cave, a retired place. The whole context proves this to be the meaning. What sense is there in the city of the house?

CHAP. XI. 1. She arose and destroyed. She must have obtained great influence in the government during her son's reign; and hence the troops were ready to obey her orders sheba, the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took Joash, the son of Ahaziah, (whom she had stolen from among the king's sons, who were slain;) and she "put him" and his nurse in a bed-chamber of the temple; and hid him from Athaliah, so that he was not slain. And he was hid with her, in the house of Jehovah, six years. And Athaliah reigned over the land.

4 But in the seventh year, Jehoiada sent to collect the rulers over hundreds, with the captains and the guard, and brought them to him into the house of Jehovah, and made a league with them, and took an oath of them, in the house of Jehovah. He then showed them the king's son; And he commanded them, saying, This is the thing that ye shall do; Let a third part of those of you who come in on the sabbath, be keepers of the king's apartment; And let another third part be at the gate of Sur; and a third part at the gate behind the guard. Thus shall ye guard securely the house, that it be not broken into. And two parts of all those of you, who go out on the sabbath, even they shall keep guard about the king, in the house of Jehovah. And ye shall surround the king, every man with his weapons in his hand; and he that cometh within the ranges, let him be slain: and be ye with the king as he goeth out and as he cometh in. And the captains over the hundreds did according to all that Jehoiada, the priest, commanded: and they took each his own men, who were to come in on the sabbath, with those who were to go out on the sabbath, and came to Jehoiada, the priest.

10 And to the captains over hundreds did the priest give king David's spears and shields, which were in the temple of Jehovah. And the guard stood, every man with his own weapons in his hand, from the right corner of the temple, to the left corner of the temple, along by the altar, to the king's apartment. And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and the regal ornaments: and they made him king, and anointed him; and they clapped their hands, and said, Long live the king.

on the present occasion. Being of the house of Ahab, she did this, probably, out of revenge, and to secure herself from Jehu and others; but particularly to maintain the cause of idolatry.

2. (a) 2 Chron. xxii. 11.

5. Of those of you who come in The Levites had their turns, or courses, in the service of the temple; so that a certain number went out every sabbath, to make room for another course. Jehoiada, having gained over the centurions and guards, or at least some of them, to his party, and having all the Levites at his command, took occasion of that time when the courses were to be changed, at day-break, to arm both those that were coming out, and those that were coming in; and thus effected the revolution he had so wisely planned.

6. The gate of Sur Supposed to be the eastern gate;

Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she came to the people, into the temple of Jehovah. And she 14 looked, and behold, the king stood on the tribunal, as the manner was, and by the king the singers and the trumpeters; and all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew with trumpets; and Athaliah rent her clothes and cried, Treason, Treason. But Jehoiada, 15 the priest, commanded the captains of hundreds, the officers of the host, and said to them, Take her forth without the ranges; and him that followeth her kill with the sword. For the priest had said, Let her not be slain in the house of Jehovah. And they 16 laid hands on her; and when she had come to the horse-gate-way of the palace, she was there put to death.

And Jehoiada made a covenant between 17 Jehovah, and the king, and the people, that they should be Jehovah's people; also between the king and the people. And all 18 the people of the land went into the temple of Baal and demolished it, its altars and its statues they broke all in pieces, and they slew Mattan, the priest of Baal, before the altars. Jehoiada, the priest, then appointed officers over the house of Jehovah. And he 19 took the rulers over hundreds, and the captains, and the guard, and all the people of the land; and they brought down the king from the house of Jehovah, and went by the way of the guard-gate to the palace; and he sat on the royal throne. And all the 20 people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet, although they had slain Athaliah, with the sword, near the king's palace.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 878. Joash reigneth well, while Jehoiada liveth; but afterwards he apostatized, and was slain by his own servants.

SEVEN years old was Joash when he 1 began to reign; and in the seventh year of the reign of Jehu, Joash began to reign, and forty years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. And Joash did what was right 2 in the eyes of Jehovah, as long as Jehoiada, the priest, instructed him. But the high- 3 while that behind the guard-house is thought to be the south gate, or that next to the palace.

10. David's spears and shields The people were in general without arms; but the high priest had some within the temple, which at the present crisis were found of the greatest utility.

12. The crown Parkhurst observes, that our version here is not accurate. The term כִּרְיָה means some part of the regalia, which was put on as well as the crown; for in the text the same verb has respect to both nouns.

14. Stood on the tribunal This was a sort of rostrum, erected by Solomon, five cubits square and three cubits high; where he, and probably his successors, were seated during the divine service. See 1 Chron. vi. 13. The king, I conceive, stood up, that the whole people might behold him. On this tribunal Solomon both stood and kneeled.

places were not removed: the people still sacrificed and burnt incense on the high-places.

- 4 And Joash said to the priests, all the hallowed money which is brought into the house of Jehovah, the money of every one numbered, the ransom money which every one is to pay, besides the money which any one chooseth to bring into the house of Jehovah,
- 5 Let the priests collect, every man of his acquaintance: and let them repair the breaches of the house, wheresoever any breach may be found. But so it was that in the twenty-third year of the reign of king Joash, the priests had not repaired the
- 7 breaches of the house. King Joash, therefore, called for Jehoiada, the priest, and the other priests, and said to them, Why repair ye not the breaches of the house? Ye shall not, therefore, receive any money of your acquaintance, but ye shall deliver it up for the repairing of the breaches of the house.
- 8 And the priests consented to receive no more money of the people, nor to repair the
- 9 breaches of the house. But Jehoiada, the priest, took a chest, and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it beside the altar, on the right side as one cometh into the house of Jehovah, and the priests who kept the door put therein all the money which was
- 10 brought into the house of Jehovah. And when they saw that there was much money in the chest, the king's scribe and the high-priest came up, and counted the money which was found in the house of Jehovah,
- 11 and put it in bags. And they gave the money, being told, into the hands of those who did the work, who had the inspection of the house of Jehovah; and they expended it by wages to the carpenters and builders, who did the work of the house of Jehovah;
- 12 And to masons, and stone-hewers; and in buying timber and hewed-stones to repair the breaches of the house of Jehovah, and for whatever was laid out for repairing the
- 13 house. Yet they made not for the house of Jehovah, either silver bowls, or knives, or sprinkling-basins, or trumpets, or any other utensils of gold or silver, of the money which was brought into the house of Jehovah; But they gave it to the workmen, and 14 repaired with it the house of Jehovah. Moreover they reckoned not with the men, 15 into whose hands they delivered the money to be laid out in wages to workmen; for they acted faithfully. The trespass money and 16 sin-offering money was not brought into the house of Jehovah: it was the priests'.

Then Hazael, king of Syria, went up, and 17 fought against Gath, and took it; and Hazael set his face to go up to Jerusalem. And Joash, king of Judah, took all the hal-18 lowed things that Jehoshaphat, and Joram, and Ahaziah, his fathers, kings of Judah, had hallowed, and his own hallowed things, and all the gold which was found in the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and of his own palace, and sent them to Hazael, king of Syria; that he might go away from Jerusalem.

And the rest of the acts of Joash, and all 19 that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And his own servants 20 arose, and made a conspiracy, and slew Joash, in the house of Millo, in the descent of Silla. For Jozabad, the son of Shimeath, and Jeho-21 zabad, the son of Shimrith, his servants, smote him, that he died; and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David; and Amaziah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 856. Jehoahaz's wicked reign; Joash succeedeth him; Elisha's death, whose bones afterwards revive a dead man.

In the twenty-third year of Joash, the son 1 of Ahaziah, king of Judah, Jehoahaz, the son of Jehu, began to reign over Israel in Samaria; and he reigned seventeen years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, and 2 followed the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin; from them he departed not.

And the anger of Jehovah was kindled 3 against Israel, and he delivered them continually into the hand of Hazael, king of Syria, and into the hand of Ben-hadad, the son of Hazael. But Jehoahaz besought 4

CHAP. XII. 4. All the hallowed money] With the Syr. and Arab. I take the plural noun to be used adjectively, as is frequent: and the money hallowed was of two kinds. The first kind is the ransom money or the half shekel, which every one who was numbered, having attained the age of twenty years, was to pay. The second was money paid for redeeming what was vowed, or money freely given. Lev. xxvii. 2.

5. They were to collect money in their respective districts. Compare 2 Chron. xxiv. 5. The breaches] These were made by Athaliah. Ib. ver. 7.

6—8. In the long space of fourteen or fifteen years, the house of God had not been repaired. There appears criminal negligence on the part of the priests; or else they had not appropriated the money as directed. Others were appointed to this work, and it was at length completed.

18. The parallel place shows, that events of considerable importance are here omitted. This incursion of Hazael did not happen till after the death of Jehoiada, and the relapse of the people into idolatry.

21. Jozabad] In Chronicles, the names are Zabud, Ben-Shimeath, and Jehozabad, Ben-Shimrith: and Shimeath and Shimrith are said to have been, the former an Ammonitess, the latter a Moabitess. See 2 Chron. xxiv. 26.

CHAP. XIII. 1. In the twenty-third] Josephus has the twenty-first, which Geddes thinks the better reading.

3. Continually] Literally, all days; which some explain to mean often. The history makes it manifest, that it signifies at various times—in succession.

4. Houbigant, Dathe, and others transpose the 7th verse after this, which is evidently its proper place. Transposition of verses and even chapters have been made by copiers having omitted them in their proper place; and then finding their mistake, inserted them after.

Jehovah, and Jehovah hearkened unto him; because he saw the oppression of Israel, with which the king of Syria oppressed them.

7 For to Jehoahaz he left only of the troops, fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen; for the king of Syria had destroyed the rest, and trampled on them like dust. Jehovah, therefore, gave to Israel a saviour, so that they were rescued from under the hand of the Syrians; and the Israelites dwelt in their own tents, as

6 beforetime. Nevertheless, they departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who caused Israel to sin, but walked therein; and the

8 groves also still remained in Samaria. Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz, and all that he did, and his might, are written in the 9 chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Jehoahaz slept with his fathers; and he was buried in Samaria; and Joash, his son, reigned in his stead.

10 In the thirty-seventh year of Joash, king of Judah, began Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, to reign over Israel, in Samaria; and he

11 reigned sixteen years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah; he departed not from any of the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin: in them he walked.

14 Now Elisha had fallen sick, of the sickness of which he died. And Joash, king of Israel, went down to him, and wept over his face, and said, O my father! my father! the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen

15 thereof. And Elisha said to him, Take a bow and arrows. And he took a bow and

16 arrows. And he said to the king of Israel, Put thy hand upon the bow. And he put his hand upon it; and Elisha put his hands

17 upon the king's hands. And he said, Open the window eastward. And he opened it. Then Elisha said, Shoot. And he shot. And he said, Arrow of deliverance, by Jehovah! Arrow of deliverance from Syria! for thou shalt smite the Syrians at Aphek, till

18 thou have consumed them. And he said, Take the other arrows. And he took them. And he said to the king of Israel, Smite upon the ground. And he smote thrice,

19 and stopped. And the man of God was wroth with him, and said, Thou shouldst have smitten five or six times; then wouldst thou have smitten the Syrians, till thou hadst consumed them: whereas, now, thou shalt smite the Syrians but thrice.

And Elisha died, and they buried him. 20 And in that same year hordes of Moabites invaded the land. And it happened, that 21 as some Israelites were about to bury a man, behold, they spied the horde of Moabites; and they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elisha; and when the man was let down, and touched the bones of Elisha, he revived, and stood up on his feet.

Although Hazael, king of Syria, had 22 oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz; Yet Jehovah was gracious unto them, and 23 had compassion on them, and had respect to them, because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and he would not as yet destroy them, nor cast them from his presence. So Hazael, king of Syria, died; 24 and Ben-hadad, his son, reigned in his stead. And Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, took again 25 out of the hand of Ben-hadad, the son of Hazael, the cities which he had taken out of the hand of Jehoahaz, his father, by war. Three times did Joash beat him, and recovered the cities of Israel. 'Now the rest of 12 the acts of Joash, and all that he did, and his might, and how he fought against Amaziah, king of Judah, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Joash 13 slept with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat upon his throne: and Joash was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel.'

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 839. Amaziah's good reign; his victory over the Edomites; he is conquered by Joash, and slain by his own subjects; Uzziah succeedeth him.

In the second year of Joash, son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, Amaziah, the son of Joash, king of Judah, became king. He 2 was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. And he did what 3 was right in the eyes of Jehovah, yet not like David his fore-father: according to all which Joash, his father, did, so did he. Still 4

5. A saviour] That is, Joash, the son and successor of Jehoahaz. Compare ver. 15 and 25.

6. (o) House of] Syr. Chald. Arab. MSS.

11. He did evil] Josephus says, he was a good king, in nothing resembling his father. There is, however, no variety of reading in the text, or versions; and, if we are to credit Josephus, we must explain the evil that he did, to mean his political adherence to the worship of the calves. From what follows, he seems to have regarded the prophet Elisha. The 12th and 13th verses are transposed after the 25th, as agreeing to the order generally observed.

17. Arrow of deliverance] The prophets often predicted future events by symbolical actions. This was one, to teach Joash, that God, by him, would defeat the Syrians,

18. And he smote thrice] If the king understood the first symbolical action, as he could scarcely fail to do, he might conclude that his striking the earth with the arrows was also symbolical of the number of victories he should obtain. Did he then stop, because he thought it not possible that he should be able to vanquish so powerful an enemy? If so, his stopping was the effect of dilidence or unbelief, and accounts for the anger of the prophet.

21. They spied the horde] Alarmed for their own safety, they threw the corpse into the grave or sepulchre of the prophet. Perhaps this was at hand, and they had only some stone to remove; which might be readily done, and the body laid there till the present attack was over.

the high-places were not taken away: but as yet the people sacrificed and burnt incense on the high-places.

- 5 Now as soon as the royal power was confirmed in his hand, he slew those of his servants, who had slain the king, his father.
- 6 But the children of the murderers he slew not: according to what is written in the book of the law of Moses, in which Jehovah commanded, saying, The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin. After this he smote of Edom ten thousand men, in the valley of salt; in that war he took Selah, and called the name of it Joktheel, which it bears unto this day.
- 8 Then Amaziah sent messengers to Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, Come, let us look one another in the face. And Joash, the king of Israel, sent to Amaziah, king of Judah, saying, A thistle of Lebanon sent to a cedar of Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and a wild-beast of Lebanon passed by, and trod down the thistle. Thou hast indeed smitten Edom, and thy heart is lifted up: glory in this, but abide at home: for why wouldst thou meddle to thy hurt, so that thou shouldst fall, and Judah with thee? But Amaziah would not hearken; Joash, king of Israel, therefore, went up; and he and Amaziah, king of Judah, looked one another in the face at Bethshemesh, 12 which belonged to Judah. And Judah was smitten before Israel; and they fled every man to his own home. And Joash, king of Israel, took Amaziah, king of Judah, the son of Joash, the son of Ahaziah, at Bethshemesh, and came to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim unto the corner gate 14 four hundred cubits. And he took all the gold and silver, and all the utensils found in the house of Jehovah, and in the treasures of the palace, and hostages, and returned to 15 Samaria. Now the rest of the acts of Joash, which he did, and his might, and how he fought with Amaziah, king of Judah, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Joash slept with his fathers, 16 and was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel; and Jeroboam his son reigned in his stead.

And Amaziah, the son of Joash, king of 17 Judah, lived after the death of Joash, son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, fifteen years. And 18 the rest of the acts of Amaziah are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And 19 they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem; and he fled to Lachish; but they sent after him to Lachish, and slew him there. And they brought him on horses; 20 and he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers, in the city of David.

And all the people of Judah took 'Uz-ziah," who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amaziah. He 22 rebuilt Elath, and restored it to Judah, after the late king slept with his fathers.

In the fifteenth year of Amaziah, the son 23 of Joash, king of Judah, Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel, began to reign in Samaria; and he reigned forty-one years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah; he 24 departed not from any of the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. He recovered the territories of 25 Israel, from the entrance of Hamath, unto the Dead Sea, according to the word of Jehovah, the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant Jonah, the son of Amittai, the prophet of Gath-hepher. For Jehovah saw 26 that the affliction of Israel was very bitter; for there was none whether bond or free, not even any helper for Israel. So Jehovah 27 said that he would not blot out the name of Israel from under the heavens; and he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam, the son of Joash.

Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and 28 all that he did, and his might, how he fought, and how he recovered, for Israel, Damascus, and Hamath, (which had belonged to Judah,) are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Jeroboam slept with 29 his fathers, with the kings of Israel; and Zechariah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XIV. 5. He slew those] This was a filial duty; and a just regard to his own safety made it necessary. His strict adherence to the law, on this occasion, deserves praise. Compare Deut. xxiv. 16. and Ezek. xxviii. 4. 20.

9. A thistle of Lebanon] Nothing can be more cutting than this epilogue. Joash represents Amaziah by the thistle, himself by the cedar, and how soon he would perish like the ambitious thistle which some wild beast trod down.

15, 16. These two verses are a repetition of chap. xiii. 12, 13; yet they seem to be necessary here, as so much is said of Joash in connexion with Amaziah.

21. Uzziah] That this is the true name of this king is clear from the ancient versions. See note in Hebrew Bible. (v) Syr. Arab. and so always.

22. Elath] This place had been lost under Joram. Uzziah recovered and fortified it, after the death of his father.

25. Dead sea] Literally, 'sea of the plain;' but the former name is better understood.—His servant Jonah] The prophet sent to Nineveh. This fixes the time of his mission to the time of Joash, the father of Jeroboam the second. At the same time, or quickly after in Jeroboam's time, were also the prophets Hosea, and Joel, and Amos, as appears by their books. Isaiah in Judah, and these three in Israel, were the earliest of the sixteen prophets, and should be read the first in order.

26. For there was] Dathe gives the sense without attempting to render verbally, 'for he respected the bitter calamity of the Israelites, who, deprived of all things, had no helper.'

28. It is probable that the words to Judah have been added to the text, as the words are wanting in the Syr. and the Arab. versions.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 810. Uzziah's good reign; history of the reigns of Zechariah, and four other kings of Israel.

- 1 IN the seventeenth year of Jeroboam, king of Israel, began "Uzziah," son of Amaziah, king of Judah, to reign. Sixteen years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jecholiah of Jerusalem. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his father Amaziah at first did. Only the high-places were not removed: the people still sacrificed and burnt incense on the high-places.
- 5 And Jehovah smote the king, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and dwelt in a separate apartment. And Jotham, the king's son, was over the house, judging the people of the land. And the rest of the acts of "Uzziah," and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. "Uzziah" slept with his fathers; and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David; and Jotham, his son, reigned in his stead.
- 8 In the thirty-eighth year of "Uzziah," king of Judah, did Zechariah, the son of Jeroboam, reign over Israel, in Samaria, six months. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, as his fathers had done: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin.
- 10 And Shallum, the son of Jabesh, conspired against him, and smote him before the people, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.
- 12 "This was the word of Jehovah, which he spoke to Jehu, saying, Thy sons shall sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation. And so it came to pass." And the rest of the acts of Zechariah, behold, they are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.
- 13 Shallum, the son of Jabesh, began to reign in the thirty-ninth year of Uzziah, king of Judah; and he reigned a full month in Samaria. For Menahem, the son of Gadi, went up from Tirzah, and came to Samaria, and smote Shallum, the son of Jabesh, in Samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead. And the rest of the acts of Shallum, and the conspiracy which he made, behold, they are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. Then Menahem 16 smote Tiphshah, and all that was therein, and its territories from Tirzah; because they had not opened their gates to him: therefore, he smote it; he even smote and ripped up all the women with child.

In the thirty-ninth year of "Uzziah," king 17 of Judah, began Menahem, the son of Gadi, to reign over Israel, and he reigned ten years in Samaria. And he did evil in the 18 eyes of Jehovah: he departed not, all his days, from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. And Pul, 19 the king of Assyria, came against the land; and Menahem gave to Pul a thousand talents of silver, that through his assistance the royal power might be confirmed to him. And Menahem exacted the money of Israel, 20 of all the men of wealth, of each man fifty shekels of silver, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria returned, and did not stay there in the land. And 21 the rest of the acts of Menahem, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And Menahem slept with 22 his fathers; and Pekahiah, his son, reigned in his stead.

In the fiftieth year of "Uzziah," king of 23 Judah, Pekahiah, the son of Menahem, began to reign over Israel, in Samaria; and he reigned two years. And he did evil in 24 the eyes of Jehovah: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. But Pekah, the son 25 of Remaliah, one of his captains, conspired against him, and, with the aid of Argob and Arieah, and fifty Gileadites, smote him in Samaria, in the haram of his own palace: and he killed him, and reigned in his stead. And the rest of the acts of Pekahiah, and 26 all that he did, behold, they are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

In the two and fiftieth year of "Uzziah," 27 king of Judah, Pekah, the son of Remaliah, began to reign over Israel, in Samaria; and he reigned twenty years. And he did evil 28 in the eyes of Jehovah: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. In the days of 29 Pekah, king of Israel, came Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, and took Ijon, and Abel-

CHAP. XV. 5. Smote the king] A reign of fifty-two years is given in a few verses; but we have a more detailed account in 2 Chron. xxvi. 1, &c. His attempt to invade the priest's office, we learn, occasioned his becoming a leper. (v) Sept. Arab. and text, ver. 17. 30.

12. This was the word] The writer of this history always notices the fulfilment of God's promises or threatenings. Compare chap. x. 30.

14. Tirzah] This was for a long time the royal city in Israel. Jeroboam, in the latter part of his reign, dwelt here, and the succeeding kings, till Omri, who purchased and built Samaria. See Canticles vi. 4.

19. Pul, the king of Assyria] This is the first time the king of Assyria is mentioned as approaching Judea. This Pul is supposed to be the king who repented on the preaching of Jonah. According to Usher, he was the last king of Assyria, called by the Greeks Sardanapalus, that is, Sardan-Pul. Menahem availed himself of his assistance, to keep the power which he had acquired; though at a great expense to his subjects.

25. In the haram] For this sense of אֵימון see Michaelis's Supplement to the Hebrew Lexicon, who strongly justifies it.

29. Tiglath-pileser] Usher makes him the same as 2 c 2

beth-maachah, and Janoah, and Kadesh, and Hazor, and Gilead, and Galilee, even all the land of Naphtali, and carried them captive 30 to Assyria. And Hoshea, the son of Elah, made a conspiracy against Pekah, the son of Remaliah, and smote him, and slew him, and reigned in his stead, in the twentieth 31 year of Jotham, the son of Uzziah. And the rest of the acts of Pekah, and all that he did, behold, they are written in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.
 32 In the second year of Pekah, the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, began Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, to reign.
 33 Twenty-five years old was he when he began to reign; and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was 34 Jerusha, the daughter of Zadok. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah: he did according to all that his father Uzziah
 35 had done. Only the high-places were not removed: the people still sacrificed and burned incense on the high-places. He built the higher gate of the house of Jeho-
 36 vah. Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. In those days
 37 Jehovah began to send against Judah, Retzin, the king of Syria, and Pekah, the son 38 of Remaliah. And Jotham slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers, in the city of David his fore-father: and Ahaz, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 742. The wicked reign of Ahaz; he hireth Tiglath-pileser to assist him against Retzin, and Pekah; spoileth the temple, &c.

- 1 In the seventeenth year of Pekah, the son of Remaliah, Ahaz, the son of Jotham, king of Judah, began to reign. Twenty-five
- 2 years old was Ahaz when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem; but he did not what was right in the eyes of Jehovah his God, like David his forefather,
- 3 But walked in the way of the kings of Israel; yea, and devoted, by fire, his own son, according to the abominable custom of the nations, which Jehovah had cast out
- 4 from before the Israelites. And he sacrificed and burned incense on the high-places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

Then Retzin, king of Syria, and Pekah, 5 son of Remaliah, king of Israel, came up to war against Jerusalem: and they besieged Ahaz, but could not overcome him. At that 6 time Retzin, king of Syria, recovered Elath to 'Edom,' and drove the Jews from Elath: and the 'Edomites' came to Elath, and dwell there unto this day. But Ahaz sent 7 messengers to Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, saying, I am thy servant and thy son: come up, and save me from the hand of the king of Syria, and from the hand of the king of Israel, who have risen up against me. And Ahaz took the silver and gold, which 8 was found in the house of Jehovah, and in the treasury of the palace, and sent it for a present to the king of Assyria. And the 9 king of Assyria hearkened to him; for the king of Assyria went up against Damascus, and took it, and carried the people of it captive to Kir, and slew Retzin.

And king Ahaz went to Damascus, to 10 meet Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria; and he saw the altar which was at Damascus: and king Ahaz sent to Urijah, the priest, the form of the altar, and the pattern of it, according to all its workmanship. And 11 Urijah, the priest, built an altar according to the form which king Ahaz had sent from Damascus: so Urijah, the priest, made it against king Ahaz came from Damascus. And when the king had come from Damas- 12 cus, the king saw the altar; and the king approached the altar, and offered sacrifices thereon. And he burnt his burnt-offering, 13 and his wheaten-offering, and poured out his drink-offering, and sprinkled the blood of his feast-offerings, upon the altar. And he 14 brought also the brazen altar, which was before Jehovah, from the front of the house, from between the new altar and the house of Jehovah, and put it on the north-side of the new altar. And king Ahaz commanded 15 Urijah, the priest, saying, Upon the great altar, burn the morning burnt-offering, and the evening wheaten-offering, and the king's burnt-sacrifice, and his wheaten-offering, with Beleis, who, in connexion with Arbaces, had overturned the ancient Assyrian empire.

37. In those days] That is, after the death of Jotham, and during the reign of his son Ahaz. Compare 2 Chron. xxviii. 5, &c.

CHAP. XVI. 2. Twenty-five] A comparison of parallel places makes it evident that an error has occurred here. In the next chapter, we are informed that Hezekiah began his reign in his twenty-fifth year. His father Ahaz reigned only sixteen years, and died in his thirty-sixth. According to the text then, he must have begotten Hezekiah when only eleven years old, which is not probable. The Jews married early, and allowing the age of sixteen, the difficulty is removed. See note, Hebrew Bible. (a) Sept.

6. To Edom] This reading arises from the change of a single letter. The whole history proves that Elath was in the land of Edom, and did not belong to Syria; it was situated on the east branch of the Arabic Gulf. As to the next term, 'Edomites' are found in many MSS.

9. Hearkened to him] So as to come and subdue Damascus, but he exhausted the treasures of Judah, and distressed rather than assisted Ahaz.

10. Which was at Damascus] It was not so much the altar as the god to which it was dedicated that allured Ahaz. As he had suffered from the Syrians, this wicked king supposed that the God they worshipped must be more powerful than Jehovah. Sin first blinds and then destroys.

11. Urijah, the priest] He seems to have been the high-priest, and his compliance with the will of the king indicates his little regard, or rather contempt of the altar of Jehovah. There will always be found men who will execute the most impious commands that can possibly come from the throne.

- the burnt-offerings of all the people of the land, and their wheat-offerings, and their drink-offerings; and sprinkle upon it all the blood of the burnt-offerings, and all the blood of the sacrifices: as to the brazen altar, I will inquire what must be done.
- 16 Thus did Urijah the priest, according to all that king Ahaz commanded.
- 17 And king Ahaz cut off the frame-bands of the laver-stands, and removed the lavers from off them; and took down the sea from off the brazen oxen that were under it, and put it upon a pavement of stones. And the sabbath-covert which they had built in the house, and the king's entry without, turned he from the house of Jehovah, on account of the king of Assyria.
- 19 Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz, which he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David; and Hezekiah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 730. Hoshea's wicked reign; Samaria taken, and the people carried away captives; various other people brought and settled in Samaria.

- 1 IN the twelfth year of Ahaz, king of Judah, began Hoshea, the son of Elah, to reign in Samaria, over Israel; and he reigned nine years. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, but not as the kings of Israel who were before him. Against him came up Salmaneser, king of Assyria; and Hoshea became his servant, and gave him presents.
- 4 But the king of Assyria found treachery in Hoshea: for he had sent messengers to So, king of Egypt, and had not brought the yearly present to the king of Assyria; the king of Assyria, therefore, shut him up, and bound him in prison. For the king of Assyria marched through the whole land, and went up to Samaria, and besieged it three years.
- 6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria, and carried Israel away into Assyria, and placed them in Hulah and in Habor-nahar-gozan, and in other cities of the Medes. Thus it was, because 7 the Israelites had sinned against Jehovah their God, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and had feared other gods; And walked according to the statutes of the nations which Jehovah had cast out from before the Israelites, and of those which the kings of Israel had made. And 9 the Israelites devised things which were not right, against the command of Jehovah their God; for they built for themselves high-places in all their cities, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city. And they 10 set up for themselves statues and grove-idols on every high hill, and under every green tree: And there, on all the high-places, 11 they burnt incense, like the nations which Jehovah had carried away before them. Thus they wrought wicked things to provoke Jehovah to anger: For they served idols, respect- 12 ing which Jehovah had said to them, Ye shall not do this thing; And though Jeho- 13 vah had testified against Israel, and against Judah, by all the prophets, and by all the seers, saying, Turn ye from your evil ways, and keep my commandments and my statutes, according to the whole law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you, by my servants the prophets: Yet 14 they would not hearken, but stiffened their necks, like to the necks of their fathers who believed not in Jehovah their God. For 15 they rejected his statutes and his covenant, which he had made with their fathers; and his testimonies which he testified among them; and they followed vain idols, and became vain, and followed the nations who were around them, respecting which Jehovah had charged them, that they should not do like them. And they rejected all the com- 16 mandments of Jehovah their God, and made to themselves molten images, the two calves; and they made grove-idols, and worshipped the whole host of the heavens, and served Baal. And they devoted, by fire, their sons 17 and their daughters to Molech; and used divinations and enchantments; and sold themselves to do evil in the eyes of Jehovah,

18. Sabbath-covert] The most probable opinion is, that this was a covered seat for the king and his court, when they attended public worship on the sabbath. It was, perhaps, covered with plates of gold, as well as the passage to it, which the king took away to give to Tiglath-pileser.

CHAP. XVII. 3. Salmaneser] He is called Shalman in Hosea x. 14; and in Tobit, Enemassar. He succeeded Pul as king of Assyria; and Menander, in his history of the Tyrians, according to Josephus, mentioned his conquest of the land of Israel.

4. So, the king of Egypt] According to Usher, he is the Sabachon of profane authors, the first of the Ethiopian dynasty.—Bound him in prison] After he had taken Samaria, an account of which follows. The whole of Hosea and the beginning of Micah relate to this siege.

6. Habor-nahar-gozan] I make this one name, with several modern critics.

9. Devised things] So Michaelis; and the following words explain what is meant. They associated the worship of idols with Jehovah.—The tower of the watchmen] These towers were built to secure the vine and olive-yards, and in them shepherds watched their flocks. The words denote that idolatry prevailed, not only in the cities, but in the villages of Israel; had filled both town and country. Compare chap. xviii. 8.

13. My servants the prophets] The prophets often received particular commands to the people of Israel, which they were to observe, according to Moses, as much as the law given by him. Deut. xviii. 15—22.

15. And his testimonies] Dathe agrees with the version given.

18 to provoke him to anger. Therefore was Jehovah very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight: none were 19 left, save only the tribe of Judah. Also Judah kept not the commandments of Jehovah their God, but walked by the statutes which the kings of Israel had made: "they did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, so as continually to provoke him to anger." Jehovah, therefore, rejected the whole seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, until he had 21 cast them out of his sight. For the Israelites rent themselves from the house of David; and they made Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, king: and Jeroboam drove Israel from following Jehovah, and caused them 22 to commit a great sin. For the Israelites walked in all the sins which Jeroboam committed; from them they departed not. At length Jehovah removed Israel out of his sight, as he had spoken by all his servants the prophets. 24 Thus Israel was carried away out of their own land into Assyria unto this day; and the king of Assyria brought inhabitants from Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from Ava, and from Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria, instead of the Israelites; and they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in its 25 cities. Now, at the beginning of their dwelling there, they feared not Jehovah; and Jehovah sent lions among them, which 26 slew many of them. Some, therefore, spoke to the king of Assyria, saying, The nations which thou hast removed, and placed in the cities of Samaria, know not the manner of worshipping the God of that land; he hath, therefore, sent lions among them, and behold, they slay them, because they know not the manner of worshipping the God of that 27 land. Then the king of Assyria commanded, saying, Carry thither one of the priests, whom ye brought thence: and let "him" go and dwell there, and let him teach them the manner of worshipping the God of the land. 28 Then one of the priests, whom they had carried away from Samaria, came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should 29 fear Jehovah. Nevertheless, every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the temples of the high-places which the Samaritans had made; every nation in their cities in which they dwelt. Thus the men of 30 Babylon made Succoth-benoth; and the men of Cuth made Nergal; and the men of Hamath made Ashima. And the Avites 31 made Nibhaz and Tartak; and the Sepharvites burnt their children, in fire, to Adramelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim. So they feared Jehovah, but made 32 to themselves, of any sort of people, priests of the high-places, who sacrificed for them in the temples of the high-places. They feared 33 Jehovah, and served their own gods, after the manner of the nations from which they had been carried away. Unto this day 34 they observe their former customs, they fear not Jehovah only, nor do according to those statutes, or ordinances; or according to the law and commandment which Jehovah commanded the children of Jacob, (whom he named Israel:) With whom Jehovah had 35 made a covenant, and whom he charged, saying, Ye shall not fear other gods, nor bow yourselves to them, nor serve them, nor sacrifice to them: But Jehovah, who 36 brought you up out of the land of Egypt, with great power and a stretched-out arm, him shall ye fear, and him shall ye worship, and to him shall ye offer sacrifice. And the statutes, and the ordinances, and 37 the law, and the commandment which he wrote for you, ye shall take heed to do continually; but other gods ye shall not fear. And the covenant which I have made 38 with you, ye shall not forget; nor other gods shall ye fear. But Jehovah your God ye 39 shall fear; and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies. Nevertheless, 40 they did not hearken, but they did after their former manner. So these nations feared 41 Jehovah, and served their graven idols: and as did their fathers, so did their children, and children's children, unto this day.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 726. The reign of Hezekiah; he reforms Judah; Sennacherib invades the country, and sends a part of his troops to besiege Jerusalem.

Now in the third year of Hoshea, son of 1 Elah, king of Israel, Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz, king of Judah, began to reign. Twenty-five years old was he when he began to

19. I have added the clause noticed, as at least probably genuine, as it is in the Syr. and Arab.

24. King of Assyria] It is probable that Salmaneser only appointed this to be done, and that his successor Esarhaddon actually brought the people from the places mentioned, and settled them in Samaria. Ezra iv. 2.

25. Lions] These wild beasts might multiply in the land, on account of its desolation, and on account of the slaughter of its inhabitants, on whom they fed. God so ordered this that the people might be led to the knowledge of himself.

27. And let him go] The context requires the singular, and the Syr. and Vulg. countenance this reading.

28. How they should fear] The word fear means worship; in what manner they should serve and worship him.

30, 31. These various idols are not known. It is evident that their worship was abominable.

41. This must have been written some generations after the events recorded. This mixture of people formed the race afterwards called Samaritans, of whom we read in Ezra, Nehemiah, and the New Testament.

- reign; and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was
- 3 Abia, the daughter of Zechariah. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that David his fore-father did.
- 4 He removed the high-places, and broke the statues, and cut down the idol-groves, and broke in pieces the brazen serpent, which Moses had made: for to it, until those days, the posterity of Israel had burnt incense: and he called it Nehushtan. He
- 5 trusted in Jehovah, the God of Israel; so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any who were
- 6 before him. For he cleaved to Jehovah, and departed not from following him, but kept his commandments which Jehovah
- 7 commanded Moses. And Jehovah was with him; and he prospered whithersoever he went: and he rebelled against the king
- 8 of Assyria, and served him not. He smote the Philistines unto Gaza, and its territories, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.
- 9 And in the fourth year of king Hezekiah, which was the seventh of Hoshea, son of Elah, king of Israel, Salmaneser, king of Assyria, came up against Samaria, and
- 10 besieged it. And at the end of three years it was taken; in the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of Hoshea, king
- 11 of Israel, Samaria was taken. And the king of Assyria carried away the Israelites unto Assyria, and placed them in Halah and in Habor-nahar-gozaan, and in other cities of
- 12 the Medes: Because they hearkened not to the voice of Jehovah their God, but transgressed his covenant; they would neither hear, nor do any thing, which Moses, the servant of Jehovah, had commanded.
- 13 In the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, came up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and
- 14 took them. And Hezekiah, king of Judah, sent to the king of Assyria, to Lachish, saying. I have offended; return from me, and what thou puttest on me I will bear. And the king of Assyria appointed unto Hezekiah, king of Judah, three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold. And 15 Hezekiah gave him all the silver which was found in the house of Jehovah, and in the treasures of the palace. At that time Hezekiah cut off the gold from the doors of the temple of Jehovah, and from the pillars which Hezekiah, king of Judah, had overlaid, and gave it to the king of Assyria.

Yet the king of Assyria sent Tartan, and 17 Rab-saris, and Rab-shakeh, from Lachish, to king Hezekiah, with a great host against Jerusalem. "And when they had come up, they stopped by the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the highway of the fuller's field. And when they had called to the 18 king, there came out to them Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household; and Shebna, the scribe; and Joah, the son of Asaph, the recorder. And Rab-shakeh 19 said to them, Speak ye now to Hezekiah, That thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this which thou exercisest? With thy lips thou sayest 20 that thou hast wisdom and power to make war. Now, in whom dost thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? Now, behold, 21 thou trustest to the staff of a bruised reed, to Egypt, on which, if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who trust in him. But if ye say to me, We trust in 22 Jehovah our God: is it not he whose high-places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and hath said to Judah and Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem? Now, therefore, I pray 23 thee, give pledges to my lord the king of Assyria, and I will deliver thee two thousand horses, if thou be able, on thy part, to set riders upon them. How, then, wilt thou 24 dare to face one captain, the least of my master's servants; although thou put thy trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? Am I now come up without Jehovah 25 against this place, to destroy it? Jehovah said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it. Then said Eliakim, the son of 26 Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah, to Rab-shakeh, Speak, we pray thee, to thy servants in the Syrian language; for we understand

CHAP. XVIII. 2. The daughter of Zechariah] Probably, the pious person who had so much influence in the reign of Uzziah, 2 Chron. xxvi. 5; and his daughter, by his instruction and example, might preserve her son Hezekiah from the idolatry of Ahaz.

13. Sennacherib] He was the son of Salmaneser.

14. I have offended] Sennacherib had taken some of the fenced cities of Judah, which success probably made Hezekiah suspect he had done wrong in withholding the tribute. See ver. 7.

17. Yet the king] He appears determined on the absolute surrender of Hezekiah and Jerusalem; and his partial success might embolden him in his attempt. (c) And they went and came up to Jerusalem. Sept. MSS.

19. And Rab-shakeh] He was the king's cup-bearer, as his name signifies; and by his talking of Jehovah, and speaking so readily in the Jews' language, he seems to have been an apostate Jew. He made a boasting speech, the main purpose of which was to tell them, that resistance would be in vain, if they trusted to warlike preparations.

21. To Egypt] Probably Hezekiah had made some proposals to the king of Egypt, but was reprov'd and overruled by Isaiah. See Isa. xxx. xxxi.

25. Jehovah said to me] If Rab-shakeh were an apostate Jew, he might have pretended that Jehovah had said to his master, 'Go up,' &c. Or, perhaps, Sennacherib might have divined, as was usual, respecting his future opera-it : and talk not to us in the Jewish tongue, in the hearing of the people who are on the 27 wall. But Rab-shakeh said to them, Hath my master sent me to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words? and not also to the men who are stationed on the wall, who will be compelled, with you, to eat their own dung, and drink their own urine?

 28 Then Rab-shakeh stood and cried with a loud voice, in the Jewish tongue, and spoke, saying, Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria : Thus saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you ; for he will not be able to deliver you out of his hand :
 30 Nor let Hezekiah induce you to trust in Jehovah, saying, Jehovah will surely rescue us, and this city shall not be delivered into 31 the hand of the king of Assyria. Harken not to Hezekiah : for thus saith the king of Assyria, Make a present to me, and come out to me ; and ye shall eat every man of his own vine, and every one of his own fig-tree, and drink every one of his own cistern :
 32 Until I come, and take you away to a land, like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of the purest olive, and of honey ; and ye shall live, and not die : but hearken not to Hezekiah, when he persuadeth you, saying,
 33 Jehovah will deliver us. Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered, in any case, his land out of the hand of the king of 34 Assyria? Where are the gods of Hamath, and of Arpad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah? have they 35 delivered Samaria out of my hand? Who, among all the gods of the countries, are they that have delivered their country out of my hand, that Jehovah should deliver 36 Jerusalem out of my hand? But the people were silent, and answered him not a word : for the king's commandment was, saying, Answer him not.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 710. Hezekiah sendeth to Isaiah, who comforteth him ; Sennacherib's letter ; and Isaiah's prediction concerning his return to his own country.

37 THEN came Eliakim, the son of Hilkiash, who was over the household, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah, with their garments rent, and told him the words of Rab-shakeh.

1 And when king Hezekiah heard, he rent

tions : and Rab-shakeh might ascribe the result to Jehovah to alarm the people.

CHAP. XIX. 3. Children are come] These words are proverbial ; and not only denote the disappointment of hope, but a season of the utmost distress and anxiety.

7. Another spirit in him] Secker has observed, that this is the uniform sense of the words. They here mean another mind, a spirit of fear. Compare Isa. xxxi. 8, 9. This was his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of Jehovah. And he sent Eliakim, who was over the 2 household, and Shebna, the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz. And they said to him, Thus saith Hezekiah, 3 This day is a day of trouble, and of reproof, and of calumny : for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. It may be that Jehovah, thy 4 God, hath heard all the words of Rab-shakeh whom the king of Assyria, his master, hath sent to reproach the living God ; and will reprove the words which Jehovah, thy God, hath heard ; intercede, therefore, by prayer for the remnant that are yet left.

The servants of king Hezekiah then went 5 to Isaiah ; And Isaiah said to them, Thus 6 shall ye say to your master ; Thus saith Jehovah, Be not afraid on account of the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me. Behold, I will put ano- 7 ther spirit in him, and he shall hear a rumour, and shall return to his own land ; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land. When Rab-shakeh returned, 8 he found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah ; for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish. And it being then 9 reported to him, saying, Behold, Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, is come out to fight against thee ; he again sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, Thus shall ye speak to 10 Hezekiah, king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria. Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of 11 Assyria have done to all lands, by destroying them utterly : and shalt thou be delivered? Did the gods of the nations deliver those 12 whom my fathers destroyed ; Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the children of Eden, who were in Thelassar? Where is the king 13 of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Hena, and Ivah?

And Hezekiah received the letter from 14 the hand of the messengers, and read it ; and Hezekiah went up to the house of Jehovah, and spread it before Jehovah. And 15 Hezekiah prayed before Jehovah, and said, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, who dwellest produced by hearing of the invasion of his own country by Tirhakah, the Ethiopian, or of his coming towards Judea.

9. Sent messengers] This was policy to prevent Hezekiah from pursuing him. As he had formed the design of hastening to meet Tirhakah, he wished to prevent the Jewish troops from hanging on his rear.

12, 13. Gozan and Haran] These places seem to have been in Chaldea, and not far from the Euphrates.

- between the cherubs, thou art God, thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made the heavens and the earth.
- 16 Bow down, O Jehovah, thine ear, and hear; open, O Jehovah, thine eyes, and see: and hear "all" the words of Sennacherib, which he hath sent to reproach the living God.
- 17 Of a truth, O Jehovah, the kings of Assyria have destroyed those nations and their 18 lands; And have cast their gods into the fire: for they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore 19 have they destroyed them. Now, therefore, O Jehovah, our God, I beseech thee, save thou us out of his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou, Jehovah, art the only God.
- 20 Then Isaiah, the son of Amoz, sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel; Thy prayer to me against Sennacherib, the king of Assyria, I have 21 heard. 16—19. Hezekiah requests that Jehovah would now give proof that he was not like the idols of the heathens, but was indeed the living God; so that all kingdoms might know and acknowledge him as such. (a) Versions. MSS.

23. The sides of Lebanon]. Lebanon means the most secure places; and cutting down his tall cedars, the overthrow of his opponents. These images are beautiful.

24. In my progress]. Literally, 'with the soles of my feet.' He had such a multitude of troops, that nothing could oppose him. The streams of fenced places, Vitringa and Lowth suppose refer to Egypt, whose principal cities were chiefly defended by moats, canals, or large lakes, cut and made with great labour. As Libna and Lachish were on the south-west of Jerusalem, it is not improbable that he had made an attack on Egypt. The word מצור is ambiguous, and may signify Egypt, if the points be changed. I prefer the common version.

25—28. God had permitted Sennacherib hitherto to prosper, that he might perform his own counsels; but now he would punish him for his insolence, pride, and vanity.

29. This shall be a sign]. How could an event after the deliverance be a sign of that deliverance? For the direction to sow in the third year supposes the departure of the enemy. No answer to this difficulty is more pertinent, than what Rosenmüller has given, — that to predict a subsequent event, is a clear indication of the certainty of a prior event, on which it depends. Thus Exod. iii. 12, worshipping God on mount Horeb implied the deliverance of Israel from the fiery furnace of Egypt. Hence the word אית not only signifies a prodigy—a miracle, but any thing which confirms a promise made. 31. (a) Versions and MSS.

35. Angel of Jehovah]. It is well known that in scripture any instrument which Jehovah employs in his providential government is called an angel. 'He maketh the winds his angels,' &c. Psa. civ. 4. Hence, some of the rabbis explain the angel to be Tirhakah, who, coming unexpectedly on Sennacherib, vanquished him with a terrible slaughter. Usher embraced and defended this opinion; but what is said in Isa. xxx. 30, and xxxi. 9, wholly subverts this notion. Vitringa supposed that an unusual tempest of thunder and lightning is intended; and others, the destructive wind called samel, which is known to produce sudden death to all who are exposed to it. With others, I think the plague is intended; a disease indigenous to Egypt, Assyrians, a hundred and eighty five thousand; and when the rest arose in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses. 36 Then Sennacherib, king of Assyria, departed, and returned and dwelt at Nineveh. And as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch, his god, Adrammelech and Sharezer, his sons, smote him with the sword: and they escaped into the land of Armenia. And Esarhaddon, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 713. Hezekiah, having received a message to prepare for death, by prayer hath his life prolonged; as a sign of it the sun goeth ten degrees back; the captivity foretold.

- 1 In those days, Hezekiah was sick of a deadly disease. And the prophet Isaiah, the son of Amoz, came to him, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die, and live no longer. Then "Hezekiah" turned his face to the wall, and prayed to Jehovah, saying,
- 3 I beseech thee, O Jehovah, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with an upright heart, and have done what is good in thine eyes. And Hezekiah wept much. Now, before Isaiah had gone out into the middle court, the word of Jehovah came to him, saying, Go back and tell Hezekiah, the chief of my people, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of David thy forefather, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears; behold, I will heal thee: on the third day thou shalt go up to the house of
- 6 Jehovah. And I will add to thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria; and I will defend this city for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake. And Isaiah said, Take a lump of figs, and lay it on the boil, and he shall recover.
- 8 And Hezekiah said to Isaiah, What shall be the sign that Jehovah will heal me, and that I shall go up into the house of Jehovah on the third day? And Isaiah said,
- 9 This sign will Jehovah give thee, that he will do the thing which he hath spoken: shall the shadow, on the dial, go forward ten degrees? or go back ten degrees? And 10 Hezekiah answered, It is an easy matter for the shadow to go forwards ten degrees; nay, but let the shadow go backward ten degrees. And Isaiah, the prophet, cried 11 to Jehovah: and he brought backward the shadow ten degrees, which it had gone forward, on the dial of Ahaz.

About this time Berodach-baladan, the 12 son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters "and ambassadors" with a present unto Hezekiah: for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick. And Hezekiah "rejoiced at 13 their arrival," and showed them all his store-houses, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and his armoury, and all that he had in his treasures: there was nothing in his house nor in all his dominion, which Hezekiah showed them not.

Then came Isaiah, the prophet, to king 14 Hezekiah, and said to him, What said these men? and whence came they to thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country, from Babylon. And he said, What 15 have they seen in thy house? And Hezekiah answered, All things which are in my house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures which I have not showed them. And Isaiah said to Hezekiah, Hear 16 the word of Jehovah, Behold, the days come, 17 that all which is in thy house, and what thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried to Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith Jehovah. And of thy sons who 18 shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, Good is the 19 word of Jehovah which thou hast spoken: only, said he, let there be peace and truth in my days.

And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and 20 all his might, and how he made a pool, and and where Sennacherib had been. This disease breaking out, and being ignorant of its nature, the infection spread, so that the chief part of the army perished. Rosenmüller, after Wepler, understands מְלָכִים to signify leaders or chiefs, and renders, 'a hundred and eighty-five chiefs,' and if so many of the chiefs, of course a large number of the others perished. This interpretation, they think, is supported by 2 Chron. xxii. 21. 'And Jehovah sent an angel, which cut off all the mighty men of valour, and the leaders and captains in the camp of the king of Assyria.' All the ancient versions render, 'a hundred and eighty-five thousand.'

CHAP. XX. 1. In those days That is, the year after the destruction of Sennacherib's army. This was in the fourth year of his reign; and as he reigned twenty-nine years, it must have been in the fifteenth. Usher places it before the invasion of Judea by Sennacherib.—Of a deadly disease From the boil mentioned it has been thought that this was the plague. The command to set his house in order seems to be to regulate his affairs, to make his will. Compare 2 Sam. xvii. 23. 2. (a) Versions and MSS.

6. From the hand From any future attempts which he or his successors may make. The power of Assyria was now gradually diminished; and that of Babylon increased.

8—12. There are great difficulties in these verses. Some understand מַעְבָּרִים to denote the steps either of the palace or temple, on which the shadow of some column fell; as it is doubtful whether or not the division of time into hours was made so early as in the days of Hezekiah. Reland, after Josephus, adopts this opinion. If they had not any divisions like our hours, they might have others; and whatever these were, the design was answered by the shadow going back either ten degrees or steps. (a) Isa. xxix. 1.

13. Rejoiced This reading has the authority of all the versions, the parallel place, and many MSS. and the narrative itself requires it.

19. Only, said he, let With Dathe, I consider that the interrogative form implies strongly the affirmative, and I have rendered accordingly. This was a very mortifying message. But God was displeased that he should distrust his protection, and enter into an alliance with an heathen, of which the prophet Micah had warned him, Micah iv. 9, 10. Babylon was now a very considerable nation, a conduit, and brought water into the city, are written in the chronicles of the kings of 21 Judah. And Hezekiah slept with his fathers; and Manasseh, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 698. The reigns of Manasseh and Amon • he being slain, Josiah succeedeth.

- 1 MANASSEH was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name
- 2 was Hephzi-bah. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, after the abominable deeds of the nations, which Jehovah had cast out
- 3 from before the Israelites. For he built up again the high-places which Hezekiah, his father, had destroyed; and he reared up altars for Baal, and made a grove, as did Ahab, king of Israel; and worshipped the whole host of the heavens, and served them.
- 4 And he built altars, for idols, in the house of Jehovah, of which Jehovah said, In Jerusalem will I put my name. And he built altars for the whole host of the heavens in the two courts of the house of Jehovah.
- 6 And he devoted, by fire, his own son, and observed the clouds, and used divinations, and encouraged necromancers and wizards: he wrought much wickedness in the eyes of
- 7 Jehovah, to provoke him to anger. And he set up a grove-idol, made by himself, in the house of which Jehovah said to David, and to Solomon, his son, In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name
- 8 for ever: Nor will I make the feet of Israel move any more out of the land which I gave to their fathers; if they will but observe to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law which my servant Moses gave, them in charge.
- 9 But they hearkened not: and Manasseh seduced them to do more evil than did the nations which Jehovah destroyed before the Israelites.
- 10 And Jehovah spoke by his servants the
- 11 prophets, saying, Because Manasseh, king of Judah, hath committed these abominations, and hath done more wickedly than the Amorites did, who were before him, and hath also caused Judah to sin with his idols; Therefore, thus saith Jehovah, the God of 12 Israel, Behold, I am about to bring such evil upon Jerusalem and Judah, that both the ears of every one who heareth of it, will tingle. And I will stretch over Jerusalem. 13 the line of Samaria, and the plummet of the house of Ahab; and I will wipe Jerusalem as one wipeth a dish; wiping and turning it upside down. And I will forsake the 14 remnant of mine inheritance, and deliver them into the hand of their enemies; and they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies; Because they have done evil 15 in mine eyes, and have provoked me to anger, since the day their fathers came out of Egypt, even unto this day.

Moreover, Manasseh shed innocent blood 16 exceedingly, till he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another; besides his sin by which he caused Judah to sin, in doing evil in the eyes of Jehovah. Now the rest 17 of the acts of Manasseh, and all that he did, and his sin which he committed, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and 18 was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Uzza: and Amon, his son, reigned in his stead.

Amon was twenty-two years old when he 19 began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Meshullemeth, the daughter of Haruz, of Jotbah. And he did evil in the eyes of Je- 20 hovah, as his father Manasseh did. And in 21 all the ways in which his father had long walked, he walked; and the idols which his father had served, he served and worshipped. And he forsook Jehovah, the God of his 22 fathers, and walked not in the way of Jehovah. And the servants of Amon conspired 23 against him, and slew the king in his own house. But the people of the land slew 24 all those who had conspired against king Amon; and the people of the land made Josiah, his son, king in his stead. Now the 25 rest of the acts of Amon, and 'all' that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. And he was buried in his own 26 and the event seemed unlikely; but it afterwards happened, and Daniel and other youths of the royal blood were taken there.

CHAP. XXI. 2—9. He did evil] Thus what the pious Hezekiah had laboured to destroy, his profligate son soon restored. Every species of idolatry was introduced into the very temple itself. He appears to have equalled, yea, to have surpassed Ahab in his wickedness.

13. The line of Samaria] The same lot or portion, as is intended by the measuring-line. Psa. xvi. 6, and 2 Chron. x. 16. Or it may be taken from the line which builders use, in adjusting their materials. The next words, the plummet, &c. rather support this.—I will wipe] I will take away all its inhabitants and cleanse it by its destruction.

16. Shed innocent blood] The blood of prophets who testified against his idolatries. It is generally thought that Isaiah suffered in this reign, and was sawn asunder, and that Paul alludes to this in Heb. xi. 37.

18. Garden of Uzza] Probably of king Uzziah, who, being a leper, might have been buried in his own garden. Manasseh wished to be interred there, on account of his former sins, of which he truly repented.

21. Had long walked] He did not regard his father's repentance and late reformation; but as he had been early accustomed to serve idols, he refused to forsake them. His reign and his life soon terminated.

sepulchre, in the garden of Uzza; and Josiah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 641. Josiah's good reign; his early regard to religion; his destruction of idols, &c.

- 1 JOSIAH WAS eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of Boscath.
- 2 And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, and walked in all the ways of David his forefather, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left.
- 4 'And in the fourth year of his reign, the king commanded Hilkiah, the high-priest, and the priests of the second order, and the door-keepers, to bring out of the temple of Jehovah all the vessels that were made for Baal, and for the grove-idol, and for all the host of the heavens; and he burned them without Jerusalem, in the fields of Kidron, but their ashes were carried unto Bethel.
- 5 And he put down the idolatrous priests, whom the kings of Judah had ordained to burn incense on the high-places, in the cities of Judah, and in the places round about Jerusalem; those also who burnt incense to Baal, to the sun and to the moon, and to the planets, and to the whole host of the heavens. And he brought out the grove-idol from the house of Jehovah, without Jerusalem, unto the brook Kidron, and burned it at the brook Kidron, and having stamped it to dust, he scattered its dust upon the
- 7 graves of the common people. And he broke down the houses of the Sodomites, which were by the house of Jehovah, where the women wove hangings for the grove-idol. And he removed all the priests from the cities of Judah, and defiled the high-places where the priests had burnt incense, from Gibeah to Beer-sheba. He also broke down the high-places of the satyrs, which were at the entrance of the gate of Joshua, the governor of the city, on one's left hand
- 9 going into the city. And the priests of the high-places approached not the altar of Jehovah in Jerusalem, but they ate of the unleavened bread among their brethren. And he defiled Topheth, which is in the 10 valley of Ben-Hinnom, that no man might devote his son or his daughter by fire to Molech. And he took away the horses 11 which the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, which were at the entrance of the house of Jehovah, by the chamber of Nathan-melech, the eunuch, which was in the suburbs; and he burned the sun-chariots with fire. And the altars which were on 12 the roof of the summer-house of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made; and the altars which Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of Jehovah, the king broke down, and thence demolished and threw their dust into the brook Kidron. The king also defiled the high-places which 13 were opposite Jerusalem, which were on the right hand of mount Olivet, which Solomon, the king of Israel, had built for Ashtaroath, the abominable idol of the Sidonians, and for Chemosh, the abominable idol of the Moabites, and for Milcom, the abominable idol of the Ammonites. And he 14 broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves, and filled their places with human bones.

Moreover the altar which was at Bethel, 15 and the high-place which Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin, had made, both that altar and the high-place he broke down; and burned the idol of the high-place, and stamped it to dust: he burned also the grove. And as Josiah 16 turned himself, he spied the sepulchres that were there in the mount, and sent, and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burned them upon the altar, and polluted it, according to the word of Jehovah, "when Jeroboam stood by the altar at the feast. And the king, turning about, cast his eyes on the sepulchre of the" man of God, who proclaimed these words. And he said, What 17 title is that which I see? And the men of CHAP. XXII. 2. In 2 Chron. xxxiv. 3—7, we find that Josiah, in the eighth year of his reign, began to attend to the state of religion; and in the twelfth he destroyed the idols in Jerusalem, and throughout the land, an account of which we have in the next chapter, as if this had followed the finding of the book of the law. We have then here an anachronism inconsistent with the order of events as stated in the parallel place. On this ground I have ventured to transpose a part of the 23d chapter, to follow the 2d verse in this; and I greatly suspect, that the order which I have adopted was that of the original.

CHAP. XXIII. 4. And the king] I have added, from the parallel place, the supplement of words, as necessary to the sense. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 3.—Their ashes] To make the altar there still more execrable. See ver. 16.

6. The common people] Who had most probably contaminated themselves with that infamous grove-idol worship.

8. Of the satyrs] I have followed Houbigant and others in this version, as the most probable. Compare Levit.

xvii. 7. and note. Others think that altars to idols are meant; and that this at the gate of Joshua was one of the most elevated and distinguished.

10. Defiled Topheth] The place dedicated to the worship of Molech, and where children were sacrificed to that idol, Compare Jer. vii. 31, and xix. 6, 11.

13. Mount Olivet] Or the mount of Olives; so the Chaldee and many others render.—Which Solomon had built] It is singular that these had not been destroyed by Hezekiah or some other pious king. They had been, most probably, devoted to the worship of Jehovah, and the idols removed, in the reign of the better kings; but the altars and buildings being suffered to remain, the idols were again replaced, in the reign of the other kings.

16, 17. The common text is deficient; and there is a total want of coherence and of perspicuity. The Septuagint has preserved the text complete, which I have followed. Compare 1 Kings, xiii. 2.

the city told him, It is the sepulchre of the man of God, who came from Judah, and proclaimed these things which thou hast done against the altar of Bethel. And he said, Let him alone; let no man move his bones. So they let his bones alone, with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria. And all the temples of the high-places which were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke Jehovah to anger, Josiah cast down, and did to them according to all that he had done at Bethel. And he slew all the priests of the high-places upon the altars which were there; and he burned human bones upon them. He then returned to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 624. The reign of Josiah continued; the repairing of the temple; a solemn passover kept; and a covenant made to serve God, &c.

- 3 AND in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, the king sent Shaphan, the son of Azaliah, the son of Meshullam, the scribe, to the house of Jehovah, saying, Go up to Hilkiyah, the high-priest, that he may sum up the silver which hath been brought into the house of Jehovah, which the door-keepers have collected from the people: And let them deliver it into the hand of those who oversee the work of the house of Jehovah, and let them give it to the workmen, who are to repair the breaches of the house of Jehovah; To the carpenters, and builders, and masons; and to buy timber, and hewn stone, to repair the house. But no account was taken of the money which was delivered into their hand, because they dealt faithfully.
- 8 And Hilkiyah, the high-priest, said to Shaphan, the scribe, I have found the book of the law, in the house of Jehovah. And Hilkiyah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it. And Shaphan, the scribe, came to the king, and brought the king word and said, Thy servants have summed up the money found in the house of "Jehovah," and have delivered it into the hand of those who oversee the work to be done in the house of Jehovah. And Shaphan, the scribe, told the king, saying, Hilkiyah, the priest, hath given to me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king. And when the king heard the words of the book of the law, he rent his garments. And the king commanded Hilkiyah, the priest, and Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and Achbor, the son of Michaiah, and Shaphan, the scribe, and Asahiah, a servant of the king's, saying, Go inquire of Jehovah for me, and for the whole people of Judah, concerning the words of this book which is found: for great is the wrath of Jehovah which is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according to all that is prescribed to us. Then Hilkiyah, the priest, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asahiah, went to Huldah, the prophetess, (the wife of Shallum, the son of Tikvah, the son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe,) who dwelt in the suburbs of Jerusalem, and they spoke to her.

And she said unto them, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Tell the man who sent you to me; Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon its inhabitants, all the threatenings of the book which the king of Judah hath read; Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense to other gods, so as to provoke me to anger by all the works of their hands; therefore, my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched. But to the king of Judah who sent you to inquire of Jehovah, thus shall ye say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Because at the words which thou hast heard, Thy heart was softened, and thou hast humbled thyself before Jehovah, when thou heardest what I spoke against this place, and against its inhabitants, (that they should become a desolation and a curse,) and hast rent thy garments, and wept before me; I also have heard thee, saith Jehovah. Behold, therefore, I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be brought to thy grave in peace; and thine eyes shall not see all the evil which I will bring upon this place.

And they brought the king this word; and the king sent, and gathered unto him

CHAP. XXII. 3-7. From this, it appears that measures had been previously taken to raise money for the repair of the temple; and the money, thus raised, was now appropriated to the intended purpose.

8. I have found the book of the law] From the parallel place, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 14, it is most probable, if not absolutely certain, that this was the original copy of the Pentateuch, written by Moses. The learned reader may consult note in Heb. Bible, loc.

9. (a) Versions and MSS.

11. Heard the words of the book] Some from hence infer that all the copies of the law had perished, and that the king had not before seen one. This, I think, is highly improbable. The prophets would take care to preserve the sacred records; and among the serious people, the law would be regarded and copied. If we suppose that the king read the latter chapters of Deuteronomy, and, owing to the circumstances of the times, or to a divine influence on the mind, that he saw more clearly and felt more powerfully the consequences of the apostasy of the land, we may account for his distress and anxiety. For it is matter of common experience, that the same things, heard or read, do not always make the same impression on the mind.

CHAP. XXIII. 1-3. The answer returned to the king influenced him to call the people together, at Jerusalem, and to engage them to make a solemn covenant with God; to

- all the elders of Judah and of Jerusalem.
- 2 And the king went up into the house of Jehovah, and all the men of Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, and the priests, and the prophets, and the whole people, both small and great : and he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant, which had been found in the house of Jehovah. And the king stood by a pillar, and made a covenant before Jehovah, to walk after Jehovah, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of his covenant which were written in this book : and all the people consented to the covenant.
- 12 And the king commanded all the people, saying, Keep the passover unto Jehovah your God, as it is written in the book of this covenant! Surely there was not holden such a passover, from the days of the judges who judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, nor of the kings of Judah. In the eighteenth year of king Josiah, this passover was kept to Jehovah, in Jerusalem.
- 24 Moreover the necromancers, and the wizards, and the teraphs, and the idols, and all the abominations, which were seen in the land of Judah, and in Jerusalem, Josiah put away, that he might perform the words of the law, which were written in the book that Hilkiah, the priest, found in the house of Jehovah. And like to him was there no king before him, who turned to Jehovah with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses ; nor after him arose there any like him.
- 26 Notwithstanding, Jehovah turned not from the fierceness of his great wrath, which had been kindled against Judah, because of all the provocations with which Manasseh had provoked him. And Jehovah said, I will also remove Judah out of my sight, as I have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem, which I have chosen, and the house, of which I said, My name shall be there. Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. In which they having consented, the king then commanded the passover to be kept.

21—23. In the parallel place, 2 Chron. xxxv. 1—19, we have a more full account of this passover.

24. Moreover the] As far as he could discover any remaining idols, he removed them, together with all those who practised superstitious arts.

29. On the first encounter] For this rendering, consult Poole's Synopsis.

33. Put him in bonds] Either because he presumed to take the sceptre without his leave; or because he prepared to renew the war against him.

35. Gave the silver] As the power of Pharaoh raised him to the throne, so it was necessary for him to obey this com-his days Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, went up against the king of Assyria, to the river Euphrates; and king Josiah went against him; and he was slain, on the first encounter, at Megiddo. And his servants carried him dying in a chariot from Megiddo, and brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre. And the people of the land took Jehoahaz, the son of Josiah, and anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 610. The wicked reigns of Jehoahaz, (called also Shallum,) Jehoiakim, and Jehoiachin, whom Nebuchadnezzar carries to Babylon, together with the chief part of the inhabitants of Jerusalem; the last siege, &c.

JEHOAHAZ was twenty-three years old 31 when he began to reign; and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. And he did evil 32 in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his fathers had done. And Pharaoh-necho put him in bonds at Riblah, in the land of Hamath, that he might not reign in Jerusalem; and laid a tribute on the land of a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold. And Pharaoh-necho made Eliakim, 34 the son of Josiah, king, in the room of Josiah, his father, and changed his name to Jehoiakim, and took Jehoahaz away; and he came to Egypt, and died there. And Jehoiakim gave the silver and gold to Pharaoh; but he taxed the land to give the money according to the command of Pharaoh: he exacted the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every one according to his taxation, to give it unto Pharaoh-necho.

Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Zebudah, the daughter of Pedaiah of Rumah. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his fathers had done.

In his days, Nebuchadnezzar, king of 1 Babylon, came up, and Jehoiakim became his servant three years: then he turned and rebelled against him. But Jehovah sent 2 against him hordes of the Chaldees, and mand. The tribute was large; and must have been oppressive to the people.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. In his days] Jeremiah went to the palace in the beginning of his reign, and exhorted him and the people to repent, Jer. xxii. 1, &c. Soon after he denounced the destruction of the Temple, xxvi. 1—19. Habakkuk also prophesied at this period.—King of Babylon] this was in the third or the beginning of the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim. Compare Dan. i. 1, and Jer. xxv. 1. On this occasion, God revealed to Jeremiah the success and victories of Nebuchadnezzar, first over the Egyptians at Charchemish, and then in their own country.

2. Hordes of the Chaldees] All the surrounding nations seem to have been let loose to punish a people whom God hordes of Syrians, and hordes of Moabites, and hordes of the Ammonites: and he sent them against Judah to destroy it, according to the word of Jehovah, which he had spoken by his servants the prophets. Surely by the decree of Jehovah this came upon Judah, to remove them out of his sight, on account of all the sins which Manasseh had committed; And also on account of the innocent blood which he had shed: for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, which Jehovah would not pardon. Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and all that he did, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Judah. Jehoiakim then slept with his fathers; and Jehoiachin, his son, reigned in his stead. And the king of Egypt came no more out of his own land: for the king of Babylon had taken all that belonged to the king of Egypt from the river of Egypt unto the river Euphrates.

Jehoiachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months. And his mother's name was Nehushta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his fathers had done. At that time, the servants of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came up against Jerusalem, and the city was besieged. And Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came against the city, and his servants besieged it. And Jehoiachin, the king of Judah, went out to the king of Babylon, he, and his mother, and his servants, and his princes, and his officers; and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign. And he carried thence all the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and the treasures of the king's house, and cut in pieces all the vessels of gold, which Solomon, king of Israel, had made in the temple of Jehovah, as Jehovah had said. And he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the chiefs, and all the men of valour, ten thousand captives, with all the carpenters and smiths; none were left, except the meanest people of the land. Thus he carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his eunuchs, and the chiefs of the land; those carried he into captivity, from Jerusalem to Babylon. And all the wealthy men, seven thousand; and a thousand carpenters and smiths, all the brave men, fit for war, even them the king of Babylon carried captives to Babylon.

And the king of Babylon made Mattaniah, his father's brother, king in his stead, and changed his name to Zedekiah. Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. And he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that Jehoiakim had done. For the anger of Jehovah was against Jerusalem and Judah, until he cast them out of his sight.

Zedekiah then rebelled against the king of Babylon; and in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came with all his host against Jerusalem, and encamped against it; and they built forts against it round about. And the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. And on the ninth "day" of the "fourth" month, the famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. And the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled by night by a gate, which was between two walls, by the king's garden: (for the Chaldees surrounded the city:) and they went away toward the plain "of Jericho." And the army of the Chaldees pursued the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho; and all his army were scattered from him. So they took the king, and brought him to Riblah, to the king of Babylon, and he gave judgment upon him. And they slew the sons of Zedekiah, before his eyes, and put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him with fetters of brass, and carried him to Babylon.

And on the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzar-adan, captain of the guard, a servant of the king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem: And he burnt the house of Jehovah, and the palace, and all the great houses in Jerusalem; even every great house he had so remarkably favoured, and who had been so ungrateful and wicked: for, after having submitted to Nebuchadnezzar, and paid tribute three years, Jehoiakim and the people revolted. The king of Babylon's commanders carried on the war, and destroyed the king, perhaps, when making a sally. The prophecy was now fulfilled which Jeremiah had delivered, chap. xxii. 18, 19, and xxxvi. 30.

8—16. The king of Babylon at length came himself, and pressed on the siege, to whom Jehoiachin surrendered; and he and the chief men, together with the treasures, were carried to Babylon. Ezekiel was now carried captive. Ezek. xl. 1.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Zedekiah then rebelled] From Jeremiah xxvii. it appears, that the neighbouring nations had formed the design of throwing off the yoke of the king of Babylon, and sent ambassadors to Zedekiah to do so too; that he complied with this proposal, contrary to his solemn oath to the king of Babylon.

3. (a) Jer. lii. 6. So 4. Versions, Jer. lii. 7.

7. They slew] Thus two prophecies were fulfilled, which seemed contrary one to the other, Jer. xxxii. 5, and xxxiv. 3, that Zedekiah should go to Babylon, but should never see it.

9—17. Thus the temple of Solomon was laid in ruins, for the sins of the people. Its treasures were carried away;

10 burned with fire. And the whole army of the Chaldees, who were with the captain of the guard, broke down the walls of Jerusalem, round about. And the rest of the people that had been left in the city, with the deserters who had deserted to the king of Babylon, the remainder of the whole multitude, did Nebuzar-adan, the captain of the guard, carry away. But the meanest of the land the captain of the guard left, to be vine-dressers and husbandmen. And the brazen pillars which were in the house of Jehovah, and the bases, and the brazen sea which was in the house of Jehovah, did the Chaldees break in pieces, and carry the brass of them to Babylon. And the brazen pans, and the shovels, and the knives, and the cups, and all the other utensils of brass, with which the priests had ministered, they took away. And the censers, and the sprinkling-bowls, whether of gold or silver, the captain of the guard took away. The two pillars, one sea, and the bases which Solomon had made for the house of Jehovah; the brass of all those utensils was without weight. The height of one pillar was eighteen cubits, and the capital upon it was brass: and the height of the capital three cubits; and the wreathen work, and pomegranates upon the capital round about, were all of brass: the second pillar, with its wreathen-work, was similar.

19 And the captain of the guard took Seraiah, the high-priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest, and the three door-keepers: And out of the city he took a eunuch who had been set over the men of war, and five of the king's ministers, who were found in the city, and the principal scribe of the host, who mustered the people of the land, and sixty of the people of the land who were found in the city: These Nebuzar-adan, captain of the guard, took and brought to the king of Babylon to Riblah:

and the utensils of service, which had been perverted to serve idols, were laid up at length in an idol's temple.

And the king of Babylon smote them and slew them at Riblah, in the land of Hamath.

Thus Judah was carried away out of their land. And as for the people who remained in the land of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had left, even over them he made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ruler. And when all the captains of the hosts and their men heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah governor, they came to Gedaliah to Mizpeh; even Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and Johanna, the son of Careah, and Seraiah, the son of Tanhumeth, the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah, a Maachathite, they and their men. And Gedaliah swore to them, and to their men, and said to them, Fear not to be the servants of the Chaldees: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. But on the seventh month, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, came, and ten men with him, and smote Gedaliah so that he died, and the Jews and the Chaldees who were with him at Mizpeh. And the whole people, both small and great, and the captains of the hosts, arose and went to Egypt: for they were afraid of the Chaldees.

And in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, Evil-merodach, king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, released Jehoiachin, king of Judah, out of prison; And he spoke kindly to him, and set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; And he changed his prison-garments: and he ate bread continually before him all the days of his life. And his allowance was a continual allowance given him by the king; a stated rate for every day, all the days of his life.

23. Ishmael] Of the conspiracy of Ishmael, we have a full account in Jer. xl. and xli.

I. CHRONICLES.

INTRODUCTION.

These books are called by the Hebrews, דברי הימים, the words of the days, that is, journals of daily transactions: and it is supposed that they were compiled from the public records, so often mentioned in the preceding books. The Greek calls them the books of what had been omitted or left out in the other histories, which the Vulgate follows, calling them Paralipomenon. We style them Chronicles, a short register of particular and interesting events. This is derived from the Greek Xronos, time. These books contain first, the genealogies of the families of Israel, from Adam down to the captivity; then of David and Solomon, more fully in some particulars than that of Samuel and Kings. The history of the following kings is confined chiefly to those of Judah, and is much more full than the preceding history. Ezra is generally thought to have been the compiler.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 4004. Genealogy from Adam to Jacob; and of their posterities down to Iram.

- 1 ADAM, Seth, Enos, Canaan, Mahala-
- 3 leel, Jared, Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech,
- 4 Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
- 5 The sons of Japheth: Gomer, and Ma-
- 6 gog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal,
- 6 and Meshech and Tiras. And the sons of
- 7 Gomer: Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and To-
- 7 garmah. And the sons of Javan: Elishan,
- and Tarshish, Chittim, and Rodanim.
- 8 The sons of Ham: Cush, and Mizraim,
- 9 Phut, and Canaan. And the sons of Cush;
- Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah,
- and Sabtechah. And the sons of Raamah;
- 10 Sheba and Dedan. And Cush begot Nim-
- rod: he began to be mighty upon the earth.
- 11 And Mizraim begot the Ludites, and the
- 12 Anamites, and the Lehabites, and the Naph-
- 12 tuhites. And the Pathrusites, and the Cas-
- 13 luhites, (from whom came the Philistines,) and
- 13 the Caphtorites. And Canaan begot Zidon,
- (his first-born,) and the Hethites;
- 14 The Jebusites also, and the Amorites, and
- 15 the Girgasites, And the Hivites, and the
- 16 Arkites, and the Sinites, And the Arvad-
- ites, and the Zemarites, and the Hamath-
- ites.
- 17 The sons of Shem: Elam, and Asshur,
- and Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram; "and
- the sons of Aram were" Uz, and Hul, and
- 18 Gether, and Meshech. And Arphaxad
- 19 "begot" Salah, and Salah begot Eber. And
- to Eber were born two sons: the name of
- the one was Peleg; because in his days the
- earth was divided; and his brother's name
- 20 was Joktan. And Joktan begot Almodad,
- and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah,
- 21 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah,
- 22 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba. And
- 23 Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab. All these
- were the progeny of Joktan.
- 24 Shem, Arphaxad, Salah, Eber, Peleg, Reu,
- 25 Serug, Nahor, Terah, Abram; the same
- 26 is Abraham. The sons of Abraham were
- Isaac and Ishmael.
- 27 These were their generations: the first-
- born of Ishmael, Nebaioth; then Kedar, and
- 30 Adbeel, and Mibsam, Mishma and Du-mah, Massa, Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, 31 Naphish, and Kedemah. These were the sons of Ishmael.

Now the sons which Keturah, Abraham's 32 concubine, bare to him, were Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah. And the sons of Jokshan: Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons 33 of Midian: Ephah, and Epher, and He-noch, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the progeny of Keturah. And Abra- 34 ham begot Isaac. The sons of Isaac were Esau and Israel.

The sons of Esau were Eliphaz, Reuel, 35 and Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah. The 36 sons of Eliphaz were Teman, and Omar, Zepho, and Gatam, Kenaz, and Amalek. The sons of Reuel were Nahath, Zerah, 37 Shammah, and Mizzah. And the sons of 38 Seir were Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, and Dishon, and Ezar, and Dishan. And the sons of Lotan were Hori, 39 and Homam: and Timna was Lotan's sister. The sons of Shobal were Alvan, and Mana- 40 hath, and Ebal, Shepho, and Onam. And the sons of Zibeon were Ajah, and Anah. The son of Anah was Dishon. And the 41 sons of Dishon were Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran. The sons of Ezar 42 were Bilhan, and Zaavan, and Akan. The sons of Dishan were Uz, and Aran.

Now these are the kings who reigned in 43 the land of Edom, before any king reigned over the Israelites; Bela, the son of Beor: and the name of his city was Dinhabah. And when Bela died, Jobab, the son of 44 Zerah of Bozrah, reigned in his stead. And when Jobab died, Husham of the land 45 of the Temanites reigned in his stead. And 46 when Husham died, Hadad, the son of Bedad, who smote Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his stead, and the name of his city was Avith. And when Hadad 47 died, Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead. And when Samlah died, Shaul of 48 Rehoboth on the river, reigned in his stead. And when Shaul died, Baal-hanan, the son 49 of Achbor, reigned in his stead. And when 50 Baal-hanan died, Hadad reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Pau;

CHAP. I. 1. Adam, Seth] The genealogy of this chapter differs little from that of Genesis, from which it was probably taken. Eichhorn hath observed, that in these genealogies the author has drawn his materials from Gen. x. 8, (compare 1 Chron. i. 10. &c.) and from the public tables preserved in their archives. For the author exhibits a more complete catalogue of some tribes and families than what we find given by Moses. The genealogy of some tribes and families is brought down to a lower period than that of others. The genealogy of the family of David is continued after the time of Zerubbabel, 1 Chron. iii. 19—24. Some things are related of the Simeonites which happened in the time of Hezekiah, chap. iv. 41. &c. The history of the priests and Levites ends with the siege of Jerusalem.

The catalogues of the Reubenites, Manassites, and Gadites, are short and imperfect. It is allowed that many errors have obtained in these catalogues; and that some names were added to them long after the time of Ezra.

17. The parallel place, Gen. x. 23, clearly shows that an omission has been made here; and the words ought to be restored.

18. 24. (v) Sept. begot Cainan, and Cainan begot Salah.

36. Teman] Timna was not a son of Eliphaz, but of his concubine, who brought forth Amalek. The word must either be omitted, or what is said in Gen. xxxvi. 12, inserted; but the omission is more consonant with the narrative.

(a) Teman

and his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Me-51 zahab. And when Hadad died, the princes of Edom, descended from Esau, were prince Timnah, prince Alvah, prince Jetheth.
 52 Prince Aholibamah, prince Elah, prince Pinon, Prince Kenaz, prince Teman, prince 54 Mibzar, Prince Magdiel, prince Iram. These were the princes of Edom.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1752. Genealogy from Jacob to David, and other Judahite genealogies through Hezron.

- 1 THESE were the sons of Israel: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah, Issachar, and
- 2 Zebulun, Dan, Joseph, and Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.
- 3 The sons of Judah: Er, and Onan, and Shelah: which three were born unto him of the daughter of Shuah, the Canaanitess. And Er, the first-born of Judah, was evil in the sight of Jehovah; and he slew him.
- 4 And Tamar, his daughter-in-law, bare to him Pharez and Zerah. All the sons of
- 5 Judah were five. The sons of Pharez were
- 6 Hezron and Hamul. And the sons of Zerah, were "Zabdi," and Ethan, and Heman, and Calcol, and Darda; five of them
- 7 in all. And the son of "Zabdi was Carmi," and the son of Carmi was Achar, the troubler of Israel, who transgressed in respect
- 8 to the devoted things. And the son of
- 9 Ethan was Azariah. The sons also of Hezron who were born to him, were Jerahmeel, and Aram, and Caleb. And Aram begot Aminadab, and Aminadab begot Nahshon, chief of the children of Judah; And Nahshon begot Salmon, and Salmon begot
- 12 Boaz, And Boaz begot Obed, and Obed begot Jesse, And Jesse begot Eliab, his first-born, and Abinadab, the second, and
- 14 Shimeah, the third, Nethaneel, the fourth, Raddai, the fifth, Ozem, the sixth, "Elihu,
- 16 the seventh, and David the eighth;" Whose sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. And the sons of Zeruiah; Abishai and Joab, and
- 17 Asahel, three. And Abigail bare Amasa: and the father of Amasa was Jether, an Ishmaelite.
- 18 And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot of Azubah his wife, Jerioth: whose sons are these: Jeshar, and Shobah, and Ardou.
- 19 And when Azubah was dead, Caleb took to him Ephraath, who bare to him Hur.
- 20 And Hur begot Uri, and Uri begot Bezaleel.

And afterwards Hezron went in to the 21 daughter of Machir, the father of Gilead, whom he married when he was sixty years old: and she bare to him Segub. And 22 Segub begot Jair, who had twenty-three cities in the land of Gilead. 'All these 23 cities belonged to the descendants of Machir;' but the Geshurites and Syrians took them from them, with the towns of Jair, with Kenath, and its towns, sixty cities. And after that Hezron was dead in Caleb- 24 ephratah, then Abiah, Hezron's wife, bare to him Ashur, the father of Tekoa.

And the sons of Jerahmeel, the first-born 25 of Hezron, were Ram the first-born, and Bunah, and Oren, and Ozem and Ahijah. Jerahmeel, had also another wife, whose 26 name was Atarah; she was the mother of Onam. And the sons of Ram, the first-born 27 of Jerahmeel, were Maaz, and Jamin, and Eker. And the sons of Onam were Sham- 28 mai and Jada. And the sons of Shammai were Nadab and Abishur. And the name 29 of the wife of Abishur was Abihail, and she bare to him Ahban and Molid. And the 30 sons of Nadab were Seled and Appaim: but Seled died without children. And the 31 son of Appaim was Ishi. And the son of Ishi was Sheshan. And the "daughter" of Sheshan was Ahlai. And the sons of Jada, 32 the brother of Shammai, were Jether and Jonathan: and Jether died without children. And the sons of Jonathan were 33 Peleth and Zaza. These were the sons of Jerahmeel.

Now Sheshan had no sons, but a daugh- 34 ter. And Sheshan had a servant, an Egyptian, whose name was Jarha. And She- 35 shan gave his daughter to Jarha, his servant, to wife; and she bare to him Attai. And Attai begot Nathan, and Nathan begot 36 Zabad, And Zabad begot Ephlail, and Eph- 37 lail begot Obed, And Obed begot Jehu, and 38 Jehu begot Azariah, And Azariah begot 39 Helez, and Helez begot Eleasah, And Ele- 40 asah begot Sisamai, and Sisamai begot Shallum, And Shallum begot Jekamiah, 41 and Jekamiah begot Elishama.

Now the sons of Caleb, the brother of 42 Jerahmeel, were Mesho his first-born, who was the father of Ziph: and his son was Mareshah, the father of Hebron. And the 43 sons of Mareshah, the father of Hebron, were Korah, and Tappuah, and Rekem, and Shema. And Shema begot Raham, the 44 father of Jorkoam: and Rekem begot CHAP. II. 6. Zabdi] I have followed the reading in Joshua, for the sake of uniformity.

7. I have supplied here, from Joshua vii. 1, as it is evident that the words added have been omitted.

15. I think it manifest from a comparison of the places where the sons of Jesse are mentioned, that he had eight, of whom David was the youngest. (a) Syr. Arab. chap. xxvii. 18, and 1 Sam. xvii. 12.

18. I have followed Geddes in this version; and, with him, consider Jerioth a daughter, whose sons were Jeshar, &c. 31. (v) verse 34.

45 Shammai. And the son of Shammai was Maon: and Maon was the father of Bethzur.
 46 And Ephah, Caleb's concubine, bare Haran, and Moza, and Gazez: and Haran begot 'Jahdai.' And the sons of Jahdai were Regem, and Jotham, and Gesham, and Pelet, and Ephrah, and Shaaph.
 48 Maachah, Caleb's concubine, bare Sheber, and Tirhanah. She bare also Shaaph, the father of Madmannah, Sheva, the father of Machbenan, and the father of Gibeah: and the daughter of Caleb was Achsah.
 50 These were the sons of Hur, the son of Caleb, the first-born of Ephratah; Shobal, the father of Kirjath-jearim; Salmon, the father of Bethlehem; Hareph, the father of Beth-gader. And Shobal, the father of Kirjath-jearim, had sons; Haroeh and half of the Manahethites. And the families of Kirjath-jearim were the Ithrites, and the Puhites, and the Shumathites, and the Mishraites; of them came the Zareathites, and the Eshtaulites. The sons of Salmon, the father of Bethlehem, peopled Netophath, Ataroth, the house of Joab, and half of Manaheth, and Zorath; And the families of the Sopherites who dwell at Jabez. The Tirathites, the Shimeathites, and Suchathites are Kenites who came from Hemath, the father of the house of Rechab.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1053. Genealogy from David through thirty generations.

1 Now these were the sons of David who were born to him in Hebron; the first-born, Ammon of Ahinoam, the Jezreelitess: the second, Daniel, of Abigail, the Carmelitess:
 2 The third, Absalom, the son of Maachah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur: the fourth, Adonijah, the son of Haggith:
 3 The fifth, Shephatiah of Abital: the sixth, Ithream, by Eglah his wife. These six were born to him in Hebron; and there he reigned seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years.
 5 And these were born to him in Jerusalem:

46. Jahdai] The context justifies this reading, and shows that some scribe repeated the name he had just been writing. (v) Next verse.

50. With Houbigant, I think that the two names have been transposed. For it is certain that Caleb was the son of Hezron, and not of Hur, and that Hur was the son of Caleb. Compare ver. 18, 19.

CHAP. III. 6—9. So the Sept. and this appears to be correct.

12. Uzziah] See 2 Kings xiv. and the note.

16. That errors have obtained here, cannot be doubted. All the versions have the sons of Jehoiakim; from which it seems that בני, his son, has been written by mistake after Jeconiah and Zedekiah, as both the Vulgate and Arabic omit the word.

17. The above remark applies to this verse; for בני after Salathiel is inconsistent with the first part of the text, 2 Kings xxiv. 15.

Shamuah, and Shobab, and Nathan, and Solomon, four, of Bathsheba the daughter of Eliam: Ithar also, and 'Elishuah,' and Elipheiet, And Nogah, and Nepheg, and Japhia, And Elishama, and Eliada, and 'Elipheleh,' nine. These were all the sons of David, besides the sons of the concubines. Tamar was their sister.

The son of Solomon was Rehoboam, 10 whose son was Abijah; Asa, his son; Jehoshaphat, his son; Joram, his son; Ahaziah, 11 his son, Joash, his son: Amaziah, his son; 12 'Uzziah,' his son; Jotham, his son; Ahaz, 13 his son; Hezekiah, his son; Manasseh, his son; Amon, his son; Josiah, his son: And 14 the sons of Josiah were, the first-born, Jehonathan, the second, Jehoiakim, the third, Zedekiah, the fourth, Shallum. And the sons of 16 Jehoiakim were 'Jeconiah and Zedekiah.'

And the sons of Jeconiah, the prisoner, 17 were 'Salathiel,' And Malchiram, and Pe- 18 daiah, and Shenazar, Jecamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah. And the sons of 'Salathiel' 19 were Zerubbabel and Shimei: and the sons of Zerubbabel were Meshullam and Hana- 20 niah, and Shelomith their sister: And 20 Hashubah, and Obel, and Berechiah, and Hasadiah, and Jushabhesed, five. And the 21 son of Hananiah was Pelatiah, and Isaiah, his son; Rephaiah, his son; Arnan, his son; Obadiah, his son; Shechaniah, his son. And the son of Shechaniah was Shemaiah: 22 and the sons of Shemaiah were Hattush, and Igeal, and Bariah, and Neariah, and 'Azariah,' and Shaphat six. And the sons 23 of Neariah were Elioenai, and Hezekiah, and Azrikam, three. And the sons of Eli- 24 enai, were Hodaiah, and Eliashib, and Pelatiah, and Akkub, and Johanan, and Dalaiah, and Anani, seven.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1300. Other genealogies from Judah.

THE sons of Judah were Pharez, Hezron, 1 and Carmi, and Hur, and Shobal. And 2 Reaiah, the son of Shobal, begot Jahath; and Jahath begot Ahumai, and Lahad.

19. As the versions read so variously, and as Zerubbabel is uniformly, except in the text, called the son of Salathiel, or Shealtiel, this is adopted as the true reading. He is seven times thus called in Ezra, Nehemiah, and Haggai. As our translators have here followed the Greek in spelling this name, and not the points, it is better to adhere to it in other places where it occurs. Ahid is mentioned as the son of Zerubbabel, Matt. i. 13, which is probably corrupted from Hananiah. 22. (u) Syr. Arab.

21. And Isaiah, his son] The present text makes Isaiah the son of Hananiah: but this is a mistake, owing to the change of a letter into another similar one; which mistake is four times repeated in this verse. The versions correct it.

24. This genealogy is brought down twelve or thirteen generations from the captivity; so that the names must have been added successively.

These are the families of the Zorathites.
 3 And these peopled Etam, Jezreel, and Ishma, and Idbash: and the name of their 4 sister was Hazeleponi: And Jahath begot Penuel, the father of Gedor and Ezer, the father of Hushah. These are the sons of Hur, the first-born of Ephratah, the father of Bethlehem.
 5 And Ashur, the father of Tekoa, had two
 6 wives, Helah and Naarah. And Naarah bare to him Ahuzam, and Hepher, and Temem, 7 Haahashtari. These were the sons of Naarah. And the sons of Helah were Zereth and 8 Jezoar, and Ethnan, and "Coz." And Coz begot Anub, and Zobebah, and the families
 9 of Aharel, the son of Harum. And Aharel begot Jabez, who was more honourable than his brethren: and his mother called his name Jabez, saying, Because I bare 10 him with sorrow. And Jabez called on the God of Israel, saying, Oh that thou wouldst bless me indeed, and enlarge my territory, and that thy hand may be with me, and that thou wouldst keep me from evil, that I may be no more sorrowful! And God granted him that which he requested.
 11 And Chelub, the brother of Shuah, begot
 12 Mehir, who was the father of Eshton. And Eshton begot Beth-rapha, and Passea, and Tehinnah, the father of Irnahash. These 13 are the men of Rechah. And the sons of Kenaz were Othniel and Seraiah: and the sons of Othniel were Hathath and Meonothai. And Meonothai begot Ophrah: and Ophrah begot Seraiah: and Seraiah begot Joab, who peopled the valley of Artisans;
 15 for they were artisans. And the sons of Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, were Iru, Elah, and Naam: and the sons of Elah
 16 were Kenaz and Jehaleleel. And the sons of Jehaleleel were Ziph, and Ziphah, Tiria, 17 and Asareel, and Ezra. And the sons of Ezra were Jether, and Mered, and Ephraim, and Jalon. And these were the sons of Bithiah, the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took;" Miriam, and Shammai, and 18 Ishbah, who peopled Eshtemoa. And his wife Jehudijah bare Jered, who peopled

Gedor, and Heber, who peopled Socho, and Jekuthiel, who peopled Zanoah. And the 19 sons of his wife Hodiah, the sister of Naham, were Shimon, the father of Keilah, the Garmite, and Eshtemoa, the Maachathite. And the sons of Shimon were Amnon, 20 and Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon, and Ishi. And the sons of Ishi were, Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.

The sons of Shelah, the son of Judah, 21 were Er, the father of Lecah, and Laadah, the father of Mareshah, and of the families of Beth-Ashbea, who manufactured cotton; And Jokim, and the men of Chozeba; 22 and Joash, and Saraph, who sojourned in Moab, but returned to Bethlehem and Hadobasim-achikim. These, and the inhabitants of Netaim and Gadera, were potters employed by the king in his own work.

And the sons of Simeon were Jemuel, 24 and Jamin, "and Ohad," "Jachin, Zohar," and Shaul: Shallum, his son; Mibsam, 25 his son; Mishma, his son; And Hanuel, 26 his son; Zaccur, his son; Shimei, his son. And Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brethren had not many children, nor did any of their families multiply, like the children of Judah. And they inhabited Beer-sheba, and Moladah, and Hazar-shual, And Balah, and Azem, and Eltolad, 29 And Bethul, and Hormah, and Ziklag, 30 And Beth-marcaboth, and Hazar-susah, and 31 Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuh. These were their cities unto the reign of David, with their villages. Etam also, and En-Rimmon, 32 and Tochen, "and Ether," and Ashan, five cities. And all the villages which were 33 round about the same cities, unto Baalath-beer-Ramoth. These were their habitations, and this their genealogy.

Now Meshobab, and Jamlech, and Jo- 34 shah, the son of Amaziah, And Joel, and 35 Jehu, the son of Josibiah, the son of Seraiah, the son of Asiel, And Elioenai, and Jaako- 36 bah, and Jeshohaiah, and Asaiah, and Adiel, and Jesimiel, and Benaiah, And Ziza, the 37 son of Shiphi, the son of Allon, the son of Jedaiah, the son of Shimri, the son of She- 38 maiah; These whose names have been 39

CHAP. IV. 7. (a) Chald.

9. Aharel begot Jabez] I have supplied, as in other instances. In the name, there is clearly a transposition of the letters, and it should be Jabez, as is clear from the reason of the name בעזב.

12. Men of Rechah] After this something is wanting, namely, who was the father of Kenaz.

17, 18. These two verses, as the text stands, are unintelligible. And she bare Miriam, &c. We are not told who bare them, which is necessary to the sense and the connexion, to distinguish the sons of this wife and those of Jehudijah. By transposing the last clause of the 18th verse, which now stands insulated, to the middle of the 17th, the whole seems natural and easy. The learned are indebted to Michaelis for this ingenious correction. If Bithiah was a daughter of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, it must have been a successor to him who had oppressed the Israelites, as Mered was the grandson of Caleb, who was but forty years old, when sent to spy out the land, Josh. xiv. 7. Some suppose Pharaoh the name given to an Israelite; but this is not very probable.

22, 23. This is the version of Coverdale and Matthewe, which is at least intelligible, and which cannot be said of the common one. It is partly supported by the Septuagint.

24. (a) Gen. xlv. 10. (v) Arab.

29—31. Compare the parallel place and notes. Josh. xv. 28, 29.

32. (a) Josh. xix. 7.

34—43. The Simeonites appear to have wanted room for their flocks and herds; and these heads of families undertook to extend themselves on the south, to Gedor, and into a part of the country of the Amalekites.

recounted were chiefs of their families; and as the house of their fathers increased 39 greatly, They went to the entrance of Gedor, to the east side of the valley, to seek pasture
 40 for the flocks. And they found fat and excellent pasture, and a spacious tract of land, quiet and peaceful; although the former inhabitants were of the race of Ham.
 41 And those above described by name, in the days of Hezekiah, king of Judah, sent and smote their tents, and other habitations which were found there; and destroyed them utterly unto this day, and dwelt in their stead, because there was pasture there
 42 for their flocks. And others of the progeny of Simeon, five hundred men, went to mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Neariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the 43 sons of Ishi. And they smote the remainder of the Amalekites who had escaped, and dwell there unto this day.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1300. Genealogy from Reuben, Jacob's first-born; of Gad and Manasseh.

1 Now the sons of Reuben, the first-born of Israel, (for he was the first-born; but because he defiled his father's bed, his birth-right was given to the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel; yet not so as that the genealogy should be reckoned after the birth-right: For although the birth-right was Joseph's, Judah prevailed above his brothers, and a chief was chosen from him)
 2 The sons of Reuben, the first-born of Israel, were Hanoch, and Pallu, and Hezron,
 3 and Carmi, "and Joel." The son of Joel was Shemaiah; Gog, his son; Shimei, his son;
 4 Micah, his son; Reaia, his son; Baal, his son; Beerah, his son, whom Tiglath-pileser,
 5 king of Assyria, carried away captive; he
 6 was chief of the Reubenites. And his brethren by their families, when the genealogy of their generations was reckoned,
 7 were Jeiel, the chief, and Zechariah. And Bela, the son of Azaz, the son of Shema, 8 the son of Joel, who inhabited all the country from Aroer, even unto Nebo and Baalmeon on the west; And eastward he inhabited unto the entrance of the wilderness which borders on the river Euphrates. For 9 their cattle were multiplied in the land of Gilead; And in the days of Saul they made 10 war on the Hagarites, who fell by their hand: and they dwelt in their tents throughout all the east land of Gilead.

And the Gadites dwelt over against them 11 in the land of Bashan unto Salcah. Joel was 12 the chief, and Shapham the next, and Jaanai, and Shaphat; all in Bashan. And their brethren of the house of their fathers were Michael, and Meshullam, and Sheba, and Jorai, and Jachan, and Zia, and Heber, seven. These are the children of Abihail, 14 the son of Huri, the son of Jaroah, the son of Gilead, the son of Michael, the son of Jeshishai, the son of Jahdo, the son of Buzahi. The son of Abdiel, the son of Guni, a paternal chief. And they inhabited Gilead in 16 Bashan. and its towns, and all the suburbs of Sharon, on their borders. All these were 17 reckoned by genealogies in the days of Jotham, king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, king of Israel. And the sons of 18 Reuben, and the Gadites. and half the tribe of Manasseh, of valiant men, men able to bear buckler and sword, and to shoot with bow, and skilful in war, were forty-four thousand seven hundred and sixty that went out to war. And they made war on the Hagarites, and on Jetur, and Nephish, and Nodab, who helped them. But the Hagarites 20 were delivered into their hand, and all who were with them: for they cried to God in the battle, and he was favourable to them; because they put their trust in him. And 21 of their enemies' cattle they took away fifty thousand camels, and two hundred and fifty thousand sheep, and two thousand asses, besides a hundred thousand men. Many 22 also fell down slain, because the war was from God. And they dwelt in their stead, until the captivity.

And the children of the half-tribe of Manasseh inhabited the land, from Bashan unto Baalhermon, and Senir, and unto mount Hermon: and they became numerous. And these were the paternal chiefs, 24 Ephraim, and Ishi, and Eliel, and Azriel, and Jeremiah, and Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. These paternal chiefs were men of valour, famous men; But they transgressed against 25 the God of their fathers, and went astray after the gods of the people of the land, whom God destroyed before them. And 26 the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Pul, king of Assyria, and the spirit of Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, and he carried

CHAP. V. 1, 2. What is included in a parenthesis, contains a reason why the genealogy of Reuben was not given first, he being the first-born son. By his sin he lost the privileges of the birth-right, which were a double portion of goods, and being honoured with some degree of civil authority over the rest. The first part of the birth-right Jacob gave to Joseph, allotting to his sons two portions of the land of Canaan; the latter part he gave to Judah, who was to be the head of the leading and ruling tribe, from whom Messiah was to spring. Yet, in the genealogy, Reuben was to be regarded as in reality Jacob's first-born.

3. (a) Next verse.

14. Buzahi Some render Ahi as a proper name, and others as an appellative, brother. The order of the narrative supports the rendering given.

22. Compare 2 Kings xv. 19, 29. xvii. 6. and xviii. 11.

them away, even the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, and brought them unto Halah, and Habor, and Hara, and to Nahar-gozan, where they remain unto this day.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1300. Genealogy from Levi, through the line of high-priests, down to the captivity, and to the reign of David.

- 1 THE sons of Levi were Gershon, Kohath,
- 2 and Merari. And the sons of Kohath were Amram, Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel.
- 3 And the children of Amram were Aaron, and Moses, and Miriam. The sons of Aaron were Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.
- 4 Eleazar begot Phinehas; Phinehas begot
- 5 Abishua; And Abishua begot Bukki; and
- 6 Bukki begot Uzzi; And Uzzi begot Zerahiah;
- 7 and Zerahiah begot Meraioth; Meraioth begot Amariah; and Amariah begot
- 8 Ahitub; And Ahitub begot Zadok; and
- 9 Zadok begot Ahimaaz; And Ahimaaz begot Azariah; and Azariah begot Johanan;
- 10 And Johanan begot that Azariah, (who executed the priest's office in the temple which Solomon built in Jerusalem,) and who withstood king Uziah.
- 11 And Azariah begot Amariah; and Amariah
- 12 begot Ahitub; And Ahitub begot Zadok;
- 13 and Zadok begot Shallum; And Shallum begot Hilkiah; and Hilkiah begot Azariah;
- 14 And Azariah begot Seraiah; and Seraiah
- 15 begot Josedech, and Josedech went into captivity, when Jehovah carried away Judah and Jerusalem, by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.
- 16 The sons of Levi were Gershon, Kohath,
- 17 and Merari. And these are the names of the sons of Gershon, Libni and Shimei.
- 18 And the sons of Kohath were Amram, and
- 19 Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel. The sons of Merari were Mahli and Mushi. And these are the families of the Levites according to their fathers. From Gershon the 20 descent was, Libni, his son; Jahath, his son; Zimmah, his son; Joah, his son, 21

 Iddo, his son; Zerah, his son; Jeaterai, his son. The progeny of Kohath was, 22
 'Izhar, his son; Korah, his son; And 23
 Ebiasaph, his son; and Assir, his son; Ta- 24 hath, his son; Uriel, his son; Uziah, his son; and Shaul, his son; And Elkanah, 25 his son; Amasai, his son; and Ahimoth, his son; Elkanah, his son; Zophai, his son; 26 and Nahath, his son; Elab, his son; Jero- 27 ham, his son; Elkanah, his son; "Samuel, his son." And the sons of Samuel were, 28
 'Joel," the first-born, and Abiah. The 29 sons of Merari were Mahli, and Libni, his son; Shimei, his son; Uzza, his son; 30 Shimei, his son; Haggiah, his son; Asaiah, his son. And these are they whom David 31 set over the singing service in the house of Jehovah, after the ark had rest therein. And they ministered before the congregation- 32 tabernacle with singing, until Solomon built the house of Jehovah in Jerusalem; and they then waited on their office according to their order. And these are they who waited, 33 with their sons. Of the sons of the Kohathites: Heman, chief-singer, the son of Joel, the son of Samuel, The son of Elkanah, the 34 son of Jeroham, the son of Eliel, the son of 'Nahath," The son of Zuph, the son of El- 35
 kanah, the son of Mahath, the son of Amasai, The son of Elkanah, the son of Joel, 36 the son of Azariah, the son of Zephaniah, The son of Tahath, the son of Assir, the son 37 of Ebiasaph, the son of Korah, The son of 38
 Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, the son of Israel.

And his brother Asaph stood on his right 39 hand; Asaph, the son of Berachiah, the son of Shimea, The son of Michael, the son of 40
 Baaseiah, the son of Malchiah, The son of 41
 Ethni, the son of Zerah, the son of Adaiah, The son of Ethan, the son of Zimmah, the 42 son of Shimei, The son of Jahath, the son of 43

CHAP. VI. 4. Eleazar begot] We have no account of the high-priests of the line of Ithamar: Eli and his successors, down to Abiathar, whom Solomon removed, and appointed Zadok in his stead. Was this interruption considered only in regard to the discharge of the office while the lineal descendant of Eleazar was looked upon as the real high-priest? From no mention being made of Eli, Ahitub, Ahimelech, or Abijah, and Abiathar, of the line of Ithamar, I suspect that the above distinction obtained. See Leves's Hebrew Antiq. vol. i. for the succession down to the time of our Lord.

6. Meraioth] Leves supposes that the high-priesthood passed from him to Eli. Poole and others think that it was in his father Uzzi's time.

8. And Ahitub] Compare 2 Samuel vii. 17, and xv. 27.

10. Johanan] Supposed to be the same as Jehoiada, 2 Kings xi. 4. — Azariah] Compare 2 Chron. xxvi. 17, 18. If he be the same Azariah who withstood Uziah's attempt, I suspect that this has dropped out of the text. All the high-priests, after the temple was built, executed the priest's office there, so that this could not be mentioned as any particular honour done to him.

11. Amariah] Perhaps the same as Urijah, who complied with Ahaz, and made the altar after the pattern sent him, 2 Kings xvi. 10.

13. Hilkiah] Compare 2 Kings xxii. 8.

14. Seraiah] He was slain at Riblah, by Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings xxv. 18, 21. He ended the line of high-priests, under the first temple.

22. Izhar, his son] The historian resumes each of the three branches of the Levitical families in a direct line. In removing a part of the confusion that is visible in this genealogy, I have been chiefly guided by the line of filiation in verses 33—38, corroborated by all the ancient versions. The names omitted are certainly interpolated, as appears by comparing the line of descent above referred to.

28. Joel] As the reading of the parallel place is supported by two versions, I deem it genuine.

31. In the house of Jehovah] That is, the tent which David prepared for the reception of the ark, when it was removed from Obed-Edom's. See chap. xvi. 1, and 2 Sam. vi. 12, &c.

- 44 Gershon, the son of Levi. And of their brethren of the sons of Merari, who stood on Heman's left hand, was Ethan, the son of Kishi, the son of Abdi, the son of Maluch, The son of Hashabiah, the son of 45 Amaziah, the son of Hilkiah, The son of 47 Amzi, the son of Bani of Shamer, The son of Mahli, the son of Mushi, the son of Merari, the son of Levi. Their brethren also the Levites were appointed to all manner of service about the tabernacle of the house of God.
- 49 But Aaron and his sons offered upon the altar of burnt-offering, and on the altar of incense; and were appointed for all the work of the most holy place, and to make an atonement for Israel, according to all that Moses, the servant of God, had commanded.
- 50 And these are the sons of Aaron: Eleazar, his son; Phinehas, his son; Abishua, his 51 son; Bukki, his son; Uzzi, his son; Zerahiah, his son; Meraihoth, his son; Amariah, his son; Ahitub, his son; Zadok, his son; Ahimaaz, his son.
- 54 Now these are the dwelling-places of the sons of Aaron, of the families of the Kohathites, for theirs was the "first" lot. 'And they had given to them, by lot, out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, and out of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, these cities which are afterwards named.'
- 55 And they had given to them in the land of Judah, Hebron with its surrounding suburbs. But the fields of the city, and its villages, they gave to Caleb, the son of Je-phunneh. To the sons of Aaron then were given, out of the cities of Judah, and of Simeon, Hebron, a city of refuge, and Libnah, with its suburbs; and Jattir, and Esh-temoa, with their suburbs; And Holon, with its suburbs; and Debir, with its 59 suburbs; And Ashan, with its suburbs; "and Juttah, with its suburbs;" and Bethshemesh with its suburbs. And out of the cities of the tribe of Benjamin, "Gibeon, with its suburbs;" Geba, with its suburbs; and Alemeth, with its suburbs; and Anathoth, with its suburbs. All their cities throughout their families were thirteen cities.
- 61 And to the remaining sons of Kohath, of the family of the tribe of Levi, ten cities were given, by lot, "out of the inheritance of the tribes of Ephraim and Dan, and of" the 66 half tribe of Manasseh. And some of the remaining families of the son of Kohath had cities 'by lot,' out of the tribe of Ephraim. And they had given to them, 67 Shechem, a city of refuge in mount Ephraim, with its suburbs: also Gezer with its suburbs; And 'Kibzaim,' with its suburbs, 68 and Beth-horon with its suburbs. 'And out of the midst of the tribe of Dan, they had Eltekeh, with its suburbs; Gibbethon with its suburbs;" And Ajalon, with its suburbs; 69 and Gath-rimmon, with its suburbs. And out of the cities of the half tribe of Manasseh; "Tanach," with its suburbs, and 'Bethshean," with its suburbs. These were given to the remaining families of the sons of Kohath. And to the sons of Gershon, according 62 to their families, were given thirteen cities out of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the tribe of Manasseh, in Bashan. To the sons of Gershon were given out of 71 the family of the half tribe of Manasseh, Golan, a 'city of refuge' in Bashan, with its suburbs; and Ashtaroth, with its suburbs. And out of the tribe of Issachar, 'Kishon," 72 with its suburbs; Daberath, with its suburbs; And 'Jarmuth," with its suburbs; and 'En-gannim" with its suburbs; And out of the 74 tribe of Asher, Mishal, with its suburbs; and Abdon, with its suburbs; And 'Helkath," with its suburbs; and Rehob, with its suburbs. And out of the tribe of Naphtali; Kedesh in Galilee, "a city of refuge," with its suburbs, and Hammoth-dor, with its suburbs; and Kirjathaim, with its suburbs. 'Unto the sons of Merari were 63 given by lot twelve cities, according to their families, out of the tribe of Reuben, out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun:" Out of the tribe 77 of Zebulun, were given to the sons of Merari, 'Joknean, with its suburbs; Kartah, with its suburbs;" "Dimnah, with its suburbs; Nahalel, with its suburbs:" And on the other side of the Jordan by 78 Jericho, on the east side of the Jordan, were given to them out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer in the wilderness, a city of refuge, with its suburbs; and Jahaza, with its suburbs; Kedemoth, also with its suburbs; 79 and Mephaath, with its suburbs: And out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead, with its suburbs; and Mahanaim, with its suburbs; And Heshbon, with its suburbs; and 81 Jazer, with its suburbs. 'Thus the children 64 of Israel gave to the Levites these cities with their suburbs."

54. The following account of the Levitical cities is both miserably corrupted and misarranged. The parallel place, Joshua xxi. establishes the above remark, and affords assistance to correct the errors and restore the order of the text here. I am indebted to Geddes for the arrangement, only I make the 64th verse the conclusion, a repetition usual on other occasions. Geddes unites the 54th and 64th verses together, unnaturally, in my opinion. As the corrections are founded on Joshua, it is necessary to observe, that internal and collateral evidence supports that copy, in preference to this.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1444. Genealogy from Issachar, Benjamin, Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, and Asher.

- 1 Now the sons of Issachar were Tola, and
- 2 Puah, Jashub, and Shimron, four. And the sons of Tola were Uzzi, and Rephaiah, and Jeriel, and Jahmai, and Jibsam, and Samuel, paternal chiefs from Tola: they were valiant men in their generations; whose number in the days of David was twenty-
- 3 two thousand six hundred. And the son of Uzzi was Izrahiah: and the sons of Izrahiah were Michael, and Obadiah, and Joel, and Ishiah * five: all of them chief
- 4 men. And with them according to their genealogies, by their paternal descent, were bands of soldiers for war, in the days of David, six and thirty thousand: for they
- 5 had many wives and sons. And their brethren among all the families of Issachar, valiant men, reckoned according to their genealogies, were in all eighty-seven thousand.
- 6 The sons of Benjamin were Bela, and
- 7 Becher, and Jediahel, three. And the sons of Bela; Ezbon, and Uzzi, and Uzziel, and Jerimoth, and Iri, five; paternal chiefs, mighty men of valour; and, reckoned according to their genealogies, were, in the days of David, twenty-two thousand and
- 8 thirty-four. And the sons of Becher were Zemira, and Joash, and Eliezer, and Elioenai, and Omri, and Jerimoth, and Abiah, and Anathoth, and Alameth. All these
- 9 were the sons of Becher. And the number sprung from these paternal chiefs, according to their genealogies, mighty men of valour, were twenty thousand and two hundred.
- 10 The son of Jediahel was Bilhan: and the sons of Bilhan were Jeush and Benjamin, and Ehud, and Chenaanah, and Ze-
- 11 than, Tarshish, and Ahishashar. All these were the sons of Jediahel, paternal chiefs, mighty men of valour, whose progeny were seventeen thousand and two hundred, fit
- 12 to go out for war and battle. Shuppim and Huppim were the sons of Ir: and Hushim was the son of Aher.
- 13 The sons of Naphtali were Jahziel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shallum; the sons of Bilhah.

The sons of Manasseh: Ashriel, whom 14 * bare. His Syrian concubine bare to him Machir, the father of Gilead: And Machir 15 took to wife Maachah, the sister of Huppim and Shuppim. And Maachah, the wife of 16 Machir, bare a son, and she called his name Peresh; and the name of his brother was Sheresh; whose sons were Ulam and Rakem. And the son of Ulam was Bedan. 17 These were the sons of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh. And his sis- 18 ter Hamnoleketh bare Ishod, and Abiezer, and Mahalah, and Shemidah. And the 19 sons of Shemidah were Ahian, and Shechem, and Likhhi, and Aniam.

And the son of Ephraim was Shuttelah: 20 and Bered, his son; and Tahath, his son; and Eladali, his son; and Tahath, his son; And Zabad, his son; and his sons were, 21 Shuthelah, and Ezer, and Elead, whom the men of Gath, the natives of the land, slew, because they came down to take away their cattle. And Zabad their father mourned 22 for them many days, and his brethren came to comfort him. And when he went in to 23 his wife, she conceived and bare a son, and he called his name Beriah [IN CALAMITY], because his house was then in calamity. And his daughter was Sherah, who built 24 Beth-horon the nether, and the upper, and Uzzen-sherah. Rephah also was his son; 25 and Resheph, his son; and Telah, his son; and Tahan, his son; Laadan, his son; Am- 26 mihud, his son; Elishama, his son; Nun, 27 his son; Joshua, his son. And their pos- 28 sessions and habitations were Bethel and its villages; and eastward Naaran, and west- ward Gezer, with their villages; Shechem also and its villages, Gaza and its villages. And in the territories of the children of 29 Manasseh, Beth-shean and its villages; Taanach and its villages; Megiddo and its villages; Dor and its villages. In these dwelt the children of Joseph, the son of Israel.

The sons of Asher were Imnah, and 30 Ishuai, and Beriah, and Serah, CHAP. VII. 3. A name is either wanting or the number is wrong, as four only are mentioned.

6. Compare this with Gen. xvi. 21, and Numb. xxvi. 38.

12. This verse has probably been inserted by mistake, as we have no account of Ir, the father of Huppim and Shuppim; and Hushim is slated to be one of the sons of Dan, Gen. xlii. 33. Geddes conjectures that the genealogy of Dan stood here originally.

13. Nearly the whole of the progeny of Naphtali is omitted.

15. How the words omitted got into the text, it is difficult to ascertain; but surely this is not their proper place; nor do they appear to be connected with any part of the narrative. Some scribe might have had Josh. xvii. 3, in his head. (o) And the name of the second was Zelophehad; and Zelophehad had daughters.

21. To take away their cattle] This expedition, according to the Chaldee paraphrast, happened thirty years before the departure of the Israelites from Egypt. They were accompanied, according to the same paraphrast, with a great army.

22. Zabad] Six generations are mentioned from Ephraim; and it is not probable, that the author who had just informed us that the men of Gath had slain the sons of Zabad, would tell us that Ephraim, the head of a tribe, and who lived six generations before, should lament them. I have, therefore, substituted Zabad, which is, doubtless, the proper name. This makes the following account consistent.

29. In the territories] Not by the boundaries: which makes the reader imagine that the towers after mentioned belonged to the tribe of Ephraim; whereas they belonged to the Manassites. Compare Josh. xvii. 11.

31 their sister. And the sons of Beriah were Heber and Malchiel, who is the father of 32 Birzavith. And Heber begot Japhlet, and Shomer, and Hotham, and Shua, their 33 sister. And the sons of Japhlet were Pasach, and Bimhal, and Ashvath. These 34 are the children of Japhlet. And the sons of Shamer were Ahi, and Rohgah, Jehub- 35 bah, and Aram. And the sons of his brother Helem were Zophah, and Imna, and 36 Shelesh, and Amal. The sons of Zophah were Suah, and Harnepher, and Shual, and 37 Beri, and Imrah, Bezer, and Hod, and Shamma, and Shilshah, and Ithra, and 38 Beera. And the sons of Jether were 39 Jephunneh, and Pispah, and Ara. And the sons of Ulla were Arah, and Haniel, 40 and Rezia. All these were the children of Asher, heads and paternal chiefs, chosen and mighty men of valour. And the number of those fit for war and battle, reckoned by their genealogy, was twenty-six thousand men.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1400. Another genealogy of Benjamin; pedigree of Saul and Jonathan.

1 Now Benjamin begot Bela his first-born; Ashbel, the second; and "Ahiram," the 2 third; Naaman, the fourth; and "Shupham," the fifth; "and Hupham, the sixth; 3 and Ard, the seventh." And the sons of Bela were "Ard," and Gera, and Abihud. 4 And the sons of Abihud were Abishua, and 5 Naaman, and Ahoah, And Gera, and 6 "Shuphan," and Huram. And these are the sons of Abihud: these are the paternal chiefs of the inhabitants of Geba, who were 7 removed to Manahath. "And Gera, who removed them, begot Uzza, and Ahihud, 8 and Shaharaim. And Shaharaim begot children in the country of Moab, after he had sent away his wives, Hushim and 9 Baara. And he begot of Hodesh, his wife, Jobab, and Zibia, and Mesha, and Malcham, And Jeuz, and Shachia, and Mirma. 10 These were his sons, paternal chiefs. And of Hushim, he had begotten Abitub, and 12 Elpaal. The sons of Elpaal were Eber, and Losham, and Shamed, who built Ono, 13 and Lod, with its villages. Beriah also, and Shema, who were the paternal chiefs of the inhabitants of Aijalon, who drove away the inhabitants of Gath. And Ahio, 14 Shushak, and Jeremoth, And Zebadiah, 15 and Arad, and Ader, And Michael, and Is- 16 pah, and Joha, were the sons of Beriah. And Zebadiah, and Meshullam, and He- 17 zeki, and Heber, And Ishmerai, and Jez- 18 liah, and Jobab, were the sons of Elpaal. And Jakim, and Zichri, and Zabdi, And 19 Elienai, and Zilthai, and Eliel, And Adaiah, 21 and Beraiah, and Shimrath, were the sons of "Semah;" And Ishpan, and Heber, and 22 Eliel, And Abdon, and Zichri, and Hanan, 23 And Hanaiah, and Elam, and Antothijah, 24 And Ipheideiah, and Penuel, were the sons 25 of Shashak. And Shamsherai, and Sheha- 26 riah, and Athaliah, And Jaresiah, and 27 Eliah, and Zichri, were the sons of Jeroham. These, according to their genealo- 28 gies, were paternal chiefs, chiefs who dwelt in Jerusalem. And at Gibeon dwelt "Je- 29 hiel," the father of Gibeon, whose wife's name was Maachah: And his sons were 30 Abdon, and Zur, and Kish, and Baal, and Nadab, "and Ner," And Gedor, and Ahio, 31 and Zacher, "and Mikloth." And Mikloth 32 begot Shimeah. And these also dwelt contiguous to their brethren in Jerusalem.

And Ner begot Kish, and Kish begot 33 Saul, and Saul begot Jonathan, and Melchisua, and Abinadab, and Ish-baal. And 34 the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal; and Merib-baal begot Micah. And the sons of 35 Micah were Pithon, and Melech, and Tarea, and Ahaz. And Ahaz begot Jehoada; and 36 Jehoada begot Alemeth, and Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begot Moza, And 37 Moza begot Binea: Rapha, his son; Eleasah, his son; Azel, his son: And Azel had 38 six sons, whose names are these, Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and Sheariah, and Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Azel. And the sons of Eshek, his 39 brother, were Ulam his first-born, Jehush, the second, and Eliphelet, the third. And 40 the sons of Ulam were men of valour, archers, and had many sons; and sons' sons, a hundred and fifty. All these were the sons of Benjamin.

Thus Israel were reckoned by genealo- 1

CHAP. VIII. 1, 2. I have adopted the reading of Numbers, as genuine, because the families sprung from the sons of Benjamin are there mentioned, where errors could not so easily obtain as in Genesis and here.

6. Abihud] This reading is retained by the Syriac, (except changing the 7 into 7) and the Arabic justifies the italic supplement, verse 4.

7. With Houbigant the two first names are omitted as repeated from the 4th verse. As Gera is expressly said to remove them, that is, to be the leader of the colony, it is not proper to notice other two as leaders.

16. Were the sons] That is, the descendants: for many of these lived, most probably, in the days of David. The same remark will apply to the other lists of names,

28. Who dwelt in Jerusalem] Jerusalem was composed of Judahites, Levites, and Benjamites; besides, no doubt, the chiefs of other tribes, who occasionally resided there, before the division of the kingdoms.

29. The last ten verses of chap. ix. are the same as these, containing some better readings; which are here noticed and adopted.

31. And Mikloth] The other copy, chap. ix. 37, shows how errors have crept into the genealogies. A name being repeated twice, the scribe in haste has only written it once.

CHAP. IX. 1. This verse is joined to the preceding chapter, as closing the genealogies, which were found in the preserved records of the kings of Israel and Judah.

gies; and, behold, these were found written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah, when the people were carried away to Babylon, for their transgression.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1200. Those who inhabited the land after the captivity; and particularly those who resided at Jerusalem.

- 2 Now the first who dwell in their possessions, in their cities, Israelites, Priests, Levites, and Nethinims, were these. In Jerusalem dwelt of the posterity of Judah, and of the posterity of Benjamin, and of the posterity of Ephraim, and Manasseh;
- 4 Uthai, the son of Ammihub, the son of Omri, the son of Imri; the son of Bani, of the children of Pharez, the son of Judah.
- 5 And of the Shilonites; Asaiah, the first-born, and his sons. And of the progeny of Zerah; Jeuel. These and their brethren
- 7 were six hundred and ninety. And of the sons of Benjamin; Sallu, the son of Meshullam, the son of Hodaviah, the son of
- 8 Hasenuah; And Ibneiah, the son of Jeroham, and Elah, the son of Uzzi, the son of Michri; and Meshullam, the son of Shephathiah, the son of Reuel, the son of Ib-nijah. These and their brethren, according
- 9 to their genealogies, were nine hundred and fifty-six. All these, by their descents, were paternal chiefs.
- 10 And of the priests were Jedaiah, and Je-hoiarib, and Jachin, And Azariah, (the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of
- 12 Ahitub,) the ruler of the house of God; And Adaiah, (the son of Jeroham, "the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah," the son of Pashur, the son of Malchijah,) and Maasiai, (the son of Adiel, the son of Jahzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer;)
- 13 These paternal chiefs, and their brethren, were one thousand seven hundred and sixty; very able men for the work of the ministry, in the house of God.
- 14 And of the Levites, of the sons of Merari, were Shemaiah, (the son of Hashub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah,)
- 15 And Bakkabkar, and Mattaniah, (the son of Micah, the son of Zichri, the son of
- 16 Asaph;) And Obadiah, (the son of She-maiah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun,) and Berechiah, (the son of Asa, the son of Elkanah,) who dwelt in the villages of Netophath. And the door-keepers of the 17 temple were Shallum, and Akkub, and Talmon, and Ahiman, and their brethren: (Shallum was the chief;) At the king's 18 gate eastward, these were door-keepers, according to the fixed stations of the children of Levi. For Shallum, (the son of Kore, 19 the son of Ebiasaph, the son of Korah,) and his brethren, of the house of his father, the Korahites, in the work of the ministry were gate-keepers of the temple, as their fathers were keepers of the entrance of the taber-nacle, during the encampments of Jehovah: When Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, was, in 20 time past, ruler over them, before Jehovah; 'And with him' was Zechariah, the son of 21 Meshelemiah, the door-keeper of the congrega-tion-tabernacle. All those chosen to 22 be door-keepers, were two hundred and twelve. These were reckoned by their genealogy in their villages, as David and Samuel, the seer, had appointed their fore-fathers, in their set office. So they and 23 their children had the oversight of the gates of the house of Jehovah, or the tabernacle, by wards. At the four sides of the temple 24 were the door-keepers posted; towards the east, west, north, and south. And their bre- 25 thren who were in their villages were to suc-ceed them, by turns, every seven days. For 26 those Levites were under the trust of the four chief door-keepers, who were over the store-rooms and treasuries of the house of God. They, therefore, lodged around the house of 27 God, because they had the charge of it, and the opening of it every morning belonged to them. And some of them had the charge 28 of the ministering vessels, which they were to bring in and out by tale. Some of them 29 also were appointed to take care of the vessels, and all the utensils of the sanctuary, and the fine flour, and the wine, and the oil, and the incense and the spices. But the 30 sons of the priests made the aromatic ointment. And Mattithiah, one of the Levites, 31 who was the first-born of Shallum, the Ko-rahite, had the trust of such things as were made in the frying-pans. And others of 32 their brethren of the Kohathites had the charge of arranging the presence-bread, and of preparing it every sabbath. Now these 33

Compare Josh. ix. 27, and 1 Kings ix. 20.

11. Azariah, the ruler] That is, after the captivity, under the high-priest Joshua. Compare Ezra iii.

12. If the account in Nehemiah xi. xii. xiii. be correct, some names are omitted here, and others in some of the places are corrupted. By adding the three names from Nehemiah, the deficiency here is supplied; and whoever compares the original will easily see how the other might be corrupted.

15. The names omitted are inconsistent with the parallel place. One of them occurs in the next verse in its proper place, Nehem. xi. 17.

keepers" of the temple, paternal chiefs of the Levites, were lodged in the chambers, which were about the temple; because day and night they were employed. These were the paternal chiefs of the Levites, who, according to their genealogies, dwelt at Jerusalem. °

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1056. History of the life and death of Saul, the first king of Israel.

- 1 Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and they lay slaughtered on
- 2 mount Gilboa. And the Philistines closely followed Saul and his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and
- 3 Melchi-shua, the sons of Saul. The battle was then chiefly against Saul, and the archers hit him, and he was wounded by the
- 4 archers. Then said Saul to his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through with it; lest these uncircumcised come and insult me. But his armour-bearer would not; for he was greatly afraid. Saul, therefore, took a sword and fell upon
- 5 it. And when his armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he likewise fell on his sword
- 6 and died. So Saul, and his three sons, "and his armour-bearer" and all his "men,"
- 7 died together. And when all the men of Israel, who were in the valley, saw that the men of Israel had fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, then they forsook their cities and fled also; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.
- 8 And on the morrow when the Philistines came to strip the slain they found Saul and his "three" sons fallen on mount Gilboa.
- 9 And when they had stripped him, they took his head and his armour, and sent them about through the land of the Philistines; to publish it in the temples of their idols,
- 10 and among the people. And they put his armour in the temple of one of their gods; and his head they fixed up in the temple of Dagon, "and his body they hung up by the
- 11 walls of Beth-shan." But when "the inhabitants" of Jabesh-gilead heard all that the
- 12 Philistines had done to Saul, All the valiant men arose, "and went all night" and

33. These keepers] The reading of the Syriac makes this passage, which is so confused and almost unintelligible, in the common version, clear and consistent with the narrative. The last ten verses of this chapter are the same as those in chap. viii. 29—40, and are omitted here.

CHAP. X. 1—6. Compare with this, 1 Sam. xxxi. 5.

7. Men of Israel] So the parallel place, which removes the ambiguity; but as it is not essentially necessary I have added it in Italics. 8. (a) 1 Sam. xxxi. 7.

10. In the temple of] In the temple of Ashtaroth. See 1 Sam. xxxi. 10. In the following verses the readings of the parallel places are adopted, as they are supported by the versions, and as they are more full and perspicuous.

13, 14. The text is badly divided; the first words of the last verse belong to the preceding one.—Not consulting Jehovah] This seems opposed to what is said in 1 Sam.

took away the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh; "and there they burned them," and buried their bones under a tamarisk tree in Jabesh; and they fasted seven days.

Thus died Saul for his transgression which 13 he committed against Jehovah, both by not keeping the word of Jehovah, and by consulting a necromancer, and not consulting Jehovah. Thus he was slain; and the 14 royal power was transferred to David, the son of Jesse.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1048. David made king at Hebron; takes Jebus, and the catalogue of his worthies.

THEN all Israel assembled to David to 1 Hebron, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh. And, moreover, in time past 2 when Saul was king, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest back Israel: and Jehovah, thy God, said to thee, Thou shalt tend as a shepherd my people Israel, and thou shalt be ruler over my people Israel. Thus came all the elders of Israel to the 3 king to Hebron; and David made a covenant with them in Hebron before Jehovah; and they anointed David king over Israel, according to the word of Jehovah by Samuel.

Then David and all Israel went to Jeru- 4 salem which was called Jebus; where the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, still dwelt. And the inhabitants of Jebus said 5 to David, Thou canst not come in hither. Nevertheless, David took the citadel of Zion, which is now the city of David. And 6 David said, Whosoever first smiteth the Jebusites shall be chief captain. So Joab, the son of Zeruiah, went first up, and was made chief captain. And David dwelt 7 in the citadel; they, therefore, called it the city of David. And he rebuilt the city 8 round about, from Millo; but the rest of the "city" Joab had preserved. And David 9 continued growing greater and greater: for Jehovah of hosts was with him.

Now these are the principal worthies, who 10 belonged to David, who, with all Israel, supported him in his claims to the kingdom, by making him king, according to the word of xxviii. 6. It may be said that, though he sought to God, it was not in sincerity and patient submission. Because Jehovah did not answer at the time, or in the manner he expected, he sought for a necromancer.

CHAP. XI. 2. Tend as a shepherd] This is the meaning of the verb רועה; and implies not only feeding, but all the care which a shepherd exercises over his flock.

8. Had preserved] This verse has given great trouble to commentators. I think the meaning is clear. Joab only smote the Jebusites who were in the citadel, and spared the rest. The Hebrew word never signifies to repair, or rebuild, but to preserve alive, &c. Hence, the term city is used metonymically for the inhabitants.

10—41. Compare 2 Sam. xxiii. 8—39, and the notes there.

- 11 Jehovah concerning Israel. This then is the number of the worthies, who belonged to David.
- Jashobeam, a Hachmonite, was chief of the first three. He, at one time, raising his spear, penetrated through three hundred
- 12 men. And next to him, and one of the three first worthies, was Eleazar, the son of
- 13 Dodo, the Ahohite. He was with David at Pas-dammim, where the Philistines were assembled to battle, and the men of Israel were giving way: and he arose and smote the Philistines, until his hand, which had stuck to his sword, was weary: and by him, Jehovah, that day, wrought a great deliverance; and the people followed him only to spoil.
- 14 And next to him was Shammah, the son of Agee, the Hararite. "And the Philistines were assembled at Lechi, where was a piece of ground full of 'barley:' and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stood in the midst of the ground and defended it, and smote the Philistines: thus, by him, Jehovah wrought a great deliverance."
- 15 These three chiefs of the thirty went down to David, to the rock, unto the cave of Adullam; and the hosts of the Philistines were encamped in the valley of Rephaim.
- 16 Now, while David was in that hold, and a garrison of the Philistines was at Bethlehem; David longed, and said, Who will give me a draught of water from the well of
- 17 Bethlehem which is by the gate! Then those three broke through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Bethlehem, which is by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David. But David would not drink it, but poured it
- 18 out as a drink-offering to Jehovah. And he said, Far be it from me, O my God, that I should do this thing: shall I drink the life-blood of these men? For at the risk of their lives they brought it. He would not therefore drink it. These things did these three worthies.
- 20 And Abishai, the brother of Joab, was chief of the second three. For he, raising his spear, penetrated through three hundred, and slew them, and had a name among
- 21 the second three. Of the three, he was more honourable than the two, and was their chief; yet he attained not the rank of the
- 22 first three. Next to him was Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, (the son of a wealthy man of Kabzeel,) great in exploits; he slew two large lions of Moab: also he went down and slew a lion in a pit on a snowy day.
- And he slew an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits high; and though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand like a weaver's beam, yet he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear. These things did Benaiah, the 24 son of Jehoiada; and hence had a name among the second three worthies. Behold, 25 he was more honourable than the thirty, but attained not to the rank of the first three. And David set him over his own guard. And the other valiant men of the host were 26 Asahel, the brother of Joab, and one of the second three worthies, Elhanan, the son of Dodo, of Bethlehem; Shammah, the Ha- 27 rodite, "Elika, the Harodite;" Helez, the Pelonite; Ira, the son of Ikkes, the Teko- 28 ite; Abi-ezer, the Anathothite; Sibbecai, 29 the Hushathite; Ilai, the Ahohite; Maha- 30 rai, the Netophathite; Heled, the son of Baanah, the Netophathite; Ittai, the son of 31 Ribai, from Gibeah, of the children of Benjamin; Benaiah, the Pirathonite; Hurai, 32 of Nahal-Gaash; Abialbon, the Arabathite; Azmaveth, the Baharumite; Eliahba, the 33 Shaalbonite; Beni-Hashem, a Gizonite; Jonathan, the son of Shammah, the Harar- 34 ite; Ahiam, the son of Shacar, the Harar- 35 ite; Eliphalet, the son of "Ahashbai," "the Maacathite;" Eliham, the son of Ahitho- 36 phel, the Gilonite. Hezrai, the Carmelite; 37 Naarai, the son of "Arabai, the Arbite;" Joel, the son of Nathan of Zobah; Bani, 38 the Gadite; Zelek, the Ammonite; Nahari, 39 the Berothite, armour-bearer to Joab, the son of Zeruiah; Ira, the Ithrite; Gareb, 40 the Ithrite.
- Also among David's brave men were 41 Uriah, the Hethite; Zabab, the son of Ahlai; Adina, the son of Shiza, the Reu- 42 benite, a captain of the Reubenites, and thirty with him; Hanan, the son of Maa- 43 chah; and Joshaphat, the Mithnite; Uzzi- 44 the Ashterathite; Shama, and Jehiel, the sons of Hothan, the Aroerite; Jediahel, the 45 son of Shimri; and Joha, his brother, the Tizite; Eliel, the Mahavite; and Jeribai, 46 and Joshaviah, the sons of Elnaam; and Ithmah, the Moabite; Eliel, and Obed, 47 and Jasiel, the Mesobaite.

Now these are they who came to David 1 to Ziklag, when he shut himself up on account of Saul, the son of Kish; and were

2 among his brave assistants in the war. Of the Benjamites, Saul's own brethren, were the following, armed with bows; who could throw stones from the sling, or arrows from the bow, either with the right hand, or the left. Ahiezer, (who was chief,) then Joash, the sons of Shemmaah, the Gibeathite; and Jeziel and Pelet, the sons of Azmaveth; and Berachah and Jehu, the Antothite; 4 And Ismaiah, the Gibeonite, the most valiant among thirty, and the chief of thirty; and Jeremiah, and Jahaziel, and Johanan, and Josabab, the Gederathite; Eluzai, and Jerimoth, and Bealiah, and Shemariah, and 6 Shephatiah, the Haruphite; Elkanah and Jesiah; and Azareel, and Joezer, and Jashobeam, Korahites; And Joelah and Zebadiah, the sons of Jeroham, of Gedor. 8 And of the Gadites there came over to David unto the strong hold in the wilderness, valiant men, men fit for war; who could handle shield and buckler, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and swift as the antelopes upon the mountains; Ezer, the first; Obadiah, the second; Eliab, the 10 third; Mishmannah, the fourth; Jeremiah, the fifth; Attai, the sixth; Eliel, the seventh; Johanan, the eighth; Elzabad, the 12 ninth; Jeremiah, the tenth; Machbanai, the eleventh. These, of the sons of Gad, were captains of the host: the least of them was over a hundred, and the greatest over 15 a thousand. These are they who went over the Jordan, in the first month, when it had overflowed all its banks; and they put to flight all the inhabitants of the valleys, towards the east, and towards the west. 16 Now, when some of Benjamin and Judah came to the strong hold unto David; David went out to meet them, and addressed them, and said, If ye come peaceably to help me, my heart shall be one with yours; but if to betray me to mine enemies, although I have done no wrong, may the God of our 18 fathers see and reprove you. Then Amasai, chief of those captains, moved in spirit, said, Thine are we, David, and on thy side, thou son of Jesse; peace, peace be unto thee, and peace be to thy helpers; for thy God helpeth thee. Then David received them, and made them captains of bands.

And there fell some of the tribe of Manasseh 19 to David, when he went with the Philistines against Saul to battle; but he helped them not. For the lords of the Philistines, on deliberation, sent him away, saying, He will fall to his master Saul, at the price of our heads. As he went to Ziklag, there fell to 20 him of Manasseh Adnah, and Jozabad, and Jediah, and Michael, and Jozahad, and Elihu, and Zilthai, captains of thousands in Manasseh. And they helped David against 21 the horde of the Amalekites, for they were all of them men of valour, and captains of the host. Thus at that time, day by day, 22 they came to David's assistance, until he had a great and powerful host.

And these are the number of the bands 23 armed for war, who came to David to Hebron, to transfer the kingdom of Saul to him, according to the word of Jehovah. Of 24 the Judahites there were six thousand and eight hundred, who bore shield and lance, armed for war. Of the Simeonites, men of 25 valour, fit for war, seven thousand and one hundred. Of the Levites, four thousand and 26 six hundred. And Jehoiada was the leader 27 of the Aaronites, and with him were three thousand and seven hundred; And Zadok, 28 a young man, mighty in valour, and twenty-two chiefs of his father's house. And of 29 the Benjamites, the kindred of Saul, three thousand: for as yet the greatest part of them adhered to the house of Saul. And 30 of the Ephraimites, twenty thousand and eight hundred, men of valour; famous in the house of their fathers. And of the half 31 tribe of Manasseh, eighteen thousand, who had been nominated to come and make David king. And of the Issacharites, of their 32 chiefs, two hundred, knowing, prudent men, who knew what, according to the times, Israel ought to do; and all their brethren were at their command. Of the Zebulun- 33 ites, who went forth to battle, expert in the use of all warlike weapons, came fifty thousand to his assistance, who were not double-hearted. And of the tribe of Naphtali, 34 a thousand captains, and with them thirty-seven thousand men, armed with shield and lance. And of the Danites, expert in war, 35 twenty-eight thousand and six hundred. And 36

CHAP. XII. 8. As the antelopes] Compare 2 Sam. i. xix. xxiii. and the notes there.

14. Over a hundred] That is, after David became king, these brave men were to command according to their ability.

15. In the first month] That is, in the latter end of March or the beginning of April. This overflowing of the Jordan arises from the melting of the snow on the mountains around its source, and on its sides. If these men swam across it at that time, and attacked some of the enemies of Israel, who had occupied the valleys, their prowess is justly recorded; for the attempt was extremely hazardous.

17. And addressed them] It is evident from numerous instances, that the verb ענה denotes, not only to reply to a person, but to begin a discourse, to address one, on any subject.—My heart shall be one] That is, I will confide in you, and show you the most cordial attachment.

18. Then Amasai, moved] This passage clearly proves, that the Hebrews used the term רוח for any strong emotion of the mind. Compare Judg. vi. 34.

19. Compare 1 Sam. xxix. 11, &c.

32. Who knew what] The Jewish expositors apply the word to astronomy; and suppose that the chiefs of Issachar excelled in that science. But of what use could they be to David? He wanted wise and brave soldiers; and according to the version given, such were these men.

of the Asherites, such as went forth to battle, 37 expert in war, forty thousand. And of the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and of the half-tribe of Manasseh, beyond the Jordan, with all manner of warlike weapons for the battle, a hundred and twenty thousand. 38 All these men of war, who could keep rank, came with a perfect heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel; and all the rest also of Israel were of one heart to 39 make David king. And there they were with David three days, eating and drinking; for their brethren had prepared for them. 40 Moreover, their next neighbours, Issachar, and Zebulun, and Naphtali, brought food on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen; and meat, meal, cakes of figs, and bunches of raisins, and wine, and oil, and oxen, and sheep, in abundance. For there was great joy in Israel.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1045. The ark brought from Kirjath-jearim; but, Uzzah being smitten, is left at the house of Obed-edom.

1 AND David consulted with the captains of thousands, and hundreds, and with every inferior leader; And David said to the whole congregation of Israel, If it seem good to you, and please Jehovah, our God, let us send abroad to our brethren every where, that are left in the whole land of Israel, and with them also to the priests and Levites who are in their cities and suburbs, that they 3 may assemble unto us; And let us bring hither the ark of our God to us: for we 4 inquired not at it, in the days of Saul. And the whole congregation said that this should be done: for the thing seemed right in the 5 eyes of all the people. So David assembled all Israel together, from Sihor of Egypt, even unto the entrance of Hamath, to bring 6 the ark of God from Kirjath-jearim. And David went, and all Israel to Baalah, (that is, to Kirjath-jearim,) which belonged to Judah, to bring up thence the ark of God 7 Jehovah, who dwelleth between the cherubs, and who is there invoked. And they carried the ark of God in a new cart, having brought it out of the house of Abinadab; and Uzzah and his brother drove the cart. 8 And David and all Israel sang with all their might before God, and played on harps, and on psalteries, and on tabours, and on cymbals, and blew with trumpets.

And when they came unto the threshing- 9 floor of "Nachon," Uzzah put forth his hand to hold the ark; for the oxen were startled. And the anger of Jehovah was 10 kindled against Uzzah, and he smote him, because he put forth his hand to the ark: and there he died before God. And David 11 was grieved that Jehovah had made a breach upon Uzzah: wherefore that place is called Perez-uzzah [THE STRIKING OF UZZAH] to this day. And David was afraid of God 12 that day, saying, How shall I bring the ark of God to me? So David brought not 13 the ark to himself to the city of David, but carried it aside to the house of Obed-edom, the Gathite. And the ark of God remained 14 with the family of Obed-edom, in his house, three months. And Jehovah blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that he had.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1043. Hiram's kindness to David; his wives and children, and his victories over the Philistines.

Now Hiram, king of Tyre, sent messen- 1 gers to David, with cedar-trees, and masons, and carpenters, to build a house for him. And when David perceived that Jehovah 2 had established him king over Israel, and that he had highly exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel; David then 3 took more wives at Jerusalem; and David begot more sons and daughters. Now 4 these are the names of those sons, who were born to him; Shamuaah, and Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon, And Ibhar, and Eli- 5 shua, and Elpalet, And Nogah, and Nepheg, and Japhia, And Elishama, and 7 "Eliada," and Eliphalet.

And when the Philistines heard that David was anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up to seek David. And David heard of it, and went out against them. For when the Philistines had come and spread 9 themselves in the valley of Rephaim, David inquired of God, saying, Shall I go out 10 against the Philistines? and wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And Jehovah said unto him, Go out; for I will deliver them

CHAP. XIII. 5. From Sihor of Egypt] It is generally considered that by Sihor is meant the Nile. Compare Josh. xiii. 3. Isa. xxiii. 3. Jer. ii. 18. The meaning is, David assembled all the leading Israelites, from one extremity of the kingdom to another.

6. To Baalah] Compare 2 Sam. vi. 2.

7. The words supplied are evidently necessary to the sense, and are found in the parallel place.

9. Of Nachon] I have adhered to the reading of Samuel, because both the Chaldee and the Syriac read here as in the other place, though they render as an appellative, a prepared threshing-floor. The Septuagint and the Vulgate have the term as a proper name. Michaelis follows the Chaldee and the Syriac, and supposes that corn being spread on the threshing-floor might occasion the oxen to start aside. I suspect, that the two words נָחֹן efi נִידֹן were originally the same, and the difference has sprung from a mistake of the letters.

CHAP. XIV. 4—7. Compare chap. iii. 1—5. (v) 2 Sam. v. 15. Sept.

8—10. For when] This rendering makes the account here consistent with 2 Sam. v. 17; and makes it evident that David consulted God before he went out against the Philistines. On the first report of the advance of the enemy he retired to the citadel of Zion, but, having received an encouraging answer to his inquiries, he issued forth and made a successful attack.

- 11 into thy hand. So 'he went out to Baal-perazim; and David smote them there. Then David said, God hath broken down mine enemies by my hand as the breach of waters: therefore the name of that place was called Baal-perazim [BAAL OF THE BROKEN]. For as they had left their idol gods there, David gave a command, and they were burned with fire.
- 12 Again the Philistines spread themselves abroad in the valley of Rephaim. And David inquired of God; and God said unto him, Go not up after them; turn away from them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees. And it shall be, when thou shalt hear a sound of a motion in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt go out to battle: for God is gone forth before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines. David, therefore, did as God commanded him; and they smote the host of the Philistines from Gibeon, even to Gazer.
- 17 And the fame of David went out into all lands; and Jehovah made all the nations dread him.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1042. The ark brought to Jerusalem, from the house of Obed-edom.

- 1 AND David made for himself houses in the city of David; he prepared a place for the ark of God, and pitched for it a tent.
- 2 Then David said, None ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites: for them hath Jehovah chosen to carry the ark of God, and to minister to him for ever. And David assembled all Israel at Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of Jehovah to its place, which he had prepared for it. And David convoked the Aaronites and the Levites:
- 5 Of the sons of Kohath; Uriel, the chief, and his brethren, a hundred and twenty:
- 6 Of the sons of Merari; Asaiah, the chief, and his brethren, two hundred and twenty:
- 7 Of the sons of Gershon; Joel, the chief, and his brethren, a hundred and thirty:
- 8 Of the sons of Elizaphan; Shemaiah, the chief, and his brethren, two hundred:
- 9 Of the sons of Ebron; Eliel, the chief, and his brethren, eighty:
- 10 Of the sons of Uzziel; Aminadab, the chief, and his brethren, a hundred and twelve.
- 11 David then called for Zadok and Abia-

CHAP. XV. 1. A tent. In this, regard would be had to the form of the old tabernacle, and proper apartments made for the different services. From Solomon's going down to Gibeon, to sacrifice there, it appears that it was most usual to do so, until the temple was erected.

2. None ought. Compare Numb. iv. 15. The ark was not carried in a cart, but on their shoulders. Hence they had before neglected the divine command.

12. (a) Versions and MSS.

13-16. Conscious of their past offence, they adopted the thar, the priests, and for the Levites, for Uriel, Asaiah, and Joel, Shemaiah, and Eliel, and Aminadab. And said to them, 12 Ye are the paternal chiefs of the Levites: sanctify yourselves, both ye and your brethren, that ye may bring up the ark of Jehovah, the God of Israel, unto the place "which" I have prepared for it. For be- 13 cause ye did not carry it the former time, Jehovah, our God, made a breach among us; because we sought him not according to his directions. So the priests and the Levites 14 sanctified themselves, that they might bring up the ark of Jehovah, the God of Israel; And that the Levites might carry the ark 15 of God upon their shoulders, on its staves, as Moses had commanded, according to the word of Jehovah.

And David spoke to the chiefs of the 16 Levites, to appoint their brethren who were skilled in music, to raise a joyous symphony, with psalteries, and harps, and high-sounding cymbals. And those Levites appointed 17 Heman, the son of Joel; and his brethren, Asaph, the son of Berechiah; and of the sons of Merari, their brethren, Ethan, the son of Kushaiah. And with these were 18 their brethren of the second degree; Zechariah, "and Jaaziel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, Eliab, and Benaiah, and Maaseiah, and Mattithiah, and Eliphelch, and Milkneiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, the door-keepers. The musicians, Heman, 19 Asaph, and Ethan, were to play on high-sounding cymbals of brass: And Zechariah, 20 and "Jaaziel," and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, Eliab, and Maaseiah, and Benaiah, on acute-sounding psalteries: And Mattithiah, and Elipheleh, and Milk- 21 neiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, and Azaziah, on eight-stringed harps, to complete the harmony. And Chenaniah, chief of the 22 Levites, directed the carriage of the ark, because he understood how to direct the carriage of it. And Berechiah and Elka- 23 nah were door-keepers for the ark. And 24 Shebaniah, and Jehoshaphat, and Nethaneel, and Amasai, and Zechariah, and Benaiah, and Eliezer, the priests, blew with trumpets before the ark of God: and Obed-edom and Jehiah were door-keepers for the ark.

Thus David, and the elders of Israel, and 25 method prescribed; the ark is carried as it was in the wilderness.

18. The word Ben is omitted because it does not occur in the 20th verse, where the same names are repeated; and because it never occurs, I think, as a proper name elsewhere.

20. On acute-sounding. Pfeiffer observes that these instruments were called עֲלִימֹת, alamoth, because they imitated the acute voice of virgins. This is as probable as any of the senses attributed to the word.

22. The carriage of the ark. This is our marginal ver-

- the captains over thousands, went to bring up, with rejoicing, the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, out of the house of Obed-edom.
- 26 And as God favoured the Levites who bore the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, they
- 27 offered seven steers and seven rams. And David was clothed with a muslin robe, he also had on a precious ephod: and all the Levites who bore the ark, and the musicians, and Chenaniah, who directed the
- 28 carriage. And all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, with shouting, and with the sound of the cornet, and with trumpets, and with high-sounding cymbals, with psalteries and harps. Now when the ark of the covenant of Jehovah came to the city of David, Michal, the daughter of Saul, looking out at a window, saw king David dancing and playing before the ark; and she despised him in her heart.
- 1 Thus they brought the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tent which David had pitched for it; and they offered burnt-sacrifices and feast-offerings before God.
- 2 And when David had made an end of offering the burnt-offerings and the feast-offerings, he blessed the people in the name of Jehovah. And he distributed to every Israelite, whether man or woman, to each a piece of bread, a piece of roast meat, and a fritter.
- 4 He then appointed certain Levites to minister before the ark of Jehovah; and to celebrate, and to thank, and to praise Jehovah, the God of Israel. Asaph was the chief; and next to him Zechariah; then Jeiel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mattithiah, and Eliab, and Benaiah, and Obed-edom: and Jeiel and his company played on psalteries and harps; but Asaph and his company on high-sounding cymbals:
- 6 While Benaiah and Jahaziel, the priests, were with trumpets continually before the ark of the covenant of God.

11. And his strength] That is, the ark, which is often so called. The Sept. reads as a verb, be strengthened; but the other versions, as a noun.

12. Commemorate] &c. Literally, the works which he hath done, that is, his works.

22. Mine anointed] David calls the patriarchs God's anointed, as persons set apart and dedicated to him, though, so far as we are informed, they were not anointed with oil. They were the kings, priests, and prophets of their own families, and they were anointed with the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

- 33 Before Jehovah—for he cometh,
He cometh to judge the earth.
34 O give thanks to Jehovah; for he is good;
For his mercy endureth for ever.

And unite and deliver us from the nations,
That we may give thanks to thy holy name,
And glory in praising thee.
36 Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel,
For ever and ever.

And all the people said, Amen, and praised Jehovah.

- 37 Now there remained before the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, to minister before the ark continually, as every day's work required, Asaph, And Obed-edom, with their brethren, sixty-eight. And Obed-edom, the son of Jeduthun, and Hosah, 39 were door-keepers. But Zadok, the priest, and his brethren the priests, were before the tabernacle of Jehovah, on the high-place
40 which was at Gibeon; To offer burnt-offerings to Jehovah, upon the altar of burnt-offering, morning and evening, continually, according to all that is written in the law of Jehovah, which he commanded Israel.
41 And with them were Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest who were expressly chosen by name, to give thanks to Jehovah, whose

B. C. 1042. David purposes to build a house for God; his purpose is accepted, and blessings promised to his seed; his prayer and thanksgiving.

- 1 Now when David was settled in his own house, he said to Nathan, the prophet, Lo, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of the covenant of Jehovah remaineth under curtains. Then Nathan said to David, Do all that is in thy heart; for God is with thee.
3 But on that night, the word of God came to 34—36. These verses are the same as Psalm cvi. 1, 47, 48. Rosenmuller supposes that they have been added to this place at some subsequent period, and that David's first Psalm ended with the 33d verse.

42. The words omitted, And with them Heman and Jeduthun, are clearly repeated from the preceding verse, and are here very improper. The Septuagint has them not.

CHAP. XVII. 3. (a) Syr. Arab. MSS.

4. Thou shalt not. In the parallel place it is, 'Wouldst thou,' &c. which implies the sense here given.

5. (a) Syr. Arab. MSS.

10. I, Jehovah] I have preferred making a small transposition, and rendering in the first person, which the sense and the connexion require, as better than, by retaining the idiom, to lead some to think that it is the language of the prophet and not of God. So 2 Sam. vii. 10.

14. In my house] In the temple, which is more properly and constantly called God's house; and so this expression

Nathan, "the prophet," saying, Go and tell David, my servant, Thus saith Jehovah, Thou shalt not build for me a house to dwell in. For I have not dwelt in a house since the day that I brought up Israel "out of Egypt," unto this day; but have gone from tent to tent, and from tabernacle to tabernacle. Whithersoever I have walked in all Israel, spoke I a word to any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to tend my people, saying, Why have you not built for me a house of cedar? Now, therefore, thus shalt thou say to my servant David, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, I took thee from the sheep-cot, from following the flock, to be ruler over my people Israel; and I have been with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have cut off all thine enemies from before thee. Also thy name I will make as great as the name of the great ones who are on the earth. Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will so plant them, that they may dwell in their own place, and move no more; nor shall wicked men afflict them any more as formerly; As from the time that I appointed judges over my people Israel; for all thine enemies I will subdue. Moreover, I, Jehovah, tell thee, that I will build up thy house.

For when thy days are completed, and 11 thou shalt go to thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, one of thine own sons; and I will establish his kingdom. He shall 12 build for me a house, and I will establish his throne for ever. I will be his father, 13 and he shall be my son; and my kindness I will not withdraw from him, as I withdrew it from him who was before thee. But I 14 will settle him in my house and in my kingdom for ever: and his throne shall be established for evermore. According to all 15 these words, and according to all this vision, did Nathan, the prophet, speak to David.

And David, the king, went into the tabernacle, and sat before Jehovah, and said, Who am I, O God Jehovah, and what is my house, that hitherto thou hast so promoted me? And as if this was but a small 17 agrees but very imperfectly with Solomon or his successors, who might be said to be settled in God's house, because they were settled near it; but strictly and properly agrees only to Christ, to whom alone that promise also of an everlasting establishment in this kingdom belongs. And this expression seems to be most emphatically added, to signify, that that person in whom all those promises should be fully and perfectly accomplished, to wit, the Messiah, should be settled not only on the king's throne, as others of David's successors were, but also in God's house, or temple; and consequently, that he should be a priest as well as a king; which mystery was more clearly revealed to David, Ps. cx. 1, 2, 3, 4, and may be intimated, though obscurely, (as was fit and usual in that state of the church,) in these words.

16. So promoted me] I have preferred this version, because brought me may imply that God had only hitherto supported him, when it is clear that David intended to express thing in thine eyes, O God, thou hast also spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come; and hast provided for me according to the state of men of high rank, 18 O God Jehovah! What can David say more to thee, for the honour conferred on thy servant? for thou knowest thy servant.

 19 O Jehovah, for 'thine own word's' sake, and according to thine own heart, thou doest all these great things, 'which thou hast made known to thy servant.' 'Wherefore, thou art great, O God Jehovah;' there is none like thee; nor is there a God besides thee, according to all that we have heard
 21 with our own ears. And what one nation on the earth is like thy people Israel, whom thou, O God, willest to redeem to be thine own people, to make thyself a name great and terrible, by driving out nations from before thy people, whom thou hadst redeemed
 22 out of Egypt? For thy people Israel thou hast made thine own people for ever; and thou, Jehovah, hast become their God.
 23 Therefore now, O Jehovah, let the word which thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, be established for ever, and do as thou hast said.
 24 Let it even be established, so that men may magnify thy name for ever, saying, Jehovah of hosts is indeed the God of Israel. And let the house of David thy servant be 25 established before thee. For thou, O my God, hast told thy servant that thou wilt build up for him a house: therefore thy servant hath been encouraged to pray before 26 thee. And now, O Jehovah, thou art God, and hast promised this goodness to thy 27 servant: Now, therefore, let it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue before thee for ever; and, 'with thy blessing,' O Jehovah, let it ever be blessed.

B. C. 1040. David's victories over the Philistines and the Moabites; over Hadadezer and the Syrians; presents from Toi; he dedicates to God the spoil.

1 Now after this, David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and took Gath and her towns out of the hand of the Philistines. And he smote Moab; and the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts.
 3 And David smote Hadadezer, king of Zobah, at Hamath, as he went to re-establish his power by the river Euphrates. And David took from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand foot-men: and David ham-strung all the chariot horses, reserving of them only for a hundred chariots. And as the 5 Syrians of Damascus had come to help Hadadezer, king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians twenty-two thousand men. David then put garrisons in Syria of Da- 6 mascus; and the Syrians became David's servants, and brought gifts. Thus Jehovah preserved David whithersoever he went. And David took the golden shields which 7 were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. Likewise from 8 Tibhath, and from 'Berothai,' cities of Hadadezer, brought David very much brass, with which Solomon made the brazen sea, and the pillars and the other vessels of brass.

Now when Toi, king of Hamath, heard 9 how David had smitten all the hosts of Hadadezer, king of Zobah, He sent 'Joram,' his son, to king David, to inquire of his welfare, and to congratulate him, because he had fought against Hadadezer, and smitten him; for Hadadezer was at war with Toi. And Joram brought all kinds of vessels of gold, and of silver, and of brass. These also king David dedicated to 11 Jehovah, with the silver and the gold which he brought from other nations; from 'Syria,' and from Moab, and from the Ammonites, and from the Philistines, and from Amalek.

Moreover, Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, 12 slew of the Edomites in the valley of salt, eighteen thousand. And he put garrisons 13 in Edom; and all the Edomites became David's servants. Thus Jehovah preserved David whithersoever he went.

And David reigned over all Israel, and 14 executed judgment and justice to all his people. And Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was 15 over the host; and Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, was recorder; And Zadok, the son 16 of Ahitub, and Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, were the priests; and 'Seraiah' was scribe; And Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, 17 was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and the sons of David were chief ministers about the king.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1037. On the death of Nahash, king of the Ammonites, David sends messengers to comfort Hanun, his son; they are shamefully treated; a war is the consequence, and the Ammonites, with their confederates the Syrians, are conquered.

Now it came to pass after this, that Na- 1 hash, the king of the children of Ammon, that God had raised him to the throne, promoted him to be king. 17. Compare 2 Sam. vii. 19.

19, 20, 27. The readings of the parallel places are adopted, which give the most apposite sense. 2 Sam. vii. 21, 22, 29.

died, and "Hanun", his son, reigned in his
 2 stead. And David said, I will show kindness to Hanun, the son of Nahash, because his father showed kindness to me. And David sent messengers to comfort him concerning his father. And the servants of David came into the land of the Ammonites,
 3 to Hanun, to comfort him. But the princes of the Ammonites said to Hanun, Doth David in thine eyes honour thy father, because he hath sent comforters to thee? Are not his servants come to thee to search, spy
 4 out, and overthrow the land? Hanun, therefore, took David's servants, and shaved them, and cut off their garments at the middle of their thighs, and sent them away.
 5 Then some went, and told David how the men had been treated; and he sent to meet them; for the men were greatly ashamed: and the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return.
 6 And the Ammonites now saw that they had made themselves odious to David; and Hanun and the Ammonites sent a thousand talents of silver, to hire chariots and horsemen from Mesopotamia, and from Syria-
 7 maachah, and from Zobah. And they hired thirty-two thousand riders, and the king of Maachah, and his people, who came and encamped before Medeba. And the Ammonites assembled from their cities, and
 8 came to battle. And when David heard of this, he sent Joab, and all the host of mighty
 9 men. And the Ammonites came out, and formed in battle array before the gate of the city; but the kings who had come were 10 posted by themselves in the field. Now when Joab saw that the battle was set against him, before and behind, he chose out of all the choice men of Israel, and formed them in array against the Syrians.
 11 And the rest of the people he placed under the command of Abishai, his brother, that "he might form" them in array against the 12 Ammonites. And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me; but if the Ammonites be too strong 13 for thee, then I will help thee. Be of good courage, and let us act valiantly for our people, and for the cities of our God: and may Jehovah do that which is good in his 14 sight. Then Joab and the people who were with him went on to battle against the Sy-15 rians; and they fled before him. And when the Ammonites saw that the Syrians were fleeing, then they also fled before Abishai, his brother, and entered into the city. Then Joab came back to Jerusalem.

And when the Syrians saw that they were 16 smitten before Israel, they sent messengers, and brought the Syrians who were beyond the river; and "they came to Helam" under the command of Shobach, the captain of the host of Hadadezer. And when this was 17 told to David, he assembled all Israel, and passed over the Jordan, and came to "Helam," and formed in battle array against them. Now when David had put the battle in array against the Syrians, they fought with him; But the Syrians fled before 19 Israel; and David destroyed of the Syrians, seven hundred chariots, seven thousand horsemen, and forty thousand footmen. He killed also Shobach, the captain of the host. And when the servants of Hadadezer saw 19 that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with David, and became his servants; nor would the Syrians help the Ammonites any more.

And, on the return of the year, at the 1 time when kings go out to battle, Joab led forth a powerful army, and wasted the country of the Ammonites, and went and besieged Rabbah. But David abode at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabbah and destroyed it. And David took the crown 2 of their king from off his head, and found it to weigh a talent of gold; and it was beset with precious stones; and it was set upon David's head: and out of the city he brought also exceeding much spoil. And he brought 3 out the people who were in it, and put them to saws, and to arrows of iron, and to axes. Thus David treated all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

And after this, there arose a war at Gezer 4 with the Philistines; at which time Sibbechai, the Hushathite, slew Saph, who was of the race of the Rephaites: and they were subdued. And there was another battle "at 5 Gab," with the Philistines; and Elhanan, the son of Jair, slew Lahmi, the brother of Goliath, the Gathite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. And there was 6 yet another battle at Gath, where was a man of great stature, whose fingers and toes were four and twenty, six on each hand, and six on each foot: and he also was of the Reph-
 7 phaites race. But when he defied Israel,

CHAP. XIX. 1. (v) 2 Sam. x. 1—4. 4. And shaved them] That is, as we read in Samuel, he shaved one half of their beard: a reading which the Syriac translator follows here.

7. Thirty-two thousand riders] Our translators rendered chariots: but the Hebrew word does not always mean a chariot: and here it must be taken in a more general signification: namely, for all those Syrian auxiliaries who rode either on chariots or on horses. And indeed the numbers in Samuel (exclusive of the men of Maachah, who were probably foot-soldiers) amounted exactly to 32,000. Compare 2 Sam. x. 6.

Jonathan, the son of Shimea, David's brother, slew him. These were of the Rephaite race in Gath; and fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1017. The sin of David in numbering the people; the judgment brought on the kingdom; the plague stayed by David's repentance, and an altar built to God.

1 AND AN adversary stood up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel. And David said to Joab, and to the rulers of the people, Go, number Israel, from Beer-sheba even to Dan; and bring the number of them to me, that I may know it. And Joab answered, May Jehovah make his people a hundred times so many more as they are: but, my lord the king, are they not all my lord's servants? why then would my lord require this thing? why would he be a cause of trespass to Israel? Nevertheless, the king's word prevailed against Joab. Wherefore Joab departed, and went throughout all Israel, and came to Jerusalem.

5 And Joab gave to David the sum of the number of the people. And all those of Israel were "eight hundred thousand men" who drew the sword: and Judah was "five" hundred thousand men who drew the sword. 6 But Levi and Benjamin counted he not among them; for the king's order was detestable to Joab. And God was displeased on account of this thing; therefore he smote 8 Israel. And David said to God, I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing: but now, I beseech thee, do away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have done very foolishly.

9 And Jehovah spoke to Gad, David's seer, 10 saying, Go and tell David, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, I offer to thee three things: choose for thyself one of them, that I may 11 do it unto thee. So Gad came to David, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Choose 12 for thyself. Either a famine of three years; or a defeat of three months before thy foes, while the sword of thine enemies smiteth thee; or else three days, the sword of Jehovah, even the pestilence, in the land, and the angel of Jehovah destroying through all the districts of Israel. Consider now what answer I shall return to him who sent me.

And David said to Gad, I am in a great 13 strait: let me fall now into the hand of Jehovah, for very great are his mercies: but let me not fall into the hand of man.

So Jehovah sent a pestilence upon Israel; 14 and there fell of Israel seventy thousand men. And God sent an angel unto Jeru- 15 salem to destroy it; but while he was destroying, Jehovah beheld, and he repented of the evil, and said to the destroying angel, It is enough; stay now thy hand. And the angel of Jehovah stood by the threshing-floor of "Araunah," a Jebusite. And David 16 raised his eyes and saw the angel of Jehovah standing between the earth and the heavens, having a drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders of Israel, clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces. And David said to God, 17 Was it not I who commanded the people to be numbered? I am he who have sinned and done evil indeed; but as for these sheep, what have they done? let thy hand, I pray thee, O Jehovah my God, be on me, and on my father's house; but not on thy people, so that they should be smitten.

Then the angel of Jehovah commanded 18 Gad to say to David, that David should go up, and set up an altar to Jehovah, in the threshing-floor of Araunah, the Jebusite. And David went up at the word of God, 19 which he had spoken in the name of Jehovah. Araunah then turning, saw the 20 "king;" and his four sons, who were with him, hid themselves. Araunah was threshing wheat. And as David came towards 21 Araunah, he looked and saw David, and went out of the threshing-floor, and made obeisance to David, with his face to the ground. Then David said to Araunah, 22 Grant me the place of this threshing-floor; for the full price thou shalt grant it me, that I may build an altar on it to Jehovah, that the pestilence among the people may be stayed. And Araunah said to David, Take 23 thou it; and let my lord the king do what is good in his eyes. See, I give to thee the oxen for burnt-offerings, and the threshing-instruments for wood, and the wheat for the wheaten-offering; I give them all. And 24 king David said to Araunah, Nay; but I will verily buy it for the full price: for I will CHAP. XXI. 1. An adversary] Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. 4. Came to Jerusalem] In the other place, there is a more full account of this transaction, and the time spent in it.

5. I have followed the numbers of the parallel place, because there is no variety of reading there, and because one version here retains it.

9—13. Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 11—14.

14. Sent a pestilence] Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 15, where the account is more full and particular.

15—17. Some circumstances are here mentioned which are not mentioned in the other place; the posture of the destroying angel, and the humiliation of David and the elders. (v) 2 Sam. xxiv. 18. Versions.

18. Araunah] The reading of the parallel place is followed in this place, because from the versions it is probably the genuine reading.

20. The king] This reading is adopted instead of angel, with Houbigant and others, as more appropriate, and as better agreeing with the other account. The approach of the king and his attendants might lead the sons of Araunah to hide themselves, as being unfit to appear before them; but how they could hide themselves from the angel I do not perceive.

not take that which is thine for Jehovah,
 25 nor offer burnt-offerings without cost. So
 David gave to Araunah for the place six 26 hundred shekels of gold, full weight. And David built there an altar to Jehovah, and offered burnt-offerings, and feast-offerings, and called upon Jehovah; and he answered him from heaven, by fire upon the altar of 27 burnt-offering. And Jehovah commanded the angel; and he put up his sword again into its sheath.
 28 When David saw that Jehovah had answered him in the threshing-floor of Araunah, the Jebusite, from that time he sacrificed
 29 there. For the tabernacle of Jehovah, which Moses made in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt-offering, were at that sea-
 30 son in the high-place at Gibeon. But David could not go before it to inquire of God: for he was afraid on account of the sword
 1 of the angel of Jehovah. David therefore said, This place shall be the house of God Jehovah, and this the altar of burnt-offering for Israel.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1017. David maketh preparations for the building of the temple.

2 DAVID now gave orders to collect the strangers who were in the land of Israel; and he sent masons, to hew wrought stones
 3 for building the house of God. And David prepared iron in abundance, for the door-nails of the gates, and for the joinings; and
 4 brass in abundance, without weight; And cedar-trees in abundance; for the Zidonians and Tyrians brought to David cedar-trees in abundance. For David said,
 5 Solomon, my son, is young and tender, and the house to be builded for Jehovah must, for its height, grandeur, and beauty, be celebrated through all nations. I will, therefore, make preparation for it. So David prepared abundantly before his death.
 6 He then called for Solomon, his son, and charged him to build a house for Jehovah,
 7 the God of Israel. And David said to Solomon, My son, as for me, it was my purpose to build a house to the name of Jehovah, my God: But the word of Jehovah came to me, saying, Thou hast shed much blood, and hast made great wars: thou shalt not build a house to my name because thou hast shed much blood, in my sight, upon the earth. Behold, a son shall be 9 born to thee, who shall be a man of rest; for I will give him rest from all his surrounding enemies: for his name shall be Solomon [PEACEABLE], and I will give peace and quietness to Israel in his days. He shall build a house to my name; and 10 he shall be my son, and I will be his father, and I will for ever establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel. Now, my son, 11 Jehovah will be with thee, and thou shalt prosper, and build the house of Jehovah, thy God, as he hath said of thee. Only 12 may Jehovah give thee wisdom and prudence, that thou mayest preside over Israel, so as to keep the law of Jehovah, thy God. Then shalt thou prosper, if thou take heed 13 to fulfil the statutes and judgments which Jehovah gave in charge to Moses, for Israel; be strong, and of good courage; fear not, nor be dismayed. Now, behold, with care 14 I have prepared for the house of Jehovah, a hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver; and of brass and iron without weight; for it is in abundance: timber also and stone have I prepared; and thou mayest add thereto. Workmen also thou hast with thee in abundance; hewers and workers of stone and timber; and skilful men for every kind of work. Having gold, and silver, and brass, and iron, beyond computation, arise and work; and may Jehovah be with thee.

David also commanded all the princes of Israel to help Solomon, his son, saying, Is 18 not Jehovah, your God, with you? and hath he not given you rest on every side? for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into my hand; and the land is subdued before Jehovah, and before his people. Now, set your heart and your soul to seek 19 Jehovah, your God; and arise and build the sanctuary of Jehovah, your God, that the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, and the vessels hallowed to God, may be brought into the house that is to be built to the name of Jehovah.

25. Six hundred] Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 24, and the note there.

30. David could not] He could not delay so long as to go to Gibeon; the appearance of the angel alarmed him; and the direction of Gad justifies him in sacrificing on the altar erected; and God's presence with him and acceptance of his offering, hallowed the place.

CHAP. XXII. 5. The house] Geddes has justly observed, that it is not easy to render the original literally; nor am I sure that it may not have another meaning; namely, must magnify his excellence, his name, and his glory, among all, &c.

7. Compare 2 Sam. vii. 2. and chap. xvii. 1.

8. Compare 1 Kings v. 8.

9, 10. Compare 2 Sam. vii. 12, 14.

14. With care] I have followed the sense which Michaelis attributes to the text here and Psalm cxxxii. 1; for neither poverty nor affliction seems at all proper, as what follows testifies.—A hundred thousand talents] Josephus has ten thousand talents of gold, and a hundred of silver, which appears much more probable than the numbers of the text. There is so much uncertainty in respect to the text, and to the meaning of the word rendered talent, that no objection can be made against the account with any shadow of reason.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1015. Solomon made king; number and distribution of the Levites.

- 1 DAVID, being now old and full of days, made Solomon, his son, king over Israel.
- 2 And he assembled all the princes of Israel,
- 3 with the priests and the Levites. Now the Levites were numbered from the age of thirty years and upward; and their number by their polls, man by man, was thirty-eight thousand; Of which, said David, let
- 4 twenty-four thousand be set over the work of the house of Jehovah; and let six thousand be officers and judges. And let four thousand be doorkeepers; and let four thousand praise Jehovah, with the instruments which I have made for that purpose.
- 6 David now divided them into courses, according to the sons of Levi; Gershon,
- 7 Kohath, and Merari. Of the Gershonites
- 8 were Laadan and Shimei. The sons of 'Libni' (the chief) were Jehiel and Zethani, and Joel, three. "These were the
- 10 paternal chiefs of 'Libni." And the sons of Shimei were Jahath, Ziza, and Jeush, and Beriah. These four were the sons of
- 11 Shimei. And Jahath was the chief, and Ziza the second: but Jeush and Beriah had not many sons; they therefore were reckoned but one paternal house.
- 12 The sons of Kohath were Amram, Izhar,
- 13 Hebron, and Uzziel, four. The sons of Amram were Aaron and Moses: and Aaron was separated, that he should sanctify the most holy things, he and his sons for ever, to burn incense before Jehovah, to minister unto him, and to bless, in his name, for ever.
- 14 Now, as to Moses the man of God, his sons
- 15 were reckoned in the tribe of Levi. The sons of Moses were Gershon and Eliezer.
- 16 Of the sons of Gershon, Shebuel was the
- 17 chief. And of the sons of Eliezer were Rehabiah, the chief. And Eliezer had no other sons; but the sons of Rehabiah were very
- 18 many. Of the sons of Izhar, Shelomith
- 19 was the chief. Of the sons of Hebron, Jeriah was the chief, Amariah, the second, Jahaziel, the third, and Jekameam, the
- 20 fourth. Of the sons of Uzziel, Micah was the chief, and Jesiah, the second.
- 21 The sons of Merari were Mahli and Mushih. The sons of Mahli, Eleazar and Kish.
- 22 And Eleazar died, and had no sons, but daughters; and their brethren the sons of Kish took them. The sons of Mushih were 23 Mahli, and Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

These were the sons of Levi, according 24 to their paternal houses; paternal chiefs, as they were numbered by their polls, from the age of twenty years and upwards; who were to do the work of the ministry, in the house of Jehovah. For David said, Jehovah, the 25 God of Israel, hath given rest to his people, and will dwell in Jerusalem for ever: So 26 that the Levites shall no more have to carry about the tabernacle, nor any of the utensils for its service. Therefore, by the last orders 27 of David, the Levites were numbered from twenty years old and above; Because their 28 office was to wait on the sons of Aaron for the service of the house of Jehovah; to be over the courts and chambers of the temple; and to keep clean the whole sanctuary; and to do other work of the ministry of the house of God; To arrange the presence-bread, 29 and to provide fine flour for the wheaten-offering, and for the unleavened cakes, whether done on a fire-plate, or in a frying-pan; and to see that all were of due size and measure. And to stand every morning and 30 evening, to thank and to praise Jehovah. And to offer continually, before Jehovah, 31 all the burnt-sacrifices to Jehovah, on the sabbaths, on the new moons, and on the stated feasts, by number according to the rite prescribed to them. And that they should 32 keep the charge of the congregation-tabernacle, and the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the sons of Aaron their brethren, in the service of the house of Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1015. Distribution, by lot, of the sons of Aaron into twenty-four classes; other Levites classed.

Now these are the divisions of the sons 1 of Aaron. The sons of Aaron were Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. But 2 Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and had no children; therefore Eleazar and Ithamar executed the priest's office. And David distributed them both, Zadok of 3 the sons of Eleazar, and Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, of the sons of Ithamar, according to their offices in their service. But as 4 more chief men were found of the sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar, they were thus divided. Of the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen paternal chiefs; and of the sons of Ithamar, eight paternal chiefs. Thus were they divided by lot, one with 5

CHAP. XXIII. 4, 5. Houbigant observes, that something has been dropped from the text; and as the conclusion of the 5th verse proves that it is David who speaks, the words added are obviously necessary. 8, 9. (v) See ch. vi. 20.

9. The words omitted—The sons of Shimei; Shelomith, and Haziel, and Hurai, three, have been inserted by mistake, as they are irreconcilable with the concluding part of the verse. For how could the sons of Shimei be the paternal chiefs of Libni? Besides, the sons of Shimei are mentioned in the next verse.

24. From twenty years] In a former muster he had made thirty years the period: but reflecting that the temple to be built, with its courts, chambers, and purlieus, would require a greater number of attendants, he by a posterior regulation fixed the period at twenty. In the time of Moses it was fixed at twenty-five; or, as others think, at thirty.

another; for the chiefs of the sanctuary, and chiefs of the judges, were of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar. And Shemaiah, the son of Nethaneel, the scribe, one of the Levites, wrote them before the king, and the princes, and Zadok, the priest, and Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, and the other paternal chiefs of the priests and Levites: one paternal chief being taken for Ithamar, and two for Eleazar. Now the first lot came forth to Jehoirib, the second to Jedaiah; The third to Harim; the fourth to Seorim; The fifth to Malchijah; the sixth to Mijamin; The seventh to Hakkoz; the eighth to Abijah; The ninth to Jeshuah; the tenth to Shecaniah; The eleventh to Eliashib; the twelfth to Jakim; The thirteenth to Huppah; the fourteenth to Jeshebeab; The fifteenth to Bilgah; the sixteenth to Immer; The seventeenth to Hezir; the eighteenth to Apses; The nineteenth to Pethahiah; the twentieth to Jehzekel; The one and twentieth to Jachin; the two and twentieth to Gamul; The three and twentieth to Delaiah; the four and twentieth to Maaziah. These were the courses of ministry, in their attendance at the house of Jehovah, according to their rites, by Aaron their fore-father, as Jehovah, the God of Israel, had commanded him.

20 And the rest of the sons of Levi were these: Of the sons of Amrain, in the line of Gershon, was Shubuel: of the sons of 21 Shubuel, Jehdeiah. In the line of Ithamar, was Rehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, 22 the chief was Isshiah. Of the Izharites, Shelomoth: of the sons of Shelomoth, Ja- 23 hath. And the sons of Hebron, Jeriah, "the chief," Amariah, the second, Jehaziel, 24 the third, Jekameam, the fourth. Of the sons of Uzziel, Michah: of the sons of 25 Michah, Shamir. The brother of Michah was Isshiah; of the sons of Isshiah, Ze- 26 chariah. The sons of Merari were Mahli 28 and Mushi. From Mahli sprang Eliezer, 29 who had no sons; And Kish: and the son of Kish was Jerameel, whose son was Jaaziah. The sons of Merari, by his son 27 Jaaziah, were Shoham, and Zaccur, and Ibri. The sons also of Mushi, Mahli, and 30 Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites according to their paternal houses. These also cast lots in like man- 31 ner as their brethren, the sons of Aaron, in the presence of David, the king, and of Zadok, and of Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, and the other paternal chiefs of the priests and Levites: the paternal chiefs and their inferior brethren in like manner.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1015. The distribution of the singers into twenty-four classes.

DAVID then, and the chiefs of the sacred 1 order, selected some for the service, of the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun; who should sing with harps, with psalteries, and with cymbals; and according to the number of men employed was their service. The sons of Asaph were Zaccur, 2 and Joseph, and Nethaniah, and Asareliah. These sons of Asaph attended him when he sung under the direction of the king. The 3 sons of Jeduthun were Gedaliah, and Zeri, and "Shimei," and Jeshaiah, Hashabiah, and Mattithiah, six; these attended their father Jeduthun, when he sung with a harp, giving thanks and praise to Jehovah. The 4 sons of Heman were Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, and Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, and Romamti-ezer, Joshbekash, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth: All these were the sons of 5 Heman, the king's seer, in divine matters. For, to exalt his horn, God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters. All 6 these attended their respective fathers for singing in the house of Jehovah; with cymbals, psalteries, and harps, for the service of the house of God, under the direction of the king, Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman. And their number, with their brethren, who 7 were taught the songs of Jehovah, and all

CHAP. XXIV. 5. Chiefs of the judges] So Grotius and others render. The chiefs of the two families were the administrators of religion and of justice. To understand this, it must be remarked, that, although the high-priest had, Numb. xxv. 12, been settled in the line of Eleazar and in the person of Phinehas, this prerogative was lost at the death of Eli; from which period, we find the progeny of Ithamar share equally in that dignity with the progeny of Eleazar. Hence David, to prevent jealousy between the two families, makes this distribution by lot.

6. The text as corrected by Geddes is adopted, who considers that the names of Eleazar and Ithamar have been transposed. The 4th verse supports this opinion. For the text see note, Hebrew Bible.

26—29. The names here are evidently confused. The order which is adopted is at least consistent and connected; and supported by the usual manner of following the line of descent. See the versions.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Sacred order] The word (מזמור) is applied to the sacred order, Num. iv. 3, and it seems more congruous to suppose that David and the chiefs of the priests and the Levites should select and appoint singers for the temple service, than that military commanders should do this. — Who should sing] The word is usually rendered prophecy; but here, and in other places, it means to sing the sacred hymns, composed by the prophets. See Sup. to Lex. Michaelis.

3. Shimei] This name, which has been preserved by some of the versions, makes up the number six.

5. To exalt his horn] The words of the text have been improperly divided. Some think this means to praise God with trumpets; but Houbigant justly observes, that there is no other place where to raise or exalt the horn has this signification. In other places it means to increase the power of a person, either by the increase of his family, or his wealth and dominion. Compare 1 Sam. ii. 1, 10; Ps. lxxv. 4, 5, 10; and xcii. 10.

B. C. 1015. The distribution of the gate-keepers; the other offices of the Levites.

1 CONCERNING the divisions of the gate-

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Compare ch. ix. 19, where the true name has been preserved.

13. For every gate] These gates were not in the temple itself, but in the wall that surrounded it and its porches.

15. Upper store-rooms] This is partly the version of Junius, only with Geddes, I join the word beginning the next verse to this. See Note, Heb. Bible. Besides, in the keepers: Of the Korahites was Meshelemiah, the son of Korah, of the sons of 'Ebi-asaph." And the sons of Meshelemiah were Zechariah, the first-born; Jediah, the second; Zebadiah, the third; Jathniel, the fourth; Elam, the fifth; Jehohanan, the sixth; Elioenai, the seventh.

Next were the sons of Obed-edom, Shemaiah, the first-born; Jehozabad, the second; Joah, the third; and Sacar, the fourth; and Nethaneel, the fifth; Ammiel, the sixth; Issachar, the seventh; Peulthai, the eighth: for God had blessed him. Also to Shemaiah, his son, were sons born, who ruled in their paternal house: for they were men of valour. The sons of Shemaiah were Othni, and Rephael, and Obed, Elzabad, whose brethren Elihu and Semachiah were valiant men. All these were the sons of Obed-edom: so Obed-edom had with these, their sons, and their brethren, sixty-two valiant men, able for the service: But Meshelemiah had of sons and brethren, only eighteen valiant men.

Next was Hosah, of the children of Merari, whose sons were Simri, the chief, (for although he was not the first-born, yet his father made him the chief,) Hilkiyah, the second, Tebaliah, the third, Zechariah, the fourth: all the sons and brethren of Hosah were thirteen. Among these chief men were the divisions of the gate-keepers, to minister in their respective wards at the house of Jehovah. And they cast lots, the small as well as the great, according to their paternal houses, for every gate. And the lot for the east-gate fell to Shelemiah; and for Zechariah, his son, a wise counsellor, they cast lots; and his lot came out for the north-gate. To Obed-edom for the south-gate; and to his sons the upper store-rooms. To Hosah came out the west-gate, with the gate of ejection, by the raised causeway; ward against ward. At the east-gate, were daily posted six Levites; at the north, four, at the south, four; and at the store-rooms, two; and two at the armoury; At the west, four at the causeway; and two at the armoury. These are the divisions of the 19 gate-keepers among the sons of Korah, and among the sons of Merari.

And their brother Levites, who were over the treasures of the house of God, and over the treasures of the dedicated things, were The sons of 'Libni," the Gershonite; and the 21 other instances the lot is cast for only one chief, but if this be retained, we have two chiefs for one gate.

16. The gate of ejection] Our Lightfoot maintains the gate to be signified which led from the temple to the royal palace. I have followed Houbigant and others, who, from the usual sense of the word, (שַׁלַּח,) suppose the gate meant by which the filth of the temple was cast out.

 they dedicate for erecting the house of Jehowere officers among those of Israel, on the work of Jehovah, or service of the king.

 generations of his fathers, (when, in the fortieth year of the reign of David, they were sought for,) there was found among them at Jezer, in Gilead, valiant men, 'of whom 32 Jerijah was chief.' He and his brethren were two thousand and seven hundred valiant men, paternal chiefs, whom king David made rulers over the Reubenites, the Gad-ites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, for every matter pertaining to God, and to the affairs of the king.

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 1015. The captains of the army, chiefs of tribes and domestic officers of David.

1 Now a certain number of the Israelites, paternal chiefs and captains of thousands and hundreds, and their officers, who on every occasion served the king, were distributed into courses; who came into at- tendance and went out, month by month, throughout all the months of the year: each course consisting of twenty-four thousand men. Over the first course of the first 2 month, was Jashobeam, the son of Zabdiel, Of the posterity of Pharez, chief of all the 3 captains of the host for the first month: 'and in his course were twenty-four thou- 4 sand.'" And over the course of the second month, was Dodi, an Ahohite; and the ruler of the course, under him, was Mikloth: in his course likewise were twenty-four thou- 5 sand. The third captain of the host, for the third month, was Benaiah, the son of Jehoi- 6 ada, a chief priest: and in his course were twenty-four thousand. This Benaiah was 6 the most valiant of the thirty worthies, and above the thirty: and in his course was Ammizabad, his son. The fourth captain 7 for the fourth month, was Asahel, the brother of Joab; and after him Zebadiah, his son: and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The fifth captain, for the fifth 8 month, was Shammuth, the Izrahite: and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The sixth captain, for the sixth month, was 9 Ira, the son of Ikkesh, a Tekoite; and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The 10 seventh captain for the seventh month, was Helez, a Pelonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his course were twenty-four thou- 11 sand. The eighth captain, for the eighth month, was Sibbecai, a Hushathite, of the progeny of Zorah: and in his course were 12 twenty-four thousand. The ninth captain, for the ninth month, was Abiezer, an Ana- 13 thothite, of the progeny of Benjamin: and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The tenth captain, for the tenth month, was 14 Maharai, a Netophathite, of the progeny of Zarah, and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The eleventh captain, for the 15 eleventh month, was Benaiah, a Pirathon- ite, of the progeny of Ephraim: and in his course were twenty-four thousand. The 16 twelfth captain, for the twelfth month, was Heldai, a Netophathite, of the progeny of Othniel: and in his course were twenty- thousand.

Also over the tribes of Israel, the follow- 16 ing were rulers. The ruler of the Reuben- ites was Eliezer, the son of Zichri; of the Simeonites, Shephatiah, the son of Maa- chah: Of the Levites, Hashabiah, the 17 son of Kemuel: of the Aaronites, Zadok: Of Judah, 'Eliab,' one of the brethren of 18 David: of Issachar, Omri, the son of Mi-

CHAP. XXVII. 2, 3. The order of these verses has been disturbed, and the whole of the 3d verse should follow Zabdiel; for it is to Jashobeam, and not to the brooks, that it refers.

5. Jehoiada, a chief priest] The last words apply to Jehoiada, and not to Benaiah. He is called a chief priest, as being one of the paternal chiefs of the house of Aaron.

6. Compare 2 Sam. xxiii. 20-23.

17. The Aaronites] These being of a different order, though sprung from Levi, they had a peculiar chief to pre- side over them.

20 Azriel: Of the children of Ephraim, Hoshea, the son of Azariah: of the half-tribe of Manasseh, on this side the Jordan. Joel, the son of Pedaiah: Of the half-tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo, the son of Zechariah: of Benjamin, Jaasiel, the son of Abner:
22 Of Dan, Azareel, the son of Jeroham. These were the chiefs of the tribes of Israel.
23 But David took not the number of the tribes from twenty years old and under; because Jehovah had said that he would increase
24 Israel like to the stars of the heavens. Joab, the son of Zeruiah, began to number, but he finished not, because the wrath of God, on this account, fell upon Israel; nor was the number put in the account of the chronicles of king David.
25 And over the king's treasures was Azmaveth, the son of Adiel: and over the storehouses, in the fields, in the cities, and in the villages, and in the citadels, was Jonathan,
26 the son of Uziah. And over those who wrought in the fields, for tillage of the 27 ground, was Ezri, the son of Chelub. And over the vineyards was Shimel, a Ramathite; but over the produce of the vineyards, in the wine cellars, was Zabdi, a Shiphm
28 mite. And over the olive trees and the sycamores which were in the plains, was Baal-hanan, a Gederite: and over the oil
29 cellars was Joash. And over the herds that fed in Sharon, was Shitrai, a Sharonite; and over the herds that were in the valley
30 was Shaphat, the son of Adlai. Over the camels was Obil, an Ishmaelite; and over the asses was Jehdeiah, a Meronathite.
31 And over the flocks was Jaziz, a Hagerite. All these were rulers of the property which 32 belonged to king David. Also Jonathan, David's uncle, a wise counsellor, and scribe, and Jehiel, the son of Hachmoni, had the 33 care of the king's sons. And Ahithophel was the king's counsellor; and Hushai, the 34 Archite, was the king's companion. And after Ahithophel, Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, and Abiathar: and the general of the king's army was Joab.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 1015. David's last exhortation to his son Solomon, and to the people.

1 Now David assembled at Jerusalem all the chiefs of Israel, the chiefs of the tribes,

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. Worthies, and all the] We are told, 1 Kings i. that David was ill, when Solomon was made king in his stead; but from this account, it appears that he had so far recovered as to be present, and to address a vast assembly, called for the purpose of recognising Solomon as his successor.

4. King over Israel] It was proper to specify this, to and the chiefs of the divisions who ministered to the king by courses, and the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds; those also who had the care of all the king's property, and of his cattle, and of his sons; with the court-officers and the worthies, and all the other men of valour. Then David, the king, standing upon his feet, said;

2 Hear me, my brethren, and my people: I had purposed to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, even for the footstool of our God, and had made preparations for the building: But God
3 said to me, Thou shalt not build a house for my name, because thou hast been a man of war, and hast shed blood. Yet Jehovah,
4 the God of Israel, hath chosen me before all the house of my father, to be king over Israel, for ever. For he hath chosen Judah to be the ruling tribe; and of the house of Judah, the house of my father; so, among the sons of my father, he hath been pleased to make me king over all Israel: And of
5 all my sons, (for Jehovah hath given me many sons,) he hath chosen Solomon, my son, to sit upon the throne of Jehovah's kingdom, over Israel. And he said unto
6 me, Solomon, thy son, is he who shall build my house and my courts: for him I have chosen to be my son, and I will be his father. Moreover, I will establish his king-
7 dom for ever, if he be constant, as at this day, in doing my commandments and my judgments. Now, therefore, in the sight of 8 all Israel, the congregation of Jehovah, and in the hearing of our God, I adjure you to study to keep all the commandments of Jehovah your God: that ye may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children after you for ever. And thou, Solomon, my son, acknowledge 9 the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart, and a willing mind: for Jehovah searcheth all hearts, and the whole frame of the thoughts he understandeth. If thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off,
10 for ever. Take heed now; for as Jehovah hath chosen thee to build a house for his sanctuary, confidently undertake the work.

Then David gave to Solomon, his son, a 11 plan of the whole temple; of its porch, and apartments, and its store-rooms, and its galleries, and its inner-rooms, and its most holy place; With the plan of all that he 12 show that there was nothing of hereditary right in this case. Judah was not the eldest son; Jesse was not the most considerable family in it; David was the youngest son of this family; and Solomon one of his youngest.

8—10. This address to the people and to Solomon is forcible, and becoming the wisdom and the experience of the aged monarch,

- had conceived in his mind, respecting the courts of the house of Jehovah, and of all the apartments around, of the treasuries of the house of God, and of the treasuries of
- 13 the dedicated things; And an order respecting the courses of the priests and the Levites, and the whole ministerial service of the house of Jehovah, and all the service-vessels in the house of Jehovah. He gave
- 14 of gold, by weight, for every service-utensil of gold; and of silver, by weight, for every service-utensil of silver; for all service-
- 15 utensils of every kind. Also for the golden chandeliers, and their golden lamps, a certain weight of gold for each chandelier and its lamps; and for the silver chandeliers, a certain weight of silver for each chandelier and its lamps; according to the use of each
- 16 chandelier. And he gave a certain weight of gold for the presence-bread tables, for each table; and of silver for the tables of
- 17 silver: Also pure gold for the forks, and the sprinkling-basins, and the cups: and for every basin-cover of gold, a certain weight; and for every basin-cover of silver, a certain
- 18 weight: And for the incense-altar, refined gold by weight; and gold according to the pattern, for the chariot of the cherubs, which had their "wings" expanded, so that they might cover the ark of the covenant of Je-
- 19 hovah. David, through the assistance of Jehovah, who gave to him wisdom, left the whole in writing, the whole plan of these works.
- 20 And David said to Solomon, his son, Be strong, and of good courage, and do it: fear not, nor be dismayed: for God Jehovah, my God, will be with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished the whole work for the service of
- 21 the house of Jehovah. And, behold, the courses of the priests and the Levites are with thee for all the service of the house of God: and for all kinds of workmanship, for every sort of service; every willing, skilful man will be with thee. The chiefs also, and all the people, are wholly at thy command.
- 1 Then David, the king, said to the whole congregation, Solomon, my son, whom alone God hath chosen, is yet young and tender, and the work is great: for the palace is not for man, but for God Jehovah. Now I have prepared, according to 2 my utmost ability, for the house of my God, gold for the utensils of gold, and silver for those of silver, and brass for those of brass, and iron for those of iron, and wood for those of wood; onyx, and other stones for setting, glistening stones, and of divers colours, and all sorts of precious stones, and marble stones in abundance. Moreover, 3 from my affection for the house of my God, I have a private property of gold and silver, which I give to the house of my God, over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house; Three thousand talents of gold, 4 of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of fine silver, to overlay the walls of the house. The gold for utensils of gold, 5 and silver for those of silver; and for all sorts of work to be done by artists. And who then is willing to come, this day, with full hands to Jehovah? The paternal chiefs, 6 and the chiefs of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and of hundreds, with the rulers of the king's work, offered willingly; And gave for the service of the 7 house of God, of gold, five thousand talents and ten thousand daries; and of silver, ten thousand talents, and of brass, eighteen thousand talents; and one hundred thousand talents of iron. And they who had 8 precious stones, gave them to the treasure of the house of Jehovah, into the hand of Jehiel, the Gershonite. Then the people re- 9 joiced, in that these had so willingly offered; with perfect heart had they willingly offered to Jehovah: and David, the king, also rejoiced with great joy.

David then, before the whole congregation, blessed Jehovah; and David said, Blessed from eternity to eternity be thou, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, our father. Thine, O Jehovah, is the greatness, and power, and glory, and victory, and honour; for all that is in the heavens, or on the earth, is thine; thine is the sovereignty, O Jehovah, and thou art exalted as head over all. From thee come 12 riches and honour, and thou reignest over 12. Conceived in his mind] So all our old translators understand the text. Some modern interpreters apply this to the Holy Spirit, but, I think, improperly.

18. The chariot of the cherubs] It is difficult to understand what is meant by the chariot of the cherubs, unless it be intended to signify the supporter on which they rested or to which they were fixed; or, perhaps, the chariot of the cherubs may apply only to the cherubs which were considered as the chariot of Jehovah, he residing between them. Hence the metaphor, of God riding on the cherubs. Compare 2 Kings xix. 16; Ps. lxxx. 1; and xviii. 10, with Ezek. x. 15. (a) Sept.

19. Through the assistance] Literally, through the hand of Jehovah, &c. With Houbigant, I read עֲלֵי, and consider this not as the language of David, but of the historian.

The latter speaks from the 11th verse to this inclusive. The text is difficult, but the version given is clear and faithful. With many, I think that this passage intimates that the temple was of divine original; and Villalpandus has proved that the Greeks derived their architecture from this as their model.

CHAP. XXIX. 1. Young and tender] That is, comparatively; for he was now married, as appears by comparing 2 Chron. ix. 30; and xii. 13.

10—19. It is no wonder that such a sight fired his muse. Indeed, it is natural to expect when David rejoiced, to find afterwards a psalm of praise. Accordingly, we have here one of his noblest, most devout, and spirited compositions, though he was now in the decline of life.

all; and in thy hand is power and might; and in thy hand it is to make great, and to 13 give strength to all. Now, therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious 14 name. But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to present such a free-will offering as this? Surely from thee come all things, and of thine own
 15 have we given to thee. For before thee we are but strangers, and sojourners, as all our fathers were: our days, on the earth, are like a shadow; and there is no hope of 16 abiding. O Jehovah, our God, all this store which we have prepared to build for thee a house, for the honour of thy holy name, cometh from thy hand, and is all
 17 thine own. I know also, my God, that thou triest the heart, and hast pleasure in uprightness. As for me, in the uprightness of my heart, I have willingly offered all these things: and now have I seen with joy thy people, who are present here, offer willingly
 18 unto thee. O Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, keep this for ever in the frame of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and direct their 19 heart unto thee: And give to Solomon, my son, a perfect heart, to keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes; and to undertake and build the palace, for which I have made provision.
 20 David then said to the whole congregation, Now bless Jehovah, your God. And all the congregation blessed Jehovah, the God of their fathers, and bowed down their heads, and worshipped Jehovah, and made
 21 obedience to the king. And on the morrow

after that day, they slaughtered sacrifices to Jehovah, and offered burnt-offerings to Jehovah; a thousand steers, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their drink-offerings; and other sacrifices in abundance for all Israel: And they ate and drank before Jehovah, on that day with great gladness. And they made Solomon, the son of David, king, a second time, and anointed him according to the will of Jehovah, to be chief ruler, and Zadok to be high priest. Then 23 Solomon sat on the throne of David, his father, and prospered; and all Israel obeyed him. And all the chiefs, and the mighty 24 men, and all the sons likewise of king David, submitted themselves to Solomon, the king. And Jehovah magnified Solomon 25 exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal splendour, as had not been bestowed on any king before him in Israel.

Thus David, the son of Jesse, reigned 26 over all Israel; And the time that he 27 reigned over Israel was forty years; seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty-three years reigned he in Jerusalem. And he 28 died in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honour: and Solomon, his son, reigned in his stead. Now the acts of David the 29 king, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of Samuel, the seer, and in the book of Nathan, the prophet, and in the book of Gad, the seer; With the whole 30 history of his reign and his power, and of the times with respect to himself, and to Israel, and to all the kingdoms of the countries around.

15. Strangers, &c.] Compare Levit. xxv. 28.

22. A second time, &c.] Compare 1 Kings i. 34. This making Solomon king, can only be understood, as to take place after the death of his father

23 (c) Of Jehovah, &c.

25. Compare 1 Kings xi. where many things are recorded, which occurred after this, before David died.

II. CHRONICLES.

INTRODUCTION.

In this second book of Chronicles, we have a more full account of the reign of Solomon, the building of the temple, &c.; and also of the revolt of the ten tribes under Rehoboam, his son and successor. The reign of pious Jehoshaphat is also given more at large; and many particulars are noticed in the reigns of all the kings of Judah, which had not been mentioned in the preceding books. This book contains the history of the most interesting events, during a period of four hundred and sixteen years.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1015. Solomon's sacrifice, and vision at Gibeon; his riches, &c.

1 AND Solomon, the son of David, was established over his kingdom; and Jehovah, his God, was with him, and magnified him exceedingly. Then Solomon spoke to all Israel, to the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and to the judges, and to every governor in all Israel, and to the paternal

3 chiefs. And Solomon, and all the congregation with him, went to the high-place which was at Gibeon; for there was the congregation-tabernacle of God, which Moses, the servant of Jehovah, had made in the wilderness; (But the ark of God had David brought up from Kirjath-Jearim, to the place which David had prepared for it; for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem.)

4 Moreover, the brazen altar, which Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, had made, was there before the tabernacle of Jehovah: and Solomon and the congregation sought unto it. For Solomon went up thither to the brazen altar before Jehovah, which was at the congregation-tabernacle, and offered a thousand burnt-offerings upon it.

5 In that night did God appear to Solomon, and said to him, Ask what I shall give to thee. And Solomon said to God, Thou hast showed great mercy to David, my father, and hast made me to reign in his stead. Now, O God Jehovah, let thy promise to David, my father, be established: for thou hast made me king over a people numerous as the dust of the earth. Give to me, now, wisdom and knowledge, that I may properly conduct the affairs of this people: for who can judge this thy so great

6 a people? And God said to Solomon, Because this is the desire of thy heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, nor yet hast asked long life; but hast asked for thyself wisdom and knowledge, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made

7 thee king; Wisdom and knowledge are granted unto thee: and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour, such as none of the kings before thee have had, nor after thee, shall any have such. Then Solomon

8 returned from the high-place which was at Gibeon, to Jerusalem, from before the congregation-tabernacle, and reigned over Israel.

9 Solomon then collected chariots and horsemen: and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he stationed in the chariot-cities, and with himself at Jerusalem.

10 And the king made silver and gold at Jerusalem as plentiful as stones; and cedar-trees made he as abundant as sycamores which are in the vale. And Solomon had 16 horses brought out of Egypt, and from Coa: the king's merchants received them from Coa, at a stated price. And a chariot they 17 fetched and brought up out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty: and so were brought by them horses for all the kings of the Hethites, and for the kings of Syria.

CHAPTER II.

B, C, 1015. Solomon's application to Hiram for timber to build the temple.

AND Solomon determined to build a house 1 to the name of Jehovah, and a palace for himself. And Solomon numbered seventy 2 thousand men to carry burdens, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountain, and three thousand and "three" hundred to oversee them.

And Solomon sent to "Hiram," the king 3 of Tyre, saying, As thou didst deal with David, my father, and didst send him cedars to build for himself a house to dwell in, even so deal with me. Behold, I am about to 4 build a house to the name of Jehovah. my God, to be dedicated to him; for the burning before him aromatic incense, and for the continual presence-bread, and for the burnt-offerings, morning and evening, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts of Jehovah, our God; which 5 are commanded for ever to Israel. And the house which I am going to build is great; for great is our God above all gods. But who is able to build for him a house, 6 seeing the heavens, yea, the highest heavens cannot contain him? who am I then, that I should build for him a house, save only to burn incense before him? Send me now, 7 therefore, a man, wise to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in iron, and in purple, and crimson, and blue, and who is skilful in engraving; that he may work with the wise men who are with me in Judah, and in Jerusalem, whom David, my father, provided. Send me also cedar-trees, fir- 8 trees, and "almug"-trees, out of Lebanon: for I know that thy servants are skilful in cutting down timber in Lebanon; and, behold, my servants shall be with thy servants, Even to prepare for me timber in 9 abundance: for the house which I am about to build is to be great and wonderful. And, 10

CHAP. I. 5. Was there before] &c. I consider as as the adverb, and not as the verb. So the Septuagint, Vulgate, and pointed text.

7—12. Compare 1 Kings iii. 5—15, where the account is more fully given.

14—17. This is the same as 1 Kings x. 26—29. See the notes there.

CHAP. II. 2. (v) 1 MS. 1 Kings v. 15.

3. Hiram] The text has Huram, which, doubtless, is wrong. All the versions read here as in 1 Kings.

6. Save only] Such is the glory and majesty of God, that no temple can be built worthy of his regard; the only end of such a structure must be for us to meet there and perform the services which he has appointed.

8. Almug-trees] In the text there is a transposition of two letters; and instead of almug it is algum. Some of the MSS. always read as in 1 Kings x. 11. The Vulgate renders thyina, a species of wild cypress. It seems to have been durable.

10. Compare 1 Kings v. 11.

behold, I will give to thy servants, the fellers, who cut down the timber, twenty thousand cores of wheat, and twenty thousand cores of barley, and twenty thousand baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.

- 11 Then Hiram, the king of Tyre, answered in writing, which he sent to Solomon, Because Jehovah hath loved his people, he 12 hath made thee king over them. Hiram said moreover, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, who made the heavens and the earth; who hath given to David the king a wise son, endued with prudence and understanding, who intends to build a house
13 for Jehovah, and a palace for himself. I have now, therefore, sent a wise and very 14 knowing man, Hiram-abiu. The son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a man of Tyre, skilful to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, in iron, in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen, and in crimson; also to engrave any sort of engraving; and to devise every kind of artificial work, which may be proposed to him; together with thine own wise
16 men, and the wise men of my lord, David, thy father. Now, therefore, the wheat, and the barley, the oil, and the wine, which my 15 lord hath spoken of, let him send to his servants: And we will cut down timber out of Lebanon, as much as thou shalt need: and we will bring it to thee in floats by sea to Joppa; and thou shalt carry it up to Jerusalem.
- 17 And Solomon numbered all the strangers who were in the land of Israel, (after the numbering which David, his father, had made;) and they were found to be a hundred and fifty-three thousand and six hundred.
18 And of these he appointed seventy thousand to carry burdens, and eighty thousand hewers of stone in the mountain, and three thousand and "three" hundred overseers, to direct the people at work.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1012. The building of the temple, and its various instruments of service.

- 1 SOLOMON began to build the house of Jehovah, at Jerusalem, on mount Moriah, as had been shown to David, his father, in the place which David had prepared, in the threshing-floor of Araunah, the Jebusite. And he began to build on the second day 2 of the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.

Now these are the dimensions which
3 Solomon observed in building the house of God. The length, by cubits, (after the former measure,) was sixty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits. And the porch
4 before, was in length, according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits; "and its breadth was ten cubits," and its height
5 was "twenty cubits:" and he overlaid it within with pure gold. And the greater house he ceiled with wood, which he overlaid
6 with fine gold: on which were sculptured palms and chain-works. And he paved the house with beautiful precious stones. He
7 overlaid also the house, the beams, the posts, and its walls, and its doors, with gold; and he carved on the walls, cherubs. "The gold
8 was gold of Pharvaim." And he made the sanctuary, the length of which was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits; and its breadth twenty cubits: and he overlaid it with fine gold, amounting to 9 six hundred talents. And the weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. And he overlaid the upper-chamber with gold. And in 10 the sanctuary he made two cherubs of sculptured work, and overlaid them with gold. And the wings of the cherubs were together
11 twenty cubits long: one wing five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house: and the other wing five cubits, reaching to the wing of the other cherub. And one wing of the 12 other cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house; and the other wing was five cubits, joining to the wing of the other cherub. The wings of these cherubs spread 13 themselves forth twenty cubits; and they stood on their feet, and their faces were inward. And he made the veil of blue, and 14 purple, and scarlet cotton; on which were wrought cherubs.

Also he made before the house, two pillars of "eighteen" cubits high, and the capital which was on the top of each of them, was five cubits. And he made chain-16 works, like those in the oracle, and put them on the tops of the pillars; and made a hundred pomegranates, and placed them on the chain-work. And he reared up the 17

13. Hiram-abiu] With Dathe and others, I regard abiu as a part of the proper name of this ingenious artist, perhaps added to distinguish him from the king of Tyre. Compare chap. iv. 16. where the name is full רַבִּי אֲבִי, and so the MSS. 18. (v) 1 Kings v. 15.

CHAP. III. 3. After the former measure] From this we may conclude, that when the author wrote, another sort of cubit was in use, than what had been formerly. He most probably refers to the Mosaic cubit. Compare Ezek. xl. 5. and xliii. 13.

4. Twenty cubits] The common reading is admitted to be wrong; the difference between the word cubits and hundred consists in the transposition of two letters. See note, Hebrew Bible. (a) Sept. Alex. Arab.

15. Eighteen cubits] The parallel places, 1 Kings vii. 15, and Jer. lii. 21, have this number, and as there is no various reading there, I conclude it is the genuine reading. Compare with this chapter 1 Kings vi. 27, where there is a more full account.

pillars before the temple, one on the right hand, and the other on the left; and called the name of that on the right hand, Jachin, and the name of that on the left, Boaz.

1 He made also an altar of brass; twenty cubits its length, and twenty cubits its breadth, and ten cubits its height.

2 He made also a molten sea, the diameter of which, from brim to brim, was ten cubits; and five cubits its height; and a line of

3 thirty cubits compassed it around. And under its brim were "knops," which compassed it around; ten in a cubit, compassing the sea round about. The knops were

4 in two rows, cast when it was cast. It stood upon twelve oxen; three looking towards the north, and three looking towards the west, and three looking towards the south, and three looking towards the east:

5 and the sea was so placed above them, that all their hinder parts were inward. And the thickness of it was a handbreadth, and its brim was wrought like the brim of a cup, with flowers of lilies. It contained three thousand baths.

6 He made also ten lavers, and put five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in: such things as they offered for the burnt-offering, they washed in them; but the sea

7 was for the priests to wash in. And he made ten golden chandeliers, according to the usual form, and placed them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on

8 the left. He made also ten tables, and placed them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. And he made a

9 hundred basins of gold. He made also the court of the priests, and the great court for the people; and doors for the courts, and 10 overlaid the doors with brass. And he placed the sea on the right side, at the south-east corner. And Hiram made the pots, and the shovels, and the sprinkling-basins.

11 Thus Hiram finished the work, which he had to make for king Solomon, for the 12 house of God; The two pillars, and the bowls, and the two capitals, which were on the top of the two pillars, and the two net-

which were upon the pillars. He made 14 also laver-stands; and lavers made he upon the stands. One sea, and twelve oxen 15 under it. The pans also, and the shovels, 16 and the forks, and all the other instruments, did Hiram-abiu make of polished brass, for king Solomon, for the house of Jehovah. In the plain of the Jordan did the king cast 17 them, in the clay ground between Succoth and "Zarthan." Thus Solomon made all 18 these vessels in great abundance: for the weight of the brass could not be found out.

And Solomon made all the vessels that 19 were for the house of God; the golden altar also, and the tables whereon the presence-bread was placed. Moreover, the chandeliers with their lamps, that they should burn, according to custom, before the oracle, were of pure gold; The flowers also, and the 21 lamps, and the snuffers, were of the purest gold; And the knives and the basins, and 22 the spoons, and the censers were of pure gold. The hinges also, of the doors of the inner-house, or sanctuary, and the doors of the house of the temple, were of gold.

Thus all the work, which Solomon made 1 for the house of Jehovah, was finished; and Solomon brought in all the things which David, his father, had dedicated; and the silver and the gold, and all the instruments, put he among the treasures of the house of God.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1004. The ark carried into the oracle; God's glory fills the temple; Solomon's prayer and sacrifice, &c.

THEN Solomon assembled "all" the elders 2 of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, and the paternal chiefs of the Israelites, unto Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, out of the city of David, which is Zion. And all the chief men of 3 Israel assembled themselves unto the king, at the feast of booths, which was in the seventh month. And all the elders of 4 Israel came; and "the priests" and the Levites took up the ark. And they brought 5 up the ark, and the congregation-tabernacle, and all the holy vessels which were in the tabernacle, these the priests and the Levites brought up. Also king Solomon, and the 6 whole congregation of Israel, who were assembled with him before the ark, were sacrificing sheep and oxen, which could not place to the text, because the next verse has both. Some think that the Levites first took up the ark and brought it to the temple, and the priests carried it into the most holy place. (a) 1 Kings viii. 3.

5. Congregation-tabernacle] This most probably refers to the old Mosaic tabernacle, the various parts of which were now brought, and what were useful applied to the use of the temple, and other things kept with care, as proofs of past events concerning the nation.

CHAP. IV. 3. (v) 1 Kings vii. 24.

5. Three thousand baths] In 2 Kings vii. 26, it is only two thousand. Geddes supposes the text here the more probable, judging from the dimensions given. Others think that the author here mentions what it contained, according to the bath in use when he wrote, which, like the cubit, had been diminished. Compare 1 Kings vii. and notes.

17. (v) 1 Kings vii. 46.

CHAP. V. 2. (a) Versions and MSS.

4. The priests] I have joined the reading of the parallel

7 he told or numbered for multitude. And the priests brought the ark of the covenant of Jehovah into its place, to the oracle of the temple, into the most holy place, even
8 under the wings of the cherubs: For the cherubs spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubs covered 9 both the ark and its staves. And though the staves were so long, that the ends of the staves might be seen from the ark before the oracle, yet they could not be seen without: and there they are unto this day.
10 There was nothing in the ark but the two tables which Moses put therein at Horeb, when Jehovah made a covenant with the Israelites, on their coming out of Egypt.
11 Now when the priests had come out of the holy place: (for all the priests present were sanctified, nor did they then wait by 12 course:) And the Levites, the singers, the whole choir of Asaph, of Heman, of Jeduthun, with their sons and their brethren, arrayed in white muslin, having cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, stood at the east-end of the altar; and with them were a hundred and twenty priests, sounding trumpets.
13 And the trumpeters and singers united in one grand chorus, praising and thanking Jehovah; and when they raised their voice with the trumpets and cymbals, and instruments of music, and praised Jehovah, saying, For he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever; then the house was filled with a cloud, the house of Jehovah;
14 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of Jehovah had filled the house of God.
1 Then spoke Solomon, Jehovah said that he would dwell in the dark cloud. But I have built a house of abode for thee; a place
3 for thy perpetual residence. And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel; and the whole congregation of Israel stood. And he said, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, who hath, with his own hands, fulfilled what he promised, with his own mouth, to my father
5 David, saying, From the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt, I have not chosen a city, out of any of the tribes of Israel, to build a house in, that my name might be there revered; nor had I chosen any man to be ruler over my people Israel; But I have now chosen Jerusalem, that my name may be there revered:

and I have chosen David to be over my people Israel. Now it was the purpose of David, my father, to build a house to the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel. But Jehovah said to David, my father, Inasmuch as it was thy purpose to build a house to my name, thou didst well to form such a purpose. Nevertheless, thou shalt not build the house; but thy son who shall come from thine own loins, he shall build the house to my name. Now Jehovah hath performed his word which he spoke: for I am risen up in the stead of David, my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, as Jehovah promised, and have built the house to the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel. And in it I have placed the ark, in which are the tables of the covenant of Jehovah, which he made with Israel.

And "Solomon" stood before the altar of Jehovah, in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands. For Solomon had made a brazen scaffold, of five cubits long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and had placed it in the midst of the court; and upon it he stood, and then kneeled down upon his knees, before the whole congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands towards the heavens. And said, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, there is no God like thee in the heavens "above," or on the earth "below;" who keepest covenant, and showest mercy to thy servants, who walk before thee with their whole hearts: Thou who hast kept with thy servant David, my father, what thou didst promise to him: and, with thine own mouth, thou spakest what thou hast fulfilled with thine own hand, as is this day seen. Now, therefore, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, keep with thy servant David, my father, what thou didst promise to him, saying, Some one of thy posterity shall not fail to sit, in my presence, on the throne of Israel; provided that thy children take heed to their way to walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me. Now then, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, let thy word be verified; which thou spakest unto thy servant "David, my father." But will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, the heavens, yea, the highest heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built! Yet have thou respect to the prayer of thy servant, and to

CHAP. VI. 12. (a) Syr. Arab. 1 MS.

18. [Highest heavens] Some suppose that the highest heavens, or 'heaven of heavens,' implies that there are systems of systems, each having its sun, and its primary and secondary planets; all extending beyond each other in unlimited space, in the same regular and graduated order, as we find in our own solar system. Modern astronomy supports this opinion. If creation be so incomprehensible, what must be the greatness, wisdom, and power of the Creator!

his supplication, O Jehovah, my God, to harken unto the cry and the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee "this day :"
20 That thine eyes, night and day, may be open towards this house ; towards the place of which thou hast said that thou wouldst put thy name there ; to harken to the prayer which thy servant prayeth towards this place.
21 Harken, therefore, to the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they shall make towards this place : hear thou them from the heavens, thine own dwelling-place, and when thou hearest, forgive.
22 If a man offend his neighbour, and he be put to his oath, and the oath be made before 23 thine altar, in this house ; Then hear thou from the heavens, and do justice to thy servants, in requiting the wicked, by bringing his guilt upon his own head ; and in justifying the righteous, by giving him according to his righteousness.
24 And if thy people Israel be smitten before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee ; and shall turn again "to thee," and confess thy name, and pray and make supplication before thee in this house ;
25 Then hear thou from the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land which thou gavest to "their fathers."
26 When the heavens are shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee : yet if they pray towards this place and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, when thou hast afflicted them ;
27 Then hear thou from the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people
Israel ; and teach thou them the good way, in which they ought to walk ; and send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.
28 If there be famine in the land, if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, locusts, or caterpillars ; if their enemies besiege them in any of their cities ; whatsoever plague, or whatsoever sickness, there 29 be : Then every prayer and every supplication which shall be made by any man, by any of thy people Israel, by any man, who knoweth his own plague and grief, and shall spread forth his hands towards this 30 house : Then hear thou from the heavens, thine own dwelling-place, and forgive, and deal with every man according to his ways, as thou knowest his heart ; for thou only knowest the hearts of "all" the children of men : That they may fear thee, so as to 31 walk in thy ways, as long as they live in the land which thou gavest to our fathers.

Moreover, concerning a stranger, who is 32 not of thy people Israel, but is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, and thy mighty hand, and thy stretched-out arm ; if he come and pray in this house ;
Then hear thou from the heavens, thine 33 own dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for ; that all people of the earth may know thy name, and fear thee, like thy people Israel ; and may know that this house which I have built is called by thy name.

If thy people go out to battle against 34 their enemies, whithersoever thou mayest send them, and they pray to thee towards this city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name ;
Then hear thou, from the heavens, their 35 prayer and their supplication, and maintain their cause.

If they sin against thee, (for there is 36 no man who sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them up to their enemies, and they carry them away captives into a land far or near ; If, in the land 37
whither they are carried captives, they reflect, and repent, and pray to thee, in the land of their captivity, saying, We have sinned, we have done perversely, and have committed wickedness : If they return to thee with 38 their whole heart and with their whole soul in the land of their captivity, whither they have carried them captives, and pray towards their land, which thou gavest to their fathers, and towards the city which thou hast chosen, and towards the house which I have built to thy name ; Then hear thou 39 from the heavens, from thine own dwelling-place, their prayer and their supplications, and maintain their cause, and forgive thy people who have sinned against thee. Now, 40 my God, let, I beseech thee, thine eyes be open, and let thine ears be attentive to prayer made in this place. Now, there- 41 fore, arise, O God, Jehovah, into thy resting place, thou, and the ark of thy strength :
let thy priests, O God, Jehovah, be clothed with salvation, and let thy saints rejoice in prosperity. O God, Jehovah, turn not away 42 the face of thine anointed : remember the mercies of David, thy servant.

Now, when Solomon had made an end 1

CHAP. VII. 1, 2. These two verses are not in the parallel place. As they relate an important fact, and show that God honoured the temple, as he formerly did the tabernacle, I am inclined to believe that they once obtained in of praying, fire came down from the heavens, and consumed the burnt-offering, and the sacrifices; and the glory of Jehovah

 2 filled the house. And the priests could not enter into the house of Jehovah, because the glory of Jehovah had filled his own
 3 house. And when all the Israelites saw the fire come down, and the glory of Jehovah upon the house, they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped and praised Jehovah, saying, For he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

4 Then the king and all the people offered
 5 sacrifices before Jehovah. And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen, and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep; thus the king and all the people
 6 dedicated the house of God. And the priests attended on their ministrations; and the Levites with instruments of sacred music, which David, the king, had made, and in hymns which David taught them to praise Jehovah; "because he is good;" because his mercy endureth for ever; and opposite to them, the priests sounded the trumpets,
 7 and all Israel stood around. And Solomon had hallowed the middle of the court which was before the house of Jehovah: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and the fat of the feast-offerings, because the brazen altar which Solomon had made was not able to receive the burnt-offerings and the wheaten-offerings, and the fat "of the feast-offerings."

8 Also at the same time, Solomon and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from the entrance of Hainath unto the river of Egypt, kept a feast of seven days, "and 9 seven days, fourteen days." For on the eighth day, they kept a solemn assembly: thus they kept the dedication of the altar
 10 seven days, and the feast seven days. And on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month, he sent away the people to their own homes, joyful and glad in heart for "all the good which Jehovah had shown" to David, and to Solomon, and to Israel his people.

11 When Solomon had finished the house of Jehovah, and his own palace, and had succeeded in doing whatsoever came into his mind to do, in the house of Jehovah and in 12 his own house; Jehovah appeared to Solomon by night, and said to him, I have heard thy prayer, and have chosen this place to 13 myself for a house of sacrifice. If I shut up the heavens that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people; If my people, who are called by my name, 14 shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from the heavens, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. Now mine eyes shall be open, and mine 15 ears attentive to prayer made in this place. For now have I chosen and hallowed this 16 house, that my name may be there for ever: and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually. And as for thee, if thou wilt 17 walk before me, as David, thy father, walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and observe my statutes and my judgments; 'Then will I establish the 18 throne of thy kingdom, according as I have covenanted with David, thy father, saying, Some one of thy posterity shall not fail to be ruler in Israel. But if ye turn away, 19 and forsake my statutes and my commandments, which I have set before you, and will go and serve other gods, and worship them; 'Then will I pluck you up by the roots, out 20 of the land which I have given you; and this house, which I have hallowed to my own name, will I cast out of my sight, and will make it a proverb, and a by-word among all nations. And this house, which is high, 21 shall be an astonishment to every one that passeth by it; so that he shall say, Why hath Jehovah done thus to this land, and to this house? And it shall be answered, Be- 22 cause they forsook Jehovah, the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and adhered to other gods, and worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath he brought all this evil upon them.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 992. Solomon's buildings; Pharaoh's daughter removed to her own palace.

Now at the end of twenty years, in which 1 Solomon had built the house of Jehovah, and his own house, Solomon repaired the cities 2 which Hiram had restored to him, and caused the Israelites to dwell there. And 3 Solomon went to Hamath-zobah, and prevailed against it. And he built Tadmor, in 4 the wilderness, and all the store-cities, which he built in Hamath. He repaired also 5 Beth-horon, the upper, and Beth-horon, the nether, fenced cities, with walls, gates,

5. Twenty-two] Le Clerc conceived that the numbers here are not credible. Houbigant defends this by explaining, that the number of oxen and sheep sacrificed, relates to the whole fourteen days, which the feast of tabernacles and of dedication lasted.

But the children of those, who were left after them in the land, whom the Israelites consumed not; them did Solomon make to pay tribute until this day. But of the Israelites, Solomon did not make bond-men for his work; but they were men of war, and his chiefs, and his captains, and his charioteers, and his horsemen. And of those chief officers of king Solomon, there were "five" hundred and fifty, who directed the people, who wrought at the work.

- 12 Then Solomon offered burnt-offerings to Jehovah, on the altar of Jehovah, which he had built before the porch. Every day after a certain rate, offering according to the commandment of Moses, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts, three times in the year, at the feast of unleavened bread, and at the feast of weeks, and at the feast of booths.
- 14 And he appointed, according to the order of David, his father, the courses of the priests to their service, and the Levites to their charges, to praise and minister before the priests, as the duty of every day required: the gate-keepers also, by their courses, at every gate: for so had David, the man of God, commanded. And they departed not from the commandment of the king, to the priests and Levites, concerning any matter,
- 16 or concerning the treasures. Now every thing had been appointed, as to the work of Solomon, in building the temple of Jehovah, from the day of its foundation until its entire completion.
- 17 Then Solomon went to Ezion-geber, and to Elath, on the shore of the sea, in the land of Edom. And Hiram sent to him by 18 his servants, ships, and experienced mariners; and they went with the servants of Solomon to Ophir, and thence fetched four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought them to king Solomon.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 992. The queen of Sheba visits Solomon; his amazing wealth and grandeur.

AND when the queen of Sheba heard of 1 the fame of Solomon, she came to try Solomon with hard questions at Jerusalem, with a very great retinue; with camels bearing spices, and very much gold, and precious stones. And when she was introduced to Solomon, she conversed with him, concerning all things which were in her mind. And Solomon replied to all her ques- 2 tions: and there was nothing hidden from Solomon which he told her not. And when 3 the queen of Sheba had seen the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built, And the food of his table, and the station 4 of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, and their apparel; his cup-bearers also, and their apparel; and his burnt-offerings, which he offered in the house of Jehovah; there was no more spirit in her. And she said to the king, True was the report which I heard in mine own land of thy acts, and of thy wisdom: Yet that report I 6 believed not, until I came, and saw with mine own eyes: and, behold, the one half of the greatness of thy wisdom was not told to me: thou exceedest the report that I heard. Happy thy men, and happy these thy servants, who stand continually before thee, 7 and hear thy wisdom! Blessed be Jehovah, thy God, who was so pleased with thee as to set thee on his throne, to be king for Jehovah thy God. Because thy God loved Israel, and will establish them for ever, he hath therefore made thee king over them, to execute judgment and justice. And she 9 gave to the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices a very great store, and precious stones: there hath been no such spices as the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon. And king Solomon gave 12 to the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, besides what 'he gave to 7-10. (v) Compare 1 Kings ix, 20-23.

11. Had been hallowed] This seems to be a reason why Solomon built a palace for the queen; and perhaps it implies also that one of a foreign race was considered, in some sense, unclean.

14. David, the man of God] This is equivalent to saying, 'David, the prophet;' and indeed so he was, as many of his divine songs testify: for he was one of those who spoke of the sufferings of Messiah and of the glory that should follow.

16. Now every thing had] See 1 Chron. xxviii.

18. Sent ships] That is, materials for making them; for there was no passage into the Red sea from Tyre, but by sailing round all Africa. Compare 1 Kings ix, 26-28, and notes.

CHAP. IX. 12. He gave to her] The common text here is obviously wrong. The historian is giving an account of what Solomon said to the queen of Sheba, and he would not surely insult her by returning her own presents. The other place then should correct this. Houbigant would correct the present reading and render, 'besides what the king himself brought to her.' This is probably the true reading; but her of his royal bounty." So she turned, and went away to her own land, she and her servants.

- 10 Now the servants also of Hiram, and the servants of Solomon, who brought gold from Ophir, brought almag-trees and precious stones. And the king made of the almag-trees, balustrades for the house of Jehovah, and for his own palace, and harps and psalteries for the singers : and there had been no such wood seen before, in the land of Judah.
- 13 Now the weight of gold which came to Solomon in one year, was six hundred and
- 14 sixty-six talents of gold ; Besides that which the miners and merchants brought. And all the kings of Arabia, and governors of the country, brought gold and silver to
- 15 Solomon. And king Solomon made two hundred shields of all this beaten gold : each shield containing six hundred shekels
- 16 of beaten gold. And he made three hundred smaller shields of beaten gold : each shield containing three hundred shekels of beaten gold. And the king put them in the house of the forest of Lebanon.
- 17 Moreover, the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold.
- 18 And the throne had six steps, with a footstool of gold, which were fastened to the throne, and armstays on each side of the sitting place, and two lions standing by the
- 19 arm-stays : And twelve lions, on the one side, and on the other, stood upon the six steps. The like had not been made in any
- 20 kingdom. And all the drinking vessels of king Solomon were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold : none were of silver ; it was not any thing accounted of in the days
- 21 of Solomon. For the king's ships with the servants of Hiram went to Tarshish : once every three years the ships of Tarshish returned, bringing gold, and silver, and ivory, and apes, and peacocks.
- 22 Thus king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom.
- 23 And all the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon, to hear his wisdom,
- 24 which God had put into his mind. And they brought every man his present, utensils of silver, and utensils of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, and horses,
- 25 and mules ; a rate, year by year. And Solomon had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen ; whom he stationed in the chariot-cities, and with himself at Jerusalem. 'And 28 they brought unto Solomon, horses out of Egypt, and out of all lands."

And he reigned over all the kings, from 26 the river, even to the land of the Philistines, and to the border of Egypt. And the king 27 made silver as plentiful in Jerusalem as stones ; and cedars made he as abundant as the sycamores which are in the vales.

Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, first 29 and last, are written in the book of Nathan, the prophet, and in the prophecy of Ahijah, the Shilonite, and in the visions of Iddo, the seer, concerning Jeroboam, the son of Nebat. And Solomon reigned in Jerusalem 30 over all Israel forty years. And Solomon 31 slept with his fathers, and he was buried in the city of David, his father : and Rehoboam, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 975. Rehoboam refusing the old men's counsel, ten tribes revolt under Jeroboam.

AND Rehoboam went to Shechem : for 1 to Shechem had all Israel come to make him king. And when Jeroboam, the son 2 of Nebat, who was in Egypt, whither he had fled from the presence of Solomon the king, heard of Solomon's death, Jeroboam returned out of Egypt. And they sent and 3 invited him to the assembly. So Jeroboam and all Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam, saying, Thy father made our yoke grievous : 4 now, therefore, make thou somewhat lighter the grievous servitude of thy father, and his heavy yoke that he put upon us, and we will serve thee. And he said unto them, Come 5 again to me after three days. And the people departed.

And king Rehoboam consulted with the 6 old men who had stood before Solomon, his father, while he yet lived, saying, How do ye advise me to answer this people ? And 7 they spoke to him, saying, If thou be kind to this people, and please them, and speak to them good words, they will be thy servants for ever. But he neglected the counsel 8 which the old men gave him, and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him, and attended on him. And 9 he said unto them, How do ye advise me to answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make somewhat lighter the yoke which thy father put upon us ? And the 10 young men who had grown up with him as it is conjectural, the other text is preferred. Compare 1 Kings x. 10.

24. Every man his present] This shows us what tributary kings were accustomed to pay. Garments and armour would now be thought strange : but the former were much regarded in the east, and the wardrobes of kings contained sufficient for all their court and thousands besides. Their loose flowing dress suited all persons. The author of Chronicles passes over Solomon's apostasy, and the troubles of his latter end. See 1 Kings x.

CHAP. X. 1. For explanatory notes see 1 Kings xii. 1-24, where we have the same history recorded.

spoke to him, saying, Thus shalt thou answer the people who spoke to thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it somewhat lighter for us; thus shalt thou say unto them, My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins. For whereas my father put a heavy yoke upon you, I will make your yoke still heavier: my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you" with scorpions. And Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king bade, saying, Come again to me on the third day.

13 And the king answered them roughly; and king Rehoboam neglected the counsel of 14 the old men; And answered them after the advice of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, but I will make it still heavier: my father chastised you with whips, 15 but I "will chastise you" with scorpions. So the king hearkened not to the people: for God Jehovah so overruled this affair, that he might perform his word which he spoke by Ahijah, the Shilonite, to Jeroboam, the son of Nebat.

16 So when all Israel saw that the king would not hearken to them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? or what inheritance in the son of Jesse? every man to your own homes, O Israel: now, David, see to thine own house. So all Israel went to their own homes. But as for the Israelites who dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam 18 reigned over them. Then king Rehoboam sent Adoram who was over the tribute; and the Israelites stoned him with stones, that he died; while king Rehoboam with difficulty got into his chariot, to flee to 19 Jerusalem. So Israel rebelled against the house of David, and continue a distinct kingdom unto this day.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 975. Rehoboam forbidden to fight against Israel; he fortifies various cities, &c.

1 AND when Rehoboam had come to Jerusalem, he assembled of the house of Judah and Benjamin, a hundred and eighty thousand chosen men, who were warriors, to fight against Israel, that he might bring 2 back to himself the kingdom. But the word of Jehovah came to Shemaiah, the man of God, saying, Speak to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all Israel, in Judah and Benjamin, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren: return every man to his own house; for this thing is done by me. And they obeyed the words of Jehovah, and returned from going against Jeroboam.

And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and repaired the fenced cities in Judah. He repaired Bethlehem, and Etam, and Tekoa, And Bethzur, and Shoco, and Adullam, And Gath, and Mareshah, and Ziph, And Adoraim, and Lachish, and Azekah, Zorah, and Ajalon, and Hebron, fortified cities which are in Judah and in Benjamin. And he strengthened the fortifications, and put captains in them, and store of victuals, and of oil, and wine. And in each city he put shields and spears, and made them exceedingly strong: and he ruled over Judah and Benjamin.

And the priests and the Levites who were in all Israel resorted to him from all their districts. For the Levites left their suburbs and their possessions, and came to Judah and Jerusalem; because Jeroboam, and his sons, had rejected them from performing the priest's office to Jehovah; And had ordained for himself priests for the high-places, and for the demons, and for the calves, which he had made. And besides them, such as set their hearts to seek Jehovah, the God of Israel, out of all the tribes of Israel, came to Jerusalem, to sacrifice to Jehovah, the God of their fathers. Thus they strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, strong, for three years: for three years they walked in the way of David and Solomon.

And Rehoboam took to wife Mahalath, the daughter of Jerimoth, the son of David, and Abihail, the daughter of Eliab, the son of Jesse: Who bare to him children; Jeush, and Shamariah, and Zaham. And after he took Maachah, the daughter of Absalom; who bare to him Abijah, and Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith. And Rehoboam loved Maachah, the daughter of Absalom, above all his wives and his concubines: (for he took eighteen wives, and sixty concubines: and begot twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters.) And Rehoboam made Abijah, the son of Maachah, the chief ruler among his brethren: for he intended to make him king. He, therefore, prudently, disposed of all his other sons, throughout the whole country of Judah and Benjamin, in every CHAP. XI. 5. Repaired the fenced] The cities mentioned were not first built by Rehoboam; as is certain from the preceding history; but it is probable, that during the long and peaceable reign of Solomon, little attention had been paid to the walls, and that the king now found it necessary to repair and strengthen them. 11. 14. (a) Versions, MSS.

15. Demons] Compare Levit. xvii. 7, and the note there. 17. Of David and Solomon] From this it has been inferred that Solomon, like David, had repented of his sin and idolatry; for it is not probable that he would have been mentioned as an instance of obedience, if he had remained impenitent.

fortified city: and he allowed them victuals in abundance, and 'procured for them wives."

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 972. Rehoboam, forsaking the law, is punished by Shishak; the time he reigned.

- 1 AND when Rehoboam had established the kingdom, and had strengthened himself, he, and all Israel with him, forsook the law of Jehovah. And in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem, because they had
- 2 transgressed against Jehovah, With twelve hundred chariots, and sixty thousand horsemen: and the people, who came with him out of Egypt, were without number; the
- 3 Lubims, the Sukkiims, and the Cushites:
- 4 And he took the fortified cities which belonged to Judah, and came to Jerusalem.
- 5 Then came Shemaiah, the prophet, to Rehoboam, and to the princes of Judah, who had assembled at Jerusalem, because of Shishak, and said unto them, Thus saith Jehovah, Ye have forsaken me; and I also
- 6 leave you in the hand of Shishak. On this the chiefs of "Judah" and the king humbled themselves; and they said, Jehovah is righteous. And when Jehovah saw that they
- 7 humbled themselves, the word of Jehovah came to Shemaiah, saying, They have humbled themselves; therefore I will not destroy them, but I will grant them some deliverance; and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak. Nevertheless, they shall be his servants, that they may know my service, and the service of other kingdoms. So Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem, and took away the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and the treasures of the king's house, he took all: he carried away also the shields of gold which king
- 8 Solomon had made. Instead of which king Rehoboam made shields of brass, and com-

23. Procured for them] The text is here ambiguous, and altogether unusual. I have followed the reading proposed by Houbigant, and adopted by Dathe and others. The variation is slight, and the context justifies it. See note Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. XII. 1. Forsook the law] The historian mentions the sin of Judah only in general; but in 1 Kings xiv. 22, it is noticed particularly.

5. Then came Shemaiah] In the parallel place this address and the repentance of the king and the princes is not noticed.

6. Judah] The text has 'Israel,' a manifest error, and which ought to be corrected, even if we had no authority.

9. He took all] The king of Egypt, content with the spoils of Jerusalem, left Rehoboam in possession of the throne. It is probable that he had been induced to make this attack by Jeroboam, who had resided in that country.

12. Became better] They regained, says Poole, some degree of their former prosperity.

13. And reigned] Shishak had, most probably, for some time held the power in his own hand; but on his deparmitted them to the hands of the chief of the guard, who kept the entrance of the palace. And when the king entered into the house 11 of Jehovah, the guard came and fetched them; and brought them again into the guard-chamber. And when he humbled 12 himself, Jehovah so turned from him his wrath, that he would not utterly destroy him; and even in Judah the state of things became better. And king Rehoboam was 13 strengthened and reigned in Jerusalem.

Rehoboam was "sixteen" years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which Jehovah had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naamah, an Ammonitess. And he did evil "in the eyes of 14 Jehovah," because his heart was not steadfast in seeking Jehovah.

Now the acts of Rehoboam, first and 15 last, are accurately written in the book of Shemaiah, the prophet, and of Iddo, the seer. And there was war continually between Rehoboam and Jeroboam. And 16 Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David: and Abijah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 958. History of the reign of Abijah, and his victory over Jeroboam.

- Now in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam, began Abijah to reign over Judah. He reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was "Maacah, the daughter of Absalom, the son" of Uriel of Gibeah. And there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. And Abijah formed in battle 3 array, with an army of valiant men of war, four hundred thousand chosen men: Jeroboam also formed in battle array against him, with eight hundred thousand chosen mighty men, men of valour.

And Abijah stood upon mount Zemaraim, 4

ture, Rehoboam again enjoyed the sovereign authority.—Sixteen] The text here and the parallel place have forty-one, which Capellus first notified as an error. He is said to be young, on his accession; and besides, if he had been forty-one, Solomon must have been married before his father's death, and married to an Ammonitess before he took Pharaoh's daughter, which is contrary to the narrative. Compare ch. x. 8; and xiii. 7. I have followed Houbigant in adopting the reading of the Greek Appendix to chapter xii. 1 Kings.

14. (a) Syr. Arab. MSS.

CHAP. XIII. 2. (a) Versions, and 1 Kings xv. 2.

3. Four hundred] On the incredible number of this verse, Kennicott has observed, that Vignoles supposed that a cipher had been added, so that the true numbers were 40,000; 80,000; and the number slain (ver. 17.) were 50,000.

4—12. From this address, one might think that Abijah was a good man; but from 1 Kings xv. we are told that he walked in all the sins of his father, and that his heart was not perfect with the Lord.

which is in mount Ephraim, and said, Hear 5 me, thou Jeroboam, and all Israel; Know ye not that Jehovah, the God of Israel, gave the kingdom of Israel to David for ever, to him and to his sons, by an immutable cove-6 nant? Yet Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon, the son of David,
 is risen up and hath rebelled against his 7 lord. And there are collected about him vain and lawless men, who strengthened themselves against Rehoboam, the son of Solomon. when Rehoboam was young and tender-hearted, and could not withstand 8 them. And now ye think to prevail against the kingdom of Jehovah, in the hands of the sons of David. Ye are, indeed, a great multitude; and have with you the golden calves, which Jeroboam made to you for 9 gods. Have ye not expelled the priests of Jehovah, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites; and have made priests for yourselves after the manner of foreign nations?
 so that whosoever cometh to consecrate himself with a steer and seven rams, may 10 be a priest of gods that are no gods. But as for us, Jehovah is our God, and him we have not forsaken; and the priests, who minister to Jehovah, are the children of Aaron, and the Levites perform their busi-11 ness. And they burn to Jehovah every morning and every evening burnt-offerings and sweet incense: the presence-bread they arrange on the table of pure gold; and see that the golden chandelier, with its lamps, be lighted every evening: for we keep the charge of Jehovah, our God; but him have 12 ye forsaken. And, behold, God himself is with us for our captain, and his priests with trumpets to sound the alarm against you.
 O ye Israelites, fight not against Jehovah, the God of your fathers; for ye shall not prosper.
 13 But Jeroboam had ordered an ambush to come behind them: so they were before
 Judah, and the ambush was behind them.
 14 And when Judah looked back, behold, the battle was before and behind: and they cried to Jehovah, and the priests sounded with 15 the trumpets. Then the men of Judah gave a shout; and as the men of Judah shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Israel 16 before Abijah and Judah. And the Israelites fled before Judah; and God delivered 17 them into their hand. And Abijah and his people slew them with a great slaughter;
 so five hundred thousand chosen men of Israel fell down slain: Thus the Israelites 18 were brought under at that time; and the Judahites prevailed, because they relied on Jehovah, the God of their fathers. And 19 Abijah pursued Jeroboam, and took from him the following cities, Bethel with its towns, and Jeshanah with its towns, and Ephraim with its towns. Neither did Je- 20 roboam recover strength again in the days of Abijah; for Jehovah struck him and he died. But Abijah became more powerful, 21 and married fourteen wives, and begot twenty-two sons, and sixteen daughters.

 And the rest of the acts of Abijah, and his 22 ways, and his sayings, are written in the records of the prophet Iddo.

So Abijah slept with his fathers, and they 1 buried him in the city of David: and Asa, his son, reigned in his stead; in whose days
 the land had peace ten years.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 955. Asa's piety and prudence; his success against the Cushites; God's message by the prophet, and its effect.

Now Asa did what was right in the eyes 2 of Jehovah his God: For he took away the 3 altars of the strange gods, and the high places, and broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves; And commanded 4 Judah to seek Jehovah, the God of their fathers, and to do the law and the command- 5
 ment. He also removed out of all the cities of Judah the high-places and the sun-images: for the kingdom enjoyed peace under him. And he repaired the fortified 6 cities in Judah: for the land had rest, and he had no war in those years; because Je- 7 hovah had given him rest. Therefore he said to Judah, Let us repair those cities, and surround them with walls and towers,
 gates and bars, while the land enjoys peace:
 for because we have earnestly sought Jehovah, our God, he hath given us rest on every side. So they built and prospered.

And Asa had an army of three hundred 8 thousand, out of Judah, who bore shields and spears; and of two hundred and eighty thousand, out of Benjamin, who bore shields and spears: all these were men of valour.

And there came against them Zerah the 9
 Cushite, with a host of ten hundred thousand, and three hundred chariots. And he came to Mareshah. And Asa went out 10 against him; and they formed in battle array, in the valley of Zephathah, at Mare-

21. Married fourteen wives] Not after this victory, but before; for he died soon after. I have joined the first verse of the next chapter to this, according to the division of the Polyglot and most Hebrew Bibles.

CHAP. XIV. 7. Earnestly sought] I consider the repetition of the verb in the text as only denoting the diligence and earnestness with which they sought him.

9. The Cushite] Most probably, he was an Arabian Cushite. The number of his host, ten hundred thousand, is altogether improbable. If we suppose that a cipher has been added, the number will be great. The variation of the Syriac gives us reason to conjecture that the present text is erroneous.

11 shah. And Asa cried to Jehovah, his God, and said, O Jehovah, it is nothing with thee to help him, who hath no power, amidst a multitude: help us, O Jehovah, our God; for we rest on thee, and in thy name we go out against this multitude. O Jehovah, thou art our God: let not man prevail 12 against thee. Jehovah then smote the Cushites before Asa, and before Judah; and 13 the Cushites fled. And Asa, and all the people who were with him, pursued them unto Gerar; and the Cushites were so overthrown, that they could not recover themselves; for they were destroyed before Jehovah, and before his host; who carried
 14 away very much spoil. And they smote all the cities round about Gerar; (for the fear of Jehovah had come upon them;) and they spoiled all those cities; and in them
 15 was found a very great spoil. They smote also the herd-tents, and carried away sheep and camels in abundance, and returned to Jerusalem.
 1 Then the Spirit of God came upon Azariah, the son of Obed; And he went out to meet Asa, and said to him, Hear ye me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin! Jehovah is with you, while we are steadfast to him: and if ye seek him he will be found by you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you.
 3 Now for many days Israel were without the true God, and without a teaching priest, and 4 without a law: But when, in their trouble, they turned to Jehovah, the God of Israel, and sought him, he was found by them.
 5 And in those times there was no peace to him that went out, or to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the "land." And nation was destroyed by nation, and city by city: for God afflicted them with every kind of adversity.
 7 But be ye of good courage, and act vigorously: for your work shall be rewarded.
 8 And when Asa heard these words of the prophecy of "Azariah, the son of" Obed, the prophet, he took courage, and put away the abominable idols out of the whole land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of all the cities which he had taken from mount Ephraim. He then repaired the altar of Jehovah, which was before the porch of the house of Jehovah; And he gathered all 9 Judah and Benjamin, and the strangers with them, from Ephraim and Manasseh, and from Simeon: for they fell to him out of Israel in abundance, when they saw that Jehovah, his God, was with him. So they

 10 assembled at Jerusalem in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. And they offered to Jehovah, at that time,
 11 out of the spoil which they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep. And they entered into a covenant
 12 to seek Jehovah, the God of their fathers, with all their heart, and with all their soul; And that whosoever would not seek Je-
 13 hovah, the God of Israel, should be put to death, whether small or great, whether man or woman. And they swore to Jehovah
 14 with a loud voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with cornets. And all
 15 Judah rejoiced concerning the oath: for with all their heart they had sworn, and had sought him with their whole desire; and he had been found by them: and Jehovah had given them rest on every side.

Moreover, Asa, the king, removed his 16 grandmother Maachah from being queen, because she had made a grove-idol; and Asa cut down her idol, and stamped, and burnt it at the brook Kidron. But the high-17 places were not wholly taken away out of Israel: yet the heart of Asa was perfect in all his days. And he brought into the 18 house of God the things which his father had dedicated, and which he himself had dedicated, silver, and gold, and vessels.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 940. Asa's confidence in Ben-hadad; Hanani reproves him; his sickness and death.

AND there was no more war unto the 19 thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of I

11. To help him, who] This rendering is as literal as possible. Geddes renders, 'It is nothing to thee, to succour the powerless against the powerful.' Dathe, 'Thou canst aid the feeble equally as the strong.' The former is the sense of my version; but I prefer the turn given as being more verbal.

15. Herd-tents] The Cushites had most probably brought their cattle along with them, as is the custom of many of the eastern tribes; and on the overthrow of the main body, these fell into the hands of Asa.

CHAP. XV. 3-6. The prophet seems to refer to the days of the judges, when, owing to their idolatry and disorders, there was no peace. Compare Judg. v. 6.

5. (v) Arab.

8. Azariah, the son] These words have, doubtless, been omitted, as appears from the versions, and from the first verse of the chapter.

16. Removed his grandmother] I suppose that a letter has dropped from the text, and I read מִמָּוֶה for מִמָּוֶה, which restores the text. See note Hebrew Bible.

17. The high-places] Such still continued as were used for worshipping Jehovah.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Thirty-sixth year] This number is, doubtless, erroneous. Baasha began to reign in the third year of Asa, and he only reigned twenty-four years, so that it is impossible he should rebuild Ramah in the thirty-sixth of Asa. I am inclined to think that we should read in the last verse of the preceding chapter, until the fifteenth year, &c. and here, In the sixteenth year, &c. We are told chap. xiv. 1. that the land had rest ten years, which were the first ten years; then we read of his war with Zerah, the Cushite, and of the solemn covenant which he and the people made to serve God, which events might occupy a few years. The date above noticed seems to suit all these circumstances, and the mistake in the years is easily accounted for. Josephus has twenty-six.

Asa, Baasha, king of Israel, came up against Judah, and fortified Ramah, for the purpose of preventing any from going over to Asa, king of Judah. Then Asa brought silver and gold out of the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and of the palace, and sent to Ben-hadad, king of Syria, who dwelt at Damascus, saying, Let there be a league between me and thee, as there was between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent to thee silver and gold: come break thy league with Baasha, king of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Ben-hadad hearkened to king Asa, and sent the chiefs of his hosts against the cities of Israel; and they smote Ijon, and Dan, and Abel-maim, and all the store-cities of Naphtali. And when Baasha heard of this, he left off fortifying Ramah, and desisted from his work. Then Asa, the king, took all Judah; and they carried away the stones of Ramah, and its timber, with which Baasha had been fortifying it; and with them he fortified Geba of Benjamin, and Mizpeh.

And at that time Hanani, the seer, came to Asa, king of Judah, and said to him, Because thou hast relied on the king of Syria, and not relied on Jehovah, thy God, therefore shall the host of the king of Syria escape out of thy hand. Were not the Cushites and the Lubites a large host, with very many chariots and horsemen? yet, because thou didst rely on Jehovah, he delivered them into thy hand. For the eyes of Jehovah inspect the whole earth, to give strength to those whose hearts are perfect towards him. In this thou hast done foolishly; therefore from henceforth thou shalt have wars. Then Asa was wroth with the seer, and put him in a prison house; for, on account of this address, he was angry with him. And Asa oppressed, at the same time, some of the people.

And behold, the acts of Asa, first and last, are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel. And Asa, in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, was diseased in his feet, and his disease moved upwards, yet in his disease he sought not to Jehovah, but to the physicians.

And Asa slept with his fathers and died 13 in the one and fortieth year of his reign. And they buried him in his own sepulchre 14 which he had made for himself in the city of David, and laid him on a bier which was filled with aromatics, and duly prepared ointments; and they made a very great burning for him.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 940. Jehoshaphat begins to reign; the plan he adopted to promote religion.

AND Jehoshaphat, his son, reigned in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel. And he placed forces in all the fortified cities of Judah, and appointed governors in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa, his father, had taken. And Jehovah was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the first ways of his father, and sought not to Baal; But he sought the God of his father, and walked according to his commandments, and not according to the doings of Israel. Therefore Jehovah established the royal power in his hand; and all Judah brought to Jehoshaphat presents; and he had riches and honour in abundance. Thus his heart was encouraged in the ways of Jehovah: so that he removed the high-places and groves out of Judah.

Also in the third year of his reign he sent his chiefs Ben-hail, and Obadiah, and Zechariah, and Nethaneel, and Michaiah, to teach in the cities of Judah; And with them the Levites, Shemaiah, and Nethaniah, and Zebadiah, and Asahel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehonathan, and Adonijah, and Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah, and with them Elishama and Jehoram, priests. And they had the book of the law of Jehovah with them, and they taught in Judah; and went

2, 3. This plan of Asa was neither good policy, nor suitable to his general piety. It impoverished his own treasury, and argued a want of confidence in God. Compare Jer. xli. 9. 6. (a) Syr. Arab. 2 MSS.

10. For, on account of this There is an ambiguity in the text, arising from the word עַלֵּי. If it be a preposition, the common version is right; but if it be regarded as a noun, the sense will be, 'Asa was wroth with the prophet, because his people were disturbed on account of this address, and he put him in a prison-house,' &c. This prevents the repetition of the common version, and assigns a reason for Asa's wrath; yet as it is usual to repeat the same sentiment in other words, and as the versions support the common rendering, I have adopted it.

12. Moved upwards Michaelis considers this disease as the gout, and ingeniously supposes these words to denote its ascent to the stomach, when it is most dangerous.—To the physicians This must denote that he placed undue confidence in them.

14. A great burning for him The body was surrounded with aromatics and duly prepared ointments; and with these he was laid in the sepulchre. The burning then must have been of other aromatic woods, most probably at the mouth of the sepulchre, or some little distance from it. This was evidently a ceremony of respect, and designed to do honour to the dead.

CHAP. XVII. 3. I have omitted David as evidently improper. It is most probable that Asa is the true reading, whose first ways were more pious and holy than his last.

6. Removed the high-places That is, those devoted to idols, but others, where sacrifices were offered to Jehovah, he did not remove, 1 Kings xxii. 43.

8. The Levites The Levites and priests were only to teach the law; but the princes went with them, to see that it was done, to punish obstinate offenders and idolaters, to give greater respect to the instructors, and solemnity to the work. Some consider the princes were to teach what respected their civil duties, the Levites what related to their ritual law, and the priests the nature and design of their religion.

about through all the cities of Judah, and taught the people.

- 10 And the fear of Jehovah fell upon all the kingdoms of the countries round about Judah, so that they made no war against
- 11 Jehoshaphat. Also some of the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat presents, and tribute silver; and the Arabians brought to him flocks, seven thousand and seven hundred rams, and seven thousand and seven hundred he-goats.
- 12 And Jehoshaphat became exceedingly great, and he repaired the fortresses and
- 13 store-cities of Judah. And he had much business in the cities of Judah: but the men of war, men of valour, were in Jerusalem.
- 14 And these are their numbers, according to their paternal houses. Of the captains of thousands of Judah, Adnah was the chief; and with him were three hundred thousand
- 15 men of valour. And the next captain to him was Jehohanan; and with him were two hundred and eighty thousand men of
- 16 valour. And next to him was Amasiah, the son of Zichri, (who willingly devoted himself to Jehovah;) and with him were
- 17 two hundred thousand men of valour. And of Benjamin Eliada, a man of valour, and with him, armed with bow and shield, were
- 18 two hundred thousand men. And next to him was Jehozabad, and with him a hundred and eighty thousand, trained for war.
- 19 These waited on the king, besides those whom the king put in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 897. Jehoshaphat, joined in affinity with Ahab, goes with him to Ramoth-gilead; Ahab is slain.

- 1 Now Jehoshaphat had riches and glory in abundance; and he contracted an affinity
- 2 with Ahab. And at the end of two years he went down to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab killed many sheep and oxen for him, and for the people who were with him, and persuaded him to go up with him to Ramoth-
- 3 gilead. And Ahab, king of Israel, said to Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-gilead? And he answered him. As thou art disposed, so am I; as thy people, so my people; in the war
- 4 we will be with thee. And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, Inquire now, I
- 5 pray thee, what is the will of Jehovah. Then the king of Israel assembled the prophets, four hundred men, and said to them, Shall we go to Ramoth-gilead, to battle, or shall we forbear? And they said, Go up; for God will deliver it into the king's hand.

But Jehoshaphat said, Is there no prophet of Jehovah here besides, that we may inquire by him? And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, There is yet one man, by whom we may inquire of Jehovah: but him I hate; for he prophesieth no good concerning me, but always evil. He is Micaiah, the son of Imla. And Jehoshaphat said, Let not the king say so. And the king of Israel called for one of his officers, and said, Bring quickly Micaiah, the son of Imla. And the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, sat each of them on his throne, clothed in their robes, and they sat in a void place at the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets prophesied before them. And Zedekiah, the son of 10 Chenaanah, had made for himself horns of iron, and said, Thus saith Jehovah, with these thou shalt push Syria until they be destroyed. And all the prophets prophe- 11 sied so, saying, Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper: for Jehovah shall deliver it into the hand of the king. And the mes- 12 senger who went to call Micaiah spoke to him, saying, Behold, the words of the prophets declare good to the king with one accord; let thy word, therefore, I pray thee, be like theirs, and speak thou good. And 13 Micaiah said, As Jehovah liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak. And when 14 he had come to the king, the king said to him, Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear? And he said, Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand. And the king 15 said to him, How often shall I adjure thee that thou say nothing but the truth to me, in the name of Jehovah? Then he said, I 16 saw all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd: and Jehovah said, These have no master; let them return, therefore, every man to his house in peace. And the king of Israel said to 17 Jehoshaphat, Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good, but evil concerning me? Again he said, Hear thou, there- 18 fore, the word of Jehovah; I saw Jehovah sitting upon his throne, and all the host of CHAP. XVIII. 1. An affinity] Joram, his eldest son, married Athalia, Ahab's daughter, as appears from chap. xxi. 6. and 2 Kings viii. 18. This is mentioned as the mistaken policy of this good man.

4. Inquire now] I have thus rendered here and in the parallel place, as more perspicuous than the common version. Geddes renders, Consult, I pray thee, the oracle of the Lord; which, I think, is not the sense. What follows explains that Jehoshaphat meant inquiring by some prophet, what was the will of Jehovah respecting this war. Compare 1 Kings xxii. and the notes.

10. Horns of iron] Bruce has noticed the head-dress of the governors of Abyssinia as consisting of a large bread fillet bound round the forehead, in the middle of which was a conical piece of silver, gilt, about four inches long, standing upright, and tapering like a horn. Something resembling this might be the horns of iron Zedekiah put on his head, to produce greater effect on his hearers.

the heavens standing on his right hand, and on his left. And Jehovah said, Who shall entice Ahab, king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one spoke, saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner. A spirit then came forth and stood before Jehovah, and said, I will entice him. And Jehovah said to him, By what means? And he answered, I will go forth and will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And Jehovah said, Thou shalt entice him, and also prevail: go forth, and so do. Now, therefore, behold, Jehovah hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets; for Jehovah hath spoken evil concerning thee. Then Zedekiah, the son of Chenaanah, went near, and smote Micaiah upon the cheek, and said, How hath the Spirit of Jehovah departed from me to speak by thee? And Micaiah said, Behold, thou shalt see on that day when thou shalt go into an inner-chamber to hide thyself. Then the king of Israel said, Take ye Micaiah, and carry him back to Amon, the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son; And say, Thus saith the king, Put this man in the prison, and feed him with the bread of affliction and with the water of affliction, until I return in peace. And Micaiah said, If thou certainly return in peace, then hath not Jehovah spoken by me. And he said, Hearken, all ye people.

Then the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, went up to Ramoth-gilead. And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, I will disguise myself, and will go to the battle; but put thou on thy robes. So the king of Israel disguised himself; and they went to the battle. Now the king of Syria had charged the captains of the chariots who were with him, saying, Fight neither with small nor great, save only with the king of Israel. And when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, they said, this is the king of Israel. Therefore they turned to fight against him: but Jehoshaphat cried out, and Jehovah helped him; and God moved them away from him. For when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him. But a certain man drew a bow at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the joints of the harness; therefore he said to his charioteer, Turn thy hand, that thou mayest carry me out of the host; for I am wounded. But the battle increased on that day; and the king of Israel was stayed up in his chariot against the Syrians until the evening: and about the time of the going down of the sun, he died.

And as Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, was returning to his house in safety at Jerusalem, Jehu, the son of Hanani, the seer, went out to meet him; and he said to king Jehoshaphat, Oughtest thou to help the ungodly, and love them who hate Jehovah? On this account thou hast deserved wrath from Jehovah. Nevertheless, there are good things found in thee, inasmuch as thou hast removed the groves out of the land, and prepared thy heart to seek God.

After Jehoshaphat had abode some time at Jerusalem, he went out again through the people, from Beer-sheba to mount Ephraim, and brought them back to Jehovah, the God of their fathers. And he appointed judges in the land; in all the fortified cities of Judah, in every city. And he said to the judges, Take heed what ye do: for ye judge not for man, but for Jehovah, who is with you in the judgment. Wherefore now let the fear of Jehovah be upon you, take heed and act uprightly; for with Jehovah, our God, there is no injustice, no respect of persons, no taking of bribes.

Moreover, in Jerusalem, Jehoshaphat appointed some of the Levites, and of the priests, and of the paternal chiefs of Israel, who were to judge in what related to Jehovah, and in the controverted causes of the "inhabitants" of Jerusalem. And he charged them, saying, In the fear of Jehovah, and with a faithful and a perfect heart, ye shall thus act: Whatsoever cause shall come to you from your brethren who dwell in their cities; whether between blood and blood, or concerning the law-commandments, statutes, and judgments; ye shall teach them that they may not trespass against Jehovah, and so bring wrath both upon yourselves, and upon your brethren; this do, that ye may not incur guilt. And, behold, Amariah, the chief priest, is over you, in all matters which relate to Jehovah; and Zebadiah, the son of Ishmael, ruler of the house of Judah, for all matters relating to the king: also the Levites shall be officers before you. Act with courage, and Jehovah shall be with you for good."

CHAP. XIX. 2. On this account] I have rendered after Dathe: and the connexion supports this version. It does not appear that any particular judgment was inflicted on the king, though his conduct deserved it.

6. If he is with you in] Geddes renders, 'for with you lies the judicial sentence.' The Greek supports this rendering. The common affords a good sense, 'God is with you to observe your decisions, and to punish or reward you accordingly.' The following verse, I think, favours the common version.

8. The inhabitants of] The reading preferred has been considered necessary, by Hallet, Kennicott, and others. See note Hebrew Bible.

11. (v) Vulg. the other, with the good.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 896. Jehoshaphat's prayer on the invasion of his country by the surrounding nations; his deliverance from them, and his spoils obtained.

- 1 AFTER this, the Moabites, and the Ammonites, and with them "a party of the Edomites," came against Jehoshaphat to battle. Then there came some that told Jehoshaphat, saying, There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea, from 'Edom ;" and, behold, they are in
- 3 Hazazon-tamar, which is in En-gedi. And Jehoshaphat feared, and set himself to seek Jehovah, and proclaimed a fast throughout
- 4 all Judah. And Judah assembled themselves, to ask help of Jehovah; even out of all the cities of Judah they came to seek Jehovah.
- 5 And Jehoshaphat stood up in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of Jehovah, before the new court, And said, O Jehovah, the God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven, who rulest over all the kingdoms of the earth? and in thy hand is there not power and might, so that none is
- 7 able to withstand thee? Didst not thou, our God, drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham, thy friend, for ever?
- 8 And they have dwelt therein, and have built
- 9 a sanctuary therein to thy name, saying, If when evil cometh upon us, as the judgments of the sword, or pestilence, or famine, we stand before this house, and in thy presence, (for "by thy name is this house called,") and cry to thee in our affliction, then thou wilt
- 10 hear and help. And now, behold, the Ammonites and Moabites, and mount Seir, whom thou wouldst not let Israel invade, when they came out of the land of Egypt; but they turned from them, and destroyed
- 11 them not; Behold, how they render "evil" to us, by coming to cast us out of thy possession, which thou hast given us to inherit.
- 12 O our God, wilt thou not judge them? for we have no might to resist this great multitude which cometh against us; neither know we what to do; but our eyes are upon
- 13 thee. And all Israel stood before Jehovah, with their little ones, their wives and their children.

Then upon Jahaziel, the son of Zechariah, 14 the son of Benaiah, the son of Jeiel, the son of Mattaniah, a Levite, of the sons of Asaph, came the Spirit of Jehovah in the midst of the congregation; And he said, Harken, 15 all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou, king Jehoshaphat, Thus saith Jehovah unto you, Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for the battle is not yours but God's. To-morrow 16 go ye down against them: behold, they come up by the cliff of Ziz; and ye shall find them at the end of the brook, before the wilderness of Jeruel. On this occasion ye 17 shall not need to fight, stand still only, and see the salvation which Jehovah will grant you. O Judah and Jerusalem, fear not, nor be dismayed; to-morrow go out against them: for Jehovah is with you. And Je- 18 hoshaphat bowed his head with his face to the ground; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell down before Jehovah, worshipping Jehovah. And the Levites of 19 the children of the Kohathites, and of the children of the Korahites, stood up to praise, with a loud and high-sounding voice, Jehovah, the God of Israel.

And they rose early in the morning, and 20 went forth into the wilderness of Tekoa; and as they went forth, Jehoshaphat stood and said, Hear me, O Judah, and ye, inhabitants of Jerusalem; confide in Jehovah your God, and ye shall be established; believe his prophets, and ye shall prosper. And 21 when he had consulted with the people, he appointed singers to Jehovah, who with holy beauty, as they went before the army, were to praise him, and to say, Praise Jehovah, "for he is good;" for his mercy endureth for ever.

And when they began to sing and to 22 praise, Jehovah turned the ambush-men of mount Seir, who should have come against Judah, against the Ammonites and Moabites, and they were smitten. Then the 23 Ammonites and Moabites attacked the inhabitants of mount Seir, so as utterly to CHAP. XX. 1, 2. The readings adopted are supported by the 10th, 22d, and 23d verses of this chapter.

7. Abraham thy friend] Abraham was his friend; to him he gave the original grant, and promised the perpetuity of it, and these were his posterity.

9. By thy name] This reading is more apposite: and as the authority for it is considerable, I have adopted it. The text is, 'for thy name is in this house.' (v) Sept. Syr. 8 MSS. 11. (a) MSS.

12. We have no might] When we compare what is here said with chap. xvii. 14-16, this acknowledgment may surprise us. It should, however, be recollected, that every Israelite, when necessary, was liable to be called out to war: and that account, I suspect, contains the number who were fit for war. There might, however, be few who were actually trained, and on the advance of the enemy, such only would be of essential service: so that he might with truth say as above.

14. Came the Spirit] Perhaps he had never prophesied before, but the spirit then first came upon him; while they were praying, God heard, and assured them of deliverance.

21. With holy beauty] That is, in the same manner, and in the same habits, as was usual in the temple. They probably sung the 136th psalm, the Levites singing the first part of the verse, and all the people the second, as a chorus. (2) Syr. MSS.

22. For the correction of the text, the critical reader may consult the note in the Hebrew Bible. I conceive that the Edomites, who had been placed as an ambush against the Judahites, either by mistake or designedly, attacked the Ammonites and the Moabites; and that these uniting repelled the attack, and in a great measure destroyed the slay and destroy them; and when they had destroyed the inhabitants of Seir, they 24 "rushed" on to destroy one another. And when Judah came to the watch-tower in the wilderness, they looked on the multitude, and beheld, they were all lying on the 25 ground dead; and none had escaped. And when Jehoshaphat and his people went to seize the spoil, they found among them an abundance of riches, "raiments," and precious jewels, of which they stripped off for themselves more than they could carry away: and they were three days in gathering

 26 the spoil, it was so much. And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of Berachah; for there they gave thanks to Jehovah: therefore the name of that place hath been called The valley of Berachah [THANKSGIVING] unto this day.
 27 Then all the men of Judah and Jerusalem, and Jehoshaphat at their head, returned to Jerusalem with joy; for Jehovah had made them to rejoice over their enemies.
 28 So they came with psalteries, and harps, and trumpets, to Jerusalem unto the 29 house of Jehovah. And the fear of God was on all the surrounding kingdoms, when they heard that Jehovah had fought against 30 the enemies of Israel. So the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet: for his God gave him rest on every side.
 35 'And after this, Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, allied himself with Ahaziah, king of 36 Israel, whose deeds were so wicked: And he allied himself with him to make ships to go to Tarshish; and they made the ships at 37 Ezion-geber. Then Eliezer, the son of Dodavah, of Mareshah, prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, Because thou hast allied thyself with Ahaziah, Jehovah hath broken thy works. And the ships were broken, that they could not proceed to Tarshish."
 31 Thus Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah: he was thirty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name
 32 was Azubah, the daughter of Shilhi. And he walked in the way of Asa, his father, and departed not from it, doing what was right 33 in the eyes of Jehovah. Yet the high-places were not entirely removed: for the people still had not prepared their hearts to 34 the God of their fathers. Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, first and last, behold they are written in the record of Jehu, the son of Hanani, which was inserted in the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

Now Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, 1 and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and Jehoram, his son, reigned in his stead. And he had brethren, the sons 2 of Jehoshaphat, Azariah, and Jehiel, and Zechariah, and Azariah, and Michael, and Shephatiah: all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat, king of "Judah." And to them 3 their father had given great gifts of silver, and of gold, and of precious things, with fortified cities in Judah: but the kingdom gave he to Jehoram; because he was the first-born. Now when Jehoram was firmly 4 established in the kingdom of his father, he slew all his brethren with the sword, and some of the chiefs of Judah.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 892. The wicked reign of Jehoram, from whom the Edomites revolt; the letter of Elisha; the land invaded by the Philistines; the disease and death of Jehoram.

JEHORAM was thirty-two years old when he 5 began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And he walked in the way 6 of the kings of Israel, and did like the house of Ahab: for he had the daughter of Ahab to wife. But although he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, Yet Jehoram would not 7 destroy the house of David, because of the covenant which he had made with David, and because he had promised to give both to him, and to his sons, a lamp always.

In his days the Edomites revolted from 8 under the dominion of Judah, and made a king over themselves. Then Jehoram went 9 forth with his chiefs, and all his chariots with him; and he rose up by night and smote the Edomites who had encompassed him and the captains of the chariots: "and the people fled to their own homes." Yet 10 the Edomites revolted from under the hand of the king of Judah, unto this day. At the same time Libnah revolted from under his hand; because he had forsaken Jehovah, the God of his fathers. Moreover, 11 he made high-places in the cities of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem and of Judah to go astray.

And there came a letter to him from 12 "Elisha," the prophet, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of David, thy fore-father, Edomites; then quarrelling among themselves, mutually destroyed one another.

CHAP. XXI. 2. (v) Versions, MSS.

5—10. (a) Compare 2 Kings viii. 16—22.

12. From Elisha] This letter to king Jehoram was written in the sixth year of his reign; because he reigned eight years, and it was written two years before his death. But then, Elijah had been taken up to heaven about thirteen years before the time of this writing. For the ascension is recorded in the second chapter of the second book of Kings; and the chapter following says, that Jehoram, king of Israel, began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat; consequently the ascension took place about seven years before the death of Jehoshaphat, who reigned twenty-five years. If, therefore, this letter was written so long after Elijah's ascension, it will

Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat, thy father, nor in the ways
 13 of Asa, king of Judah, But hast walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and hast made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to go astray after idols, like the house of Ahab, and hast also slain thy brethren, of thy father's house, who were better than 14 thyself: Behold, with a great plague will Jehovah smite thy people, and thy children,
 15 and thy wives, and all thy possessions: And thou shalt have the most grievous complaint, a disease in thy bowels; until, from that complaint, thy bowels, after many days, shall fall out.
 16 Moreover, Jehovah stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians, who were next to the Cushites.
 17 And they came into Judah, and broke through it, and carried away all the substance which was found in the king's house, with his sons, and his wives: so that there was no son left to him, save 'Ahaziah.'
 18 the youngest of his sons. And after all this Jehovah smote him with an incurable disease in his bowels. So that, in process of time, at the end of two years, his bowels fell out by reason of his disease: and he died of the most grievous diseases. His people made no burning for him, like the burning of his fathers. Thirty-two years old was he, when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years. And though he died, without being regretted, yet they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king in his stead: for the

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 885. Ahaziah, the king, is slain by Jehu; Athaliah slays the royal seed, except Joash, and usurpeth the throne; having reigned six years, she is slain.

2 "TWENTY"-two years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, the granddaughter of Omri.
 3 He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab: for his mother was his counsellor to do wickedly. Wherefore he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, like the house of Ahab: for they were his counsellors, after the death of his father, to his own destruction. For 5 he walked after their counsel, and went with Joram, the son of Ahab, king of Israel, to war against Hazael, king of Syria, at Ramoth-gilead: and the Syrians smote Joram. And he returned to be healed, in

 6 Jezreel, of the wounds which he had received from the Syrians at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And 'Ahaziah,' the son of Jehoram, king of Judah, went down to see Joram, the son of Ahab, at Jezreel, because he was sick. But
 7 his coming to Joram, God so directing it, was the destruction of Ahaziah: for, when he was come, he went out with Joram, against Jehu, the son of Nimshi, whom Jehovah had anointed to cut off the house of Ahab. And, when Jehu was executing
 8 judgment upon the house of Ahab, and found the princes of Judah, and the sons of the brethren of Ahaziah, who ministered to Ahaziah, he slew them. And he sought
 9 Ahaziah: and they caught him, (for he was hid in Samaria,) and brought him to Jehu: and when they had slain him, they buried him: because, said they, he is the grandson of Jehoshaphat, who sought Jehovah with his whole heart.

Nor had the house of Ahaziah power to preserve the sovereignty. For when Athaliah, the mother of Ahaziah, saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the royal seed of the house of Judah. But 11 Jehoshebad, the daughter of the king, took Joash, the son of Ahaziah, (whom she had stolen from among the king's sons who were slain,) and she put him and his nurse in a bed-chamber of the temple. So Jehoshebad, the daughter of king Joram, the wife of Jehoiada, the priest, (for she was the sister of Ahaziah,) hid him from Athaliah, so that she slew him not. And he was 12 hid with them in the house of God six years: and Athaliah reigned over the land.

BUT in the seventh year, Jehoiada took 1 courage, and entered into a league with the captains of hundreds, Azariah, the son of Jeroham, and Ishmael, the son of Jehohanan, and Azariah, the son of Obad, and readily be allowed that the writer of it was (not Elijah, but) Elisha—a correction, which seems absolutely necessary; though not confirmed, perhaps, by any one manuscript, or ancient version. From comparing parallel places, it is clear that errors in names are most frequent. 17. (v) Versions.

18. Incurable disease] Supposed a violent dysentery. In this manner died Antiochus Epiphanes and Herod Agrippa.

CHAP. XXII. 2. Twenty-two] On the error of the text, and the occasion of it, the learned reader may see the note in the Hebrew Bible. Every one must be sensible that a son cannot be older than his father; and if his father died when forty, how could his son, who immediately succeeded him, be forty-two? See ver. 20, ch. xxi.

6. (v) Versions.

9. Had in Samaria] This account has been thought at variance with that of 2 Kings ix. 27. It is possible that some circumstances have been omitted in each account, which, if given, would remove the discrepancy. From the position of Jezreel, Samaria, and Megiddo, it is probable that Ahaziah, after being wounded at the ascent of Gur, fled to Samaria, where he was concealed for some days; but Jehu, being informed of it sent and took him to Megiddo, where they slew him.

Maaseiah, the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat, the son of Zichri. And they went out of all the cities of Judah, and the paternal chiefs of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. And the whole congregation made a covenant with the king in the house of God. For 'Jehoiada' had said to them, Behold, the king's son ! let him be king, as Jehovah hath promised concerning the sons of David. This is the thing that ye shall do ; let a third part of those of you who come in on the sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, be the door-keepers ; And let another third part be at the king's apartment ; and a third part be posted at the foundation-gate : but let all the rest of the people be in the courts of the house of Jehovah. But let none come into the house of Jehovah, save the priests, and the ministering Levites ; they may come in, for they are hallowed : but let all the rest of the people watch in the courts of Jehovah. And let the Levites encompass the king, every man with his weapons in his hand ; and whosoever else cometh into the house, let him be put to death : but be ye with the king when he cometh in, and when he goeth out. So the Levites and all Judah did according to all things that Jehoiada, the priest, had commanded, and took each his men who were to come in on the sabbath, with those who were to go out on the sabbath : for Jehoiada, the priest, dismissed not the courses. Moreover, Jehoiada, the priest, gave to the captains of hundreds the spears, and bucklers, and shields, which had belonged to king David, that were in the house of God. And he ordered all the people to stand around the king, every man having his weapon in his hand, from the right side of the temple to the left side of the temple, along by the altar and the sanctuary. Then 'he' brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the royal ornaments ; and they made him king. Thus Jehoiada, and his sons, anointed him ; and said, Long live the king.

Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she came to the people in the house of Jehovah : And she looked, and, behold, the king stood by the pillar at the entrance of the temple ; and by the king, the chiefs, singers, and trumpeters : and all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew with trumpets, and the musicians played on various other instruments, accompanied by those skilful in singing praise. Then Athaliah rent her clothes, and said, Treason, Treason ! And Jehoiada, the priest, brought out the captains of hundreds who were set over the host, and said to them, Take her forth without the ranges : and whoso followeth her, let him be slain with the sword. For the priest had said, Let her not be slain in the house of Jehovah. So they laid hands on her, and when she had come to the horse gate-way, by the king's house, they slew her there.

And Jehoiada made a covenant between himself and all the people, and between the king, that they should be Jehovah's people. Then all the people went to the temple of Baal, and demolished it, and broke in pieces its altars and its statues, and slew Mattan, the priest of Baal, before the altars. Also Jehoiada re-appointed the officers of the house of Jehovah, among the priests and the Levites, whom David had distributed in the house of Jehovah, to offer the burnt-offerings of Jehovah, as it is written in the law of Moses ; with rejoicing and with singing, as was ordained by David. And he placed the gate-keepers at the gates of the house of Jehovah, that no one in any respect unclean might enter. And he took the captains of hundreds, and the nobles, and the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and brought down the king from the house of Jehovah : and they came through the high-gate to the king's house, and placed the king upon the throne of the kingdom. And all the people of the land rejoiced : and the city was quiet, although they had slain Athaliah with the sword.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 878. Joash reigns well while Jehoiada lived ; then falls off to idolatry, and at last is slain.

JOASH was seven years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. And Joash did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, all the days of Jehoiada, the priest. And Jehoiada took for him two wives ; and he begot sons and daughters.

And after this, Joash purposed to repair the house of Jehovah. And he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said to them, Go out into the cities of Judah, and gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter. The Levites, CHAP. XXIII. Compare with this chapter, the eleventh chapter in 2 Kings, and the notes there. 3. (v) Vulg.

CHAP. XXIV. 5. Hastened it not] Great negligence may be justly attributed to them in suffering the temple to remain in a dilapidated state for twenty-three years. Comp. 2 Kings xii. 6.

6 however, hastened it not. And the king called for Jehoiada, the chief-priest, and said to him, Why hast thou not required of the Levites to bring in, out of Judah and Jerusalem, the collection appointed by Moses, the servant of Jehovah, to be paid by the congregation of Israel, for the witness-tabernacle? For the sows of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God: and they had applied to the service of Baal, all the things dedicated to the house of Jehovah. And at the king's command they made a chest, and placed it without the gate of the house of Jehovah. And they made a proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to Jehovah the collection, which Moses, the servant of God, had, in the wilderness, laid upon Israel. And all the chiefs, and all the people rejoiced, and brought in, and cast their contributions into the chest until the whole was completed. Now at what time the chest was brought into the king's office, by the hand of the Levites, and when they saw that there was much money, the king's scribe, and the high priest's officer, came and emptied the chest, and took it, and carried it back to its own place. Thus they did day by day, and collected money in abundance. And the king and Jehoiada gave it to those who had the inspection of the work of the house of Jehovah; and they hired with it masons and carpenters to repair the house of Jehovah; and also such as wrought iron and brass, to strengthen the house of Jehovah. And the workmen so wrought, that the work was by them soon completed, and the house of God restored to its former state of strength. And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money to the king and Jehoiada: and of it were made utensils for the house of Jehovah, utensils for the service of the burnt-offerings; and incense-pots, and other utensils of gold and silver. And they continually offered burnt-offerings in the house of Jehovah, all the days of Jehoiada. But Jehoiada became old, and died full of days; a hundred and thirty years old was he when he died. And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, both with respect to God, and to his house.

8—14. Compare 2 Kings xii. 9—16.

15. A hundred and thirty] This was the age of a patriarch. He must have remembered Solomon, and the splendour and glory of the kingdom. He had witnessed various scenes, in the times which passed over him; for he had lived in eight kings' reigns.

21. In the court of the house] This was an abominable

Now after the death of Jehoiada came the princes of Judah, and made obeisance to the king. Then the king hearkened to them. And they forsook the house of Jehovah, the God of their fathers, and served grove-idols and other idols: and the wrath of Jehovah came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this their trespass. Yet he sent prophets to them, to bring them back to himself; and they testified against them: but they would not give ear. And the Spirit of God came upon Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, the priest, who stood above the people, and said to them, Thus saith God, Why transgress ye the commandments of Jehovah, and so cannot prosper? Because ye have forsaken Jehovah, he hath also forsaken you. And they conspired against him, and stoned him with stones at the command of the king, in the court of the house of Jehovah. Thus Joash, the king, remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada, his father, had done to him, but slew his son; who when he was dying said, Jehovah will regard and requite this.

Now at the end of the year Jehovah requited Joash. For the host of Syria came up against him; and they came to Judah and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the chiefs of the people, and sent all their spoil to the king of Damascus. For though the Syrian host consisted of but few men, yet Jehovah delivered a very great host into their hand, because these had forsaken Jehovah, the God of their fathers. And on Joash they executed judgment; For they left him pierced with many wounds. And when they had departed from him, his own servants conspired against him for the blood of the son of Jehoiada, the priest, and slew him on his bed: and when he was dead, they buried him in the city of David, but they buried him not in the sepulchres of the kings. And these are they who conspired against him; Jozabad, the son of Shimeath, an Ammonitess, and Jehozabad, the son of Shimrith, a Moabitess.

crime, when we consider the place, the time, and to whom it was done. They went after him into the court of the priests, where they were commanded not to enter, and slew him between the temple and the altar, see Matt. xxiii. 33. and the note there.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 839. Amaziah's reign; overthroweth the Edomites, but turns to idols, and is defeated by Joash; his servants kill him.

- 1 AMAZIAH was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's
- 2 name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, but not with a perfect heart.
- 3 Now when the royal power was established in his house, he slew his servants, who had
- 4 killed the king, his father. But he slew not their children, according to what is written in the law, in the book of Moses, in which Jehovah commanded, saying, The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor shall the children be put to death for their fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin.
- 5 Moreover, Amaziah gathered Judah together, and made them captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, according to their paternal houses, throughout all Judah and Benjamin: and he numbered them from twenty years old and upward, and found them three hundred thousand choice men able to go forth to war, who
- 6 could wield both spear and buckler. He hired also a hundred thousand men of valour out of Israel, for a hundred talents of silver.
- 7 But there came a man of God to him, saying, O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee; for Jehovah is not with Israel;
- 8 with any of the Ephraimites. But if thou go, act with vigour in the war, else God will overthrow thee before the enemy: for God hath power to help and to overthrow.
- 9 And Amaziah said to the man of God, But what shall we do for the hundred talents of silver, which I have given to the army of Israel? And the man of God answered, Jehovah is able to give thee much more
- 10 than this. Then Amaziah separated these troops that had come to him out of Ephraim, that they might go home again: wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned home in great anger.
- 11 And Amaziah took courage, and led forth his people, and went to the valley of salt, and smote of the posterity of Seir ten thousand.
- 12 And other ten thousand left alive, did the Judahites carry away captive; and they brought them to the top of a rock, and cast them down from the top of the rock, so that they were all dashed to pieces. But the 13 troops which Amaziah sent back, that they might not go with him to battle, fell upon the cities of Judah, from Samaria even to Beth-horon, and smote three thousand of the inhabitants, and took much spoil.

Now, after that Amaziah had come from 14 the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the gods of the posterity of Seir, and set them up to be his gods, and bowed down himself before them, and burned incense to them. Wherefore the anger of Jehovah 15 was kindled against Amaziah, and he sent to him a prophet, who said to him, Why seekest thou to the gods of a people who could not deliver their own people out of thy hand? And, as he talked with him, the 16 king said to him, Art thou made one of the king's counsel? Forbear; why shouldst thou be smitten? Then the prophet forbore, but said, I know that God hath determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened to my counsel.

Then Amaziah, king of Judah, took ad- 17 vice, and sent to Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, the son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, Come, let us look one another in the face. And Joash, king of Israel, sent to Amaziah, 18 king of Judah, saying, A thistle of Lebanon sent to a cedar of Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and a wild-beast of Lebanon passed by, and trod down the thistle. Thou sayest, Lo, I 19 have smitten the Edomites; and thy heart is lifted up: abide now at home; why wouldst thou meddle to thy hurt, so that thou shouldst fall, and Judah with thee? But Amaziah would not hearken; for God 20 so overruled this, that he might deliver them into the hand of their enemies, because they sought to the gods of Edom. So Joash, the king of Israel, went up; and 21 they looked one another in the face, both he and Amaziah, king of Judah, at Beth-shemesh, which belongeth to Judah. And 22 Judah was smitten before Israel, and they fled, every man to his own home. And 23 Joash, the king of Israel, took Amaziah, king of Judah, the son of Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, at Beth-shemesh, and brought CHAP. XXV. 1—4. Compare 2 Kings xiv. 1—6.

12. Dashed to pieces] This was barbarous treatment, but very common, especially among the Romans. We find in 2 Kings that he called the city Joktheel, or, obedience to God, because he thought this victory a reward for his obedience in sending back the hired Israelites. Thus are acts of cruelty often thought meritorious.

15. Could not deliver] Had he thrown the gods from the rock, instead of the captives, he would have acted more becoming an Israelite; and instead of worshipping them, he should have acted like Fabius, the Roman general, who, when he had taken Tarentum, and was asked what they must do with the gods? answered, Let them alone, they are good for nothing, since they could not defend their worshippers.

16. Thou be smitten] He had probably here a reference to Zechariah, who was put to death in the former reign for his faithful reproof, ch. xxiv. 21.

17. For the remaining part of the chapter, compare 2 Kings xiv. 8—18.

- him to Jerusalem, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to 24 the corner gate, four hundred cubits. And he took all the gold and the silver, and all the vessels found in the house of God with Obed-edom, and the treasures of the king's house, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.
 25 And Amaziah, the son of Joash, king of Judah, lived after the death of Joash, son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, fifteen years.
 26 Now the rest of the acts of Amaziah, first and last, behold, they are written in the history of the kings of Judah and Israel.
 27 Now after the time that Amaziah turned away from following Jehovah, they made a conspiracy at Jerusalem: and he fled to Lachish: but they sent after him to Lachish, and slew him there. And they brought 28 him upon horses, and buried him with his fathers in the city of David.

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 810. Uzziah's reign; he invades the priest's office, and is struck with the leprosy.

- 1 THEN all the people of Judah took Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king in the room of his father Amaziah.
 2 He rebuilt Elath, and restored it to Judah, after that the late king had slept with his fathers. Sixteen years old was Uzziah when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's 4 name was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his father Amaziah at 5 first did. And he sought God while Zechariah lived, who instructed him in the fear of God: and as long as he sought
 6 Jehovah, he caused him to prosper. And he went forth and fought against the Philistines, and broke down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod, and built other cities about Ashdod, and
 7 among the Philistines. And God helped him against the Philistines, and against the Arabians, who dwelt in Gur-baal, and the 8 Ammonites." And the Ammonites gave gifts to Uzziah: and his name spread to the entrance of Egypt; for he had become exceedingly strong. Moreover, Uzziah built 9 towers in Jerusalem, at the corner-gate, and at the valley-gate, and at the angles of the wall, and fortified them. He also built 10 towers in the wilderness, and digged many wells: for he had many cattle both in the valleys and in the plains: ground-tillers, and vine-dressers in the mountains, and in Carmel: for he loved husbandry. Moreover, 11 Uzziah had a host of warriors, who went out to war by bands, according to the number enrolled by Jeiel, the scribe, and Maaseiah, the ruler, under direction of Hananiah, one of the king's captains. The whole number 12 of paternal chiefs, men of valour, were two thousand and six hundred. And under these 13 was an army of three hundred and seven thousand and five hundred warriors, a powerful host, to help the king against the enemy. And Uzziah prepared for them, for all the 14 host, shields, and spears, and helmets, and breast-plates, and bows, and stone-slugs. And he made in Jerusalem engines, in- 15 vented by skilful men, to be on the towers and upon the bulwarks, to shoot arrows and great stones. And his name spread far abroad; for, assisted by such inventions, he attained wonderful power.

But when he had become strong, his heart 16 was lifted up to his own destruction: for he transgressed against Jehovah, his God, and went into the temple of Jehovah, to burn incense upon the incense-altar. And 17 Azariah, the priest, went in after him, and with him, eighty priests of Jehovah, valiant men: And they withstood Uzziah, the king, 18 and said to him, Not to thee, Uzziah, belongeth it to burn incense to Jehovah, but to the priests, the sons of Aaron, who have been hallowed to burn incense: go out of the sanctuary; for thou hast trespassed; nor shall this be to thy honour from God Jehovah. Then Uzziah was wroth, and took a 19 censer in his hand to burn incense: and while he was wroth with the priests, the leprosy broke out on his forehead, in the presence of the priests, in the house of Jehovah, from beside the incense-altar. And 20 Azariah, the chief priest, and all the priests, looked upon him; and, behold, he was leprous in his forehead, and they thrust him out thence; yea, himself hasted also to go out, because Jehovah had smitten him. And Uzziah, the king, was a leper unto the 21

CHAP. XXVI. 3. Sixteen years old] According to Usher there was an interregnum of twelve years. It is probable that his father died when he was about four years old, and twelve years after that the people made him king in the room of his father.

7. Ammonites] I have adopted this reading because it obtains in the next verse. The Greek has in both places, the Maonites, which Geddes adopts.

8. 10. He rebuilt the wall that was demolished in his father's time by the king of Israel, and built towers to defend it.

14, 15. Uzziah seems to have been warlike, and to have encouraged every invention for the purpose of attack or defence.

16. To burn incense] It is difficult to assign any just reason for this strange conduct. It was a violation of the law, which permitted none but the sons of Aaron to approach the incense-altar. Perhaps he wanted to be like the heathen princes; or to imitate his father, who burnt incense before the gods of Edom; or Jeroboam, who did so before his calves.

20. Jehovah had smitten him] This was a very remarkable punishment. He aspired at honour, and was smitten with a loathsome disease. He invaded the priest's office, day of his death, and dwelt as a leper, in a separate apartment; for he was cut off from the house of Jehovah: and Jotham, his son, was over the king's house, judging the people of the land.

- 22 Now the rest of the acts of Uzziah, first and last, did Isaiah, the prophet, the son 23 of Amoz, write. Uzziah then slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the burying-ground which belonged to the kings; for they said, he is a leper: and Jotham, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 758. The reign of Jotham, who subdueth the Ammonites.

- 1 JOTHAM was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name
2 was Jerusha, the daughter of Zadok. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, according to all that his father Uzziah did. Only he did not go into the temple of Jehovah; and the people were still depraved.
3 He built the high-gate of the house of Jehovah, and on the wall of Ophel he built
4 much. Moreover, he built cities on the mountains of Judah, and in the forests he built castles and towers.
5 He fought also with the king of the Ammonites, and prevailed against them. And the Ammonites gave him the same year a hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand cores of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. So much did the Ammonites pay unto him,
6 both the second year and the third. So Jotham became mighty, because he prepared his ways before Jehovah, his God.
7 Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and
8 Judah. He was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen
9 years in Jerusalem. And Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Ahaz, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 741. Ahaz's wicked reign; he is attacked by the Syrians; his idolatry and death.

- 1 AHAZ was twenty-five years old when and was angry with them, and now was smitten with a disease which was subject to their inspection. For coming into the sanctuary, he was expelled the outer court, where the meanest subject might enter. By aspiring to the priestly office, he lost the royal dignity.

CHAP. XXVII. 1. Compare 2 Kings xv. 32—38.

2. Did not go into the temple] He was probably afraid, from what had happened to his father: but whether his not frequenting the temple is there meant, or his not daring to enter the sanctuary, is not easily determined: although I think the context requires us to take it in the latter sense. The bad example of the king tended to deprave the people.

he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem; but he did not what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, like David his fore-father. But he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made also 2 molten images for Baal. Moreover, he
3 burnt incense in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, and burnt his children in the fire, after the abominable custom of the nations whom Jehovah had cast out before the Israelites. He sacrificed also, and burnt incense on the 4 high-places, and on the hills, and under every green tree. Wherefore Jehovah, his
5 God, delivered him into the hand of the king of Syria; and they smote him, and carried away a great multitude of his people captives, and brought them to Damascus.

And he was also delivered into the hand of the king of Israel, who smote him with a great slaughter. For Pekah, the son of 6 Remaliah, slew in Judah, a hundred and twenty thousand in one day, all valiant men; because they had forsaken Jehovah, the God of their fathers. And Zichri, a
7 mighty man of Ephraim, slew Maaseiah, the king's son, and Azrikam, the governor of the house, and Elkanah, who was next to the king. And the Israelites carried away
8 captive of their brethren, two hundred thousand, women, sons, and daughters; and took also away much spoil from them, and brought the spoil to Samaria. But a prophet of Jehovah was there, whose name was 9 Oded: and he went out to meet the host before they came to Samaria, and said to them, Behold, because Jehovah, the God of your fathers, was wroth with Judah, he hath delivered them into your hand, and ye have slain them with a rage that reacheth up unto the heavens. And now ye purpose
10 to reduce the Judahites and Jerusalem for bond-men and bond-women to yourselves: are there then no sins among yourselves against Jehovah, your God? Now, therefore, hear me, and deliver back the captives whom you have taken from among your brethren: otherwise the fierce wrath of Jehovah will fall upon you. Then certain
12 of the chiefs of the Ephraimites, Azariah, the son of Johanan, Berechiah, the son of Meshillemoth, and Jehizkiah, the son of Shalum, and Amasa, the son of Hadlai, stood

6. Slew in Judah] From the parallel place, it appears that the two kings laid siege to Jerusalem, with a design to set up another king. Is. vii.

8. Two hundred thousand] This number is most probably erroneous. A hundred and ten thousand valiant men slain in one day; and two hundred thousand taken captives, must have nearly left the country desolate. The versions have the same number as the text; and some copies of the Septuagint have 300,000 and one 800,000! One manuscript has 1,000.

up against those who came from the war, 13 And said to them, Ye shall not bring in hither these captives, to increase our guilt before Jehovah. Intend ye to add to our sins and to our trespass? for our trespass is great, and fierce is the wrath "of Jehovah" 14 against Israel. So the armed men left the captives and the spoil with the chiefs and 15 the whole congregation. And the men above named rose up and took the captives, and out of the spoil clothed all among them that were naked; yea, they clothed them, and shod them, and gave them to eat and to drink, and anointed them, and carried all the feeble of them upon asses, and brought them to Jericho, the city of palm-trees, to their brethren; and they returned to Samaria.

16 And at that time king Ahaz sent to the 17 king of Assyria to help him. For again the Edomites had come and smitten Judah, 18 and carried away captives. The Philistines also had invaded the cities of the low country, and of the south of Judah, and had taken Beth-shemesh, and Ajalon, and Gederoth, and Shochu, with its villages, and Tinnah, with its villages, Gimzo also,
 19 and its villages: and they dwelt there. For Jehovah brought Judah low because of Ahaz, king of 'Judah;' for he made Judah defenceless, having so grievously trans-20 gressed against Jehovah. And Tiglathpileser, king of Assyria, came to him, but distressed him and strengthened him not.
 21 For Ahaz took away a portion out of the house of Jehovah, and out of the house of the king, and of the chiefs, and gave it to the king of Assyria; but he helped him not.
 22 And in the time of his distress, he tres-23 passed yet more against Jehovah. For this king Ahaz said, 'I will seek to' the gods of Damascus, who smote me: for he said,
 Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, I will sacrifice to them, that they may help me. But they were the ruin of him, 24 and of all Israel. Ahaz now collected all the utensils of the house of God, and cut in pieces the utensils of the house of God, and shut up the doors of the house of Jehovah, and made for himself altars in every corner 25 of Jerusalem. And in every other city of Judah, he made high-places to burn incense to other gods, and provoked to anger Jehovah, the God of his fathers.

Now the rest of his acts and all his ways, 26 first and last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.
 And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they 27 buried him in the city of Jerusalem: but they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings of 'Judah:—' and Hezekiah, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXIX.

B. C. 726. Hezekiah's good reign; divine worship restored, and the temple purified.

HEZEKIAH began to reign when he was 1 twenty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Abia, the daughter of Zechariah.
 And he did what was right in the eyes of 2
 Jehovah, according to all that David his forefather had done.

In the first month of the first year of his 3 reign, he opened the doors of the house of Jehovah, and repaired them. And having 4 assembled the priests and Levites he brought them into the eastern area of the temple,
 And said to them, Hearken to me, ye Levites! 5
 Hallow now yourselves, and hallow the house of Jehovah, the God of your fathers, and carry away the filth out of the sanctuary.
 For our fathers have trespassed, and done evil 6 in the eyes of Jehovah, our God, and have forsaken him, and have turned away their faces from the habitation of Jehovah, and turned to him their backs. Also they have 7 shut the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and have not burnt incense nor offered burnt-offerings in the holy place, unto the God of Israel. Hence the wrath of Jehovah 8 hath fallen upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them up to tribulation, to desolation, and hissing, as ye see with your eyes. For lo, for this our fathers have 9 fallen by the sword, and our sons and our daughters, and our wives, are in captivity.
 Now it is my purpose to make a covenant 10 with Jehovah, the God of Israel, that his fierce wrath may be turned from us. My 11 sons, be not now negligent: for you hath Jehovah chosen to stand before him, to serve him, to minister to him, and to burn incense.

9—15. The address of the prophet and the determination of the leading men of Israel, saved these helpless Judahites from a miserable captivity. Nothing parallel to this conduct can be found in the history of war; and no doubt can be entertained but the submission of the troops, their giving up the spoil, and the generosity of the princes, arose from a divine influence on their minds. The mutual wars of the kingdoms of Israel and of Judah hastened the ruin of both.

16—19. Uzziah had vanquished the Philistines; but now when Judah was brought low, they seized and possessed many of its cities. (v) Versions and MSS.

20. Tiglath-pileser] Compare 2 Kings xvi. 7—9, from 452 which it appears that the king of Assyria came against Damascus, took it and carried the people captive. But he did not effectually help Ahaz; for he received the treasures, but did not aid him against Israel and the other nations.

CHAP. XXIX. 1. Daughter of Zechariah] Compare 2 Kings xviii. 2, and the note.

5—11. Hezekiah seems sensible of the cause of the calamities of his country; and begins his reign with restoring the worship of the God of Israel, as the best means of removing them, and securing prosperity.

- 12 Then the Levites arose, Mahath the son of Amasai, and Joel, the son of Azariah, of the sons of the Kohathites: and of the sons of Merari, Kish, the son of Abdi, and Azariah, the son of Jehalelel: and of the Gershonites; Joah, the son of Zimmah, and
- 13 Eden, the son of Joah: And of the sons of Elizaphan; Shimri and Jeiel: and of the sons of Asaph; Zechariah, and Mattaniah:
- 14 And of the sons of Heman; Jehiel, and Shimei: and of the sons of Jeduthun; She-maiah, and Uzziel. And they assembled their brethren, and hallowed themselves, and came, according to the command of the king, in reference to the matters of Jehovah, to cleanse the house of Jehovah. And the priests went into the inner part of the house of Jehovah, to cleanse it, and brought out all the filth which they found in the temple of Jehovah, into the court of the house of Jehovah; and the Levites took and carried
- 17 it forth unto the brook Kidron. Now they began to cleanse, on the first day of the first month; and on the eighth day of the month, they came to the porch of the house of Jehovah; and in eight days more they cleansed the house of Jehovah; so that on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished.
- 18 They then went in to Hezekiah, the king, and said, We have cleansed the whole house of Jehovah, and the altar of burnt-offering, with all its utensils, and the presence-bread
- 19 table, with all its utensils. Moreover, all the utensils which king Ahaz, in his reign, 'profaned,' have we prepared and hallowed, and behold, they are before the altar of Jehovah.
- 20 Then Hezekiah, the king, rose early, and assembled the rulers of the city, and went up
- 21 to the house of Jehovah. And they brought seven steers, and seven rams, and seven lambs, and seven he-goats, for a sin-offering for the kingdom, and for the sanctuary, and for Judah. And he commanded the priests, the sons of Aaron, to offer them on the altar of
- 22 Jehovah. So they killed the steers, and the priests received the blood, and sprinkled it on the altar: likewise, when they had killed the rams, they sprinkled the blood upon the altar: they killed also the lambs, and they
- 23 sprinkled the blood upon the altar. And they brought forth the he-goats for the sin-offering, before the king and the congregation; and they laid their hands upon them. And the priests killed them, and they made 24 reconciliation with their blood upon the altar, to make an atonement for all Israel: for the king had commanded that the burnt-offering and the sin-offering should be made for all Israel. And he stationed the Levites in 25 the house of Jehovah with cymbals, with psalteries, and with harps, according to the command of David, and of Gad, the king's seer, and of Nathan, the prophet: for such was the command of Jehovah, by his prophets. And the Levites stood with the in- 26 struments of David, and the priests with the trumpets. Hezekiah then commanded them 27 to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar. And when the burnt-offering began, the song of Jehovah also began, accompanied with the trumpets, and with the instruments devised by David, king of Israel. And all 28 the congregation worshipped; and the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded, until the burnt-offering was finished. And 29 when they had made an end of offering, the king and all that were present with him bowed themselves, and worshipped. More- 30 over, Hezekiah, the king, and the chiefs, commanded the Levites to sing praise to Jehovah with the words of David, and of Asaph, the seer. And they sang praises with gladness; and they bowed their heads and worshipped. Then Hezekiah addressed 31 them, and said, Now ye have consecrated yourselves to Jehovah, come near, and bring sacrifices of thanksgiving into the house of Jehovah. And the congregation brought in sacrifices of thanksgiving; and as many as were of a willing heart, burnt-offerings. And the number of the burnt-offerings, 32 which the congregation brought, was seventy steers, a hundred rams, and two hundred lambs: all these were for a burnt-offering to Jehovah. And the consecrated things were 33 six hundred oxen, and three thousand sheep. But the priests were too few, so that they 34 could not slay all the burnt-offerings; therefore their brethren, the Levites, helped them, till the work was ended, and until the other priests had hallowed themselves; for the Levites were more upright in heart to hallow themselves than the priests. For the burnt- 35 offerings also were in abundance, with the fat of the feast-offerings, and the drink-offer-

19. Profaned] This is more probable than the common text; for the utensils of the temple were too valuable to be thrown away; but it is natural to think that as Ahaz profaned the temple itself, by idols, so he profaned the utensils by using them in their service. See note Hebrew Bible.

21. He-goats] Bishop Patrick has observed, that the words עִזִּים were not used prior to the captivity to denote a he-goat; and hence infers that Ezra was the author of the second book of Chronicles.—Seven he-goats.

The law only appointed one of each as a sin-offering; but as their transgressions had been heinous, Hezekiah ordered seven, one seven times over.

27. The song of Jehovah] Some have thought that this was the 136th psalm, which seems to be adapted to the daily worship.

31. Addressed them and said] Literally, 'answered and said,' but it is obviously an idiom, when used to begin a discourse, and should be rendered accordingly. It is frequent in the New Testament. (v) Sept.

ings, for every burnt-offering. Thus the service of the house of Jehovah was set in 36 order. And Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people, that God had so disposed the people: for the thing had been suddenly done.

CHAPTER XXX.

B. C. 726. Hezekiah orders a solemn passover to be proclaimed; the altars of idols demolished, &c.

1 AND Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of Jehovah, at Jerusalem, to keep the passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel. 2 For the king, and his chiefs, and the whole congregation in Jerusalem, had taken counsel to keep the passover, in the second 3 month. For they could not keep it at that time, because the priests had not sufficiently hallowed themselves, neither had all the 4 people assembled at Jerusalem. And the thing pleased the king and the whole con- 5 gregation. So they decreed to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba even to Dan, that they should come to keep the passover unto Jehovah the God of Israel, at Jerusalem: for they had not 6 kept it, as prescribed for a long time. Foot- posts then went with the letters from the king and his chiefs throughout all Israel and Judah, with the king's orders, to say, Ye Israelites, turn again unto Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant of you, who have escaped out of the hand of the kings of As- 7 syria. And be not like your fathers, and like your brethren, who trespassed against Jehovah, the God of their fathers, who therefore gave them up to desolation as ye 8 see. Now be ye not stiff-necked, as your fathers were; submit yourselves to Jehovah, and enter into his sanctuary which he hath hallowed for ever: and serve Jehovah your God, that the fierceness of his wrath may be 9 turned away from you. For if ye turn again to Jehovah, your brethren and your children shall find compassion among those who have led them captive, so that they shall come again into this land: for Jeho- vah, your God, is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if 10 ye return unto him. So the posts passed on from city to city, through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, even to Zebulun: but they laughed at them, and taunted them. Nevertheless, some of Asher and of Zebulun 11 humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem. But in Judah, the hand of God had given 12 them one heart to do the commandment of the king and of the chiefs, according to the word of Jehovah.

And there assembled at Jerusalem many 13 people to keep the feast of unleavened bread, in the second month, a very great congregation. And they arose and took 14 away the altars which were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for incense took they away, and cast them into the brook Kidron. Then 15 they killed the passover, on the fourteenth day of the second month: and the priests and the Levites were now ashamed, and they hallowed themselves, and brought the burnt-offerings into the house of Jehovah. And they stood in their place after their 16 manner, according to the law of Moses, the man of God: the priests sprinkled the blood, which they received from the hand of the Levites. For there were many in the con- 17 gregation who were not hallowed: therefore the Levites had the charge of the killing of the passover for every one that was not clean, so as to be hallowed to Jehovah. For very many of the people, many of 18 Ephraim, and Manasseh, Issachar, and Ze- bulun, had not cleansed themselves, yet did they eat the passover, contrary to what was prescribed. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, May the good Jehovah pardon every one, Who hath prepared his heart to seek 19 Jehovah, the God of his fathers, although not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary. And Jehovah hearkened 20 to Hezekiah, and was reconciled to the people.

So the Israelites who were present at Je- 21 rusalem kept the feast of unleavened bread seven days with great gladness; and the Levites and the priests praised Jehovah, day by day, with instruments of sacred music. And Hezekiah spoke comfortably to 22 all the Levites who best understood the wor- ship of Jehovah, that they would 'complete' the seven days' fast, offering feast-offerings, and making confession to Jehovah, the God

CHAP. XXX. 2. In the second month] According to the law, it was to be kept until the 14th day of the first month; but in case any man was unclean, &c. he might keep it in the second month. Compare Numb. ix. 10, 11. This was their case; the temple was not hallowed, nor could they be prepared before the second month.

8. Submit yourselves] Literally, 'give the hand,' which both denoted submission and a renewal of their covenant with him. Compare 1 Chron. xxix. 24, Ezra x. 19, and Ezek. xvii. 18.

10. They laughed at them] This shows the hardened state of the people. God's service was the subject of their unhallowed mirth; but soon were the bonds of these mockers made strong.

20. Reconciled] I have adopted the Arabic sense of רָפָא here, as best agreeing with the context; for we have no reason to think that those who attended were smitten with any disease.

22. Would complete] This reading seems more natural than the common text; for surely there was no reason for the king to exhort the priests to eat, but there was to persevere in the laborious service of killing and offering victims for other seven days. (v) Sept.

- 23 of their fathers. And the whole assembly resolved to keep other seven days; and they kept the feast other seven days with gladness.
- 24 For Hezekiah, king of Judah, gave to the congregation, a thousand steers, and seven thousand sheep; and the chiefs gave to the congregation, a thousand steers, and ten thousand sheep; and a great number
- 25 of priests hallowed themselves. And the whole congregation of Judah, with the priests, and the Levites, and the whole congregation that had come out of Israel, and the strangers that had come out of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Judah, rejoiced.
- 26 So there was great joy in Jerusalem: for since the time of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel, there had not been the like in Jerusalem.
- 27 Then the priests, the Levites, arose and blessed the people; and Jehovah hearkened to their voice, and their prayer went up to his holy dwelling-place in the heavens.

CHAPTER XXXI.

B. C. 726. Idols destroyed; tithes and offerings brought; the king's integrity and success.

- 1 Now when all this was finished, all Israel that were present, went out to the cities of Judah, and broke the statues in pieces, and cut down the groves, and threw down the high-places and the altars, in all Judah and Benjamin; in Ephraim also and Manasseh, until they had utterly destroyed them all. Then all the Israelites returned to their own cities, every man to his own possession.
- 2 And Hezekiah appointed the courses of the priests and the Levites according to their classes; each of the priests and Levites according to his service; for offering burnt-offerings, and feast-offerings, to minister, give thanks, and praise at the gates
- 3 of the camp of Jehovah. He also appointed a portion of his own property for the burnt-offerings, for the morning and evening burnt-offerings, and the burnt-offerings for the sabbaths, and for the new moons, and for the stated feasts, as it is written in the law
- 4 of Jehovah. Moreover he commanded the people who dwelt in Jerusalem, to give the portion due to the priests and the Levites, that they might be wholly employed in the law of Jehovah.
- 5 And as soon as the commandment went abroad, the Israelites brought, in abundance, the first-fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundance. And Judah, and Israel, who 6 dwelt in the cities of Judah, they also brought in the tithe of oxen and sheep; and the tithe of holy things which were hallowed to Jehovah, their God, they laid in heaps. 7 In the third month they began to lay the heaps, and finished them in the seventh month. And when Hezekiah and the chiefs came 8 and saw the heaps, they blessed Jehovah, and his people Israel. Then Hezekiah 9 questioned the priests and the Levites concerning the heaps; And Azariah, the chief 10 priest of the house of Zadok, answered him, and said, Since the people began to bring their offerings into the house of Jehovah, we have had enough to eat, and have left plenty: for Jehovah hath blessed his people; and that which is left, is this great store.

Then Hezekiah commanded chambers to 11 be prepared in the house of Jehovah; and they prepared them, And brought in the 12 offerings and the tithes, and the dedicated things faithfully: over which Cononiah, the Levite, was ruler, and Shimei, his brother, was the next. And Jehiel, and Azariah, 13 and Nahath, and Asahel, and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliel, and Ismachiah, and Mahath, and Benaiah, were overseers under Cononiah, and Shimei, his brother, at the command of Hezekiah, the king, and Azariah, the ruler of the house of God. And 14 Korah, the son of Imnah, the Levite, the door-keeper at the east-gate, was over the free-will offerings of God, to distribute the oblations of Jehovah, and the most holy things. And next to him were Eden, and 15 Benjamin, and Joshua, and Sheimaiah; Amaziah, and Shecaniah; whose office was to give a portion to their brethren in the cities of the priests, according to their 16 courses, whether great or small: Besides to those of their males reckoned from three years old and upward, (to every one coming into the house of Jehovah, his daily portion,) for their ministerial service according to their courses. Now the priests and the 17 Levites were reckoned according to their paternal houses, from twenty years old and CHAP. XXXI. 2. Camp of Jehovah] The whole space within the outer wall that surrounded the temple is thus called, because here the people assembled to worship, and here the musicians and singers were stationed.

6. Children of Israel] The connexion requires the text to be thus construed. See note Hebrew Bible.—Which were hallowed] That is, their votive and free-will offerings, the gains of trade or the spoils of war.

11. Chambers] There were many in the temple for the purpose of store-rooms, but they had been otherwise employed. The king ordered them to be prepared for the tithes; and the abundance brought shows that God had blessed them.

16. Three years old] The male children of the Levites, above three years old, were allowed to come to the temple with their fathers, and share in the distribution. In their time of waiting they brought their families with them.

17. Twenty years old] In the law it was from thirty years old; but David altered this, probably by divine appointment, as the numbers of the people and the proselytes increased. 1 Chron. xxiii. 26.

upward, in their ministrations by their
 18 courses; And the whole multitude of their little ones, their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken into the account; of those who had faithfully hallowed
 19 themselves. And to the sons of Aaron, the priests, who were in the fields of the suburbs of their cities, in every city the men above named gave also portions; to all the males among the priests, and to all the Levites, who were reckoned among them.
 20 And thus did Hezekiah throughout all Judah; acting with goodness, uprightness, and faithfulness before Jehovah, his God,
 21 And in every work that he began for the service of the house of God, and in respect to the law, and the commandments, in seeking his God, he performed with his whole heart; hence he prospered.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 713. Sennacherib's invasion, and defeat; Hezekiah's sickness and recovery.

1 AFTER these things were faithfully accomplished, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, came, and entered into Judah; and encamped against the fortified cities, and thought to gain them by force to himself.
 2 And when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come, and that he had purposed to fight against Jerusalem, He took counsel with his chiefs and his mighty men, to stop the water-fountains which were without the
 4 city: and they assisted him. And many people were assembled, who stopped all the fountains, and the brook that ran through the midst of the land, saying, Why should the kings of Assyria come, and find much
 5 water? He also took courage, and repaired all the wall that was broken, and erected towers above, and another outer wall. He also strengthened Millo in the city of David, and made darts and shields in abundance.
 6 And he appointed captains of war over the people, and assembled them to himself in the area, at the gate of the city, and spoke
 7 comfortably to them, saying, Be strong and courageous; be not afraid nor dismayed on account of the king of Assyria, nor on account of all the multitude that is with him: for he with us is more powerful than all
 8 those with him. With him is an arm of flesh; but with us is Jehovah, our God, to help us, and to fight our battles. And the people relied on the words of Hezekiah, king of Judah.

After this, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, 9 (who himself, with all his forces, then besieged Lachish,) sent his servants to Jerusalem, unto Hezekiah, king of Judah, and unto all Judah, that were at Jerusalem, saying, Thus saith Sennacherib, king of 10 Assyria, On what do ye rely, that ye would abide a siege in Jerusalem? Is it not Heze- 11 kiah who persuadeth you to give yourselves up to die by famine and by thirst, saying, Jehovah, our God, will deliver us out of the hand of the king of Assyria? Hath not 12 the same Hezekiah taken away his high-places and his altars, and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall worship before one altar, and burn incense upon it? Know ye not what I and my fa- 13 thers have done to all the people of other lands? were the gods of those nations at all able to deliver their lands out of my hand? Who was there among all the gods of those 14 nations, whom my fathers utterly destroyed, that could deliver his people out of my hand, that your God should be able to deliver you out of my hand? Now, therefore, let not 15 Hezekiah deceive you, nor persuade you in this: believe him not: for as no god of any nation or kingdom hath been able to deliver his people out of my hand, and out of the hand of my fathers. how shall your God deliver you out of my hand? And his servants spoke 16 yet more against God Jehovah, and against his servant Hezekiah. He wrote also letters 17 to reproach Jehovah, the God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying, As the gods of other nations have not delivered their people out of my hand, so shall not the God of Hezekiah deliver his people out of my hand. Then they cried with a loud voice, in the 18 Jewish language, to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to terrify and confound them; that they might take the city. And they spoke against the God of Jerusalem, as against the gods of other nations, which were the work of men's hands.

On this, Hezekiah, the king, and the pro- 20 phet Isaiah, the son of Amoz, prayed and cried to heaven. And Jehovah sent an 21 angel, who cut off all the mighty men of valour, and the leaders and captains in the camp of the king of Assyria; and he returned, with shame of face, to his own

18. Hallowed themselves] This is given as a reason why such care was taken of their families, because they were either employed in the temple, or in teaching the people at home; and would otherwise have been unable to provide for them, in a manner becoming their station.

21. One circumstance of Hezekiah's wisdom and piety is not mentioned here, but may be inferred from Prov. xxv. 1, (that he employed some skilful scribe to compare and write out copies of the law and other sacred writings; and also smaller collections of proverbs, which were scattered abroad in several hands. These he employed some priests or prophets to copy, and publish for the good of his kingdom.

CHAP. XXXII. 1—23. Compare 2 Kings xviii. 13, to the end, and the whole of the 19th chapter, where a more particular and detailed account of the invasion and insulting language of Sennacherib is given.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

B. C. 698. Manasseh's wicked reign; he, when carried to Babylon, repents and is restored; his death.

land. And when he had gone into the house of his god, the offspring of his own 22 loins slew him there with the sword. Thus Jehovah saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from Sennacherib, the king of Assyria, and from all "their enemies," and 23 defended them on every side. And many brought offerings to Jehovah to Jerusalem, and presents to Hezekiah, king of Judah: so that thenceforth he was magnified in the eyes of all nations.
 24 In those days Hezekiah was sick unto death, and prayed to Jehovah: and he "hearkened to" him, and gave to him a token
 25 of recovery. But Hezekiah rendered not according to the benefit conferred on him; for he became proud in heart; therefore was wrath kindled against him, and against 26 Judah and Jerusalem. But Hezekiah humbled himself for the pride of his heart; he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; so that the wrath of Jehovah came not upon them in the days of Hezekiah.
 27 And Hezekiah had riches and glory in abundance: and he made for himself treasuries for silver, and for gold, and for precious stones, and for spices, and for shields,
 28 and for all kinds of valuable utensils. Storehouses also for the increase of corn, and wine, and oil; and stalls for all kinds of 29 cattle, and sheep-cotes for flocks. Moreover, he built cities for himself; and possessed flocks and herds in abundance: for 30 God gave to him very much substance. This same Hezekiah also stopped the upper water-course of Gihon, and brought it straight down to the west side of the city of David: for Hezekiah prospered in all his 31 works. But in respect to the ambassadors the princes "of the king" of Babylon, who were sent unto him to inquire concerning the miracle, that had been done in the land, God left him to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart.
 32 Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his goodness, behold, they are written in the vision of Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz, and in the book of the kings of 33 Judah and Israel. And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the chief of the sepulchres of the sons of David; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem honoured him at his death. And Manasseh, his son, reigned in his stead.

MANASSEH was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. But he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, like to the abominable deeds of the nations, whom Jehovah had cast out before the Israelites.

For he rebuilt the high-places which Hezekiah, his father, had broken down, and he reared up altars for Baal, and made groves, and worshipped all the host of the heavens, and served them. Also he built altars for idols in the house of Jehovah, concerning which Jehovah said, In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever. And he built altars for the whole host of the heavens, in the two courts of the house of Jehovah. And he devoted his children by fire, in the valley of Ben-Hinnom: also he observed the clouds, and used divination, and practised augury, and encouraged necromancers and wizards: he wrought much evil in the eyes of Jehovah, to provoke him to anger. And he set a carved grove-idol, made by himself, in the house of God, of which God had said to David and to Solomon, his son, In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen before all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever: Nor will I any more remove the foot of Israel out of the land which I appointed for their fathers; provided they observe to do all that I have commanded them, according to the whole law, and the statutes and the ordinances by Moses.

But Manasseh seduced Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to do more evil than the nations whom Jehovah had destroyed before Israel. And Jehovah spoke to Manasseh, and to his people; but they would not hearken. Jehovah, therefore, brought upon them the captains of the host of the king of Assyria, who took Manasseh "alive," and bound him with fetters, and carried him to Babylon. But when, in his affliction, he besought Jehovah, his God, and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, And prayed to him, and treated him; he heard his supplication, and brought him back to Jerusalem, unto his own kingdom. Then Manasseh acknowledged that Jehovah was the only God. Now after this, he built a wall without the city of David, on the west side of Gihon, in the valley, even to the entrance of the fish-gate, and carried it about to Ophel, and raised it a very great height. And he put captains of war in all the fortified cities of 15 Judah. And he removed the strange gods, and the grove-idols, out of the house of Jehovah, and all the altars that he had built in the mount of the house of Jehovah, and in Jerusalem; and cast them out of the 16 city. And he repaired the altar of Jehovah, and sacrificed thereon feast-offerings, and thank-offerings, and commanded Judah to 17 serve Jehovah, the God of Israel. Nevertheless, the people still sacrificed on the high-places, yet to Jehovah, their God, only.

 18 Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and his prayer to his God, and the words of the seers who spoke to him in the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel, behold, they are written in the records of the kings of Judah.
 19 His prayer also and its acceptance; and all his sins, and his trespasses, and where he built high-places, and set up carved grove-idols, before he was humbled: behold, they are written in the records of the seers.
 20 And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the garden of his own house; and Amon, his son, reigned in his 21 stead. Amon was twenty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned 22 two years in Jerusalem. But he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah, as at first did Manasseh, his father: for Amon sacrificed unto all the carved idols which Manasseh, his 23 father, had made, and served them; And humbled not himself before Jehovah, as Manasseh, his father, had humbled himself;
 24 but Amon trespassed more and more. And his servants conspired against him, and slew
 25 him in his own house; But the people of the land slew all those who had conspired against king Amon: and the people of the land made Josiah, his son, king in his stead.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B. C. 641. The reign of Josiah; the book of the law found; he and the people enter into covenant.

1 JOSIAH was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem
 2 thirty-one years. And he did what was right in the eyes of Jehovah, and walked in the ways of David, his fore-father, and declined neither to the right hand nor to the left.

19. In the records of the seers] We are here referred to some history then extant for a larger account of his sin and repentance. Particular notice is taken of his prayer; it is to be found in the Apocrypha, but whether genuine or not is uncertain; it is not unlikely but it may be so, for it is a good prayer, and much to the purpose.

20. Garden] Compare 2 Kings xxi. 13.

CHAP. XXXIV. 3. In the eighth year] That is, in the sixteenth year of his age.

For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet young, he began to seek after the God of David, his fore-father; and in the twelfth year he began to cleanse Judah and Jerusalem from the high places and the groves, and the carved and molten idols. For in his presence were the altars of Baal broken down; and the solar statues, which were high above them, were destroyed. And the groves he cut down, and the carved and molten idols he broke in pieces, and stamped them to dust, and strowed it on the graves of those who had sacrificed to them. And he burned the bones of the priests of the idols upon their own altars, and cleansed Judah and Jerusalem. And in the cities of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, even unto Naphtali, he destroyed on every hand idol temples. And he demolished the altars and the groves, and stamped the carved idols to dust, and cut down all the solar statues throughout the whole land of Israel; and then returned to Jerusalem.

Now in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had cleansed the land, and the house "of Jehovah," he sent Shaphan, the son of Azaliah, and Maaseiah, the governor of the city, and Joah, the son of Joahaz, the recorder, to repair the house of Jehovah, his God. And when they came to Hilkiah, the high-priest, they delivered the money which was brought into the house of God, which the Levites, who kept the doors, had collected from Manasseh and Ephraim, and from all the remnant of Israel, and from all Judah and Benjamin, and from the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they put it in the hand of those who had the oversight of the work of the house of Jehovah, and they gave it to the workmen who wrought in the house of Jehovah, to repair and strengthen the house: 'To the artificers and builders gave they it, to buy hewn stones, and timber for couplings, and to floor the apartments which the kings of Judah had destroyed. And the men did the work faithfully; and their overseers to forward the work, were Jahath, and Obadiah, the Levites of the sons of Merari; and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, and such other Levites as were skilful musicians. Also over the burden-bearers, for forwarding all those who did any kind of work, were the Levites, scribes, and officers, and gate-keepers.'

6. Their temples] I have followed the text in preference to the Keri; and, with Cappellus and Houbigant, consider the first word a verb. See note Hebrew Bible, and compare 2 Kings xxiii. 4-21.

11. Apartment] These were what the priests occupied when they attended at the temple; and the conduct of the idolatrous kings in destroying them shows both their impiety and policy. They wished to banish those from the temple who might have been a hinderance to their schemes.

14 And when fetching out the money which had been brought into the house of Jehovah, Hilkiah, the priest, found the book of the law of Jehovah, written by Moses.
 15 And Hilkiah spoke and said to Shaphan, the scribe, I have found the book of the law, in the house of Jehovah. And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan. And Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought back word to the king, saying, All that was committed to thy servants, they have done. And they have collected the money found in the house of Jehovah, and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers, and to the hand of the workmen.
 18 Then Shaphan, the scribe, told the king, saying, Hilkiah, the priest, hath given to me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king. And when the king had heard the words of the law, he rent his garments.
 20 And the king commanded Hilkiah, and Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and Abdou, the son of Micah, and Shaphan, the scribe, and Asaiah, a servant of the king, saying,
 21 Go, inquire of Jehovah for me, and for those that are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book which is found: for great is the wrath of Jehovah, to be poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the word of Jehovah, by doing according to all that is written in 22 this book. And Hilkiah, and they whom the king appointed, went to Huldah, the prophetess, (the wife of Shallum, the son of Tikvath, the son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe,) who dwelt in the suburbs of Jerusalem, and on this subject spoke to her.
 23 And she answered them, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Tell ye the man
 24 that sent you to me, Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon its inhabitants, even all the curses that are written in the book which hath been 25 read before the king of Judah: Because they have forsaken me and have burned incense to other gods, so as to provoke me to anger by all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be poured out upon this place, and shall not be quenched.
 26 But to the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of Jehovah, thus shall ye say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Because at the words which thou hast heard, Thy heart was softened, and thou didst humble thyself before God, when thou hearest my words against this place, and against its inhabitants, and humbledst thyself before me, and didst rend thy garments, and weep before me; I have even heard thee, saith Jehovah. Behold, I will gather thee 28 to thy fathers, to thy grave in peace, neither shall thine eyes see all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and upon its inhabitants.

When they had reported these words to the king, The king then sent and assembled all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. And the king, and all the men of Judah, 30 and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and the whole people, great and small, went up to the house of Jehovah: and he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant, that had been found in the house of Jehovah. And the king stood by a pillar, and 31 made a covenant before Jehovah, to walk after Jehovah, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book. And he caused 32 all that were present in Jerusalem and Benjamin to stand to it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. And Josiah took away all the abominations 33 out of all the countries which belonged to the children of Israel, and made all that were present in Israel to serve Jehovah, their God. And during all his days, they departed not from following Jehovah, the God of their fathers.

CHAPTER XXXV.

B. C. 623. Josiah keepeth a solemn passover; opposing Pharaoh Necho, he is slain.

MOREOVER, Josiah kept a passover to 1 Jehovah in Jerusalem: and they killed the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month. And he appointed the priests to 2

19. Rent his garments It cannot be supposed that all the copies of the law were lost. Hezekiah had taken care to furnish the people with many: and their being and polity as a nation, as well as their religion, depended on the knowledge of the law. Perhaps they had, for the use of the priests and the king, some abstract, like our abridgement of the statutes; without the promises and threatenings, with which the king seemed so much affected, and which it is evident he had not before read. The king, being impatient to know the contents, begins to read immediately, and as their books were written upon long scrolls, and rolled upon a stick, the latter part of Deuteronomy would come first in course, where he found those terrible threatenings which so greatly impressed him, threatenings upon the king, as well as upon the people. Deut. xxviii. 36.

It is scarcely possible for words more naturally to describe a book written by Moses himself, than the words of the text; or to vouch more fully, that the manuscript of the law then found was in the hand-writing of Moses. And perhaps all doubt will be removed, when it is considered further—that, though there are fifteen places in the Old Testament which mention the words law of Moses and book of Moses, yet this one place only mentions the book of the law in the hand (or by the hand) of Moses: the reason of which seems to be, that the other places speak of that law in general: but this place speaks of one particular MS. namely, the original.

their offices, and encouraged them to do the
 3 service of the house of Jehovah. And he said to the Levites, who being hallowed to Jehovah, were to teach all Israel, Put the holy ark in the house which Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel, built for it: for it is no more to be borne on your shoulders: serve now Jehovah, your God, and
 4 his people Israel, And be prepared according to your paternal houses and courses, as prescribed by David, king of Israel, and
 5 repeated by Solomon, his son. And attend at the sanctuary, according to the divisions of the paternal families of your brethren, the people; and according to the division
 6 of the families of the Levites. So kill the passover, and hallow yourselves, and prepare your brethren, that they may do according to the word of Jehovah by Moses.
 7 Josiah then gave to the people, of the flock, lambs and kids, all for the passover offerings, for all that were present, to the number of thirty thousand, and three thousand steers: these were from the king's own
 8 property. And his chiefs gave willingly unto the people, to the priests, and to the Levites: Hilkiah, and Zechariah, and Jehiel, rulers of the house of God, gave unto the priests for the passover offerings, two thousand and six hundred lambs and kids,
 9 and three hundred oxen. Conaniah also, and Shemaiah and Nethaneel, his brethren, and Hashabiah, and Jeiel, and Jozabad, chief of the Levites, gave unto the Levites for passover offerings, five thousand lambs
 10 and kids, and five hundred oxen. So the service was prepared, and the priests stood in their place, and the Levites in their courses,
 11 according to the king's commandment. And they killed the passover victims, and the priests sprinkled the blood from their hands,
 12 and the Levites flayed them. And they removed the burnt-offerings, that they might give according to the divisions of the families of the people, to offer unto Jehovah, as it is written in the book of Moses. And so 13 did they with the oxen. And they roasted the passover victims with fire, according to the ordinance: but the other holy offerings they boiled in pots, and in caldrons, and in pans, and divided them speedily among all the people. And afterwards 14 they made ready for themselves, and for the priests: because the priests, the sons of Aaron, were employed in offering of burnt-offerings and the fat until night; therefore the Levites prepared for themselves, and for the priests, the sons of Aaron. And 15 the singers, the sons of Asaph, were in their place, according to the commandment of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun, the king's seer: and the door-keepers waited at every gate; they might not depart from their service; for their brethren, the Levites, prepared for them. So all the 16 service of Jehovah was prepared the same day, to keep the passover, and offer burnt-offerings upon the altar of Jehovah, according to the command of king Josiah. And 17 the children of Israel, who were present, kept the passover at that time, and the feast of unleavened bread seven days. And 18 there was no passover like to that kept in Israel from the days of Samuel, the prophet: nor did any of the kings of Israel keep such a passover as was kept by Josiah, and the priests, and the Levites, and all Judah and Israel, who were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. In the eighteenth year of 19 the reign of Josiah was this passover kept.

After all this, when Josiah had prepared 20 the temple, Necho, king of Egypt, came up to fight against Charchemish, on the Euphrates: and Josiah went out against him. But he sent ambassadors to him, saying, 21 What hast thou to do with me, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against a house with which I have war: for God commanded me to make haste. Forbear to oppose God, who is with me, lest he destroy thee. Nevertheless, Jo- 22 siah would not turn his face from him, but disguised himself, that he might fight with him, and hearkened not to the words of Necho from the mouth of God, and came to fight in the valley of Megiddo. And 23

CHAP. XXXV. 3. Who being hallowed] Houbigant renders, 'Who taught the people how they might hallow themselves to Jehovah,' a sense which I think the text will not bear.—Put the holy ark] His father Amon had probably removed it, to make room for his idols.

5. Paternal families] In order to understand this, it must be observed, that each family, if it were sufficient to eat a whole lamb, was obliged to have one slaughtered for them: this office was to be performed by the Levites: who were consequently to be distributed among the families for that purpose. Compare Exod. xii. 8, 9.

8. Lambs and kids] I have supplied the words, because no other animals were used for the passover victims; and of course it must be these which are meant.

19. This passover] This was a most extraordinary passover; none had been celebrated with such solemnity, with such great preparations, and with such great joy. It had been kept in Hezekiah's time; but the people were not properly purified, and Josiah was more liberal in proportion to his abilities.

20. Went out against him] The conduct of Josiah has been thought rash, if not an act of disobedience to God. I cannot but think it highly becoming his character; as it is probable he was in league with the king of Babylon, and had, perhaps, received from him authority over the cities of Israel. As for what Pharaoh says, that God had commanded him to make haste, he must mean his own god, or idol, to which Josiah was not to pay any respect. In opposing Pharaoh, he acted as a faithful ally of the king of Babylon, and though he fell, it was rather a punishment to his people than a judgment on himself; for death was his gain.

22. Disguised] The versions seem to have read some other word, most probably חֲרֹמִים, as they render desired to fight with him. So Geddes.

the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants, Take me away; 24 for I am grievously wounded. His servants, therefore, took him out of that chariot, and put him in the second chariot that he had; and they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried in one of the sepulchres of his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah.

25 And Jeremiah lamented for Josiah: and all the singing-men, and the singing-women, by an established custom in Israel, speak of Josiah in their lamentations to this day, and, behold, they are written in the lamentations. Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and his goodness according to what is prescribed in the law of Jehovah: And his deeds, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

B. C. 610. History of the reigns of Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah.

1 THEN the people of the land took Jehoahaz, the son of Josiah, and made him king 2 in his father's stead in Jerusalem. Jehoahaz was twenty-three years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months 3 in Jerusalem. And the king of Egypt removed him from Jerusalem, and laid a tribute on the land of a hundred talents 4 of silver, and a talent of gold. And the king of Egypt made Eliakim, his brother, king over Judah and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jehoiakim. And Necho took Jehoahaz, his brother, and carried him to Egypt. 5 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: and he did evil in the 6 eyes of Jehovah, his God. Against him came up Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and bound him in fetters, and carried him 7 to Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar also carried away some of the utensils of the house of Jehovah to Babylon, and put them in his 8 temple at Babylon. Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and his abominations which he committed, and that which was found in him, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah: and Jehoiachin his son reigned in his stead. 9 Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem; and he did evil in the eyes of Jehovah. And when the year 10 was expired, king Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, with the choicest utensils of the house of Jehovah, and made Zedekiah, his "uncle," king over Judah and Jerusalem.

Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when 11 he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And he did evil in the eyes 12 of Jehovah, his God, and humbled not himself before Jeremiah, the prophet, speaking from the mouth of Jehovah. And he also 13 rebelled against king Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear allegiance to him by God: but he stiffened his neck, and hardened his heart from turning to Jehovah, the God of Israel.

Moreover, all the chiefs of the priests 14 and the people transgressed very much, according to all the abominations of the heathen; and polluted the house of Jehovah which he had hallowed in Jerusalem. And Jehovah, the God of their fathers, sent 15 to them by his messengers early, and often; because he had compassion on his people, and on his own dwelling-place: But they 16 derided the messengers of God, and despised his words, and insulted his prophets, until the wrath of Jehovah arose against his people, until there was no remedy. There- 17 fore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who slew their young men with the sword in the apartments of their own sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man, or maiden, old man, or him that stooped for age: he gave them all into his hand.

And all the utensils of the house of God, 18 great and small, and the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and the treasures of the king, and of his chiefs; all these he brought to Babylon. And they burnt the house of 19 God, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem; they burnt all the palaces also with fire, and destroyed all the choicest furniture. And those who had escaped from the sword, 20 carried he away to Babylon; where they were servants to him and his sons, until the reign of the kingdom of Persia: To 21 fulfil the word of Jehovah, by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed her sabbaths: for as long as she lay desolate she kept sabbath seventy complete years.*

25. In the lamentations] This funeral poem has not been preserved. It could not be Jeremiah's lamentations, for they lament the destruction of the city, and the captivity, and not the death of the king.

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. Compare with this chapter, 2 Kings xxiv. 31, &c. and the 25th chapter and the notes. I have omitted the 22nd and 23rd verses of this chapter, as they are the same as the three first verses of the first chapter of Ezra; and have undoubtedly been added by mistake; or rather, they show that the book of Ezra once followed this.

E Z R A.

INTRODUCTION.

This book has been generally ascribed to Ezra, by the Jewish church; and there is no solid reason to suppose that this opinion is unfounded. He was descended from the house of Aaron, and was the grandson of Seraiah, who was the high-priest in the reign of Zedekiah. Compare 2 Kings xxv. 18, and Ezra vii. 1. From his rank and education, he was well qualified to obtain information, and write the account of the first return of his brethren; and was himself afterwards chiefly employed in restoring the civil and religious polity of his country. We have an account of those who first returned to their own country; of the building of the temple, in spite of the opposition made by their enemies; of Ezra's coming to Jerusalem, and the reform which he effected. It contains the history of about eighty years.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 536. The proclamation of Cyrus; the people prepare to return; the utensils of the temple restored.

- 1 Now in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, that the word of Jehovah, by the mouth of Jeremiah, might be fulfilled, Jehovah so influenced the mind of Cyrus, king of Persia, that he made a written decree, and proclaimed it through all his kingdom, saying, Thus saith Cyrus, king of Persia, Jehovah, the God of the heavens, hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build for himself a temple at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? May his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the temple of Jehovah, the God of Israel: he is the true God, who is to be worshipped at Jerusalem. And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place assist him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with cattle, besides a free-will offering for building the temple of God at Jerusalem.
- 5 Then rose up the paternal chiefs of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, together with all those whose minds God had influenced to go up to build the temple of Jehovah, at Jerusalem. And all those around them supplied them with utensils of silver, with gold, with goods, and CHAP. I. 1. Might be fulfilled] Jeremiah had foretold the destruction of the king and empire of Babylon, (Jer. xxix. 10,) and the return of the Jews after seventy years. This was accomplished on the death of Belshazzar, the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. v. Upon the conquest of Babylon, Cyrus made his uncle Cyaxares, there called Darius the Median, king of Babylon. He reigned two years, and after his death, Cyrus reigned over all Persia and the country that had been subject to the kings of Assyria and Babylon; and in this first year of his reign he issued this proclamation.

2. To build a temple] There is reason to believe that Daniel had shown to the king the prophecy of Isaiah, xl. 28, and xiv. 1—4; and that he, in gratitude to that God who had given him such success, issued the proclamation, granting liberty to the Jews, and authorizing the building of the temple.

with cattle, and with precious things, besides all that was willingly offered.

Also Cyrus, the king, brought forth the utensils of the house of Jehovah, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought from Jerusalem, and had put in the house of his gods; Those did Cyrus, king of Persia, bring forth by the hand of Mithredath, the treasurer, and numbered them unto Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah. And this is their number: 'one thousand' golden chargers, a thousand silver chargers, twenty-nine slaughter-knives, Thirty golden basin covers, and 'two thousand' silver basin covers, and a thousand other utensils. All the utensils of gold and of silver were five thousand four hundred 'and sixty-nine.' All these Sheshbazzar brought with those of the captivity, who came up from Babylon unto Jerusalem.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 536. The persons who returned from Babylon; their substance and their offerings.

Now these are the posterity of the province, that went up out of the captivity, of those who had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had carried away unto Babylon, and came again unto Jerusalem and Judah, every one unto his city; Who came with Zerubbabel, Joshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bil-

8. Sheshbazzar] The name was the same as Zerubbabel, one being his Babylonish and the other his Jewish name. He was a prince of Judah by birth, and made captain of those who chose to return. Compare ch. iii. 8, with v. 16.

9—11. The reading of Esdras is followed, because the numbers agree with the sum total. See note Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. II. 1. Children of the province] That is, of Babylon, as what follows clearly proves. Those of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin returned first to the city of their fathers.

2. We have two other copies of this catalogue, one in Nehemiah vii. 4, &c. and the other in Esdras ii. I shall give the numbers, when they differ, of the parallel places, that the reader may judge for himself which deserves preference.

The sum total of the people who returned from captivity shan, Mizpar, Bigvai, Rehum, Baanah. The number of the men of the people of Israel: 3 The posterity of Parosh, two thousand one 4 hundred and seventy-two. The posterity of Shephatiah, three hundred and seventy-two. The posterity of Arah, seven hundred and seventy-five. The posterity of Pahath-moab, of the posterity of Joshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and 7 twelve. The posterity of Elam, a thousand 8 two hundred and fifty-four. The posterity 9 of Zattu, nine hundred and forty-five. The posterity of Zaccai, seven hundred and 10 sixty. The posterity of Bani, six hundred 11 and forty-two. The posterity of Bebai, six 12 hundred and twenty-three. The posterity of Azgad, a thousand two hundred and 13 twenty-two. The posterity of Adonikam, 14 six hundred and sixty-six. The posterity 15 of Bigvai, two thousand and fifty-six. The posterity of Adin, four hundred and fifty- 16 four. The posterity of Ater of Hezekiah, 17 ninety-eight. The posterity of Bezai, three 18 hundred and twenty-three. The posterity 19 of Jorah, a hundred and twelve. The posterity of Hashum, two hundred and twenty- 20 three. The posterity of Giheon, ninety-five. 21 The people of Bethlehem, a hundred and 22 twenty-three. The people of Netophah, 23 fifty-six. The people of Anathoth, a hun- 24 dred and twenty-eight. The people of Beth- 25 azmaveth, forty-two. The people of Kir- 26 jath-jearim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred and forty-three. The people of Ramah and Gaba, six hundred and twenty- 27 one. The people of Michmas, a hundred 28 and twenty-two. The people of Bethel and Ai, two hundred and twenty-three. 29 30 The people of Nebo, fifty-two. The people of Magbish, a hundred and fifty-six. 31 The people of Elamar, a thousand two hun- 32 dred and fifty-four. The people of Harim, 33 three hundred and twenty. The people of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred and twenty-five. The people of Jericho, three 34 hundred and forty-five. The people of 35 Senaah, three thousand six hundred and thirty.

The priests: the posterity of Jedaiah of 36 the house of Joshua, nine hundred and seventy-three. The posterity of Immer, a 37 thousand and fifty-two. The posterity of 38 Pashur, a thousand two hundred and forty-seven. The posterity of Harim, a thousand 39 and seventeen.

The Levites: the posterity of Joshua, 40 and Kadmiel, sprung from Hodaviah, seventy-four.

The singers: the posterity of Asaph, a 41 hundred and twenty-eight.

The posterity of the porters: of Shallum, 42 of Ater, of Talmon, of Akkub, of Hatita, of Shobai, in all a hundred and thirty- 43 nine.

The Nethinims: the posterity of Ziha, of 43 Hasupha, of Tabbaoth, of Keros, of Siaha, 44 of Padon, of Lebanah, of Hagabah, of Ak- 45 kub, of Hagab, of Shalmi, of Hanan, of 46 Giddel, of Gahar, of Reaiah, of Rezin, of 47 Nekoda, of Gazzam, of Uzza, of Paseah, of 48 Besai, of Asnah, of Mehunim, of Nephu- 49 sim, of Bakbuk, of Hakupha, of Harhur, of 50 Bazluth, of Mehida, of Harsha, of Barkos, 51 of Sisera, of Thamah, of Nezia, and of 52 Hatipha.

The posterity of Solomon's servants: 53 the posterity of Sotai, of Sophereth, of Peruda, of Jaalah, of Darkon, of Giddel, of 54 Shephatiah, of Hattil, of Pokereth, of Ze- 55 baim, of Ami. All the Nethinims, and the posterity of Solomon's servants, were three hundred and ninety-two. And these were 56 they who went up from Telmelah, Tel-harsa, Cherub, Addan, and Immer: but they could not show their father's house, and their seed, whether they were of Israel: The posterity 60 of Delaiah, of Tobiah, of Nekoda, six hundred and fifty-two.

in all three accounts, is the same, 42,360; which exceeds the particulars added together here, 10,777. Alting and Calmet conjectured that this number could not produce their genealogy, and in consequence their names were not given. Houbigant maintains that as the three accounts do not differ much in the particulars, it is probable the error is in the sum total. Others maintain that it is more probable that errors have obtained in the numbers of particular families; and the variation of the different accounts strongly supports this last opinion. Some families have also been omitted. Our Lightfoot supposes that the number of names omitted were the posterity of the ten tribes, and for this reason not mentioned in this list.

17. Here we find in Esdras four names, Ceilan and Azetas, 67; Azurum, 432; and Ananias, 410. The order of the 17th, 18th, and 19th verses is inverted in Nehemiah.

21. The people] The following names, to the 35th verse, I consider as names of places, and have rendered accordingly.

25. Here Esdras gives to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, the sum of 25, and to those of Chephirah and Beeroth, the same as the text. After this verse, we have also in Esdras, Pira, 700; Chanio and Ammidioi, 422.

31. This and the two following verses are wanting in Esdras. This verse is confused; and Houbigant would read עילמארי as one word. Michaelis would omit it as a corruption of the 7th verse, and because wanting in Esdras.

36—39. Of the 24 courses of the priests that were carried away to Babylon, only four returned, and they were the courses of Jedaiah, Immer, Pashur, and Harim, which made up the number of 4,259 persons, the rest either tarried behind, or were extinct. However, the old number of the courses, as established by king David, were still kept up. For, of the four courses that returned, each subdivided themselves into six, and the new courses taking the names of those that were wanting, still kept up the old titles; and hence it is, that after this Mattathias is said to have been of the course of Joarib, and Zecharias, of the course of Abia, though neither of these courses were of the number of those that returned. Talmud. Hierosol. in Taanith.

43. Nethinims] Michaelis contends that these were some of the captives taken in war, who were devoted to the service of the temple; and not the descendants of the Gibeonites.

61 And of the posterity of the priests: the posterity of Habaiah, of Koz, of Barzillai: who took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai, the Gileadite, and was called after 62 their name: These sought their register among those who were reckoned by genealogy, but they were not found: therefore were they, as polluted, put from the priest-
 63 hood. And the governor said to them, that they should not eat of the most holy things, till there stood up a priest with Urim and with Thummin.
 64 The whole congregation together was forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty.
 65 Besides their servants, and their maids, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven: and there were among them two hundred singing-men, and
 66 singing-women. Their horses were seven hundred and thirty-six; their mules, two 67 hundred and forty-five; Their camels, four hundred and thirty-five; their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.
 68 And some of the paternal chiefs, when they came to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, offered freely, in order to rebuild the
 69 house of God in its place: They gave according to their ability unto the treasure for the work, one thousand and sixty darics of gold, and five thousand mina of silver, and 70 one hundred priests' garments. So the priests, and the Levites, and some of the people, and the singers, and the gate-keepers, and the Nethinims, dwelt in their own cities, and all Israel in their own cities.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 536. The altar built; offerings brought, and the foundation of the temple laid.

1 AND when the seventh month came, the Israelites who were in the cities, the whole people, assembled themselves as one man at 2 Jerusalem. Then stood up Joshua, the son of Jozedek, and his brethren, the priests, and Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and his brethren, and built the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt-offerings thereon, as it is written in the law of Moses, the man
 3 of God. And they set the altar upon its base; although fear was upon them, because of the people of those countries: and they offered burnt-offerings thereon to Jehovah, burnt-offerings morning and evening. They kept also the feast of booths, as it is 4 prescribed, and offered the daily burnt-offerings by number, according to the rite, as the duty of every day required; And afterwards,

 5 the continual burnt-offering, both of the new moons, and of all the stated feasts hallowed to Jehovah; and every free-will offering they brought to Jehovah. From 6 the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt-offerings to Jehovah. But the foundation of the temple of Jehovah was not yet laid. They gave money
 7 also to the masons, and to the carpenters; and meat, and drink, and oil, to the Sidonians and Tyrians, to bring cedars from Lebanon to the sea of Joppa, according to the grant of Cyrus, king of Persia, to them.

Now in the second year of their coming
 8 to the house of God at Jerusalem, in the second month, began Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua, the son of Jozedek, and the remnant of their brethren, the priests and the Levites, and all those who had come out of captivity unto Jerusalem: and appointed the Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to set forward the work of the house of Jehovah. Then stood Joshua,
 9 with his sons and his brethren, Kadmiel and his sons, the sons of Judah, together, to set forward the workmen in the house of God: the sons of Henadad, with their sons and their brethren, the Levites. And when the 10 builders laid the foundation of the temple of Jehovah, they stationed the priests, furnished with trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, to praise Jehovah, according to the ordinance of David, king of Israel. And they sang together,
 11 by course, in praising and giving thanks to Jehovah; because he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever towards Israel. And all the people shouted with a great shout, when they praised Jehovah, because the foundation of the house of Jehovah was laid. But many of the priests, and Levites, and 12

63. With Urim] That is, until God himself declared their descent. From this it appears, that they had lost these, whatever they were.

64. Forty-two thousand] The particulars only amount to 29,818, and Nehemiah to 31,089; and we find that Nehemiah mentions 1,765 persons not in Ezra, and Ezra 494, not in Nehemiah; Mr. Altting adds Ezra's surplus to the sum in Nehemiah, and Nehemiah's surplus to the sum in Ezra, and each will amount to the same total of 31,583, leaving a deficiency of 10,777, which are not named, because they did not belong to the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, or to that of Levi, but to the other tribes.

69. Darics of gold] Prideaux observes, that these were coined by Cyaxares or Darius, during the two years he reigned at Babylon. The gold was uncommonly pure; and these pieces continued in circulation in Asia and Greece for a long time. They were worth about twenty-five shillings of our money.—Mina] This is thought to have varied in its weight, at different times; so that it is difficult to ascertain its value.

CHAP. III. 1. In the seventh month] Though they were dispersed for a while about the country, to cultivate some land and prepare their habitations, yet they unanimously came together in the seventh month, at the feasts of atonement and tabernacles.

3. Although fear] This intimates that they were not so solicitous to fortify themselves, as to enjoy the divine protection.

10. Furnished] The word מלביש stands in construction with trumpets, and must have the sense attributed to it. It is often applied to putting on, or being furnished with, armour; and in this sense it must be taken here.

paternal chiefs, old men, who had seen the first house, when the foundation of this house was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice; but many shouted aloud for joy: So that the people could not discern the noise of the shout of joy from the noise of the weeping of the people, although the people shouted with a loud shout, and the noise was heard afar off.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 535. The enemies of the Jews write to Artaxerxes, who orders them not to proceed with the building.

- 1 Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that those who had been captive were building a temple to Jehovah, the God of Israel; They then came to Zerubbabel, and to the paternal chiefs, and said to them, Let us build with you: for we seek your God as ye do; and we have sacrificed to him since the days of 'Esarhaddon,' king of Assyria, who brought us up hither. But Zerubbabel, and Joshua, and the rest of the paternal chiefs of Israel, said to them, Ye have nothing to do with us to build a house to our God; but we ourselves will build to Jehovah, the God of Israel, as king Cyrus, the king of Persia, hath commanded us. Then the people of the land discouraged the people of Judah.
- 5 And they deterred them from building, And hired counsellors against them, to frustrate their purpose all the days of Cyrus, king of Persia, until the reign of Darius, king of Persia. And in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, wrote they an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.
- 7 And in the days of Artaxerxes wrote Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel, and the rest of their companions, to Artaxerxes, king of Persia; and the letter was written in the Syrian tongue.* Rehum, the chancellor, and Shimshai, the scribe, wrote a letter

12. Wept with a loud] All this was very natural. The young people, who were bred up in Babylon, had only heard of the former temple, and were glad to see one now erecting. But some of the old people, who remembered the first, wept; partly on account of its destruction, and the calamities of the nation, which now came fully to their remembrance; and partly, to think how far this would come short of the former. For what constituted the glory of the first temple were wanting in this, the ark, the Shekinah, the Urim, and the holy fire. Hence, Haggai was sent to assure them, that in some respects the glory of this latter house should be greater than that of the former, chap. ii. 7. 9.

CHAP. IV. 1. Adversaries] These were the people whom the king of Assyria had settled in a part of the land of Israel, with a mixture of the apostate Israelites, and who were afterwards called Samaritans.

2. (v) Salmaneser] Josephus, and 2 Kings xvii. 2; xix. 37.

5. The reign of Darius] Called Hystaspes, who succeeded Smerdis, the magian, called Artaxerxes in the 7th verse. Ahasuerus, mentioned in the 6th verse, was Cambyses, the son and successor of Cyrus. Cyrus became sole king of the Babylonish empire 536 years before the Chris-against Jerusalem, to Artaxerxes, the king, in this manner: Then wrote Rehum, the 9 chancellor, and Shimshai, the scribe, and the rest of their companions; the Dinaites, the Apharsathchites, the Tarpelites, the Apharsites, the Archevites, the Babylonians the Susanchites, the Dehavites, and the Elamites, And the rest of the nations whom 10 the great and noble Asnapper brought over, and settled in the cities of Samaria, and the rest that are on this side the river, and at such a time.

This is a copy of the letter which they sent 11 to Artaxerxes, the king; Thy servants, the men on this side the river, and at such a time. Be it known unto the king, that the 12 Jews who came from thee to us, are rebuilding the rebellious and the bad city Jerusalem; and having laid the foundations, are about to set up its wall. Be it known now 13 to the king, that if this city be rebuilt, and the walls restored, they will neither pay toll, tribute nor custom; and so the royal revenues will be injured. Now because we are sup- 14 ported from the palace; and it was not meet for us to see the king's dishonour, we have, therefore, sent to certify this to the king; That search may be made in the records of 15 thy fathers. And in those records thou wilt find, and know, that this city hath been a rebellious city, and injurious to kings and provinces; and that within it of old they moved continual seditions; for which cause was this city destroyed. We certify to the 16 king, that if this city be rebuilt, and its walls restored, thou wilt have no authority on this side the river.

Then sent the king an answer to Rehum, 17 the chancellor, and to Shimshai, the scribe, and to the rest of their companions who dwelt in Samaria, and others beyond the river, Peace, and at such a time. The letter 18 which ye sent to us hath been interpreted and read before me. And I commanded, 19 tian era, when he issued the decree in favour of the Jews. He reigned seven years, and was succeeded by Cambyses, who also reigned seven years and a few months. Smerdis, the magian, as the brother of Cambyses, usurped the throne, and reigned about seven months, on whose accession the following letter was sent.

7. I have omitted the last two words, as altogether incoherent; for how could it be that they would write a letter in the Syrian tongue, and interpret it in the Syrian tongue? Some propose to render, 'And the letter was written in the Syrian tongue, and in the Syrian character.' The sense of the words will not admit this version. I have, therefore, omitted them, on the authorities noticed. See note, Hebrew Bible.

11—16. There was some truth in this letter, although circumstances were disguised, to serve the purpose they had in view.

14. Supported from the] Literally, 'We are scattered with the salt of the palace.' It is allowed that this is idiomatical, and means support in any way. It is now common in the East Indies to say, 'I eat such a one's salt,' meaning, I am fed and supported by him. It is also used as a sign of friendship and hospitality.

and search hath been made, and it is found that this city of old time hath made insurrection against kings, and that rebellion and 20 sedition have been made in it; And that there have been powerful kings at Jerusalem, who ruled over all countries beyond the river; to whom toll, tribute, and custom, 21 were paid. Proclaim now the decree, that these men desist, and that this city be not rebuilt, until a decree be sent from me.
22 Take heed now, and fail not to do this; lest damage should occur to the kings.
23 Now when the copy of king Artaxerxes' letter was read before Rehum, and Shimshai the scribe, and their companions, they speedily went up to Jerusalem, unto the Jews, and by force and power made them
24 cease to build. Then ceased the work of the house of God at Jerusalem. So it ceased unto the second year of the reign of Darius, king of Persia.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 520. The building of the temple resumed, as the address of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah; the letter of Tatnai to Darius.

- 1 THEN the prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, the son of Iddo, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. And then rose up Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua, the son of Jozedek, and began to build the house of God at Jerusalem: and with them were the prophets of God helping them.
- 3 At that time came to them Tatnai, governor on this side the river, and Shetharboznai, and their companions, and said thus to them, Who hath commanded you to build this house, and to restore this wall?
- 4 They then spoke to them in this manner, What are the names of the men who are erecting this building? But the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews, so that they could not cause them to desist, until the decree of Darius should come. And they wrote a letter concerning this thing.
- 6 This is the copy of the letter which Tatnai, governor on this side the river, and Shetharboznai, and his companions the Apharsachites, who were on this side the river, sent 7 unto Darius, the king; They sent a letter to him, in which it was thus written; To 8 Darius the king, be all prosperity. Be it

CHAP. V. 1. Haggai] Read his prophecy, from which it appears, that the people had grown remiss, and were suffering by unfruitful seasons in consequence. On the death of Artaxerxes, they ought to have renewed the work; but from fear or some worse causes they remained inactive.

6—17. This letter is of a different kind from the one sent to Artaxerxes, and contains only a fair statement of facts. Tatnai was governor of the provinces subject to Persia, west known to the king, that we went into the province of Judea, to the house of the great God, which is building with great stones; and timber is laid on the walls, and this work goeth fast on, and prospereth in their hands. Then asked we those elders, and said to 9 them thus, Who commanded you to build this house, and to restore these walls? We 10 inquired also of them the names of their chiefs, that we might write and make them known to thee. And thus they answered, 11 saying, We are the servants of the God of the heavens and the earth, and are rebuilding the temple to him, which a great king of Israel, many years ago, built and completed. But after that our fathers had pro-

12 voked the God of the heavens unto wrath, he gave them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this house, and carried the people away unto Babylon. But in the 13 first year of Cyrus, the king of Babylon, king Cyrus made a decree to rebuild this house of God. And the utensils also of 14 gold and silver of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought into the temple of Babylon, those did Cyrus, the king, take out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered unto one, whose name was Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor; And 15 said to him, Take these utensils, go, carry them into the temple at Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt in its own place. Then came the same Sheshbazzar, and laid
16 the foundation of the house of God at Jerusalem: and since that time, even until now, hath it been in building, but is not yet finished. Now, therefore, if it seem good
17 to the king, let there be search made in the king's treasure-house, which is there at Babylon, whether it be so, that a decree was made by Cyrus, the king, to rebuild this house of God at Jerusalem, and let the king send his command concerning this matter.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 519. The decree of Darius; the temple finished; its dedication, &c.

THEN Darius, the king, made a decree, 1 that search should be made in the record-office, where the treasures were laid up in Babylon. At length there was found at 2 Achmetha, in the palace of the province of the Medes, a roll, and therein was a record of the Euphrates, comprehending Syria, Arabia deserta, Phœnicia, and Samaria. He was clearly a man of principle, and in his statement not influenced by prejudice, or hatred of the Jews.

CHAP. VI. 1—10. In Babylon] It appears that nothing being found there, they then searched the archives of the palace at Achmetha, or Ecbatana, where the decree of Cyrus was found. Darius confirmed this decree, and added grants,

- thus written: In the first year of Cyrus, the king: Cyrus, the king, made a decree concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, Let the house be rebuilt, the place where they offered sacrifices, and let its foundations be strongly laid; its height sixty cubits, and its breadth sixty cubits; With three rows of great stones, and a row of new timber: and let the expenses be given out of the king's house: And also let the golden and silver utensils of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought to Babylon, be restored, and carried back to the temple at Jerusalem, and place them in the house of God.
- Now, therefore, Tatnai, governor beyond the river, Shethar-boznai, and your companions, the Apharsachites, who are beyond the river, depart thence: Let the work of this house of God alone; let the governor of the Jews, and the elders of the Jews, build this house of God in its place.
- Moreover, I make a decree, that ye shall assist the elders of the Jews in building this house of God: from the king's treasure, from the tribute beyond the river, immediately let the expenses be given unto these men, that they be not hindered. Moreover, let there be given to them, daily without fail, whatever they need; steers, and rams, and lambs, for burnt-offerings, to the God of the heavens; wheat, salt, wine, and oil, according to the appointment of the priests who are at Jerusalem; That they may offer sacrifices of a sweet savour to the God of the heavens, and pray for the life of the king, and of his sons. Also I command, that whosoever shall alter this decree, let timber be pulled down from his own house, and being set up, let him be hanged thereon; and let his house become mire. And may the God who hath caused his name to dwell there, destroy all kings and people, who shall put to their hand to alter and to destroy this house of God, which is at Jerusalem. I Darius have made a decree; let it be done with speed.
- Then Tatnai, governor on this side the most probably out of respect to Cyrus, two of whose daughters he had married—Atossa, and Artiston, who was his chief favourite.

14. Artaxerxes is omitted as irreconcilable with the 4th chapter, where we are informed that he commanded them to desist from building, nor can the text refer to any other of the same name, as no other reigned between Cyrus and Darius.

16. With joy] Some suppose that the 146th, 147th, and 148th psalms were composed on this occasion, as in the Seventy they are called the psalms of Haggai: this is not unlikely, as they are suitable enough to it.

21. All such as] From this it appears, that many of the heathen inhabitants of Judea, witnessing the growing prosperity of the Jews, became proselytes, and submitted to the law of Moses.

22. King of Assyria] As the Babylonish kings reigned over both the ancient empire of Assyria and of that of Babylon, they are sometimes called kings of Assyria, and sometimes kings of Babylon.

river, Shethar-boznai, and their companions, according to what Darius, the king, had sent, so they did speedily. And the elders of the Jews builded, and they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai, the prophet, and Zechariah, the son of Iddo. And they builded, and finished it, according to the commandment of the God of Israel, and according to the commandment of Cyrus, and Darius, kings of Persia. And this house was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of Darius, the king.

And the Israelites, the priests, and the Levites, and others who had been captives, kept the dedication of this house of God with joy; And offered at the dedication of this house of God a hundred steers, two hundred rams, and four hundred lambs: and for a sin-offering for all Israel, twelve he-goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. And they appointed the priests in their divisions, and the Levites in their courses, for the service of God, at Jerusalem; as it is written in the book of Moses. And those who had been captives kept the passover upon the fourteenth day of the first month. For the priests and the Levites were purified together, all of them were pure, and killed the passover for those who had been captives, and for their brethren the priests, and for themselves. And the Israelites who had come out of captivity, and all such as had separated themselves from the uncleanness of the heathen land, that they might seek Jehovah, the God of Israel, ate. And kept the feast of unleavened bread seven days, with joy: for Jehovah had made them joyful, and turned the heart of the king of Assyria to them, to strengthen their hands in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 457. Ezra goeth to Jerusalem; his commission from Artaxerxes, &c.

Now after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes, king of Persia, Ezra, the grandson of Buzai, a Levite, a scribe of the law, came to Jerusalem, they are sometimes called kings of Assyria, and sometimes kings of Babylon.

CHAP. VII. 1. The reign of Artaxerxes] Prideaux has proved that this is the Artaxerxes called Longimanus by the Greek writers, the son and successor of the famed Xerxes. He was the Ahasuerus of Esther; and from whose influence, probably, he became the steady friend and protector of the Jews. He began his reign 464 years before Christ, about 71 years from the first year of Cyrus; so that as there were different periods in which the Jews were carried into captivity, there were also different restorations.—Ezra, the grandson of Seraiah] I have so rendered, because in 1 Chron. vi. 14, it is said that Seraiah begot Jozedek, who went into captivity; so that Ezra must have been his son. In this pedigree of Ezra, several names are omitted, according to the Jewish custom. See note, 1 Chron. i. and compare chap. vi. 3—15.

son of Seraiah, the son of Azariah, the son of Hilkiah, The son of Shallum, the son of Zadok, the son of Ahitub, The son of Amariah, the son of Azariah, the son of Meraioth, The son of Zerahiah, the son of Uzzi, the son of Bukki, The son of Abishua, the son of Phinehas, The son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, the chief priest; This Ezra went up from Babylon; and he was a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which Jehovah, the God of Israel, had given: and the king granted him all his request, according to the disposing hand of Jehovah, his God. And there went up some of the Israelites, and of the priests, and the Levites, and the singers, and the door-keepers, and the Nethinims, unto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes, the king. And he came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king. For on the first day of the first month, he set out from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, according to the good providence of his God towards him. For Ezra had prepared his heart to study and practise the law of Jehovah, and to teach Israel his statutes and judgments. Now this is the copy of the letter which the king Artaxerxes gave to Ezra, a priest and scribe; a scribe of the words of the commandments of Jehovah, and of his statutes to Israel. Artaxerxes, king of kings, to Ezra, the priest, a scribe of the law of the God of the heavens, all prosperity, and at such a time. I make a decree, that any of the people of Israel, and of the priests and Levites, in my realm, who are willing to go up to Jerusalem, go with thee. Forasmuch as thou art sent by the king, and his seven counsellors, to inquire in Judah and Jerusalem, concerning the law of thy God in which thou art conversant; And to carry the silver and gold, which the king and his counsellors have freely offered to the God of Israel, whose habitation is at Jerusalem; And all the silver and gold which thou canst obtain in all the province of Babylon, with the free-will offering of the people, and of the priests, to the house of their God at Jerusalem. With this money thou shalt speedily buy steers, rams, lambs, with their wheaten-offerings and their drink-offerings, and offer them upon the altar of the house of your God which is at Jerusalem. And whatsoever shall seem good to thee, and to thy brethren, to do with the remainder of the silver and gold, that do according to the will of your God. The 19 utensils also which are given to thee for the service of the house of thy God, those lay thou up before God at Jerusalem. And 20 whatsoever else may be needful for the house of thy God, which thou shalt have occasion to expend, thou shalt receive from the king's treasury. And I, Artaxerxes, the 21 king, do make a decree to all the treasurers who are beyond the river, that whatsoever Ezra, the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of the heavens, shall require of you, be done speedily. As far as a hundred talents 22 of silver, and to a hundred cores of wheat, and to a hundred baths of wine, and to a hundred baths of oil, and salt in any quantity. Whatsoever is commanded by the 23 God of the heavens, let it be diligently done for the house of the God of the heavens: for why should there be wrath against the realm of the king and his sons? We also 24 make known to you, that it shall not be lawful to impose toll, tribute, or custom, upon any of the priests, and Levites, singers, porters, Nethinims, or ministers of this house of God. And thou, Ezra, according to the 25 wisdom of thy God, which is in thee, appoint magistrates and judges, who may judge all the people who are beyond the river; all such as know the laws of thy God, and teach those who know them not. And whoso- 26 ever will not do the law of thy God, and the law of the king, let judgment be executed speedily upon him, whether by death or banishment, or confiscation of goods or imprisonment.

Blessed be Jehovah, the God of our fathers, who hath put it in the king's heart to beautify the house of Jehovah, which is at Jerusalem: And hath extended kindness 28 to me with the king, and his counsellors, and with all the king's valiant chiefs. Then I was encouraged, as the hand of Jehovah, my God, was with me, and I assembled the chiefs of Israel to go up with me.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 457. The names of those who accompanied Ezra; their journey, and their arrival at Jerusalem.

THESE are now the paternal chiefs, and 1 this is the account of those who went up with me from Babylon, in the reign of Artaxerxes, the king. Of the posterity of 2 Phinehas, Gershom: of the posterity of Ithamar, Daniel: of the posterity of David, Hattush. Of the posterity of Shecaniah, 3 * * *: of the posterity of Pharosh, Ze-to perfect the state of the Jews, and to maintain the honour of divine worship.—Seven counsellors] Or princes who enjoyed the chief offices in the government. We find their names, Esther i. 14; and see Pridesaux, An. 521, for their origin.

- chariah: and with him were reckoned by genealogy of the males, a hundred and fifty.
- 4 Of the posterity of Pahath-moab, Elihoenai, the son of Zersiah; and with him two hundred males. Of the posterity of Shecaniah, * * *, and son of Jahaziel; and with him
- 6 three hundred males. Of the posterity also of Adin, Ebed, the son of Jonathan; and
- 7 with him fifty males. And of the posterity of Elam, Jeshaiiah, the son of Athaliah; and
- 8 with him seventy males. And of the posterity of Shephatiah, Zebadiah, the son of
- 9 Michael; and with him eighty males. Of the posterity of Joab, Obadiah the son of Jehiel; and with him two hundred and
- 10 eighteen males. And of the posterity of Shelomith * * *, the son of Josiphiah; and with him a hundred and sixty males.
- 11 And of the posterity of Bebai, Zechariah, the son of Bebai; and with him twenty-
- 12 eight males. And of the posterity of Azgad, Johanan, the son of Hakkatan; and with
- 13 him a hundred and ten males. And of the later posterity of Adonikam, whose names are these, Eliphelet, Jeiel, and Shemaiah;
- 14 and with them sixty males. Of the posterity also of Bigvai, Uthai, and Zabbub; and with them seventy males.
- 15 And I assembled them at the river which runneth to Ahava; and there we abode in tents three days: and when I surveyed the people, and the priests, I found there none
- 16 of the sons of Levi. Then I sent for Eliezer, for Ariel, for Shemaiah, and for Nathan, and for Zechariah, and for Meshullam, chief men; also for Jarib, and for
- 17 Elnathan, men of understanding. And I sent them with commandment unto Iddo, chief of the place Casiphia, and I told them what they should say to Iddo, and to his brethren, the Nethinims, at the place of Casiphia, that they might bring to us ministers for the house of our God. And, by the kind disposal of our God towards us, they brought us a man of understanding, of the sons of Mahli, the son of Levi, the son of Israel; and Sherebiah, with his sons and
- 19 his brethren, eighteen; And Hashabiah, and with him Jeshaiiah of the sons of Merari, his brethren, and their sons, twenty;
- 20 Also of the Nethinims, whom David and the chiefs appointed for the service of the Levites, two hundred and twenty Nethinims; all of them were expressed by name.

Then I proclaimed a fast there, at the 21 river of Ahava, that we might afflict ourselves before our God, to seek from him a right way for ourselves, and for our little ones, and for all our substance. For I was 22 ashamed to ask of the king soldiers and horsemen to help us against the enemy on the way: because we had spoken to the king, saying, The hand of our God is with all those who seek him for good; but his power and his wrath are against all those who forsake him. So we fasted and besought 23 our God for this: and he was entreated of us.

Then I separated twelve of the chief of 24 the priests, Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and ten of their brethren with them, And weighed 25 to them the silver and the gold, and the utensils, the offering for the house of our God, which the king, and his counsellors, and his lords, and all Israel there present, had offered: I weighed to them six hundred 26 and fifty talents of silver, and of silver utensils a hundred talents, and of gold a hundred talents; Also twenty golden 27 basins, of a thousand darics; and two vessels of fine copper, precious as gold. And I said 28 to them, Ye are hallowed to Jehovah; the utensils are also hallowed; and the silver and the gold are a free-will-offering to Jehovah, the God of your fathers. Watch 29 and keep them, until ye weigh them before the chiefs of the priests and the Levites, and the paternal chiefs of Israel, at Jerusalem, in the chambers of the house of Jehovah. So the priests and the Levites received the 30 silver, and the gold, and the utensils, as weighed, to bring to Jerusalem, to the house of our God.

Then we departed from the river of Ahava 31 on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem: and the hand of our God was with us, and he delivered us from the enemy, who lay in wait by the way. And we came 32 to Jerusalem, and abode there three days.

Now, on the fourth day was the silver, 33 and the gold, and the utensils, weighed in the house of our God, by Meremoth, the son of Uriah, the priest; with whom was Eleazar, the son of Phinehas; and Jozabad, the son of Joshua, and Noadiah, the son of Binui, Levites. All were numbered and 34 weighed, and the whole weight was at the same time written down. And the exiles, 35 who had come out of captivity, offered burnt-

17. Casiphia] It is uncertain where this place was. Some suppose not far from the Caspian sea, but without any probability. It was somewhere in Babylonia.

22. I was ashamed] The journey was long, the treasure which they had with them considerable, and bands of lawless banditti infested the roads. Ezra, therefore, fasted, and sought the divine guidance and protection; and he and his company arrived safe at Jerusalem.

offerings to the God of Israel, twelve steers for all Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, twelve he-goats, for a sin-offering: all this was a burnt-offering to Jehovah.

- 36 And they delivered the king's commissions unto the king's lieutenants, and to the governors on this side the river: and they assisted the people, and the house of God.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 457. Ezra mourneth for the sin of the people and prayeth with confession.

- 1 Now when these things were done, the chiefs came to me, saying, The people of Israel and the priests, and the Levites, have not separated themselves from the people of these lands; doing according to the abominations of the Canaanites, the Hethites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites. For they have taken their daughters for themselves, and for their sons: so that the holy seed have mingled themselves with the people of these lands: yea the chiefs and rulers have been the principal
- 2 leaders in this trespass. And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment and my mantle, and plucked off the hair from my head and my beard, and sat down astonished. Then assembled unto me all those who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the transgression of the exiles; and I sat astonished until the evening sacrifice.
- 3 And at the evening sacrifice I arose from my heaviness; and having rent my garment and my mantle, I fell upon my knees, and spread out my hands to Jehovah, my God.
- 4 And said, O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift up my face to thee, my God: for our iniquities are increased over our head, and our great trespass reacheth the
- 5 heavens. From the days of our fathers, unto this day, we have greatly trespassed; and for our iniquities, have we, our kings, and our priests, been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, and to spoil, and to confusion of face, as it is this day. And now
- 6 for a short period Jehovah, our God, hath been gracious in leaving us an escaped remnant, and in giving us a fixed abode in his holy place; our God hath enlightened our eyes, and given us a little life in our bondage. For we were bondmen; yet in our 9 bondage our God hath not forsaken us; but hath inclined the kings of Persia to show us kindness; to preserve us, to raise up the house of our God, and to restore its ruins, and to give to us a fortified place in Judah and in Jerusalem. And now, O our 10 God, what shall we say after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments, Which 11 thou hast commanded by thy servants, the prophets, saying, The land which ye are going to possess, is an unclean land, through the uncleanness of the people of these countries; for with their abominable pollutions they have wholly filled it. Now, therefore, 12 give not your daughters to their sons, nor take their daughters to your sons, nor ever seek their peace or their prosperity; that ye may be strong, and eat the good of the land, and leave it for a perpetual inheritance to your children. And after all that is come 13 upon us for our evil deeds, and for our great trespass, (for thou our God hast punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and hast given us such deliverance as this;) Should 14 we again break thy commandments, and join in affinity with the people who commit these abominations, wouldst thou not be angry with us till thou hadst consumed us, so that none shall be left or escape? O Je- 15 hovah, the God of Israel, thou art gracious: for we this day are left a remnant escaped. Behold, we confess before thee our trespasses: for on account of these we cannot stand before thee.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 457. On the address of Ezra the people repent, and promise amendment.

Now when Ezra had prayed, and when 1 he had confessed, weeping and casting himself down before the house of God, there assembled to him out of Israel, a very great congregation of men and women, and children; for the people wept exceedingly. And Shecaniah, the son of Jehiel, of the 2 posterity of Elam, spoke and said to Ezra, We have trespassed against our God, and have taken foreign wives of the people of the land: yet now there is hope to Israel concerning this thing. Now, therefore, let 3 us make a covenant with our God, to put away all these women and their offspring, according to the counsel of my lord, and of CHAP. IX. 1, 2. The chiefs] That is, some of the most serious and pious; for many of them were the leaders in this crime.

3. Rent my garment] These were usual, but strong marks of grief and displeasure. He was astonished to find them again associating with idolaters, after having been so lately delivered from captivity, to which they had been reduced for their neglect of God's law, and their love of idols.

6—15. Nothing can exceed the propriety, beauty, and force of this prayer. It is the language of the heart; and contains all that could be expected in the circumstances in which it was uttered.

CHAP. X. 3. These women] This has been thought hard, if not unjust; but let it be remembered, first, that the law prohibiting these marriages is express, Deut. vii. 1. and secondly, that though they put them away as wives, those who tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. Arise; for this matter belongeth to thee: we will also assist thee: be of good courage, and do it. Then Ezra arose, and made the chief priests, the Levites, and all Israel, to swear that they would do according to this word. And they swore.

Then Ezra rose up from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Johanan, the son of Eliashib: and when he came thither, he ate no bread, nor drank water: for he mourned because of the transgression of those who had been carried away.

And they made proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem unto all the children of the captivity, that they should assemble at Jerusalem; And that whosoever should not come within three days, according to the counsel of the chiefs and the elders, all his substance should be forfeited, and himself separated from the congregation of those who had been carried away.

Then all the men of Judah and Benjamin assembled at Jerusalem within three days. It was the ninth month, and the twentieth day of the month; and all the people sat in the area of the house of God, trembling both on account of this thing, and on account of the heavy rain. And Ezra, the priest, stood up, and said to them, Ye have transgressed, and have taken foreign wives, to increase the trespass of Israel. Now, therefore, make confession to Jehovah, the God of your fathers, and do his will: and separate yourselves from the people of the land and from these foreign women. Then the whole congregation answered and said with a loud voice, As thou hast said, it is right for us to do. But the people are many, and it is a time of heavy rain, and we are not able to stand without, nor is this a work of one day or two: for we are many who have transgressed in this thing. Let now the chiefs of our whole congregation be appointed, and let all those who, in our cities, have taken foreign wives, come at fixed times, and with them the elders of every city, and the judges thereof, until the fierce wrath of our God for this matter be turned from us.

Only Jonathan, the son of Asahel and 15 Jahaziah, the son of Tikvah, were employed about this matter; and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite assisted them. And 16 those who had been captives did so. And Ezra, the priest, selected certain paternal chiefs who were all named, and they sat down on the first day of the tenth month, to examine the matter. And they made an 17 end with all the men that had taken foreign wives by the first day of the first month.

And among the sons of the priests, there 18 were found who had taken foreign wives: of the sons of Joshua, the son of Jozeдек, and his brethren; Maaseiah, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah. And they gave 19 their hands that they would put away their wives; and they offered a ram of the flock for their trespass. And of the posterity of 20 Immer; Hanani, and Zebadiah. And of 21 the posterity of Harim; Maaseiah, and Elijah, and Shemaiah, and Jehiel, and Uzziash. And of the posterity of Pashur; 22 Eliezer, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethaneel, Jozabad, and Elasa. Also of the Levites; 23 Jozabad, and Shimei, and Kelaiah, (the same is Kelita,) Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer. Of the singers also; Eliashib; 24 and of the door-keepers; Shallum, and Telem, and Uri. Moreover of Israel: of 25 the posterity of Parosh; Ramiah, and Jeziel, and Malchiah, and Miamin, and Eleazar, and Malchijah, and Benaiah. And 26 of the posterity of Elam; Mattaniah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, and Abdi, and Jeremoth, and Eliah. And of the posterity of 27 Zattu; Eliezer, Eliashib, Mattaniah, and Jeremoth, and Zabad, and Aziza. Of the 28 posterity also of Bebai; Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai. And of the 29 posterity of Bani; Meshullam, Malluch, and Adaiah, Jashub, and Sheal, and Ramoth. And of the posterity of Pahath-moab; Adna, 30 and Chelal, Benaiah, and Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezaleel, and Binnui, and Manasseh. And of the posterity of Harim; Eliezer, 31 Ishijah, Malchiah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah. Of 32 the posterity of Hashum; Mattenai, Mat-tathah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh, and Shimei. Of the posterity of Bani; 34

they were not prohibited, but bound to take care of them and their offspring. From the enforcement of this unpopular law, we have a strong argument, that the Mosaic institutions were restored as far as possible.

8. Separated] That is, should be deemed to have forfeited all his privileges as a Jew; should be excommunicated.

9. Ninth month] That is, some time in December, when the rains are violent, and it is very cold.

19. Gave their hands] Compare 2 Kings x. 15. and the note.

20. The following list shows that the priests, Levites, and leading men, were the chief offenders. We find no particular account how the affair was conducted. It seems probable, that if any of these foreign women would have embraced the Jewish religion and put away their idolatry, they might have been retained, except in the case of the priests, to whom such a liberty could not have been allowed: undoubtedly those who were sent away had a proper provision made for them. Shecaniah proposed putting away the children, but Ezra, in verse 2, says nothing about them. It is probable they were detained and instructed in the knowledge of the law. Had not this resolute step been taken, the purity of the Israelitish nation would have been soon and very greatly corrupted.

35 Maadai, Amram, and Uel, Binniah, Be-
 36 deiah, Chellub, Vaniah, Meremoth, Eliashib,
 37 Maltaniah, Mattenai, and Jaasau, And Bani, 39 and Binnui, Shimei, And Shelemiah, and 40 Nathun, and Adaiah, Machnadebai, Shashai,
 41 Sharai, Azareel, and Shelemiah, Shemariah,

Shallum, Amariah, and Joseph. Of the posterity of Nebo; Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jadau, and Joel, Benaiah. All 44 these had taken foreign wives: and of them they had begotten children.

NEHEMIAH.

INTRODUCTION.

This book was, by the Jews, considered the second part of Ezra, as being a continuation of it; and they were both regarded as one book. From internal evidence, it appears that Nehemiah wrote this account of his own commission and transactions; though there are some additions by a later hand. See note ch. xii. 22. Ezra was chiefly occupied in collecting the sacred writings, and, in connexion with the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, establishing the observance of the law; Nehemiah in restoring the civil polity, and fortifying Jerusalem. He was a man of prudence, fortitude, and courage; and in the face of great opposition, he accomplished his object; he was also a man of great piety, as his fervent ejaculations demonstrate. His book extends from the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, to the fifteenth of Darius Nohus according to Prideaux, that is, about thirty-five years. Others make it not more than thirty.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 446. Nehemiah, learning the state of Jerusalem, fasts and prays.

- 1 THE words of Nehemiah, the son of Hachaliah. And it came to pass in the month Chisleu, in the twentieth year, as I was in 2 Shushan, the palace, That Hanani, one of my brethren, came, and certain men of Judah; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the 3 captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said to me, The remnant who are left of the captivity there in the province are in great affliction and reproach; the walls of Jerusalem also remain broken down, and its gates burned with fire.
 4 And, when I heard these words, I sat down and wept, and mourned certain days, and fasted, and prayed to the God of the 5 heavens, And said, I beseech thee, O Jehovah, the God of the heavens, the great and terrible God, who keepest thy merciful covenant with those who love and observe thy 6 commandments; Let thine ear now be attentive, and thine eyes open, that thou mayest hear the prayer of thy servant, which I pray before thee now, day and night, for the Israelites, thy servants, and confess the sins which we Israelites have sinned against thee. Both I and my father's house 7 have sinned: We have dealt very corruptly against thee, and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes, nor the judgments, which thou commandest thy servant

 Moses. Remember, I beseech thee, the 8 word which thou didst command thy servant
 Moses, saying, If ye transgress, I will scatter you abroad among the nations; But if 9
 ye turn to me, and keep my commandments, and do them: should ye be dispersed to the remotest regions, yet thence will I gather you, and will bring you unto the place which I have chosen to put my name there. Now 10 these are thy servants and thy people, whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, and by thy strong hand. O Jehovah, I beseech 11 thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thine own children," who desire to fear thy name: and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant
 this day, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man. For I was the king's cupbearer.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 445. Nehemiah obtaineth a commission, and cometh to Jerusalem; vieweth the walls, &c.

AND in the month Nisan, in the twen- 1 tieth year of Artaxerxes, the king, when wine was before him, I took up the wine, and gave it to the king. Now I had not beforetime been sad in his presence. Where- 2 fore the king said to me, Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? this is nothing but sorrow of heart. Then I 3

CHAP. I. 1. Hachaliah] All the versions read Hitchiah or Hickiah, a name which often occurs.

3. Remain] The text cannot be understood in any other sense, than that the walls and gates remained in that state of ruin to which they had been reduced by Nebuchadnezzar. By supplying is in the common version, a sense remote from this, is suggested; as if the walls and gates had been restored, but again destroyed.

5. Merciful covenant] The sense is given, rather than the idiom. It is usual in the Hebrew for the latter of two nouns to be used adjectively. Compare Exod. xx. 6.

8, 9. Compare Levit. xxvi. 39. and Deuter. xxx. 4.

11. Thine own children] So the Sept., which prevents the tautology. For I was the] Many of the Jews were advanced to considerable posts in Babylon and Persia. This was wisely designed by Providence, that they might be of service to their brethren, both in Babylon and Judea. And it must have contributed to spread the knowledge of was greatly afraid. And I said to the king, Long live the king: why should not my countenance be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' sepulchres, lieth waste, and its gates are consumed with fire? Then the king said to me, For what dost thou make request? So having prayed to the God of the heavens, I said to the king, If it please the king, and if thy servant hath found favour in thy sight, I request that thou wouldst send me to Judea, to the city of my fathers' sepulchres, that I may rebuild it.

And the king said to me, (the queen also sitting by him,) How long will thy journey be? and when wilt thou return? So I stated the time, and it pleased the king to send me.

Moreover, I said to the king, If it please the king, let letters be given to me for the governors beyond the river, that they may permit me to pass on until I come into Judea; And a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give to me timber for the beams of the court-gates belonging to the temple, and for the wall of the city, and for the house which I shall inhabit. And the king granted me my request, according to the kind hand of my God towards me.

Then I came to the governors beyond the river, and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me. When Sanballat, the Horonite, and Tobiah, the Ammonite servant, heard that a man had come to seek the welfare of the Israelites, they were exceedingly vexed.

So I came to Jerusalem, and when I had been there three days, I arose in the night, I and some few men with me; for I had told no man what my God had put in my heart to do for Jerusalem: nor was there a beast with me, save that on which I rode. And I went out by night, by the gate of the valley, and went on opposite the dragon-well, to the dung-gate, and I viewed the demolished walls of Jerusalem, and the gates which had been consumed with fire. Then I passed on to the fountain-gate, and to the king's pool: but there was no place for the beast under me to pass. Then went I up in the night by the brook, and viewed the wall, and I came back by the gate of the valley, and so returned. And the rulers knew not whither I went, or what I did; for neither to the Jews, nor to the priests, nor to the nobles, nor to the rulers, nor to those over the work, had I told any thing.

Then said I to them, Ye see the distress in which we are, how Jerusalem lieth waste, and her gates are burned with fire: come, and let us build up the wall of Jerusalem, that we be no more a reproach. Then I told them of the kind hand of my God towards me; as also the words which the king had spoken to me. And they said, Let us arise, and build; and they encouraged one another in this good work. But when Sanballat, the Horonite, and Tobiah, the Ammonite servant, and Geshem, the Arabian, heard, they derided us, and in contempt, said to us. What is this thing that ye do? will ye rebel against the king? Then answered I them, and said to them, The God of the heavens, he will prosper us; therefore we, his servants, will arise and build: but ye have no portion, nor right, nor memorial, in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 445. The names and order of those who built the wall.

THEN Eliashib, the high-priest, arose with his brethren, the priests, and they builded the sheep-gate: they 'laid its beams,' and set up its doors; even from the tower of Meah, to the tower of Hananeel, they 'laid' its beams. And next to him builded the men of Jericho. And next to them builded Zaccur, the son of Imri. But the fish-gate the posterity of Hassenaah built, who also laid its beams, and fixed its doors, and its locks, and its bars. And next to them repaired Meremoth, the son of Urijah, the son of Koz. And next to them repaired Meshuillam, the son of Berechiah, the son of Meshezabeel. And next to them repaired Zadok, the son the true God extensively in the east, and might lead some to serve him.

CHAP. II. 3. I was greatly afraid] This arose from his anxiety, lest the request he was going to make should not be granted; or lest some should impute to him evil designs. He adopted the best method to obtain success, by praying to the God of the heavens, in whose hands are the hearts of kings.

5, 6. Rebuild it] The word also signifies to fortify; and this was included in his commission, as appears from what follows. The time] It is probable this was not for any long period, not exceeding a year. But if so, he received another order allowing him to remain until he had accomplished his object, as he continued governor during twelve years.

8. Court-gates] It is not probable that Nehemiah would talk of building a royal palace. The word בְּרִירָה, according to Castell, signifies not only a palace, but a citadel, camp, or metropolis. It seems here to be used for the walls and out-buildings belonging to the temple, which had not been rebuilt. Junius so renders.

10. Horonite] As Horonaim was a considerable city of Moab, (Is. xv. 5.) it has been justly supposed that he was a native of this city, and therefore a Moabite. Tobiah, the Ammonite servant] He had been a slave, but was raised to the government of some province.

13—15. Descending by the valley-gate, he proceeded south on the west-side of the city, until he came to the fountain-gate, that of Siloam or Gihon, and thence to the king's pool, where he was stopped, the road being impassable. This was the pool which Hezekiah made. 2 Chron. xxxii. 3, 30. Leaving the walls, he went on till he reached the valley of Jehoshaphat, and proceeded by the brook Kidron along the east and north parts of the city; thus going round the whole city.

CHAP. III. 1. They laid its beams] I have adopted the emendation of Houbigant, which is supported by the follow-

- 5 of Baana. And next to them the Tekoites repaired; but their nobles put not their 6 necks to the work of their lord. Moreover, the old-gate, Jehoiada, the son of Paseah, and Meshullam, the son of Besodeiah, repaired; they laid its beams and fixed its 7 doors, and its locks, and its bars. And next to them repaired Melatiah, the Gibeonite, and Jadon, the Meronothite, the men of Gibeon, and of Mizpeh, which belonged to the jurisdiction of the governor on this side
 8 the river. Next to him repaired Uzziel, the son of Harhiah, a goldsmith. Next to him also repaired Hananiah, an apothecary, and they fortified Jerusalem unto the broad wall.
 9 And next to them repaired Rephaiah, the son of Hur, the ruler of the half-part of Jerusalem, and others with him. And next to them repaired Jedaiah, the son of Harumaph, opposite to his own house. And next to him repaired Hattush, the son of Hashabiah. Malchijah, the son of Harim, and Hashub, the son of Pahath-Moab, repaired
 12 the other piece, and the furnace-tower. And next to him repaired Shallum, (together with his daughters,) the son of Halohesh, the ruler
 13 of the other half part of Jerusalem. The valley-gate repaired Hanun, and the inhabitants of Zanoah; they built it, and fixed its doors, its locks, and its bars, and a thousand cubits on the wall to the dung-gate.
 14 But the dung-gate repaired Malchiah, the son of Rechab, the ruler of part of Beth-haccerem; he built it, and fixed its doors, its locks, and its bars. But the fountain-gate repaired Shallun, the son of Col-hozeh, the ruler of part of Mizpeh; he built it and covered it, and set up its doors, and its locks, and its bars, and the wall of the pool of Siloah, by the king's garden, to the stairs that go down from the city of David.
 16 After him repaired Nehemiah, the son of Azbuk, the ruler of the half part of Bethzur, from the place opposite the sepulchres of David, to the pool that was made, and to the 17 house of the worthies. And after him repaired the Levites, Rehum, the son of Banu. Next to him repaired Hashabiah, the ruler 18 of the half-part of Keilah, in his part. After him repaired his brother, Bavai, the son of Henadad, the ruler of the other half-part of Keilah. And next to him repaired Ezer, the son of Joshua, the ruler of Mizpeh, another piece over against the ascent to the 20 armoury at the angle. After him Baruch, the son of Zabbai, diligently repaired the other piece, from the angle to the door of the house of Eliashib, the high priest. After him repaired Meremoth, the son of Urijah, the son of Koz, another piece, from the door of the house of Eliashib, even to the end of the house of Eliashib. And after him repaired the priests, the men of the plain of the Jordan. After them repaired Benjamin and Hashub over against their own houses. After them repaired Azariah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ananiah, by his own house. After him repaired Binnui, the son of Henadad, another piece, from the house of Azariah, to the angles. Palal, the son of Uzai, over against the angle, and the tower projecting from the king's high house, which was by the court of the prison. After him Pedaiah, the son of Parosh. Moreover, the Nethinims, the inhabitants, built Ophel, over against the water-gate towards the east, and the projecting tower. After them the Tekoites repaired another piece, over against the great projecting tower, even to the wall of Ophel. From above the horse-gate paired the priests, every one over against his own house. After them repaired Zadok, the son of Immer, over against his own house. After him repaired also Shemaiah, the son of Shecaniah, the keeper of the east-gate. After him repaired Hananiah, the son of Shelemiah, and Hanun, the sixth son of Zalaph, another piece. After them repaired Meshullam, the son of Berechiah, over against his own chamber. After him repaired Malchiah, the goldsmith's son, to the place of the Nethinims, and of the merchants, over against the gate Miphkad, and to the ascent at the angle. And between the ascent at the angle and of the sheep-gate repaired the goldsmiths and the merchants.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 445. While the enemies scoff, Nehemiah prayeth and setteth a watch.

BUT when Sanballat heard that we builded the wall, he was wroth and exceedingly vexed, and mocked the Jews. And he spoke to his brethren and the army of Samaria, and said, What do these feeble Jews? will they fortify themselves? shall they be permitted to sacrifice? will they complete their work in a day? will they restore the burnt stones out of the heaps of rubbish? Now Tobiah, the Ammonite, was by him, ing verses. The sense of the word sanctified in this connexion is wholly inapposite. See note Hebrew Bible.

5. Their lord] I think Nehemiah is meant, who, as governor, might be justly so called. Some, however, refer it to God, as being, in a peculiar sense, their Lord. This is a reflection on the indolence or indifference of these persons.

7. Which belonged] Literally, 'to the throne,' but this is used to denote power, jurisdiction; and the sense, I think, is what I have given.

8. A goldsmith] The Syriac reads as a proper name, the son of Zerephiah, but as the next is specified by his profession, I have adhered to the text.

CHAP. IV. 2. Will they fortify] The rising greatness of Judah excited the jealousy of these petty rulers; and they seem to have adopted every method in their power to

- and said, Were a jackal to go against the stone walls which they are building, he would break them down. Hear, O our God, how we are despised: and turn their reproach upon their own head, and give them for a prey in the land of their captivity! And cover not their iniquity, nor let their sin be blotted out before thee: for they have provoked to anger the builders. Yet we built the wall; and the whole wall as far as the half-part was joined together; for the heart of the people was engaged in the work.
- But when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were raised, and that the breaches began to be stopped, they then were very wroth; And all of them conspired together, to come to fight against Jerusalem, and to hinder the work. But we prayed to our God, and appointed a watch over the builders day and night, for fear of the enemy.
- And some of Judah said, The strength of the burden-bearers is decayed, and there is much rubbish; so that we are not able to complete the building of the wall. And our adversaries said, They shall not know, neither see, till we come among them, and slay them, and cause the work to cease.
- But the Jews who dwelt by them, came, and said to us often, From all places where they dwell, they will advance against us. I therefore stationed, on the lower cleared place behind the wall, the people according to their families, with their swords, their spears, and their bows. And having inspected and settled these things, I said to the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, Be not ye afraid of them; remember Jehovah, who is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, your wives, and your houses. But when our enemies heard that it was known to us, and that God had so brought their counsel to nought, we all of us returned to the wall, every one to his own work. And from that time forth, the half of my servants wrought at the work, and the other half of them held the spears, the shields, and the bows, and the habergeons; and the rulers were behind all the house of Judah. They who builded on the wall, and they that bore burdens with those that laded, each with one of his hands wrought at the work, and with the other held a weapon. For the builders, every one had his sword girded by his side, and so builded. And he that sounded the trumpet stood near to me. And I said to 19 the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, The work is great and large, and we are separated upon the wall, one far from another. In what place, therefore, 20 ye hear the sound of the trumpet, resort ye thither unto us: our God shall fight for us. So we laboured at the work: and half of 21 them held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared. Like- 22 wise at the same time said I to the people, Let every one with his servant lodge within Jerusalem, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and labour in the day. So 23 neither I, nor my brethren, nor my servants, nor the men of the guard who followed me; none of us put off our clothes for a full month."

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 445. Some complain of their debt, and Nehemiah redresseth their grievance.

Now these people and their wives complained greatly against their brethren, the Jews. For there were that said, We have many sons and daughters; whence shall we receive corn, that we may eat, and live? And some there were that said, We have mortgaged our lands, vineyards, and houses; whence shall we receive corn during the dearth? There were others that said, We have borrowed money on our lands and vineyards, to pay the king's tribute. Yet now our flesh is as the flesh of our brethren, our children as their children: and, lo, we must bring our sons and our daughters into bond-service; yea, some of our daughters are brought into bond-service, nor is it in our power to redeem them; for other men have our lands and vineyards.

And when I heard their complaints, I was very angry; And I consulted with myself, and I called to account the nobles, and the rulers, and said to them, Ye exact usury, every one of his brother. And I appointed a great assembly against them; And I said to them, We, according to our ability, have redeemed our brethren, the prevent their rebuilding and fortifying Jerusalem, but all their efforts were vain.

12. From all places] I have followed the text as corrected on the authority of the Septuagint. See note Hebrew Bible.

23. For a full month] The common text is wholly uncertain. The Sept. does not read the last two words. The Vulg. countenances the common version. The reading adopted shows how long their fear lasted, above one half of the time employed in the work. See ch. viii. 15.

CHAP. V. 1. The Jews] That is, the wealthy part of them; they availed themselves of the people's necessities, so as to obtain whatever they possessed.

5. Yet now our flesh] They plead for redress on the principle of humanity, on their natural regard to their offspring, whom they would be obliged to sell for bond-men.

7. A great assembly] Nehemiah called a large assembly, that they might support him in his measures.

Jews, who were sold to the heathen; and will ye again sell your brethren? and shall they be sold among ourselves? But they were silent, and made no reply. I then said, 'The thing ye do is not good: ought ye not to walk in the fear of our God, lest the heathen, our enemies, should reproach us? I likewise, and my brethren, and my servants, might exact of them money and corn: I pray you, let us leave off this usury. Restore, I pray you, to them, even this day, their lands, their vineyards, their oliveyards, and their houses; also some of the money, and of the corn, the wine, and the oil, that ye exact of them. Then said they, We will restore them, and will require nothing of them; so will we do as thou sayest. Then I called the priests, and took an oath of them, that they should do according to this promise. And I shook my lap, and said, So may God shake out every man from his house, and from his labour, that performeth not this promise; even thus may he be shaken out, and emptied. And all the congregation said, Amen, and praised Jehovah. And the people did according to this promise. Moreover, from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year, even unto the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes, the king, twelve years, I and my brethren have not eaten the bread of the governor. But the former governors were chargeable unto the people, and took of them bread and wine, besides forty shekels of silver a day; yea, even their servants bore rule over the people: but I did not thus, because I feared God. Yea, I also continued at the work of this wall, for we bought no fields; so that all my servants were gathered thither to the work. Moreover, at my table were a hundred and fifty of the Jews and rulers, besides those who came to us from the neighbouring nations. Now there was prepared for me daily, one ox and six choice sheep; also fowls were prepared for me, and once in ten days store of all sorts of wine: yet for all this I did not require the bread of the governor, because the bondage was heavy upon this people. Remember me, O my God, for good, according to all that I have done for this people.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 445. The methods which their enemies adopted to discourage them; Nehemiah's prudence and fortitude.

Now when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem, the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had builded the wall, and that there was no breach left therein; (though at that time I had not set up the doors of the gates): Sanballat and Geshem sent to me, saying, Come, let us meet together at Chephirim, in the plain of Ono. But they intended to do me mischief. And I sent messengers to them, saying, I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down; why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you? Yet they sent unto me in this manner four times; and in the same manner I answered them. Then Sanballat sent his servant to me in like manner, the fifth time, with an open letter in his hand. In which was written, It is reported among the nations, and Geshem affirmeth it, that thou and the Jews intend to rebel; therefore thou buildest the wall with this design, that thou mayest be their king. And thou hast also appointed prophets to preach of thee at Jerusalem, saying, There is a king in Judah: and now shall it be reported to the king according to these words. Come now, therefore, and let us take counsel together. Then I sent to him, saying, There are no such things done as thou sayest, but thou feignest them out of thine own heart. For they all made us afraid, saying, Their hands shall be weakened so that the work shall not be done; but this strengthened my hand the more. Then I went to the house of Shemaiah, the son of Delaiah, the son of Mehetabeel, who was shut up; and he said, Let us meet in the inner part of the house of God, and let us shut the doors of the temple: for they are coming to slay thee; yea, to night they are coming to slay thee. And I said, Should such a man as I flee? and who, like me, would go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in. And, lo, I perceived that God had not sent him; but that he pronounced this prophecy

13. Shook my lap] That is, the lap of his mantle; a very expressive action, as accompanied by the words he uttered; and which the people confirmed by their solemn Amen, which signifies, so be it.

15. I feared God] The noun seems used in the text instead of the verb. I have followed Vatable.

CHAP. VI. 2. Chephirim] I have followed the interlinear version, and many moderns, in considering the term as a proper name, and not as an appellative.

6. Geshem] So all the versions read; and there is no doubt but the same person is intended as is mentioned in the first verse. The design of this letter is apparent; it was to intimidate, by suggesting a spirit of rebellion, as the cause of his fortifying Jerusalem.

9. But this strengthened] This, setting aside the points, is the most obvious and literal version of the text. Their opposition strongly impressed his mind with the necessity of completing the defence of Jerusalem, that they might be more secure, and prosper.

10—13. These allies of Sanballat endeavoured, in one way or another, to obtain some ground for the pretence, that he was meditating revolt from the king of Persia; but his prudence and courage extricated him from every snare.

- against me, because Tobiah and Sanballat 13 had hired him. And he was hired, that I might be made afraid, and do so, and sin, and that they might have matter for an evil 14 report, that they might reproach me. Remember, O my God, Tobiah and Sanballat, according to these their works, and the prophetess Noadiah, and the rest of the prophets, who would have put me in fear.
 15 So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty-two days.
 16 And when all our enemies heard, and all the nations around saw, they were much cast down in their own eyes: for they perceived that this work was wrought through the aid of our God.
 17 Moreover, in those days, the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, and 18 many from Tobiah came unto them. For there were many in Judah sworn unto him, because he was the son-in-law of Sheca-niah, the son of Arah; and his son Johanan had taken to wife the daughter of Meshul-19 lam, the son of Berechiah. Also they reported his "words" to me, and my words they carried to him. And Tobiah sent letters to put me in fear.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 445. The charge of Jerusalem committed to Hanani and Hananiah, and the names of those who first returned.

- 1 Now, when the wall was built, and I had set up the doors, and the singers, and the 2 Levites were appointed gate-keepers. I gave to my brother Hanani, and Hananiah the ruler of the palace, charge over Jerusalem;
 for Hananiah was a faithful man, and feared
 3 God above many. And I said to them,
 Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened until the sun be hot; and while they stand by, let them shut the doors, and bar them:
 and appoint watches of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every one in his watch, and every 4 one to be over against his house. Now the city was large and great, but the people were few therein, and the houses were not builded.
 5 And my God put into my heart to assemble the nobles, and the rulers, and the people, that they might be reckoned by genealogy. And I found a genealogical register of those who came up at first, and 6 it was written therein, These are the children of the province, that went up out of the captivity, of those who had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had carried away unto Babylon, and came again unto Jerusalem and Judah, every one unto his city; Who came with Zerubba- 7

 bel, Joshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah,
 Mordecai, Bilshan, Mizpar, Bigvai, Rehum, Baanah. The number of the men of the people of Israel: The posterity of Parosh, 8 two thousand one hundred and seventy-two.
 The posterity of Shephatiah, three hundred 9 and seventy-two. The posterity of Arah, 10
 "seven hundred and seventy-five." The pos- 11
 terity of Pahath-moab, of the posterity of Joshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and "twelve." The posterity of Elam, a 12 thousand two hundred and fifty-four. The 13 posterity of Zattu, "nine" hundred and forty-five. The posterity of Zaccai, seven hun- 14 dred and sixty. The posterity of "Bani," 15 six hundred and forty-"two." The posterity 16 of Bebai, six hundred and twenty-"three."
 The posterity of Azgad, "a thousand two" 17

 Adonikam, six hundred and sixty-"six." The 19 posterity of Bigvai, two thousand and "fifty"- six. The posterity of Adin, "four" hundred 20 and fifty-four. The posterity of Ater of 21
 Hezekiah, ninety-eight. The posterity of 23
 Bezai, three hundred and twenty-"three."
 The posterity of "Jorah," a hundred and 24 twelve. The posterity of Hashum, two hun- 22 dred and twenty-"three." The posterity 25 of Gibeon, ninety-five. The people of 26
 Bethlehem, a hundred and twenty-three.
 The people of Netophah, fifty-six. The 27 people of Anathoth, a hundred and twenty-eight. The people of Beth-azmaveth, forty- 28
 two. The people of Kirjath-jearim, Chephi- 29 rah, and Beeroth, seven hundred and forty-three. The people of Ramah and Gaba, 30 six hundred and twenty-one. The people 31 of Michmas, a hundred and twenty-two.
 The people of Beth-el and Ai, "two" hundred 32 and twenty-three. The people of Nebo, 33 fifty-two. "The people of Magbish, a hundred and fifty-six." The people of Elamar, 34 a thousand two hundred and fifty-four.
 The people of Harim, three hundred and 35 twenty. The people of Lod, Hadid and 37
 Ono, seven hundred and twenty-five. The 36 people of Jericho, three hundred and forty-five. The people of Senaah, three thousand 38
 "six" hundred and thirty.

The priests: the posterity of Jedaiah of 39
 the house of Joshua, nine hundred and seventy-three. The posterity of Immer, a 40 thousand and fifty-two. The posterity of 41

19. His words to me] This reading seems preferable to the reading of the text, in the opinion of the learned Hallett, one part of the sentence being probably designed to answer to the other, and both referring to the letters above mentioned between Tobiah and the nobles, who informed Nehemiah of what Tobiah said, and what Nehemiah said was by these means carried to Tobiah.

CHAP. VII. 6. Compare Ezra ii. 1, to the end, and the notes, of which this is only another copy. Which of the two copies may approximate nearest the truth, it is impossible to say; but it is a happy circumstance, that to us it is of no importance. The mistakes which occur do not affect doctrinal truth.

Pashur, a thousand two hundred and forty-42 seven. The posterity of Harim, a thousand and seventeen.
 43 The Levites: the posterity of Joshua, and Kadmiel, sprung from Hodaviah, seventy four.
 44 The singers: the posterity of Asaph, a hundred and "twenty"-eight.
 45 The porters: the posterity of Shallum, of Ater, of Talmon, of Akkub, of Hatita, of Shobai, in all a hundred and thirty-"nine."
 46 The Nethinims: the posterity of Ziha, of 47 Hasupha, of Tabbaoth, Of Keros, of Siah,
 48 of Padon, Of Lebanah, of Hagabah, of Ak-49 kub, of Hagab, of Shalmai, Of Hanan, of 50 Giddel, of Gahar, Of Reaiah, of Rezin, of 51 Nekoda, Of Gazzam, of Uzza, of Paseah, Of 52 Besai, of Asnah, of Mehunim, of Nephusim,
 53 Of Bakbuk, of Hakupha, of Harhur, Of Baz-
 54 luth, of Mehida, of Harsha, Of Barkos, of 55 Sisera, of Thamah, Of Nezhiah, and of Ha-tipha.
 57 The posterity of Solomon's servants:
 the posterity of Sotai, of Sophereth, of Pe-58 ruda, Of Jaalah, of Darkon, of Giddel, Of 59 Shephatiah, of Hattil, of Pokereth, of Ze-60 baim, of Ami. All the Nethinims, and the posterity of Solomon's servants were three 61 hundred and ninety-two. And these were they who went up from Telmelah, Tel-harsa, Cherub, Addan, and Immer: but they could not show their father's house, and their seed, 62 whether they were of Israel: The posterity of Delaiah, of Tobiah, of Nekoda, six hundred and "fifty"-two.
 63 And of the posterity of the priests: the posterity of Habaiah, of Koz, of Barzillai, who took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai, the Gileadite, and was called after their 64 name: These sought their register among those who were reckoned by genealogy, but they were not found: therefore were they, 65 as polluted, put from the priesthood. And the governor said to them, that they should not eat of the most holy things, till there stood up a priest with Urim and with Thum-mim.
 66 The whole congregation together was forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty, 67 Besides their servants, and their maids, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven: and there were among them two hundred "singing-men and singing 68 women. Their horses were seven hundred and thirty-six; their mules, two hundred 69 and forty-five; Their camels, four hundred and thirty-five; their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.
 70 And some of the paternal chiefs gave unto the work. The governor gave to the treasure, a thousand darics of gold, fifty basins, five hundred and thirty priests' garments. And some of the paternal chiefs 71 gave to the treasure of the work, twenty thousand darics of gold, and two thousand two hundred mina of silver. And that 72 which the rest of the people gave, was twenty thousand darics of gold, and two thousand mina of silver, and sixty-seven priests' garments.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 445. *The manner of reading and hearing the law;
 they keep the feast of booths.*

Now the priests, and the Levites, and 73 the door-keepers, and the singers, and the people, and the Nethinims, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities; but when the seventh month came, the children of Israel who were in their cities, Even all the people, as- 1 sembled as one man, in the street before the water-gate; and they spoke to Ezra, the scribe, to bring the book of the law of Moses, which Jehovah had commanded to 2 Israel. And Ezra, the priest, brought the law, before the congregation both of men and women, and all that could hear with understanding, upon the first day of the seventh month. And he read therein, in 3 the street before the water-gate, from the morning until mid-day, before the men and the women, and those that could understand;
 and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law. And Ezra, the 4 scribe, stood upon a pulpit of wood, which they had made for the purpose; and beside him, on his right hand, stood Mattithiah, and Shema, and Ananiah, and Urijah, and Hilkiah, and Maaseiah; and on his left hand,
 Pedaiah, and Mishael, and Malchiah, and Hashum, and Hashbadana, Zechariah, and Meshullam. And Ezra opened the book in 5 the sight of all the people; (for he was above all the people;) and when he opened it, all the people stood up: And Ezra 6 blessed Jehovah, the great God. And all the people with uplifted hands, answered,
 Amen, amen: and they bowed their heads, and worshipped Jehovah with their faces to the ground. Also, Joshua, and Bani, and 7 Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Ho-
 dijah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites, caused the people to understand the law: and the people stood in their place. So they read in 8 the book of the law of God, distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Ezra, the scribe] After the term of his commission had ceased, he is thought to have employed 478 himself in collecting the sacred books, and is now called on to read the law to the people.

- 9 And Nehemiah, the governor, and Ezra, the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people, said to all the people, This day is holy to Jehovah, your God; mourn not, nor weep. For all the people wept, when they heard the words of the law. Then he said to them, Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy to our Lord. Grieve not, but let joy from Jehovah excite your praise. Thus the Levites stilled all the people, saying, Be silent, for the day is holy; nor be ye grieved. And all the people went away to eat, and to drink, and to send portions, and to rejoice exceedingly, because they understood the things which were declared to them.
- 13 And on the second day were assembled the paternal chiefs of the whole people, the priests, and the Levites, unto Ezra, the scribe, that they might understand the words of the law. And they found written in the law which Jehovah had commanded by Moses, that the Israelites should dwell in booths at the feast of the seventh month.
- 15 And when they heard this, they made a proclamation in all their cities, and in Jerusalem, saying, Go forth to the mount, and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches, and branches of thick trees, to make booths, according to what is written. And the people went forth, and brought them, and made for themselves booths, some on their house-roofs, some in their courts, some in the courts of the house of God, some in the street of the water-gate, and some in the street of the gate of Ephraim. And the whole congregation of those who had come out of the captivity, made booths, and sat under the booths, for since the days of Joshua, the son of Nun, unto that day, had not the children of Israel done so. And there was very great gladness. Also day by day from the first day unto the last day, the book of the law of God was read. And they kept the feast seven days; and on the eight day was a solemn assembly, according to the rite.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 445. A solemn fast; the humiliation of the priests and Levites; the covenant made to keep the law.

Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month, the Israelites were assembled with fasting, and with sackcloths and earth upon them. And the seed of Israel separated themselves from all strangers, and stood and confessed their sins, and the iniquities of their fathers. And they stood up in their place, and the book of the law of Jehovah, their God, was read one fourth part of the day; and another fourth part they confessed, and worshipped Jehovah, their God.

Then the Levites, Joshua, and Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani, stood upon the platform, and cried with a loud voice to Jehovah, their God. And the Levites, Joshua, and Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabniah, Sherebiah, Hodijah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, Stand up and bless Jehovah, your God, for ever and ever: and blessed be thy glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise. Thou, thou alone, art Jehovah; thou hast made the highest heavens, with all their host, the earth, and all things that are therein, the seas and all that is therein, and thou preservest them all; and the host of heaven worshippeth thee. Thou, Jehovah, art God, who didst choose Abram, and didst bring him out of Ur, of the Chaldees, and give him the name of Abraham; and didst find his heart faithful before thee, and didst make a covenant with him, to give the land of the Canaanites, the Hethites, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Jebusites, and the Girgasites; to give the land of Canaan to his seed, and hast performed thy words; for thou art righteous: And didst see the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and didst hear their cry at the Red Sea; And didst show signs and wonders upon Pharaoh, and on all his servants, and

8. Gave the sense] Or translated it into the Chaldean tongue, which the people now spoke.

10. Grieve not, but let] The context justifies the sense given to מְנוּחָה. They were now thankfully to recollect the favours which God had recently conferred. These, called joy from Jehovah, were to be the theme of their praises.

14. Dwell in booths] Compare Levit. xxiii. 34.

15—17. This feast was kept in this manner in after times; and it is probable that it was so kept formerly. We are not to suppose that this feast had never been kept with such joy. They then rejoiced because God had given them the land of Canaan; and they now rejoiced that he had reversed their captivity, and once more peaceably settled them in the good land of their fathers. (v) Syr. MSS.

18. Law of God was read] Henceforth, the leading men took care that the law should be constantly read among the people; for it was ordered that in every town synagogues should be built, where certain prayers should be presented to God, and portions of his word read and explained to the people. This wise regulation prevented the people relapsing into the idolatry of their fathers.

CHAP. IX. 1. With fasting] They had observed the feast of tabernacles; and having heard the law read, were so humbled under a sense of their breach of it, that they piously set apart this twenty-fourth day as an extraordinary fast.

3. Fourth part of the day] That is, for three hours; and then made solemn confession of their sins for other three hours.

5. Stand up and bless] Probably the whole multitude was divided into many congregations, with a Levite or two to preside over each. Then follow the heads or particulars of their prayer, which the Levites enlarged upon, or else it would not have taken up so much time.

on all the people of his land : for thou didst know that they dealt proudly against them. So didst thou get for thyself a name, as it is 11 this day. And thou didst divide the sea before them, so that they went through the midst of the sea on dry land ; and their persecutors thou didst throw into the depths, as
 12 a stone into the mighty waters. Moreover, thou didst lead them on the day, by a cloudy pillar ; and during the night by a pillar of fire, to give them light in the way in which 13 they should go. Thou didst come down also upon mount Sinai, and didst speak with them from the heavens, and didst give them right judgments, and true laws, good statutes and commandments ; And didst make 14 known to them thy holy sabbath, and didst command them precepts, statutes, and laws, by the hand of Moses, thy servant : And
 15 didst give them bread from the heavens for their hunger, and didst bring water for them out of the rock for their thirst ; and didst command them to go and possess the land
 16 which thou hadst sworn to give them. But they, our fathers, dealt proudly, and hardened their necks, and hearkened not to thy 17 commandments ; And refused to obey, neither were mindful of thy wonders which thou didst among them ; but hardened their necks, and appointed a captain to return to their bondage "in Egypt ;" but thou being a
 18 God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, didst not forsake them. Yea, when they had made for themselves a molten calf, and said, This is thy God who brought thee up out of Egypt, and had wrought great provocations ;
 19 Yet thou, in thy manifold mercies, didst not forsake them in the wilderness : the pillar of cloud departed not from them by day, to lead them in the way ; nor the pillar of fire by night, to show them light, and the way in
 20 which they should go. Thou didst give also thy good spirit to instruct them, and didst not withhold thy manna from their mouth ; thou also didst give to them water for their
 21 thirst. Yea, forty years didst thou sustain them in the wilderness, so that they wanted nothing ; their clothes were not worn out, and their feet swelled not. Moreover, thou
 22 didst give to them the kingdoms of the nations which thou didst wholly divide among them. They possessed the land of Sihon, king of Heshbon, and the land of Og, king 23 of Bashan. Their children also thou didst multiply as the stars of the heavens, and didst bring them into the land, concerning which thou hadst promised to their fathers, that they should go in to possess it. So the 24 children went in and possessed the land, and thou didst subdue before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and didst give them into their hands, with their kings, and the people of the land, that they might do with them as they would. And 25 they took strong cities, and a fat land, and possessed houses full of all good things, wells digged, vineyards, and oliveyards, and fruit trees in abundance. And they ate, and were filled, and became fat, and delighted themselves in thy great bounty. But they were 26 disobedient, and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their backs, and slew thy prophets who testified against them to turn them to thee, and they wrought great provocations. Therefore thou didst deliver 27 them into the hand of their enemies, who vexed them : yet, when ; in the time of their trouble, they cried unto thee, thou didst hear them from the heavens ; and according to thy manifold mercies, thou didst give them saviours, who saved them from the hand of their enemies. But after they had rest, they 28 did evil again before thee : therefore didst thou leave them in the hand of their enemies, so that they had dominion over them : yet when they returned, and cried to thee, thou didst hear them from the heavens ; and many times, according to thy mercy, didst thou deliver them. And thou didst 29 testify against them, that thou mightest bring them back to thy law : yet they dealt proudly, and hearkened not to thy commandments, but sinned against thy judgments, which if a man do, by them he shall live. Rebellious they turned their back, and hardened their neck, and would not hearken. Yet many years didst thou bear with them, 30 and didst testify against them by thy spirit in thy prophets ; and when they would not give ear, then thou didst give them into the hand of the people of these countries. Ne- 31 vertheless, for thy great mercy's sake, thou didst not utterly consume them, nor forsake them ; for thou art a gracious and merciful God. Now, therefore, O our God, the 32 great, the mighty, and the terrible God, who keepest thy merciful covenant, let not all the calamity seem little to thee, which hath come on us ; on our kings, on our princes, and on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people, since the time of the kings of Assyria unto this day. Thou, indeed, art just in all that 33

17. In Egypt] The common reading is now justly thought erroneous ; a letter having been omitted. The Greek version and 1 MS. have preserved the true reading.

22. Wholly divide] Even its remote corners. I have given the sense, and omitted the two words which have been repeated by the mistake of some transcriber.

27. Saviours] That is, the judges, whom God raised up on various occasions, to save them from the hand of their enemies.

hath come upon us; for thou hast done
 34 right, but we have done wickedly. For our kings, our princes, our priests, and our fathers, have not kept thy law, nor hearkened to thy commandments and thy testimonies, which 35 thou didst impart to them. For in "thine" own kingdom, which in thy great goodness thou didst give to them; and in the large and fat land which thou didst give before them, they did not serve thee, nor turn from 36 their wicked works. Behold, we are this day servants in the land which thou didst give to our fathers, that they might eat of its most excellent fruits; behold, in it we 37 are servants. And its abundant increase we are obliged to give to the kings whom thou hast set over us, because of our sins; also they have dominion over our bodies, and over our cattle, according to their own will; and we are in great distress.

38 Now after all these things, we made a firm covenant which we wrote, and which
 1 our chiefs, Levites, and priests, sealed. And those who sealed were Nehemiah, the son of Hachaliah, the governor, and Zidkijah,
 2 Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, Pashur, Ama-
 3 riah, Malchijah, Hattush, Shebaniah, Mal-
 4 luch, Harin, Meremoth, Obadiah, Daniel,
 5 Ginnethon, Baruch, Meshullam, Abijah,
 6 Mijamim, Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah: these 7 were the priests. And the Levites were 8 Joshua, the son of Azaniah, Binnui, of the 9 sons of Henadad, Kadmiel; And their bre-
 10 thren, Shebaniah, Hodijah, Kelita, Pelaiah,
 11 Hanan, Micha, Rehob, Hashabiah, Zaccur,
 12 Sherebiah, Shebaniah, Hodijah, Bani, Ben-
 13 ninu. The chief of the people were Parosh,
 14 Pahath-moab, Elam, Zathu, Bani, Bunni,
 15 Azgad, Bebai, Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin,
 16 Ater, Hizkijah, Azzur, Hodijah, Hashum,
 17 Bezai, Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai, Magpiash,
 18 Meshullam, Hezir, Meshezabeel, Zadok,
 19 Jaddua, Pelatiah, Hanan, Ananiah, Hoshea, 20 Hananiah, Hashub, Halloheshe, Pileha, Shobek, Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah, And 21 Ahijah, Hanan, Anan, Malluch, Harim, Baanah.

22 And the rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the gate-keepers, the singers,

35. In thine own kingdom] How much more perspicuous is this reading than the text! Three versions out of four support it.

36, 37. These concluding verses show their afflicted state. The king had power to employ them in his works or wars; had power to demand their tribute in cattle, or order them to be employed about his works; they were now tenants to the king of Persia, whereas formerly they held their land under God alone.

CHAP. X. 29. Here they solemnly engage to observe the whole law; and in what follows, they specify some particulars, in which they had lately offended, and to which they seemed but too much inclined: 1st. That they would not intermarry with the people of the land; 2dly, That they would keep holy the sabbath, not buying or selling on the Nethinims, and all they that had separated themselves from the people of the lands to the law of God; their wives, their sons, and their daughters, every one having knowledge, and having understanding; They adhered to their brethren, the nobles, 29 and bound themselves by oath under a curse, to walk according to God's law, (which was given by Moses, the servant of God,) and to observe and do all the commandments of Jehovah our Lord, and his judgments and his statutes; And that we 30 would not give our daughters to the people of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons; And if the people of the land should 31 bring ware or any victuals on the sabbath-day to sell, that we would not buy it of them on the sabbath, or other holy day: and that we would not cultivate the land on the seventh year, nor exact any debt. Also we 32 made ordinances for ourselves, that we would give, yearly, the third part of a shekel, for the service of the house of our God; For 33 the presence-bread, and for the continual wheat-offering, and for the continual burnt-offering, of the sabbaths, of the new moons; for the stated feasts, and for the holy things and for the sin-offerings, to make an atonement for Israel, and for all the work of the house of our God. And we cast lots respect- 34 ing the oblation of wood among the priests, the Levites, and the people, that it might be brought to the house of our God, by each family, at appointed times yearly, to burn upon the altar of Jehovah, our God, as it is written in the law. Also we engaged to 35 bring the first-fruits of our ground, and the first-fruits of all the fruit-trees, yearly, unto the house of Jehovah: And the first-born of 36 our sons, and of our cattle, as it is written in the law; the firstlings of our herds and of our flocks, to bring to the house of our God, to the priests, who minister in the house of our God. And likewise, that we would 37 bring the first of our dough, and our offerings, of the fruit of all manner of trees, of wine, and of oil, to the priests, to the chambers of the house of our God; and the tithes of our ground, through all our agricultural

32. The third part of] This was a poll-tax paid by every Israelite, whether residing in Judea or any other country, and continued to be paid as long as the temple stood. They had the example of some of their best kings for such an ordinance. Compare 2 Chron. xxiv. 5.

34. To burn] Compare Levit. vi. 12.

cities, to the Levites, who, in their turn, 39 might give tithes to the priests. And the priest, the son of Aaron, shall be with the Levites, when the Levites take tithes: and the Levites shall bring up the tithe of the tithes to the house of our God, to the chambers, 39 into the treasure-house. For the children of Israel and the children of Levi shall bring the offering of the corn, of the new wine, and the oil, to the chambers, where are the vessels of the sanctuary, and the priests who minister, and the door-keepers, and the singers; and we will not forsake the house of our God.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 445. The rulers, the voluntary men, and every tenth man chosen by lot, dwell at Jerusalem, and their names, &c.

- 1 AND the rulers of the people dwell at Jerusalem; the rest of the people also cast lots, to bring one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem, the holy city, and nine parts to
- 2 dwell in other cities. And the people blessed all the men, who willingly offered themselves to dwell at Jerusalem.
- 3 Now these are the chiefs of the province who dwell in Jerusalem: for in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of Israel, dwelt every one in his possession; the priests, and the Levites, and the Nethinims, and the children of Solomon's servants. Now at Jerusalem dwell some of the children of Judah,
- 4 and of the children of Benjamin. Of the posterity of Judah; Athathiah of the posterity of Pharez, by Uziah, the son of Zechariah, the son of Amariah, the son of Shephatiah, the son of Mahalaleel; And Maaseiah, the son of Baruch, the son of Col-hozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zechariah, the son of Shiloui. All the posterity of Pharez who dwell at Jerusalem, were four hundred and
- 7 sixty-eight valiant men. And these are the posterity of Benjamin; Sallu, the son of Meshullam, the son of Joed, the son of Pedaiiah, the son of Kolaiah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Isaiah.
- 8 And after him, Gabbai, Sallai, nine hundred and twenty-eight. And Joel, the son of 9 Zichri, was their overseer; and Judah, the son of Senuah, was second over the city. Of the priests: Jedaiah, Joiarib, Jachin, 10 Seraiah, the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, the ruler of the house of God. And their brethren who did 12 the service of the sanctuary, were eight hundred and twenty-two: and Adaiah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchiah, and his brethren, 13 paternal chiefs, two hundred and forty-two: and Amashai, the son of Azareel, the son of Ahasai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer, and their brethren, men of valour, a 14 hundred and twenty-eight: and their overseer was Zabdiel, the son of Hagdolim. Also of the Levites: Shemaiah, the son of 15 Hashub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Bunni; And Shabbethai, and Jozabad, chiefs of the Levites, had the oversight of the outward business of the house of God. And Mattaniah, the son of 17 Micha, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph, was the chief leader in thanksgiving and prayer; and Bakbukiah, the second among his brethren, then Abda, the son of Shammua, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun. All the 18 Levites in the holy city were two hundred and eighty-four. Moreover, the gate-keepers, 19 Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren, who kept the gates, were a hundred and seventy-two.

And the residue of Israel, of the priests, 20 and the Levites, were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance. But 21 the Nethinims dwelt in Ophel: and Ziha, and Gispah, were over the Nethinims. The 22 overseer also of the Levites at Jerusalem, as to the business of the house of God, was Uzzi, the son of Bani, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Micha, of the sons of Asaph, the singers. For by the king's command, a certain portion was allowed daily for the singers. And Pethahiah, the son of 24 Me-shezebeel, of the posterity of Zerah, the son of Judah, was, by the king's authority, over

CHAP. XI. 1. Michaelis conjectured, that Nehemiah borrowed from the writings of Ezra what is contained from ch. vii. 6. to the beginning of this; and to him Dathe assents. I think there are objections to this hypothesis which cannot easily be removed. First, The date of the different commissions which they received, the one in the 5th, the other in the 20th year of Artaxerxes. Secondly, the express mention of Nehemiah as Tersathra or governor, ch. viii. 9, which he could not be until the commission of Ezra expired, and he had received his own. Thirdly, the solemn covenant now made, he, as governor, was the first that sealed, ch. x. 1. I conceive then that the catalogue included all that is borrowed from Ezra, and what follows to have occurred during Nehemiah's superintendence of the Jewish state. The walls of Jerusalem being built, Nehemiah seems to have gone to the Persian court, as he appointed a deputy to govern, vii. 2; on his return, considering the inhabitants of Jerusalem few, he devised the plan of increasing them. In the mean time, Ezra having completed his revision of the law, and the feast of the seventh month occurring, what is related in the 8th, 9th, and 10th chapters took place. Nehemiah then took occasion to fulfil his design, and ordered the rulers to reside at Jerusalem; others willingly came to dwell there; and every tenth man was chosen by lot, whose names follow.

3. Of the province Judea was now made a province of the Persian empire. That some of the ten tribes returned is evident, but the priests and Levites had cities in the land of Israel, as distinguished from Judah, as we learn from Joshua, and in these they again dwelt. (v) Sept. Syr.

10. Jedaiah The parallel place justifies the omission of son of. See note Hebrew Bible.

12. The sanctuary I have thus rendered בית here, which sense it has in other places; and because the place of their service is opposed to that of the Levites whose service was chiefly in the court, called the outward service in the 16th verse.

25 all matters respecting the people. And many of the Jews dwelt in the villages, in their own lands at Kirjath-arba, and its villages, and at Dibon, and its villages, and at Jekabzeel, and its villages; 26 And at Jeshua, and at Molahah, and at 27 Beth-pheret, And at Hashur-shual, and at 28 Beer-sheba, and its villages; And at Ziklag, 29 and at Mekonah, and its villages; And at En-rimmon, and at Zareah, and at Jar- 30 muth, Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages; at Lachish, and its fields; at Azekah, and its villages. And they dwelt from Beer- 31 sheba unto the valley of Hinnom. The children also of Benjamin, from Geba, Michmash, and Aija, and Bethel, and their 32 villages; And at Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, 33 Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, Hadid, Zeboim, 34 Neballat, Lod, and Ono, the valley of Charasim. And of the classes of the Levites, some dwelt in Judah, and some in Benjamin. 1 Now these are the priests and the Levites who came up with Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua: Seraiah, Jeremiah, 2 Ezra, Amariah, Malluch, Hattush, Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth, Iddo, Ginnetho, 3 Abijah, Miamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, Shemaiah, and Joiarib, Jedaiah, Sallu, Amok, 4 Hilkiah, Jedaiah. These were the chiefs of the priests, and of their brethren, in the 5 days of Joshua. Moreover, the Levites: Joshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah, who, with his own brethren, was the leader in the praises of the temple, 6 And Bakkukiah and Unni, their brethren, superintended the watches. 7 And Joshua begot Joiakim, and Joiakim begot Eliashib, and Eliashib begot Joiada, 8 And Joiada begot Jonathan, and Jonathan begot Jaddua. And in the days of Joiakim, the paternal chiefs of the priests were: 9 from Seraiah, Meraiah; from Jeremiah, Hananiah; from Ezra, Meshullam; from 10 Amariah, Jehohanan; from Melicu, Jonathan; from Shebaniah, Joseph; from 11 Haram, Adna; from Meraioth, Helkai; 12 From Iddo, Zechariah; from Ginnethon, Meshullam; from Abijah, Zichri; from 13 Minianim. * * *; from Moadiah, Piltai; 14 From Bilgah, Shammua; from Shemaiah, Jehonathan; And from Joiarib, Mattenai; 15 from Jedaiah, Uzzi; From Sallai, Kallai; 16 from Amok, Eber; From Hilkiah, Hashabiah; from Jedaiah, Nethaneel. 17 The Levites recorded, in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, and Johanan, and Jaddua, paternal chiefs, were * * *: also the priests, to the reign of Darius, the Persian, were * * *. The sons of Levi, the paternal chiefs, were written in the chronicles, even until the days of Johanan, the son of Eliashib. And the chiefs of the Levites: 24 Hashabiah, Sherchiah, and Joshua, the son of Kadmiel, with their brethren, were appointed to praise and give thanks, according to the command of David, the man of God, in alternate bands. Mattaniah, and 25 Bakkukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, Akkub, kept watch at the thresholds of the gates. These lived in the days of Joiakim, 26 the son of Joshua, the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah, the governor, and of Ezra, the priest and scribe.

And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem, they sought and brought the Levites from all their places to Jerusalem, to keep the dedication with gladness; with thanksgivings, and songs, accompanied with cymbals, psalteries, and harps. And all those 27 skilful in sacred music were assembled from the plain country round about Jerusalem, and from the villages of Netophathi; And 28 from the region of Gilgal, and the fields of Geba and Azmaveth: for those musicians had built for themselves villages round about Jerusalem. And the priests and the 29 Levites purified themselves; and they purified the people, and the gates, and the wall. Then I brought up the chiefs of Judah upon 30 the wall, and appointed two great bands to sing praises; one of which went along the wall to the right, towards the dung-gate. And after them went Hoshaiiah, and half of 31 the chiefs of Judah, Azariah, Ezra, and Meshullam, Judah, and Benjamin, and Shemaiah, and Jeremiah. And some of the sons 32 of the priests with trumpets; namely, Zechariah, the son of Jonathan, the son of Shemaiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Michaiah, the son of Zaccur, the son of Asaph. And his brethren, Shemaiah, and Azarael, 33 Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethaneel, and Judah, Hanani, with the musical instruments of David, the man of God, and Ezra, the scribe, before them. And at the fountain- 34 gate which was opposite to them, the rest went up by the stairs of the city of David, ascending the wall above the house of David, even to the water-gate eastward. And 35 the other band went over against them, and I after them, and the half of the people upon the wall from beyond the furnace-

CHAP. XII. 11. Jaddua] According to Prideaux, he became high-priest 341 years B. C. and 196 after the captivity, upwards of 100 years after Nehemiah peopled Jerusalem. From this, it follows, that the names of the three last were added by some later hand. This whole verse must have been added long after Nehemiah, as must be evident to all.

17, 22. Here the names have been omitted; nor is there any trace of them, either in the Versions or the MSS.

29. Region] For this sense of the word בית, I am indebted to Michaelis. See Supplement to Hebrew Lexicon. It is necessary to adopt this sense in several other places.

39 tower, even unto the broad wall; And from above the gate of Ephraim, and above the old-gate, and above the fish-gate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Meah, even unto the sheep-gate: and they stood still at the prison-gate.
 40 Then the two bands stood in the house of God, and I, and half of the rulers with me:
 41 And the priests, Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Michaiah, Elieonai, Zechariah, and 42 Hananiah, with trumpets; And Maaseiah, and Shemaiah, and Eleazar, and Uzzi, and Jehohanan, and Malchijah, and Elam, and Ezer. And the singers sang aloud, 43 with Jezrahiah, their leader. And on that day they offered great sacrifices, and rejoiced; for God had caused them to rejoice with great joy; the women also and the children rejoiced; so that the rejoicing of Jerusalem was heard afar off.
 44 And at that time some were appointed over the chambers for the treasures, for the offerings, for the first-fruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them from the fields of the cities, the portions assigned by the law for the priests and the Levites: for 45 Judah rejoiced that the priests and the Levites waited at the temple. And they observed what related to the worship of their God, and to purification; and so did the musicians and gate-keepers according to the commandment of David, and of Solomon, his son. For in the days of David 46 and Asaph of old, chiefs of the musicians were appointed to sing songs of praise to 47 God. And all Israel, in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah, gave the daily portions to the singers and the door-keepers; and the holy things to the Levites; and the Levites the tenth of the holy things to the children of Aaron.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 434. The abuses which had obtained, and Nehemiah's redress of them.

1 ON that day they read in the book of Moses, in the hearing of the people; and therein was found written, that an Ammonite, or a Moabite, should never enter into the congregation of God; Because they met not the children of Israel with bread and with water, but hired Balaam against them, that he should curse them; but our God
 3 turned the curse into a blessing. Now, when they had heard the law, they separated from Israel all the mixed multitude.
 4 Now, before this, Eliashib, the priest, having the oversight of the chamber of the house of our God, was allied to Tobiah: And he had prepared for him a great chamber, where they laid the wheaten-offerings, the incense, and the utensils, and the tithes of the corn, the new wine, and the oil, which was commanded to be given to the Levites, the singers, and the door-keepers; and the offerings of the priests. But when 6 all these things were done, I was not at Jerusalem: for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes, king of Babylon, I came to the king, but after some time, I obtained leave of the king: And I came back to Jerusalem, and 7 understood the evil deed which Eliashib had done in favour of Tobiah, in preparing for him a chamber in the courts of the house of God. And it grieved me exceedingly: 8 therefore I cast out all the household furniture of Tobiah from the chamber. I then 9 commanded, and they cleansed the chambers; and thither I brought back the utensils of the house of God, with the wheaten-offering and the incense.

And I perceived that the portions of the 10 Levites had not been given to them; for the Levites and the singers, who did the service of the temple, had fled every one to his own field. Then I contended with the rulers, 11 and said, Why is the house of God forsaken? And I assembled and appointed them to their own office. Then all Judah brought 12 the tithe of the corn, and the new wine, and the oil, into the treasuries. And I 13 made treasurers over the treasuries, Shelemiah, the priest, and Zadok, the scribe, and of the Levites, Pedaiah: and next to them was Hanan, the son of Zaccur, the son of Mattaniah: for they were counted faithful, and their office was to distribute to their brethren. Remember me, O my God, concerning this: blot not out my kindness, which I have showed to the house of my God, and to its services.

In those days I saw in Judah some tread- 15 ing wine-presses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves, and lading asses; and also that, on the sabbath, they brought into Jerusalem, wine, grapes, and figs, and burdens of every kind; and I testified to them when they ought to sell food. And the Tyrians 16 who dwelt at Jerusalem brought fish, and other articles, and sold on the sabbath unto the children of Judah. Then I contended 17 with the nobles of Judah, and said to them, What evil thing is this that ye do, and pro-

CHAP. XIII. 1. An Ammonite] Compare Deut. xxiii. 3, 4.

6. I was not at Jerusalem] This proves that Nehemiah had been for some time absent, as this abuse had crept in during that period. ch. vii. 2. I have, therefore, rendered the words וְלִיָּצִי indefinitely, after some time. Literally, at the end of days. Compare Gen. iv. 5.

10. Had fled every] This supposes that some time had elapsed, so that the Levites were obliged to desert the temple-service, and to go to cultivate their own land.

16. Who dwelt at Jerusalem] In rendering this, I have given the sense rather than the idiom. The noun being given makes the pronoun pleonastic. In it can only refer to Jerusalem.

18 fane the sabbath-day? Did not your fathers thus, and did not our God bring all this evil upon us, and upon this city? and will ye increase the divine wrath against Israel by 19 profaning the sabbath? And when the gates of Jerusalem were overshadowed before the sabbath, I commanded that the gates should be shut, and charged that they should not be opened till after the sabbath; and I appointed some of my servants at the gates, that no burden might be brought in on the 20 sabbath-day. So the merchants and sellers of all kinds of articles lodged once or twice
 21 without Jerusalem. Then I protested against them, and said to them, Why lodge ye about the wall? if ye do so again, I will lay hold on you. From that time forth
 22 they came no more on the sabbath. And I commanded the Levites, that they should purify themselves, and that they should come and keep the gates, to hallow the sabbath-day. Remember me, O my God, for this also, and spare me according to the greatness of thy mercy.
 23 In those days I saw also Jews, who had married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, and 24 of Moab; And their children spoke half the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak in the Jews' language, but according to the language of each people. And I contended 25 with them, and reproved them; yea, I smote some of them, and plucked off their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, Ye shall not give your daughters to their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons, or for yourselves. Did not Solomon, king 26 of Israel, sin by these things? although among many nations there was no king like him, who was beloved of his God, so that God made him king over all Israel: nevertheless, even him did foreign women cause to sin. Shall we then hearken to 27 you, to do all this great evil, to transgress against our God by marrying foreign women? And one of the sons of Joiada, the son of 28 Eliashib, the high priest, was son-in-law to Sanballat, the Horonite; therefore I chased him from me. Remember them, O my God, 29 because they have defiled the priesthood, and the covenant of the priesthood, and of the Levites. Thus I purified them from all 30 strangers, and appointed the offices of the priests and Levites, every one to his own office. And for the wood-offering, at times 31 appointed, and for the first-fruits. Remember me, O my God, for good.

19. Were overshadowed] That is, when the sun was about setting; for the gates were overshadowed by reason of the mountains which were round about and near Jerusalem. — Psa. cxxv. 2.

24. Spoke half the] This is known to occur, when the mothers speak a different language from the fathers.

28. Son-in-law] Josephus says that this man's name was Manasseh, that he went to Samaria, and his father-in-law, Sanballat, by his interest with the Persian prince, got leave to build a temple on mount Gerizim, like that at Jerusalem; that he made his son-in-law high priest, and many that married strange wives went after him, and others also who had violated the Jewish law, and deserved punishment; so that it became a receptacle for apostate Jews; and this occasioned that enmity between the Jews and Samaritans which continued till Christ's time.

ESTHER.

INTRODUCTION.

This book contains the narrative of a plot to destroy all the Jews dispersed throughout the Persian empire, and the wonderful interposition of Providence in defeating it. The author of the book is not known, some ascribing it to Ezra, and others to Mordecai. Its canonical authority has been questioned, on account of the wonderful series of events which it records, and because the name of God never once occurs in it. The Jews, it is plain, admitted it; and it is difficult to account for such a history, unless it was founded in truth. Besides, it is impossible to believe that the Jewish nation would appoint and observe, even to this day, the feast of Purim, if the book contained a fictitious narrative. I agree with Prideaux, that the Ahasuerus of this book is the Artaxerxes of Nehemiah; and so the Greek translators always render Ahasuerus. Further, the influence of Esther accounts for the favour shown to the Israelites during his reign; and she was present when Nehemiah made his request and obtained his commission. Nehem. ii. 6. I place then the transactions recorded, about the fourth to the thirteenth year of the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, when Haman perished.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 521. Ahasuerus makes a feast: the queen refuses to come; her punishment.

1 Now it was in the days of Ahasuerus,* who reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, over a hundred and twenty-seven provinces: When in those days, king Ahasuerus sat 2 on the throne of his kingdom, which was in the palace Shushan, In the third year of 3 his reign, he made a feast for all his princes

CHAP. I. 1. From India] From Daniel, vi. 1. we learn that the Persian empire was at first divided into 120 provinces, so that from the time of Cyrus seven new provinces had been added. It is not easy to specify the precise limits of this vast empire. The Ethiopia here mentioned was, I think, a part of Arabia Felix, and not Abyssinia; for it does not appear that the Persians ever conquered the Abyssinians. (c) This Ahasuerus, Vulg. 2 MSS.

2. Shushan] This city, where the Persian kings had a magnificent palace, was situate on the river Ulla, or Eulæus.

- and his servants; the commanders of the Persian and Median army, the nobles and chiefs of the provinces, being before him:
- 4 When he showed the abundant riches, and the honour and greatness of his kingdom many days, even a hundred and eighty days.
- 5 And when these days were expired, the king made a feast of seven days, for all the people who were present in the palace Shushan, both great and small, in the court of the garden of the king's palace. The hangings of the canopy were of the finest linen, white and blue, fastened with cords of fine purple cotton, to silver rings and pillars of marble; the cushions were embroidered with gold and silver, upon a pavement of red, and blue, and white, and black marble.
- 7 And they gave them drink in golden vessels, the vessels being constantly changed; and royal wine in abundance, according to the state of the king. And the drinking was according to the law; none was compelled: for so the king had appointed to all the officers of his house, that they should do according to every man's pleasure. Also Vashti, the queen, made a feast for the women in the royal house which belonged to king Ahasuerus.
- 10 On the seventh day, when the heart of the king was cheerful with wine, he commanded Memucan, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zetha, and Carcas, the seven eunuchs, who waited on Ahasuerus, to bring Vashti, the queen, to the king with the crown royal, to show the people and the princes her beauty: for she was exceedingly beautiful. But the queen Vashti refused to come at the king's command by the eunuchs: therefore was the king very wroth, and his anger burned in him.
- 13 Then the king said to the wise men, who knew the customs, (for thus every affair of the king was laid before all those who knew law and judgment. And there were then near to him Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan, the seven princes of Persia and Media, who saw the king's face, and held the first place in the kingdom;) What shall we do to the queen Vashti according to law, because she hath not performed the command of the king Ahasuerus by the eunuchs? And Memucan answered in the presence of the king and the princes, Vashti, the queen, hath not done wrong to the king only, but also to all the princes, and to all the people who are in the provinces of the king Ahasuerus. For this deed of the queen will spread abroad among all the women, and they will despise their own husbands, when it shall be reported, 'The king Ahasuerus commanded Vashti, the queen, to be brought in before him, but she would not come. In like manner will the ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard of this deed of the queen, speak to all the king's princes; and thus will arise mutual contempt and displeasure. If it please the king, let a royal edict be promulgated by him, and let it be written among the laws of the Persians and the Medes, that it may not be altered, That Vashti come no more before king Ahasuerus; and let the king give her royal estate unto another that is better than she. And when the king's decree which he shall make shall be published throughout all his empire, (for it is great,) all the women will give to their own husbands, whether rich or poor, due honour. And this counsel pleased the king and the princes; and the king did according to the counsel of Memucan: For he sent letters into all the king's provinces, into every province, according to its written language, to every people after their own tongue, that every man should bear rule in his own house, and should speak the language of his own people.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 518. Vashti being divorced, Esther is chosen to succeed her.

AFTER these things, when the wrath of king Ahasuerus was appeased, he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her. Then said of the Greek writers, was the capital of the province of Elam, or Susiana, and at no great distance from Babylon.

3. Made a feast] On the death of Xerxes, by Artabanes, he raised Artaxerxes to the throne, with the intention of cutting him off; but the design of Artabanes being known, it was prevented, and himself punished. When Artaxerxes had counteracted the plots of his enemies, and his power was established, and peace prevailing, he made this splendid feast.

6. The cushions] This refers to the Persian method of sitting, or rather reclining on cushions, which were placed on a raised part of the room adjoining the wall; in the present case, this was raised in the court, and consisted of the richest marble.

13. The customs] The terms עוֹלָם וְיָמָיו must be taken to imply their knowledge of history, law, &c. The conduct of Ahasuerus was improper in commanding the queen to be brought and exposed; yet her refusal was also improper, according to the established customs of the east.

16. And Memucan] Memucan is mentioned last; he was probably the youngest privy counsellor, and therefore speaks first; as is the custom of our judges, that they may not be influenced by the opinion of their seniors.

22. Should speak the] I have followed the Chaldee and many ancient and modern commentators, in rendering this clause. The common version is the mere repetition of the preceding words; the version which I have given makes it an injunction to men, to use their native tongue, and not to neglect it out of complaisance to their foreign wives.

CHAP. II. 1. Remembered Vashti] He now probably repented of what he had done, but pride, and the foolish custom of not altering a decree, prevented him from being reconciled to the queen.

the king's servants who ministered to him, Let there be beautiful young virgins sought
 3 for the king; And let the king appoint officers in all the provinces of his kingdom, who may assemble all the most beautiful young virgins unto the palace Shushan, to the house of the women, under the care of Hegai, the king's eunuch, keeper of the women; and let their purification-things
 4 be given to them: And let the young woman who pleaseth the king be queen instead of Vashti. And the thing pleased the king; and he did so.
 5 Now in the palace Shushan, there was a certain Jew, whose name was Mordecai, the son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish, a Benjamite; Who had been carried away from Jerusalem among the captives, with Jeconiah, king of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had carried away. And he brought up Hadassah, that is, Esther, his uncle's daughter; for she had neither father nor mother, and the young woman was beautiful in form and features; whom Mordecai, when her father and mother were dead, took for his own daughter.
 8 Now, when the king's command and his decree was heard, and when many young women were assembled unto the palace Shushan, to the custody of Hegai, Esther was brought also unto the king's house, to the custody of Hegai, keeper of the women;
 9 And the young woman pleased him, and found acceptance with him; and he speedily gave her the purification-things, with her assigned portions; and he gave to her seven maids, selected from the king's house: and he preferred her and her maids to the best
 10 place of the house of the women. Esther had not told her people or her kindred: for Mordecai had charged her that she should 11 not tell it. And Mordecai walked every day before the court of the women's house, that he might know how Esther did, and what would be done to her.
 12 Now each young woman in her turn was introduced to king Ahasuerus, after she had been twelve months, according to the law respecting the women. For so many days were spent in their purification; six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with sweet odours, and other things used for their purification. When a young woman was introduced to the king, whatsoever she desired to take with her out of the house of the women to the king's house was given to her. In the evening she went, and on the 14 morrow she returned into the second house of the women, under the care of Shaashgoz, the king's eunuch, who kept the concubines: she went in to the king no more, unless the king delighted in her, and called for her by name.

Now when the turn of Esther, the daughter of Abihail, the uncle of Mordecai, who had taken her for his daughter, had come to go in to the king, she required nothing but what Hegai, the king's eunuch, the keeper of the women, appointed. And Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all those who saw her. Esther was then taken 16 to king Ahasuerus, into his royal house, in the tenth month, which is the month Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign. And the king loved Esther above all the 17 women, and she obtained favour and acceptance in his sight more than all the virgins; so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen instead of Vashti. Then the king made a great feast, 18 a feast on his marriage with Esther, for all his princes and his servants; and he made a release to the provinces, and gave gifts, according to the state of the king.

Now Mordecai sat at the king's gate; 19 And Esther told not her kindred nor her 20 people; as Mordecai had charged her: for Esther did the commandment of Mordecai, like as when she was brought up with him. And in those days, while Mordecai sat at 21 the king's gate, two of the king's eunuchs, Bigthana and Teresh, door-keepers, were wroth, and sought to slay the king Ahasuerus. And the thing was known to 22 Mordecai, who told it to Esther, the queen; and Esther informed the king, in the name of Mordecai. And the thing was investi- 23 gated and proved; and they were both hanged on a tree: and it was written in the chronicles before the king.

2—4. This proposal was intended to divert his thoughts, as well as to provide a new consort; and it perfectly suits the known manners of the Persians. Kings did not marry women for their rank or wealth, but for their beauty and accomplishments; and, like Solomon, they had in their harems a vast number.

5—7. These verses contain a strong presumptive proof of the truth of the narrative. Mordecai's pedigree, and that of his relative Esther, is given, with particularity; and the reason why Mordecai was so greatly interested in her.

12—14. We have here a peep into the manners of oriental kings, among whom polygamy was carried to the most extravagant lengths; and in their history the miseries and mischiefs of it were abundantly displayed.

19. Now Mordecai] I have omitted the words, and when the virgins were assembled a second time, on the authority of the Greek version, because they are not connected with the narrative, and as no one has been able to explain them.

21. Sought to slay] Literally, "to put forth the hand to or against the king." I have preferred the sense, with Dean Pilkington and others; for it is manifest that they sought his life. We are not informed what was the reason of their anger; but most probably their disappointed expectations.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 510. Haman's advancement; despised by Mordecai, seeketh in revenge the destruction of the Jews.

- 1 AFTER these things king Ahasuerus promoted Haman, the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, and advanced him, and set his seat above all the princes who were with
- 2 him. And all the king's servants, who were at the king's gate, bowed, and revered Haman; for the king had so commanded concerning him. But Mordecai bowed
- 3 not, nor did him reverence. Then the king's servants who were at the king's gate said to Mordecai, Why transgressest thou
- 4 the king's command? Now, when they spoke daily to him, and he hearkened not to them, they told Haman, that they might see whether Mordecai's reasons would stand good: for he had told them that he was a
- 5 Jew. And when Haman saw that Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence,
- 6 then was Haman full of wrath. And it seemed a contemptible thing to stretch forth a hand against Mordecai alone; for they had told him the people of Mordecai: wherefore Haman sought to destroy all the
- 7 Jews, the people of Mordecai, who were throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus. In the first month, which is the month
- 8 Nisan, in the twelfth year of king Ahasuerus, they cast Pur, that is, the lot, before Haman, from day to day, and from month to month, "that he might destroy on one day the race of Mordecai, and the lot fell for the fourteenth" of the twelfth month,
- 9 which is the month Adar. And Haman said to king Ahasuerus, There is a certain people scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of thy kingdom; and their laws are different from those of all other people; and they keep not the king's laws: and it is not for the king's profit to CHAP. III. 1. The Agagite] Or the Amalekite; he was descended from the kings of that country, among whom Agag was a common name.

2. Mordecai bowed not] This must have arisen from some conscientious motive; either from the nature of the homage required, or else Mordecai, as a Jew, thought it sinful to pay respect to him as an Amalekite. I think the former most probable, as in the 4th verse he informs the king's servants that he was a Jew, and of course, could not, in consistency with the precepts of his religion, pay divine homage to any man.

6. A contemptible thing] Unworthy his power and greatness; he resolved, therefore, to destroy the whole Jewish race.

7. They cast Pur] This is known to be an ancient custom among the Persians and the neighbouring nations; and when they had found a lucky day for any enterprise, on that day they undertook it. Haman sought for such a day; and at last the lot fell on the fourteenth day of the twelfth month; as the clause (a) happily preserved by the Greek version attests.

8. 9. Here are his accusations; their laws are different—they keep not the king's laws—and it is not for the king's let it be commanded that they may be destroyed; and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver to those who perform this business, that they may bring it into the king's treasures. And the king took his ring from his hand, and gave it to Haman, the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the Jews' enemy. And the king said to Haman, 11 The silver is given to thee, the people also, to do with them as it seemeth good to thee. Then were the king's scribes 12 called on the thirteenth day of the first month, and there was written according to all that Haman commanded to the king's lieutenants, and to the governors who were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province, written in the writing, and in the language of every people; in the name of king Ahasuerus was it written, and sealed with the king's ring. And the letters were sent by posts into all 13 the king's provinces, to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish, all Jews, both young and old, little children and women, in one day, upon the "fourteenth" day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar, and to take the spoil of them for a prey. This 14 was the substance of the written law to be published in every province, and among every people, that they should be ready against that day. The posts went out, being 15 hastened by the king's commandment, and the decree was published in the palace Shushan. And the king and Haman sat down to drink: but the city Shushan was troubled.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 510. Mordecai and the Jews mourn; Esther appointeth a fast.

WHEN Mordecai knew all that was done, 1 he rent his garments, and put on sackcloth with ashes, and went out into the midst of the city, and cried with a loud and bitter real profit to suffer such a people to exist. He was willing to sacrifice his wealth to his revenge.

10, 11. This was strange conduct in the king. He prudently consulted before he put away Vashti; he made inquiry into the conduct of the conspirators, before he condemned them; here he regarded nothing, but made a general decree, and gave Haman all the spoils for his own use.

13. By posts] Cyrus is said to have appointed posts at convenient distances throughout his empire, so that news of every kind could be easily and swiftly conveyed. This was a wise appointment, and has been adopted by all civilized nations, in one way or another.

15. The city Shushan] Nothing can paint in more lively colours the weakness, folly, and dreadful mischiefs of arbitrary governments, than the decree of Ahasuerus. Well might his subjects in general tremble, and be distressed! No one could be sure of his life, when a whole people were to be destroyed to please a favourite.

CHAP. IV. 1. Bitter cry] Mordecai was particularly affected with it, because the edict arose from his conscientious scruples

2 cry; And came even before the king's gate; for none might enter into the king's gate
3 clothed with sackcloth. And in every province, whithersoever the king's commandment and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, and fasting, and weeping, and wailing; and many lay in 4 sackcloth and ashes. And Esther's maids and her eunuchs went and told her. Then was the queen exceedingly grieved; and she sent raiment to clothe Mordecai, and to take away his sackcloth from him; but he
5 would not receive it. Then called Esther for Hatach, one of the king's eunuchs, whom he had appointed to attend on her, and gave him a command to Mordecai, to know what had happened, and on what account
6 he mourned? So Hatach went to Mordecai to the street of the city, which 7 was before the king's gate. And Mordecai told him all that had happened to him, and of the sum of money which Haman had promised to pay to the king's treasuries in 8 order that he might destroy the Jews. And he gave him a copy of the written decree which was given at Shushan to destroy them, that he might show it to Esther; and ordered him to tell her and to charge her to go in to the king, to make supplication to him, and to make request before him for her 9 people. And Hatach came and told Esther the words of Mordecai.
10 Again Esther spoke to Hatach, and gave
11 him in charge to say to Mordecai; All the king's servants, and the people of the king's provinces, do know that there is a law, that whosoever, whether man or woman, shall come to the king into the inner court, who is not called, shall be put to death, unless the king shall hold out the golden sceptre, that he may live: but I have not been called to come in to the king these thirty days.
12 And they told to Mordecai Esther's words.
13 Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther, saying, Think not with thyself that thou shalt escape in the king's house, any more than other Jews. For if thou art wholly silent this time, aid and deliverance shall arise to the Jews from another place; but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed: and who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?

Then Esther bade them return Mordecai 15 this answer; Go, assemble all the Jews who 16 are present in Shushan, and fast ye for me, and neither eat nor drink three days, night or day; I, also, and my maids will fast likewise; and, although against law, I will go in to the king: and if I perish, I will perish. And Mordecai departed, and did 17 according to all that Esther had commanded him.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 510. Esther ventures to approach the king, and obtains his favour; she invites him and Haman to a banquet.

Now on the third day, Esther put on her 1 royal apparel, and stood in the inner-court of the king's house, over against the king's house; and the king was sitting upon his royal throne in the royal house, over against the gate of the house. And, when the king 2 saw Esther, the queen, standing in the court, she obtained favour in his sight: and the king held out to Esther the golden sceptre which he had in his hand. Esther then drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre. Then said the king to her, What 3 desirest thou, queen Esther? and what is thy request? to the half of the kingdom it shall be given to thee. And Esther an- 4 swered, If it seem good to the king, let the king and Haman come this day to the banquet which I have prepared for him. Then 5 the king said, Cause Haman to make haste, that he may do as Esther hath said. So the king and Haman went to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

And the king said to Esther at the banquet 6 of wine, What is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request?

2. Clothed with sackcloth] This custom is still preserved in the east; none are admitted into the king's palace in mourning, lest they should disturb their pleasures, and put them in mind of sickness and death.

4. Went and told her] The retired manner in which the women lived accounts for the circumstance of Esther knowing nothing of the decree, or of the cause of Mordecai's mourning.

8. For her people] This advice was prudent; and, doubtless, this method was suggested as the most likely to prevent their destruction.

11. All the king's] This law illustrates the idolatrous homage which the Persian and other eastern sovereigns exacted from their people. They were not to be approached, but when they thought proper.

14. Such a time as this] He here insists upon her going in unto the king; urging that she would share in the general destruction, that even her rank would not exempt her; and with a noble triumph of faith adds, that God would deliver his people some other way. He apprehended, that while the rest escaped, God would take her and her family off for want of zeal for his cause and people; and that she ought rather to think that God had advanced her to be an instrument of their deliverance.

CHAP. V. 2. Favour in his sight] Undoubtedly this was overruled by God, so that the sight of the queen should excite his tenderest regards towards her, and prepare the way for the deliverance of her people.

3. To the half of the kingdom] This is a proverbial expression, similar to that of Herod in Mark vi. 23. as much as to say, I will grant any thing in reason, because thou art so dear to me.

4. To the banquet] It was prudent in Esther not to open her mind at once, and to try the king how far he stood affected to her; for if he refused this favour, there would be no hope of the other; she might endear herself to him the more by the entertainment, and she would further please him by inviting his favourite.

even to the half of the kingdom it shall 7 be performed. Then answered Esther and 8 said, My petition and my request is; If I have found favour in the sight of the king, and if it please the king to grant my petition,
 and to perform my request, let the king and Haman come to the banquet that I shall prepare for them, and I will do tomorrow as the king hath said.
 9 Then Haman, that day, went away joyful and with a glad heart; but when Haman saw Mordecai in the king's gate, that he stood not up, nor moved for him, he was 10 full of indignation against Mordecai. Nevertheless, Haman restrained himself; and when he came home, he sent and called for 11 his friends, and Zeresh, his wife. And Haman told them of his glory, his riches, and the multitude of his children, and in what manner the king had promoted him, and how he had advanced him above "all"
 12 the princes and servants of the king. Haman said moreover, Yea, Esther, the queen, let no man come in with the king unto the banquet which she had prepared but myself;
 and to-morrow am I invited to her also 13 with the king. Yet all this availeth me nothing, so long as I see Mordecai, the Jew, sitting at the king's gate.
 14 Then said Zeresh, his wife, and all his friends to him, Let a gallows be made fifty cubits high, and to-morrow speak thou to the king that Mordecai may be hanged thereon; then go thou in merrily with the king to the banquet. And the thing pleased Haman; and he caused the gallows to be made.

CHAPTER VI.

B C. 510. Ahasuerus rewardeth Mordecai for detecting the conspiracy of Bigthana and Teresh; Haman doeth him honour, and is hanged.

1 ON that night the king could not sleep, and he commanded the book of the records
 2 to be brought, and they were read before the king. And it was found written, that Mordecai had told of Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, the door-keepers,
 who sought to slay the king Ahasuerus.
 3 And the king said, What reward and dignity

8. I will do to-morrow] Perhaps the queen's heart failed her at this time; or that she might hope that at another entertainment the king would be still more affectionate and ready to grant her request; she might expect that Haman would grow more proud and insolent, and so be more easily ruined; and the king's mind be prepared by the expectation of some great and important petition. Above all, God might order it thus, that Mordecai's honour might be displayed in the mean time, and the way be open to his advancement, and Haman's ruin. 11. (a) Ver. MSS.

CHAP. VI. 1. The records] We see the special disposing hand of God, in the king's restlessness, and in his choosing to have the public records of occurrences during his own reign, read to him, hath been done to Mordecai for this? Then said the king's servants who ministered to him, There hath been nothing done for him.

And the king said, Who is in the court? 4
 (Now Haman had come into the outward court of the king's house, to speak to the king about hanging Mordecai on the gallows that he had prepared for him.) And 5 the king's servants said to him, Behold Haman standeth in the court. And the 6 king said, Let him come in. So Haman came in. And the king said to him, What shall be done to the man whom the king delighteth to honour? Now Haman thought 7 in his heart, Whom would the king delight to honour more than myself? And Haman 8 answered the king, For the man, whom the king delighteth to honour, Let the royal 9 apparel be brought which the king useth to wear, and the horse on which the king rideth, and the crown royal which is placed upon his head: And let this apparel and 10 horse be delivered to one of the king's most noble princes, and let the man whom the king delighteth to honour, be clothed there- 11 with, and brought on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaim before him, Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delighteth to honour. Then the king 12 said to Haman, Make haste, and take the apparel and the horse, as thou hast said, and do even so to Mordecai, the Jew, who sitteth at the king's gate: let nothing fail of all that thou hast spoken. Then took 13
 Haman the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai, and brought him on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaimed before him, Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delighteth to honour.

And Mordecai came back to the king's 12 gate. But Haman hasted to his own house mourning, and having his head covered. And Haman told Zeresh, his wife, and all his friends, every thing that had befallen him. Then said his wise men, and Zeresh, 13 his wife, to him, If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou wilt not prevail against him, 14 but wilt surely fall before him. And while

3. There hath been nothing] Some think that some reward had been ordered, but through the ill-will of Haman, or some other courtiers, he had been deprived of it. Perhaps the account of rewards conferred upon others, led the king to ask what had been done for him.

7-9. Haman thinking that the king intended to confer some peculiar mark of his favour on himself; and as he did not want money, nor could be raised to a higher post in the court, he proposes the highest honour he could conceive. There seems to have been nothing but the sceptre that he did not think it proper to invest himself with; and probably he thought it would be an agreeable circumstance to have Mordecai hanged to grace the cavalcade.

13. Fall before him] They probably grounded their they were yet talking with him, came the king's eunuchs, and hasted to bring Haman to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

1 And the king and Haman went to banquet with Esther, the queen. And the king said again to Esther on the second day, at the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, queen Esther? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request? to the half of the kingdom, and it shall be performed.

2 Then Esther, the queen, answered and said, If I have found favour in thy sight, O king, and if it please the king, let my life be granted to me at my petition, and the life of my people at my request; For we are sold, I and my people to be destroyed, to be slain, and to perish. But if we had been sold for bondmen and bondwomen, I would have been silent, yet the enemy could not compassate the damage done to the king.

3 Then the king Ahasuerus answered and said to Esther, the queen, Who is he, and where is he, that dare presume in his heart to do thus? And Esther said, The adversary and enemy is this wicked Haman. Then Haman was afraid before the king and the queen.

4 And the king, arising from the banquet of wine in his wrath, went into the palace-garden; and Haman stood up to make request for his life to Esther, the queen; for he saw that there was evil determined against him by the king.

5 Then the king returned from the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine; and Haman had fallen on the couch on which Esther lay. Then said the king, Will he force the queen also before me in the house? As the word went out of the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face.

6 And Harbonah, one of the eunuchs, said to the king, Behold also, the gallows fifty cubits high, which Haman hath made for Mordecai, who had spoken good for the king, standeth in the house of Haman.

7 Then the king said, Hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai. Then was the king's wrath pacified.

ON that day, the king Ahasuerus gave the house of Haman, the Jews' enemy, to Esther the queen. And Mordecai came before the king; for Esther had told how he was related to her. And the king took off his ring which he had taken from Haman, and gave it to Mordecai. And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

And Esther spoke yet again before the king, and fell down at his feet, and besought him with tears to put away the mischief of Haman, the Agagite, and his device that he had devised against the Jews. Then the king held out the golden sceptre towards Esther. So Esther arose and stood before the king, and said, If it please the king, and if I have found favour in his sight, and the thing seem right before the king, and I be pleasing in his eyes, let it be written to reverse the letters devised by Haman, the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, which he wrote to destroy the Jews who are in all the king's provinces: For how can I endure to see the evil that will come upon my people? or how can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred?

Then king Ahasuerus said to Esther, the queen, and to Mordecai, the Jew, Behold, I have given Esther the house of Haman, and him they have hanged upon the gallows, because he stretched forth his hand against the Jews. Write ye also for the Jews as it pleaseth you, in the king's name, and seal it with the king's signet: for the writing which is written in the king's name, and sealed with the king's signet, may no man reverse. Then were the king's scribes called in the third month, that is, the month Sivan, on the twenty-third day thereof: and it was written according to all that Mordecai commanded, to the Jews, and to the lieutenants, and the deputies and rulers of the provinces, from India to Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces; to every province written in the writing and in the language opinion on the deliverance of Daniel, and the three youths, and other wonderful interpositions of providence in favour of the Jews, which must have been well known.

CHAP. VII. 3. Let my life be] The king, no doubt, expected some importunate petition for wealth, or honour, or the advancement of some of her friends, and must be much surprised when she only begged for her life, and the deliverance of her people; his rage against her enemies must rise in proportion to her humility.

6. This wicked Haman] Esther found no reason to fear speaking plainly; she therefore fixed her charge upon Haman. And she gave his true character in one word, this wicked Haman.

8. Will he force] Had the king been calm, he would hardly have supposed that Haman had such an intention; but his passion had so blinded him, that he put the worst construction upon every thing.—They covered Haman's face] As the dignity of a prince made the being arrayed in his clothes a mighty honour, so it did not allow of a malefactor's setting his eyes upon him. The majesty at least of the kings of Persia did not allow of this, as appears in the case of Haman, whose face was covered, as soon as the courtiers perceived Ahasuerus looked upon him in that light. Harbonah's covering Haman's face then was the placing him before the king, as a malefactor, to hear his doom.

10. So they hanged] In the east, the sentence is immediately executed.

CHAP. VIII. 1. How he was related] Thus Mordecai was raised by the influence of the queen; and her favour, doubtless, procured the commission of Nehemiah, and the liberal grant of what was necessary to restore Jerusalem.

3—6. Though Haman was destroyed, the decree which he had procured existed in full force; and Esther saw the necessity of obtaining another to counteract its effects.

of every people; and to the Jews in their 10 own writing and language. And he wrote in the name of king Ahasuerus, and sealed it with the king's signet, and sent letters by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, 11 camels, and young dromedaries. In them the king granted the Jews who were in every city to assemble themselves, and defend their own life, by destroying, slaying, and causing to perish, all the host of the people in the province that should assault them, little ones and women, and to take 12 the spoil of them for a prey. On one day in all the provinces of king Ahasuerus, namely, on the fourteenth day of the twelfth 13 month, which is the month Adar. The copy of the written law to be published in every province, and among every people, that the Jews should be ready against that day to avenge themselves on their enemies.
 14 So the posts that rode upon mules and camels went out, being hastened and pressed on by the king's command. And the decree was published at the palace Shushan.
 15 And Mordecai went out from the presence of the king in royal apparel of blue and white, and with a great crown of gold, and with a garment of fine linen and purple;
 and the city of Shushan rejoiced and was 16 glad. To the Jews arose light and glad-17 ness, joy and honour. And in every province, and in every city, whithersoever the king's command and the decree came, the Jews had joy and gladness, a feast and a good day; and many of the people of the land became Jews; for the fear of the Jews fell upon them.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 509. The Jews slay their enemies with the ten sons of Haman; the feast of Purim, and the greatness of Mordecai.

1 Now in the twelfth month, the month
 Adar, on the thirteenth day of the same, when the time drew near, that the king's decree was to be put in execution, in the day that the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them; (yet the affair so turned out, that the Jews had rule over 2 those who hated them:) The Jews assembled themselves in their cities throughout all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, to oppose such as sought their hurt; and no man could withstand them; for the fear of them fell upon all the people. And all the 3 rulers of the provinces, and the lieutenants, and the deputies, and officers of the king, helped the Jews; because the fear of Mordecai fell upon them. For Mordecai was 4 great in the king's house, and his fame went out throughout all the provinces: for this man Mordecai became greater and greater.

 The Jews, therefore, smote all their enemies
 5 with the sword, and slew and destroyed them, and did to those who hated them according to their pleasure. And in the 6 palace Shushan, the Jews slew and destroyed five hundred men. And Parshandatha,
 7 and Dalphon, and Aspatha, and Poratha,
 8 and Adalia, and Adriatha, and Parmashta,
 9 and Arisai, and Aridai, and Vajezatha, The 10 ten sons of Haman, the son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews, they slew;
 but on the spoil they laid not their hand.
 On that day, the number of those who were 11 slain in the palace Shushan was brought before the king.

And the king said to Esther, the queen,
 12 The Jews have slain and destroyed five hundred men in the palace Shushan, and the ten sons of Haman; what have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? now what is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: or what is thy request further? and it shall be done. Then said Esther, If it 13 please the king, let it be granted to the Jews who are in Shushan to do to-morrow also according to this day's decree, and let Ha-man's ten sons be hung up upon the gallows.
 And the king commanded it so to be done:
 14 and the decree was given at Shushan; and they hanged up Haman's ten sons. For 15 the Jews who were in Shushan assembled themselves on the fourteenth day also of the month Adar, and slew three hundred men at Shushan; but on the spoil they laid not their hand. But the other Jews who were 16 in the king's provinces assembled themselves on the 'thirteenth day of the month
 Adar,' that they might defend their own lives, and rest from their enemies; and they slew of their foes seventy-five thousand;
 but on the spoil they laid not their hands.
 And on the fourteenth day of the same, they 17 rested, and made it a day of feasting and

11. Granted the Jews] This shows the absurdity of this law of the Persians, as the king was now forced to allow a civil war, and permit the Jews and their enemies to take up arms by his authority to combat against it.

17. Became Jews] That is, submitted to their laws, and professed the belief of one supreme God. This is natural, as the hand of God was so displayed in their favour.

CHAP. IX. 2. To oppose such] Literally, 'to stretch forth the hand,' which idiomatical phrase seems limited by the context to the sense given. The 16th verse demonstrates, that they stood on the defensive, and only resisted when attacked.

5. It is not possible to render this verse literally, and perspicuously; I have, therefore, given the sense in equivalent terms.

13. Be hung up] They had been slain before, and this respects their dead bodies, which were to be hung up for the greater infamy. They had probably sought to avenge their father's fall and death; and for this reason they were thus treated.

15. Three hundred men] The whole of those slain in Shushan were eight hundred; and from this it appears that many Jews resided there, and that they had many enemies.

16. Seventy-five thousand] The ancient Jewish writers

18 gladness. But the Jews who were at Shushan assembled on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth thereof; and on the fifteenth day of the same they rested, and made it a day of feasting and gladness.
19 Therefore the Jews of the villages who dwell in the unwall'd towns, made the fourteenth day of the month Adar, a day of gladness and feasting, and a good day, and of sending portions one to another.
20 And Mordecai wrote these things, and sent letters to all the Jews who were in all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, near 21 and distant, By which he appointed, that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the 22 same, yearly, As the days in which the Jews had obtained rest from their enemies, and the month in which their sorrow had been turned into joy, and their mourning into festivity; that they should make them days of feasting and joy, and of sending portions 23 one to another, and gifts to the poor. And the Jews undertook to do as they had begun, 24 and as Mordecai had written to them; Because Haman, the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had devised to destroy them, and had cast Pur, that is, the lot, to consume them, and to 25 destroy them; But when Esther went in to the king, he commanded, by letters, that his wicked device, which he devised against the Jews, should return upon his own head, and that he and his sons should be hung up 26 on the gallows. Wherefore they called these days Purim from the word Pur. Hence, on account of all the words of this letter, and of the things which they had seen, 27 and which had come unto them, The Jews ordained, and engaged in regard to themselves, and their seed, and all such as joined themselves to them, that they would keep these two days yearly, without fail, according as it had been prescribed and appointed. And that these days should be 28 remembered and kept throughout every generation, every family, every province, every city; and that these days of Purim should not fail among the Jews, nor the memorial of them perish from their seed. Then Esther, the queen, the daughter of 29 Abihail, and Mordecai, the Jew, wrote with all authority, to confirm again the days of Purim. And he sent the letters to all the 30 Jews, to the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, with words of peace and truth, To confirm 31 these days of Purim in their appointed times, according as Mordecai, the Jew, and Esther, the queen, had enjoined them, and as they had decreed for themselves and for their seed, the matters of the fastings, and of prayer. And the decree of Esther con- 32 firmed these matters of Purim, as it is written in this book.

And the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute 1 upon the land, and upon the isles of the sea. And all the acts of his power and of his 2 might, and the declaration of the greatness of Mordecai, to which the king advanced him, are written in the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia. For Mordecai, 3 the Jew, was next to king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews, and accepted of the multitude of his brethren, seeking the wealth of his people, and speaking peace to all his seed.

say that most of these were Amalekites, which is not unlikely, as Haman might have introduced great numbers of them into the provinces, and they would be peculiarly inveterate against the Jews. (1) From next verse.

20—32. The feast of purim, or of lots, so called from the Persian word pur, which signifies lot, is taken from the circumstance of Haman having cast lots to destroy them, and has been observed by the Jews down to the present time, with some peculiar ceremonies. The Jews tell us that though this feast was established by Esther and Mordecai, eighty-five elders opposed it as an innovation against the law. During this festival the whole book of Esther is twice read in their synagogues, once in the evening, when the feast begins, and again the next morning, and when the name of Haman is mentioned, the very children are taught to beat on the benches, and stamp for joy. After the second reading of the book is finished, they spend the remaining part of the day in sports, with music and dancing, until the time for feasting arrives, in which they indulge to the greatest excesses. In the Talmud, intoxication is even authorized, and this feast has not been improperly called the Bacchanalian feast of the Jews. The best part of this feast is the custom of giving abundant alms to the poor, that they may be enabled to keep the feast as well as their richer brethren.

INTRODUCTION.

THE book of Job, of all those extant, is probably the most ancient. It contains no clear, unequivocal reference to any of the miracles wrought in Egypt, or to any of the later facts of the Jewish history. The sentiments, the images, and the religious ceremonies, are all patriarchal, and have no relation to any part of the Levitical institutions. Job, like Abraham, is at once the prince and the priest of his tribe; he offers sacrifice both for his family and his friends.

Concerning the author of this book, there has been great variety of opinion. The most common, and the most probable and best supported opinion is, that it was written by Moses, during his abode in the land of Midian; and as the case of Job had a striking analogy with the state and the sufferings of the Israelites in Egypt, one design of the sacred author might be, not only to preserve the patriarchal customs and sentiments, but to comfort them, by inspiring the hope of deliverance. From the Arabisms contained in the book, the writer must have been conversant in that language; and from the peculiarities of the Jewish church, he must have been one of their own race. The many terms, which occur in no other part of the Scriptures, prove its antiquity. These circumstances render it highly probable that Moses was the author.

The book is naturally divided into six parts. The first contains the introduction, and is comprised in the two first chapters. The second includes the third chapter to the end of the fourteenth. The third begins with the fifteenth chapter and concludes with the twenty-first. The fourth reaches from the twenty-second chapter to the close of the thirty-first. The fifth contains the summing up of the controversy by Elihu, and includes the thirty-second chapter to the end of the thirty-seventh. The sixth, the remaining part of the book.

The argument of the book seems to be, to refute the opinion that piety is attended uniformly with prosperity, and that calamities or afflictions befall only wicked men. Job's friends maintain the opinion that piety and vice are here always rewarded, which Job contests, and, in the most satisfactory manner, refutes.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1520. The riches and piety of Job; Satan permitted to tempt him; the loss of his property and children.

- 1 IN the land of Uz was a man, named Job; and this man was perfect and upright,
- 2 fearing God, and avoiding evil. And to him were born seven sons and three daughters.
- 3 His substance was seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, five hundred she-asses, and a very great household: so that he was greater than any of the men of the east.
- 4 And it was a custom with his sons to make a family-feast, each one on his own birthday: and they sent and invited their three
- 5 sisters to eat and drink with them. And when the days of feasting had gone round, Job sent that he might purify them; and, rising early in the morning, he offered sacrifices according to the number of all his children; for, said Job, it may be that my sons have sinned, though they bless God in their heart. In this manner did Job continually.

Now on a certain day, when the sons of 6 God came to present themselves before Jehovah, Satan also came among them. And 7 Jehovah said to Satan, Whence comest thou? And Satan answered and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. And Jehovah 8 said to Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job? for there is no one like him on the earth, a perfect and upright man, fearing God and avoiding evil. Then Satan 9 answered Jehovah and said, Doth Job fear God for nought? Hast thou not made a 10

CHAP. I. 1. In the land of Uz] The land of Uz is evidently Idumæa, as appears from Lam. iv. 21. Uz was the grandson of Seir, the Horite; Gen. xxxvi. 20, 21, 28. 1 Chron. i. 38, 42. His posterity being expelled, it was occupied by the Idumæans or Edomites: Gen. xiv. 6. Deut. ii. 12. Idumæa is a part of Arabia Petræa, situated on the southern extremity of the Dead-sea: Numb. xxxiv. 3. Josh. xv. 1. 21. The land of Uz, therefore, appears to have been between Egypt and Philistia, Jer. xxv. 20. xlv. 1. Named Job] We may form a conjecture at least respecting the age of Job, from what is said of his friends. Eliphaz was the son of Esau, and Teman the son of Eliphaz, Gen. xxxvi. 10, 11.; and this Eliphaz might be the son or grandson of Teman, as Bildad was sprung from Shuah, one of Abraham's sons by Keturah. Zophar is called the Naamathite, and we find a city of Idumæa called Naama, Josh. xv. 21, 24. These friends of Job all lived contiguous to him; and from what is said of the first two, it is probable that Job lived in the time of Jacob; and, as sprung from Abraham, maintained the knowledge and the worship of the God of Abraham.

5. Though they bless] It is well known that this verse has been variously rendered. A sense has been given to בָּרַךְ which I confidently affirm it never has in the scriptures; nor has it the sense of cursing in any of the cognate dialects. The version adopted arises from giving another sense to the vau; a sense which it is acknowledged to have in many other places. See Noldius. Job, according to this version, admits that his sons might have been guilty of some failures in duty at such seasons, for which he offered sacrifices. And what good man has not often to renew his prayers to God, on account of such things?

6, 7. Now on a certain day] To represent the majesty and glory of the supreme governor of the world, and the manner in which he administers its affairs, the holy scriptures borrow images from what obtains among men. Hence Jehovah is spoken of as sitting on his throne, attended by the different orders of servants, to whom are allotted various offices in the administration of his providential empire. So Isa. ch. vi. 1 Kings xxii. 19—22. In the same manner the author of Job represents God as a king, before whom his ministers attend at stated times, to give in an account of their various services.

hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath? thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land. But stretch forth thy hand now and destroy all that he hath; will he then, indeed, bless thee to thy face? And Jehovah said, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power, only against himself, stretch not forth thy hand. Then Satan departed from the presence of Jehovah.

And on a certain day, when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother, A messenger came to Job and said, The oxen were plowing and the asses were feeding as usual; And the Sabeans fell on them, and took them; and the young men have they smitten with the edge of the sword, and I only am escaped to tell thee. And while he was speaking, another came and said, The lightning fell from the heavens, and burnt up the sheep, and "consumed" the servants; and I only am escaped to tell thee. And while he was speaking, another came and said, The Chaldeans appointed three bands, who rushed on the camels, and took them: and the young men have they smitten with the edge of the sword; and I only am escaped to tell thee. And while he was speaking, another came and said, Thy sons and thy daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother, And lo, a vehement wind came across the desert, and smote the four corners of the house, and it fell on the young people, and they are dead; and I only am escaped to tell thee.

Then Job arose, and having rent his mantle, and shaved his head, he fell to the ground and worshipped, and said, Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither. Jehovah gave, and Jehovah hath taken away; blessed be the name of Jehovah. In all these things

Job sinned not, nor attributed any wrong unto God.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1520. Satan still accuseth Job, and is permitted to afflict him with a loathsome disease; Job still maintains his integrity; his friends visit him.

AGAIN on a certain day, when the sons of God came to present themselves before Jehovah, Satan also came among them to present himself before Jehovah. And Jehovah said to Satan, Whence comest thou? And Satan answered and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it. And Jehovah said to Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job? for there is no one like him on the earth, a perfect and upright man, fearing God, and avoiding evil; and as yet maintaining his integrity, although thou didst move me against him to destroy him without a cause. Then Satan answered Jehovah, and said, Skin for skin, yea all that a man hath, will he give for his life. But stretch forth thy hand now, and touch his bone and his flesh, and will he then indeed bless thee to thy face? And Jehovah said to Satan, Behold he is in thy hand, only spare his life. And Satan departed from the presence of Jehovah, and smote Job with ulcerous sores, from the sole of the foot to the crown of the head; And he took a potsherd that he might scrape himself, and he sat down on the ashes. Then said his wife unto him, Dost thou yet retain thine integrity, blessing God and dying? But he said to her, As I speaketh one of the foolish women, shouldst thou also speak? shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil? In all these things, Job sinned not with his lips.

When Job's three friends heard of all the calamities which had come upon him, they came each one from his own place, Eliphaz, 12—19. The occurrence of so many calamities in so short a space of time has been thought by some to be a proof that the whole book is fictitious. But surely, when the facts are considered, they are only what might easily happen. It is well known, that many of the wandering tribes of the Desert make sudden, and sometimes successful attacks on their more settled and prosperous neighbours. See 1 Sam. xxx. 5 and why might not a band of Sabeans attack one part of Job's property, while another was attacked by a horde of Chaldeans? There is nothing in this in any degree improbable. Nor is there in a sudden thunder-storm destroying the sheep and the shepherds, nor in the wind accompanying it, overturning the house in which Job's sons and daughters were feasting. Satan wrought in and by these children of disobedience. 16. (a) Sept.

21. Return thither] The Chaldee gives the sense, "to the house of the grave."—Blessed be the] This is the answer to the accuser's question, Will he then indeed bless thee to thy face? Yes, Job shows his sincere piety by his submission.

22. Nor attributed any] The term תפלה denotes any thing insipid, what is vapid, mere froth, and hence, in a secondary sense, what is foolish and improper.

CHAP. II. 4. Skin for skin] Good has given the best explanation of this proverb. "The skins or spoils of beasts, in the rude and early ages of man, were the most valuable property he could acquire, and that for which he most frequently combated. Skins, hence, became the chief representation of property; and in many parts of the world continue so, to the present hour."

7. Ulcerous sores] The words are in the singular number, and occur in Deut. xxviii. 27, 35. This disease is upon good authority supposed to be the Judham, or black leprosy of the Arabs. It was named elephantiasis by the Greeks, from its rendering the skin, like that of the elephant's, scabrous and dark-coloured, and furrowed all over with tubercles.

8. And he sat down] This self-abasement appears to have been common among the Hebrews. The coarsest dress, as of hair or sackcloth, was worn on such occasions. Compare Ps. xxii. 15. lxxviii. 13. and cxiii. 7.

10. Shouldst thou also speak] The future is used for the subjunctive here; and this version is more emphatic than a tame assertion, as well as more just to the original.—Evil, that is, penal evil, such as afflictions, &c.

the Temanite; Bildad, the Shuhite; Zophar, the Naamathite: for they had appointed to come together, to mourn with 12 and to comfort him. And seeing him at a distance, they did not know him; and they raised their voice and wept; and having rent each one his mantle, they sprinkled dust on 13 their heads towards the heavens. And they sat down with him on the ground, seven days and seven nights: and none spoke a word unto him; for they saw that his grief was very great.

CHAPTER III.

HERE BEGINS THE SECOND PART OF THIS BOOK.

B. C. 1520. Job curses his birth-day, and vehemently length for the grave as the place of rest.

1 AFTER this Job opened his mouth and
 2 execrated his own birth-day; And Job spoke and said,
 3 Perish the day in which I was born,
 The night it was said, 'lo! a man-child!'
 4 Let that day become darkness;
 Let God from above never regard it;
 Let the streaming light never shine on it.
 5 Let darkness and death-shade claim it;
 Let a spreading-cloud dwell upon it;
 Let thunder-clouds make it frightful!
 6 That night, let utter darkness seize it;
 Let it not be joined with the days of the year;
 Into the number of months let it not enter!
 7 Lo! let that night be solitary;
 Let natal joy never come therein.
 8 Let those execrate it, who curse the day
 Of such as are ready to rouse Leviathan.
 9 Obscure be the stars of its twilight;
 Let it expect light, and may there be none;
 Let it never see the eyelids of the morning;
 10 Because it shut not the doors of the womb
 Nor hid sorrow from mine eyes. [to me,
 11 Why died I not from the womb?
 When I was born, did I not expire?
 12 Why were the knees ready to receive me?
 And why the breasts that I should suck?

13. Seven days] This was the time the Jews mourned for the dead; so that Job's friends considered his disease as certain death, Gen. i. 10. 1 Sam. xxxi. 13. Ezek. iii. 13.

CHAP. III. 1. Birth-day] The connexion requires and supports this version. The holy sufferer gives vent to his sorrows. Compare Jer. xx. 14—18.

3. Lo! a man child] So the Sept. which gives the most obvious and natural sense.

5. Let thunder-clouds] The blackness of the day seems naturally to import those thick, dense clouds, which indicate an approaching storm.

8. Let those execrate] It was an ancient custom to mark certain days as fortunate or unfortunate, because on such days some happy or calamitous events had occurred. To stir up, or arouse, Leviathan, is represented ch. xii. 8—10, to be inevitable destruction.

11. When I was born] Literally, When I came from the belly, but the sense is better than the idiomatical expression.

12. Knees ready to receive me] This may refer either to the nurse or to the mother; but most probably to the latter. The sense seems to be, Why was any regard shown to me,

'Or why was I not like the hidden abortion? 16
 Like infants who have not seen the light?
 For now had I rested and been still; 18
 I had slept, and then enjoyed repose,
 With kings and rulers of the earth, 14
 Who rebuilt for themselves desolate places:
 Or with princes, with whom was laid up gold, 15
 And whose mansions were filled with silver.
 There the wicked cease from troubling; 17
 And there the strength-wearied are at rest.
 Bond-slaves tranquilly repose together: 18
 They hear not the task-master's voice.
 The small and the great are there equal, 19
 And the servant is free from his lord.
 Why is light given to the miserable, 20
 Or life to those distressed in soul;
 Who long for death, but it cometh not; 21
 Who seek for it more than for hid treasures:
 Who would rejoice even to exultation: 22
 And be enraptured if they could find the grave?
 Thus it is with the man whose way is hid, 23
 And whom God hath hedged around.
 For with my food cometh my sighing, 24
 And like water are my cries poured out.
 Verily what I feared hath befallen me, 25
 And what I dreaded hath come upon me.
 I had no peace, I had no quiet, 26
 Yea I had no rest, as the trouble came on.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1520. Eliphaz replieth to Job; and maintains that divine judgments fall on the wicked, not on the righteous; he relates his vision, and concludes with advice.

THEN Eliphaz, the Temanite, spoke and 1 said: [be grieved?
 If we attempt to speak to thee, wilt thou 2
 But who can refrain from speaking?
 Lo! thou hast instructed many, 3
 And the weak hands thou hast strengthened;
 Thy words have upheld the stumbling, 4
 And the trembling knees hast thou established;
 But now "affliction" hath come upon thee: 5 or care exercised towards me? Why was provision made for me when I was born?"

16. This verse is transposed, as affording a better connexion.

14. Desolate places] This description is intended as a contrast to that contained in the two ensuing lines. The grave is the common receptacle of all: of the patriotic princes who have restored to their ancient magnificence the ruins of former cities, and of the sordid accumulators of wealth, which they have not spirit to make use of. Compare Is. lviii. 12; lxi. 4. Ezek. xxxvi. 10, 33.

23. God hath hedged] The first line is supported by Is. xl. 27, and the latter by Exod. xl. 27, and Lam. iii. 7. The meaning is, that he was so surrounded with evils that he saw no way to escape from them.

25. Verily what I feared] Some apply this to the time of his prosperity; but it refers to the beginning of his troubles; so that when he heard of one calamity, he naturally expected and feared another would follow, which he describes in the next verse.

CHAP. IV. 5. But now affliction] The Sept. and one MS. read אִי as a noun. Compare Exod. xviii. 8.

It toucheth thee, and thou art confounded.
 6 Hath not thy fear been thy confidence?
 And thy hope, the uprightness of thy ways!
 7 Remember, I pray, who innocent hath perished?
 And where have the upright been cut off?
 8 As I have seen, they who plow iniquity
 And sow wickedness, reap the fruits thereof;
 9 By the blast of God they perish,
 And by his anger are they consumed.
 10 The roaring of the lion, and noise of the fierce lion, [trated.
 And the teeth of the young lions are frus-
 11 The stout lion perisheth for want of prey,
 And the whelps of the lioness are scattered.
 12 Now to me a matter was secretly brought,
 And mine ear received a little of it.
 13 Amid the agitations of night visions,
 When deep sleep falleth on men,
 14 Fear and trembling seized me,
 And "greatly" did my bones shake.
 15 Then a spirit passed on before me,
 And the hair of my flesh rose on end.
 16 It stood, but I could not discern its form;
 A figure was before mine eyes; [ing,
 There was silence, and I heard a voice, say-
 17 Shall a mortal be just before God?
 Shall a man be pure before his maker?
 18 Lo! in his servants he putteth no trust,
 Nor ascribeth glory to his angels; [clay.
 19 Much less to those who inhabit houses of Whose foundation is only dust!
 They are crushed as the moth-worm!
 20 From morning to evening they are cut down;
 Unregarded they are ever perishing.
 21 Doth not their every excellence pass away?
 They die, nor have they attained wisdom.
 1 Call now; is there one who will answer
 thee?

6. Hath not thy] Various renderings have been given to this verse. The text is followed, only supposing a trajection of the vau. The sense seems to be, 'Hast thou not founded thy confidence in thy own supposed piety; and thy hope, in the supposed innocence of thy ways?' Hence Eliphaz insinuates that he considered Job's religion doubtful, as the next verse proves.

10. Are frustrated] In this and the following verse, we have the same sentiment figuratively expressed as is contained in the 9th and 10th.

13-16. The force and beauty of this passage cannot be equalled in all the compass of ancient or modern literature. Virgil's—gelidusque per ima cucurrit Ossa tremor—is flat compared with the 14th verse. The 15th verse contains the boldest and most fearful picture that has ever been drawn of the effects of extreme horror. 14. (a) Sept.

17. Be just before God] The common version 'more just than God,' is scarcely probable. The sense given is supported by Num. xxxii. 22. Jer. li. 5. and other places.

18. Glory to his angels] The common signification of מלאכים is unquestionably praise, glory, honour, splendour, &c. It occurs frequently in a construct state; and this sense is more agreeable to the context than that usually attributed. The design of the passage is evidently to declare the imperfection of the highest order of creatures in comparison with the perfection of the Creator, as a lesson of humility to sinful, frail, and mortal man.

19. As the moth-worm] That is, as easily as the moth-worm corrodes and destroys a garment. Compare ch. xiii. 28. and Is. li. 8.

And to which of the holy ones wilt thou turn?
 For wrath slayeth the foolish, 2
 And envy killeth the simple.
 I have seen the foolish striking root; [tion. 3
 But I marked his abode for sudden destruc-
 Far from safety are his children; 4
 They are oppressed in the gate, and none
 delivereth;
 Whose harvest the famished devoureth, 5
 And seizeth it even to the very thorns:
 The robber swalloweth up their substance.
 Truly affliction cometh not from the dust, 6
 Nor doth trouble spring from the ground;
 Yet is man born unto trouble 7
 As the bird-tribes for soaring aloft.
 Verily I would seek to the Almighty, 8
 And to God would I commit my cause;
 Who doeth things great and unsearchable, 9
 Wonderful things which no one can number;
 Who giveth rain on the earth, 10
 And sendeth waters on the fields;
 Who raiseth the lowly on high, 11
 And mourners are exalted to safety:
 Who frustrateth the designs of the crafty, 12
 Nor can their hands accomplish the enterprise.
 Who taketh the wise in their own craftiness 13
 And rendereth vain the counsel of the wily.
 By day they meet with darkness, 14
 And they grope at noon-day as in the night.
 But the desolate he saveth from their mouth, 15
 And the poor from the hand of the mighty.
 Hence to the needy there is hope, 16
 And iniquity stoppeth her mouth.
 'Happy is the man whom God correcteth! 17
 Hence despise not the chastening of the Almighty,
 For he maketh sore, and bindeth up; 18
 He woundeth, and his hands also heal.

20. From morning] That is, in the space of a single day they are cut off.—Unregarded] The event being so common, it is little noticed. How true is this sentiment; and how painful to a reflecting mind that it should be so!

21. Their every] Literally, 'the excellence which is in them;' that is, any kind of excellence which they possess.

CHAP. V. 1. Call now] Eliphaz considered the complaints of his friend as an arraignment of providence.—The holy ones] The term קדושים here, ch. xv. 15. Zech. xiv. 5. and Dan. viii. 13. denotes not holy men, but holy angels.

3. Marked his abode] See Heath, and compare Ezra viii. 20. and Amos vi. 1. Dathe renders, 'I presaged his sudden destruction.'

5. To the very thorns] This is our common version. He had his eye on the incursions of the Sabeans and the Chaldeans.

6, 7. Truly affliction] These spring from an established law of God's moral government, who hath made it as natural for man to suffer, having offended him, as it is for the bird-tribes to fly.—Bird-tribes] All the Greek versions, that of Jerom and the Syriac, render, birds, only some of them restrict it to the eagle.

8-16. Verily I would seek to] To rouse him out of his despair, and at the same time fix the conviction that his downfall was caused by his sins, he sets before him, in one blended view, the astonishing operations of divine providence.

15. The desolate] By considering מחרב as a participle, the object of the verb is given, and that makes the first line parallel with the second.

17-26. Happy is the man] As a further motive to re-

- 19 In six troubles he shall deliver thee,
And in seven, no evil shall touch thee.
- 20 In famine he shall preserve thee from death,
And in war from the power of the sword.
- 21 When the tongue scourgeth, thou shalt be hid,
Nor shalt thou fear approaching desolation.
- 22 At desolation and famine thou shalt laugh,
Nor of the wild beasts shalt thou be afraid.
- 23 For with stones of the field shalt thou be in league. [thee.
And the wild-beasts shall be at peace with
- 24 Know also that prosperous shall be thy tent;
Thou shalt inspect thine abode, and miss nothing.
- 25 Yea, know that numerous shall be thy seed,
And thine offspring as the grass of the earth.
- 26 In ripe old age shalt thou come to the grave,
As the corn-shock is gathered in its season.
- 27 Lo! this we have searched out; thus it is;
Attend, and know it for thine own good.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1520. Job replieth to Eliphaz, excusing his complaints from the greatness of his calamities; still desireth death, and complains of the treatment received from his friends; shows how natural a person in his circumstances looks to the grave for repose.

- 1 THEN Job replied, and said,
2 O that my grief was thoroughly weighed!
And my calamity was poised in the balances!
3 For now is it heavier than the sand of the sea;
Hence my words are vehement. [sea;
4 For the arrows of the Almighty are within Whose poison drinketh up my spirit: [me,
The terrors of God array themselves against me.
- 5 Brayeth the wild-ass over the grass,
Or loweth the ox over his fodder?
- 6 Can what is insipid be eaten without salt?
Or is there savour in the white of an egg?
- 7 But what things my soul refused to touch, penance, he represents afflictions as divine remedies; and displays the blessings they procure to those who are reformed. (o) Versions and MSS.

23. The stones of the field] This bold metaphor may denote protection in travelling, as well as the next. Compare Ps. xci. 11—13.

24. And miss nothing] Scott renders, 'not miscarry.' For the sense given to מָסַח see Schultens and Gesenius.

26. In ripe old age] An easy death in a good old age, a worthy and respected character, and an honourable interment, are the ideas conveyed in this rural comparison.

CHAP. VI. 3. Are vehement] So Scott renders; and nothing can be more absurd, than to make Job say, his words were swallowed up, that he could not find words to express his feelings, at the very time he was expressing them in language the most forcible and vehement. Job, perceiving the suspicions of his friends, discovers the varying emotions of his mind through the chapter.

4. Arrows of the] As poisoned arrows were used in war in those days, the metaphor seems founded on that custom.

5—7. These verses contain a reason for his complaints; drawn from mute animals, which are not wont to be uneasy without cause.

7. In my sickness] I have followed Jerom, who seems to have read כָּרִי. The sense seems to be, That as a sick man is forced to a diet, which in health he would despise, so was Job now constrained to hear the surmises of his friends against his piety and integrity.

- Even they in my sickness are become my

That God would resolve and crush me;— 9

Then should I yet have comfort; 10
Yea should he not spare, I would exult in

For the words of the Holy One I have not
What is my strength that I should hope? 11
And what mine end that I should prolong my life?
Is my strength the strength of stones? 12
Is my flesh durable as brass?
Behold! there is no help to me in myself, 13
And vital strength is driven from me.
To one afflicted his friend should be kind, 14
But he casteth off the fear of the Almighty.
Deceitful are my brethren as the brook; 15
As impetuous torrents which pass away.
They roll on turbid with ice, 16
And in them the snow is dissolved.
What time they become warm, they vanish; 17
When hot, they are consumed from their place.
The paths of their course are diminished; 18
They ascend in vapour and perish.
The companies of Tema anxiously look; 19
The Caravans of Sheba eagerly expect them.
They are ashamed, because of their conti- 20
dence;
They come thither and are confounded.
Thus are ye become now unto me; 21
Ye see my abasement and are afraid.
Have I ever said, Bestow on me a favour? 22
Or, From your substance present a gift?
Or, Deliver me from the hand of the enemy? 23
Or, Rescue me from the power of oppressors?
Instruct me, and I will be silent; [me. 24
And in what I have erred, make known to How forcible are just arguments! 25

8—10. Reflection on the unkindness of his friends makes him break out in a vehement wish for immediate death.

10. For the words] The sense is, he had not refused to obey the divine will.

11—13. His vehement passion abating, he falls into a strain of soft and tender complaint.

13. Behold] So Jerom and others render the participle הִנֵּה. It occurs only Num. xvii. 28. and here, and the sense given suits each place.—And vital strength] So Heath and Scott render, which the parallelism requires and supports.

14—20. He proceeds to upbraid his friends with having failed him in his need. He introduces the subject with delicacy, and illustrates it by a simile exquisitely beautiful, considered as a description of a scene of nature in the deserts of Arabia.

18. The paths of their] That is, they run shorter and shorter, as the sun continues to beat on them, and as their supplies from the mountains fail.—They ascend in vapour] Literally, 'they ascend into the void,' the atmosphere; that is, they are exhaled.

20. Are confounded] That is with disappointment.

21. Thus are ye] You have in a similar manner deceived my hope and expectation.

25. Schultens observes, that the orientals often use the same word in different senses in the same period; and he

But how doth your reasoning convince?

 28 Now, therefore, be pleased to look on me;
 Even in your presence am I found false?
 29 Return, I pray, there may be no iniquity;
 Yea, return; in this affair I may be just.
 30 What iniquity is there on my tongue?
 Cannot my taste discern what is depraved?

1 Is there not a set time for man upon earth?
 Are not his days as the days of a hireling?
 2 As the bond-slave daily panteth after the

 My skin is shrivelled and become loathsome.
 6 Swifter are my days than the shuttle;
 They are even completed without hope.
 7 O remember that my life is a breath;
 Nor shall mine eye again see good.

 11 Therefore I will not restrain my mouth;
 I will speak in the anguish of my spirit;
 I will complain in the bitterness of my soul.
 12 Am I a sea, or a monster of the deep,
 That thou settest a guard over me?
 13 When I say, My bed shall refresh me,

My couch shall ease my complaint;
 Then thou scarest me with dreams, 14
 And with visions thou terrifiest me.
 Hence my soul chooseth strangling, 15
 And death rather than my present life:
 I loathe it; I would not thus live for ever. 16
 Let me alone, for my days are vanity.
 What is man, that thou shouldst bring 17
 him up? [him?
 And that thou shouldst set thy heart upon
 That thou shouldst visit him every morning, 18
 And prove him every moment?
 How long wilt thou not turn from me, 19
 Nor allow me even to swallow my spittle?
 I have sinned! what can I do to thee, 20
 O thou inspector 'of the hearts' of men?
 Why hast thou set me up as a mark for thee,
 So that I am become a burden to myself?
 Why dost thou not pardon my transgression, 21
 And take away mine iniquity?
 For soon shall I lie down in the dust;
 Then shalt thou seek me, but I shall not be.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1520. Bildad's reply to Job, who alleges the divine justice and the maxims of the ancients to prove the destruction of the wicked.

THEN answered Bildad, the Shuhite, and 1
 said,
 How long wilt thou utter such things? 2
 And the words of thy mouth be as a strong
 Doth God pervert judgment? [wind? 3
 Doth the Almighty pervert justice?
 Though thy children sinned against him, 4
 And he cast them away in their transgression;
 Yet wouldst thou earnestly seek to God, 5
 And to the Almighty make thy supplication:
 If thou wert pure and upright, 6
 Surely now he would awake up for thee,
 And make prosperous thy righteous abode.
 Though thy beginning be small, 7
 Yet should thy latter end greatly increase.
 Inquire, now, of the former generation; 8 considers הִיכִיחַ denotes to convince, and הִרְבִּיחַ to reprove. This distinction is adopted.

29. In this affair I may] Literally, 'As yet my righteousness may be in this.' The noun with the affix is used for the verb. Compare Ps. li. 6.

CHAP. VII. 1. Is there not] There appears a close connexion between the last verse of the sixth chapter and this. He had said, 'Is there iniquity in my tongue, &c.' He could perceive nothing criminal in his wishing for death.

2. Panteth after] Job reasons from analogy. As rest and wages are the justifiable desire of the wearied labourer; ease and death are equally so of the miserable.

3. So I; who am] That is, so do I pant for death, for the end of my toils, and of my sufferings.

5. My flesh] What a picture of one of the most afflicting diseases! Maundrel saw a leper at Shechem, and remarks; 'The whole distemper indeed, as it there appeared, was so noisome, that it might well pass for the utmost corruption of the human body on this side the grave.'

6. Without hope] He means there was no hope of the continuance of his life.

7. A breath] So the word is rendered in the common version, ch. ix. 18. and xix. 17, and it is more expressive than wind.

12. Am I a sea] He alludes to its force and restlessness. 15. My present life] Literally, 'my bones.' He was reduced to a mere skeleton, by the force of the disease.

17, 18. Bring him up] So Dathie renders these verses; and the sense is, Why dost thou form man, take care of him in infancy, and even to manhood, and then overwhelm him with afflictions? To visit often signifies to afflict; comp. chap. x. 8, &c.

19. Swallow my] This metaphor is equivalent to the phrase, 'allow me to breathe.' It means, his sufferings were heavy, and without any interval of ease.

20. What can I do] That is, What dost thou require me to do, that I may make some expiation, (a) Sept.

CHAP. VIII. 4. In their transgression] This speaker, without ceremony, maintains that Job's children had been cut off for their sins: a sentiment which must have affected the sufferer's mind in no little degree.

5. Yet wouldst thou] He thinks now to soften the foregoing uncharitable insinuation, and yet supposeth him to have continued hitherto a contumacious sinner.

- And search out the experience of their fathers; [thing;
- 9 For we are but of yesterday, and know no-
- 10 For like the shadow are our days upon earth. Shall they not teach thee, and say to thee, And from their own mind utter these words?

- 13 Such are the paths of all who forget God; So perisheth the hope of the impious. [off,
- 14 In this manner shall his confidence be cut And his trust shall be like the spider's web;
- 15 He may lean on his web, but it shall not abide;
- May hold fast to it, but it shall not endure.
- 16 He is verdant as a vine before the sun, Which shooteth its branches over his garden;
- 17 Which windeth its roots about a spring, 'And among' the stones doth it flourish.
- 18 When it is destroyed from its place, This will disown it, I have not seen thee.
- 19 Lo, this is its short-lived prosperity! And from the ground shall others shoot forth.
- 20 Behold! God will not despise the sincere, Nor strengthen the hands of evil doers.
- 21 Even yet he will fill thy mouth with laughter, And thy lips with shouting. [shame,
- 22 They that hate thee shall be clothed with And the tent of the wicked be no more.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1520. Job acknowledges God's justice; but maintains that afflictions do not prove a man to be impious; he expostulates with God, and requests some abatement of his sufferings.

- 1 THEN Job answered and said,
2 Truly I know that thus it is,
And how can man be just with God?
3 If it be his pleasure to contend with him,

11. Can the paper-reed] So the Sept. render נָמָה; and as those translators lived in Egypt, where the paper-reed grew, they had the best means of information.

13. Such are the] This is the moral application of the comparison. As the paper-reed, or the flag, cannot grow without mire and water, so there would be no afflictions to the sincerely pious.

15. He may lean] Having compared the ground of his confidence to the spider's web, he represents him vainly leaning on this web, and strengthening himself on it, as if it would be his safety and defence.

16. He is verdant] He expatiates on their prosperity and overthrow. The metaphors are taken from a garden plant, perhaps a vine.

17. About a spring] The word נָחַל occurs, Eccles. iv. 12, in the sense given, and often denotes a wave: compare ch. xxxviii. 11. Ps. lxxxiv. 10. In other places, it denotes a heap of stones, or ruins; but this is inapposite, as the same thought occurs in the next line. (v) Sept.

18. When it is destroyed] The verb is used impersonally, and with the pronominal affix has the sense of the passive, 'When one shall destroy it'; or, 'When it is destroyed,' being synonymous.

21. Even yet] That is, provided thou art sincere and upright, or will become so by repentance.

CHAP. IX. 2. I know that] He alludes to the remark, 'Doth God pervert judgment.'

He cannot answer him one charge of a thou-
Wise in heart and mighty in strength, [sand. 4
Who can resist him and prosper?
Who unexpectedly plucketh up mountains; 5
Who subverteth them in his anger;
Who shaketh the earth out of her place. 6
And maketh her pillars awfully to tremble:
Who commandeth the sun, and he riseth not,
And on the stars impresseth his seal.
He alone boweth the heavens, 8
And treadeth on the billows of the sea.
He maketh Arcturus, Orion, and the Plei- 9
And the hidden chambers of the south. [ades,
He doeth great things past finding out; 10
Wonderful things which no one can number.
Lo! he goeth by me, but I see him not; 11
He passeth on also, but I do not perceive him.

Lo! he taketh away, who can hinder him? 12
Who shall say unto him, What doest thou?
Will not God turn away his anger? 13
Then beneath him must the mightiest stoop.
How much less could I answer him— 14
Could I choose out arguments against him?
To whom, were I just, I would not reply, 15
But to my judge would make supplication.
If I call, will he then reply to me? 16
I cannot believe he will listen to my voice;
For with a tempest he overwhelmeth me, 17
And multiplieth my wounds without cause.
He doth not suffer me freely to breathe, 18
But with bitter griefs he hath filled me.

Should I appeal to strength, lo! he is 19
mighty;
If to justice, who will appoint me a time?
Should I justify myself, my own mouth 20
would condemn me; [verse.
Or say I am upright, it would prove me per-
Were I indeed upright, I would not own it; 21
I myself would despise my own life.
This one thing I do therefore affirm, 22

4. Who can resist] So Jerom and others render.

5. Who unexpectedly] This is allowed to be the sense of the words לֹא יָדָע. Scott considers this verse to the eighth as describing an earthquake, with its awfully sublime circumstances. Compare Ps. lxxviii. 9, &c. and ch. xxxvii. 9.

11. Lo! he goeth by me] According to this version, Job recounts God's wonderful operations, the manner in which he works. However near, he is invisible; though exerting the greatest power, the eye cannot see him; yea, when he takes away a man's health, blessings, &c. such is his greatness and sovereignty, who can hinder him? or who shall say, What doest thou?

13. The mightiest] Literally 'the helpers of pride,' which, according to the Hebrew, signifies the proudest or most powerful.

14. Answer him] That is, in judgment, so as to support, and victoriously defend my cause.

16. Will he then] He is too great to enter into controversy with me; I cannot, &c. Job assigns the reason of his doubts in the two next verses.

19. Should I appeal] That is, were my cause to be decided by strength, I could not hope to prevail; and if by justice, who can with authority set the time?

21. I myself] So נִשְׁפָּט is used for the pronoun, as it often is; and the sense given to הִתְעַבֵּד it frequently admits.

- That the upright and wicked he alike destroyeth.
- 23 When the scourge slayeth suddenly,
He laugheth at the trial of the innocent.
- 24 The earth is given into the hand of the wicked;
He covereth the faces of her judges;
If it be not he who doeth this, who is it?
- 25 Swifter than the post are my days,
They glide away, they see no good.
- 26 They haste on like the swift-sailing skiffs;—
Like the eagle that darteth on his prey.
- 27 When I say, I will forget my complaint;
I will abandon my sorrow, and look cheerful;
- 28 Then do I shudder in all my limbs;
I know that thou wilt not acquit me.
- 29 I must be accounted wicked;
Why then should I labour in vain?
- 30 Though I wash myself in snow-water,
And cleanse my hands with soap;
- 31 Yet wouldst thou plunge me in the ditch,
And mine own clothes would abhor me.
- 32 For he is not a man like me that I should answer him;
That we should come together in judgment.
- 33 Nor is there an umpire between us,
Who may lay his hand on us both.
- 34 Yet let him remove his rod from me,
And let not his terror confound me;
- 35 Then would I speak and not fear him,
But thus can I not do in my present state.
- 1 Weary am I of my very life;
I will give a loose to my complaint:
I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.
- 2 I will say to God, Do not condemn me;
Show me wherefore thou contendest with me.
- 3 Is it proper for thee that thou shouldst oppress;

24. The earth is given] This verse is obscure and ambiguous; and different versions have been given to it. Sept. is adopted, which gives the clearest and most coherent sense.

25, 26. Swifter than] His own unhappy state being an instance of that inequality, in the distribution of good and evil, which he had been asserting, he naturally falls into a description of his miserable situation. This is what he represents by three expressive images of celerity, which rise one above the other in beautiful gradation.

27. I will abandon] Literally, 'I will leave my looks,' &c. Our translators properly deserted the idiom, whom I have followed. Compare Jer. viii. 18.

28. Wilt not acquit me] That is, so treat me as to remove my afflictions, and clear my character from the imputations thrown on it.

29. I must be] That is, I am treated as if I were so in providence; and condemned as such by my friends.

30, 31. The sense is, 'Did I maintain my perfect innocence before thee, thou wouldst, such is thy wisdom, prove me guilty; and such is thy purity, that in contrast I should be found impure.'

32, 33. Who may lay his hand] The laying the hand on both parties implies coercive power to enforce the execution of his decrees. This no one could have over the Almighty: it was therefore vain to contend with him.

35. But thus can I not] This version arises from considering עָנִי not as a preposition, but as a verbal noun, with the אִינִי, in which sense Michaelis understands it, ch. xxiii. 10. Job was smarting under the rod of affliction, and the

- That thou shouldst despise the work of thy hands,

I know that these were also thy purposes.
If I sin, then thou markest me, 14
And from mine iniquity will not acquit me.

terrors of God alarmed him; if these were removed, he could then speak without fear.

CHAP. X. 3. Is it proper] He argues here from the honour and interest of religion. To treat him as a wicked man, who led a pious life, was giving reputation to the principles of infidels who deny a providence.

8. Thy hands formed] His argument now is; that it looks like caprice, to bestow great skill and labour on a work, and then, on a sudden and without just cause, dash it in pieces.

9. Remember] Here he pleads the common mortality. He must soon die, as all other men; what occasion then for so much torture to dispatch him?

10—12. This is as just an account of the principles of the embryo, and of the several stages of its growth to a perfect foetus, as modern anatomy, with all its discoveries and improvements, can give us.

15. When I regard] I consider אֲנִי as the participle; and without any torturing of the text, it yields a just and connected sense. From the 14th to the 17th verses, he accuseth the divine government of extreme rigour. Elihu had his eye particularly on this obnoxious passage. Chap. xxxv. 2, 3.

16, 17. Roused] Literally, 'he will raise up himself.' This refers to the lion, and expresses his self-importance and pride. The whole is an admirable picture of the sport which lions, and indeed all the feline tribe, exercise over their prey, before they finally devour it.

That from the womb I had been borne to the grave!

CHAP. XI. 2. Shall not] Zophar answers only, and with much virulence, to Job's asseverations of his innocence, and to his questioning God about the reason of his afflictions.

4. My conduct] This version is supported by the authority of the Greek, Syriac, and Arabic. Job had said nothing about the purity of his doctrine. He seems to refer to what Job had said, ch. ix. 15, 25, 30, and x. 7.

5. O that God] This is a bitter reflection on Job's presumptuous wish to debate his cause with God himself. Chap. ix. 34, 35; x. 2.

6. That he would] Dathe supposes that wisdom denotes the reason of the divine government; and he connects this with the following verse: Scott, the counsels of God that fix the kind and measure of his punishments; and by the secrets of wisdom, his punishments in a future world, which are a secret to us at present.

7. Canst thou] The judgments of God, he tells him, are as inscrutable in their reasons, as they are rapid and irresistible in their execution.

10. If pursuing he seize] As the other terms refer to the ancient method of trying a criminal, I adopt the Arabic sense of מִשְׁפָּט. See Michaelis' Sup. in verb. The criminal is first apprehended, then bound, the assembly called, and the charges are preferred, and who can reply? If God seize by some calamity, a man becomes the prisoner of providence, and then God makes a public example of him.

12. Let then the] The most part of the critics give to

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1520. Job replies to Zophar, censures him and his other friends, and gives a noble description of God's dominion; maintains his integrity; pleads with God the shortness of life, begs to be released by death, and expresses his hopes of a resurrection.

- THEN Job answered and said, 1
Truly ye are the people of knowledge, 2
And with you is the 'perfection' of wisdom!
Yet I have understanding as well as you; 3
I deem not myself inferior to you;
For who knoweth not such things as these?
A derision to his friend am I; 4
'He calleth on God, and let him answer him;'

יִלְכַּבּ the sense of acquiring wisdom or becoming wise. This verse is an inference from the preceding, and to show the connexion, it is necessary to render in the imperative. — And the colt of the] The former line respects hypocrisy, this regards fierceness, untractableness, obstinacy, Gen. xvi. 12. For such an one to be born or reborn a man, is for him to become reasonable, and to act with humanity. This line is an Arabic proverb, which is explained in the sense given. See Schultens Com.

13—20. If thou prepare] This exhortatory part of his discourse is, in substance, the same with that of Eliphaz, ch. v. 8.

14—16. Wickedness of thy hands] Riches acquired by violence or bribery are meant.—Or but remember] Thou shalt recollect thy past sufferings only in such a manner as to heighten thy felicity.

17. Darkness itself] The Chald. Syr. and Arab. thus render. Job 'when become penitent,' should become as splendid as the morning.

18. Where thou diggest] This most probably refers to digging of wells or springs; a circumstance frequently mentioned in the patriarchal history. Gen. xxvi. 13—22.

20. The eyes of the] Disappointment is often expressed by the failing of the eyes; compare chap. xxxi. 16. Levit. xxvi. 16.—Is their hope] They expect no relief but in death.

CHAP. XII. 4, 5. A derision to his] Scott's version of these difficult verses is adopted. The derision or insult is

 The misleader and the misled he governeth.
17 He leadeth counsellors away spoiled,
 And judges he maketh fools.
18 The authority of kings he taketh away,
 And bindeth a girdle on their loins.
19 He leadeth viceroys away spoiled,
 And brave warriors he overthroweth.
20 He depriveth orators of their eloquence,
 And the discretion of the aged he taketh

 Ye are all physicians of no value.

contained in the middle clause of the verse marked by commas. The version of the 5th verse depends on the sense of לִפְדִּי, which, as one word, means a lamp or torch. The best critics now regard the ל as a preposition, and פִּדִּי as the noun, which denotes calamity, misfortune. Compare Prov. xxiv. 22.

6. Into whose hand] Jerom renders, 'When he hath given all things into their hand.' Job contrasts his state with the prosperity of the wicked.

7—10. This beautiful apostrophizing of the inanimate and brute creation is only a poetical way of saying, that the great author and disposer of life had given into the hands of robbers the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the heaven, &c.

11, 12. The ear try words] That is, the internal ear of the mind judgeth of the propriety and justness of a discourse, as the palate of food. Job here adverts to Eliphaz, and the other two who had talked so ignorantly of the ways of Providence; and in the following verses establishes his position, ch. ix. 22, that God destroyeth the perfect and the wicked.

15. He withholdeth] This is a concise description of a general drought on the failure of the equinoctial rains; and of an inundation, such as might happen in Job's country from the torrents caused by too great an abundance of rain.

16. The misleader] The misleader signifies any foolish or wicked ruler, who by his misconduct brings ruin on his country; and the misled are the people so ruined. God overrules both, to serve the wise ends of his providence.

17—25. This is a fine description of a country conquered and ravaged. The king, with his counsellors and judges, is taken captive; then are seized the viceroys; and the brave warriors who still maintain the contest are slain. Next, orators, the aged, and nobles are treated with contempt, and the brave are forced to submit.

22. This verse is transposed to the conclusion, as containing a reflection on the forementioned events.

CHAP. XIII. 1, 2. Lo! all this] These two verses ought not to have been disjoined from the former chapter. They authenticate the facts alleged in it.

4. Forgers of lies] That is, inventing and propagating false accounts of the ways of Providence; like physicians, who mistake the nature of the disorder, and apply improper remedies.

7, 8. Speak wickedly] They spoke wickedly for God, because to justify him they were unjust to their friend, They talk deceitfully for God; because they cunningly kept out of sight the truths that made against their own cause.

9. Or as a man] Delude is preferred to mock, as the word is rendered deceived, Gen. xxxi. 7. The term signifies to impose on a person by flattering his humour at the expense of truth.

12. Swelling heaps] He means their high-flown discourses, on the happy condition of pious and virtuous persons even in the present world; ch. v. 19—26.; xi. 15—19.

13. Let what may] So Schullens and others, who consider עַל כֵּן as elegantly repeated as in the preceding line, — My flesh in my teeth] The following idiomatical phrase, 'I

- 15 Lo ! he may slay me, yet in him will I trust ;
Still I will maintain my ways before him.
- 16 Yea this will become my salvation ;
For the impious will not so come before him.
- 17 Hear with attention my speech ;
And listen to my declaration.
- 18 Behold now I have ordered my cause,
I know that I shall be justified.
- 19 Who is he that can convict me in judgment ?
For then will I be silent, and expire.
- 20 Two things only, O God, do for me,
Then will I not shrink from thy presence :
- 21 Withdraw thy hand far from me,
And let not thy terror confound me :
- 22 Then do thou arraign, and I will answer ;
Or I will thus plead, and do thou reply to
- 23 What are mine iniquities and sins ? [me.
My transgression and sin make known to me.
- 24 Wherefore hidest thou thy face,
And accountest me for thine enemy ?
- 25 Wilt thou agitate the driven leaf ?
Or wilt thou pursue the dry stubble ?
- 26 For thou writest bitter things against me,
And entailest on me the iniquities of my
- 27 Thou puttest my feet also in a clog, [youth.
And thou watchest all my paths ;
Thou markest out the steps of my feet ;
- 28 When, as a rotten thing, 'I am consumed ;'
Like a garment which is moth-eaten.
- 1 As to man that is born of woman,
Few are his days, and full of trouble. [down.
- 2 He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut
He fleeth like the shadow, and abideth not.

will take my life in my hand, I will risk my life,' in some degree fixes the sense of this. 'I will take my flesh in my teeth,' I will suffer the greatest evils, and even eat my own flesh, Isa. ix. 20.

15. In him will I trust] The versions and the Keri read לֵב. The common version yields a good sense, expressing his resolution to trust in him, even to his last breath ; 'still he would,' &c.

16. Yea this will] This will be the means of proving my innocence, and clearing my character.

19. Can convict me] Dathe so renders ; and as to the sense Schultens and Smith.—Silent, and expire] I will not speak one word more, but be content to suffer death as a convict.

22. Do thou arraign] This is opposed to his resolution, ch. ix. 15 ; but he was now heated by debate, and acted under the influence of his passions.

23—25. Here is a rapid succession of interrogations, which carries an air of petulance in it. The style is too spirited to consist with reverence.

26. For thou writest] He was conscious of no other sins but the follies of his youth. He imagines he was now suffering for those inadvertencies ; which he thinks extremely hard.

27. Markest out] As an engraver on his metal. The sense is, that as a prisoner he was only allowed to walk in the appointed place.

28. I am consumed] So the Vulgate renders ; and Schultens and others follow it. This alludes to his disease, and implies that there was no necessity for God to distress him with other afflictions.

CHAP. XIV. 2. Like a flower] The first of these similes beautifully represents the tender composition of man's elegant frame, which is easily destroyed by the smallest accident : the other illustrates the emptiness of his enjoy-

- Wilt thou cast thine eyes on such an one, 3
And bring him into judgment with thee ?
Who can bring a pure from an impure thing ? 4
Not one.
- Since then his days are determined ; 5
The number of his months with thee ;
Thou hast fixed his bounds that he cannot Turn away from him that he may rest, [pass ; 6
Till he accomplish like the hireling his day.
- There is indeed hope in respect to a tree, 7
That, when cut down, it will sprout again,
And its young branch will not cease.
- Though its root grow old in the earth, 8
And its stock die in the ground ;
Through moisture it may yet flourish again, 9
And shoot forth boughs as when planted.
- But man dieth and wasteth away ; 10
Yea man expireth, and where is he ?
As the waters fail from a lake, 11
And the torrent is diminished and dried up ;
So man lieth down and shall not arise ; 12
Till the heavens be no more, he shall not Nor be roused out of his sleep. [awake,
- O that thou wouldst conceal me in hades ; 13
Wouldst hide me, till thine anger be past ;
Wouldst fix a time, and remember me !
- If a man die, shall he live again ? 14
All the days of my warfare will I wait,
Till my time to be relieved cometh.
- Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee : 15
Thou wilt yearn towards the work of thy hand.
- But now thou numberest my steps ; 16
Dost thou not watch over my sin ?
- Thou tiest up mine iniquities ; 17

ments, and the celerity with which his life is continually hastening to its period.

4. Who can bring] This is the most literal version of the text ; and Job, according to this rendering, pleads some mitigation of punishment from the consideration of man's fallen and depraved condition.

7—12. There is indeed hope] He enforceth his petition for ease (ver. 6.) by another consideration : there is no coming back from the grave into this world ; to enjoy a second life, whatever future state there may be. The images illustrate this sentiment.

9. Through moisture] Literally, 'the odour of water.' The Arabs use the term 'odour' for any kind of exhalation ; and doubtless the two words mean moisture, which is so necessary to vegetation in the hot climate of Arabia.

12. Till the heavens] Some think there is at least an obscure reference to the general restitution of all things, when the visible heavens shall undergo some change and exist no more as they now do, Ps. cii. 26 ; Luke xxi. 33 ; 2 Pet. iii. 7, 10 ; Rev. xxi. 1.

13—15. In hades] This term is adopted as better expressing the ambiguous term שְׁאוֹל, than either grave or hell. It denotes the invisible state, or the state of the dead, whatever it may be. See Campbell's excellent Dissertation, and Peters on Job.

14. My warfare] Heath has observed that both the words עָרַבַי et חַיָּסִי are military terms, the first denoting the time a soldier remains on duty ; the latter his dismissal from it. The first christian apologists argued from analogy as Job does, that as the flowers die and revive, the trees, grown old and dead in winter, recover life again, and bud and blossom in the spring : so expectandum nobis etiam corporis ver est—We too shall have our spring-time of a resurrection.

17. Thou tiest up] The allusion is to the documents which are produced in courts of justice.

- Thou sealest my transgressions in a bag.
 18 Truly the falling mountain wasteth away,
 And the rock is removed from its place;
 19 The waters wear down the stones,
 And floods wash away the soil of a land;
 And thou destroyest the hope of man.
 20 Thou prevailest always against him, and he departeth; [him away.
 Thou changest his countenance, and sendest
 21 His sons are honoured, but he knoweth it not; [it.
 They are oppressed, but he doth not perceive
 22 But his flesh upon him shall be corrupted;
 Since his vital breath within him hath perished.

CHAPTER XV.

HERE BEGINS THE THIRD PART OF THIS BOOK.

B. C. 1520. Eliphaz again attacks Job for his impiety; he appealeth to tradition, as proving that sinners are punished.

- 1 THEN answered Eliphaz, the Temanite,
 and said,
 2 Should a wise man utter vain knowledge?
 And fill his bosom with the east wind?
 3 Reasoning with words which cannot profit,
 And with speeches which can never avail?
 4 Truly thou makest reverence useless,
 And restrainest prayer before God.
 5 For thine own mouth teacheth thine iniquity, Though thou choosest the tongue of the crafty. [thee,
 6 Thine own mouth, and not I, condemneth
 And thine own lips testify against thee.
 7 Wast thou born the first of mankind?
 Or wast thou formed before the hills?
 8 Hast thou heard the secret counsel of God?
 And dost thou restrain wisdom to thyself?
 9 What knowest thou that we know not?
 What understandest thou which we do not?

20. Thou changest] How strikingly just is this image! The sentence of mortality cannot be avoided; the altered looks of man indicate his approaching dissolution.

22. His flesh] If כָּבַד signify to mar, spoil, it may be applied to the flesh of the human body being marred or corrupted in the grave.—Since his vital breath] It is well known that נָשָׁם signifies the animal frame, 'that which lives by breathing,' including the circulation of the blood, and all the inward vital functions. The preposition is designedly used in two related senses in the two hemistichs. For the sense given in the latter, compare Psa. xlii. 5, 6, 11, and Hosea xi. 8. In this view of the passage, the conclusion is connected with the subject, &c.

CHAP. XV. 2. Fill his bosom] The word בֶּטֶן, generally translated belly, implies the chest or bosom, as well as the abdominal organs.—East wind] This wind is vehement and noxious in Arabia. Hence Eliphaz accuses Job, not only of uttering 'vain knowledge,' but of maintaining sentiments the most detestable and injurious.

4. Reverence useless] He taxeth Job's doctrine of an unequal providence with impiety. See chap. ix. 29. It tended, he says, to subvert religion; by confounding all distinction of characters in the distribution of good and evil.

8. Secret counsel] That is, admitted to that assembly (speaking after the manner of men) where the plans of his providence are arranged, and his decrees passed.

11. Consolations of God] So he calls their promises made

- With us are the aged and hoary headed, 10
 Whose days exceed those of thy father.
 Are the consolations of God of little value 11
 with thee, [thee?
 And a gentle address of no account with
 How doth thy heart hurry thee away? 12
 And at what do thine eyes wink?
 That thou turnest thy spirit against God, 13
 And pourest forth such speeches from thy mouth?
 What is man, that he should be pure? 14
 One born of woman, that he should be just?
 Lo, in his Holy ones, God doth not confide; 15
 And the heavens are not pure in his sight!
 How much less abominable and corrupt man, 16
 Who drinketh up iniquity like water!
 I will now show thee, listen to me; 17
 And what I have seen I will also declare;
 Which the wise have told and not hid, 18
 And which they received from their fathers:
 To whom alone the land was given; 19
 And there passed not a stranger among them.
 The wicked is all his days in anguish; 20
 And the number of years is hid to the op-
 A dreadful sound is in his ears, [pressor. 21
 In peace the destroyer will come upon him.
 He expects not to return out of darkness, 22
 But that the sword lieth in wait for him.
 He wandereth abroad; for bread, where is it? 23
 He knoweth that for him a day of darkness is decreed.
 Distress and anguish fill him with dread; 24
 They prevail against him like a king.
 Who is prepared for the events of the battle.
 For he stretched out his hand against God; 25
 He bade defiance to the Almighty.
 He ran upon him with his neck, 26
 Upon the thick bosses of his buckler.
 Though he covered his face with fatness, 27
 And heaped fat on his loins;

to Job, on condition of his repentance, as the next line proves.

14, 15. What is man] His citation of the oracle (chap. iv. 17, &c.) is intended as a reproach of Job's disobedience to it by persisting to justify himself to God.

17—19. Eliphaz prefaces what he was going to say, by observing, that the truth of it was not only established by his own experience, but by the testimony of antiquity.

19. Not a stranger] No enemy invaded them; glancing at Job whose property the Sabeans and Chaldeans had seized.

20. And the number] The oppressor, or, as Tyndal renders, the tyrant, makes so many enemies, that he cannot count on living the number of years allotted to man.

21. Sound is in] He expects some invasion or plot against himself; and one time or another such event will come; for, 'in peace,' &c.

22. He expects not] When once he is stripped of his power, he does not expect to be restored. That he may escape the sword, he wandereth abroad, and wanteth bread.

24. Who is prepared] That is, who secures victory, by having troops in reserve to repair any disasters which may occur.

25. For he stretched] He now adverts to the crimes of the oppressor. These images are borrowed from the single combat, which was much in practice in the ancient wars.

27, 28. In these verses, the luxury and oppressions of the wicked man are described.

- 23 And dwelt in desolate cities,
Among houses which are not inhabited,
Which are appointed to become heaps;
29 He shall not be rich, nor his substance abide;
Nor shall their possession spread on the earth.
30 He shall not depart out of darkness;
A flame shall wither his branches.
And by the blast of God shall they pass away.
31 Let not him deceived trust in vanity;
For vanity shall he his recompense.
32 Before his time this shall be fulfilled,
And his branch shall not continue green.
33 He shall shed his grape as the vine,
And cast off his flower as the olive.
34 For the assembly of the impious shall be solitary,
And fire shall consume the tents of bribery.
35 They conceive mischief, and bear iniquity,
And their bosom prepareth a deception.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1520. Job complains of his friends; maintaining his innocence, he appealeth to God, and expects nothing but death.

- 1 THEN answered Job and said,
2 I have heard many such things as these;
Miserable comforters are you all.
3 Put an end to vain words!
What urgeth thee that thou answerest?
4 I also could speak like you;
If you were in my circumstances
I could heap up speeches against you,
And could shake my head at you.
5 But I would strengthen you with my mouth,
And the moving of my lips should assuage grief.
6 If I speak, my grief is not assuaged;
And if I forbear, what am I eased?
7 Surely now thou hast wearied me,

30. A flame] This most probably means lightning; and the 'blast of God' signifies the pestilential east wind.

31. Him deceived] By his prosperity for a season; let him not think that riches acquired by rapine and injustice will abide.

32. Before his time] That is, before his death. Though he appeared loaded with fruit like a vine, or an olive promising abundance, yet all shall perish, and he shall have nothing.

34. The impious] The following line fixes the sense of this; and as 'the tents of bribery' must mean unjust oppressors, so עֲרֵב תִּקְוָה cannot mean 'the assembly of hypocrites,' but rather, of profligate, impious men, who make no pretension to religion whatever.

CHAP. XVI. 4. If you were in] The word נִפְשׁ is here used only as a pronoun.

5. Would strengthen you] The common version is most natural. This reproof is imitatively tender, and at the same time exquisitely keen.

7. Now thou hast] Some suppose that Job addresses Eliphaz, but others more probably that he addresses God.

8. Thou hast fettered me] This Arabic sense is adopted of كَبַּס, supported by the Sept. and the cognate dialects.

9. His anger teareth] This is strong language, considered as addressed to God; but not stronger than what follows, ver. 12—14.

- And made desolate all my company.
Thou hast fettered me, which is for a witness; 8
My own leanness riseth up against me;
To mine own face it testifieth against me.
His anger teareth, and he persecuteth me; 9
He gnasheth upon me with his teeth;
Mine adversary darteth his eyes upon me.
They gape at me with their mouth; 10
In reproach they smite my cheeks;
With one consent they assemble against me.
God hath delivered me up to the ungodly, 11
And hath cast me into the hands of the wicked.
I was at ease, but he hath broken me up; 12
He seized me by the neck, and hath crushed
He set me up as a mark for himself. [me; 13
His archers compassed me around;
He pierced my reins, and did not spare;
He poured out my gall on the ground.
He stormed me with breach upon breach; 14
He rushed on me like a warrior.

- Sackcloth have I sewed on my skin, 15
And defiled my head with dust.
Grief-worn is my countenance, 16
And on mine eyelids is the shadow of death;
Not for the violence of my hands; 17
Yea, my prayer hath been pure.
O earth! cover no blood shed by me, 18
And let no place hide a cry against me.
Even now, behold, my witness is in heaven, 19
And he who knoweth me is on high.
My friends deride me, 20
But mine eye weepeth unto God.
O that a man might plead with God, 21
As a man pleadeth with his fellow-man.
For my few years are come to an end, 22
And I am going whence I shall not return.
My breath is confined; my days are extinct; 1
The sepulchres only await me.
Are not those present who insult me? 2
And is not mine eye fixed on their reproaches?

10. They gape at me] God uses my friends as his instruments, by whom he pours out his wrath upon me. They gape in the manner of savage beasts, ready to devour me.

11. To the ungodly] Job seems to judge that the character of his friends was not what he had once thought it.

12—14. He compares his case to that of a man who was seized by the hair of his head, and thrown down a precipice; then, with his limbs all broken, and scarce able to breathe, is set up for a mark to be shot to death with arrows.

15. And defiled my head] Literally, 'my horn,' but the Syriac gives 'head.' Job alludes to the forms of mourning.

17. Yea, my prayer] Job asserts his integrity; towards men he had been just, and sincere in his devotion before God.

18. O earth, cover] This is equivalent to saying, let not the blood which I have spilled be unrevenged. For the idiom compare Gen. iv. 10. xviii. 20, 21. Ezek. xxiv. 6, 7, 8.

19. He who knoweth me] This is parallel with witness. The Sept. Syr. and Vulg. support the version given.

20. Mine eye weepeth] Mine eye is directed to him; and my tears indicate the emotions and devout aspirations of my heart.

CHAP. XVII. 1. This verse is clearly connected with the concluding one of the preceding chapter, and contains the reason why he thought himself near his end.

2. And is not mine eye] That is, by their unfounded

- 3 Appoint, I pray, my surety with thee;
Who is he that will strike hands with me?
- 4 Since thou hast hid their heart from understanding,
Thou wilt not, therefore, exalt them.
- 5 He who, by flattery, denounceth friends,
Even the eyes of his children shall fail.
- 6 He hath made me a by-word of the people;
I am become a gazing-stock to them.
- 7 Therefore is mine eye dim with sorrow,
And all my members are as a shadow.
- 8 At this the upright will be astonished,
And the innocent roused against the impious.
- 9 For the just shall hold on his way.
And he of pure hands increase strength.
- 10 But as for you all, depart and begone now,
For I cannot find one wise among you.
- 11 My days are over; my purposes are Those which possessed my heart. [broken,
- 12 Night is appointed to me for day;
The light approaches to the darkness.
- 13 Truly I expect the grave to be my house;
In darkness I spread out my couch.
- 14 To corruption, I say, thou art my father,
To the worm, thou art my mother and my
- 15 Where then now is my hope? [sister.
My hope indeed, who shall see it?
- 16 To the solitude of the pit it shall descend,
And together we shall rest in the dust.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1520. Bildad continues the charge of presumption against Job; and describes the calamities of the wicked.

- 1 THEN answered Bildad, the Shuhite,
2 How long will ye use ensnaring words?

charges of injustice and hypocrisy, they keep both the eye of my body and mind fixed with surprise and indignation.

3. My surety] The thought of the injury done to his character, by these censurers, makes him break out on a sudden in this passionate request.

4. Exalt them] He excepts to the appointment of any of his three antagonists to plead the cause of God.

5. He, who by flattery] Job had before hinted at their arguing deceitfully for God, and accepting his person, Chap. xiii. 8, 9, 10.

6. A gazing stock] So Heath, who derives from צִרְתָּ, which in Chaldee signifies to expose.

8. Astonished] That a man of sincere piety should be thus afflicted and persecuted; but they will be roused to support the cause of religion against all the mistaken and attacks of the impious.

12. Night is] Most critics allow the verb יָשַׁן is used here impersonally. See Scott. The sense is, henceforth the day which I am to enjoy is the night of death: and the light which is ordained for me, is the darkness of the tomb.

13, 14. I expect the grave] This sense is given to שָׂאֵל here, as being that part of hades where the body was deposited.

16. It shall descend] The thought is beautiful. He gives personality to his hope, and represents this imaginary person, as lying down with him in the grave.

CHAP. XVIII. 2. Ensnaring words] The text has קָרַי, and the Arabic sense, *snare*s, is adopted; and snares of words mean as rendered.

3. As vile] Bildad insinuates they were accounted as beasts, not for their brutal practices, but for their ignorance, insincerity, &c.

4. O thou who] He seems to refer to the words of Job

Be prudent, and afterward we may speak.

Why are we accounted as beasts, 3

And reputed as vile in your sight?

Oh thou, who tearest thyself in thine anger, 4

Shall the earth be forsaken for thee?

Or the rock be removed from its place?

Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out, 5

And the flame of his fire shall not shine forth.

The light shall become dark in his tent, 6

And his lamp above him be extinguished.

The steps of his strength shall be straitened, 7

And his own counsel shall cast him down.

For by his own feet he is cast into the net; 8

He runneth to and fro in the toils.

The gin shall lay hold of him by the heel; 9

The noose shall prevail against him;

For its cordage lieth hid in the ground, 10

And its snares in the pathway.

Surrounding terrors shall affright him, 11

And, as if pursuing, shall put him to flight.

His strength shall pine away, 12

And destruction is ready at his side,

It shall devour the strength of his body, 13

The first born of death shall devour his strength. [fidence;

Uprooted from his tent shall be his con- 14

And this shall bring him to the king of terrors. [to him;

These shall inhabit his tent, none being left 15

Sulphur shall be scattered on his habitation.

His roots beneath shall be dried up, 16

And his branch above shall be cut off.

His memory shall perish from the land, 17

And he shall have no name in the street.

He shall be driven from light into darkness, 18

And chased out of the habitable world.

xiii. 14, and xvi. 9. The vocative of the third person is used for the second. Compare Obad. ver. 3. 4. Habak. ii. 13, 16. These are proverbial forms of speech, for altering what is fixed and unchangeable.

5, 6. Yea, the light] These metaphors denote, in general, the splendour and festivity in which such men live.

7—10. Bildad compares the wicked opulent man to the lion, but like the lion he is hunted and caught in the toils, and struggles to get loose in vain. Judgments pursue him, and seize hold on him.

11—13. Scott thinks that the rich wicked man is here represented, as pursued by a group of furies. He is seized by one of enormous size and strength, who is devouring him. His countenance is distorted with pain, and his features wild with horror. This represents Job's dreadful disease.

13. The first-born] The sentence of death gave birth to diseases; which allegorically are styled the offspring of death; and the most horrible disease, that which hath the preeminence in cruelty, is called, his first-born—The strength of his body] The common version is followed, as conveying the sense, if not the idiom.

14. His confidence] All that he gloried in, and trusted to; his numerous family and great possessions.—And this (that is the loss of all things in which he trusted) shall bring him] Death may justly be called 'the king of terrors,' and particularly to men without principle and hope.

15. These shall] Terrors, as the furies, shall inhabit his tent; nothing that belongs to him being preserved.

16. His roots] He illustrates the utter ruin of the wicked man, by that of a tree whose roots are blasted—of a person, wholly forgotten—who has no kindred to keep up his name among men.

- 19 He shall not have among his people, son or nephew.
Nor any remaining among his dwellings.
20 Posterity shall be astonished at his day,
As contemporaries were seized with horror.
21 Verily such are the dwellings of the wicked!
Such the place of him that knoweth not God!

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1520. Job replies to Bildad, complaining of the unkindness of his friends; paints his own miserable condition, entreats their pity, and professes his hope of a resurrection.

- 1 THEN answered Job, and said,
2 How long will ye vex my soul,
And break me down with words?
3 These ten times ye have reproached me;
Nor are ye ashamed thus proudly to treat me.
4 Be it a truth that I have erred;
Mine error remaineth to myself.
5 If ye will indeed boast against me,
Then prove against me my reproach.
6 Know now, that God hath overthrown me,
And hath inclosed me with his net,
7 Behold! I cry out of wrong, but am not heard;
I cry aloud, but there is no judgment.
8 He hath fenced up my way that I cannot pass;
And he hath placed darkness over my paths.
9 He hath stripped me of my glory,
And removed the crown from off my head.
10 He hath wholly destroyed me, and I am gone;

20. Posterity] The sense is given rather than the idiom. CHAP. XIX. 3. These ten times] Job means, they had repeatedly reproached him.—Nor are ye] The verb וְהָיָה occurs only here, and we are indebted to the Arabic for the sense of it. It signifies 'to stupefy, to confound, and to treat insolently.'

4. Mine error] He calls his own opinion, his error, according to the hypothesis of his friends.

5. Then prove] Demonstrate, by sound reasoning, the justness of your reproachful accusation.

7. There is no judgment] 'I am not brought to trial, though I have so earnestly requested it.'

8. He hath fenced] He compares his situation to that of a condemned malefactor, who is thrust down into a dark dungeon; and there bolted in. Compare Lam. iii. 7—9.

9. My glory—the crown] These seem to be metaphorical expressions, denoting the former dignity, and the honour paid to his authority, justice, and kindness.

10. Plucked up] The Arabic sense of נָסַע is adopted here as more suitable than the usual Hebrew one.

12. His troops came] The metaphors which follow, are borrowed from the works cast up by a besieging army, Isa. xxxvii. 33.

13—19. In these verses Job describes the effects his unusual calamities had on those around him; they ceased to regard him in the manner they had been accustomed to do.

17. My breath] The sense of the Vulg. is adopted in rendering this line. Thus Job finds an apology for his wife's avoidance of him, from the nature of the disease with which he was afflicted.—Even when I] The verb וְהָיָה does not signify, 'to entreat,' but 'to show kindness.' Michaelis states the radical sense of וְהָיָה to be, 'he groaned,' and then 'he showed favour or kindness.' The first sense of the verb is adopted.

18. Yea, young] The children of his slaves, born in his family. Nothing could so touchingly represent the contempt into which he was fallen.

- And my hope he hath plucked up as a tree.
He hath kindled his wrath against me, 11
And accounteth me as one of his enemies.
His troops came on together; 12
They banked up their way towards me,
And encamped round about my tent.
My brethren he hath put far from me; 13
And my friends are truly estranged from me.
My neighbours and friends cease to own me; 14
The sojourners in my house forget me.
My maids account me a stranger; 15
An alien am I become in their eyes.
I call to my servant, but he answereth not; 16
With my mouth I earnestly entreat him.
My breath is become loathsome to my wife, 17
Even when I deplore mine own offspring.
Yea, young children despise me; 18
I rise up, and they speak against me.
All the men of my council abhor me; 19
Those whom I love are turned against me.
My bones cleave to the skin of my flesh, 20
And I am escaped with the skin of my teeth.
Pity me, pity me, O ye my friends! 21
For the hand of God hath smitten me.
Why do ye persecute me like God, 22
And are not even satisfied with my flesh?
O that my words were now written! 23
O that they were inscribed in a register!
With an iron style, even upon lead! 24
Were cut deep in the rock for ever!
For I know that my Redeemer liveth, 25
And shall at last stand upon the earth.
If after my skin this body be destroyed, 26

19. Men of my council] That is, his most intimate friends and confidants.

20. My bones] We have in the text the figure hendiadys, 'and 'my skin and my flesh' signify the skin of my flesh. This figure often occurs.—Skin of my teeth] That is, my gums are only left. This denotes one reduced to the lowest state of weakness and affliction.

22. Not satisfied] The learned Schultens remarks that to eat the flesh of another is an Arabian phrase for calumniating him. 'I am not addicted to slander, or one who devoureth the flesh of his friend.' So one of their poets sings.

23. O that my words] He means the words which he delivers in verses 25, 26, 27.—Now written] He wisheth that these memorable words might be transmitted to posterity; first, by writing; secondly, by the still safer method of lodging this writing in the public archives; thirdly, by inscribing them on lead, as more durable than other material then used; and lastly, by engraving them in the natural rock as the most durable of all.

24. Even upon lead] It is clear ב is understood, or was perhaps originally in the text instead of ו. Pliny informs us that writing on lead was of high antiquity, and came in practice next after writing on the bark and leaves of trees.

—Cut deep in the rock] Dr. Pocock met with hieroglyphic characters cut in the rock, in the sepulchres of the kings of Thebes.

25. My Redeemer] The word נֹמֵד signifies, 'avenger, vindicator, and deliverer.' Peters and others adopt vindicator as here preferable; but as the term redeemer implies this, I have not changed it.—Liveth] or is the living one.—And shall at last] At last, hereafter, in some future period, he shall stand up, as the great and impartial judge, to award to all according to their deeds; to vindicate the character of the just, and to punish the wicked.

26. If after my skin] The ו often signifies if. See Noldius.—This body be destroyed] Literally, 'they destroy this'; perhaps pointing with the hand, or placing

Yet in my flesh shall I see God ;
 27 Whom I shall see on my side, [behold ;
 And mine eyes, and not another's shall Accomplished shall be the desires of my breast. [him,
 28 But if ye still say, How can we persecute
 And find ground of accusation against him ?
 Be ye afraid of the avenging sword ;
 29 For wrath bringeth the punishment of the sword,
 That ye may know there is a judgment.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1520. Zophar's reply, showing the state and punishment of the wicked.

1 THEN answered Zophar, the Naamathite,
 and said,
 2 Surely my thoughts incite me to reply ;
 Wherefore I make haste to do it.
 3 Correction reproachful to me, I have heard,
 And my discerning spirit causeth me to answer.
 4 Knowest thou not this from antiquity,
 From the time that man was placed on the
 earth,
 5 That short is the triumphing of the wicked,
 And the joy of the impious but for a moment ?
 6 Though his pride mount to the heavens ;
 And his head reach unto the clouds ;
 7 While he exulteth, he shall perish for ever,
 And they who saw him shall say, Where is
 he ? [found ;
 8 As a dream he shall fly away, and not be

Yea, he shall be chased away as a night-vision. [more,
 The eye that hath seen him shall do it no 9
 Nor shall his place again behold him.
 His children shall seek to please the poor, 10
 And his own hands shall requite his iniquity.
 His bones are full of his secret sins, 11
 Which shall lie down with him in the dust.
 Though wickedness be sweet in his mouth ; 12
 Though he hide it under his tongue ;
 Though he cherish, and doth not forsake it ; 13
 Though he keep it still within his mouth ;
 Yet his meat in his stomach is changed ; 14
 The gall of asps doth it become within him.
 The wealth he hath gorged, shall he vomit 15
 From his belly, God shall eject it. [up ;
 He shall suck the poison of asps, 16
 And the viper's tongue shall slay him.
 He shall not see the streamlets of rivers ; 17
 The valleys abounding with honey and butter.
 The fruits of his labour he shall return, 18
 And shall not swallow down ;
 Nor in the wealth of his merchandise rejoice.
 Because he oppressed, and forsook the poor ; 19
 Took away a house which he did not build ;
 Because his belly cannot be satisfied, 20
 Nor can any thing escape his desire.
 Nothing remaineth through his voracity ; 21
 Hence his prosperity shall not endure.
 The heavens shall reveal his iniquity, 27
 And the earth shall rise up against him.
 The substance of his house shall roll away, 28
 As the torrents in the day of his wrath ;
 In his full sufficiency, he shall be distressed ; 22

it upon his breast, as indicating more forcibly what he meant. The third person plural of active verbs is often used for the third person singular passive. Compare chap. xxxiv. 20. Luke xii. 20.—Yet in my flesh] If the former line means the dissolution of the body, this can convey no other sense than that of the body, or flesh, new-formed, or raised again. The marginal version is, 'After I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet from, or out of my flesh shall I see God.'

27. On my side] So ל is rendered as to the sense Gen. xxxi. 42, and Psa. lvi. 10, xciv. 16, and in the same words, Psa. cxviii. 6. I shall see him as my friend bringing forth my righteousness to light.—And mine eyes] The sense is, I myself shall have the unspeakable pleasure of enjoying the vision and glory of God.—Accomplished shall be] The reins signify intense desires, and the verb לל denotes to finish, complete, both in a good and a bad sense. The term בָּבֶרֶךְ, in my bosom, shows that reins signify the desires ; for the reins are not in the bosom. Peters paraphrases these verses. 'For I know, the Vindicator of my innocence and reputation, which you have thus inhumanly attacked, now liveth, and shall live for ever ; and that in some grand future period he shall arise to judge the dead. And though after my skin, which you see so miserably affected, this whole frame shall be dissolved and turned to dust ; yet I believe I shall live again hereafter, as truly and certainly as I do now, and shall appear personally before my judge.'

28. But if ye still] For the version see note Fam. Bible.
 29. Sword] Doubtless, that of God, meaning any stroke from his hand.

CHAP. XX. 2. Incite me] Literally, 'my thoughts answer me.'

3. Correction reproachful] He refers to Job's concluding words in the last chapter.—And my own] Literally, 'the spirit from, or of my understanding,' but this idiomatical phrase denotes only, 'my understanding or discerning spirit,' or the faculty of understanding.

4—11. Knowest thou not this] We have in this speech a torrent of eloquence, rushing on with the vehemence of a fiery temper, inflamed by resentment and mistaken zeal.

7. While he exulteth] The sense which the verb ל usually has is adopted, and a low and illustrative metaphor is avoided.

10. Seek to please] So the present text is pointed, as if the verb was from רָצָה, compare 2 Chron. x. 7.—His own hands] Compare chap. xxi. 19, and Psa. xciv. 23. Some apply this line to his children. The sense is, He shall by his oppressions be the cause of ruin to himself and family.

11. His secret sins] So עֲלֵמָיו is rendered Psa. xc. 8 ; and the word should have the same sense here.—Whuck shall lie] That is, in which he shall die.

12. Though wickedness] He now amplifies the wickedness of the oppressor, and the various punishments which God inflicts on him, to strike the deeper terror.

14—16. His meat] That is, his riches acquired by oppression ; but this meat is poisoned. The curse of God is on his ill-gotten store.

17. He shall not see] Rivers, honey, milk, and butter, are oriental images of earthly felicity : compare chap. xxix. 6, and Isa. vii. 22.

18. The fruits of his] I take יָד to denote the rewards or fruits of his toils.

19. Oppressed and forsook] That is, left them oppressed and overwhelmed by his own exactions.

20. Because his belly] Literally, 'his belly knoweth not tranquillity,' that is, is not satisfied.

21. Voracity] That is, he devours the substance of others to increase his own.

22. In his full sufficiency] This marks the season, in which this dreadful ruin of all his fortunes will come upon

- Every hand of the miserable shall come on 23 When about to fill his belly, [him.
 God shall cast on him the fury of his wrath;
 And while eating, he shall rain it upon him.
 24 Should he flee from the iron weapon,
 The bow of brass shall pierce him through.
 25 It is drawn and cometh out of the body;
 The glistening arrow from his gall;
 He goeth; terrors are upon him.
 26 All darkness is hidden as his treasures;
 A fire unblown shall consume him;
 What remaineth in his tent shall perish.
 29 This is the portion of the wicked man;
 This the heritage God hath appointed for him.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1520. Job controverts the argument of Zophar, showing how often the wicked prosper; and that the righteous and wicked are afflicted and die.

- 1 THEN answered Job, and said,
 2 Hear attentively my speech,
 And let this be your consolation.
 3 Bear with me, for I desire to speak,
 Though after my words ye should mock on.
 4 As to me, is my complaint to man?
 If so, why should not my spirit be vexed?
 5 Look on me, and be astonished,
 And lay your hand on your mouth.
 6 Even when I remember it, I am confounded;
 Trembling seizeth hold of my flesh.
 7 Wherefore do the wicked live,
 Grow old; yea, become mighty in power?
 8 Their seed is established before them,
 And their offspring in their sight.
 9 Their houses are peaceful, without fear:
 Neither is the rod of God upon them.
 10 Their bull gendereth, and refuseth not!
 Their cow calveth, and casteth not her calf.
 11 They send forth their little ones like a flock, him.—Every hand] That is, all whom his oppressions have made miserable, shall suddenly combine to strip him of his plunder.

23—25. Fill his belly] While he is glutting his rapacious avarice and enjoying new plunder.—God shall cast] The divine vengeance shall surprise him, a vengeance terrible and exterminating like that on Sodom and Gomorrah. Compare Psa. xi. 6.

26. All darkness] That is, every kind of calamity.

27, 28. As Scott suggested, these verses are transposed after the 21st. as making a better connexion; and the 25th and 26th verses form a better conclusion of this fiery speech.

CHAP. XXI. 2. Your consolation] Ye came to administer consolation to me, but have miserably failed.

3. For I desire to speak] The verb is used in a frequentative sense, as here expressing both his resolution and desire to speak.—Ye should mock on] The conditional is more just to the text than the imperative form.

4. Is my complaint to man] Job, finding his character and the reasons of his sufferings misunderstood, turneth from men to God as his equitable and merciful judge.

7. Live, Grow old] There is a climax in the words, they are happy; their happiness continues and increases.

8. Their seed is] This ingredient in their felicity, so sweet to every tender parent, stands opposed to Bildad's assertion, chap. xviii. 19, and to Zophar's chap. xx. 10.

11—13. Skip like lambs] So the verb דקר is rendered

And their children skip like the lambs.
 They sing to the timbrel and lyre; 12
 They rejoice at the sound of the pipe;
 They wear out their days in pleasure, 13
 And in a moment quietly go down to hades.
 Therefore they say to God, Depart from us, 14
 For we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.
 Who is the Almighty that we should serve 15
 him? [him?
 Or what profit should we have, if we pray to Behold! their prosperity is not in their hand; 16 (Yet far from me be the counsel of the wicked!)

How oft is the lamp of the wicked put out? 17
 Or cometh their destruction upon them?
 Or distributeth He sorrows in his anger?
How oft are they as stubble before the wind? 18
 Or as chaff which the storm carrieth away?
 God layeth up his iniquity for his children; 19
 He should reward him, and he should know it.
 His own eyes should see his destruction, 20
 And should drink of the wrath of the Almighty.

For what careth he for his house after him, 21
 When the number of his months are finished?
 Shall any then teach God knowledge, 22
 When he judgeth those who are on high?
 One dieth in his perfect strength, 23
 Being wholly tranquil and at ease.
 'His loins' are full of fat, 24
 And marrow moisteneth his bones.
 Another dieth in bitterness of soul, 25
 Who never ate with pleasure.
 Yet do they alike lie down in the dust, 26
 And the worm covereth them over.

Behold! I know your thoughts, [me. 27
 And the devices whereby ye would oppress
 For where, say ye, is the house of the tyrant? 28
 And where the dwelling-tents of the wicked?
 Have ye not inquired of travellers? 29

Psa. cxiv. 4. The following is a finished picture of their earthly felicity.

14, 15. Therefore they say] Prosperity increases their impiety, and they renounce the Almighty.

16. Behold! their] Schultens supposes these words were spoken ironically. Behold, you maintain, that their prosperity is only short, for a moment! They just grasp it, and it fleeth away! How contrary to fact is this.

19. God layeth up] He states an objection to his reasoning. It may be, that God layeth up his iniquity and punisheth it in his children; but Job replies, he should punish the evil doer himself. For what does such an one care about his house or his family after he is dead? Compare chap. xiv. 21.

21. Are finished] The original signifies, 'is reckoned in full tale.' The whole expression denotes the living out the full term of human life.

22. Shall any teach] Though such are the facts that occur in providence, shall any pretend to instruct the Almighty how to govern?

24. His loins] The reading of the Syriac is followed as yielding the best parallel with the next line.

27. Behold! I know] Perceiving by the looks and gestures of his friends, that he had failed to convince them, he refers them to the testimony of sensible travellers.

28. Of the tyrant] The word דייב must here be taken in a bad sense, for a bad prince, or ruler, as being synonymous with the wicked in the next.

And do ye not know their remarks? [mity,
30 That the evil is preserved in the day of cala-
And in the day of wrath he is led away safe.
31 Who will declare his way to his face,
And who repay him what he hath done?
32 Yet he is borne with pomp to the grave,
And over his tomb watch shall be kept.
33 Sweet to him are the soft sods of the valley;
And after him every man shall be borne away,
As innumerable men were before him.
34 How then can ye comfort me with vain things?
For in your replies remaineth falsehood.

HERE BEGINS THE FOURTH PART OF THIS BOOK.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1520. Eliphaz resumes the dispute, vindicates the justice of God; charges him with heinous sins, and exhorts him to repent.

1 THEN Eliphaz, the Temanite, answered
and said,
2 Can a man be profitable to God,
As the wise may be profitable to himself?
3 Is it a pleasure to the Almighty that thou art just?
Is it gain that thou art perfect in thy ways?
4 Through fear of thee, will he plead with thee?
Or with thee will he enter into judgment?
5 Is not thy wickedness great?
And are not thine iniquities innumerable?
6 For of thy brother thou tookest a pledge for nought,
And stripped off the clothing of the wretched.
7 To the weary thou hast given no water to drink;
And hast withholden bread from the hungry.
8 As to the powerful man, he had the land;

29. Their remarks] Literally, 'signs, or tokens'; but the connexion proves that the meaning is, their remarks on what they have seen.

30. That the evil is preserved] So Jerom renders the verb שמר, and its radical sense is to restrain, keep back, or withdraw. In the day of calamity, not to or for it. See Exod. xxiii. 15. and Psa. lix. 15.

31. Who will declare] What man will venture to state to him his crimes; or what man is there who hath power to punish him on account of them?

32. Yet he] Even this tyrant and oppressor is honoured at his death with pompous funeral rites; and near his tomb watch shall be kept.

33. Sweet to him] Their sepulchral grots were frequently in valleys, cut in the bottom of rocky hills. Such a situation of a tomb was accounted a happy sepulchre among the Arabians.

CHAP. XXII. 2. Can a man be] Does man by his piety confer any thing on God, that so he ought immediately to reward him?

4. Through fear] This is strong irony, and manifestly designed to ridicule those rash expressions in chapter ix. 32-35. xiii. 22, &c.

5. Is not thy] Thy own wickedness is manifestly the cause of all thy sufferings.

6, 7. Thou tookest] He is here charged with rapacity, injustice, and as violating the rites of hospitality.

8. As to the powerful] Here he accuses him of shameful partiality in the administration of justice. The great were certain to carry their cause, when they set up a claim, however groundless, to the land of some defenceless widow or orphan.

And the accepted person might dwell in it.
Thou hast sent away widows empty, 9
And the arms of the fatherless thou hast broken.

Therefore snares are round about thee, 10
And sudden dread confoundeth thee:
Or darkness, so that thou canst not see; 11
Or abundance of waters cover thee.

Is not God in the height of the heavens? 12
And see how high the chief of the stars are!

Hence dost thou say, How can God know? 13
Can he judge through the dark cloud?

Thick clouds cover him that he cannot see; 14
He walketh only in the circuit of the heavens.

Thou indeed hast kept to the old way, 15
In which wicked men walked;

Who were untimely cut down; 16
Whose foundation the flood dissolved;
Who said to God, Depart from us; 17

For what can the Almighty do for 'us?'
Yet he filled their houses with good things; 18
(But far from me be the counsel of the

The righteous saw and rejoiced, [wicked.] 19
And the innocent laughed them to scorn.

Truly was not 'their' substance cut off! 20
And did not a fire consume their excellence?

Humble thyself before him, and be at 21
Thereby shall good come unto thee. [peace;

Receive, I pray, the law from his mouth, 22
And lay up his words in thine heart.

If thou turn to the Almighty, thou shalt be 23
built up;

If thou put away iniquity far from thy tents,
Then shalt thou lay up treasure as dust, 24

And Ophir-gold as the stones of the brook:
Then shall the Almighty be thy treasure, 25

And as an abundance of silver unto thee.

10. Therefore snares] This was an established metaphor for destructive calamities.

12. Is not God in the] What Job had said in the foregoing chapter, of the general impunity and prosperity of the wicked, was matter of fact. But this calumniator misrepresents his discourse, as a denial of a divine providence.

15. Thou indeed] It is generally thought, that Eliphaz refers in this and the two next verses to the Antediluvians; and that he charges Job with having taken up the principles of those wicked men.

16. Untimely cut] That is, prematurely.—Whose foundation] We should understand, every thing in which they trusted, and on which they reposed their hopes.

17. Who said to God] By describing the impiety of these men in the very terms of Job (chap. xxi. 14, 15.) he confronts their exemplary destruction to Job's assertion of the impunity and felicity of such characters. (v) Versions.

18. But far from me] This is obviously a sarcasm. Compare chap. xxi. 16.

19. The righteous] 'Laughing them to scorn,' only means acquiescing in their punishment, as having been incorrigible.

20. Their substance] This means whatever they prided themselves in, and the 'fire' denotes the divine wrath, with which they and all their possessions were consumed.

22, 23. Receive the law] The divine revelations conveyed down by tradition from Noah, Abraham, &c. Compare Gen. xvi. 2.

24. Ophir-gold] The Ophir here spoken of must be that which was in Arabia, on the coast of the Red-sea. Arabia had formerly its gold mines.

25. And as an abundance] Literally, 'silver of heights,' or heaps, as old Tyndale rendered.

26 For then thou shalt delight in the Almighty,
And shalt lift up thy face unto God. [thee,
27 Thou shalt entreat him, and he shall hear
And thy vows thou shalt accomplish.
28 Thou shalt make a decree, and it shall be established for thee,
And the light shall shine on thy ways.
29 For when men are cast down,
Thou shalt say, There is exaltation;
And the humble person he will save:
30 Yea, one not innocent he will deliver,
And through the purity of thy hands is he delivered.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1520. Job longeth to appear before God; maintains his own cause, by insisting that wickedness often goes unpunished; but that a secret judgment awaits the wicked.

1 AND Job answered, and said,
2 Even to-day is my complaint bitter;
"His stroke" is heavier than my groaning.
3 O that I knew where I might find him!
I would come to his tribunal;
4 I would order my cause before him,
And fill my mouth with arguments.
5 I should know the answers he would make to me;
I should understand what he would say to me.
6 Would he plead against me by his great power?
No;—surely he would exert it on my behalf.
7 There one upright might argue with him,
And I should for ever be delivered by my judge.
8 Behold, I go forward, but he is not there;
And backward, but I cannot perceive him;
9 To the left, where he worketh, yet I behold him not;

28. Make a decree] He promises the restoration of his princely authority and power.—And the light] Wisdom, success, joy, are all included in this beautiful metaphor.

29. When men] The text in this and the next verse is so ambiguous, and the reading so doubtful, that it is difficult to ascertain either the genuine text, or what is the sense of it. Our common version is followed as being as probable as any. The sense I take to be, when men are cast down by their trials, such shall be the efficacy of Job's piety and prayers, that God will raise them up, and save them.

30. Yea, one not innocent] I take 'N' as a negative. It is used undoubtedly as such, 1 Sam. iv. 21. 'One not innocent,' signifies one guilty; yet he shall be saved through the purity and prayers of Job.

CHAP. XXIII. 3—7. O that I knew] He wisheth he could go to the tribunal of God, as one may go and demand trial at a human bar; see chap. ix. 32—35. Job assures himself that if he were tried, God, as an equitable judge, would acquit him. 2. (v) Sept. Syr.

8, 9. I go forward] Forward, backward, to the left and to the right, mean he turned to all the quarters of the heavens; the two first terms signify the east and west, and the two latter, the north and south.

10. Yet he knoweth] Conscious of his own piety and sincerity, he expects that his trials would be sanctified, and when terminated by death, he should be found as gold purified from all alloy.

12. Hide in my bosom] This version depends on the pronunciation of the term מִן. I have followed the Sept. and

He hideth himself to the right, and I see him not.

Yet he knoweth the way which I take; 10:
When he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold.

In his steps I have fixed my foot; 11:
I have kept his way, and not turned aside.
From the command of his lips I departed 12:
not;

I hid "in my bosom" the words of his mouth.
For he is of one mind, and who can turn him? 13:
And what he desireth, even that he doeth.

For he performeth what is appointed for me; 14:
And how many such things are with him?
Therefore am I troubled at his presence; 15:
When I consider, I greatly fear him.

For God hath made soilt my heart, 16:
And the Almighty hath confounded me:
Because I was not cut off before the dark- 17:
ness,
And he hath covered the darkness from me.

Why are not times reserved by the Al- 1:

Some remove land-marks; 2:

They forcibly seize a flock and feed thereon;
The ass of the orphan they drive away; 3:

And for a pledge they take the widow's ox.
They turn aside the needy from the way; 4:

The poor of the land hide themselves together. [forth,

Behold, as wild-asses in the desert they go 5:
Rising early to their labour for support.

The wilderness yields them and their children food.

They reap his produce in the field, 6:
And crop the vineyard of the wicked.

Naked, they lodge without clothing, 7:

Vulg. and this sense is more agreeable to the context than that of 'necessary food,' or the allotted portion.

15. Am I troubled] That is, reflection on such perplexing measures of providence dashes all the hopes which innocence should give.

17. Hath covered] Scott and others understand him to mean, He had not suffered him to die.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Why are not times] By times and his days are meant signal seasons of divine vengeance. Such were those of the deluge and the destruction of Sodom.

2. Land-marks] He here describeth that sort of injustice which the prophet complains of, Mic. ii. 2.

3. The ass—the ox] This is another species of wrong. They deprived the fatherless and widow of their only means of supporting themselves.

4, 5. They turn aside] The poor labouring class are oppressed. They are forced to flee into the desert for their security, or to save themselves from slavery. Compare Heb. xi. 38.

5. Behold, as wild-asses] Scott considers those mentioned in the former verse intended, who, being unjustly oppressed, are driven to seek subsistence for themselves and their children, wherever they can.

6. His produce] This version arises from considering the text correct.

7. Naked] That is, without their upper-garment or hyke. Compare note chap. xxii. 6.—From the cold] In those climates a very hot day is often succeeded by a very cold night.

- And they have no covering from the cold.
 9 They are drenched with mountain-showers,
 And for want of shelter embrace the rock.
 10 Some tear the fatherless from the breast,
 And take in pledge the garments of the poor.
 11 They cause the naked to go without clothing,
 And they who carry the sheaves are furnished.
 12 Within their walls they press out oil;
 They tread the wine-vat, yet suffer thirst.
 13 From the city mortals groan,
 And the soul of the wounded crieth out;
 Yet God regardeth not the wickedness.
 14 These are they who revolt from the light;
 They know not its ways, nor abide in its paths.
 15 With the light ariseth the murderer,
 That he may slay the poor and the needy;
 And in the night he becomes indeed a thief.
 16 The eye of the adulterer waiteth for the dusk,
 Saying, No eye will discern me,
 And then putteth a covering on his face.
 17 They get into houses amid the darkness;
 In the day time they seal up themselves;
 They know not the light.
 18 For the morning to them is as death-shade;
 Yea as the horrors of death-shade it is discerned. [be;
 19 As a light thing on the waters should such
 Their part in the land should be accursed.
 20 Drought and heat consume the snow-waters,
 So hades should those who have sinned.
 21 The womb should forget them;
 The worm should sweetly feed on them;
 They should be no more remembered;
 So iniquity would be broken as a tree.

9. Mountain-showers] In the spring and autumn heavy rains fall, and these miserable men had no other protection than the rocks or caverns.

9—11. The injustice represented here is that of unmerciful creditors; who seize the persons of their poor insolvent debtors, and make them their slaves.

10. They cause] They compel the poor to drudge in their fields and vineyards in the most violent heats, to redeem their pawn.

11. They press out oil] This sense is parallel with the next line, 'They tread the wine-vat, &c.'

12. From the city] In this paragraph he dwells upon the enormities which are committed in great cities.—Yet God regardeth] He suffers such oppressions to go unpunished in this life.

13—17. These are they] He here specifies some of the crimes of cities, where wealth has produced luxury, and luxury has introduced general depravity.

18—20. Job describes here, how such sinners should be treated, and intimates that they are not so treated, as appears from common observation. The verbs are all in the future, and may, not to say ought to be rendered in the conditional mood. Thus rendered they are agreeable to the opinion which Job constantly maintained.—As a light thing] They should be as swiftly taken away by some stroke of justice, as such a thing is by the current.—Their part in the land] They should not see or enjoy the treading of vineyards, should have no cultivated land. Compare chap. xx. 17.

19. Drought and heat] The image by which he illustrates a swift and general destruction is very expressive.

21—24. Most critics acknowledge that these verses are exceedingly obscure. The twenty-second verse seems plainly to describe the tyrannical prince who is a plague

The barren who beareth not, he devoureth, 21
 And to the widow a tyrant doeth no good.
 The mighty also he pulleth down by his 22
 power;
 He riseth up, and no one is sure of life.
 To such God giveth safety, on which they 23
 Though his eyes are on their ways. [rest,
 They are exalted for a while and are not; 24
 They are cut off as the ears of corn;
 Are laid low, and like all shut up in the tomb.

 And truly refute my speech? [hood,

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1520. Bildad's short reply, showing that man cannot be justified before God.

THEN answered Bildad, the Shuhite, and 1
 said,

Dominion and terror are with him; 2
 He maketh peace in his high-places.
 Is there any numbering of his troops? 3
 And on whom doth not his light arise?
 How then can man be just before God? 4
 Or how can he, born of a woman, be clean?
 Behold, even to the moon, and it shineth not; 5
 Yea, the stars are not pure in his sight.
 How much less man, who is but corruption? 6
 The son of Adam, who is only a worm?

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 1520. Job, accusing Bildad of wanting charity, displays the power of God.

THEN answered Job, and said, 1
 How hast thou helped the powerless? 2
 Or saved the arm without strength?
 How hast thou counselled the unwise? 3
 Or made known much sound wisdom?

and terror to his people. The twenty-first verse, therefore, so closely connected in sense and construction, is then the beginning of the description. A tyrant falls upon the weak and defenceless, before he ventures to attack the great and powerful among his subjects.

22. He riseth up, and] That is, to judge. Ezekiel styles a tyrant 'the terror of the mighty.'

23. To such God] It is usual for this writer abruptly to introduce the Almighty without mentioning his name.

24. As the ears of corn] Job complains, first, That they are exalted,—secondly, That they die an easy death, in mature age, cut off 'as the ears of ripe corn,'—thirdly, That they have an honourable interment. Like men in general, they are shut up in the tomb, when for their wickedness, they ought to have been left as a prey to wild beasts.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Then answered Bildad] This short reply of Bildad represents, in a very lofty strain, the terrible majesty, supreme dominion, and infinite perfection of the Deity.

3. His troops] They are called the army of heaven, Dan. iv. 35.

5. Behold, even to] That is, in comparison with God, it hath no light, no splendour; nor are the stars pure in his eyes. Compare Isa. xlv. 23.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Then answered Job] Job insults his retreating adversary; then takes up the subject so imperfectly touched by him.

2. How hast thou] The irony here is strong and excessively stinging; and exposes the impertinent officiousness of persons, who without talents are vain enough to set up for instructors of others.

3. Sound wisdom] He thus reproves Bildad's pompous harangue. See Prov. ii. 7. and iii. 21.

- 4 To whom hast thou uttered speeches?
And what inspired words come from thee?
- 5 The mighty dead, and those dwelling with
Are in anguish beneath the waters. [them,
- 6 Hades is naked before him,
And destruction hath no covering. [place,
- 7 He stretched out the north over the empty
And suspended the earth upon nothing.
- 8 He bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds,
Yet the cloud is not rent beneath them.
- 9 He withdraweth the face of his throne,
Overspreading it with his cloud.
- 10 He decreed a boundary to the waters,
Until the end of the light and the darkness.
- 11 The pillars of the heavens tremble,
And are confounded at his rebuke.
- 12 By his power he maketh still the sea,
And by his knowledge represseth its proud waves.
- 13 By his wind he garnisheth the heavens,
And his hand pierceth the shooting serpent.
- 14 Lo, these are some parts of his ways!
But how little is it which we hear of him;
And the thunder of his power who can understand?

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 1520. Job protests his own integrity, and concedes that the wicked are sometimes punished.

- 1 And Job continued his parable, and said,
2 As God liveth, who hath neglected my right,

And the Almighty, who hath distressed my Verily as long as I have life in me, [soul; 3
And the breath of God is in my nostrils,
My lips shall not speak wickedness, 4
Nor shall my tongue utter deceit.
Far be it, that I should justify you! 5
Till I expire, I will not relinquish my integrity. [let go;
My righteousness I hold fast, and will not 6
Nor shall my heart reproach me while I live.
May mine enemy be as the wicked, 7
And my adversary as the unjust.
For what is the hope of the impious, 8
Though he hath amassed wealth,
When God taketh away his soul?
Will God then attend to his cry, 9
When anguish rusheth upon him?
Can he delight himself in the Almighty? 10
Will he always call upon God?
I will teach you the dealings of God; 11
What is with the Almighty I will not hide.
Behold, ye yourselves have all seen it; 12
And why then do you so vainly trifle?
This is the portion of the wicked from God; 13
The heritage oppressors receive from the Almighty. [sword;
If his children be multiplied, it is for the 14
And his offspring shall not be filled with breed.
His posterity shall be buried in death, 15
And their widows shall not bewail them.

4. Inspired words] In chap. xxii. 8, our translators have rendered the term נְשִׁיבָה, inspiration. Job intimates that Bildad pretended to speak under the influence of a divine affluus.

5. The mighty dead] It is generally acknowledged that by the רִמְמוֹת the sacred writers meant, the spirits of wicked men. It is not improbably supposed, that those sinners are intended who perished by the flood. Hence the place of the departed souls of the wicked was thought to be, under the waters, Prov. ix. 18; xxi. 16. Gen. vi. 4, 13.

6. Hades is naked] Job observes that God's power, knowledge, and influence extend to this place of torment and destruction. The whole invisible world is a part of his vast dominion.

7. The north] That is, the northern hemisphere: compare chap. ix. 9.—Upon nothing] Without any thing to support it, as the Chaldees explain.

8. He bindeth up] Scott thinks that Job refers to the second day of the creation; the formation of the atmosphere, and the clouds to float in it.—Is not rent beneath them] There is probably an implied reference to the flood. The cloud is not now rent, as it was when God opened the windows of heaven.

9. He withdraweth] The heaven, or sky, is styled in scripture 'the throne of God,' Isa. lxvi. 1; which he withdraweth by spreading his clouds upon it. See chap. xxxvi. 32. Ps. cxlvii. 8.

10. He decreed a boundary] Literally, 'He decreed a circle, &c.' The powerful law which God gave to the sea, keeps it within those precincts as exactly, as if a circle had been drawn around it.—Until the end] The author turns our thoughts to another operation of providence; the constant vicissitudes of day and night.

11. The pillars of the] The heavens are considered as the temple of God, supported by the most stately and lofty columns. Their trembling is the effect of thunder, lightning, and tempestuous winds; which are represented as the tokens of God's displeasure at the sins of men.

12. Maketh still the sea] The sense adopted is that which our translators have given, Deut. xxviii. 65. Jer. lxxxi. 2.

13. Garnisheth the heavens] So Luther renders, as to the sense, 'The heavens become bright through the wind.' The beauty of a clear and serene sky is meant.—Pierceth the shooting serpent] By the shooting serpent, or bar serpent, called also the crooked or tortuous serpent, Isa. xxvii. 1, the Arabic writers understand the stars called the Dragon, which lie between Ursa major and minor, near the north pole.

14. Lo, these are] This is a sublime conclusion of a sublime discourse. We are acquainted only with the surface and outlines of the works of God. These indeed are grand; but the thunder of his power, the higher exertions of his power, are matters far beyond our reach.

CHAP. XXVII. 2. Who hath neglected] Job speaks here with vehemence, but speaks very improperly. He charges God with refusing to do him justice, and with distressing him without any sufficient cause.

5. Far be it] I will not to my dying day part with my claim to the character of an honest man, by justifying you.

7. May mine enemy] Here he expresseth, in very strong terms, his abhorrence of a wicked character. He gives his reason in the three following verses.

8. When God taketh] Is there not in this verse a clear intimation of a future state of punishment and reward?

9. Will God then] His cries to God for mercy will then be unavailing. See Prov. i. 24—31.

10. Can he delight] Is it possible for such a character to have any real delight in a God of purity?

11. I will—the dealings of God] Literally, 'I will teach you concerning the hand of God.' For a similar construction, compare Prov. iv. 11.

12. So vainly trifle] You must know that if there are such instances of the punishment of the impious as I am going to relate, there are others of their prosperity.

13. This is the portion] What follows is evidently a concession that wicked men are sometimes, but not always, punished in this life.

15. Buried in death] That is, death shall be their only

- 15 Though he heap up silver as dust,
And prepare raiment as heaps of mire;
17 He may prepare, but the just shall put it on,
And the innocent shall divide the silver.
18 He buildeth his house like the moth-worm;
Or like the shed which the watchman maketh.
19 He lieth down rich, but shall not do so again;
He openeth his eyes, and is no more.
20 Terrors rush on him as the flood of waters;
A tenipest by night stealeth him away.
21 An east wind seizeth him, and he goeth;
For it hurleth him from his place.
22 It driveth upon him, and doth not spare;
From its power fain would he escape.
23 It shall clap its hands at him,
And shall hiss him from his place.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

R. C. 1520. Job investigates the powers and inventions of man, and concludes that there are mysteries in providence which he cannot solve, and that the wisdom of man is to fear God.

- 1 TRULY there is a mine for silver,
And a place for gold which men refine.
- 2 Iron is taken from the earth,
And the stone poureth forth copper.
- 3 Man putteth an end to darkness;
He searcheth to the utmost limit
The stones of darkness and of death-shade.
- 4 They work a shaft from where they sojourn:
Lo! they forget the use of the foot;
They descend and wander from men.
- 5 As for the earth, from it cometh forth bread, burial, or in fact they shall lie unburied. The mode of expression is singular and forcible. It probably comprehends all those tragical circumstances which are accumulated in Jer. xvi. 4. Compare Rom. vi. 4.

18. Like the moth-worm] He who buildeth his fortunes and greatness by methods of injustice is such a builder as the moth-worm; which, by eating the garment which is its habitation, destroys its own dwelling.

19. Shall not do so again] The Sept. is followed in this version. He is awakened by the noise of enemies rushing in upon him. He openeth his eyes only for a moment to see his own destruction; and then closeth them for ever.

20—23. Terrors] These verses are an amplification of his sudden and terrible death. What follows is a fine prosopopœia.

CHAP. XXVIII. 2. Poureth forth] That is, when smelted. Brass is factitious, made of copper fused with the calamine stone. Pliny informs us that it was first discovered in the island of Cyprus; whence it was conveyed to Egypt, and thence to Arabia.

3. To the utmost limit] Cocceius first proposed this version, of which Scott and others approve.—Stones of darkness] Hid in darkness in the bowels of mountains.

4. They work a shaft] The connexion naturally suggests that this ambiguous text refers to the art of mining, and of obtaining metals. In this view the best critics consider it. Struelsen takes כַּף not as denoting a river, but a channel, as it often signifies, and applies it to the shafts, or passages which the miners make, while they dig up the ore; and this is most apposite.—Lo! they forget] Literally, 'Lo! they are forgotten of the foot.' He refers not only to the manner in which they descend into pits, but also to the manner in which they dig the ore. The shafts or passages being low, they work sometimes on their knees, and often sitting; so that they make little use of their feet. So Scott and Cocceius.

5. As for the earth] Here he represents the dangers to

- Though its interior is subverted as by fire.
Yet among its stones is the place of the 6
sapphire:
And the ore of gold is found in it.
A path this which no bird of prey knoweth, 7
Nor hath the eye of the vulture glanced on it.
Wild beasts have not dared to tread it; 8
The fierce lion hath not marched over it.
Man putteth forth his hand to the flinty rock; 9
He upturneth the mountains from the root.
Among the rocks he cutteth out rivers, 10
And his eye seeth every precious thing.
He bindeth up the oozing streams, [light. 11
And hidden treasures he bringeth forth to
But where shall wisdom be found? 12
Yea, where the place of understanding?
Man knoweth not its value; 13
Nor can it be found in the land of the living.
The abyss saith, It is not in me; 14
And the sea saith, It is not in me.
Solid gold cannot be given for it; 15
Nor silver be weighed out for its purchase.
It cannot be bartered for the ingot of Ophir; 16
For the precious onyx, or the sapphire.
The gold or the crystal cannot equal it; 17
Nor shall it be exchanged for jewels of pure
gold.
Let not coral or pearl be mentioned; 18
For this wisdom is more valuable than rubies.
The topaz of Cush cannot equal it; 19
With the purest gold it cannot be valued.
Whence then cometh this wisdom? 20
And where is the place of understanding?

which miners are exposed.—Its interior] By the miners it is subverted as if by fire, perhaps alluding to the subterraneous fire by which earthquakes are produced.

6. The place of the sapphire] Here is the temptation to risk the forementioned dangers.

7, 8. These two verses are an illustration of man's intrepidity in penetrating these dangerous regions of darkness. The fiercest and most daring beasts of prey would not venture into them.

8. Wild-beasts] Literally, 'children of pride,' as it is translated chap. xli. 34, where it can only signify, fierce and wild creatures.

9. Man putteth forth] This and the two following verses describe the prodigious labour of working mines. The hardest rocks are to be spilt, and the very mountains are to be subverted.

11. The oozing streams] Literally, 'the weeping of the streams.' The sense is clearly that which is given. Man contrives methods to prevent the waters from impeding his operations.

13. Nor can it] This assertion clearly proves that by wisdom here, Job did not mean religion; but the reason of the divine counsels, which he says is not attainable by man, verse 21, and is to be found in God only, verses 23—26.

14. The abyss saith] The intention of this grand prosopopœia seems to be, that were man master of the most abstruse secrets of nature, and possessed of its most hidden wealth, he would not be able to understand the reasons of the divine dispensations.

16. Ingot of Ophir] When gold is refined it is cast into small bars and stamped, and these are called ingots, gold of due value.

17. Crystal] Dr. Shaw supposes the 'diamond to be meant. Perhaps any transparent, pellucid gem is included.

18. Coral or pearl] What the original words signify is not certain, but as all the old versions agree with ours, it is probably as good as any other.

21 Since it is hid from the eyes of all living,
And concealed from the birds of the air?
22 DESTRUCTION and DEATH say,
We have only heard of its fame.
23 God only understandeth its way,
And he only knoweth its place.
24 For he beholdeth the ends of the earth;
What is under the whole heavens he seeth.
25 When he made a balance for the wind,
And regulated the waters by measure;
26 When he made a course for the rain,
And a path for the blaze of thunder;
27 Then did he see and declare it;
He established it, and thoroughly proved it;
28 And he said, as to man, Behold!
The fear of the Lord, that is wisdom,
And to depart from evil, is understanding.

CHAPTER XXIX.

B. C. 1520. Job states his past happy circumstances; the contempt into which he had fallen; and concludes with a declaration of his conduct.

1 AND Job continued his parable, and said,
2 O that I were as in months past!
As in the days when God watched over me;
3 When his lamp shone above my head,
And by its light I walked amidst darkness!
4 As I was in the days of my prosperity,
When God secured my tent around me;
5 When as yet the Almighty was with me,
And my children were round about me.
6 When I washed my steps in butter-milk,
And the rock poured out for me streams of oil.
7 When I went to the gate through the city,
And prepared my seat in the street;
8 The young men saw me, and hid themselves;

Yea, the very aged rose up and stood;
The princes refrained talking;
9 They put their hands on their mouth.
Their voice the nobles suppressed,
10 And their tongue cleaved to their mouth.
When the ear heard, it blessed me;
11 When the eye saw, it bare witness to me:
For I delivered the poor who cried;
12 The orphan also, and him who had no helper.
The blessing of the perishing came upon me;
13 And the heart of the widow I made glad.
I put on righteousness, and it clothed me;
14 My judgment was as a robe or a diadem.
I was eyes to the blind,
15 And feet was I to the lame.
I was a father to the poor;
16 And the cause I knew not, I searched out.
Then broke I the grinders of the wicked,
17 And plucked the prey from his teeth.
Hence I said, I shall die in my nest;
18 I shall multiply my days like the sand.
My root spread abroad to the waters,
19 And the dew lodged on my branches.
My glory was increased to me,
20 And my bow abode strong in my hand.
To me they gave ear, and attended;
21 And were silent upon my admonition.
After my words they replied not;
22 For my speech dropped on them as dew.
For me they waited as for the rain, [rain. 23]
And opened their mouths as for the harvest.
If I smiled on them, they were not confident,
24 Nor cast down the light of my countenance.
I chose out their way and sat as chief;
25 I dwelt as a king amidst his host;
As one that comforteth the mourners.

21. The birds of the air] Why are they mentioned? Crinsoy supposes that they may be used figuratively, to denote astronomers who, though they can calculate the distances and motions of the stars, cannot find out this wisdom.

22. Destruction and Death] These terms seem to be used as synonymous with hades, the place of destruction and death.

23. God only] God alone sees at one view the whole extent of the universe. He alone therefore is capable of knowing the use of every portion and appearance of nature, and the reason of every measure in his moral administration.

25. Balance for the wind] These are selected as specimens of the admirable wisdom with which all the numbers of the universe were framed.

27. Then did he see it] That is, wisdom.—Declared it, or made it manifest to us, so that from his works we may infer, that he is infinitely wise.

28. That is wisdom] Wisdom is the knowledge and choice of the best ends and most suitable means. The best end that man can choose is his own everlasting happiness: the only means of obtaining it is the practice of his duty. This therefore is the wisdom proper for man.

CHAP. XXIX. 2. Watched over me] Job sets forth his former felicity in the singular favour of God to his person, family, and fortunes.

3. His lamp shone] This is used metaphorically for the favour of God.—Amidst darkness] The divine protection and guidance were his constant security and faithful confidence in such seasons of danger.

4. Prosperity] That the word עוֹשֶׁה does not signify youth is now generally admitted; but includes the idea of a mature and flourishing period of life, like that season of the year when the fruits are ripe.

5. And my children] This must have been uttered with a sigh.

6. In butter-milk] So rendered Judges v. 25. The lofty olives grew upon the rocky mountains. Hence these figurative expressions denote the abundance of every earthly good.

7—17. To the gate in the street] The gate means the forum or market-place, in the wide street. It is probable that these assemblies for the administration of justice were held in the air, and in the most frequented part of the city.

15. I was eyes] When the cause of an ignorant and friendless person came before him, he assisted him, by his counsel and protection, to make his defence.

17. Broke I thee] He compares the wicked to wild-beasts, which have already seized the prey; but by the hand of justice he attacked them, and snatched from them what they had wickedly acquired.

20. My glory] He promised himself a perpetuity of power, sufficient to subdue all who resisted his authority or invaded his possessions.

24. If I smiled] His authority and character were so much revered that his very smiles were received with awe.

25. Chose out] The phrase denotes supremacy both in the state and in the affairs of religion. Exod. xvii. 20.—I dwelt as] This denotes that the people surrounded him as a bulwark, and that, as the father of his people, he was ready to exert his utmost ability for their relief.

- 1 But now they hold me in derision,
Who are younger than myself in days;
Whose fathers I should have disdained
To rank with the dogs of my flock.
- 2 Yea, what to me was the strength of their hand
In whom manly vigour had perished?
- 3 Through want and severe famine,
They were lately gnawing the desert,
The waste and the wilderness;
- 4 Plucking up mallows from the bushes,
Or furze roots for their food.
- 5 They were driven from society;
(They cried after them as after a thief;)
- 6 To dwell in the ravines of the torrents;
In caves of the earth, and among the rocks.
- 7 Among the bushes they brayed;
Under thorns were they gathered together.
- 8 A profligate race, a base-born race,
They were scourged out of the land.
- 9 But now I am become their song;
Yea, I am to them a mere by-word.
- 10 They abhor me, they flee far from me;
They refrain not to spit in my presence;
- 11 Because he hath loosed my cord and afflicted me,
They throw off the bridle in my presence.
- 12 On my right hand rise up base men;
They attempt to push away my feet; [me.
They cast up their destructive ways against
- 13 They have rooted up my path;
They rejoice in my calamity,
Nor is there any to help me against them.
- 14 As through a wide breach they advance:
With tumult they roll themselves forward.
- 15 Terrors are turned upon me;
My dignity is chased away as the wind,

And my safety is departed as the cloud.
Yea, now is my soul poured out within me; 16
For days of affliction have laid hold on me.
By night my bones are pierced through; 17
My gnawing pains suffer me not to rest.
With great force is my garment changed; 18
It girdeth me like the collar of my tunic.
God hath cast me into the mire; 19
I am become like to dust and ashes.
I cry unto thee, but me thou dost not answer; 20
I stand up, but me thou dost not regard.
In respect to me thou art become cruel; 21
With thy strong hand thou opposest me.
Thou raisest me, and makest me to ride on 22
the wind;
And thou then dissolvest my very substance.
For I know that thou wilt bring me to death; 23
To the house appointed for all the living:
Yet he would not put forth his hand to the 24
tomb! ["safety."
But in its destruction there would be
Should I not weep as one in trouble? 25
And my soul be grieved as one destitute?
For when I looked for good, then evil came; 26
When I expected light, then came darkness.
My bowels are agitated, and rest not; 27
For days of affliction have befallen me.
I go along mourning without the sun; 28
I rise up; in the assembly I cry out,
A brother am I to sea-monsters; 29
A companion to female ostriches.
My skin is become black upon me, 30
And my bones are scorched with heat.
My harp is turned to mourning; 31
My pipe to the voice of those who weep.

I made a covenant with mine eyes; 1

CHAP. XXX. 1. Younger than] The great respect paid to their elders by the easterns, quickened their sensibility of contempt from their juniors.

2. Yea, what to me] Of this difficult passage various turns and renderings have been given. The Syr. and Sept. Alex. are followed. The sense is, How could I countenance, much less employ such men, in the lowest offices, whose conduct was profligate, and who had become feeble through their vices?

5. From society] So I render יַחַד, as the general sense of יַחַד is, 'a nation, a body politic.' In the Syr. Testament, Acts ii. 41, the word denotes the community.

6. In the ravines] This exactly describes both the country of Stony Arabia, and the manners of its inhabitants. The rocks abound with caverns, according to Dr. Pococke and others, and are yet the abodes of Arabian hordes.

8. A profligate race] The term זָנָב is used of an incestuous person, 2 Sam. xiii. 13. of a blasphemer, Ps. lxxiv. 22. and of a malefactor worthy of death, 2 Sam. iii. 33. It must therefore mean here very profligate fellows.—A base-born race] Persons of obscure parentage, owned by no family, enrolled in no tribe, a spurious brood.

9—11. How affecting is the contrast here drawn! But when were these insults offered to him? From the time that he was smitten with his disease, he was surely confined to his house. This treatment therefore must have happened to him before that time, yet after his overthrow. Whence it seems probable there was a considerable interval between his first calamities and that last affliction.

10. To spit in my presence] See note, Numb. xii. 14.
11. He hath loosed] He hath loosed the cords of my tent; hath destroyed my family and my property. Compare

Jer. x. 10.—They throw off] This is a common metaphor among the Arabs, to denote, 'to act without restraint.'

12—16. Destructive ways] This metaphor is derived from the advance of a besieging army. They cast up trenches to preserve themselves, while they approach to annoy the besieged. The path is broken up, the breach is made, and the enemy gain possession; terrors seize the inhabitants, the prince is taken captive, his dignity chased away, and his life ready to be sacrificed.

17. My bones are] He refers now to his disease,—My gnawing pains] As a verb, עָרַע is rendered, in the 3d verse, gnawed, and as applied here to his gnawing, devouring pains, it is proper and forcible.

18. With great force] Compare chap. xxxi. 20.

19. Like dust and ashes] This seems to be a proverbial expression for violence and contemptibleness, Gen. xviii. 27.

21. Become cruel] This language is highly indecorous and improper, and shows that he was not yet sufficiently humbled.

22. To ride on the wind] The metaphor seems to be derived from the cloud, which the wind for a time bears on high, but which is soon dissolved and dissipated.

24. To the tomb] That is, to afflict me there; but in the destruction of the grave, I should find safety. (r) Syr.

25. Should I not weep] By considering the preposition כִּי as here signifying, 'like as, after the manner,' it introduces the following verses properly, in which he adverts to the disappointment of his hopes and the afflictions which befell him.

29. To female ostriches] Dr. Shaw, in his travels, observes that during the lonesome part of the night he had often heard them groan as if they were in the greatest agonies.

- That I would not gaze on a maid :
 2 For what is the portion of God from above ?
 Or heritage of the Almighty from on high ?
 3 Is it not destruction to the wicked,
 And utter ruin to the workers of iniquity ?
 4 Doth not he see my ways,
 And number all my steps ?
 5 If I have walked in falsehood,
 And my foot hath hastened to deceit :—
 6 Let him weigh me in the scales of justice,
 That God may know mine integrity.
 7 If my step hath turned from the way,
 And my heart walked after mine eyes ;
 Or any blot hath cleaved to my hands ;
 8 May I sow, but may another eat,
 Or may all my produce be rooted up.
 9 If my heart hath been enticed by a woman,
 And I have lain wait at my neighbour's door ;
 10 May my wife grind for another ;
 And may others cohabit with her.
 11 Surely this would be a premeditated crime ;
 An iniquity punishable by the judges.
 12 For this is a fire which consumeth to destruction,
 And which would root out all mine increase.

CHAP. XXXI. 1. Gaze on] This implies that he would not indulge impure desires.

2. Portion—heritage] These are terms for divine punishments, chap. xx. 29. xxvii. 13.

5. If I have walked] Falsehood and deceit being here placed immediately after the crime of corrupting virgins, import, I apprehend, the false promises and other deceiving arts practised by seducers.

7. From the way] The first sentence expresseth the commission of some unjust action. The second sentence mentions the corrupt desire and purpose excited by some visible object. The last specifies the tempting object, namely, 'a bribe.'

8. All my produce] The Chaldee renders 'the shoots of my young plants;' and Crinsoz has rendered, 'that which cometh out of the earth,' see Is. xxxiv. 1; xlii. 5.

10. And may others] He seems to refer to the compulsive measures, which conquerors adopted towards their female slaves, in those days.

11. Punishable by] The term פלילים can have no other sense, Exod. xxi. 22, than of persons appointed to decide a cause; and in the days of Job adultery was considered a crime of no ordinary magnitude, and punished most severely.

12. A fire which] Would bring upon me the heaviest calamities, both from God and men. Ps. lxxxiii. 14.

14. When God riseth up] To judgment. The phraseology seems to have been taken from human judicatures. A judge usually stood up when he passed sentence. See Psalm iii. 8; vii. 6; ix. 20; xii. 7.

15. Did not he] The equality of all men by nature is a strong argument against the abuse of those distinctions, which divine providence has established in the world for the good of society.

18. I brought him] Literally, 'he grew up with me.' Him and her refer to the orphan and the widow.

22. May my] There is a striking grandeur in this imprecation on the arm that was lifted up to threaten an orphan in a court of justice.

23. For destruction] This is the reason of his upright conduct. He knew there was a God, who judgeth them that are highly minded.

25. I have transposed after this verse the 38—40, with Heath, as affording a better connexion. A small degree of attention will, says Scott, convince any one, that the speech ended with the foregoing verse. These verses therefore are out of their original situation. They would enter properly among the articles of injustice.

26. Looked at the sun] Sabiism, or the worship of the heavenly bodies, was the most ancient species of idolatry. The Arabs went early into it. They adored the sun, moon, planets, and fixed stars.

27. Kissed my hand] Kissing the idol was an act of religious homage: 1 Kings xix. 18. The heavenly bodies being at too remote a distance for a salute of the mouth, their worshippers substituted kissing their own hand in the place of that ceremony.

28. Have denied] Polytheism is a direct denial of the unity of God: and idolatry is, in every species of it, a renunciation of his sole title to the religious homage of his reasonable creatures.

29, 30. Did I rejoice] Not to rejoice in the ruin of a enemy, nor to give him reproachful language, or so much as to wish him ill, is virtue in no inconsiderable degree. But to pray for an enemy, and to do him good offices, is a pitch of virtue known only to Christianity.

31. Who longed for] Literally, 'Who will give of his

HERE BEGINS THE FIFTH PART OF THIS BOOK.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 1520. Elihu modestly undertakes to reply to Job ; he asserts his impartiality, and, stating Job's assertions, solidly refutes them.

- 1 So these three men ceased to answer Job, because he was righteous in his own eyes.
- 2 Then was kindled the wrath of Elihu, the son of Barachel, the Buzite, of the kindred of Ram ; against Job was his wrath kindled, because he justified himself more than God.
- 3 Also against his three friends was his wrath
kindled, because they had found no answer,
4 though they had condemned Job. Now
Elihu waited for their reply to Job, because 5 they were older than himself. But when Elihu saw that there was no answer in the mouth of these three men, then was his wrath
6 kindled. And Elihu, the son of Barachel, the Buzite, spoke and said,—
- Young am I, and ye are very old ;
Hence I trembled, and was afraid
To show my opinion among you.
- 7 I said to myself, Days should speak,
And multitude of years teach wisdom.
- 8 Surely there is a spirit in man ;

flesh.' He describes his hospitality to the stranger and traveller, as he had before described his charity to the widow and the fatherless.

33. Have I, as Adam] The text may be thus rendered, or as it is in the marginal version, 'after the manner of men.' I prefer the former, with the Chaldee paraphrast, who understands Job as appealing to God, as the witness of his integrity.

34. Verily let me] That is, 'if I have done so, then let,' &c. Rendered in this imprecatory form, this verse may be considered as the conclusion of what he had said from the 22d verse.

35. Behold my pledge] The legal instrument, by which one was bound to the performance of any thing.—Yea, let mine] By his adversary he must mean the accuser ; for an adversary in law is the plaintiff.

36, 37. The actions of his whole life, or this very defence, shall be, he says, his answer to the indictment.

CHAP. XXXII. 1. Because he was righteous] This assigns the reason of the silence of Job's three friends. They looked upon him as too self-conceited and obstinate for conviction.

2. Kindled the wrath] These expressions do not mean that he was in a passion. They are the strong oriental manner of denoting high disapprobation.—Justified himself more than God] That is, he had defended his own inno-

- Yet the inspiration of the Almighty
Giveth to him superior understanding.
Great men are not always wise ; 9
Nor do the aged always judge rightly.
Therefore I say, Harken to me ; 10
I will also show my opinion.
Behold, I waited for your words ; 11
I listened while you were considering ;
While yet ye could find out arguments.
Yea, your 'attestations' I have considered ; 12
But lo ! no one convinceth Job ;
No one among you answereth his words ;
Lest ye should say, We have found wisdom, 13
It is God, not man, who must bring him down. [me,
Now he hath not directed his words against 14
Nor will I answer him with your speeches.
They are amazed, they answer no more ; 15
Words are removed from them.
As yet I wait, but they speak not ; 16
Though they stand up, they make no reply.
I also will answer my part ; 17
I also will show my opinion.
For I am full of arguments ; 18
The spirit within constraineth me. [vent ;
Behold, my heart is as wine that hath no 19
As bottles of new wine, it is ready to burst.
I will speak that I may be refreshed : 20
I will open my lips, and will answer.
I will not now accept any one's person, 21
Nor give flattering titles to man.
For I am afraid to give flattering titles, 22
Lest my maker should soon take me away

- Wherefore Job, hear, I pray, my speech, 1
And to all my words attentively listen.
Behold, now I have opened my mouth ; 2
Within my mouth doth my tongue speak.
What my heart judgeth right, I will speak, 3
And my lips shall utter knowledge clearly.
The spirit of God hath made me ; [life. 4
The breath of the Almighty hath given me

cence in such a manner, as to represent God to have done him wrong.

6. Young am I] For a youth to speak in such an assembly, on so delicate and difficult a subject, was an astonishing phenomenon in Arabia.

8. There is a spirit] The 'spirit in man,' as denoting the human mind with its acquisition, is contrasted with the divine influence. To give the sense, the words in Italics are added.

12. Your attestations] Or testimonies] So both the Syr. and Vulg. render.

14. With your speeches] Their speeches were levelled against his whole moral character ; aiming to prove him a wicked man. Elihu limits his censure to Job's answers in this dispute.

18. The spirit within] The expressions denote the mind or heart in a state of strong emotion : compare chap. xx. 3.

19. Of new wine] I consider wine understood from the former line. New, if connected with bottles, would be an argument against their bursting : comp. Matt. ix. 17.

CHAP. XXXIII. 3. What my heart] Hebrew, 'The uprightness of my heart, my words.' The next line supports the version.

4. The spirit of God] There is an allusion to Gen. ii. 7. and from this, it is evident that the knowledge of the creation had been handed down to the patriarchs.

- 5 If thou art able, reply to me ;
Prepare thy reasons, stand up before me.
- 6 Behold, I am as thyself in respect to God ;
I also am formed out of the clay.
- 7 Behold, my terror shall not dismay thee,
Nor shall my hand be heavy upon thee.
- 8 Surely thou hast said in thy hearing ;
Yea, the sound of thy words I have heard ;
- 9 I am pure, and without transgression ;
I am clean, nor is there wickedness in me.
- 10 Behold, he inventeth accusations against
He accounteth me for his enemy. [me ;
- 11 He putteth my feet in the clog,
He watcheth all my paths.
- 12 Behold, in this thou art not to be justified ;
I will answer thee, that God is greater than man !
- 13 Why then dost thou contend with him,
Who giveth account of none of his coun-
- 14 Yet God speaketh once, yea, twice, [sels ?
But man regardeth it not :—
- 15 In a dream, in a vision of the night
When deep sleep falleth on man ;
In slumbering upon the bed—
- 16 Then he openeth the ears of men ;
He sealeth also their instruction,
- 17 That he may turn man from his evil work,
And hide pride from the mighty.
- 18 He keepeth back his soul from the pit,
And his life from perishing as by a dart.—
- 19 Again he is chastened with pain on his bed ;
And the "contention" of his bones is violent ;
- 20 So that his life abhorreth bread,
And his soul the most desirable food.
- 21 His flesh is consumed that it cannot be seen,
And his bones which were not seen, stick out.
- 22 Yea, his soul draweth near to the pit,

And his life to the destroying powers.
If there be sent to him a messenger, 23
An interpreter, one among a thousand,
To show to the man what is his duty ;
Then will God be gracious to him, and say, 24
Deliver him from going down to the pit ;
I have provided an atonement.
His flesh shall become fresher than a child's ; 25
He shall return to the days of his youth.
He shall pray to God, and he will accept 26
And he shall see his face with joy ; [him,
For he will render to man his righteous-
He shall sing among men and say, [ness. 27
I sinned, and perverted what was right ;
He hath not dealt with me after my desert ;
He hath preserved my soul from going to 28
the pit,
And my life, that I might behold the light.
Lo ! all these things worketh God 29
Time after time on the behalf of man ;
That he may restore his soul from the pit, 30
And may enlighten him with the light of life.
Attend, O Job, and hearken unto me ; 31
Be silent while I speak.
If thou hast any thing to say, answer me ; 32
For I desire that thou mayest be justified.
But if not, do thou listen to me : 33
Be silent, and I will teach thee wisdom.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B. C. 1520. Elihu goes on to reprove some of Job's hasty words, and to vindicate the justice of God.

- So Elihu continued and said ; 1
Hear, ye wise men, my words ; 2
Men of knowledge, attend unto me.
For the ear trieth words, 3
As the palate tasteth meat.
Let us choose for ourselves judgment, 4

6. As thyself in] As a participle, this is the usual sense of צַדִּיק. See Noldius. In respect to God, I am in the same state as thyself, alike subject and amenable to him; for I also, as thyself, was formed by him out of the clay.

7. My terror] We cannot enter into the beauty of this delicate reprehension, unless we recollect those daring expressions in chap. ix. 34, 35. xiii. 20—22.

9—11. I am clean] Job had not used these very expressions, but he had used others equivalent to them: chap. ix. 30; x. 7; xvi. 17; xiii. 23, 24, 27.

13. Elihu argues, first, that Job's wish was irreverent and fruitless. God, says he, will never stoop to defend his measures against murmurers.

15. In a dream] He instances in what manner God speaketh to and admonisheth men; first, by dreams; secondly, by afflictions; and thirdly, by divine messengers. In respect to the first, compare Gen. xv. 12; xx. 6, &c.

16. He sealeth] Deeply impresseth his admonitions on the mind.

19. Again he is] Elihu now noticeth a second method, which God takes to bring men to repentance, the discipline of bodily affliction.

22. Draweth near to the pit] He is brought to the very brink of the grave.—[To the destroying powers.] The notion is certainly ancient, that God employed angels both as the ministers of his mercy and of his wrath. Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 16, 17, and 1 Cor. x. 10.

23. A messenger] Some by this messenger, or angel, understand our Lord Jesus; but as Poole observes, the term unquestionably signifies, 'a prophet, or teacher';

Judges ii. 1. Malachi ii. 7; iii. 1. The expression denotes that there are but few, one among a thousand, qualified to teach man properly. Compare Eccles. vii. 28.—What is his duty] The connexion requires this sense of יִצְרָא. Tyn-dale and Coverdale render to the same purpose, 'To show to man the right way.'

24. Then will God] It is supposed, that the afflicted man is brought to repentance and to prayer; and in this case Elihu observes God will be gracious.—I have provided] It is clear from the first chapter, that atonement by sacrifice was understood by Job, and by his friends also, and that repentance was only acceptable through atonement; for without shedding of blood was no remission.

25. His flesh] A beautiful description of the sick man's recovery. The word translated shall become fresher, is an elegant metaphor from plants, which, having been withered by a long drought, recover their vigour and verdure upon the falling of a shower of rain.

27. He shall sing] So Schultens and others render; and as the verb signifies to sing, as well as to look, or observe, the connexion requires the former sense.

30. May enlighten] That is, that he may enjoy life with others.

33. Teach thee wisdom] The words only mean, that he would still offer what Job himself would deem good sense, and salutary instruction.

CHAP. XXXIV. 1—4. Hear, ye wise men] Job remaining silent, Elihu renews his address to the three seniors.

5. The ear] Elihu retorts what Job had said against his three friends, chap. xii. 11.

Let us know among ourselves what is best.
 5 For Job hath said, I am righteous,
 And God hath neglected my right.
 6 Shall I lie against my right? [sion.
 My wound is desperate, without transgres-
 7 What man is there like Job,
 Who drinketh up scorning like water?
 8 He joineth with the workers of iniquity,
 And walketh with wicked men.
 9 For he hath said, Man profiteth nothing,
 By delighting himself with God.
 10 Wherefore, hearken to me, ye wise men,
 Far be it from God to do wickedness!
 And from the Almighty to commit iniquity!
 11 For the work of man will he render to him,
 And reward every one according to his work.
 12 Yea, surely God will not do wickedly,
 Nor will the Almighty pervert justice.
 13 Who hath given him a charge over the
 earth?
 Or who hath made the whole world?
 14 If he set his heart against him,
 He could recall his spirit and his breath;
 15 So all flesh would expire together;
 And man would return to the dust.
 16 If thou hast understanding, hear this;
 Harken to the words of my speech.
 17 Shall he who hateth right govern?
 And wilt thou condemn him most just?
 18 Who saith to a king, Thou art a profligate?
 Or to princes, Ye are wicked?
 19 Much less to him who favours not princes,
 Nor regardeth the rich more than the poor:
 For they are all the work of his hands.
 20 Yet in a moment shall they die, even at midnight: [away;
 Confounded shall be the people, and pass
 The mighty shall be removed without hand.
 21 For his eyes are on the ways of man,

And all his steps he inspecteth.
 There is no darkness nor death-shade, 22
 Where workers of iniquity may hide themselves.
 For as to man, he needeth no long inquiry, 23
 That he should come into judgment with God.
 Without process he breaketh down the 24
 mighty,
 And setteth up others in their stead.
 For he knoweth their works; [crushed. 25
 He turneth on them night, and they are
 Because they are wicked, he striketh them. 26
 In the place of many beholders;
 Because they turned from following him, 27
 And would not consider any of his ways.
 They cause the cry of the poor to come to 28
 And the cry of the afflicted he will hear. [him;
 When he giveth rest, who can cause trouble? 29
 When he hideth his face, who can behold him,
 Whether in respect to a nation or to a man
 only? [reign;
 He doeth it that the profligate man may not 30
 That so the people may be no longer en-
 Surely it is meet to be said to God, [snared. 31
 I offer up my prayer, that I may not perish;
 As to what I see not, teach thou me; 32
 If I have done iniquity, I will do so no more.
 Shall he recompense according to thy mind? 33
 Whether thou refuse or choose, and not he?
 Speak, therefore, what thou knowest.
 Men of understanding will speak as I do, 34
 And wise men will hearken unto me;—
 That Job hath spoken without knowledge, 35
 And that his words were without prudence.
 My desire is, that Job may be fully tried, 36
 For making replies "like" wicked men.
 For he hath added rebellion to his sin; 37
 He hath clapped his hands among us,
 And multiplied his words against God.

5. I am righteous] Compare chap. xiii. 18, and xxiii. 10, 11.—Neglected my] See chap. xxvii. 2, and note.

6. Shall I lie] The meaning is, Shall I confess myself guilty, when I am not? Shall I betray my own cause, and deny my integrity? Compare chap. xxvii. 4—6.

8. He joineth] In attacking the justice of providence. He holdeth similar sentiments with such characters.

9. He hath said] Not in so many words, but Elihu collects this as a fair inference from his speeches. Compare ch. xix. 10; xxix. 18; xxx. 21, 26.

13. Who hath given] Elihu's first argument, to prove that God cannot be unjust, is taken from his independence.

14, 15. Against him] He argues now from the divine benevolence. If God were not benevolent, this earth, instead of being full of the goodness of the Lord, would become a dreadful scene of desolation: instead of preserving, he would extinguish the sinful race of man.

16. If thou hast] Elihu does not doubt, whether Job had understanding, but admits it, and calls on him to exercise it.

17. Shall he who] Is the governor of the world a hater of justice? This is a third argument to prove that God cannot commit wrong. See Gen. xviii. 25.

18. Who hath to] He illustrates his argument by the common practice of men, who speak not of kings or princes disrespectfully.

20. Yet in a moment] He now adverts to God's impartiality in his punishments; chap. ix. 5, 6.

21. For his eyes] He argues from the Divine omniscience.

God perfectly knows the persons of men, all their most secret actions, and all the motives of them.

24. Without process] Literally, 'without searching, or investigation,' as the margin renders. The judgments of God are as rapid, as they are unerring just.

25. He turneth on them] He brings upon them a fatal reverse of condition, a calamity which ends in their utter ruin.

26. Because they are] So the Syr. For the sense given compare 2 Sam. xix. 22. Zeph. ii. 10.—In the place of] Their punishment is open and exemplary.

30. He doeth it] He hideth his face or manifesteth his wrath towards tyrannical rulers in mercy to the people, that they may be liberated from their oppressions.

31. Surely it is meet] God being so impartial in his justice, it becometh every man to acknowledge his sin and to pray for forgiveness.

33. Shall he recompense] Shall he consult thee how he is to treat men?—Whether thou] &c. With Mercer, I consider we have a mimesis, so that Elihu uses the words, which he supposes God to speak. We might supply, 'Whether thou refuse or choose, and not I, saith God.'

36. Like wicked men] The various readings of MSS. is more agreeable to the amiable spirit of Elihu than the text.

37. He hath added] Job's discontent with the measures of providence towards him broke out in his very first speech, grew more loud and vehement in the course of the dispute, and arrived to its height in his presumptuous challenge of God, chap. xxxi. 35—37.

CHAPTER XXXV.

B. C. 1520. Elihu represents the limits of God's moral government, and maintains that he is ready to deliver true penitents.

- 1 MOREOVER Elihu spoke and said,
- 2 Thinkest thou this to be right? [God's.
- 3 Thou saidst, My righteousness is more than
- 4 For thou saidst, What advantage is it to me?
- 5 Or what more do I profit, than if I had
- 6 I will return an answer unto thee, [sinned?
- 7 And to thy companions with thee.
- 8 Look up to the heavens, and see; [thou.
- 9 View also the skies which are higher than
- 10 If thou sin, what doest thou against him?
- 11 If thy offences abound, what doest thou to him?
- 12 If thou be righteous, what givest thou him?
- 13 Or what doth he receive from thy hand?
- 14 Thy wickedness may hurt a man like thyself,
- 15 And thy righteousness may profit the son of man.
- 16 Among the multitude the oppressed cry out;
- 17 They roar through the arm of the mighty.
- 18 Yet none saith, Where is God, my maker,
- 19 Who giveth songs in the night?
- 20 Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth;
- 21 And maketh us wiser than the fowls of the
- 22 There they cry, but he answereth not,
- 23 Because of the pride of these evil men.
- 24 Surely God will not hearken to vanity,
- 25 Nor will the Almighty regard it.
- 26 Though thou sayest, thou canst not see him;
- 27 The cause is before him; therefore trust in him.
- 28 But now, because he hath not visited in his
- 29 Nor hath he noticed great arrogance;
- 30 Therefore doth Job open his mouth vainly:
- 31 He multiplieth words without knowledge.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

B. C. 1520. Elihu justifies God's ways, and considers Job's want of submission and penitence, as the cause of the continuance of his affliction; God is to be feared for his great works.

- 1 ELIHU also proceeded and said;—

CHAP. XXXV. 2—7. My righteousness] See chap. xiii. 18—23. Elihu replies, first, that so great a Being cannot possibly be hurt by the sins, or benefited by the services of men: and secondly, that our vice and virtue can harm or profit our fellow-mortals only.

3. Is it to me] The sense here requires that we should allow of the mimesis. See Glasius.

10. Yet none saith] They neglect the most obvious duties. The night may signify here, as in chap. xxxiv. 25, a time of calamity. The songs are thanksgivings to God for deliverance.

12. There they cry] The sufferers themselves are persons of no religion. Therefore he pays no regard to their complaints, which are vanity, that is, void of real piety. See Psalm x. 4.

15. Nor noticed] Elihu censures Job's behaviour as having been the very reverse of patient waiting on God.

CHAP. XXXVI. 3. My knowledge from afar] I will enter more deeply into the subject of the Divine justice.

4. One perfect] One who will honestly speak the sentiments of truth in discoursing with thee.

- 2 Bear with me a little, and I will show thee,
- 3 That I have yet arguments on behalf of God.
- 4 I will bring my knowledge from afar;
- 5 I will ascribe righteousness to my maker.
- 6 For truly my words shall not be false;
- 7 One perfect in knowledge is with thee. [any;
- 8 Behold God is mighty and despiseth not
- 9 He is mighty in power and wisdom.
- 10 He preserveth not the life of the wicked,
- 11 But maintaineth the right of the poor.
- 12 He withdraweth not his eyes from the
- 13 righteous,
- 14 But with kings are they on the throne;
- 15 When exalted he securely establisheth them.
- 16 And if sinners be bound in fetters,
- 17 And holden in the cords of affliction;
- 18 Then he showeth them their deeds,
- 19 And how their transgressions have prevailed.
- 20 He admonisheth them by correction,
- 21 And commandeth that they return from ini-
- 22 If they hearken and serve him, [equity.
- 23 They shall spend their days in prosperity
- 24 And their years in pleasures.
- 25 But if they hearken not,
- 26 By the sword they shall pass away,
- 27 And they shall die without knowledge.
- 28 Thus the depraved in heart heap up wrath;
- 29 They cry not when he bindeth them.
- 30 They die in their very youth;
- 31 And their life perisheth among the unclean.
- 32 He delivereth the afflicted from their affliction,
- 33 When by suffering they are admonished.
- 34 Even so would he have raised thee from distress;
- 35 Wide, not strait, would have been thy place,
- 36 And the provision of thy table, full of fatness.
- 37 The cause of the wicked thou hast supported;
- 38 Yet the cause of justice shall be upheld.
- 39 When there is wrath, take heed
- 40 Lest he take thee away with a stroke;
- 41 Then a great ransom will not deliver thee.
- 42 Will he indeed esteem thy riches?
- 43 No, not gold, nor all the exertions of strength.
- 44 Desire not so greatly the night,

5. Despiseth not any] To despise here means to take up an aversion to a person without cause, from caprice. He refers to Job's expressions, chap. x. 3.

6. He preserveth not] He doth not favour the wicked, but sooner or later punishes them.

7. He withdraweth not] He here amplifies the rewards of piety.

12. By the sword] The sword of Divine justice. This paragraph shows the truth of the assertion, that God will render to every one according to his works.

14. Their life] This shows why they die in youth. Their criminal lusts and indulgences bring them to a premature end.

15. He delivereth] This assertion leads Elihu to address Job, in strong, but pertinent language.

17. The cause of the] The sense is the same as in chap. xxxiv. 36, his answers like wicked men.—Shall be upheld] The margin renders, 'should uphold.' In this view, the cause which Job had advocated is contrasted with the cause of justice.

20. Desire not] He further warns him against his impatient wishes for death.

- When people are taken off in their place.
 21 Take heed, return not to iniquity;
 For this thou hast preferred to affliction.
 22 Behold, God exalteth by his power!
 And who, like him, casteth down?
 23 Who hath appointed him his way?
 Or who can say, 'Thou hast wrought iniquity?'
 24 Remember, that thou magnify his work,
 Which man ought to celebrate.
 25 All men contemplate it;
 Every mortal beholdeth it afar off.
 26 Lo! God is great and we cannot comprehend him. [ble.
 And the number of his years is unsearchable.
 27 For he draweth up the drops of water;
 And they pour forth the rain of his tempest,
 28 Which the clouds drop down,
 And distil upon man in abundance. [clouds;
 29 Yea, who understandeth the spreading of the
 The rolling thunders of his pavilion? [self,
 30 Lo, he spreadeth his lightning around him—
 And covereth the bottom of the sea!
 31 Verily by them he judgeth the nations;
 Or he giveth food in abundance.
 32 The lightning covereth the whole skies,
 But he chargeth it, as to whom it may strike.
 33 He announceth to it, who is his friend;
 But it possesseth wrath against the impious.
 1 Truly at this my heart trembleth,
 And is moved out of its place.
 2 Hear attentively his grumbling voice,
 And the sound which goeth out of his mouth.
 3 Under the whole heavens he directeth it,

22. Casteth down] The common version considers the word instead of casting down, in its secondary sense of casting in, or teaching.

24. Remember, that] This verse ought to have begun a new chapter: for it begins a new head of discourse, which is continued to the end of the ensuing chapter.—His work] The visible creation, the heavens in particular; in which he has made manifest his eternal power and godhead, Psalm xix. l. cii. 25. Rom. i. 20.

26. Cannot comprehend him] The creation demonstrates its author to be an eternal, almighty, incomprehensible being.

27, 28. For he draweth up] Elihu adverts to the formation of clouds, and of rain, which, notwithstanding the extent of modern discoveries, still remain, in a great measure, unknown.

29. Rolling thunders] Compare Psalm lxxviii. 8. His pavilion denotes the clouds.

30. Lo,—around himself] The lightning bursts from the cloud, the thick darkness in which he is supposed to dwell.—Covereth the] The bottom of the sea seems to mean, that the dreadful thunder-storm reaches in its effects to the lowest depths, and the lightning covereth them as a garment.

31. By them he judgeth] God employs these agents in his moral government, for the benefit or punishment of men, according to their moral behaviour.

32. The lightning] Parkhurst and others render כִּפְפִים the vaulted skies, a sense which its radical meaning supports. That of clouds has no authority. But he chargeth] Having mistaken the sense of the first line, our translators have strangely erred in this, as the italic supplements prove. The sense of פָּעַל is 'to meet with, fall upon, to intervene, and so to intercede.' For the sense given, compare Exod. v. 3. and 1 Kings ii. 25.

33. Who is his friend] Thus all the ancient versions render, though the Keri and many manuscripts read שֹׁרֵר 'noise or shouting.'—But it possesseth] This is the literal sense of נִשְׁמָה as a participle, and what sense does it give

- And his lightning to the ends of the earth:
 After it, the sound roareth aloud; 4
 He thundereth with the voice of his majesty;
 Yet no one, when he heareth his voice,
 Can accurately trace them out.
 God thundereth with his wonderful voice; 5
 He doeth great things which we comprehend not. [earth;
 For he saith to the snow, Be thou on the 6
 So to the rain-shower, even to his strong rain-showers.
 Thus he sealeth up the hand of all men, 7
 That all men may know his work.
 Then the wild-beasts go to their dens, 8
 And quietly rest in their holds.
 Out of the south cometh the whirlwind, 9
 And cold from the northern winds.
 By the breath of God, frost is given, 10
 And the expanded waters are congealed.
 Again, his splendour dispelleth the thick 11
 cloud,
 And his light disperseth the extended cloud.
 Thus he turneth their courses by his counsels, 12
 [them,
 That they may do whatever he commandeth
 Upon the habitable parts of the world;
 Whether for correction or in mercy, 13
 He causeth them to come on the earth.
 Give ear to this, O Job! be still, 14
 And consider the wondrous works of God.
 Knowest thou how God disposeth them, 15
 When he causeth the light of his cloud to shine?

as a noun, the cattle? 'God arms the thunderbolt against the impious.'

CHAP. XXXVII. 2. Hear attentively] Boullier ingeniously conjectures, that it now began to thunder and lighten from the cloud in which the Almighty was about to make his appearance. Such an incident would greatly heighten the propriety and animation of this sublime description.

4. Can accurately] The electric matter, which by its violent discharge produceth both the flash and the explosion, is but imperfectly known: it is far from being accurately searched out.

6. Rain-shower] Here he paints a winter-scene. Snow and heavy rains are joined together, as here, by the prophet Isaiah, lv. 10.

7. He sealeth up] The lands being laid under water by these heavy and continual rains, a stop is thereby put to the works of the field.

8. Then the wild] The low grounds being covered with water, the beasts of prey flee to the caverns of the mountains for safety.

9—11. Out of the south] These verses are a description of stormy, cold, and frosty weather. Compare Is. xxi. 1, and Zech. ix. 14.—Northern winds] Hebrew, 'the dispersers'; but the sense given is generally adopted.

11. His splendour] So Schulken and many of the best modern critics and the Targum render. Here we have a picture of the sky in a clear, sharp-freezing day.

12. By his counsels] Literally, 'by his steerings.' Thus Symmachus understood it to be a metaphor, taken from piloting or navigating a ship. This noble sentiment represents the governor of the universe directing all its motions.

13. Whether for correction] I have followed Scott in transposing the order of the words. No clear and consistent sense hath or can be given of them as they now stand in the common text.

15. The light of his cloud] Or, 'his luminous cloud.' He means perhaps, those bright clouds, fringed with gold, which often in a summer evening attend the setting sun.

16 Knowest thou the balancings of the clouds,
The wondrous works of perfect wisdom?
17 Or in what manner thy garments grow warm,
When he maketh still the earth from the south?
18 Hast thou with him spread out the skies,
Which are smooth as the molten mirror?
19 Teach us then, what we shall say to him;
For we cannot address him by reason of 20 Shall it be told him that I speak? [darkness.
If one speak, he will surely be destroyed.
21 Even now, men cannot behold the light,
When it is resplendent in the skies;
When the passing wind hath cleansed them.
22 From the north the golden splendour cometh
But with God is more awful majesty. [forth;
23 As to the Almighty, we cannot find him out;
He is excellent in power and in judgment,
And abundant in righteousness, he will not 24 Men, therefore, ought to fear him, [oppress.
Whom none of the wise in heart can see.

HERE BEGINS THE SIXTH PART OF THIS BOOK.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

B. C. 1520. God speaketh from the whirlwind, and calleth on Job to answer; he appealeth to his own works, to convince Job of his ignorance.

1 THEN Jehovah answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said,
2 Who is this, that darkeneth counsel
By speeches without knowledge?
3 Gird up now thy loins like a man;
For I will ask of thee, and answer thou me.

Some understand the rainbow. These appearances may well be reckoned among the wondrous works of God, which we cannot comprehend.

16. Balancings of the] The clouds remain suspended, so long as their pressure is exactly balanced by the counter-pressure of the air which is underneath them. But the law of the equilibrium and the causes which destroy the balance, are so mysterious in their operation, that our knowledge of these matters is extremely superficial.

19—24 These verses contain the sum of Elihu's reasoning; and the lessons which the incomprehensibility of God should teach man.

20. If one speak] By speaking we must understand speaking of God as Job had done, cavilling at his providence.

21, 22. Even now, men] The splendour of the sun, when the sky is serene, is too bright for the eye to behold; how much more then is it impossible for man to behold the majesty and glory of God?

23. Cannot find him out] His nature is incomprehensible, and the reasons of his dispensations equally so; yet every thing proves, that he is excellent in power, justice, and righteousness, and 'will not oppress.'

24. Whom none of the] See note, Fam. Bib.

CHAP. XXXVIII. 1. The whirlwind] That the Almighty manifested himself on this occasion by some visible token of his presence may be inferred, from what Job says, chap. xliii. 5. 'But now mine eye seeth thee.'

2. Darkeneth counsel] By counsel is meant, that by which God governs the affairs of men. Job is said to darken it, because he mistook and misrepresented it.

3. Like a man] That is, as a man is to do, who is about to engage in any work, and particularly in any contest or combat.—I will ask] This refers to what Job had said chap. xiii. 22.

4—6. Where wast thou] These verses speak of the creation of the earth, and in terms of architecture, which denote exact proportion, nice arrangement, and durable solidity.

Where wast thou when I founded the earth? 4
Declare, if thou hast attained such knowledge.
Who fixed its proportions, for thou knowest? 5
Or who stretched the line upon it?
On what are its foundations fixed? 6
Or who laid its corner-stone,
When the morning stars sang together. 7
And all the sons of God shouted for joy?
Or who shut up the sea with doors, [womb; 8
On its eruption when it issued from the
When I made the cloud its mantle, 9
And thick darkness its swaddling-band;
When I broke up for it my decreed place, 10
And appointed its bars and doors, and said,
Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further, 11
And here shall thy proud waves be stayed?
Since thy days hast thou commanded the 12
dawn,
And made the day-spring to know its place;
That it may lay hold of the skirts of the 13
earth,
That the wicked may be shaken out of it?
It is changed as clay by the seal, 14
When they stand as if in full attire.
Thus from the wicked their light is withheld, 15
And the high arm is broken.
Hast thou penetrated the sources of the sea? 16
Or walked through the depths of the abyss?
Have the gates of death been opened to thee? 17
Yea, the gates of death-shade hast thou seen?
Hast thou considered the breadth of the 18
earth?
Declare, if thou knowest, the whole of it.

7. Morning stars] Some understand these words in their strict literal sense, as David did, Ps. cxlviii. 3. Others take the words in a figurative sense, as denoting 'the angels,' called in the next line, 'the sons of God.'

8—10. Or who shut up] Who restrained and fixed their bounds?—Issued from the] The womb must here mean the cavities of the earth, whence the waters issued, when they were collected into their common receptacle.

9. Its swaddling-band] The author had compared the eruption of the sea to the breaking forth of an infant from the womb. This astonishing image gave rise to 'the garment' and the 'swaddling-band,' to which he resembled those thick and dark clouds, which frequently arise over the sea and encompass it.

12—15. Since thy days] The transition from the sea to the morning is not so abrupt as it appears. For the ancients thought that the sun sets in the ocean, and at his rising cometh out of it again.

13. Skirts of the earth] Literally, 'wings;' by which is meant the extreme parts.

14. It is changed] That is, the earth. During the darkness of the night the earth is a perfect blank; in which state it resembles clay that has no impression. But the morning light falling upon the earth, innumerable objects make their appearance upon it: it is then changed like clay which has received the stamp of the seal.

15. Thus from the] The author blends together, in his description of the morning, the moral and natural benefits of it. By cutting off some wicked men, in the morning, and putting a stop to oppressions committed by others, a happy change is made in the state of society.

16, 17. Hast thou] The reproof contained in this interrogation is, that it is folly and presumption: to interpose our judgment upon the dispensations of good and evil in the present world; unless we perfectly knew the connexion of these dispensations with a future world, the world of final reward and punishment.

- 19 Where is the region which light inhabit-
And as to darkness, where is its place? [eth?]
- 20 Surely thou canst take us to its boundary;
Surely thou understandest the paths to its house!
- 21 Thou knowest, because thou wast then born,
And great is the number of thy days.
- 22 Hast thou entered the treasures of the snow?
Or the treasures of hail hast thou seen, [mity,
- 23 Which I have reserved for the time of cala-
For the day of battle, and of war?
- 24 By what way is the lightning divided?
How is the east wind scattered on the earth?
- 25 Who hath laid out for the flood its channel,
Or a way for the forked bolt of thunder;
- 26 To give rain to a land, where there is no man,
On a desert, where no man dwelleth;
- 27 To drench the dreary, desolate waste,
And make the herb-bud to spring forth?
- 29 Who is the father of the rain?
Or who hath begotten the drops of dew?
- 29 From whose womb cometh forth the ice?
And the hoar-frost of heaven, who gender-eth it?
- 30 The waters become hard as a stone,
And the surface of the deep is frozen.
- 31 Canst thou bind the influences of Pleiades,
Or loose the bands of Orion? [son?]
- 32 Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his sea-
Or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons?
- 33 Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven?
Appointedst thou their dominion over the
earth?
- 34 Canst thou raise thy voice to the clouds;
And will abundance of waters cover thee?
- 35 Canst thou send forth lightnings; [are?]
Or will they come and say to thee, Here we
- 36 Who hath put wisdom in their wild motions?
Or who hath given prudence to meteors?
- 37 Who by wisdom can number the clouds?
And who can pour out the bottles of heaven,
- 38 When the dust hath grown into hardness,

And when the clods are fast united together?

- Canst thou hunt the prey for the lioness? 39
Or satisfy the desire of the young lions,
When they couch in their dens, [covert? 40
When they abide in the shelter of their
Who provideth for the raven his food, 41
When his young ones cry aloud unto God,
When, for want of food, they wander abroad?
Dost thou know the time 1
When the wild goats of the rock bring forth?
Preservest thou the hinds when they calve?
Canst thou number the months they fulfil? 2
Or superintend when they bring forth?
They bend themselves, they bring forth their 3
young;
They are delivered from their girding pains.
Their young grow strong; they contend in the desert: 4
They go off, and return not again to them.
Who hath sent out the wild-ass free? 5
Or the bands of the wild-mule, who hath loosed?
Whose house I have made the wilderness, 6
And the barren land his dwelling.
He scorseth the multitude of the city; 7
To the cries of the driver he attendeth not.
The range of the mountain is his pasture; 8
And he seeketh after every green thing.
Will the rhinoceros be willing to serve 9
thee?
Will he indeed abide all night at thy crib?
Canst thou bind him with a yoke to the plow? 10
Or will he harrow the valleys after thee?
Dost thou trust him because great is his 11
strength?
Or wilt thou leave thy labour unto him?
On him dost thou depend to bring in thy 12
And gather thy thrashing-floor? [seed,
The wings of the ostrich are expanded;— 13
Her pinions and feathers as those of the stork.

19—21. Light and darkness] are personified. Each has its separate dwelling. The bounds of one never encroach on those of the other. The conclusion is ironical.

22—33. Hast thou] The magazines of nature are unknown to us; yet God disposeth of all their contents as he pleaseth. The whole of these paragraphs relate to the various changes of the atmosphere.

31, 32. Canst thou bind] So the Sept. render. Chrysostom explains 'Mazzaroth' of the twelve signs of the zodiac. Our marginal version adopts that explanation.

33. The ordinances of heaven] By heaven is meant the celestial sphere, or the heavenly bodies contained in it. 'The ordinances of heaven' are the laws by which those bodies perform their revolutions.

34. Canst thou] What can be more humiliating than such interrogations as this?

35. Here we are] This surprising figure of speech expresseth with great sublimity, the punctuality with which inanimate creatures observe the laws prescribed to them, and perform the service enjoined them by their Creator.

36. Their wild motions] So Schultens and others render; and this is supported by the context.

39. Canst thou hunt] Another chapter ought to have begun here, as there is a transition to a new subject, which is continued to the end of the address.

CHAP. XXXIX. 1. Knowest thou] Not mere knowledge, but providential care and protection, is intended here.

2. Canst thou number] Or appoint the number of months which they complete.

3. They bend themselves] They contract or draw their limbs together, for the sake of acquiring an expulsive power. The difficulty with which these creatures bring forth their young is taken notice of by Pliny, Nat. Hist. lib. viii. 32.

5. Bands of the wild mule] The Hebrew adverts to the three species, the common ass, חמור, the onager, פרא, and the wild-mule, ערר. It inhabits Arabia, China, Siberia, and Tartary, in grassy, saline plains, or salt wastes, as mentioned in the ensuing verse: but avoids woods and snowy mountains.

9—12. Will the rhinoceros] Most of the old versions so render; and Good asserts that רינ is the name by which this animal is universally called at this day, in Arabia. The head of one, answering the description of the sacred writers, may be seen in the London Missionary Museum, brought from South Africa by the Rev. J. Campbell.

13. The wings of the ostrich] The ostrich is called by the Persians the camel-bird: because it resembles a camel in its neck, height, and walk; and a bird in its bill and feathers.

14 But she leaveth her eggs on the ground,
And warmeth them in the dust ;
15 Yet forgetteth that the foot may crush them,
Or that the wild-beasts may break them.
16 To her young, as if not hers, she is cruel ;
Her labour is in vain through want of fear.
17 Surely God hath deprived her of wisdom,
And hath given her no share in understand-
18 Yet when she lifteth up herself on high, [ing ;
She scorneth the horse and his rider.
19 Hast thou given to the horse his strength ?
Hast thou clothed his neck with thunder ?
20 Canst thou make him leap like the locust ?
The strength of his snorting is terrible.
21 He paweth in the valley, and exulteth in his strength ;
He rusheth on to meet the clashing host.
24 In fierceness and rage he swalloweth the

Nor can he be restrained at the sound of the

He smelleth the battle afar off ; [ha !'
The thunder of the chiefs and the shouting.
22 He mocketh at fear, nor is he terrified ;
He turneth not back at the sight of the
sword.
23 Against him rattleth the quiver in vain ;
The glittering spear and the javelin.
26 Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom,
And spread out her wings to the south ;
27 Doth the eagle mount aloft at thy command,

And make his nest on high ?
On the craggy-rock, in a secure place :
Thence he watcheth for prey ; 29
And his eyes behold afar off.
His young ones suck up blood ; 30
For where the slain are, there is he.

Behold, I pray, the elephant, 15
Whom I made as well as thyself ;
He eateth grass like the ox.
Lo, now his strength is in his loins, 16
His force in the ligaments of his belly.
He erecteth his trunk at pleasure like the 17
cedar ;
The sinews of his thighs are twisted together.
His bones are like pipes of brass. 18
His back-bone like a bar of iron.
He is chief among the works of God ; 19
His maker hath bound on his sword.
Surely the mountains bring him forth food, 20
Where all the wild-beasts play about.
He lieth down under the shady trees : 21
In the reedy covert and in the fens : [him ;
They cover him—the shady trees overshadow 22
The willows of the river surround him.
Lo, should a river overflow, he hasteneth 23 not ; [mouth.
He is secure, though Jordan rush to his
Who can take him openly ? 24
Or draw a cord through his nose ?

14. Her eggs on the ground] The ostrich buildeth her nest on some sandy hillock, in the most barren and solitary recesses of the desert. She sits upon her eggs, as other birds do ; but then she so often wanders, and so far, in search of food, that frequently the eggs are rotten by means of her long absence from them.

16. She is cruel] On the least noise, says Dr. Shaw, or trivial occasions, she forsakes her eggs, or her young ones : to which perhaps she never returns. Compare Lam. iv. 3.

18. She scorneth] The strength and swiftness of the ostrich Adanson hath well described : ' He was in possession of two tame ostriches : and to try their strength, says he, I made a full-grown negro mount the smallest, and two others the largest. This burden did not seem to me at all disproportioned to their strength. At first, they went a pretty high trot ; and when they were heated a little ; they expanded their wings, (Watson says expressly, they flap their wings), as if it were to catch the wind, and they moved with such fleetness as to seem to be off the ground.'

19. Horse his strength] The war-horse is particularly intended.—With thunder] The neck is here put for the throat through which the voice passeth. Thunder means the terrible modification of the voice of the war-horse when he neighs.

20. Make him leap] This agility expresseth his joy to find himself in the rank of battle.

24, 25. I have transposed these two verses, as evidently out of their place. So Scott and others have observed.—Can he be restrained] He boldly meets the foe, and missile weapons do not make him afraid.

26. Doth the hawk] Most of the species of hawks, we are told, are birds of passage. The hawk therefore is produced as a specimen of that astonishing instinct, which teaches them to know when to migrate out of one country into another for the benefit of food, or a warmer climate. Jer. viii. 7.

27–30. How descriptive are these verses ! From the highest promontories, and his loftiest flights, he discerns his prey on the ground. He pounces on his prey and bears it alive to his nest almost in the same instant. The eagle is fond of flesh, and sucks the blood, with both which he nourishes his young.

CHAP. XL. 1–14. These verses, with Heath and Ken- nicott, are made the conclusion of God's address to Job, and placed after the 6th verse of the 42d chapter.

15. The elephant] Hebrew, 'the great beast ;' for the plural form is used to denote excellence or magnitude.—He eateth grass] This expression seems to imply that grass is his constant food ; and the comparison, as an ox, naturally suggests that there is some analogy between the ox and the beast here intended.

17. He erecteth his trunk] His proboscis, with which he can perform a variety of surprising actions.

19. He is chief] That is, the chief of all the beasts which God hath made.—Hath bound on] For this sense of the verb see 2 Sam. iii. 34.—On his sword] The two tusks are meant, which are formed like a sickle, and with which the elephant defends himself, when attacked by other animals. With these they also tear off the boughs of trees, and eat the tenderest part of them.

20. Surely the mountains] Three characters of the be- hemoth are marked here. First, he frequents the moun- tains. Secondly, the mountains supply him with food. The elephant then lives upon grass, plants, and the tender branches of trees. Thirdly, he is a gentle and sociable animal. The elephant will graze freely with other animals, whether wild or tame.

21, 22. The shady trees] The elephant is fond of retiring to marshy places, in the heat of the day, to cool his body in the ooze.

23. He hasteneth not] We may remark on this passage first, that the common height of the elephant is ten feet and a half. Secondly, he will walk with great composure through deep and rapid rivers, provided he can but carry his trunk, through which he draws in fresh air, above water. Thirdly, the Jordan is here mentioned, not as frequented by elephants, but only as put for any deep and violent river : for such the Jordan is in the time of its overflowing.

24. Who can take] Who can take him without wiles without art ? The second sentence alludes to the hair-noose,

1	Canst thou draw up leviathan with a hook?	Out of his mouth go firebrands,	19
	Canst thou bind his jaws with a cord?	And flashes of fire burst forth.
2	Canst thou put a rope about his nose?	From his nostrils issueth smoke,	20
	Or pierce his jaw through with the barb?	As from a boiling pot or caldron.
3	Will he multiply entreaties to thee?	His breath enkindleth coals,	21
	Will he to thee indeed speak soft words?	And a flame from his mouth issueth forth.
4	Will he make a covenant with thee?	STRENGTH maketh its abode on his neck;	22
	Wilt thou take him for a perpetual servant?	And DESTRUCTION danceth before him.
5	Wilt thou play with him like a bird?	The flakes of his flesh are closed together;	23
	Or wilt thou confine him for thy maids?	It is firm upon him, it cannot be moved.
6	Shall thy companions feast upon him?	His heart is as firm as a stone;	24
	Shall they divide him among the merchants?	Yea, firm as the nether-millstone.
7	Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons?	When he riseth up, the mighty are afraid;	25
	Or his head with fish-spears?	Through terror they are confounded.
8	Lay now thy hand upon him;	Should the sword reach him, it cannot stand;	26
	Remember the conflict, and do no more.	The spear, the dart, nor the javelin.
9	Behold, the hope of taking him is vain;	He accounteth iron as straw,	27
	Doth not man faint at the sight of him?	And brass as rotten wood.
10	No one is there who dares to arouse him;	The arrow cannot make him flee;	28
	Who then is he that can stand before Me?	Sling-stones are turned back as stubble.
11	Who hath presented to me that I may repay him?	Yea, the club he counteth as stubble;	29
	What is beneath the whole heavens is mine.	He laugheth at the brandishing of the spear.
12	I will not conceal his limbs,	Under him are the weapons of the artificer;	30
	Nor his strength and graceful proportion.	He spreadeth pointed darts on the mud.
13	Who can uncover his mailed face?	He maketh the deep to boil like a pot;	31
	Who will come with his double bridle?	And the sea he maketh thick as ointment.
14	The doors of his face, who can open?	Behind him shineth a path-way,	32
	His teeth round about are terrible;—	The deep is enbrodered with hoar.
15	'His body' is like strong shields;	Upon earth there is not his like;	33
	Closed together are the scales as with a seal.	He is made free from fear.
16	They fit one upon another,	He despiseth all that is lofty;	34
	So that no air cometh between them.	He is king over all the sons of pride.
17	To each other are they soldered;	Then Job answered and said,	1
	They are firm, and cannot be separated.	I know that thou canst do every thing,	2
18	When he sneezeth, the light sparkleth;	And that no purpose of thine can be hindered.
	And his eyes are like the eyelids of the dawn.

or ringle, which the Arabs put through the nose of their camels.

CHAP. XLI. 1. Draw up leviathan] Bochart has solidly proved, that the crocodile is intended, and that the description suits no other species of amphibious animals. The length of the crocodile is near twenty feet, and his circumference about five feet. The head and jaws are very large; and the jaws contain most formidable rows of teeth. They are covered with scales, which are proof against all missile weapons, and even against musket-balls. They are found in the Nile, the Niger, and the Ganges, and will seize and soon devour a man, woman, or child, or other animal.

2—7. These questions imply that he is exceedingly fierce, and that in the time of Job he was regarded as untamable.

7—11. Canst thou fill] These verses relate to attacking this formidable creature two ways; first, at a distance, as he lieth sunning himself on the mud islands of the Nile. Secondly, engaging him in close fight, when he lieth on the bank of the river, ver. 8.—Barbed irons—fish-spears] The impenetrability of leviathan's skin is here intimated, and is afterwards described at large. The attempt to wound him with missile weapons is ridiculed. This is a circumstance which will agree to no animal so well as to the crocodile.

8. Remember thee] Here he is advised to secure himself, if possible, from the rage of his adversary.

11. Who hath presented] The sentiment in this verse demonstrates the folly and impiety of contending with God, as Job had done.

13. Who can uncover] So Schultens renders פני מואל face; that is, covered with a coat of mail: Compare 2 Sam. xx. 8. Isa. lix. 17, and lxiii. 1, 2.

14. His teeth] The crocodile has nearly sixty teeth, and those very large, according to Bochart and others.

15—17. Like strong shields] That is, his back and sides are covered with scales that resemble the strong plates of shields.

18. The light sparkleth] Such is the violence and heat of the air, that is repelled from his nose when he sneezes, that it sparkles in the sun-beams.—His eyes are] The eyes of the crocodile are small; but they are so remarkable, that when the Egyptians would represent the morning by an hieroglyphic, they painted a crocodile's eye.

19—22. Out of his mouth] Here the creature is described in pursuit of its prey on the land, as appears from ver. 22. His mouth is then open, his breath is thrown out with prodigious vehemence, it appears like volumes of smoke, and is heated to that degree as to seem a flaming fire.

22. Strength maketh] Strength and Destruction are here represented as animated beings. The former is seated on the neck of the crocodile, to signify the extraordinary inflexibility of that part. The other leaps and dances before him, when he pursues his prey, to express the terrible slaughter which he makes.

26—29. Should the sword] The usual instruments of attack make no impression on him.

30. Under him are] That is, 'he reduceth under him,' &c.

31, 32. The deep—the sea] The Nile is thus called both by the prophets and the Arabs. When a crocodile fifty feet in length dives to the bottom, the violent agitation of the water is justly compared to liquor boiling in a caldron.

33, 34. Upon earth] No land animal like him; he is

- 3 Who is this that hideth counsel beyond knowledge? [not; Therefore have I uttered what I understood Wonders above me, which I could not know.
- 4 Hear, I pray, and I will speak; I will ask of thee, and do thou inform me.
- 5 I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear. But now mine eye seeth thee. [ear,
- 6 Wherefore I abhor myself, And repent in dust and ashes.
- 1 Then spoke Jehovah to Job, and said,
2 Can he that contendeth with the Almighty instruct him?
Let him that reproveth God answer.
- 3 Then Job answered Jehovah, and said,
4 Behold, I am vile, what shall I answer thee?
I will lay my hand upon my mouth.
- 5 Once have I spoken, but will no more reply; Twice, but I will add no more.
- 6 Then spoke Jehovah to Job out of the whirlwind and said,
7 Gird up now thy loins like a man; I will ask of thee, and do thou inform me.
- 8 Wilt thou indeed disannul my judgments? Wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest be

- 10 Deck thyself with majesty and stateliness; Clothe thyself with glory and honour.
- 11 Cast abroad the fury of thy wrath; Look on every one proud, and abase him;
- 12 Look on every one proud, and humble him, And tread down the wicked in their place.
- 13 Hide them in the dust together; In the secret place bind up their faces:

fearless. 'The sons of pride' must mean of the fish or amphibious kinds.

CHAP. XLII. 3. Who is this? Job turns the question with which God began his address into a penitential confession. See chapter xxxviii. 2. Hence he condemns his own rashness in uttering things he understood not.

4. Hear, I pray Bouillier and others suppose Job refers to chap. xxxviii. 3. but he now requests that God would hear and instruct him.

5. I have heard of thee Job declares that this visible manifestation of the Almighty to him, had impressed him with a deeper and more reverential sense of the divine perfection and majesty, than what he had before conceived by means of instruction only.

6. Wherefore I abhor Job is now humbled and repents of all his rash speeches and improper conduct.

CHAP. XL. 1—14. According to the common order, Job speaks one thing, and does another. He asserts, chap. xl. 5, that he would speak no more; but chap. xlii. 2—6, he speaks again. From the 7th verse, chap. xlii, it seems most natural to infer, that Jehovah was the last speaker in the poem, but according to the common order, Job is the last.

4. Behold, I am vile Job now retracts his opinion of his own integrity, and in the next verse he withdraws the challenge he had given chap. xiii. 22.

8. Condemn me Job's complaints and manner of justifying himself, amounted to charging God with injustice.

9—14. Hast thou The magnificent scenery presented to us in these verses, is the Almighty, arrayed in the splen-

Then will I confess to thee, 14
That thine own right hand can save thee.

And it came to pass, after Jehovah had spoken these same words unto Job, that Jehovah said to Eliphaz, the Temanite, My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two companions; for ye have not spoken concerning me as hath my servant Job. Take, therefore, for yourselves, seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer for yourselves a burnt-offering, and my servant Job shall make intercession for you, (for his person I will accept.) lest I deal with you after your folly. For ye have not spoken so concerning me, as hath my servant Job. So Eliphaz, the Temanite, and Bildad, the Shuhite, and Zophar, the Naamathite, went and did as Jehovah had commanded them. And Jehovah accepted the person of Job.

And Jehovah reversed the captive state of Job, after he had made intercession for his friends: And Jehovah gave to Job twice as much as he before had. Then came unto him all his brethren, and all his sisters, and all his former acquaintance; and are bread with him in his house; and comforted with him, and comforted him, over all the evil which Jehovah had brought upon him, and every one presented to him a piece of money, and every one an earring of gold.

Thus Jehovah blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning; for he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses.

He had also seven sons and three daughters 13 dours of divine majesty, exerting his supreme dominion, and manifesting his righteous vengeance; by thundering, and lightning on the heads of haughty tyrants, and hurling them down to the bottom of hades. See Isa. xxx. 30.

CHAP. XLII. 7, 8. After Jehovah When 1. Almighty had ended his speech to Job, and Job his confession; the cloud, I suppose, ascended out of sight, and the assembly broke up. After which, it pleased God to reveal his mind personally to Eliphaz, who had taken the lead in the uncharitable dispute with Job. The contents of the revelation are related in these verses: First, A condemnation of the unrighteous censures. Secondly, the Almighty now vindicates the innocence of Job, by styling him three times my servant; that is, my sincere worshipper. Thirdly, the three false accusers are commanded to offer a sacrifice in acknowledgment of their offence; and that their injured friend should make intercession for them, and on that condition their sacrifice should be accepted and their sin forgiven.

10. Gave to Job twice It is probable that his friends not only brought him presents, but might aid him to make reprisals on his enemies, so that he might soon become rich. And as David recovered the spoil from the Amalekites, Job might obtain part of his cattle from the plundering hordes.

13. Three daughters The first of these names denotes the day. The Aromatic Cassia gives name to the second, the fragrance of which was highly esteemed by the eastern ladies. Compare Psa. xlv. 9. The name of the third, according to the Sept., is synonymous with Cornucopia; but

- 14 ters : And he called the name of the first Jemima, and the name of the second Kezia, and the name of the third Kerenhaphuch.
- 15 And in all the land were there not found women so beautiful as the daughters of Job. And their father gave them an inheritance according to others דְּמִיָּה denotes stibium, and the name is expressive of the manner she ornamented and set off her person.

16, 17. A hundred] The age of this venerable patriarch makes it clear he must have lived as early as some of those recorded in Genesis.

PSALMS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE book called Psalms is a collection of sacred songs written by different persons, and at different periods. They were evidently composed by holy men of God : as a strain of fervent piety pervades them all. They embrace a wide range of subject. Some describe, in the most forcible language, the distresses of an awakened conscience ; the doubts and fears of good men under trials and afflictions ; their hopes and supports arising from the revealed mercy of God, his power, love, and faithfulness to his promises. Some celebrate the glories of Jehovah as the creator, governor, and preserver of the universe. Others describe his relation to the church, and celebrate the wonders of his power and grace to his people Israel ; and some are prophetic, exhibiting the person, ministry, labours, sufferings and glories of Messiah ; and the success and triumph of the gospel, with the rejection of the Jews for their unbelief, and the calling of the gentiles.

Many of these sacred songs are attributed to David, and from internal evidence were written at various periods of his life, and refer literally to his peculiar and trying circumstances. According to the titles, seventy-one are ascribed to David, twelve to Asaph, one to Heman, one to Ethan, two to Solomon, and the rest are without titles. By whom, or when these titles were added, is unknown ; but from internal evidence there is reason to believe, that they are frequently wrong. Many of those ascribed to David were written during the Babylonish captivity, or subsequent to it ; and some which have no titles appear to belong to David. As the Psalms have no connexion, it is probable that their order arose from the circumstance of their being composed by the prophets as occasion suggested, and were then collected together. In the Hebrew, the Psalms are divided into five books ; the first book ending with the forty-first psalm ; the second, with the seventy-second ; the third with the eighty-ninth ; the fourth with the hundred and sixth ; and the fifth with the hundred and fiftieth. This division seems to have been made posterior to the time of our Lord, who refers to it as one book, Luke xx. 42.

PSALM I.

The happiness of the righteous, and the misery of the wicked.

- 1 O the happiness of the man [wicked,
Who walketh not after the counsel of the
Nor abideth in the way of sinners,
Nor sitteth in the company of scoffers ;
- 2 But whose delight is in the law of Jehovah,
And who on his law meditateth day and night. [streams,
- 3 Truly he is like a tree planted by water—
That yieldeth its fruit in its proper season,
And whose foliage never fadeth :
Thus, whatsoever he doeth prospereth.

PSALM I. 1. This psalm is without a title, but was most probably composed by David.—The counsel] To walk after or follow the counsels of the wicked is to adopt their sentiments, join their society, and live in the same manner. Compare Mic. vi. 16.—In the company] The word בְּחִבּוּשׁ is properly rendered Psa. cvii. 32, assembly, and the Chaldee so explains here.

2. Whose delight] Or pleasure. This shows a renewed mind ; a mind whose dispositions are conformed to the law. The term law signifies all that God had revealed. Compare Josh. i. 8.

3. He is like a tree] He most probably alludes to the palm-tree. Psa. xcii. 12.—Thus, whatsoever] Many refer this line also to the tree, after the Chaldee, and render, 'And whatsoever it produceth, shall prosper.' This makes the author guilty of an unmeaning tautology.

- Not so are the wicked, 4
But like chaff which the wind driveth away !
Hence the wicked shall not stand in judgment, 5
Nor sinners in the assembly of the just.
For Jehovah approveth the way of the just ; 6
But the way of the wicked is destructive.

PSALM II.

A prophecy of Christ, as king of Zion ; the fruitless attempts of his enemies, and the extent of his kingdom.

- Why are the nations tumultuous, 1
And why do the people meditate a vain
The kings of the earth rise up, [thing? 2
The princes conspire together,

4. Like chaff] As worthless as chaff ; and as it was driven away by the wind, so will they be driven away by the anger of God.

5. Not stand in judgment] Most refer this to the last judgment ; and their not standing must mean, 'when tried, they shall be condemned.' Compare Matt. xii. 41—2.

6. Approveth] The sense of יָרָא is frequent, Psa. ci. 4. Hos. viii. 4.—Is destructive] That is, their conduct leads to their ruin. The verb is considered in the passive voice.

PSALM II. 1. Tumultuous] The prophet, as if present, and beholding the rage of the unbelieving Jews, and others against our Lord, and his reign, asks the cause of it : 'Why are the nations,' &c.

2. Princes conspire] The apostles apply this to what Herod, Pontius Pilate, the Gentiles and people of Israel, did against our Lord. Acts iv. 25—27.—Against his

- Against Jehovah, and against his Anointed !
3 Let us, say they, break asunder their bands,
 And cast off from us their heavy yokes.
4 He who dwelleth in the heavens will laugh ;
 Jehovah will have them in derision.
5 Then will he speak to them in his wrath,
 And in his fury will he confound them.
6 Yet have I, saith he, anointed my king
 Over Zion, my hallowed mountain.
7 I will declare the decree of Jehovah ;
 He said to me, Thou art my son ;
 To-day have I begotten thee.
8 Ask of me, and I will give to thee
 The nations for thine inheritance,
 And the ends of the earth for thy possession.
9 Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron,
 Thou shalt shiver them like a potter's vessel.
10 Now, therefore, be wise, ye kings ;
 Be instructed, ye judges of the earth.
11 Serve Jehovah with fear ;
 And rejoice before him with reverence.
12 Kiss the chosen one lest he be angry,
 And ye perish in your evil way ;
 For soon will his wrath be kindled ;
 Then happy all they who trust in him.

PSALM III.

Security under God's protection.

A psalm of David, when he was fleeing from his son Absalom, 2 Sam. 15—18 chapters.

- 1 JEHOVAH, how are my foes increased !
 How many are they who rise up against me !
2 How many are they who say concerning me,
 There is no help for him with God.
3 But thou, Jehovah, art a shield around me ;

Anointed] It is well known, that prophets and kings were anointed as a designation to their office; but there are many passages in the prophets, which obviously refer to that person, in whom all the families of the earth were to be blessed. Dan. ix. 25, 26. Acts xiii. 32, 33.

3. Their bands—their yokes] That is, their laws and institutions, referring both to Jehovah and his Anointed. John v. 23.

4. Dwelleth] So most of our old translators; and the word יָשָׁב signifies, 'to dwell,' as well as 'to sit.' Compare Ps. cxxiii. 1, and cxlii. 5. Isa. xxxiii. 5.—Will laugh] This implies both their folly and their punishment. The same figure occurs Ps. lix. 8.

5. Confound them] Vex does not here express the force of the text. They shall be confounded on hearing Jehovah's determination, and finding that their efforts are vain against Messiah and his kingdom.

6. Yet have] These are clearly the words of Jehovah addressed to Messiah's enemies. Acts iv. 27.

7. The decree of Jehovah] Here Messiah speaks, announcing his father's eternal purpose concerning him.—To-day have] The connexion of this verb with the former line, and the design of the Psalm clearly shows, that it must be understood in a figurative sense. Hence the sense must be, I have this day shown that thou art my son, by raising thee up from the grave, and establishing the royal power in thy hands.

8, 9. Ask of me] As thy right according to my promise.
10—12. The prophet concludes with giving advice to the kings and judges of the earth, to be wise by obeying Messiah and receiving instruction from him.

12. Kiss the chosen one] This version of כִּסּוּ is adopted as being the Hebrew sense of the word. Compare 1 Sam.

- My glory, and the lifter up of my head.
 With my voice I cry unto Jehovah,
 And he heareth me from his holy mountain.
 I lie down and securely sleep ;
 I awake, for Jehovah sustaineth me.
 I will not fear the myriads of people,
 Who on every side set themselves against me.
 Arise, O Jehovah ; save me, O my God :
 For thou canst smite the jaws of all my foes ;
 The teeth of the wicked thou canst break.
 From Jehovah cometh salvation :
 Thy blessing is upon thy own people.

PSALM IV.

David exhorts his enemies, and shows that happiness consists, not so much in riches, as in God's favour.

For the first musician on Neginoth ; A psalm of David.

- WHEN I call, hear me, Jehovah, my just- 1
 In distress thou hast relieved me : [tifier ;
 Now be gracious to me, and hear my prayer.
 How long, O ye sons of men, will ye re- 2
 gard my glory as dishonour ?
 Will ye love vanity, and seek falsehood ?
 Know that Jehovah hath chosen his pious 3
 one ;
 Jehovah heareth when 'he calleth' upon him.
 Though moved with anger, yet sin not : 4
 Commune with your own hearts
 On your couches, and be still :
 Offer sacrifices of righteousness ; 5
 And put your trust in Jehovah.
 There are many who are saying, Who will 6
 show kindness unto us ?
 Lift up, Jehovah, the light of thy countenance upon us !
 Thou hast given gladness to my heart, 7

xvii. 8, where the verb signifies to choose. Kimchi considered this highly probable, and compares the term with בָּחַר, elect or chosen, which is applied to Saul, 2 Sam. xxi. 6.

PSALM III. 2. Concerning me] We may suppose David, on finding the number of Absalom's adherents increasing, to have written this consolatory Psalm.

3. The lifter up] A man in sorrow bows down his head; and he who removes it, may be said to be 'the lifter up of the head.'

4. He heareth me] Or, is wont to hear me, as the verb may have a frequentative sense.

7. Thou canst smite—canst break] That we must render here potentially both the subject and connexion require; for, otherwise, we shall make David pray to God to do that, which he asserts he had already done.

PSALM IV. 1. My justifier] Here is a participial noun, as many modern critics observe.—Thou hast relieved] Hebrew, 'enlarged,' as opposed to being confined; which means relieved.

2. How long, O sons of men] Some think that בְּנֵי אָדָם denote 'the rich and powerful;' but only when opposed to בְּנֵי אֱרֶץ, as Psalm xlix. 3. (v) Chald. 1 MS.

4. Though moved] The Hebrew imperative sometimes signifies permission only, and is similar to the conditional tense. See Glasius. No one who reflects, can suppose, that David would command his enemies to be angry, or that the apostle would urge christians to be so: Eph. iv. 26. David advises them to guard against the effects of it.

6. Many are saying] Most expositors apply the words to David's enemies. Hammond more properly refers this language to David's friends, who were discouraged by their difficulties, and, who for some time, seem to have endured great privations.

Since their corn and wine have increased.
8 With them I securely lie down and sleep,
For thou only Jehovah makest me dwell in safety.

PSALM V.

This psalm also seems to have been composed during the rebellion of Absalom. It contains the most fervent supplications to God for his assistance against his enemies.

To the chief musician on the Nehiloth; a Psalm of David.

- 1 GIVE ear, O Jehovah, to my words;
Regard my moanings:
- 2 Listen to my cry, my king and my God;
For to thee do I pray. [voice;
- 3 In the morning, Jehovah, thou hearest my
In the morning I present myself to thee,
and wait: [wicked;
- 4 For thou art not a God who favoureth the
Nor shall the evil doer dwell with thee.
- 5 The madly profane cannot stand in thy sight;
Thou hatest all the workers of iniquity:
- 6 "All" those who speak falsehood thou de-stroyest: [horreth.
The bloody and deceitful man Jehovah ab-
- 7 As for me, through thine abounding mercy,
I shall again come to thy house,
And, with fear, worship at thy holy temple.
- 8 Lead me, O Jehovah, in thy righteousness;
Because of my foes, make plain thy way before me.
- 9 For in their mouth there is no truth;
Their inward part is all depravity:
Their throat is an open sepulchre:
With their tongue they speak deceitfully.
- 10 Hold them guilty, O God!
Let them fall by their own counsels;
For their many transgressions cast them off,
Because against thee they have rebelled.
- 11 But let all who trust in thee rejoice,
Let them ever sing for joy, for thou defend-est them.
- 12 Let "all" who love thy name exult in thee;

7. Since their corn] Or literally, 'from the time their,' &c. So all the ancient versions rendered. The text refers to that period, when David and his troops, in distress for provision, were seasonably relieved by Shobi, Machir, and Birzillai: 2 Sam. xvii. 27.

PSALM V. 3. I present myself] I present myself as a suppliant, and wait on thee for mercy.

4. Dwell with] The verb ויר means to sojourn with one, and to enjoy the rights of hospitality.

5, 6. The madly profane] This is obviously the sense of הרשעים. Such men act as if devoid of reason. Ainsworth renders, 'vain glorious fools.' (a) Sept. Syr.

7. Holy temple] Ainsworth explains this to mean, 'the most holy place,' where God dwelt, which might be properly called his temple or palace.

8. In thy righteousness] Lead me to practise the duties of religion, as set forth in thy word, which are called the paths of righteousness, Ps. xxiii. 3.

9. No truth] Literally, 'nothing certain;' no truth, as Ainsworth explains.—Is all depravity] Full of depraved thoughts and counsels.

10. Hold them guilty] That is, treat them according to their guilt, by making them fall by their own counsels

Because thou, Jehovah, blessest the just,
And surroundeth him with favour as a shield.

PSALM VI.

This psalm was composed in some severe affliction, both of mind and body. It is the first of those called penitentiary.

For the chief musician, on the eight-stringed Neginoth; a Psalm of David.

- O JEHOVAH, rebuke me not in thine anger, 1
Nor in thy hot displeasure chastise me.
Have mercy on me, Jehovah, for I am weak: 2
Heal me, O Jehovah, for my bones are troubled;
My soul is also exceedingly troubled: 3
How long wilt thou, Jehovah, delay to help?
Return, O Jehovah; deliver my soul: 4
Save me, for thy mercy's sake.
For in death no one celebrateth thee; 5
Who in hades can give thanks unto thee?
I am wearied out with my groaning: 6
Every night I bedew my bed;
With my tears I water my couch:
Mine eye is wasted away with grief; 7
I am worn out amidst all mine enemies.
Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity; 8
For Jehovah hath heard the noise of my weeping;
Jehovah hath heard my supplication, 9
Jehovah hath received my prayer.
Ashamed and sore confounded shall be all 10
my foes:
They shall retreat, and suddenly be ashamed.

PSALM VII.

David defendeth himself against the reproaches of Cush, by asserting his innocence and appealing to God as the best judge.

An Elegy of David, which he sung to Jehovah on account of the words of Cush, the Benjamite.

- O JEHOVAH, my God, in thee do I trust; 1
Save and deliver me from all my persecutors;
Lest, like a lion, they prey upon me; 2
Rending me to pieces, and there be no deliverer.

12. (a) Versions.

PSALM VI. 1. Rebuke me not] David does not pray against correction itself, but against being corrected in anger, Rev. iii. 19.

2. My bones are troubled] Some understand by bones, the body, his pains afflicted his whole frame.

3. Delay to help] I have supplied after the old edition of 1599.

5. Celebrateth thee] The versions consider וירך as a verb, and not a noun. The best comment on this passage are the words of the pious king Hezekiah: Isa. xxxvii. 18, 19.

7. Is wasted] This is the most approved sense of the word; for as it is applied in another passage to the bones, it cannot denote dim or obscure.

10. They shall retreat] Ainsworth explains to the same purpose.

PSALM VII. 1. The title of this psalm is obscure. Some of the Jews understand by Cush, Saul, and others Shimei. We may conjecture that he was some one of Saul's adherents, though he is not mentioned elsewhere.

2. They prey upon me] To avoid the change of persons the plural is adopted; and indeed the idiom of the Hebrew justifies this. Compare Job xix. 22, and xxvii. 2.

- 3 O Jehovah, my God, if I have done this :
If in my hands be iniquity :
- 4 If I have rewarded evil to my friend,
Or plundered my causeless adversary :
- 5 Let the enemy pursue and take my soul ;
My life let him trample to the ground,
And my glory let him lay in the dust !
- 6 Arise, O Jehovah, in thine anger :
Stand up, because of the rage of my foes ;
Awake, my God ; appoint the judgment.
- 7 Let the assembly of the people surround thee : [high :
On their account therefore return thou on
- 8 To the people, let Jehovah do justice.
Judge me, Jehovah, according to my
righteousness,
And according to mine inward integrity.
- 9 Let the evil deed of the wicked have an end ;
But do thou establish the just :
For the just God trieth the hearts and reins.
- 10 God is a shield to protect me ;
He who saveth the upright in heart.
- 11 God is a righteous judge ;
Hence with the "wicked" he is always angry.
- 12 If he turn not, he will whet his sword ;
He hath bent and prepared his bow,
- 13 And hath fitted to it the instruments of death :
His arrows he hath wrought for persecutors.
- 14 Lo ! the wicked is pained with iniquity,
And is big with mischief, and bringeth forth
falsehood.
- 15 He hath opened a pit, and dug it deep :
But into the pit that he hath made shall he fall.
- 16 His mischief shall return upon his own head ;
And on his own crown shall his violence descend.
- 17 I will then praise Jehovah for his justice,
And sing to the name of Jehovah, most high.

PSALM VIII.

God is celebrated as the Creator ; and especially for his kindness to man.

For the chief musician on Githith ; a Psalm of David.

- 1 O JEHOVAH, our God ! [earth ;
How excellent thy name through all the

3. Done this] That is, if I have done that of which Cush accuses me, and which seems to be, that he had rebelled against Saul,—that he had plundered and robbed him of his property, as we may collect from the next verse.

5. Take my soul] It is used for person, or as synonymous with life in the next line.

6. Awake, my God] This is the version of the Sept. and Vulg.—Appoint the judgment] The preterit as well as the future is sometimes used for the imperative. Compare Gen. vi. 21, Lev. xxvii. 2, Ezek. iv. 1.

7. Let the assembly] There is here a reference to the manner of administering justice, which was usually in the gate, or open place in the cities, where the people surrounded the tribunal, on which the judge sat.—Return thou on high] That is, ascend the tribunal.

8. To the people] This line evidently completes the sense of the paragraph, and should have been made a part of the preceding verse.

10. God is a] Hebrew, ' My shield is upon or with God.'

- Who hast placed thy glory above the heavens !
- From the mouths of babes and sucklings 2
Thou ordainest strength against thine opponents,
So as to put to silence the enemy and avenger.
When I view the heavens the work of thy 3
fingers ;
The moon and stars which thou hast formed,
What is man that thou art mindful of him ? 4
And the son of man that thou regardest him ?
For thou madest him a little lower than 5
angels,
And crowndest him with glory and honour !
Thou gavest him dominion over the works 6
of thy hands,
And didst put all things under his feet :
Flocks and all herds ; yea, the beasts of the 7
field, [sea,
The birds of the air, and the fishes of the 8
That pass along the paths of the waters !
O Jehovah, our God ! [earth ! 9
How excellent thy name through all the

PSALM IX.

David praises God for victory over his enemies, and prays for future aid and assistance.

For the first musician on the Muthlaben ; a Psalm of David.

- I WILL praise Jehovah with my whole 1
heart ;
I will declare all thy wonderful deeds.
I will rejoice and exult in thee ; 2
I will sing praise to thy name, O most high.
When mine enemies were turned back, 3
They stumbled and perished at thy presence.
For thou supportedst my right and my cause ; 4
Thou satest on the throne judging righteously. [wicked ;
Thou rebukedst nations—destroyedst the 5
Their name thou didst blot out for ever.
Desolations have utterly consumed the 6 enemy ; [membrane is lost !
Thou didst destroy their cities ; their re-
But Jehovah remaineth for evermore ; 7
He hath prepared his throne for judgment :

11. God is a righteous judge] So all the ancient versions, with our marginal one, have rendered. For the next line, see note, Hebrew Bible.

12. If he turn not] That is, the wicked man. Unless such an one repent, God is armed to punish him.

PSALM VIII. 1. Placed thy glory] The common version of תָּרַם is the most probable. The learned reader may see the opinions which have been formed reviewed in Ru-senmuller.

2. Thou ordainest strength] Or hast founded strength, as Ainsworth renders. That is, the wonderful manner in which thou nourishest babes and bringest them up, affords invincible arguments of thy being, power, and goodness ; arguments which thy opponents shall never be able to answer. Matt. xxi. 15, 16.

4-6. What is man] How elevated the sentiments of this sacred ode ! When man is viewed in respect to the grandeur and immensity of the heavens, what nothingness !
But when considered with respect to other creatures, what

- 8 In righteousness he will judge the world,
And minister justice to the people in equity.
9 For Jehovah is a refuge for the oppressed,
A refuge in times of distress.

For those who seek thee, thou Jehovah forsakest not. [Zion;

He hath not forgotten the cry of the af-
13 To me Jehovah hath been gracious, [me;
Seeing my affliction from those who hated
14 And lifting me up from the gates of death;
14 That I might rehearse all thy praises
In the gates of the daughter of Zion,
And might exult in thy salvation.
15 The nations have sunk into the pit they
made;
In the net they hid is their own foot taken.
16 Jehovah is known when he executeth judgment,

17 The wicked shall be turned into hell:
All the nations, who are unmindful of God.
18 For the poor shall not be for ever forgotten;
Nor the hope of the afflicted for ever perish.
19 Arise, Jehovah, let not man prevail;
Let the nations be judged in thy own presence.
20 Place, Jehovah, a teacher over them;
Let the nations know that they are but men.

honour and dignity! See Heb. ii. 6. The writer refers to man as innocent; and doubtless to what Moses relates Gen. i. 26, &c.

7. Beasts of the forests] Or wild beasts, in opposition to the flocks and herds.

PSALM IX. 3. Were turned back] To render this in the present time, is certainly improper.—At thy presence] That is, by thine anger. Compare Ps. xxxiv. 17. Isa. lxiv. 1, 2. Jer. iv. 26.

6. Desolations] For this rendering, see note, Hebrew Bible.

10. They who know] This is the character of God's people; they know, and own, and confess his name.

12. Searching out blood] That is, blood shed unjustly, God searcheth out, and will punish.

13. To me Jehovah] De Rossi observes that חנני is the better reading. Most modern critics consider the verb as the preterit, and not as the imperative. Aquila thus rendered, 'Jehovah had compassion on me.'

14. Daughter of Zion] He had adverted to the gates of death, with which he contrasts the gates of the daughter of Zion; that is, the gates of the place where the people met to worship. Ps. lxxxvii. 2.

15. The nations] He again adverts to the overthrow of his enemies.

16. Jehovah is known] Ainsworth, 'Known is Jehovah, judgment he hath executed.' See note, Hebrew Bible.

17. Into hell; all the] The wicked are not only to be punished here, but hereafter.

20. Place, Jehovah, a teacher] The meaning seems to be, that as they are ignorant, they are insolent, and think that they possess the power of the gods whom they worship; but set a teacher over them, and let him inform them, that they are but frail mortals; and must soon perish.

PSALM X.

This psalm is supposed to have been written on the same occasion with the preceding one.

- WHY, O Jehovah, standest thou afar off? 1
Or hidest thyself in times of distress?
The wicked through pride persecuteth the 2
poor; [contrived.
These are taken in the devices those have
The wicked boasteth of his soul's desire, 3
He blesseth the covetous, whom Jehovah abhorreth.
Through pride the wicked will not seek him; 4
God is not in all his thoughts.
Perverse at all times are his ways: 5
Thy judgments are beyond his notice:
As to all his adversaries, he puffeth at them.
He saith in his heart, I shall not be moved; 6
I shall ever be happy without adversity.
His mouth is full of perjury, deceit, and 7 fraud; [quity.
Under his tongue are oppression and ini-
He sitteth in the ambushment of village- 8
huts;
In lurking-holes he murdereth the innocent.
His eyes secretly mark the miserable:
He lieth in wait, like a lion in his den;— 9
He lieth in wait to seize the poor:
He seizeth the poor by drawing him into his net.
He croucheth, he compresseth himself, 10
Till the miserable fall into his strong toils.
He saith in his heart, God forgetteth; 11
He hideth his face, and will never notice this.
Arise, O Jehovah; exert thy power, O 12
Forget not "for ever" the afflicted. [God!

PSALM X. 1. Standest thou afar off] Ainsworth has observed that this form of expostulation may be understood as a prayer. Isa. i. 15. Lam. iii. 56.

3. Of his soul's desire] That is, of obtaining his soul's desire.—He blesseth] Or praiseth the covetous. The wicked man praises such characters and imitates them; but Jehovah abhorreth them. The marginal version is, 'The covetous blesseth himself, he abhorreth the Lord.'

4. Through pride] Hebrew, 'through the height of his nose.' This phrase often occurs as expressive of pride and arrogance. There is no reference to God in all his thoughts, schemes, and devices.

5. Perverse at all] Schræder has supported this sense of the verb חיל, from the Arabic.—Beyond his notice] While the wicked man is pursuing his unjust and ambitious schemes, he never thinks of any reverse.—Puffeth at them] He holds them in utter contempt.

6. I shall ever be happy] The word אשׁר here is a verb; and in the sense given, it admirably expresses the vain confidence and hopes of the sinner.

7—11. These verses evidently describe the wicked leader of some of those hordes, which so frequently infested the land of Israel.

8. Village-huts] Any which he may find empty and fit for his purpose. Perhaps those are meant which herdsmen and shepherds made for their occasional residence.

9, 10. The image of the lion marks both the cunning and the fierceness of the character described.—Into his strong toils] So Dathé, who observes, that the word in Arabic signifies a cord. As net is before used, it seems to imply something similar.

11. He hideth his face] He winks at my conduct, and will not animadvert upon it.

12. (a) Arab.

- 13 Why should the wicked despise God?
Why say in his heart, Thou wilt not inquire?
- 14 Surely thou seest oppression and grief;
Thou beholdest to requite them with thy hand.
The miserable committeth himself to thee;
Thou art indeed the helper of the fatherless.
- 15 Break the arm of the wicked and evil man:
Search out his wickedness till thou find none.
- 16 Jehovah is king for ever and ever:
The nations perish out of his land.
- 17 The desire of the afflicted thou didst hear,
Jehovah! [thine ear,
Didst establish their heart, and incline
- 18 So as to judge the helpless and the oppressed,
That man may no more be expelled from the land.

PSALM XI.

David expresseth his confidence, and asserts the providence and justice of God. It was probably composed after Saul became jealous of him, and before he finally left the court.

For the Chief Musician; "a Psalm of David."

- 1 IN Jehovah do I put my trust;
Wherefore do ye then say to me,
Fly as a bird 'to the mountains?'
- 2 For lo! the wicked have bent the bow;
They have fitted the arrow to the string,
To shoot in darkness the upright of heart.
- 3 When the foundations of right are subverted,
What can even a righteous man do?
- 4 Jehovah is in his holy temple;
Jehovah, whose throne is in the heavens—
His eyes behold the "afflicted."
His eye-lids prove the children of men.
- 5 Jehovah proveth the righteous,
But the wicked and lover of violence he hateth. [sulphur,
- 6 On the wicked he raineth flakes of fire and
A horrible tempest is the portion of their
cup. [ness:
- 7 But the righteous Jehovah loveth righteous—
"The upright" shall behold his face.

13. Thou wilt not] David addresses God, using the language of the wicked oppressor.

15. Break the arm] Arm as well as hand is used for power. Destroy the power of such men, that they may no longer oppress.—Search out] So avenge his wickedness, that no trace of it may remain.

16. The nations perish] That is, the surrounding nations, who had seized and possessed various parts of the promised land, now began to be subdued and expelled.

18. So as to judge] That is, to avenge them.—Expelled from the land] By the incursions of the enemy many had been expelled or torn from their own country.

PSALM XI. 1. To the mountains] The common text has 'your mountains,' but three versions read as stated. 'Leave the court and haste to the strong holds.' This is the advice of David's friends, and is continued to the end of the third verse. They despaired of safety in any way, but by flight. (a) Sept.

3. When the foundations] When no regard is paid to religion, or even common justice, who can hope for safety, however innocent?

4—7. Jehovah is in] David replies to the advice and reasoning of his friends, by reminding them of Jehovah's power and justice. 4. (a) Sept.

PSALM XII.

David prays that God would preserve him from wicked and deceitful men. It is probable that this psalm was composed after the former, when Saul's courtiers aided his designs of taking David off.

For the first musician on the Octachord; a Psalm of David.

- SAVE, O Jehovah, for the pious are gone; 1
For the faithful have ceased from among men. [low; 2
They speak vain things, each one to his fel-
With flattering lips, and a double heart they speak.
Jehovah shall cut off all flattering lips; 3
The tongue that uttereth haughty things.
They say, By our tongue we will prevail, 4
Our lips are our own—who is lord over us?
For the desolation of the afflicted, 5
For the bitter anguish of the poor,
Now will I arise, saith Jehovah;
I will set them in safety from those who puff at them.
The words of Jehovah are pure, 6
Like silver refined in a crucible;
"Like gold" purified seven times.
Thou, Jehovah, wilt preserve "us;"— 7
Thou wilt for ever guard us from this race.
The wicked walk on every side, 8
When the vilest of men are exalted.

PSALM XIII.

David complains of his sufferings, and solicits speedy aid. It is thought that he composed it during his persecution by Saul.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

- How long, Jehovah, wilt thou wholly 1 forget me?
How long hide thy countenance from me?
How long shall I be distressed in my mind? 2
How long be all day grieved in my heart?
How long shall my foe be exalted over me?
Regard and answer me, O Jehovah, my 3
God:

6. Flakes of fire and sulphur] For this sense of פְּחָדִים the learned reader may see Lowth's note, with Michaelis's remarks, in his Prelections, Gen. xix. 28.—A horrible tempest] Ainsworth explains, 'an horrible, blasting whirlwind.'

7. The upright] The construction followed is that of the Chaldee and Arabic translators, Ps. xvii. 15; cxi. 14.

PSALM XII. 1. The pious are gone] Either have ended their days, or have been taken off.

4. We will prevail] By their flattery and deceit, they presumed that they could supplant their rivals, and attain their object.

5. For the desolation] God now spoke to him, and promises to relieve the afflicted, and punish the haughty and wicked.

6. The words of Jehovah] The promises, which he had just received and repeated. For the text, see note, Hebrew Bible.

7. From this race] The term דָּוָר is used metonymically for the men of this age or generation, as it often is; and the next verse supports this sense.

PSALM XIII. 1. Wholly forget me] So Luther renders, צָחַק, and not for ever: and Michaelis has adopted it.

2. Be distressed in my mind] So the Syriac, of which Bishop Secker approves.

- Enlighten mine eyes lest I sleep the sleep of death; [him;
4 Lest my foe say, I have prevailed against Lest mine enemy exult when I am removed.
5 But I put my trust in thy mercy;
My heart shall rejoice in thy salvation;
I will sing to Jehovah, who dealieth kindly with me; [high."
*I will praise the name of Jehovah, most

PSALM XIV.

David describes the depravity of men. The psalm was probably composed on the rebellion of Absalom. For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

- 1 FOOLS say in their heart that there is no God! [works:
They are corrupted—abominable are their
Not one of them doeth good, "not even one."
2 Jehovah from the heavens looked down on men, [God.
To see if there were one so wise as to seek
3 They are all gone astray, are together corrupted:
Not one doeth good, not even one. [rupted:
4 Have "the workers of iniquity no knowledge,
Who devour my people as they devour bread,
And who never call upon Jehovah?
5 Then shall they tremble with fear,
For God will be with his righteous people.
6 They deride the counsel of the afflicted;
But Jehovah will be his refuge. [Zion!
7 Oh may the salvation of Israel come from
When Jehovah restoreth his captive people,
Jacob shall exult and Israel shall rejoice.

PSALM XV.

David describeth the true worshippers of God. He probably composed this psalm when the ark was brought to Zion, 2 Sam. vi. 12.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 JEHOVAH, who shall sojourn in thy tabernacle?

3. [Enlighten mine] Grown dim, as it were with affliction and grief.

5. I will praise] This line is added on the authority of the Sept. and Ps. vii. 17.

PSALM XIV. 1. Not even one] The addition of the Sept. renders the line more emphatic, and is adopted by most critics.

3. They are all gone] Is there not a reference in this and the former verse to Gen. vi. 5—7? The apostle applies this to prove the depravity of Jews and Gentiles, Rom. iii. 10, &c.

4. Have the workers] David now adverts to the wicked Israelites, who insulted and persecuted the pious. (a) All Ps. liii. 4.

5. Then shall they] Literally, 'fear a fear;' but the verb signifies also to feel the effect of fear—His righteous people] David so calls those who had any regard to God and the best interest of the state.

6. They deride] Those wicked and rebellious men ridiculed the plans and hopes of the good.—But Jehovah will be] This gives assurance to the pious of their safety and triumph.

7. Oh may the] David here prays to Jehovah as dwelling in Zion; and requests that he would restore his captive people; by which I think he means, himself and the many thousands who were with him, and perhaps many who had fled to other lands. Some think this verse was added to the psalm during the captivity in Babylon; but the words may be understood as above. Compare Judges v. 12.

PSALM XV. 1. In thy tabernacle] David made a tent

- Who shall inhabit thy holy mountain?
He who walketh uprightly and acteth justly; 2
Who speaketh the truth from his heart;
Who slandereth not with his tongue; 3
Who doeth no evil unto his neighbour,
Nor on his friend bringeth reproach:
In whose eyes the vile person is despised, 4
But who honoureth those that fear Jehovah:
He, who sweareth to a friend, and changeth 5
not;
Who putteth not his money to usury,
Nor taketh a bribe against the innocent:
He who doeth these things, shall never be moved.

PSALM XVI.

A prophecy of Messiah, who is represented as a priest, and who testifies his own reliance on Jehovah, that he would raise him from the dead.

A Golden Song of David.

- PRESERVE me, O God, for in thee do I 1
trust.
To Jehovah "I say," Thou art my Lord, 2
No good have I but from thee.
As to the saints who are in the earth,
They are the excellent in whom is all my delight.
Multiplied shall be their sorrows 3
Who hasten after another God:
Their bloody drink-offerings I will not offer,
Nor even mention their names with my lips.
Jehovah, the portion of my heritage and eup, 4
Thou art he, who hast appointed my lot.
The lines have fallen to me on pleasant 5
places;
Yea, the inheritance is delightful to me.
I will bless Jehovah who hath consulted for 6
me; [him.
By night my reins instruct me concerning
I set Jehovah always before me; 7 for the ark, and placed it on Mount Zion, and it was most probably like that of Moses. Here God's people came to worship.

3. Nor on his friend] He neither does, nor says any thing, by which his friend may be injured or reproached.

5. Sweareth to a friend] or neighbour. So all the versions render.

PSALM XVI. 2. To Jehovah I say] This reading of the versions removes the difficulties of the text. Here Messiah speaks to the Father, as his servant, sent to do his will, and now suffering. Considering the preceding words, 'thou art my Lord,' as Messiah's address to the father, it is natural to infer, that he is here exercising his confidence in him, by whom he had been appointed to the work of mediation.

3. Their sorrows] Some render, idols, instead of 'sorrows;' but עַבְדֵּי never has this signification, but עֲבָדִים. Those men are described who refuse to acknowledge the Messiah; and who will not have him to rule over them.—Their bloody drink-offerings] As it was the office of the priests to offer the sacrifices, so it was also to pour out the drink-offerings, Numb. xv. 5, 7, 10, and xxviii. 7. He calls their drink-offerings bloody, that is, equally displeasing to God, as if they had shed blood, and were polluted.—I will not offer] The person who speaks through the whole psalm, now speaks as a priest, which could not apply to David.

4. Jehovah, the portion] This phrase is also taken from the Jewish priesthood. They had no part in the land, but Jehovah was their portion. So Messiah should have no earthly riches.

6. Who hath consulted for me] That is, who hath ap-

Since he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. [joiceth;

8 Therefore my heart is glad, and my soul re-
My flesh also shall rest in hope.

9 For thou wilt not leave my soul in hades,
Nor suffer thy holy one to see corruption.

10 Thou wilt make known to me the path of life; [sence;

The fulness of joy that there is in thy pre-
The pleasures that are at thy right hand for evermore.

PSALM XVII.

*David prays against his persecuting and wicked enemies.
This psalm appears to have been composed, when David was persecuted by Saul, and obliged to take refuge in the most inaccessible places.*

A Prayer of David.

1 HEAR, O righteous Jehovah, attend to my cry: [lips.

Listen to my prayer, not made with feigned
2 From thyself let my sentence proceed;
Let thine eyes behold what is right.

3 Thou hast tried my heart—visited me by night;

Hast proved me, but found no evil design;
As to the deeds of men my mouth trans-

4 By the words of thy lips, [gressed not;
I have kept from the ways of the destroyer.

5 Support thou my steps in thine own paths,
That my feet may not slip.

6 I call on thee, for thou wilt hear me, O God;
Incline thine ear to me,—listen to my words.

7 Display thy wonderful loving-kindness.
Thou who savest those who trust "in thee,"
From such as rise up against thy power.

8 Guard me as the tender apple of the eye;

pointed me to the priest's office, and consulted my honour and happiness.—My reins] The heart and the reins are used metonymically for the inward affections and thoughts.

7. Not be moved] This phrase denotes the assurance of good men, that God will not suffer them to be overwhelmed and confounded. So Messiah, amidst his sufferings, and even in death, enjoys this assurance.

8. And my soul] Literally, 'my liver rejoiceth,' but as this has not such a figurative sense in our language, I have used soul. The Greek version has 'my tongue,' which Luke retains.

9. For thou] Or that thou wilt not, &c. expressing the object of hope.—Leave my soul] That is, in the separate state. We are sure, from Matt. x. 28, that the soul may exist separate from the body, and that as the term the apostle uses for this, Acts ii. 27, does mean the mind or spirit, we ought to take it in this sense here, and consider the next line as referring to the body.—To see corruption] The reasoning of Peter, Acts ii. 27—31, and of Paul, Acts xiii.
34, depends on the term שחית, corruption. See note, Heb.
Bible.

10. Make known] That is, bring my soul out of hades, and my body from the grave; and exalt me, for the suffering of death, to taste the fulness of joy, &c.

PSALM XVII. 1. Righteous Jehovah] The common version, 'hear the right, or righteousness,' cannot be supported by any usage of the Hebrew.

3, 4. Thou hast tried] The order and rendering of the Sept. Syr. and Arab. is adopted in these two verses.

8. Tender apple] Hebrew, The apple, 'daughter of the eye.' The versions seem to have had only one of these words. See note, Hebrew Bible.

10. Inclosed in] This metaphor is used to denote a state

Hide me under the shadow of thy wings,—

From the wicked, who would destroy me, 9

From my mortal foes, who compass me

They are inclosed in their own fat; [about. 10

With their mouth they speak arrogantly.

Our steps they have even now encompassed; 11

They watch to stretch us on the ground.

The enemy is like a lion that gaspeth for 12

PSALM XVIII.

It is probable that this psalm was composed after David had subdued the Philistines, Moabites, and Syrians.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David, the servant of Jehovah, who addressed this song to Jehovah, when he had delivered him from the hands of Saul,
and of all his enemies.

I LOVE thee, O Jehovah, my strength! 1

Jehovah, my rock, my fortress, my deliverer, 2

My God, my rock, in whom I trust;

My shield, my safe retreat, my high tower!

I called on Jehovah, worthy to be praised, 3

And from mine enemies I was saved.

of affluence and riches, Deut. xxxii. 15, and has this sense here.

11. They watch] Hebrew, 'they have set their eyes to stretch on the earth.'

12. The enemy] We have here and in the next verse, the pronouns in the singular, and Saul himself seems to be intended. Hebrew, 'His likeness is that of, &c.'

13. With thy sword] So the Chaldee, who either read or considered the כ understood. 'Thy sword, thy hand,' signify thy providence and power. Make use of these to defend me.

14. Men of the world] The term מלך denotes 'duration, age, or the world, or the things in it,' because they consist of definite periods of duration. Compare Ps. iii. 6, and xlix. 2.—Lay up the] Their wealth is so great that they cannot spend it, but there is a surplus which they are ever laying up for their children.

15. I shall be satisfied] This verse is evidently in contrast with the preceding. The men of the world have their portion in their wealth; but as for me, I have now little of these things, nor are they what I chiefly desire. I hope to see thy face, O God, both in thy sanctuary on earth, and in heaven.—When I awake] The construction is difficult; that of the Chaldee is adopted. The most natural, as it is the most elevated sense is, to suppose that David extended his thoughts to a better world, where he hoped to resemble God in his holiness, purity, glory, and endless felicity. The Septuagint render, 'I shall be satisfied when I behold thy glory.' So the Vulg.

PSALM XVIII. 1, 2. I love thee] These verses were most probably added, when the book of Psalms was formed for the temple service. The first line is not found in the copy, 2 Sam. xxii.

4 The "billows" of death had encompassed me ;
Destructive floods had filled me with terror :
5 The cords of hades enclosed me ;
The snares of death were laid for me !
6 In my distress I called on Jehovah,
And to my God I cried aloud :
From his temple, he heard my voice,
And my cry came to his ear.
7 Then the earth shook and trembled ;
The foundations of the mountains rocked—
They shook, because he was wroth.
8 From his nostrils ascended a smoke,
And from his mouth, a devouring flame :
Flakes of fire were enkindled by it.
9 He bowed the heavens and descended,
And thick darkness was under his feet.
10 He rode on a cherub, and did fly ;
Swiftly did he fly on the wings of the wind !
11 He placed darkness around him as his covert ; [of the skies :
His pavilion was dark waters—thick clouds

His thick clouds were dispelled
Into hail-stones, and flakes of fire !

And the Most High sent forth his voice.

mies ; [them.
He multiplied lightnings, and confounded

The foundations of the globe were discovered,

At the furious blast of thine anger !

He drew me up out of many waters.

But Jehovah was a staff to support me.

He delivered me, because in me he delighted.

With the upright thou dealest uprightly ;
With the pure thou also art pure ; 26

Truly 'tis thou, Jehovah, who lightest my 28

My God who enlightenest my darkness.
By thine aid I have broken through troops : 29
Through my God I have scaled ramparts :
A God whose way is perfect ; 30
The word of Jehovah is tried :
A shield is he to all who trust in him.
Who, truly, is a God save Jehovah ? 31
Or who a firm rock besides our God ?
The God who girdeth me with strength : 32

And "maketh" my arms like a bow of brass.

And thy right hand supporteth me ;
And thy condescension maketh me great.
Thou makest ample room for my steps, 36

I smote them so that they could not rise up : 38
They fell down beneath my feet : [battle ;
For thou didst gird me with strength for 39
Thou didst subdue my foes under me.
Thou gavest me the necks of mine enemies, 40
That those who hated me I might destroy.

4—6. The billows] The reading in Samuel is preferable to the text here. The strong language of this paragraph represents his dangers and deliverance. See Hare.

7—15. The language and imagery are borrowed from an awful and tremendous thunder-storm. He is represented as dwelling in the dark cloud, hurling the thunder-bolt, shaking the earth to its centre, breathing out fire, and consuming his enemies. Compare Is. xxix. 6. Nah. i. Hab. iii. Zech. ix. 14, &c.

10. On a cherub] This term must mean here, the ministers or agents of God's providence ; and seems parallel in sense with 'the wings of the wind,' in the next line.

13. The line, 'Hail-stones and coals of fire,' is omitted as repeated in the present text from the preceding verse ; and which has here evidently no connexion.

16—20. David now describes his deliverance more literally, he was like a person sinking in the waters, but Jehovah delivered him. This forcible expression of danger and of kindness is illustrated in what follows.

21—24. Here he states the reason why God favoured him, because of his sincere regard to his word and will.

25—27. I have rendered verbally that the reader may see the play on the same word. The meaning undoubtedly is, that God will treat all men according to their characters. 27. (v) 2 Sam. xxviii. 28.

28. Lightest my lamp] 'To light up a lamp for one,' means to restore prosperity. 'To put out the lamp,' signifies to bring a man into distress. Compare Job xxi. 17. Prov. xxiv. 20.

29. Ramparts] The modern expression is adopted as less ambiguous than leaping over a wall, as it is more forcible.

30. Is tried] That is, his promises of support are found to be invariably fulfilled.

31—36. David ascribes his valour, his knowledge of war, and all his success to God.

34 (v) Vers. MSS.

37—42. Here the past tense is preferred, because David describes his past victories.

39. Didst gird me] To be well-girt was to be well-armed, in the Greek and Latin idioms, as well as in the Hebrew.

- 41 They cried, but there was none to save them;
To Jehovah, but he answered them not.
- 42 Then I beat them small as dust before the wind;

I trampled them down like the mire of the

Foreign nations languish with fear,
And tremble in their own strong-holds.

And exalted be the God of my salvation!

And hath subdued the peoples under me:

From the violent man thou hast rescued me.

among the nations;
I will sing praises unto thy name:

Who showeth kindness to his anointed,
To David, and to his seed for ever.

PSALM XIX.

God's works manifest his glory, but the law displays his grace, &c.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

- 1 THE heavens publish the glory of God,
And the expanse declareth the work of his hands!
- 2 Day to day uttereth instruction,
And night to night showeth knowledge.

41. To Jehovah] David may here refer to the Israelites who adhered to the house of Saul; or even to the heathens, who might be induced to invoke Jehovah, the God of Israel, as judging him more powerful than their own gods.

43—50. He now adverts to the effects of his victories. He became the chief among the surrounding nations, and concludes the review of God's kindness and mercy to him, with the most lively expressions of thankfulness, and the exercise of hope and confidence.

PSALM XIX. 2. Day to day] That is, the constant succession of day and night, the glory of the sun, and the beauty of the stars, are perpetually preaching to mankind.

3, 4. No speech] Though the heavens use no speech, no articulate language, yet by their beauty and order they teach men.—Their indications] So the word לל is used Prov. vi. 13.

5, 6. In them] The image is beautiful, comparing the rising sun to a bridegroom, who wears the most splendid dress, and whose appearance gives joy to his friends, John iii. 29; so he comes forth, and spreads gladness through

PSALM XX.

David here expresses the desires of his subjects for his safety and success. It was probably composed and sung, when he was undertaking some expedition.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

JEHOVAH hear thee in the day of trouble:
The name of the God of Jacob defend thee,

Send thee help from the sanctuary,
And strengthen thee from Zion;

Remember all thine oblations,
And accept thy burnt-offerings:

Grant thee the desire of thy heart,
And fulfil all thy counsels.

We will rejoice in thy salvation, [banner:
And in the name of our God set up our

Jehovah fulfil all thy petitions.

all nature.—Rejoiceth] This comparison is not less appropriate, and the conclusion is equally interesting. He rises, pursues with constancy his course, and completes his revolution, so that nothing is deprived of his heat.

7—9. Thus the law] Having noticed the glory and excellency of God's works, he now comes to show the native and important effects of his word. The word law seems here to comprise all God's revealed will.

9. The fear of Jehovah] Here fear is put metonymically for the religion and worship prescribed by Jehovah. Compare Is. xxix. 12, with Matt. xv. 9.

11. Instructed] Ainsworth, 'clearly admonished.'

12. His own errors] Ainsworth, 'unadvised errors;' that is, ignorant faults, inconsiderate sins, and refers to Levit. iv. 2.—Unknown] Hebrew, 'hiddden, or secret;' unknown to himself, not being conscious of them.

PSALM XX. 1. Hear thee] They knew that he was a man of prayer, and request God would hear him.

2. The sanctuary] Both the tabernacle and temple are so called, on account of the holy God dwelling there.

- 6 Now I know that Jehovah saveth his Anointed;
He will answer him from his holy heavens,
By the saving power of his right hand.
- 7 Some boast of chariots and some of horses;
But we will glory in the name of Jehovah,
They shall be humbled and fall; [our God.
But we shall rise up and stand firm.
- 9 O Jehovah, save the king;
Hear us when we call upon thee.

PSALM XXI.

A thanksgiving psalm for victory obtained, and prayer for further success.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

- 1 JEHOVAH, in thy strength, the king shall rejoice; [exult.
And in thy salvation how greatly shall he

him,
And the request of his lips hast not denied.
- 3 With choice blessings thou didst prevent

- 5 Great is his glory through thy salvation;
Honour and majesty on him hast thou conferred; [ever,—
- 6 For thou hast given to him blessings for
And made him glad with the joy of thy presence.
- 7 Because the king trusteth in Jehovah,
And in the mercy of the Most High, he shall not be moved.
- 8 Thy hand shall find out all thine enemies,
Thy right hand shall find out all who hate
thee.
- 9 Thou wilt make them as a fiery furnace,
In the time of thine indignation, Jehovah;
Jehovah in his wrath will devour them;
His fire shall wholly consume them.
- 10 Their fruit wilt thou destroy from the earth,
And their seed from among the sons of men.
- 11 Because they intend evil against thee,

6. Now I know] The king speaks here, and confidently assures the people, that God would protect and save him.

7. Some boast] Geddes considers this verse as precisely a-certaining the time when this psalm was composed; namely, on his going to fight with the Syrians, 2 Sam. viii. 5.

PSALM XXI. 3. With choice blessings] Hebrew, 'blessings of goodness, or good blessings,' that is, choice, distinguished blessings.—A crown of gold] God had raised him from a shepherd to be king over Israel. Patrick supposes that there may be a reference to what is related, 2 Sam. xii. 30, and 1 Chron. xx. 2.

4. Length of days] There is doubtless here a reference to God's promise, 2 Sam. vii. 16, and is, and can be, in its strictest sense, only fulfilled in Christ.

6. Blessings for ever] Making him blessed for ever, and through him sending Messiah and vouchsafing the blessings of salvation to men of every age, who believe in him.

10. Their fruit] This is used metaphorically, for their offspring.

And form a design which they cannot accomplish, [arrows:
Surely thou wilt set them a butt to thine 12
Which, against them, thou hast fitted to thy string.

Arise, O Jehovah, in thine own might, 13
That we may sing and praise thy power.

PSALM XXII.

David describes his own sufferings, and prays for relief; and, both in his language and circumstances, was designed to be a type of our Lord. It is thought that David composed this psalm in the wilderness of Maon, 1 Sam. xxiii.

For the chief musician; to be sung at the dawn of day; a Psalm of David.

- My God! my God! why hast thou for- 1
saken me?
Why art thou so far from helping me
And listenest not to the words I groan out?
My God, I cry by day, but thou answerest 2
not;
And by night, yet to me there is no relief:
But thou art the Holy One, 3
Dwelling "amidst" the praises of Israel.
In thee our fathers trusted— 4
They trusted, and thou didst deliver them:
To thee they cried and were rescued; 5
In thee they trusted, and were not put to
But I am a worm, and not a man; [shame. 6
A reproach of men, and despised of the people.
All they who see me, laugh me to scorn; 7
They put out the lip—they shake the head!
He trusteth in Jehovah—let him deliver 8 him; [lighteth.
Let him rescue him! since in him he de-
Thou, indeed, didst draw me from the 9 womb— [mother:
Wast my hope, when at the breasts of my
On thee I was cast from my birth; 10
From my mother's womb thou hast been my God.
Be not far from me, when distress is near; 11
When there is no other to afford relief.
Many bulls now compass me about; 12
Fierce bulls of Bashan surround me;
Against me they open wide their mouths, 13

12. A butt to thine] Ainsworth hit the sense of this passage, and has been generally followed. The word most commonly means a shoulder; but here a prominent object to shoot at.

PSALM XXII. 1. My God, my God] Our Lord adopted these words when on the cross, Mark xv. 34, and Matt. xxvii. 46.—The words I] Hebrew, 'the words of my groaning.' The sense is expressed equivalently.

2. Yet to me] The term רוֹחֵב may signify, 'no ease, no relief,' as Ainsworth explains. See note, Heb. Bible.

3. Amid the praises] That is, where the Israelites worship and praise thee. He pleads God's covenant relation to Israel as a reason why he should hear him.

6—11. But I am a worm] This is, weak and despised, and trodden under foot as a worm; I am not treated as a man. If the language in this paragraph suits David, it might also suit our Lord. He was despised and rejected of men. Compare Matt. xxvii. 43.

12. Many bulls] Horned beasts among the ancients were emblematic of power, and may be here descriptive of the

- Like a ravenous and a roaring lion !

 My heart, like wax, is melted in my bowels !

 And my tongue cleaveth to my jaws ;
 And in the dust of death thou wilt put me.
 16 "Many" dogs have encompassed me ; [me,
 The assembly of the wicked have inclosed
 They have pierced my hands and my feet !
 17 All my bones "they" number :
 They look—they stare at me :
 18 They part my garments amongst them,
 And for my vesture they cast lots.
 19 Be not thou, O Jehovah, far from me ;
 My strength ! hasten thou to mine aid ;

 My dear life from the power of the dog :
 21 Save me from the mouth of the lion,
 And from the horns of the rhinoceros defend me. [thren ;
 22 Then will I declare thy name to my brethren
 Amidst the assembly I will praise thee.
 23 Ye who fear Jehovah, praise him ;
 All ye seed of Jacob, to him give glory ;
 24 For he hath not despised nor abhorred
 The affliction of the afflicted,
 Nor hath he hid his face from him ;
 But when he cried, he listened unto him.
 25 My praise shall be of thee in the great assembly ; [thee.
 My vows I will pay before those who fear
 26 The needy shall eat and be satisfied :
 They who seek Jehovah shall praise him ;
 For their hearts shall ever be revived.
 27 All the far distant inhabitants of the earth

Shall remember and return to Jehovah,
 And all the families of the nations worship
 For Jehovah's is the kingdom ; [him. 28
 And he is the ruler among the nations.
 All the rich of the earth shall eat and wor- 29
 ship ; [fore him,
 All going down to the dust shall bow be-
 Of whom not one can keep himself alive.
 A seed shall serve him, shall celebrate Je- 30
 hovah : [righteousness ;
 A generation shall come and declare his 31
 To a people that shall be born, what he hath done.

PSALM XXIII.

David testifies his confidence in Jehovah as his shepherd
 This psalm was composed, after he became king of a.
 Israel.

A Psalm of David.

JEHOVAH is my shepherd ! I shall not 1
 want ; [tures ;
 He maketh me to lie down in green pas- 2
 By gently flowing streams he leadeth me.
 He restoreth my soul and guideth me 3
 In paths of righteousness for his name's sake. [death-shade,
 Yea, though I walk through the vale of 4
 I will fear no evil, for thou art with me :
 Thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.
 Thou hast prepared a table before me : 5
 Before my foes thou hast anointed my head,
 And my cup runneth over. [me
 Surely goodness and kindness shall follow 6
 During all the days of my life :
 And I shall dwell in the house of Jehovah
 For a length of days to come.

Jewish rulers, and the Roman governor who conspired against Jesus.—Bulls of Bashan] This was a region beyond the Jordan, lying between the torrents Jabbok and Arnon, and exceedingly fertile, so that cattle here were high and more fierce and untractable than others. Compare Deut. xxxii. 14, Ezek. xxxix. 18. Such were the enemies of David and our Lord.

14. I am as water] That is, my strength is gone, and I am ready to depart. Compare 2 Sam. xiv. 14.

16. They have pierced] So all the old versions read as a verb, and all the Evangelists so quote the passage, and apply it to the crucifixion of Christ. (a) Versions.

17, 18. They number] So the versions, which the connexion requires.

19—22. This paragraph may also be applied to the person of our Saviour: for as he foretold his own death, so he did also his own resurrection and triumph, and promises to praise him, among his brethren. The apostle applies it in this sense, Heb. ii. 11.

23. Ye who] If we apply this to Messiah, he doubtless did it by his Spirit in his apostles, calling men to this delightful work. First the Jews are addressed, and then the inhabitants of the earth are called to worship Jehovah.

25—31. If the former verses refer to the triumph of Messiah, these can scarcely be understood in any other sense, than as setting forth the triumph of the gospel, and the calling of the Gentiles.

26. The needy shall eat] It was usual for the king to distribute meat and drink among the people, and for this purpose to offer many sacrifices, 2 Sam. vi. 19. Hence Messiah as a king provides for the needy. The blessings of the gospel are frequently represented by the prophets as a feast. Is. xxv. 6, and lv. 1.

29. All going down] The poor and miserable are intended, who cannot support themselves.

31. To a people] For the text, see note, Hebrew Bible. This version is at least clear, and the true sense of the text. They who shall serve Jehovah, are those called by the gospel, who to future generations shall make known his righteousness displayed in their redemption.

PSALM XXIII. 1. My shepherd] The word comprehends the whole duty of the shepherd, feeding, guiding, governing, and defending the flock. Hence kings are called shepherds, Ps. lxxviii. 71, 72, and 2 Sam. v. 2. It is attributed to God, and to Christ, feeding the church, Ezek. xxxiv. 12, John x. 11, and 1 Peter ii. 25.

2. Green pastures] He describes one of the most beautiful scenes, that of a rich and well-watered district, abounding with flocks, and the shepherds leading them. Compare Gen. xxxiii. 14, Is. xl. 11.

3. He restoreth my soul] When I wander, he brings me back; or when I languish, he restores my strength and comfort.

4. The vale of death-shade] This signifies the most gloomy and horrid vale, attended with the greatest dangers. The term denotes 'great danger,' Jer. ii. 6; 'heavy affliction,' Ps. xlv. 20, and cvii. 10, 14; 'fear and terror,' Job xxiv. 17; and 'dreadful darkness,' Job x. 21.—Thy rod and thy] God's presence would be his security; and with his rod he would protect and defend him, Ezek. xx. 37. Mic. vii. 14.

5. Anointed my head] David represents himself as blessed with plenty, and treated with distinguished honour, as a guest at God's table, Luke vii. 46.

6. For a length of days] So Ainsworth properly renders, as is done in the margin of our version.

PSALM XXIV.

The citizens of Zion are described, and God's glory and dominion asserted. This psalm was composed when the ark was brought from the house of Obed-edom, 2 Sam. vi.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 THE earth is Jehovah's and its fulness ;
The world, and they who dwell therein :
- 2 For he founded it together with the seas,
And together with the floods he established it.
- 3 Who shall ascend the mountain of Jehovah
And who shall stand in his holy place? [yah?
- 4 He who hath clean hands and a pure heart ;
Who nameth not his soul in a falsehood,
Nor sweareth with intent to deceive.
- 5 He shall receive a blessing from Jehovah,
And righteousness from the God of his sal-

Who seek thy presence, "O God" of Jacob.
- 7 Lift up your heads, O ye gates !
And be lifted up, ye everlasting doors !
That the king of glory may come in.
- 8 Who is this king of glory ?
Jehovah, strong and mighty ;
Jehovah, mighty in battle.
- 9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates !
And be lifted up, ye everlasting doors !
That the king of glory may come in.
- 10 Who is this king of glory ?
Jehovah, of hosts, he is this king of glory.

PSALM XXV.

David prays for pardon, and deliverance from his troubles and his enemies. This is the first of the alphabetical psalms, each verse beginning with a letter in the order of the Hebrew alphabet.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 κ To thee, O Jehovah, do I raise my soul : [thee.
- My God, save thy servant who trusteth in
- 2 α In thee I trust, let me not be put to shame ;
Let not mine enemies triumph over me.
- 3 ι Yea, let none who hope in thee, be put to
shame ;

PSALM XXIV. 1. The earth is] Bishop Lowth, after others, has observed that this psalm consists of three parts, which were sung responsively, by the Levites.

2. With the seas] Some render, 'among or near the seas,' because the seas intersect it, in all quarters. But for the sense given to α, see Gen. xxxii. 12, and Exod. xxxv. 22, Jerem. v. 22.

4. Who nameth not] It was usual with the Jews in asserting any thing in a more solemn manner, to say, 'as Jehovah liveth, and as thy soul liveth, or as thyself liveth,' 1 Sam. xx. 3, &c.

6. Such are the people] Literally, 'this is the race.' An equivalent phrase is adopted.—[God of Jacob] The word added from the versions seems necessary, and is usual in other places.

7. Lift up] Having brought the ark into the sight of the place prepared for it in Zion, the Levites sing in responses what follows. The gates of the sanctuary are addressed, to afford admittance to the king of glory. The gates, the doors are too low, for the admission of such a king, 'Lift therefore, your heads,' &c.

PSALM XXV. 1. My God, save] This is supplied from

Let such be put to shame as vainly transgress.

And teach me to follow thy paths.
- 8 Direct me by thy truth, and teach me ; 5

- 25 Let integrity and uprightness preserve me : 22
For in thee do I hope, O Jehovah.

Ps. lxxxvi. 2. The construction and order of the psalm show that part of a line has been lost out of the text.

3. Vainly transgress] Deal perfidiously, contrary to duty, promise, and trust reposed in them.

6. And in thee] Every verse ought to have only two lines ; but from some confusion, introduced most probably by the transcribers, the 5th and 7th have each three, and the verse corresponding to ι is wanting. By the reading adopted, and the transposition, it is restored, without any change of the text.

15. The counsel of] Compare Job xix. 19 and note. God treats them as his friends, imparts his mind to them.

17. Regard me] Or, have respect to me. This was a blessing promised by the law, Levit. xxvii. 9, opposed to which is the hiding of God's face, or his displeasure.

19. Take away] The correction proposed by Dimock is followed as most natural, and as necessary to the alphabetic order. See note, Hebrew Bible.

20. Most violent] Hebrew, 'hatred of violence ;' but the noun is often put for the adjective in the superlative degree.

23 O God, redeem Israel from all his distresses.

PSALM XXVI.

David protests his sincerity, and the delight he had in serving Jehovah.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 JUDGE thou for me, O Jehovah ;
For I have walked in mine integrity :
I trust in Jehovah.—I shall not slide.
- 2 Examine and prove me, O Jehovah ;
Try my reins and my heart :
- 3 For thy kindness hath been before mine eyes,
And according to thy truth have I walked.
- 4 I have not sat with faithless men,
Nor associated with dissemblers.
- 5 I hate the company of evil-doers ;
And with the wicked I will not sit down.
- 6 I will wash my hands in innocence,
And so compass thine altar, O Jehovah !
- 7 To publish with the voice of thanksgiving,
And to recount all thy wonderful works.
- 8 I love, Jehovah, the mansion of thy house,
And the dwelling-place of thy glory.
- 9 Take not away my soul with sinners,
Nor my life with bloody men :
- 10 In whose hands are wicked designs ;
And whose right hand is full of bribes.
- 11 But as for me, I walk in mine integrity ;
O redeem me, and be gracious unto me.
- 12 My foot standeth in an even place ;
In the assemblies I will bless Jehovah.

PSALM XXVII.

David expresses his confidence in God, his love to his house, and his hope of deliverance from his foes, probably composed during the persecution of Saul.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 JEHOVAH is my light and my salvation :
Whom then shall I fear ?
Jehovah is the guardian of my life ;

23. O God] This verse seems to have been added on some future occasion. See note, Hebrew Bible.

PSALM XXVI. 1. In mine integrity] Neither intending, nor doing evil, 2 Sam. xv. 11, Prov. x. 9, xx. 7.

2. Examine me] Compare Ps. vii. 9 ; xvii. 3.—Try my reins] Try my inward affections, Job xxxi. 6.

3. And according to thy] My behaviour has been regulated by thy word. Enoch walked with God, and is said to please him.

4, 5. Faithless men] Or, false men. So he styles his wicked enemies, as Jer. xv. 17 ; and with such he protests he had no familiar converse.

6. I wash my hands] The Jews washed their hands to testify their innocence, Deut. xxi. 6. Ainsworth supposes, he refers to the washing which God appointed to such as approached his altar, Exod. xl. 32. Hence in prayer we are to lift up pure hands, 1 Tim. ii. 8, and Is. i. 15.

8. I love Jehovah] The mansion, the dwelling-place refer no doubt to the sanctuary, where God dwelt between the cherubs, John xiv. 2.

9. Take not away] Literally, 'gather not,' but it is used in the sense given, Jer. xvi. 5, Is. iv. 1.

12. My foot standeth] That is, God hath hitherto supported and firmly established me ; as one that standeth on level ground standeth securely. Compare Ps. xxvii. 10 ; cxliii. 9.

PSALM XXVII. 1. The guardian] Hebrew, 'the fort

Of whom then shall I be afraid ?

When the wicked, mine enemies and foes, 2
Advanced against me to eat up my flesh,
They themselves stumbled and fell.

Though a host should encamp against me, 3
My heart shall not be afraid ;
Though war should rise up against me,
Even in this state will I be confident.

One thing do I desire of Jehovah, 4
And this I earnestly request ;

That I may dwell in the house of Jehovah
All the days of my life,
To behold the beauty of Jehovah,
And to make inquiry in his temple.

For in the time of calamity 5
He would conceal me in his pavilion ;
He would hide me in the recess of his tabernacle,

And place me safely as on a rock.
Even now, he will exalt my head 6

Above all my surrounding enemies,
That I may offer sacrifices of joy at his tabernacle, [vah.

And may sing and give praise unto Jeho-

When Jehovah saith, Seek ye my face, 8
My heart replies, Thy face will I seek.

Hide not thy face from me : 9

Thou hast been my help, abandon me not,
Nor forsake me, O God of my salvation !
Should my father and my mother forsake me, 10
Then will Jehovah take me up.

Teach me, O Jehovah, thy way, and lead me 11
In the right path, because of mine enemies.

Give me not up to the will of mine enemies. 12
For false witnesses have risen against me,
And against me they breathe out violence.

Yet I believe that I shall enjoy good, 13
O Jehovah, in the land of the living.

or strong-hold.' There is no term in our language which expresses the sense better than that chosen.

2. To eat up my flesh] Ps. xiv. 4, Jer. xxx. 16. Here the words signify to destroy.

3. Even in this] That is, even in war I will maintain my confidence, Judges xvii. 10, 27, and Prov. xi. 15.

4. The beauty of Jehovah] By this seems to be meant, the whole tabernacle with its service, the sacrifices, incense, and other rites, Heb. viii. 5.

5. He would hide me] It appears, that David was now absent from the tabernacle, and expresses his hopes, that were he there, God would afford him special aid and protect him.

8. When Jehovah saith] For the text followed, see note, Hebrew Bible.

10. Then will] The meaning is, if his parents should manifest no affection or regard, he is confident God will be to him a father.

12. And against me] The reading of Bishop Secker is adopted, as it is supported by all the versions. See note, Hebrew Bible.

13. Yet I believe] From the change of the preceding word this version arises without any need of an Italic supplement.—Shall enjoy good] Hebrew, 'see good,' but this is often used for, 'to experience, to enjoy,' both in the Old and New Testaments, Eccles. ii. 1, John iii. 3.

14. Wait on, or for Jehovah] David addresses every

- 14 Wait on Jehovah: be of good courage;
And he shall strengthen thine heart:
Wait thou then on Jehovah.

PSALM XXVIII.

David prayeth for himself and his people. He probably composed this psalm after he was crowned king of Judah, during the war with Abner.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 To thee, Jehovah, my rock, do I call:
Be not thou deaf to my prayer;
Lest if thou be silent when I pray,
I become like those who go down to the pit.
2 Hear the voice of my supplication, when I cry to thee;
When I lift my hands towards thy holy oracle.
3 Draw me not away with the wicked,
And with those who work iniquity;
Who speak peace to their neighbours,
While mischief is in their hearts.
4 Repay them according to their works,
And according to the evil of their doings;
According to the works of their hands repay
them:
Render to them according to their desert.
5 Because they regard not the work of Jehovah,
Nor the operation of his hand,
He will break them down, and not build them up.
6 Blessed be Jehovah; [canton.

In him my heart trusteth, and I am helped:
Hence my heart greatly rejoiceth,
And with a song will I praise him.

And he is the saving strength of his anointed.
9 Save thy people, and bless thine heritage;
Feed them also, and exalt them for ever.

pious person, not to indulge desponding thoughts, but to learn from his experience, to trust to God's word and providence.

PSALM XXVIII. 1. To my prayer] The sense is preferred to the idiom.—Lest if thou be] To be silent, when one calls or prays, is to neglect him, and marks displeasure.

2. Holy oracle] That is, the most holy place, where was the ark, and whence God spoke to his people. Compare Numb. vii. 89, and 1 Kings vi. 5, 16; xix. 20, and Heb. vi. 19.

5. Because they] The idiom, 'Break them down, and not build them up,' signifies utter ruin. Compare Job xxii. 23, Jerem. xii. 16.

8. Strength of his people] The reading adopted is that of the versions. God is both the strength of his people and of the king over them.

PSALM XXIX. 1. O ye mighty sons of the] 'Sons of the stranger,' Ps. xviii. 45, means only strangers. So, sons of men, sons of Israel, mean, men and Israelites.

2. With holy reverence] The sense of דָּרָר is 'splendour, honour,' and as joined with קִדָּשׁ, 'holy splendour or honour,' which is justly thought to refer to the priests and Levites, who had peculiar robes to put on, when they ministered before God. Thus David calls on the mighty to ap-

PSALM XXIX.

David celebrates God's majesty, as displayed in a thunder storm.

A Psalm of David.

- GIVE to Jehovah, O ye sons of the mighty. 1
Give to Jehovah, glory and power:
Give to Jehovah the glory due to his name. 2
Worship him with holy reverence.
The voice of Jehovah is upon the waters! 3
The God of glory thundereth—
Jehovah, upon the great waters!
The voice of Jehovah is full of power: 4
The voice of Jehovah is full of majesty.
The voice of Jehovah shivereth the cedars— 5
Jehovah shivereth the cedars of Lebanon.
He maketh Lebanon skip like a calf; 6
And Sirion, like a young rhinoceros.
The voice of Jehovah scattereth lightnings! 7
The voice of Jehovah shaketh the wilderness: 8
Jehovah shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh.
The voice of Jehovah shaketh the oaks, 9
And maketh bare the trees of the forest;
And in his palace every thing speaketh his Jehovah sitteth upon the flood; [glory. 10
Yea, Jehovah sitteth king for ever.
Jehovah will give strength to his people; 11
Jehovah will bless his people with peace.

PSALM XXX.

This is a psalm of thanksgiving for deliverance from sickness. Some refer it to the deliverance from the plague. 1 Chron. xxi. 26, and chap. xxii. 1.

A Psalm of David at the dedication of the house.

- I WILL extol thee, Jehovah, for thou hast 1
raised me up,
And not suffered my foes to rejoice over me.
O Jehovah, my God, to thee I cried, 2
And thou hast healed me, Jehovah!
From hades thou broughtest back my soul, 3
And preservest me from going down to the pear before his majesty, showing becoming respect and reverence.

4. The voice of Jehovah] Is this phrase derived from the giving of the law? I suspect that it is, as it does not occur prior to that event, and as God spoke with the voice of thunder, Exod. xix. 16.

5. Shivereth] He ascribes this effect to the storm in general, yet it is now known that it is the electric fluid, which in fact does what is here said.

9. Shaketh the oaks] Bishop Lowth observes that it is certain אֵיל or אֵילָן is an oak; and certainly this word frequently occurs in the plural masculine. And in this sense the Syriac has taken it.—In his palace.] David considers the heavens as God's palace, where every thing bespeaks his greatness and majesty.

10. Upon the flood] The Chaldee refers this to the flood of Noah; but others think there is rather a reference to God's covenant with Noah, that a flood should no more cover the earth.

PSALM XXX. 2, 3. Thou hast] David represents his life as nearly gone; but God had restored him.

4. Commemorate with praise] The reference is to that display of his holiness, which God had made in punishing the ambition of David and the people by the plague, and to which the following verse also refers.

- 5 For his anger endureth only for a moment,
But his favour continueth through life :
Weeping may be a guest in the evening ;
But joy cometh in the morning.
- 6 In my prosperity, I, indeed, said,
I shall never be moved ;
- 7 Because in thy favour, Jehovah,
Thou hadst firmly established my power.
- 8 Thou didst hide thy face, I was con-
To thee, Jehovah, I then cried, [founded !
And to the Lord made supplication.
- 9 What gain, in taking away my life ;
In bringing me down to the pit ? [truth ?

Hear, O Jehovah, and be gracious unto me ;
Jehovah, become thou my helper.
- 11 Thou didst turn my mourning into mirth ;
Thou strippedst off my sackcloth,
And didst clothe me with a robe of joy.
- 12 Therefore 'I will praise' thee, 'my' glory,
Nor will 'I ever be silent ;'
Jehovah, my God, thee I will ever praise.

PSALM XXXI.

David testifies his confidence in Jehovah, who alone could save him. Probably composed when David escaped from Keilah, 1 Sam. xxiii.

For the chief musician ; a Psalm of David,

- 1 IN thee, Jehovah, do I put my trust ;
Let me never be inadae ashamed ;
For thy righteousness' sake deliver me. [me,
2 To me bow down thine ear—speedily rescue
Be to me a strong rock—a fortress to save me. [been :
3 For my rock and my fortress thou hast
For thy name's sake lead and guide me.
4 Draw me out of the net, which they have hid for me ;
For thou, 'Jehovah,' art my strength.

5. For a moment] It is of comparative short duration in this state. Compare Is. liv. 7, 8.—But his favour] The text is evidently elliptical, and something must be supplied to make out the sense. Life is evidently opposed to a moment, and must signify the time of life, as his favour is opposed to his anger.

7. Because in] As this verse contains the reason of what he had said to himself or thought, 'I must be supplied.—Firmly established] Hebrew, 'the mountain of my strength.' Eben-Ezra explains as I have rendered.

9. In taking away] Hebrew, 'my blood ;' but as blood is used here metonymically for life, it is better to give the sense. Compare Gen. ix. 4.

10. Can the dust] That is, can my dust praise thee, and excite others to celebrate thy truth ? 'They who are dead have no intercourse with the living, nor can they be of advantage to them.' See Is. xxxviii. 18, 19.

11. My sackcloth] On account of the plague, David and the elders put on sackcloth, 1 Chron. xx. 16.

12. I will praise thee] So the Syriac. The rest render, 'My glory shall praise thee,' &c.

PSALM XXXI. 1—6. Compare Psalm lxxi. 1—6.

2. A fortress] That is, a place of safety. David was often obliged to fly to the rocks and strong-holds, but did not trust in them, but in Jehovah to save him.

5. Into thy hand] Our Lord repeated these words on the cross, expressing his confidence, that his father would not leave his soul in hades, nor suffer his holy one to see corruption.

6. Thou hastest] This reading of the versions seems more

Into thy hand I commit my spirit ; [truth. 5
Thou hast redeemed me, Jehovah, God of 'Thou hastest' those who worship vain idols : 6
But as for me, in Jehovah do I trust.
I will exult and rejoice in thy mercy, 7
When thou hast considered my trouble,
And hast known my soul in adversities,
Nor given me into the hand of the enemy, 8
But hast set my feet in a wider place.

Have mercy, Jehovah, for I am in trouble : 9
Mine eye is consumed with grief ;
My soul and my body are melted away.
My life is spent with sorrow, 10
And my years with sighing.
My strength faileth through 'affliction,'
And my bones are consumed.
To all mine enemies I am a reproach ; 11
To my neighbours and friends, a great ter-
They who see me abroad, flee from me. [ror ;
I am disregarded as one dead ; 12
I am out of mind as a broken vessel.
For I hear the slander of the multitude ; 13
Terror compasseth me on every side :
They consult together against me—
They lay plots to take away my life.

But as for me, I trust in thee, Jehovah : 14
I say, Thou art my God !
My times are in thy hands : 15
From my foes and persecutors, deliver me.
Let thy face shine on thy servant ; 16
For thy mercy's sake, save me, O Jehovah !
Let me not be ashamed, for on thee do I 17
call ; [to hades.
Let the wicked be ashamed, 'and go down'
Let the lips of falsehood be made silent, 18
That speak perverse things against the just,
Through haughtiness and contempt.
How great, 'O Jehovah,' are thy good 19
things

suitable ; and David may refer to the awful threatenings against such as forsook God for idols.

7. When thou hast] By rendering אשר when, it makes this and the next verse conditional, and so they agree with what follows. See Noldius for the sense given.

9. My soul and my body] With Street יסר is supplied as parallel with consumed in the former line.

10. Through affliction] This reading, as being supported by all the versions, is preferred ; and the whole connexion requires it.

11. A great terror] Adverbs are in Hebrew used as adjectives occasionally. Compare 1 Sam. xxv. 31, Prov. iii. 25.

13. The multitude] Hebrew, 'the many.' Those who adhered to Saul.—They lay plots] This gives the full force of the verb ; and how justly might David thus speak !

14, 15. I say, Thou art] I have no other helper. My times both of persecution and deliverance, of sorrow and joy, of life and death, are in thy hands and at thy disposal.

17. And go down] This reading of the versions is adopted, because it is generally used in reference to hades, and the textual never ; and because it agrees better with the context.

19. Are thy good things] Goodness means the perfection of moral and physical qualities, and I do not see how this can be laid up for the righteous. The word טוב signifies any good thing, either natural or spiritual. It here refers to all that God designs to do for, and has promised to those who fear him.

- Which thou hast laid up for such as fear thee!
 And hast prepared for those who trust in thee, [men!
And honour thee before the children of

 From the conspiracies of men! [them,
 Thou wilt hide them in thy tabernacle,
 From the contention of tongues.
 21 Blessed be Jehovah, who hath displayed
 Wonderful kindness to me, as in a strong

 I am cut off from before thine eyes; [voice,
 Nevertheless thou didst hear my supplicating
 When I cried unto thee.
 23 O love Jehovah, ye his saints:
 Jehovah preserveth the faithful,
 And abundantly repayeth the insolent.
 24 Be firm, and he will strengthen your hearts,
 All ye who trust in Jehovah.

PSALM XXXII.

The happiness of those pardoned. This psalm was probably composed after Nathan had assured him that his sin was forgiven, 2 Sam. xii. 13.

An instructive Psalm of David.

- 1 HAPPY he! whose transgression is pardoned
 And whose sin is covered. [done,
 2 Happy the man—
 To whom Jehovah imputeth not iniquity,
 And in whose spirit there is no guile.
 3 While I was silent, my bones were wasted,
 Through my pangs all the day long.
 4 For day and night, thy hand was heavy upon me;
 [drought.
 My moisture was turned into summer-
 5 Then I acknowledged my sin to thee;
 And mine iniquity I did not hide.

20. In the covert] That is, as in his sanctuary, Ps. xxvii. 5.—Conspiracies] The word רכס occurs only here, but is current in the Arabic, and signifies as rendered.

21. As if in a strong] Symmachus has rendered in this manner, either finding or supposing it understood. God had showed wonderful kindness, in preserving him safe, exposed as he was, as if he had been in a fenced city.

22. My agitation] The term יסוד denotes the state of the mind under great danger and fear. See Deut. xx. 3, and 2 Sam. iv. 4.—I am cut off] This is similar to what he said, 'I shall one day fall by the hand of Saul.'

PSALM XXXII. 1. Covered] Not by him who committeth it; for he who does this shall not prosper, Prov. xxviii. 13. It signifies then an act of God pardoning and forgiving it, Neh. iv. 5.

2. Imputeth not] To impute, is 'to reckon, account, charge.' Happy is the man to whom God does not reckon or charge his sin, 1 Cor. v. 19; Rom. iv. 6, 8.

3. Was silent] That is, did not repent of, and confess my sin.—Through my pangs] The word פאג denotes 'the roaring of a lion,' Ps. xxii. 13; Isa. v. 29, and it is used for one crying out through the violence of grief and pain, Ps. xxxviii. 3. It is here used metonymically for the pains or pangs which occasion it. This figure often occurs. Death is in the pot, 2 Kings iv. 40. Here death is put for that which would occasion it.

4. My moisture] Compare Ps. xxii. 15. The metaphor is beautiful, he was like a plant shrivelled and dried up by the heat of summer.

6. When favour] Compare Isa. lv. 6. Favour may be

I said, I will confess to Jehovah my transgressions:

- And thou forgavest the guilt of my sin.
 For this shall every one godly pray to thee, 6
 In a time when favour may be found—
 Him the floods of great waters shall not reach.
 Thou art my hiding-place; 7
 From trouble thou wilt preserve me,
 And compass me with songs of deliverance.
 I will instruct thee and teach thee 8
 The way in which thou shouldst go; [eye.
 I will counsel thee,—on thee shall be mine
 Be not like the horse—or like the mule, 9
 Which have no understanding, [bridle,
 Whose jaws though held in with bit and
 Yet will they not approach unto thee.
 Many shall be the sorrows of the wicked; 10
 But he who trusteth in Jehovah,
 Mercy shall compass him about.
 In Jehovah be glad and rejoice, ye righteous; 11
 And shout for joy, all ye upright in heart.

PSALM XXXIII.

Jehovah is praised as the creator and governor of the world, and for his mercy to his people.

- REJOICE, ye righteous, in Jehovah: 1
 For praise becometh the upright.
 Praise Jehovah with the harp; 2
 Sing to him with the ten-stringed psaltery
 Sing to him a new song; 3
 Play with skill a joyful melody.
 For right is the word of Jehovah, 4
 And all his works are faithful.
 He loveth justice and judgment: 5
 The earth is full of Jehovah's goodness.
 By the word of Jehovah the heavens were 6
 made;

found, whenever God is sought with the whole heart.—Him the floods] Floods, waters, are common images of afflictions and calamities. Ps. xviii. 17; lvi. 11; lxix. 2, &c.

7. Will preserve me] The version given, implies confidence in God's future mercy, from the experience of his past favour.—Songs of] That is, songs occasioned by deliverance, songs of victory and salvation.

8. Teach the way] Not in the way; for the verb governs an objective case; Ps. xxv. 8, 12, &c. and the preposition should be omitted.—On thee shall be] This is our marginal version. To place the eye upon one, is to regard him. Compare Gen. xlv. 21; Jer. xxiv. 6, and xl. 4.

9. Be not like] Be not as untractable as these animals. —Yet will they not] Hebrew, 'He (meaning either the horse or the mule) approacheth not to thee.' I have rendered in the plural, to show the reference to both animals. The sense is, they must be broke in before they can be useful. So if men will disobey God, and not hearken to the advice given them, they will be punished; God will put his bridle into their jaws, and lead them to judgment. For many sorrows shall be to the wicked.

PSALM XXXIII. 3. A new song] One not before heard, or one peculiarly excellent in respect to the matter of it. Compare Ps. xevi. 3, and Rev. v. 9.

4. Faithful] That is, stable and permanent. So the term is used, Exod. xvii. 12.

6—9. Breath of his] The expression is parallel and synonymous with the 'word of Jehovah' in the first line. Compare verse 9, and Gen. i. 3.

And all their host, by the breath of his mouth.
 7 He collected the waters of the sea as a heap ;
 He laid up the depths in storehouses.
 8 Let all the earth fear Jehovah ; [of him.
 Let the inhabitants of the world stand in awe
 9 For he spoke—and it was made !
 He commanded—and it stood firm.
 10 Jehovah frustrateth the counsel of nations ;
 He rendereth vain the designs of peoples.
 11 The counsel of Jehovah standeth for ever ;
 The designs of his heart to all generations.
 12 Happy the nation, whose God is Jehovah ;
 The people he hath chosen for his heritage.
 13 From the heavens Jehovah looketh down ;
 He beholdeth all the children of men :
 14 From the place of his habitation,
 He vieweth the inhabitants of the earth :
 15 He only fashioneth their hearts—
 And inspecteth all their doings.
 16 No king is saved by a great host,
 Nor the mighty delivered by much strength.
 17 A vain thing is a horse for safety ;
 Nor can he rescue any by his great courage.
 18 Lo ! the eye of Jehovah is on them who fear
 him ;
 On them who place their hope in his mercy :
 19 To deliver them from death,
 And keep them alive in famine.
 20 We place our hope in Jehovah :
 He is our help and our shield.
 21 In him, indeed, our heart rejoiceth ;
 For in his holy name we trust.
 22 Let thy mercy, Jehovah, be upon us,
 According as we hope in thee.

PSALM XXXIV.

If the title be right, this psalm was a thanksgiving, which David offered for his escape from the king of Gath, 1 Sam. xxi. 11.

A psalm of David, when he changed his behaviour before Abimelech ; who drove him away, and he departed.

1 א I will bless Jehovah at all times ;
 His praise shall continually be in my mouth.
 2 ב In Jehovah my soul shall boast ;

Let the afflicted hear and be glad.
 א O magnify Jehovah with me ; 8
 And let us together exalt his name.
 ג I sought Jehovah, and he answered me, 4
 And delivered me from all my fears.
 ה Look to him, and be enlightened," 5
 And your faces shall not be ashamed.
 ו For Jehovah redeemeth the soul of his 6 servants ; [late."
 And none who trust in him shall be deso-
 ו This afflicted one cried, and Jehovah heard, 7
 And from all his troubles he saved him.
 ח The angels of Jehovah pitch their camp 8
 Around those who fear him, and rescue them.
 ט O taste and see how good is Jehovah ! 9
 Happy the man who trusteth in him.
 י O fear Jehovah, ye his saints ! 10
 For there is no want to those who fear him.
 יא The rich become poor, and suffer hunger ; 11
 But they who seek Jehovah, shall want no
 good.
 יב Come, ye children, hearken to me ; 12
 I will teach you the fear of Jehovah.
 יג Who is the man that desireth life, 13
 That wisheth to enjoy days of prosperity ?
 יד Preserve thy tongue from evil, 14
 And thy lips from speaking guile.
 טו Depart from evil, and do good ; 15
 Seek peace, and pursue it.
 טז The eyes of Jehovah are on the righteous, 16
 And his ears are attentive to their cry ;
 טז The face of Jehovah is against evil-doers, 17
 To cut off their remembrance from the earth.
 יח The "righteous" cry, and Jehovah heareth, 18
 And from all their troubles delivereth them.
 יט Jehovah is high to the broken-hearted ; 19
 And the contrite in spirit he saveth.
 כ Many are the afflictions of the righteous 20
 one ;
 Yet from all of them Jehovah delivereth him.
 כא "Jehovah" keepeth all his bones ; 21
 Not one of them shall be broken.
 כב Calamity shall slay the wicked person ; 22
 And they that hate the righteous shall perish.

11. Standeth for ever] This sentiment is noble, as contrasted with the vain schemes and designs of men.

15. He only] God only is the father of spirits, Heb. xii.

9. Hence he only inspecteth, and knoweth the secret springs of men's doings.

16—22. We have here stated the insufficiency of creatures to help or to save us, in the most trying situations. Jehovah alone can do this ; and therefore, should be the object of hope and reliance.

PSALM XXXIV. 5. Look to him] This reading in the second person plural imperative, supported by the versions, renders the passage clear. Having stated his own deliverance in answer to prayer, David exhorts others to look to God, and assures them of his favourable regards.

6. I have transposed here what in the common version is the 22d verse. As the Hebrew Alphabet contains only 22 letters, and as the verse beginning with י, or the 6th, is wanting, and the 21st concludes with the last letter ח, I conclude, that what is now the 22d is in fact the 6th, reading פוירה

7. This afflicted one] Meaning himself. This affords a good connexion with the verse transposed.

8. The angels of] Often in the Hebrew, one is put for a multitude ; as the inhabitant for the inhabitants, 2 Sam. v. 6, with 1 Chron. xi. 4. So, tree for trees, Psa. cv. 33, 40. One cannot be said to make a camp, but many.

11. The rich become] The change of a single letter makes this important variation, and this change is supported by the versions. The contrast with this reading is more striking. The mighty, the rich, and the wicked become poor and suffer hunger, but they who seek Jehovah shall want no good.

18. The righteous] Here the nominative to the verb is wanting in the common text, but is happily preserved in the versions.

20. The righteous one] That is, any righteous person. Peter applies this and the two following verses to our Lord. In short, the obvious meaning is, that God will regard a righteous person, and punish his persecutors.

21. (a) Versions.

PSALM XXXV.

David prays against his enemies and persecutors. It is generally supposed to have been written during the reign of Saul.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 CONTEND, O Jehovah, with mine opponents;
Fight thou with them who fight against me.
- 2 Lay hold on shield and buckler,
And stand up in my defence.
- 3 Draw out the spear, and secure me
From the assault of my persecutors:
Say to my soul, I am thy salvation.
- 4 Ashamed and confounded be they who seek my life; [hurt.
Repulsed and abashed they who devise my
- 5 Let them be as chaff before the wind;
And let the angel of Jehovah disperse them.
- 6 Let their way be dark and slippery;
And let the angel of Jehovah pursue them.
- 7 For without cause they laid a snare for me:
Without cause they digged a pit for my life.
- 8 Unexpected destruction shall come on them;
The snare they laid shall catch themselves;
Into that very destruction shall they fall.
- 9 But my soul shall exult in Jehovah,
And shall rejoice in his salvation:
- 10 My whole frame shall say, Jehovah, who is like thee? [than he;
Delivering the afflicted from one stronger
The afflicted and needy from the spoiler.
- 11 False witnesses stand up "against me;"
What I know not, they lay to my charge.
- 12 They render to me evil for good;
And would bereave my soul of comfort.
- 13 Yet I, in their affliction, put on sackcloth;
I humbled myself with fasting:
And my prayer on their behalf was sincere.
- 14 Like a friend—Like a brother I behaved myself; [bowed down.
As one mourning a mother with grief, I
- 15 But in my distress they rejoice and assemble;
Unsuspected accusers assemble against me;
They tear me with reproaches, and cease not.

PSALM XXXV. 1. Contend] God's pleading consists in action, as he pleaded David's cause against Nabal, when he slew him, 1 Sam. xxv. 39. What David here prays for, God promises to do for his people, Isa. lxix. 25.

3. From the assault] For the reason of this version, the learned reader may see note, Hebrew Bible.

5. Let the angel of Jehovah] The angel of punishment is here meant; and it is implied, that when God makes use of such an angel, he accomplishes the work which hath been assigned to him; he utterly destroys, Exod. xii. 23.

7. Without cause] The common text is, 'Without cause they have hid a pit, And without cause they have digged a snare.' It is clear the words pit and snare have changed places.

8. Very destruction] Like hunted wild beasts, to take which pits had been dug and covered, they shall fall into the pit which they made for the destruction of others.

9. But my soul] That is, when thou thus punishest them, I will exult in thy salvation.

10. One stronger] There may be a reference to Saul: Literally, at my bones; but these are put for his whole frame, as the Chaldee renders.

Like impious men they cruelly mock me; 16
They gnash on me with their teeth.

Jehovah, how long wilt thou look on? 17
Rescue my soul from their devised destruction—
My dear life from those young lions. [tion;
Then will I thank thee in the great assembly; 18
Before a numerous people I will praise thee.

Let not my false enemies rejoice over me; 19
Nor those who causelessly hate me, wink
the eye.

For they never speak words of peace, 20
But against the most quiet they devise deceits.

They open wide their mouth against me, 21
And say, Aha! aha! our eye seeth him.

See thou this, Jehovah, and be not silent; 22
"Jehovah," stand not aloof from me.

Awake, O my God, in my defence; 23
Stir up thyself, Jehovah, in my cause.

Judge me, Jehovah, according to thy justice, 24
And let not mine enemies rejoice over me.

Let them not say in their heart, Ah, our 25 desire! [up.

Let them not say, We have swallowed him
Let them be ashamed and confounded to— 26
Who rejoice at my calamity; [gether

Let them be clothed with shame and disgrace
Who magnify themselves against me,

But let those shout and rejoice 27
Who favour my righteous cause; [nified,

Yea, let them ever say, Jehovah be mag-
Who delighteth in the prosperity of his servant.

Then shall my tongue talk of thy justice, 28
And continually resound thy praise.

PSALM XXXVI.

The state of the wicked, and the goodness and mercy of God to his people are described.

For the chief musician: a Psalm of David, the servant of Jehovah.

THE oracle of transgression to the wicked 1
Is within, even 'his' own heart;

There is no fear of God before his eyes;

11. False witnesses] The text requires the words now found in the Arabic. Compare Psa. iii. 1.

12. And would bereave] Hebrew, the 'bereavement of
my soul.'

13. And my prayer] Literally, 'My prayer was turned to my bosom.' When the orientalists pray seriously in grief, they hide their face in their bosom: and to this custom the psalmist here alludes.

15. Unsuspected accusers] See note, Hebrew Bible.—
Tear me] Something is evidently understood after the verb, and with Ainsworth with reproaches is added. Our Lord compares such men to dogs, Matt. vii. 6.

16. Cruelly mock me] The common version is singular,
'With hypocritical mockers at feasts!' For rendering נִקְוֶה a feast, there is no authority.

19. Wink the eye] In derision and contempt. Compare Prov. x. 10.

20. Never speak] 'They never speak peace,' means,
they are ever uttering their accusations and invectives.

23. Awake, O my God] So the text. See note, Hebrew
Bible.

PSALM XXXVI. 1. The oracle] The word נִקְוֶה is a

Nor the hand of the wicked disturb me.
- 12 There are the workers of iniquity fallen!
They are cast down, and not able to rise!

PSALM XXXVII.

The temporal prosperity of the wicked is so uncertain, that it should not be envied. It is uncertain when David composed it.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 K VEX not thyself on account of the
wicked;
Nor envy the workers of iniquity; [down,
2 For, like the grass, soon shall they be cut down, and generally in construction with some of the names of God, or of those believed to be gods. It always denotes something divine, either really or believed to be so.—The wicked consults only his own inclinations and passions; these are his oracle, what he observes and seeks to gratify. Compare Rom. viii. 2.

2. Instead of finding] The meaning is, though it is obviously the duty of a sinner to find out his sin, to hate it and repent of it, yet he flattereth himself in it, and will not admit that he is worthy of any particular punishment.

5. To the heavens] The next line supports this sense. Compare Psa. lvii. 11.

6. Great mountains] Hebrew, 'mountains of God.' His justice is both invariable and conspicuous, or manifest.

8, 9. With the rich food] Hebrew, 'fatness,' which is frequently used for what is best in its kind. Job xxxvi. 16, and Gen. xxvii. 23.—Thy house] Hammond and others understand the world so called here, and the same sentiment to be intended as when it is said, 'the earth is full of thy riches,' Psa. xxxiii. 4.—And by thy light] Light denotes instruction. In this view David might intend all the discoveries which God was pleased to make of his will and grace to the church. This light the Israelites enjoyed, and by it were enlightened.

11. Foot of the proud] The sense is given, as pride is used for proud men.

PSALM XXXVII. 1. Vex not thyself] Literally, 'be not enflamed,' on account of the wicked, whom thou seest now enjoying the greatest prosperity; for soon shall they be cut down.

3. Feed securely] Hebrew, 'feed truth, or on truth.'

And like the green herbage shall they wither.

5 Trust in Jehovah, and do good; 3

Dwell thou in the land, and feed securely.

Delight thyself also in Jehovah, 4

And he shall give thee the desires of thy heart.

6 Commit thy concerns to Jehovah; 5

In him confide—and he will succeed them;

He will bring forth thy righteousness as the 6

light, [ness.

And thine integrity as the noon-day bright-

7 Repose on Jehovah—in him place thy 7

trust;

Vex not thyself at him who prospereth—

At the man who formeth wicked devices, 8

"That he may slay the upright of heart."

7 Cease from anger, and avoid wrath; 9

Vex not thyself, so as in any wise to do evil:

For evil-doers shall be cut off; [the land. 10

But they who hope in Jehovah shall inherit

1 Yet a little while, and the wicked shall 11

Yea, thou mayest look on his place, but he

But the meek shall inherit the land, 12

And delight themselves in abounding peace.

1 The wicked plotteth against the just, 13

And gnasheth upon him with his teeth:

But Jehovah laugheth at him: 14

Verily he seeth that his day cometh on.

7 The wicked unsheath the sword; 15

They bend the bow, to cast down the meek and needy.

Their sword shall enter their own heart, 16

And their bow shall be broken to pieces.

5 Better to the righteous man is a little, 17

Than "all" the abundance of the wicked.

For the arms of the wicked shall be broken; 18

But Jehovah supporteth the righteous.

This form of speaking frequently occurs. To feed the wind, ashes, or dust, Isa. xlv. 20. Hos. xii. 2, denotes to pursue useless things, or to labour in vain. There is reference to a sheep, living, or feeding in a suitable pasture, untroubled and secure.

5. Commit thy concerns] Literally, 'roll thy way' on Jehovah.' By way here is meant whatever a man does, designs, or follows.

7. Repose on] Hebrew, 'Be silent to Jehovah.' It signifies the act of the mind, silently, and without impatience, waiting for God.

8. In the common text, the first line of this verse is the third of the seventh. The alphabetic order, and the uniformity of the composition shows, that a line has been here omitted or transposed. Dimock pointed out this, and very properly restored the redundant line of the 14th verse, which evidently connects better here than where it is placed, as it specifies the object of the wicked man's plots and designs.

9, 10. So as in any] When we indulge anger on account of evil doers, and vex ourselves at their present success, we forget that they shall be cut off, while God's servants shall be preserved. So Isa. lvii. 13.

12. Abundance of peace] Our Lord perhaps alludes to this verse, Matt. v. 5.

14. His day cometh on] Day is often used for the time of punishment: Job xxviii. 20. Psa. cxxxvii. 7.

17. Than all the] The little, the small portion of a good man, which he possesses by right, and uses with temperance, far excels the ill-gotten wealth of sinners, and will longer endure.

PSALM XXXVIII.

This is called the third penitential psalm. It is certainly a most plaintive one, and must have been composed during some grievous affliction.

A Psalm of David; to bring to remembrance.

O Jehovah, rebuke me not in thine anger, 1
Nor in thy hot displeasure chastise me.
For thine arrows have stuck fast in me, 2
And thy hand hath been heavy upon me.
No soundness in my flesh, because of thy 3
wrath;
Nor rest in my bones, because of my sin.
For mine iniquities have gone over my head; 4
As a heavy burden which I cannot bear.
My wounds are become loathsome— 5
Are putrified because of my folly. [ed;
I am bowed down—am exceedingly depress- 6
I go mourning all the day long.
For my loins are full of burning heat, 7
And there is no soundness in my flesh.
I am become feeble, and greatly wasted; 8
I roar out through the disquietude of my heart.
O Jehovah, my whole desire is before thee; 9
And my groaning from thee is not hid.
My heart panteth—my strength faileth me: 10
The very light of mine eyes is not with me.

21, 22. I have followed the text, only reading with the versions 1772, as smoke, instead of in or into smoke. There are two comparisons, but one connected with the other:
'they shall be consumed as the fat, the choicest part of rams;
and as the smoke arising from the altar, they shall vanish.'
With Dimock I have transposed the redundant line of the 25th verse here, as necessary, where it is more appropriate, than in the place it now occupies in the common version.

23. Bringeth on his The righteous is so far from being forsaken, that frequently out of the little (see 16th verse)
he has, he is merciful and lendeth to others, and bringeth on his seed the blessing of men, and often the special blessing of God. Charity does not entail poverty.

29. Long shalt thou See note on verse 3d, and Jer.
vii. 5—7.

30. What is right Hebrew 'judgment,' which here includes both the holy conduct of his saints, and his own equitable treatment of them.

34. The law is in his heart So God commanded, Deut.
vi. 6, and he has also promised to write it there, Heb.
viii. 10.

37. And he shall With Dimock and Hare this line is added from Prov. iii. 6, which completes the sense and the hemistichs.

39. Become formidable Ainsworth, 'daunting, terrible,' sorely dismaying others.—A green cedar. So the Sept. and Vulg. which are undoubtedly right. There is no authority for the term אורח denoting a bay tree.

41—44. Mark the We have here a fine contrast between the saint and the sinner; as their characters are different, so is their end.

PSALM XXXVIII. Thine arrows There is here a reference to Job vi. 4. Arrows are sicknesses or plagues of body or mind. Compare Ps. xviii. 15; xci. 5.

5. My folly Sin is often so called, and is what David here intends.

6. I am bowed down Hebrew, 'I am bended.' There is a beautiful climax in this verse, each member increasing in force.

7. My loins are In the sense given the term occurs
Lev. ii. 14. Jer. xxix. 22, and so the Chaldee took it here.
Compare Ps. cii. 4.

- 11 They, who were my beloved friends,
Now stand aloof from my stroke :
My neighbours now stand afar off.
- 12 And they, who seek my life, lay snares ;
They, who seek my hurt, speak malicious things,
And meditate deceits all the day long.
- 13 But I am as a deaf man who heareth not ;
Or like a dumb man, who openeth not his mouth.
- 14 I am as one who heareth nothing,
And in whose mouth are no cutting retorts.
- 15 For in thee, Jehovah, do I place my hope ;
Thou wilt answer for me, O Lord, my God ;
- 16 Lest, said I, they rejoice over me,
And boast themselves when my foot slippeth ;
- 17 For I am now ready to halt,
And my sorrow is continually before me.
- 18 Yet mine iniquity I have acknowledged,
And been distressed on account of my sin.
- 19 Still mine enemies live, and are powerful ;
And they who causelessly hate me are multiplied.
- 20 They render evil to me instead of good ;
They oppose me for following what is good.
- 21 Forsake me not, O Jehovah, my God !
From me never stand afar off :
- 22 Haste to mine aid, Jehovah my salvation !

PSALM XXXIX.

This psalm turns partly on the same subject with the thirty-seventh.

For the chief musician, Jedothun ; a Psalm of David.

- 1 I said, I will take heed to my ways,
That I may not sin with my tongue :
A muzzle will I keep on my mouth,
While the wicked are before me. [good,
- 2 I was dumb in silence—abstained from
And my sorrow was excited.
- 3 My heart became hot within me ;
While I meditated, the fire so burned
That I spoke with my tongue, and said,

11. My stroke] Or plague. That is, his present calamity made many desert and disown him ; while it emboldened others to lay their snares, and to speak maliciously against him.

13, 14. I am as a deaf] See note, Hebrew Bible. He acted with prudence and patience, did not render railing for railing, but committed himself to him who judgeth righteously.

17. Before me] That is, present with me, so that I am ready to be overwhelmed.

PSALM XXXIX. 1. Not sin with my tongue] Compare James iii. 2.—A muzzle] So our marginal version, and it is here used to denote the government of his tongue. Jam. iii. 3–8, and compare Deut. xxv. 4.

2. Abstained from good] That is, from good things, as the Sept. translates ; did not enjoy them.

3. The fire so burned] That is, the fire of his pain and grief. Compare Jer. xx. 9.

4. How frail I am] How perishable, how soon I shall cease to exist here.

5. In his best estate] The Greek, 'every man existing,' but Schulzens has vindicated the common version. See him on Job. i. 6.—Man surely, Literally, 'Man walketh after a shadow.' The word צל signifies an image or repre-

Make known to me, Jehovah, mine end,
And what is the measure of my days,
That I may know how frail I am. [breadth !
Behold ! thou hast made my days a hand-
And mine age is as nothing before thee !
Surely every man, in his best estate,
Is nothing but a mere vanity.
Man, surely, pursueth a shadow !
Surely in vain he heapeth up riches !
For he knoweth not who shall enjoy them !

Now, O Jehovah, what should I hope for ?
My whole expectation is in thee.
From all my transgressions deliver me ;
Make me not the reproach of the worthless.

I was dumb—I opened not my mouth,
Because thou inflictedst the stroke.

Remove from me thy stroke—
By the blow of thy hand I am consumed.

When thou with rebukes correctest man for his iniquity, [worm the garment.

Thou consumest his excellence, as a moth—
Surely every man is a mere vanity !

Hear my supplication, O Jehovah,
And give ear unto my cry :

On account of my tears, be not thou silent,
For I, as a stranger, depend on thee ;

I am a sojourner, like all my fathers.
O spare me, that I may recover strength

Before I go hence—and be no more.

PSALM XL.

David describes his own experience of God's mercy ; and prophesies concerning the incarnation, obedience, and ministry of our Lord ; then he enumerates his own sin and sufferings, and prays for deliverance.

For the chief musician ; a Psalm of David.

I earnestly looked to Jehovah,
And to me he bowed, and heard my cry.

He brought me up out of a horrible pit,
Out of the deep miry clay ;

He set my feet upon a rock,
And established all my goings.

He hath put in my mouth a new song ;

sentation,' and in this connexion, can only signify a shadow. Compare Ps. cxliv. 4.

7. What should I hope for] That is, from life or its possessions. Hence he prays for pardon, that he may not be made the reproach of the wicked.

9. I was dumb] He patiently bore what God laid on him ; like Job he did not charge God foolishly.

11. His excellence] Hebrew, 'his desire or desirable thing ;' that is, his health, vigour, and all his enjoyments. I have supplied garment, as understood in the text. Compare Job xiii. 28, and Isa. li. 8.

12. Be not silent] Act not as one who disregards me ; delay not thine aid.—As a stranger] This is taken from the law, Lev. xxv. 23, 'The land is mine, ye are but strangers and sojourners with me.' Compare Heb. xi. 13, 14, 16.

PSALM XL. 1. Earnestly looked] The words denote the strength of his desire and confidence, stretching out as it were his neck, looking for deliverance.

2. Horrible pit] A pit resounding with falls of water. Compare Ps. lxxv. 8. Isa. xvii. 12, 13. The image represents his dangerous state.

3. A new song] God had afforded him new matter for praise, and excited him to compose this song to his glory.

- A song of praise to our God. [vah.
Many shall see, and fear, and trust in Jeho-
4 Happy the man who putteth his trust in Je-

I would declare and speak of them;
But they are more than can be numbered.

That I am not able to look up.
They are more than the hairs of my head;
And, therefore, my heart faileth me.

5. The wonderful works] He refers to the miracles which God had wrought in redeeming Israel from Egypt, and in bringing them to Canaan.—Thy purposes] So the word is often rendered. He refers to the promises made by Abraham and his seed. David here felt like St. Paul, when he said, 'O the depth of the riches,' &c. Rom. xi. 33. This naturally introduces the following prophecy of Messiah, which includes the 6—10th verses, and he is introduced as the speaker, as he often is by the prophet Isaiah. David mentions this as one of God's many purposes which he could not estimate.

6. Desiredst not] That is, for their own sake. They were appointed only as shadows of a better sacrifice.—A body didst thou] For this version and the text, see note, Hebrew Bible.

7. In the volume] We might render simply, 'in the book;' for volume or roll refers only to the manner in which manuscripts were put together, being rolled on a stick, and then called a book.—It is written of me] Our Lord asserts that Moses wrote of him, John v. 46. He probably refers to Gen. iii. 15.

8. To do thy will] That is, whatever is written of me I delight to fulfil, John iv. 31.

9. I preach] The verb בשר means in general, 'to proclaim good tidings,' and is rendered in the Sept. by εὐαγγελίζω, 'to preach good tidings, to evangelize.' We are here told what our Lord preached as good tidings, thy

Who say unto me, Alia! aha!
But all those who seek thee shall rejoice 16
and be glad in thee;
Those who love thy salvation shall say,
Be Jehovah continually magnified.
When I am afflicted and needy, 17
Then may Jehovah think on me.
Thou art my helper and my deliverer;
Make no delay, O my God.

PSALM XLI.

David celebrates the happiness of the compassionate, and complains of his enemies. This psalm was probably composed under some personal affliction.

To the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

HAPPY is he who regardeth the poor. 1
In the time of trouble, Jehovah will deliver
him. [alive,
Jehovah will preserve him and keep him 2
And will make him happy upon the earth,
And not give him up to the will of his enemies. [sickness,
Jehovah will support him on the bed of 3
And during his infirmity will turn all his couch.
I say, O Jehovah, be gracious unto me; 4
Heal me, although against thee I have sinned.
Mine enemies now speak evil of me; 5
When shall he die and his name perish?
And if one come to see me, he speaketh false- 6
hood:
His heart is collecting iniquity to itself;
He goeth forth, and then uttereth it. [me;
All who hate me, whisper together against 7
Against me they devise evil for me, saying,
His wicked deed is now poured upon him, 8
And from where he lieth he will no more rise up.

righteousness. That is, God's method of justifying sinners, Rom. iii. 21, 22.

11. What follows belongs to David, and forms the third part of this interesting psalm. The last five verses are the same as the 70th psalm. The judicious Poole observed that David now speaks in his own person.

12. Thou the hairs] He confesses the number and the effect of his sins and iniquities. Hence he prays for deliverance both from them and his enemies.

15. They shall receive] With bishop Lowth the reading and version of the Sept. is followed. The common version is not intelligible; for what can reward of their shame signify?

17. Make no delay] The word means so to tarry or linger as to disappoint one of his expectation, as Habak. ii. 3. Deut. xxiii. 21.

PSALM XLI. 1. Regardeth the] The word ישיביל denotes both a prudent judging, and a correspondent conduct towards the poor and the afflicted, 2 Sam. xiii. 4. Compare Matt. v. 7. and vii. 1.

3. Will turn all his couch] That is, will be his kind nurse, and make his sick-bed easy.

8. His wicked deed] They considered his sickness as a divine judgment for some wickedness, and perhaps had in their eye his sin in the matter of Uriah.—Is poured out] So all the old versions render. David's enemies considered, that God had now brought his guilt on his own head.

- 9 Yea, my familiar friend, in whom I trusted,
Who ate of my bread, hath lifted the heel
against me. [me,
10 But thou, O Jehovah, be gracious unto
And raise me up, that I may requite them.
11 By this I know that thou favourest me,
Because mine enemy doth not triumph over
me. [legriety,
12 As to me, thou supportest me in my in-
And wilt set me in thy presence for ever.
13 Blessed be Jehovah the God of Israel,
From eternity to eternity, Amen and Amen!

PSALM XLII.

David laments his absence from the place of divine worship, but hopes to return. Probably composed when he was beyond the Jordan, during Absalom's rebellion, 2 Sam. xvii. 2.

For the chief musician; a didactic for the sons of Korah.

- 1 As the hart panteth for streams of water,
So panteth my soul for thee, O God.
2 My soul thirsteth for God, the living God;
When shall I come and appear before God?
3 My tears are my food, by day and by night,
While they daily say to me, Where is thy God? [soul in me),
4 I remember those days, (and pour out my
When I went with the multitude,—
Approached with them to the house of God,
Amid the sound of joy and praise;—
With the multitude keeping the solemn feast.
5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul?
Why art thou disquieted within me?
Hope in God; for yet shall I praise him,
As my salvation and my God.
6 My soul is cast down within me;
Because I remember thee from the land of Jordan;
From the Hermons, and mount Mizar.
7 Deep calleth to deep at the sound of thy water-falls;

All thy waves and thy billows pass over me.

By day Jehovah commanded his kindness, 8
And by night his song was with me;
But now my prayer is to the God of my 9
life; [me?
To God I say, My rock, why forgettest thou
Why go I mourning from the enemy's oppression?

Painful is it as the breaking of my bones 10
When my adversaries reproach me; [God?
When they daily say to me, Where is thy
Why art thou cast down, O my soul? 11
Why art thou disquieted within me?
Hope in God; for yet shall I praise him,
As my salvation, and my God.

Judge me, O God, and plead my cause 1
Against an ungodly nation; [me.
From the deceitful and unjust man deliver Since thou art God my strength, why cast 2 me off?

[pression?
Why go I mourning from the enemy's op-
Display thy light and truth; let them guide 3 me, [nacles.

And bring me to thy holy mount and taber-
Then will I approach the altar of God, 4
Of God, the source of my joy and exultation:
On the harp I will praise thee, Jehovah my God.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul? 5
And why art thou disquieted within me?
Hope in God; for yet shall I praise him,
As my salvation and my God.

PSALM XLIV.

This psalm seems to have been composed during the captivity, or perhaps during the persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes.

To the chief musician; a didactic, by the sons of Korah.

O God! with our ears we have heard, 1
To us our fathers have related what work

9, Familiar friend] Most think David intended Ahithophel, 2 Sam. xv. 23. Our Lord applies this verse to himself, John xiii. 18.

13. Blessed be] This ends the first book of the psalms;
and this verse ends every other book, which might be added when the psalms were collected. See Psalms lxxii.
lxxxix. cvi.

PSALM XLII. 1. Hart panteth] Or brayeth with desire for the water-streams.

2. Appear before God] That is, at the tabernacle. What is called coming before God, 1 Chron. xiii. 10, is called 2 Sam. vi. 7, coming before the ark of God. See Exod.
xxxiv. 24. Deut. xiii. 16; xxxi. 11.

3. My tears are] That is, shed constantly, as men constantly take their food; or while eating he did not cease to weep. Compare Ps. lxxxvi. 6.

4. I remember those days] The following lines justify the insertion of days instead of things.—When I went]
We have here a description of the annual feasts, when all the males were to appear before God.

5. Why art thou] Cast down with sorrow and anxiety.
Prov. xii. 25.—As my salvation] See note, Hebrew Bible.

6. My soul is cast] This is an answer to the inquiry made in the preceding verse.—From the land of Jordan]
That is, the land beyond the Jordan, where David now was. David next mentions more particularly the place where he was, near mount Hermon. Mahanaim was situated at the bottom of these mountains, and here David and his army encamped for some time, before the battle with Absalom, 2 Sam. xvii. 24.—Mount Mizar] Some less mountain, so called in comparison with mount Zion, which he loved.

7. Deep calleth] The situation of David suggested this forcible image. He saw the torrents falling from the precipices, and heard them resounding, and as if calling to one another for assistance; so, says he, all thy waves, that is, afflictions and troubles, come upon me and overwhelm me.

8, 9. The latter verse incontestably proves, that David here contrasts his past happy state with his present afflicted one, and that the future tense must be rendered in the past.

10. Like the breaking] The verb נצח generally signifies,
'to slay, kill or murder;' but in the Arabic it signifies also, 'to break, to crush to pieces,' and here and Ps. lxii.
4, this sense is most apposite.

PSALM XLIII. 1. More than thirty manuscripts join this to the former psalm. It has no title, and the sentiments, and the return of the same verse, render it certain that it is the conclusion of it.—Ungodly nation] He means the many who had joined Absalom.—Unjust man] With all his affection as a father, he might with the greatest truth thus speak of his rebellious son.

3. Display] That is, show me thy favour and establish thy truth by fulfilling thy promises.

- Thou didst in their days—in the days of old.
 2 By thy hand thou didst drive out the nations,
 And plantdest them in their stead;
 The people of Canaan thou didst afflict,
 But thou madest them to shoot forth.
 3 For not by their sword possessed they the
 Nor did their own arm save them; [land,
 But through thy right hand and thine arm,
 And because with the light of thy counte-
 Thou wast pleased to favour them. [nance
 4 Thou, O God, who art still our king,
 Command deliverances for Jacob:
 5 Through thee we will push back our enemies,
 And in thy name tread down our opponents:
 6 For in our own bow we will not trust,
 Nor can our own sword save us.
 7 Thou, indeed, must save us from our foes,
 And put to shame those who hate us.
 8 In God we constantly make our boast,
 And thy name we perpetually celebrate.
 9 Yet hast thou cast us off, and put us to
 shame,
 And goest not forth with our armies.
 10 Thou makest us retreat before the enemy,
 And they who hate us, make us their prey.
 11 Thou givest us up, like sheep, to be devoured,
 And among the nations thou dispersest us.
 12 Thou sellest thy people, without gain,
 And increasest not thy wealth by their price.
 13 Thou makest us a reproach to our neighbours,
 A scorn and derision to those around us.
 14 Thou nakest us a by-word among the
 nations,
 A shaking of the head among the peoples.
 15 Our disgrace is daily before us,
 And confusion covereth our face; [phemer;
 16 From the voice of the insulter and blas-
 From the presence of the enemy and avenger.
 17 All this hath come upon us;
 Yet have we not forgotten thee,

- Nor acted falsely in thy covenant.
 Our heart hath not turned back from thee, 18
 Nor our steps declined from thy way:
 Yet thou hast driven us to a place of serpents, 19
 And spread over us the shadow of death.
 If we had forgotten the name of our God, 20
 Or stretched out our hands to a strange god,
 Would not God have searched into this? 21
 He who knoweth the secrets of the heart.
 Yet for thy sake we are daily slain; 22
 We are counted as sheep for the slaughter.
 Awake! why sleepest thou, O Jehovah? 23
 Arise, cast us not off for ever!
 Why hidest thou thy countenance, 24
 And forgettest our affliction and oppression?
 For our soul is humbled to the dust: 25
 Our body cleaveth to the earth.
 Rise up, and become our help; 26
 Redeem us from thy mercy's sake.

PSALM XLV.

This psalm is a prophecy respecting Messiah; his kingdom and glory, and his union with his people, Heb. i. 8.
 To the chief musician, on the hexachord; a didactic song of love, by the sons of Korah.

- My heart teemeth with excellent matter; 1
 I will speak what I have composed for the king;
 My tongue is as the pen of a ready scribe.
 Thou art fairest among the sons of men: 2
 Grace is diffused on thy lips;
 Wherefore God ever blesseth thee.
 Gird thy sword on thy thigh, mighty one, 3
 Display thy glory and thy majesty;
 And in thy majesty, ride prosperously on, 4
 In the cause of truth, meekness, and rightteousness;
 Let thy right hand dart forth terrors:
 And peoples shall fall down under thee! 5
 Sharp shall be thine arrows,
 In the heart of the king's enemies.
 Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: 6

PSALM XLIV. 2. To shoot forth] So Piscator and others have rendered. The verb שָׁלַח is applied to the vine, spreading its roots and branches, Psa. lxxxix. 9. Ezek. xvii. 6. This sense is parallel with plantedst in the former line, and a natural consequence of it.

4. Art still our king] Hebrew, 'thou art he, my king, O God.' I have rendered in the plural as the sense requires.

11. Like sheep to be devoured] Hebrew, 'sheep for meat,' that is, to be eaten or devoured; so verse 22d, 'sheep for the slaughter,' that is, sheep to be slain.

12. Sellest thy people] God is said to sell his people, when he delivereth them into their enemies' hands, as out of his own possession. So Deut. xxxii. 30. Isa. lii. 3.—Increasest not] That is, takest no other people in their stead, who may be thy portion, inheritance, and treasure.

19. A place of serpents] That is, a place where they are wont to dwell.

22. Yet for thy sake] Our afflictions have not come on us for idolatry, but for thy sake, for our adherence to thee. Hence he prays for deliverance.

PSALM XLV. 1. Teemeth with] The author means, his heart was elevated with his subject, and his thoughts wanted vent. Hence he determines to speak what he had composed.

2. Thou art fairest of] Or most beautiful. He sees the king, through the inspiring influence of the spirit, and addresses him in the language of admiration.—Grace is diffused] That is, eloquence is diffused on thy lips. So חַן grace signifies, Eccl. x. 12. This is a striking picture of him who spoke as never any other man spoke, Luke iv. 22.

3. Gird thy sword] That is, prepare for the contest, and like a mighty warrior accoutred, go forth for the overthrow of thine enemies.—Thy glory] The sword which the prophet desires him to gird on, he calls his glory and majesty; by which is clearly meant, the word of the gospel, called 'the sword of the spirit,' Eph. vi. 17. Rev. i. 16.

4. In the cause of] This shows the object which this king should have in view, the cause of divine truth, meekness, and righteousness. And each of these he displayed and defended. His word was the truth, his spirit was meekness, and his actions, righteousness.—Dart thy terrors] This version arises from adopting the primary sense of יָרָה, 'to cast, shoot an arrow.' Messiah, by his word, displaying the sins of men, the purity of God should dart terrors into the consciences of men, as Paul did into the mind of Felix, Acts xxiv. 25. The image is pursued in the next verse.

6. Thy throne, O God] As this is quoted by the apostle, and associated with other passages, which do unquestionably imply divinity, it is proper to consider this its true sense

A sceptre of equity is the sceptre of thy kingdom. [edness;

7 Thou lovest righteousness and hatest wickedness—
Hence hath "Jehovah" thy God anointed thee

With the oil of gladness above thy fellows:

8 Myrrh, aloes, and cassia are thy garments.
From the ivory palaces they make thee glad; [ones;

9 Daughters of kings are among thy beloved
At thy right hand standeth the queen,
Arrayed in robes of the gold of Ophir.

10 Listen, O daughter; consider, and incline thine ear; [house;

Forget thine own people and thy father's

11 Then will the king be captivated with thy beauty: [him.

He is indeed thy Lord, and worship thou

12 The daughter of Tyre shall bring a present;
And the richest people shall entreat thy favour. [ment;

13 All-glorious is the queen in her apartment—
Her robe is embroidered with gold. [tire,

14 To the king she shall be brought in rich attire—
Her virgin-companions following her;—

To thee shall they be conducted: [tion,

15 They shall be brought with joy and exultation—
And shall enter the palace of the king.

16 Instead of thy fathers shall be thy sons,
Whom thou shalt make princes in all the earth.

17 "I will cause" thy name to be remembered
Throughout all generations: [and ever.
So that peoples shall praise thee for ever here, Heb. i. 8—12. Also the duration of his kingdom is implied. Compare 2 Sam. vii. 16. and 1 Chron. xxii. 10.

7. Anointed thee] This refers to our Lord as man; and from his unction or anointing, he is called Messiah or Christ. It means his appointment to his office of mediator and saviour, and the endowments necessary to discharge it.

8. Myrrh, aloes] The king's robes are spoken of, as if made of perfumes; they spread their odour abroad.—From the ivory] The palaces of kings were often cased with ivory, in ancient times. Compare 1 Kings xxii. 39. and Amos iii. 15. Homer, Horace, and Virgil refer to this custom.

9. Standeth the queen] By queen is signified the Jewish as the basis of the Christian Church. God's covenant with that people is spoken of as a marriage, Jer. iii. 14. Isa. liv. 5. Hos. ii. 19, 20. The prophet here, I think, speaks not of the national church merely, but of the best part of it, those really serious.

10, 11. Listen, O daughter] This may respect every individual who comes to the Saviour. Like a woman who cleaves to her husband, they are to cleave to him by faith and affection.—He is thy Lord] Having come to him by faith, remember that he is thy head to rule over thee, to provide for and protect thee; he thou, therefore, obedient, and pay him the homage of thy heart.

12. The daughter of Tyre] The people of Tyre. It is a singular fact, that many from Tyre flocked to hear Christ, Mark iii. 7. and by their readiness to hear and follow him, he upbraided the unbelief of the Jews, Matt. xi. 20, 21. Acts xxi. 3—5.—The richest people] Either referring to the Tyrians, who were remarkably wealthy by their extended commerce, or rather to the other nations which should embrace the gospel.

13. All-glorious] The queen is all-glorious within her apartment. So I render כְּבוֹדָהּ, which has this sense in other places, and never signifies the heart or mind. See Lev. x. 18, and 1 Kings vi. 18.

PSALM XLVI.

This psalm is a thanksgiving for a signal victory obtained. Some refer it to the victory of David over the Syrians, 2 Sam. viii; and others, to that of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx.

For the chief musician, by the sons of Korah; a song upon Alamoth.

God is our refuge and strength, 1

A very ready help in time of trouble,

Therefore will we not fear, 2

Should the earth be removed.

And the mountains cast into the sea:

Should its waters roar and be troubled, 3

And the mountains shake with its swell,

We have a river whose gentle streams 4

Shall make glad the city of God—

The holy abode of Jehovah Most High.

God is in the midst of her, she shall not be 5
moved;

For God will speedily afford help to her.

The nations raged, the kingdoms were 6
moved;

He uttered his voice, and the earth melted.

Jehovah, God of hosts, was with us; 7

The God of Jacob was our refuge.

Come, behold the works of Jehovah! 8

The desolations which he hath made in the
earth;

Making wars to cease to its extremity! 9

He hath broken the bow, cut in pieces the spear, [fire.

And the war-chariots he hath burned with

Be still, and know that I am God; 10

I will be exalted among the nations,

I will be exalted in the earth.

14, 15. To the king] The church shall be brought into the presence of, and closest union with, her bridegroom; and her virgin companions, young converts, shall attend her with joy, and sing. They shall be brought to his palace or temple, the public assemblies of his people.

16. Instead of thy fathers] Here the prophet again addresses Messiah, and asserts that instead of his Jewish fathers, from whom he descended, and by whom he was rejected, he should have sons, a spiritual seed, whom he should make princes. This may be understood literally, that many princes should embrace the gospel; or they may be so called as Jacob was, from their spiritual dignity, and their power with God.

17. I will cause thy] He alludes to this prophecy, which should never be forgotten. The name of king Messiah should ever be celebrated.

PSALM XLVI. 1—3. A very ready help] What follows expresses the strongest confidence in God, and equals the fine sentiment of Horace, 'Si fractus illabatur orbis, Impavidum ferient ruinæ.'

4. A river whose] This is supposed to refer to the Kidron, and its two streams Gihon and Siloah. Compare 2 Sam. x. 23, and 2 Chron. xxxii. 30. Jerusalem was not like the troubled sea, whose swelling waves threatened destruction, but like a gentle stream, whose waters, diffused abroad, enrich the soil, and render it productive.—Of Jehovah] See note, Heb. Bible, and Psa. xlvii. 2; lxxv. 5.

6. The nations] What was figuratively expressed above, is now stated. The nations raged against Jerusalem, but God uttered his voice, as it were in thunder, and the earth, or people of it, melted with fear, Psa. lxxv. 4; cvii. 26.

9. Making wars] The consequence of the victory obtained was, a general cessation of war, not only in Judea, but among all the surrounding nations.

- 11 Jehovah, God of hosts is with us :
The God of Jacob is our refuge.

PSALM XLVII.

This psalm seems to have been composed for the removal of the ark to mount Zion, which was attended with a grand procession. 1 Chron. xiii. and xvi.

For the chief musician of the sons of Korah ; a Psalm.

- 1 O ALL ye peoples, clap your hands :
Shout to God with the voice of triumph :
- 2 For Jehovah, the Most High, is to be feared,
The great king over all the earth.
- 3 He hath subdued peoples under us,
And put nations under our feet.
- 4 He hath chosen our inheritance for us,
The excellent lot of Jacob whom he loved.
- 5 God ascendeth with shouting ;
Jehovah, with the sound of trumpets !
- 6 Sing praises to God, sing praises ;
Sing praises to our king, sing praises ;
- 7 For God is king over all the earth :
To God sing melodious praise.
- 8 God reigneth over all the earth ;
God sitteth on his holy throne. [people,
- 9 There are assembled the princes of the
The people of the God of Abraham :
For to God, who is highly exalted,
Belong the princes of the land !

PSALM XLVIII.

This is also a song of thanksgiving ; and probably was composed in reference to the victory obtained by Jeshaphat. 2 Chron. xx.

A Psalm for the sons of Korah.

- 1 GREAT is Jehovah, and highly to be praised, [tain.
In the city of our God, on his holy moun-
- 2 Beautiful for situation,
The joy of the whole land is mount Zion ;
- 3 On the north side is the city of the great king :
In its palaces God is known for a refuge.

PSALM XLVII. 1, 2. All ye peoples] Clapping the hands and shouting, are the signs of joy and victory.

4. Excellent lot] Hebrew, 'Excellency or glory ;' but the former line makes it evident that by lot is meant the land and the temple, all the temporal and spiritual privileges which the Israelites, as the sons of Jacob, enjoyed, Ezek. xxiv. 21. Amos vi. 8.

5. God ascendeth] That is, in the ark, the symbol of his presence. When it was carried by some Levites, others blew the trumpets, and others joined in singing praises to God, sitting on his holy throne in Jerusalem.

9. The princes] The word מלכים our translators have rendered rulers, Hosea iv. 18, and the Arabic translator so rendered here ; and so the Jews generally understand it.

PSALM XLVIII. 2. Beautiful for] for the sense of see Josh. xii. 23, and 1 Kings iv. 11.—On the north side] This refers to the site of the city, which was chiefly on the north side of mount Zion.

5. But when they saw] From this, it seems that the confederate kings had approached within sight of Jerusalem, but when they considered its strength, they retreated with fear and trembling.

6. Strong pain] This, in connexion with the following verse, indicates the greatest distress, and a final overthrow.

7. They were as if struck] The text is generally allowed to be elliptical, and something must be supplied to give the sense. The verb נפלו may be the third person feminine,

- For lo ! the kings were associated ; 4
They passed on together against it :
But when they saw, they were astonished ; 5
They were confounded and hasted away.
There, a trembling seized on them ; 6
Strong pain, like that of child-birth.
They were as if struck by the east wind, 7
Which breaketh to pieces the ships of Tarshish.

As we have heard, so have we now seen, 8
Concerning the city of Jehovah of hosts,
Concerning the city of our God—
That God will establish it for ever.
We, O God, have thought on thy kindness, 9
In the midst of thine own temple :
As thy name, so shall thy praise 10
Resound to the extremities of the earth :
Thy right hand is full of righteousness. 11
Let mount Zion rejoice, the cities of Judah
exult,

Because of thy judgments, "O Jehovah."

Go round about Zion—number its towers, 12
Mark well its bulwarks, count its palaces : 13
That ye may tell it to the next generation :
For this God is our God for ever ; 14
He will always guide and defend us.

PSALM XLIX.

The vanity of riches as the ground of hope, and the inability of man to redeem himself or others from death. The author and occasion of this psalm are unknown.

For the chief musician of the sons of Korah ; a Psalm.

- HEAR this, all ye peoples, 1
Give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world ;
Both low and high, rich and poor, together. 2
My mouth shall speak wisdom, 3
Even the prudent reflections of my heart.
I will incline mine ear to the song ; 4
I will open the weighty subject on the harp.
Why should I fear in the days of evil, 5
When the iniquity of supplanters surroundeth
me ?

agreeing with unnd ; and as God is not spoken to before, this is the most natural construction. The east-wind was not only hot and destructive, but also vexat, bearing every thing away, Exod. x. 13. Job xxvii. 21.

10. As thy name] Whosoever thy name shall be known, it shall be associated with the praise which we offer to it.

11. (a) Versions.

14. He will always] The common version, 'unto death,' rests only on the points, or manner of reading the words על מות, which in many manuscripts and editions are only one word. The Sept. Alex. and Vulg. so render. The full force of the verb is given by rendering, 'guide and defend.' It denotes, he would guide and defend them as a shepherd his flock.

PSALM XLIX. 2. High and low] The author addresses mankind in general, and then specifies the different classes and ranks of society. Ainsworth, 'Sons of base men, and sons of noble men.' His subject regarded both, teaching the rich not to trust in their riches, nor the poor to be dissatisfied on account of the want of them. See Psa. iv. 2, and note.

4. To the song] This is the sense of מַשֵּׁל here. It denotes any measured and important composition.

5. Of supplanters] The version given arises from considering עָלָה as the participle of the verb, which is used respecting Jacob, Gen. xxvii. 36. The writer explains by this, the days of evil, days in which the rich and powerful

- 6 Of those who trust in their wealth,
And boast of the abundance of their riches?
- 7 No one can, in any wise, redeem a brother,
Nor give to God a ransom for him,
9 So that he may live on to eternity,
And may never see corruption. [great
- 8 For the redemption-price for 'his' life is so That he should for ever give up the attempt.
- 10 For it is evident that wise men die;
Likewise the fool and brutish person perish,
And to others leave all their wealth.
- 11 Their 'grave' is their house for ever;
Their dwelling-place through all generations,
Though celebrated by their names over countries.
- 12 For man in honour shall not continue;
He resembleth the beasts—they are alike.
- 13 Such is their way, their foolish confidence,
Yet their posterity approve their maxims.
- 14 They, like sheep, are placed in hades:
Death shall be their shepherd;
And the upright, in the judgment-morn,
Shall have dominion over them;
But their frames shall be consumed
In hades their habitation.
- 15 Surely God will redeem my soul; [me.
From the power of hades he will verily take
- 16 Fear thou nothing when one is made rich,
And the glory of his house is increased:
- 17 For, at his death, he shall carry nought away;
Nor shall his glory go down after him.
- 18 Although in his life he blessed himself,
And was praised, while it was well with him,
- 19 Yet shall he go to the generation of his fa-
Who shall never again see the light. [thers,

Resembleth the beasts—they are alike.

laid snares, and by deceit endeavoured to supplant and overthrow others. Why should I fear such men, who trust to their wealth, &c.?

7. Can redeem] That is, from death, as is evident from what follows.

8, 9. For so great] Hebrew, 'so costly, precious, what can scarcely be attained.'—That he should] Such an one should cease or desist from the attempt to pay it. The sense is given clearly; and by transposing the verses the parenthesis is avoided.

10. For it is evident] To the observation of every one it appears, that no rank is exempt from mortality.

11. Their grave] This reading consists in the transposition of a letter, and was that of all the old versions.—Though celebrated] For this compare Gen. xvi. 14. Psa. xlii. 3.

12. For man in honour] That is, possessed of the wealth, dignity, and glory of the world.—He resembleth] The latter clause explains his meaning: men in honour are but short-lived, and cut off frequently like beasts.

13. Such is their way] Their way refers to their attempts to secure their honours and perpetuate them for ever.

14. They also like sheep] This verse is one of the most difficult in the Hebrew scriptures. From the introduction to this psalm ver. 1—4, we naturally expect to find something elevated and interesting; some uncommon and weighty truth, or more clear statement of some important doctrine. The remark, that riches cannot secure immortality on earth, is obvious to all: but if from the 10—15 verse there be a reference to a future state of retribution, to the punishment of the wicked; and to the resurrection

PSALM L.

The author of this psalm states the nature of divine worship, and the right use of sacrifices. When it was written is uncertain.

A Psalm of Asaph.

- THE mighty God, Jehovah, speaketh; 1
And calleth the inhabitants of the earth,
From the rising to the setting sun.
From Zion, the perfection of beauty, 2
God shineth forth with splendour,
Our God cometh, and will not be silent; 3
Before him a fire devoureth,
And about him is a mighty tempest.
He will call to the heavens above, [ple. 4
And to the earth, while he judgeth his peo-
Let 'his saints' be gathered unto him, 5
Who have made a covenant with him by sacrifice. [ness;
And the heavens shall declare his righteous- 6
For God himself is the judge.
Hear my people, and I will speak; 7
O Israel! and I will testify to thee,
For God, thine own God, am I.
I do not reprove thee for thy sacrifices;— 8
Or for thy burnt-offerings that are daily before me.
I will take no steers out of thy booth, 9
Nor he-goats out of thy folds;
For mine is every beast of the forest; 10
The thousands of cattle on the mountains.
I know all the fowls of the heavens, [mine. 11
And 'the various' produce of the fields is
If I were hungry, I would not tell thee; 12
For mine is the world and its fulness.
Shall I eat the flesh of stout bulls, 13
Or the blood of goats shall I drink?
Offer to God the sacrifice of praise, 14

and final judgment, when the upright shall have dominion, we have something to answer our expectation. The whole of the paragraph favours this view.

15. Surely God will] He here refers to a future state, and expresses his hope, that God would not leave his soul in hades, nor his body under the power of death. Compare Hos. xii. 14, and 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55, with Gen. v. 24, and Psa. lxxiii. 34.

18. While it was well with him] While he not only thought himself happy and boasted of his riches and glory, but was the object of gratulation among men.

20. That understandeth not] That is, without spiritual understanding and prudence, who only regards this life and neglects another, he resembleth in his pursuits and pleasures the beasts—they are alike.

PSALM L. 1—4. Jehovah speaketh] How sublime is this exordium! Jehovah speaketh, summoning all men before him. He appears as he did at Sinai, surrounded with fire and tempest, about to pass sentence upon men.

5. Let his saints] As the next verse of the text is in the third person, the reading of the versions is adopted. The author calls on all God's professing people to assemble before him. The word saints seems applied to all the Israelites. See Deut. xiv. 2, and xxxiii. 3.—Made a covenant] In the persons of their fathers at Horeb, Exod. xxiv. 4—8, and to which they had consented by submitting to the ordinances, which that covenant confirmed.

9—11. I will take no] God does not reprove them for presenting the sacrifices prescribed, but they were not to think that he stood in need of them, or that they laid him under any obligation,

13—15. Shall I eat] That is, dost thou think I am

- And perform thy vows to the Most High.
 13 Then call on me in the day of trouble,
 I will deliver thee, and glorify thou me.
 16 But to the wicked God saith :
 What hast thou to do to talk of my statutes ?
 17 Or to take my covenant in thy mouth ?
 For thou hatest instruction,
 And castest my words behind thee.
 18 If thou see a thief, thou consentest to him,
 And with adulterers thou art a partaker.
 19 Thy mouth thou openest to utter evil,
 And thy tongue frameth deceit. [ther ;
 20 Thou repeatedly speakest against thy bro-
 Thou slanderest thine own mother's son.
 21 These things thou doest—and shall I be silent ?
 Thinkest thou that I am like thyself ?
 I will reprove thee, and convict thee.
 22 Consider now this, ye who forget God.
 Lest I tear you, and there be none to deliver.
 23 He who offereth praise glorifieth me,
 And to him, who walks in the right way,
 I will show the salvation of God.

PSALM LI.

The title explains the occasion and nature of this psalm.

TO the chief musician. a Psalm of David, when Nathan, the prophet, came to him, after he had gone in to Bath-sheba.

- 1 BE gracious to me, O God, according to thy kindness ;
 According to the greatness of thy mercies blot out my transgressions.
 2 Thoroughly wash me from mine iniquity ;
 Thoroughly cleanse me from my sin.
 3 For my transgression I acknowledge,
 And my sin is always present with me.
 4 Before thee, before thee only, I sinned,
 And in thy sight I did this evil : [tence,
 So that thou mayest be justified in thy senpleased with these, when they are offered without faith, love, and gratitude ? Nay, offer the sacrifice of praise, &c.

21. Shall I be silent] God appeals to the reason and conscience of such sinners, whether it is proper that he should give them occasion to think that he was like them, and approved of their conduct.

23. Salvation of God] This may mean, ' my salvation,' or a salvation great and worthy of God to effect.

PSALM LI. 3. Present with me] As a frightful spectre, haunting my imagination, and awakening the bitter reproaches of my own conscience.

4. Before thee] For the sense given to 5 see Noldius. He refers to the privacy of his sins, 2 Sam. xii. 12—In thy sentence] In what he had denounced by Nathan to David.

—Art clear] That is, free from injustice. The Sept. whom Paul follows, Rom. iii. 4, have, ' overcome when thou art judged or impleaded,' which is only another way of expressing the same sentiment ; for he who is cleared from the accusations brought against him, overcomes in the suit.

5. Conceive me] Some would render, ' cherish and nurse me ;' but the connexion supports the common version. He confesses that he was not only born in a state liable to iniquity, but even conceived in one liable to sin ; in a state destitute of original purity and uprightness ; so that when a moral agent, he would become actually guilty of iniquity and sin. This appears to be the only proper interpretation of this passage.

6. Lowest truth] That is, sincerity and uprightness.—

- And mayest be clear when thou art judged.
 Lo, in iniquity I was brought forth ! 5
 Yea, in sin did my mother conceive me.
 Lo, thou lovest truth in the inward parts ! 6
 So in the hidden part do thou teach me wisdom.
 Purify me with hyssop, until I be clean ; 7
 Wash me, until I be whiter than snow.
 Make me to hear joy and gladness, 8
 That the bones thou hast broken may rejoice.
 Hide thy face from my sins, 9
 And blot out all mine iniquities.
 Create in me a pure heart, O God, 10
 And a right spirit renew within me.
 Cast me not away from thy presence, 11
 Nor take thy Holy Spirit from me.
 Restore to me the joy of thy salvation ; 12
 And let a free spirit sustain me.
 Then will I teach transgressors thy ways, 13
 And to thee shall sinners be converted.
 Deliver me from the guilt of blood, 14
 O God, the God of my salvation ;
 And my tongue shall sing aloud of thy mercy.

Open thou, O Jehovah, my lips, 15
 And my mouth shall rehearse thy praise.
 For thou desirest not sacrifice, or I would 16
 give it,

In burnt-offering thou hast no delight.
 The sacrifice of God is a broken spirit ; 17
 A broken and contrite heart God will not despise.

Do good in thy good pleasure to Zion ; 18
 Build thou up the walls of Jerusalem.
 Then shalt thou be pleased with lawful sa- 19
 crifices ;

With burnt-offerings wholly complete :
 Then shall steers be offered on thine altar.

So in the] The future must be rendered in the precative form, as it is in the common version in the following verses. This gives a beauty and propriety to the passage.

7. Purify me] This verse alludes to the modes of purification appointed by the law for the leprosy. See Lev. xiv. 6, 7 ; xlix. 52.

10. A pure heart] A heart as free from depraved desires, as gold purified is from alloy—A right spirit renew] Grant me a mind rightly disposed, ever prepared for following what is good.

11. Thy Holy Spirit] He prays, that he might not be deprived of that spirit with which God had blessed him, and which had so often spoken by him. Compare 1 Sam. x. 6 ; and xvi. 14.

12. And let a free] The spirit of adoption and love, which shall sustain me in the way of uprightness.

14. Shall sing aloud of thy mercy] In this place מִצְדִּיק clearly signifies, not righteousness in the exercise of justice, but ' clemency or mercy,' as Poole explains.

16. Desirest not] That is, for the sin I have committed. There was no sacrifice allowed for murder.

18, 19 Do good] Venema has rendered it probable that these two verses were added after the return from the captivity.

PSALM LII. 1. Gloriest thou in evil] In thy enmity to me, and my cause, and in the murder of those who unintentionally supported me !

PSALM LII.

The inscription shows the occasion of this psalm. 1 Sam. xx. 8, and xxii.

To the chief musician; a Psalm of David, when Doeg, the Edomite, came and told Saul, that David had been in the house of Ahimelech.

- 1 WHY gloriest thou in evil, mighty man?
The goodness of God is every day manifested.
- 2 Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs,
Working deceitfully, like a sharp razor.
- 3 Thou lovest evil more than good;—
Falsehood more than to speak what is just:
- 4 Thou lovest all devouring words,
And usest the tongue of deceit.
- 5 But God shall utterly destroy thee; [ing,
Shall dismay and pluck thee from thy dwell-
And root thee out of the land of the living.
- 6 The righteous shall see and rejoice,
And shall laugh thee to scorn, and say;
- 7 Lo! the man that made not God his strength,
But trusted in the abundance of his riches,
And strengthened himself in his depravity.
- 8 But I shall be, as a green olive, in the house of God;
For in the kindness of God do I ever trust.
- 9 I will ever praise thee for what thou doest;
And I will hope in thy name, O God;
For thou art good towards thy saints.

PSALM LIII.

This psalm is the same as the fourteenth, with only some trifling variations.

For the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

- 1 FOOLS say in their heart that there is no
God! [works:
They are corrupt—abominable are their
Not one of them doeth good, "not even one,"
- 2 Jehovah from the heavens looked down on men; [God.
To see if there were one so wise as to seek
- 3 They are all gone astray, are together corrupted:
Not one doeth good, not even one.
- 4 Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledge, [bread,
Who devour my people as they devour
And who never call upon Jehovah?
- 5 Then shall they tremble with fear,
For God will be with his righteous people.

2—4. Thy tongue] These verses refer to his deceitful and false accusation of the priests; and their condemnation and death.

5. God shall] The following line explains this. He should perish and what belonged to him.

7. Lo! the man] Good people should see the awful end of this Edomite, who, instead of fearing the God of Israel, and trusting in him, made his riches his trust, and depravity his shield.

8, 9. But I shall be] David expresses his confidence, that, though now banished, he should one day be restored.

PSALM LIII. 6. Who were accustomed] It is in this verse that we find the greatest difference from the other copy, Psalm xiv. and it is probable that this change was made during the captivity, or while the Jews were yet in a low and depressed state.—Thy benefactors] This must be

- Then shall they tremble with fear, 6
Who were accustomed to fear nothing;
For God will scatter the bones of thy be-siegiers; [them.
They shall be ashamed—for God despiseth.
O that the salvation of Israel 7
May come forth from out of Zion!
When Jehovah restoreth his captive people,
Jacob shall exult—Israel shall rejoice.

PSALM LIV.

The title indicates the occasion of composing this psalm.

For the chief musician on the Neginoth: a didactic Psalm of David; when the Ziphites came and told Saul that David was hid among them.

- O God, for thy name's sake, save me, 1
And in thy might defend my cause.
- O God, hear my prayer; 2
Give ear to the words of my mouth.
- For the "proud" have risen up against me, 3
And oppressors seek after my life:
They set not God before them.
- But behold! God is my helper; 4
Jehovah is the supporter of my life.
- On mine enemies let their mischief return; 5
And for thy truth's sake, O God, cut them off.
- I will freely sacrifice unto thee; 6
I will praise thy name, Jehovah, for it is good; [ble;
- When thou hast delivered me from all trou- 7
And I have seen the fall of mine enemies.

PSALM LV.

This psalm was evidently written on the rebellion of Absalom, when Ahithophel went over to him, 2 Sam. xv.

For the chief musician on the Neginoth; a Psalm of David.

- GIVE ear, O God, to my prayer; 1
Hide not thy face from my request;
- Attend unto me, and hear me: 2
I am distressed with musing, and roar out,
Because of the voice of the enemy; 3
Because of the oppression of the wicked.
- For they lay to my charge iniquity,
And in wrath set up themselves against me.
- My heart trembleth within me; 4
The terrors of death are fallen on me.
- Fear and trembling have seized me; 5
And horror hath overwhelmed me.
- O, say I, that I had wings! 6 regarded as a sudden apostrophe to Jerusalem or to Zion. I have adhered to the textual reading, as the turn given by some of the versions may be derived from it. See Ps. xiv.

PSALM LIV. 3. For the proud] This reading is supported by the context as well as by MSS. Chald. Ps. xxxiv. 14; for in what sense could the Ziphites be called strangers?

4. The supporter of my life] So the versions render.

7. When thou hast] Bishop Secker proposed this sense of "2," and it removes the confusion of the common version.

PSALM LV. 2. I am distressed] He mused on what had occurred, and what was fit to be done, but to no purpose.

3. Iniquity] They pretended that he neglected the administration of justice, and the public welfare.

6—8. O, say I] This is a most beautiful comparison, and the sentiment such as must affect every reader of taste. He

- Like a dove I would fly away, and be at rest :
- 7 Lo, I would wander to a distance,
And would abide in the wilderness :
- 8 I would hasten away to a shelter,
From the fierce tempestuous whirlwind.
- 9 Destroy, "Jehovah," and divide their counsels : [strife.
For I see that in the city are violence and
- 10 These, day and night, go around its walls :
And in the midst of it are iniquity and mis-
- 11 In the midst of it is great depravity ; [chief :
Fraud and guile depart not from its streets.
- 12 "If" an open enemy had reproached me,
That I could have borne ;
"If" one hating me had risen up against me,
From him I could have hid myself :
- 13 But it was thou, the man of my esteem ;
My guide and my familiar friend.
- 14 We enjoyed sweet secret converse together ;
In company we walked to the house of God.
- 15 Death shall suddenly seize on them ;
Alive shall they go down to hades ; [ings.
For great wickedness is within their dwell-
- 16 But as for me, I will call on God,
And Jehovah will save me.
- 17 At even, at morn, and at mid-day, I will pray ; [heard ;
"I will cry out," and make my voice be
- 18 Redeem my soul, in peace, from my kindred : [me.
For they are among those who contend with
- 19 May God hear me, and humble them ;
Even He that abideth from eternity.
- Because they have met with no changes,
They do not, therefore, fear God. [able,
- 20 They put forth their hands against the peace-
And have broken their covenant with him.
- 21 Their mouth was softer than butter ;
But war was the design of their heart.
Their words were smoother than oil,
Yet were they drawn swords.

compares himself to a dove, escaping from the fowler, and seeking safety in the desert.

9. Destroy, Jehovah] Hebrew, tongues; but it is used metonymically for the counsels uttered by the tongue. This passage confirms the sense given of the confusion of tongues, Gen. xi. 6. See note there.

10. These, day] Violence and strife are personified, as are the following nouns.

12—14. If an open enemy] The various reading is preferred, because it is founded in truth. See note, Hebrew Bible.

15. Death shall] So Symmachus, supported by the other versions as to the sense.—Alive shall] There is an evident allusion to Numb. xvi. 30, 33. 17. (v) Syr.

18. From my kindred] There might be others related to him, besides Absalom, in this rebellion.

19. No changes] That is, reverses; every thing had yet succeeded according to their wish. These two lines ought to be joined to the next verse, as they begin a new paragraph.

22. Cast thy care] So the Sept. and Peter, 1 Ep. v. 7; and as the real sense of the text is doubtful, I think this as probable as any yet given.

23. Half their days] In the Jewish account sixty years was the age of a man. So that not to live out half one's days, is in their style, to die before thirty years old.

Cast thy care on Jehovah, and he will support thee ; [moved.

He will never suffer the righteous to be
But those, O God, thou wilt bring down to the pit of destruction.

Bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days ;
But in thee, Jehovah, will I trust.

PSALM LVI.

The title shows the occasion of this psalm, and it seems to refer to 1 Sam. xxvii. 1—7.

For the first musician on the Ionath Elemrehokim; a golden Psalm of David; while he was among the Philistines of Gath.

BE gracious unto me, O God, 1
For man would swallow me up ;
He fighting daily oppresseth me.
Mine enemies would daily swallow me up ; 2
For many, in their pride, fight against me.
When I am afraid, I will trust in thee. 3
In God I will glory on account of his word ; 4
In God I will trust, and not fear
What feeble mortals can do unto me.
Every day they grievously wrest my words ; 5
All their designs are against me for evil.
They secretly assemble, and mark my steps ; 6
For they patiently wait to take away my life.

For this their iniquity deliver me from them ; 7
In anger cast down such people, O God.

Thou hast numbered my wanderings ; 8
My tears thou hast put into thy bottle :
Are they not also in thy record ?

On the day, when I call upon thee, 9
Shall mine enemies be put to flight :
This I know, that God is on my side.

In God I will glory on account of his word ! 10
In Jehovah I will glory on account of his word !

In God I will trust and not fear 11
What man can do unto me.

PSALM LVI. 1. Swallow me up] Or 'panteth for my life;' panteth with eager desire to destroy me.

2. In their pride] Hebrew, with elation. Compare Micah ii. 3, where the word is rendered haughtily.

4. On account of his word] He gives a reason why he would glory in God ; on account of his promise, for so his word denotes.—Feeble mortals] Hebrew, flesh, that is, men who are but flesh, weak and perishing.

5. Grievously wrest] Try to lay hold on any thing I say or do, as matter of accusation.

6. They secretly assemble] So Symmachus. When two verbs thus occur, the latter ought to be rendered adverbially.

7. For this their iniquity] So Dathe, but see note Heb. Bible.

8. My wanderings] Ainsworth has collected them, from Saul's presence to Gath, 1 Sam. xxi. 10. from thence to the cave of Adullam, 1 Sam. xxii. 1, from thence to Mispah in Moab, verse 3, then to the forest of Hareth in Judah, verse 5, then to Keilah, 1 Sam. xxiii. 5, thence to the wilderness of Ziph, verse 14, thence to the wilderness of Maon, verse 25, then to Engedi, 1 Sam. xxiv. 1. 2.—Put in thy bottle] The metaphor is not more harsh than what follows, supposing them inscribed in a record.

9. On my side] Hebrew, for me ; that is, taketh part with me, and will support me.

- 12 I have made vows unto thee, O God,
And to thee, with praises, I will pay them.
13 For thou hast delivered my soul from death :
Wilt thou not prevent my feet from falling,
That I may walk before God in the light of the living ?

PSALM LVII.

David complains of his dangers, but relies on his God.
1 Sam. xxii. 1, 24.

To the chief musician [Althasheth ;] a golden Psalm of David.

- 1 BE gracious to me, Jehovah, be gracious :
For my soul trusteth in thee : [refuge,
In the shadow of thy wings I will take
Until these calamities shall have passed over.
2 I will cry to God the most High ;
To God, who performeth all things for me.
3 He will send from the heavens and save me,
And disgrace those that would swallow me up ;
God will send forth his mercy and his truth.
4 My soul is in the midst of lions :
I lie among men burning with rage ;
Whose teeth are spears and arrows,
And whose tongues are sharp swords.
5 Exalt thyself, O God, above the heavens ;
Display thy glory over all the earth.
6 A net they had prepared for my steps ;
A trap had they prepared for my life ;
A pit they had digged before me :
But into it they themselves have fallen.
7 My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is
I will sing and give praise unto thee. [fixed ;
8 Awake my glory ; awake, lyre and harp !
I myself will awake at the early morn !
9 I will praise thee, Jehovah, among the peo-
I will sing to thee, among the nations. [ples ;
10 For great unto the heavens is thy mercy ;
And thy faithfulness reacheth unto the skies.
11 Exalt thyself, O God, above the heavens ;
Display thy glory over all the earth.

12. Made vows] So the Syriac.—With praises] The term שָׁלוֹם is used for paying vows. For with praises were offered thank-offerings, Levit. vii. 12, 16, 17.

PSALM LVII. 2. Who performeth] That is, who performs his own promises, by keeping and upholding me.

3. He will send] That is, send aid, and so dispose events, that instead of Saul taking away my life, I shall have an opportunity of taking away his.

4. My soul is] That is, I am ; my life, my person is among men as fierce as famished lions, and as pitiless. They are described in what follows.

PSALM LVIII. 1. Dispense justice] Hebrew, 'speak righteousness,' but the words denote the sentence of judges, and signify as rendered. Compare Is. xlv. 19.

2. Verily in heart ye contrive] In this verse, the two verbs have through mistake been transposed. For, to work with the heart, and contrive with the hands, is opposed to nature.

3. The wicked] That is, their parents take no pains to instil into their minds religious principle, and their natural depravity is suffered to acquire strength and display itself, unchecked and uncontrolled.

4, 5. Their poison is] Their inward venom and malice is

PSALM LVIII.

Unjust judges are reprov'd ; judgment denounced against them. Probably composed when Saul condemned the priests to be slain, 1 Sam. xxii.

For the first musician [Althasheth] ; a golden Psalm of David ; when he escaped from Saul in the cave.

- Do ye faithfully dispense justice ? 1
Do ye judge uprightly, sons of men ?
Verily in heart ye contrive wickedness, 2
And your hands work violence in the land.
The wicked are estranged from the womb ; 3
They stray from the birth, speaking falsehood !
Their poison is like the poison of a serpent, 4
They are as the deaf aspic that stoppeth its ear ; [ers,
That hearkeneth not to the voice of charm- 5
Though charming with the greatest skill.
Break their teeth, O God, in their mouths ; 6
Break, Jehovah, the grinders of these young lions.
Let them melt away as waters which pass off : 7
If they aim their arrows, let them miss the mark.
Let them be like a flood flowing swiftly off ; 8
Like an abortion which seeth not the sun.
Before 'their' pots are heated with boughs, 9
Green or dry, let a tempest disperse them.
The righteous shall rejoice, when he seeth 10
the vengeance ; [the wicked.
When he washeth his steps in the blood of
Then will men say, 11
Verily there are rewards for the righteous ;
Verily, there is a God who judgeth in the earth.

PSALM LIX.

The title explains the time and occasion of this psalm.
1 Sam. xix. 11.

For the first musician [Althasheth] ; a golden Psalm of David, when Saul sent messengers to watch at his house, for the purpose of killing him.

DELIVER me, my God, from mine enemies ;

like that of the serpent ; or of the deaf aspic. See Prov. xxvi. 13.—To the voice of charmers] It is certain that, both in India and Egypt at the present day, some persons have the art of charming serpents, of rendering them innoxious, and making them perform a variety of motions at their pleasure.

6. Break their teeth] All the serpent tribe wound with the teeth, and distil their poison from a little bag in which it is contained, into the wound which they have made. Hence to break their teeth was to deprive them of the power to injure.

8. Like a flood] Most critics consider שָׁבִיל as of the same import with שְׁבִיל Ps. lxi. 15, water-flood. The image is more appropriate.

9. Before their pots] Hebrew, 'before their pots perceive or feel the boughs,' &c. The sense is expressed in the version given.—Green] Literally, 'as well the living as the dry ;' but a living bough means a green one.

10. Washeth his] That is, treadeth on the ground, where their blood has been shed. The destruction of wicked men occasions joy to the righteous, as displaying the righteous providence of God.

- Be my defence against mine opposers.
 2 Deliver me from the worker of iniquity,
 And save me from blood-thirsty men.
 3 For lo, they lie in wait for my life;
 The mighty are assembled against me!
 Yet for no crime, no sin of mine, O Jehovah.
 4 Though without fault, they run about to smite me;
 Awake and look to mine assistance,
 Jehovah, God of hosts, the God of Israel!
 5 Awake to punish all such people;
 Favour not any such deceitful transgressors.
 6 Every evening they return to attack me;
 Like dogs they howl and run about the city.
 7 Lo! with their mouths they belch out evils;
 In their lips are cutting reproaches:
 Yet who hearkeneth unto them?
 8 But thou, Jehovah, laughest at them:
 Thou holdest all such people in derision.
 9 O "my strength," upon thee I will wait!
 For God is my strong-hold.
 10 The God of my mercy will afford aid to me;
 God will show me the fall of mine enemies.
 11 Slay them not, lest my people forget it;
 Scatter them by thine own power;
 Cast them down, O Jehovah, our shield.
 12 For the sin of their mouth, the word of their lips,
 And for their haughtiness let them be taken;
 For the cursing and falsehood which they utter.
 13 Consume, wholly consume them in anger,
 So that none of them may remain;
 That they may know to the ends of the earth,
 That God ruleth in Jacob.
 14 Though every evening they should return,
 And, like dogs, howl and go around the city;
 15 Let them wander about to find food,
 And murmur when they are not satisfied.
 16 But as for me, I will sing of thy power;
 I will sing aloud every morning of thy
 mercy:
 Because to me thou art a defence;
 A refuge in the day of my trouble.

PSALM LIX. 3. The mighty] That is, Saul and his courtiers.—Yet for no crime] The crime of David was the success with which God favoured him; and his sin in the eyes of Saul, the piety of his heart and virtue of his life.

4. Without fault] As it respected Saul. He was a faithful subject, and an obedient son-in-law.

5. All such people] Dathe and others have observed, that כָּל הַגִּיּוֹרִים cannot here with any propriety be translated all the nations. Compare Ps. lvi. 7, and note, Heb. Bible.

7. Cutting reproaches] Hebrew, 'swords,' but the term is used figuratively for malicious invectives, or reproaches cutting like a sword. The former line, 'they belch out,' explains this. Compare Jerem. vi. 7.—Yet who hearkeneth] Who is there that answers, or attempts to support my character?

9. My strength] This reading of the version gives propriety to the text.

10. Afford aid to me] Hebrew, 'prevent me,' or come in to turn off any stroke aimed at me.

12. Sin of their mouth] This is explained to be 'the word of their lips,' their false accusations.

13. Consume them] That is, out of the land. Let such as doeg no longer remain in the city, that men may know, &c.

My strength, to thee will I sing! 17
 For God, the God of my mercy, is my defence.

PSALM LX.

If the title of this psalm be correct, David and his army suffered greatly in the Syrian war, 2 Sam. viii. and 1 Chron. xviii.

For the first musician on Shushan-Eduth; a golden didactic Psalm of David, when he was at strife with the Syrians of Mesopotamia and the Syrians of Zoba; when Joab returned from smiting twelve thousand Edomites in the vale of Melah.

O God, thou hast cast us off and scattered us;

Thou hast been angry—turn again to us.
 Thou hast shaken the land, and hast rent it: 2
 Heal its breaches, for it yet tottereth.

Thou hast made thy people to see hardship; 3
 Intoxicating wine thou hast made us to drink.
 Give thou a banner to those who fear thee, 4
 That it may be displayed because of the
 That thy beloved may be delivered, [truth. 5
 Hear, and save us by thy right hand.

God speaketh in his sanctuary— 6

I will rejoice—I will divide Shechem,
 And measure out the valley of Succoth.
 Gilead shall be mine, and mine Manasseh: 7
 Ephraim shall be the helmet of my head:
 Judah shall be my law-giver;
 Moab shall be to me my washing-pot; 8
 And to Edom shall I throw my sandal;
 Over Philistia shall 'I triumph.'

Who will bring me to that strong city? 9
 Who will conduct me to Edom?

Wilt not thou, O God, who didst cast us off, 10
 And didst not go forth with our hosts?

Grant us relief from trouble; 11
 For vain is the assistance of man.

Through God we shall act valiantly; 12
 For he will tread down our enemies.

14, 15. He repeats the 6th verse, but varies its application. When like dogs they howl, &c. Let them be like those animals, ranging for food and murmuring that they do not find it.

PSALM LX. 2. Hast shaken] God is said to have done, what he suffered the enemies of his people to do.

3. To see hardship] To experience the oppressions and insults of their enemies.

4. Give thou] The connexion requires the future to be thus rendered, as it is in the first verse.

5. Thy beloved] David means both himself, whose name signifies beloved, and the Israelites to whom God had shown distinguishing regard.

6. God speaketh] The psalmist bears, as it were, a voice from the sanctuary, promising him success, and he exults, and says what follows.—Shechem] A city in the tribe of Ephraim, Josh. xvii. 7, and xx. 7.—Succoth] was in the tribe of Gad, and not far from the lake of Genesareth, Josh. xiii. 27. Judg. viii. 4, 14. David is assured that he shall conquer, and as a sovereign dispose of those lands.

8. Moab shall be] Reduced to slavery and serve for the meanest offices.—And to Edom] The sense is, they also shall serve me, like slaves, taking care of my sandals when put off. (v) Ps. cviii.

PSALM LXI.

David calls on God, and encourages his hopes from his truth and mercy. Compare Psalm xlii.

To the chief musician, to Jeduthun; a Psalm of David.

- 1 HEAR, O God, my supplication,
And be attentive to my prayer.
- 2 From the end of the land to thee I call,
While my heart faileth with grief:
Raise thou me up and direct me;
- 3 For thou art wont to be my refuge;
A strong tower from the enemy.
- 4 I shall yet long sojourn in thy tabernacle,
And be secure under the covert of thy wings.
- 5 For thou, O God, hast heard my vows;
Thou hast given me for an inheritance
The people who fear thy name.
- 6 Days to days wilt thou add to the king;
His years shall be from generation to generation.
- 7 He shall ever abide before God. [ration:]
Thy mercy and truth shall preserve him:
- 8 So will I ever sing praise to thy name;
And from day to day perform my vows.

PSALM LXII.

David professes his confidence in God, and exhorts others to trust in him.

A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.

- 1 VERILY my soul waiteth on God:
For from him cometh my salvation.
- 2 He only is my rock and my salvation;
My defence—I shall not be greatly moved.
- 3 How long will ye plot against a man,—
Will all of you attempt to break him down,
Like a tottering wall, or a broken fence?
- 4 They consult only against 'my' dignity;
To cast me down they delight in falsehood;
They bless with their mouth, but inwardly curse.
- 5 My soul, wait thou only upon God:
For from him is my expectation.
- 6 He only is my rock and my salvation;
My defence—I shall not be greatly moved.
- 7 From God is my salvation and my glory;
My strong rock, and my refuge, is God.
- 8 Trust in him at all times, ye people!

PSALM LXI. 2. End of the land] So Ainsworth explains land to mean the extremity of the land of Canaan. Compare Exod. xvi. 35, and Jerem. xii. See note, Family Bible.

4. Long sojourn] The tabernacle was the object of David's desire. Hence his language to Zadok, 2 Sam. xv. 24. Ps. xxxvi. 8, and xci. 1—4.

5. For an inheritance] The next verse, in which he speaks of himself as king, supports the version given as the real sense of the passage. David had for his inheritance, not only the common privileges of other pious Israelites, but the royalty as his peculiar and distinguished part.

6, 7. His years] That is, in his posterity, and especially in the person of Messiah.

PSALM LXII. 1. Waiteth] In submission and hope. So the word יָמַיִת denotes. Compare Ps. xxii. 2, and xxxix. 2.

3. Plot against a man] As plot generally signifies, to 'contrive evil, to conspire,' it best expresses the sense of the text.—Attempt to break] So Michaelis has applied the Ara-

Pour out your hearts before him!

God only is a refuge for us.

Surely men of low degree are vanity.

And men of high degree are falsehood;

When put in the balance they are alike
vanity.

Place not your trust in oppression,

And become not vain through spoil. [them.

If riches increase, set not your heart on

Once hath God spoken; twice I have heard 11

That power belongeth unto God! [this,

To thee, also, Jehovah, belongeth mercy; 12

Yet thou wilt render to man according to his works.

PSALM LXIII.

David longs for the display of God's favour, and to enjoy it in the sanctuary; his hope of final triumph. Probably, composed when he fled from Absalom, and had reached the other side of the Jordan.

A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.

O God, my God art thou; early will I seek thee;

My soul thirsteth: my flesh longeth for thee,
Like a dry, thirsty, and waterless land.

So I long to see thee in the sanctuary.

To behold thy power and thy glory:

For better is thy kindness than life;

Therefore shall my lips praise thee.

Thus will I bless thee while I live;

In thy name I will lift up my hands.

As with fat or marrow, my soul shall be satisfied, [thee;

And with joyful lips my mouth shall praise

When I remember thee on my bed,

And meditate on thee at every watch-hour.

For thou art wont to be my help:

Hence in the shadow of thy wings I will rejoice.

My soul cleaveth fast unto thee:

Thy right hand upholdeth me.

But they who seek to destroy my life

Shall go to the lower parts of the earth.

They shall fall by the sword;

A portion for jackals shall they be.

bic sense to this passage; as its usual sense of 'slaying, killing,' does not seem at all suitable. A verb which denotes an action or an effect, often signifies only the attempt to do it. See Gladius, Canon 8, and Gen. xxxvii. 21.

4. Against my dignity] That is, his crown; they wished to deprive him of the royal power.

9. Surely men] That is, rich and poor. Sometimes men cannot afford aid to others, and often will not, if they can.

10. Through spoil] That is, what is acquired by the oppression of others. Nay if wealth be increased by lawful methods, let no one trust to it for happiness.

PSALM LXIII. 2. So I long] The verb must have this sense here, and the adverb לְךָ be rendered so, in this manner.

5. My soul shall] That is, while I meditate and reflect on thy kindness, I am more delighted than in the enjoyment of the richest delicacies. This is to me as fatness and marrow to the epicure.

10. A portion for jackals] These are bigger than the fox, and usually, like wolves, prey on those slain. They abound in the east.

- 11 But the king shall rejoice in God :
Every one that sweareth by him shall glory ;
While the mouth of liars shall be stopped.

PSALM LXIV.

*David complains of his enemies, and foretells their ruin.
It is uncertain when this psalm was composed.
To the chief musician ; a Psalm of David.*

- 1 WHEN I pray, hear, O God, my voice :
From the dreadful enemy preserve my life.
2 Hide me from the designs of the wicked ;
From the attacks of the workers of iniquity,
3 Who whet their tongues like a sword ;
They direct their arrows, even bitter words,
4 To shoot, in secret, at the upright :
Suddenly they shoot, and fear nothing.
5 They encourage themselves in this evil deed ;
They consult how to hide their snares ;
They say, Who shall see them ?
6 They search out iniquitous counsels :
By diligent search 'they perfect' them :
And deep is the mind and heart of every one.
7 But God shall shoot an arrow at them :
Suddenly shall they be smitten.
8 On themselves their reproach shall fall ;
All who see them shall flee away.
9 Then shall all men be afraid,
And declare the work of God,
When they understand that this is his doing.
10 In Jehovah, the righteous shall be glad and trust, [glory].
And all the upright of heart in him shall

PSALM LXV.

David celebrates the blessings of religious worship, and the peace and fertility of the land.

To the chief musician ; a Song and Psalm of David.

- 1 PRAISE waiteth on thee, O God, in Zion ;
And to thee shall the vow be performed :
2 Hearer of prayer, to thee shall all flesh
come.
3 Our iniquities have prevailed over us ;
But our trespasses thou hast covered.

11. Sweareth by him] To swear by idols denotes, honouring and serving them, Amos viii. 14 ; so swearing by Jehovah has the same sense, Is. xix. 18, and xlv. 23.

PSALM LXIV. 3, 4. Direct their arrows] The verb דרכו implies here, doing all that was necessary to shoot, which Dathe and others call a pregnant signification, Ps. lvi. 8. — And fear nothing] The Syriac, which Bishop Lowth approves, and 'are not seen.'

5. See them] That is, the snares which they have hidden.

6. They perfect them] Their counsels and plans ; they bring them, as they conceive, to perfection, so that they fear no disappointment.—And deep is] The wickedness hid there cannot be fathomed. Compare Jer. xvii. 9. (v) Versions.

7, 8. But God] While they were indulging the hope of success, and considered their plans matured, David predicts their disappointment.

PSALM LXV. 1. Waiteth on thee] As a servant, whose duty it is to do what thou commandest.

3. Hast covered] Through the blood of atonement, thou hast pardoned them.

4. Happy is he] That is, every one permitted to join in thy service, and to partake of thy favour.

5. Terrible things] God's judgments on the wicked are his terrible things, which alike display his justice towards

Happy is he whom thou chooseth, 4
And admittest to dwell in thy courts !
We shall be satisfied with the good things
Of thy house—even of thy holy temple.

By terrible things, in justice, thou, [us ; 5
The God of our salvation, hast answered
Thou who art the hope of all the ends of the
earth,

And of those afar off, upon the seas :
Who by thy power fixedst the mountains ; 6
Who art begirded with mightiness :
Who stillest the rage of the seas, 7
The rage of their waves, as the tumults of a people.

The inhabitants of the ends of the earth 8
Are struck with fear at thy tokens.

Whatever cometh forth with the morn,
Or the evening, thou makest to rejoice.

Thou visitest and waterest the earth ; 9
Thou enrichest it abundantly

With plenteous rain from the heavens.
When thou hast thus prepared it, 10

And made it fit for every kind of grain,
Thou abundantly waterest its ridges—

Causest rain to descend into its furrows,
And thou blessest all its produce.

Thou crownest the year with thy goodness, 11
And all thy paths distil fertility ;

Distil it on the pastures of the desert, 12
And the hills rejoice on every side.

The pastures are clothed with flocks— 13
The vallies are covered with corn—

They shout, yea, they sing for joy.

PSALM LXVI.

The author, who was probably David, commemorates God's favours to Israel and to himself in particular. Some think it was written after the rebellion of Absalom was suppressed, and he again enjoyed peace.

To the chief musician ; a Song or Psalm.

- SHOUT with joy to God, all ye lands : 1
Sing forth the glory of his name : 2
Make his glory the theme of thy praise.

them, but his mercy towards his own people, who are thereby saved from their enemies.

7. As the tumult of] By rendering τῆς, we have here a beautiful simile. God, as the sovereign of nature, stilleth the raging waves, with more ease than a powerful king suppresses a popular tumult.

8. Thy tokens] That is, of thy power in providence, but especially in the works of nature.—Whatever cometh] Ainsworth observes, this may be meant both of the successive course of day and night, and of them that go out at morning and evening, which are men to their labour, and beasts for their prey, as is shown, Ps. civ. 20, 23, and of people inhabiting the east and west parts of the world. See Fam. Bib.

9. With plenteous rain] Hebrew, 'with the stream of God full of water.' This is a pure orientalism for copious and abundant rain, as Schultens has proved. See also Ainsworth.

11. Distil fertility] God is represented, as a beneficent Lord, distributing blessings wherever he goes. Paths denote God's operations in nature, giving rain in due season, and the returns of spring, seed-time, and harvest.

13. Clothed with flocks] That is, flocks in abundance are spread over the pastures.

- 3 Say to God, How awful thy works!
Through the greatness of thy power
Thine enemies have submitted to thee.
All the earth shall worship thee;
Shall sing to thee—shall sing to thy name.
- 4 Come and behold the works of God!
Awful are his doings towards men.
- 5 He once turned the sea into dry land!
On foot our fathers went through the flood!
Then did we rejoice in him.
- 6 By his might he ruleth for ever;
His eyes are fixed on the nations:
Let not the rebellious exalt themselves.
- 7 Bless our God, O ye people!
And make the sound of his praise heard.
- 8 It is he who preserveth our lives,
And suffereth not our feet to be moved.
- 9 Truly thou hast tried us, O God!
Thou hast proved us as silver is proved;
- 10 Into a snare thou broughtest us,
And didst lay a heavy load on our loins.
- 11 Thou didst make men to ride over our heads;
We have gone through fire and water;
But thou hast brought us to a rich land.
- 12 I will enter thy house with burnt-offerings;
I will perform unto thee my vows,
- 13 Which my lips pronounced,
And my mouth spoke in my trouble.
- 14 Burnt-offerings of fatlings I will offer to thee:
Of rams, together with incense;
Steers with goats I will sacrifice.
- 15 Come, hear, all ye who fear God;
And I will declare what he hath done for
my soul.
- 16 I cried to him with my mouth,
And exalted him with my tongue;
- 17 But if in my heart I had regarded iniquity,
Jehovah would not have heard me.
- 18 Verily God hath heard me;
He hath attended to my supplication.
- 19 Blessed be God, who rejected not my prayer,
Nor withdrew his mercy from me.

PSALM LXVI. 3. All the earth shall] Or, let all the people of the land. The connexion seems to limit the word to the land of Israel.

5. Then did we] As descended from those who came out of Egypt, he speaks of himself and the present race of Israel, as sharers in the joy of that deliverance.

6. By his might] This verse contains an inference from the preceding. God being the same, and ruling for ever, let not any dare, like Egypt, to provoke again his wrath.

9—11. Tried us] By afflictions and distresses. We have been like a man entangled in a snare, with a heavy load on his back, who has no power to extricate himself.

14. Of rams] The common version follows the Vulgate, 'incense of rams,' which is absurd. The Chaldee, 'incense of spices, and sacrifices of rams.' Compare Lev. ii. 1, 2, 15.

17. But if in my] He means, that if while praying, the love of iniquity had been indulged, God would not have listened to him; for he heareth not sinners, John ix. 31, nor hypocrites, Job xxvii. 8, 9.

PSALM LXVII. 2. That thy way] That all men may know the way of worshipping thee, and the way in which thou wilt accept, pardon, and bless them with thy salvation, Acts xviii. 25, 26.

PSALM LXVII.

This is a song of praise, and was probably composed on the removal of the ark to Zion. 2 Sam. vi. 18.

To the chief musician on Neginoth; a Psalm or Song.

BE gracious to us, O God, and bless us,
And cause thy face to shine upon us;
That thy way may be known through the
earth;

Thy salvation among all the nations.
Let the peoples praise thee, O God!
Let all the peoples praise thee together!
Let the nations be glad and sing for joy;
For thou wilt judge the peoples with equity,
And govern the nations upon earth.
Let the peoples praise thee, O God,
Let all the peoples praise thee together.

Then shall the earth yield her increase,
And God, our own God, will bless us!
God will continue to bless us,
And all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

PSALM LXVIII.

This is one of the most beautiful of the psalms, and was composed for some public procession when the ark was carried to Mount Zion, most probably after David had conquered the Ammonites and the Syrians, 2 Sam. xii. 11. It is divided into nine parts, which seem to have been sung by different choirs.

To the chief musician; a Psalm or Song of David.

LET God arise, and his enemies be scattered!

And let those who hate him flee before him!
As smoke is dispersed, so let them be dispersed!

Like as wax melteth before the fire, [God!
So may the wicked perish at the presence of
But let the righteous be made glad
"And" exult at the presence of God;
Yea, let them exceedingly rejoice.

Sing to God—sing praises to his name;
Extol him who rideth through deserts;
His name is Jah—hence exult in his presence.
The father of orphans—the judge of widows
Is God in his holy habitation.
God maketh outcasts to dwell at home,

4. Wilt judge] Wilt judge and rule them by thy word, which shall be made known to all for the obedience of faith. —Govern] Lead and guide them as the shepherd his flock.

6, 7. Then shall] When God makes known his way to men, under the reign of Messiah, all nature shall rejoice; and the remotest people fear and serve him.

PSALM LXVIII. 1. Let God arise] This is the language which Moses used, when the ark was removed, Numbers x. 35.

2. The wicked] This term here seems applied to denote the enemies of Israel; and in the next verse, by the righteous are meant the Israelites. 3. (a) MSS. and versions.

4. Through deserts] Ainsworth renders deserts, and observes, that it is often used for the plains of the wilderness. —His name is Jah] It is probable that the name Jah, is only a poetic abbreviation for Jehovah.

5. Father of orphans] By affording them protection, and by destroying their enemies.

6. Maketh outcasts to] This is as literal as possible, and the version is at least clear. There is probably a reference to the Israelites in Egypt, who were as outcasts, solitary, in a strange land. —Bound in chains] Many were thus treated in Egypt, but they were released. The same would apply

- And releaseth those that are bound in chains ;
But rebels shall inhabit a dry land.
- 7 O God, when thou didst go before thy people ; derness ;
When thou didst march through the wilderness ;
8 The earth shook—the heavens were dissolved ;
“Dissolved were the clouds into water !
The mountains melted at the presence of God,” [Israel.
Sinai itself, at the presence of the God of 9 A liberal rain, O God, thou pouredst out,
And thy weary heritage thou didst support.
10 As to thy food, they dwelt amidst it ;
Thou preparedst in thy goodness for the poor.
11 The Lord God hath now given the word,
And female choirs joyfully publish it.
12 The kings of the armies have fled—fled,
And the families at home share the spoil.
13 When ye lie down within your own boundaries [with silver,
Ye shall be as the wings of a dove covered
And whose pinions are streaked with gold.
14 The Almighty, having scattered those kings,
Hath by this turned death-shade to splen-dour.

as to the victory of David ; the effect of which would be, the release of captive Israelites, and the flight of the rebellious into the deserts for safety.

8. Dissolved were] These two lines are added from Judg. v. 4, 5, from which the first and last lines are evidently quoted. The seventh verse begins the second part of the psalm.

9. A liberal rain] This refers to the manna, which God is figuratively said to rain down, Exod. xvi. 4 ; Ps. lxxviii. 23, 24.—Thy weary heritage] That is, the people of Israel, Deut. ix. 29 ; Psalm xxviii. 9, and xciv. 5.

10. As to thy food] The ambiguity of the word חַיִּים has occasioned various renderings of this line. The term means, that which gives strength, the means of support, or food, Judg. vi. 4, and xvii. 10, and compare Neh. ix. 6. There is then a reference, not only to the manna, but to the quails, which God brought in abundance round the camp, Exod. xvi. 13 ; Numb. xi. 31. Thus he prepared in his goodness for the poor.

11—14. The Lord God hath] From this to the fourteenth verse contains the third part of the psalm. Having adverted to the goodness of God in saving Israel from Egypt, and supporting them in the desert, the psalmist now introduces God's recent appearance in favour of his people, in granting them success and victory over their enemies.—The word] That is, the occasion of this song, or the matter of it, the same as Ps. xl. 3.—Female choirs] It is known to have been the custom for women to go out to meet the men returning victorious, and celebrate their achievements, Exod. xvi. 20 ; Judg. xi. 34 ; and 1 Sam. xviii. 6.

12. Families at home] This verse contains the song of praise which the women sung. Compare Numb. xxxi. and 1 Sam. xxx. 18—25.

13. Own boundaries] There is no authority for rendering ‘between the pots.’ No one of the old translators has so rendered ; see them. The psalmist notices the honour and glory which follow the conquerors. When repassing within their own territories, they should be as beautiful as an eastern dove, displaying its rich and variegated plumage. There may be an allusion to the silver and gold, splendid armour and other things which they had obtained.

14. Hath by this] In this verse the same subject is continued and illustrated by a new image. Death-shade] generally denotes affliction, public or private calamity ; and here it denotes the state of the Israelites before the victory.

- An excellent mount is mount Bashan ; 15
A very high mount is mount Bashan.
Why are ye jealous, ye high mountains, 16
Of the mount which God desireth for his abode ?
Yea, Jehovah will dwell there for ever.
The chariots of God are myriads ; 17
Thousands of myriads of happy angels ;
The Lord is among them in the holy place
as at Sinai.
Thou hast ascended on high— 18
Thou hast led a multitude of captives ;
Thou hast distributed gifts among men ;
Yea, even among the rebellious.
Among whom thou, O God, Jah, dwellest.
Blessed be Jehovah from day to day ! 19
When oppressed, this God is our salvation :
This God to us is the God of salvation ; 20
For to Jehovah we owe our escapes from death. [mies,
But God hath smitten the head of his ene- 21
The hairy crowns of those who went on in their guilt. [Bashan,
Jehovah said, I will bring the enemy from 22
And from the deep shores of the sea ;
That thou mayest dip thy foot in the blood 23
of thy foes,

The Chaldee and Theodotion either read צְלִימִית, or considered צְלִימִית synonymous. The Arabic sense is given to צָלַן, which in the fourth conjugation signifies, to make joyful. See Dathe.

15—18. An excellent mount] From this to the 18th verse forms the fourth part of the psalm.

16. Ye jealous] The verb צָרַד occurs only here, and the sense of leaping is arbitrary, none of the ancients so rendering, except the Chaldee. In the Arabic it denotes, ‘to look with envy, to be jealous.’ This suits the connexion and design. To say that other mountains envied Zion, is to inform us, that no other mountain possessed such honour. As the procession of the ark was now advancing towards Zion, this comparison could not fail also to remind the hearers, that the God of Zion was high and glorious above all gods.

17. The chariots of God] Jehovah is described as a king at the head of his hosts ; and chariots and horses are mentioned to complete the metaphor. Compare 2 Kings ii. 10, 11, and vi. 17. His hosts and chariots are the holy angels, the ministers of his providence ; and the number of these is beyond computation. They are myriads ; thousands of myriads, &c.—Of happy angels] Hebrew, ‘of tranquil or happy ones ;’ which does not apply to the Israelites, but, from what precedes and follows, must signify the angels.—The Lord is] It was the opinion of the Jews, that the angels of God attended him at Sinai, when he gave the law ; and Stephen, Acts vii. 53, and Paul, Gal. iii. 19, and Heb. ii. 2, confirm this opinion.

18. Hast ascended] The procession is now supposed to have reached mount Zion, and the ark is now brought within the holy place. Compare Ps. xlvii. 6, and 2 Sam. vi. 15.—Lead a multitude] Hebrew, ‘captived a captivity ;’ which Ainsworth explains, a prey of people taken in war. Compare Judg. v. 12, Numb. xxi. 1.—Among men] The apostle applies this verse to the ascension of our Lord, and to the distribution of the gifts of the Spirit among his people, Eph. iv. 8.

19—23. These verses contain the sixth part of the psalm ; which consists of praise to God.—When oppressed] De Dieu considers וְכִי understood, as it often is, and the sense is, should one oppress us, or as rendered ‘when oppressed.’

20. To Jehovah we owe] This line proves that God had been their salvation.

And the tongue of thy dogs lick up their share.

- 24 Thy processions, O God, men behold;
The processions of my God, my king, to the sanctuary!
- 25 The singers precede—the musicians follow,
Among virgins playing on timbrels.
- 26 In distinct bands they bless God;
The offspring of Israel bless 'Jehovah.'
- 27 Here, Benjamin, the youngest, is their leader,
The princes of Judah their strength:
The princes of Zebulun—the princes of Naphtali.
- 28 Command, O God, thy strength;
Confirm what thou hast done for us. [Ilem,
- 29 Because of thy temple which is at Jerusa-
To thee let kings bring presents.
- 30 Rebuke the wild-beasts of the reeds,
The assembly of the mighty—the lords of nations,
Who tread on tiles of silver:
Scatter the people who delight in war.
- 31 Let ambassadors come from Egypt;
Let Cush hasten to give her hand to God.
- 32 Kingdoms of the earth, sing unto God,
Sing praises unto Jehovah; [heavens;
- 33 To him who rode of old on the highest Lo, he thundered with a mighty voice!
- 34 Ascribe strength to God who is over Israel;
His majesty and strength appear in the skies.
- 35 Awful is God in his 'sanctuary,' the God of Israel:
He giveth strength and might to his people:
Blessed be God!

24—27. We have in these verses the seventh part of this psalm, in which the order and pomp of the procession are described.

26. The offspring of] Hebrew, 'those from the fountain of Israel'; a metaphor for a progenitor: whose offspring are as the streams from a fountain. Compare Is. xlviii. 1, and Prov. v. 18. (v) MSS.

27. Here, Benjamin] Some think that David designedly mentions Judah and Benjamin, who dwelt in and around Jerusalem, and Zebulun and Naphtali, as being the most remote, and so the rest are included.

28—31. This is the eighth part of this psalm, in which the psalmist prays for future displays of the divine power and grace.—Command, O God] So all the ancient versions read.

30. Wild beasts of the reeds] This is our marginal version, which is the proper one. Innumerable lions wander about among the reeds and cypresses, on the borders of the rivers of Mesopotamia. The river Jordan was infested with them, Jerem. iv. 7, and xlix. 19. See Maundrel. Hence the wild beasts of the reeds may signify the Syrian kings, who often contended with David.—Of the mighty] For the text, see note, Fam. Bible.—Who tread on tiles] Schindler renders, 'Treading on pieces of silver, or on laminæ, plates or tiles of silver.' Every one knows what expensive luxury prevailed in the palaces of the oriental kings. The very floors were paved with silver, and to this the writer here alludes.

31. Let ambassadors] That is, let such be the effects of thy triumph, as to induce the Egyptians and Ethiopians to form alliance with thy people and to honour thee by presents, and by worshipping thee.

PSALM LXIX.

This ps'm is partly prophetic, containing some things which can only be applied to a suffering Redeemer. It might be composed during the short reign of Abalom.

For the chief musician upon Shushannim; a Psalm of David.

- SAVE me, O God, for waters suffocate me; 1
I sink in deep mire where no one can stand.
I am come into the deepest waters; 2
A flood hath now overwhelmed me.
I am weary with crying—parched is my 3 throat— [God.
Consumed mine eyes, while I wait for my More numerous than the hairs of my 4 head
Are they who hate me without a cause!
My false foes who would destroy me are powerful: [store.
What I never took away I am obliged to re-
O God, thou knowest what is my folly, 5
And my faults are not hid from thee.
Let not those, I pray, be ashamed, 6
Who look up to thee, Jehovah of hosts!
Let not those, I pray, be confounded,
Who seek thee, O God of Israel!
Truly for thy sake I bear reproach; 7
And for thy sake disgrace covereth my face.
A stranger am I become to my brethren; 8
An alien to my own mother's children.
Because the zeal of thy house eateth me up, 9
The reproaches of those who reproach thee
Have, therefore, fallen upon me. [fasting,
When I weep and humble my soul with 10
Even this is made matter of reproach:
When I clothe myself in sack-cloth, 11
Then I become to them a by-word.
They who sit at the gate talk against me; 12

32—35. This is the ninth part of the psalm, in which all kingdoms are invited to praise Jehovah. (v) Syr.

33. Who rode of old] There is in this verse a reference to the giving of the law, when God descended from the highest heavens, amidst the most awful thunder and lightning, Exod. xix. 16—29.

PSALM LXIX. 1. Suffocate me] Hebrew, 'have entered to my soul.' The metaphor is taken from a person who is drowning, whose life is nearly gone, which is effected by suffocation.

4. What I never] To oblige a man to restore when he had taken nothing was the greatest injustice, Exod. xxii. 1—5. Ainsworth observes, this was verified in Christ, who 'being in the form of God, thought it no robbery to be equal with God,' Phil. ii. 6, notwithstanding for witnessing himself to be the Son of God, he was put to death by the Jews, John xix. 7.

5. What is my folly] That is, thou knowest that I am not guilty of the sin with which mine enemies charge me.

8. An alien] Job was treated as if an alien, xix. 13; and Christ, of whom the Jews said, 'they knew not whence he was,' John ix. 29, nor did his brethren believe on him, John vii. 5.

9. The zeal of thy house] David loved the house of God, and was zealous in his worship, but Christ more so, to whom these words are applied, John ii. 15—17.—Fallen upon me] Those who opposed David were the wicked of the land, and so were those opposed to Christ. See Rom. xv. 3.

10—12. Any appearances of humiliation or piety offended David's enemies. So did the works and miracles of Christ.

- And drunkards make me their song. [vah ;
 13 But I address my prayer to thee, Jeho-
 To thee, O God, in an acceptable time :
 According to thy great mercy, hear me ;
 According to thy truth, grant me thy salvation. [sink ;
 14 Pull me out of the mire that I may not
 And rescue me from those who hate me,
 And save me from these deep waters.
 15 Let not the flood of waters overwhelm me ;
 Nor the vast deep swallow me up ;
 Nor the pit shut close its mouth upon me.
 16 Hear me, Jehovah, for excellent is thy kindness : [me.
 According to thy great compassion regard
 17 Hide not thy face from thy servant ;
 But in my distress speedily answer me.
 18 Draw near to my soul and redeem it ;
 On account of mine enemies, deliver me.
 19 Thou knowest the reproach cast upon me ;
 The shame and dishonour which I endure :
 Mine adversaries are all before thee.
 20 Reproach hath broken my heart,
 And I am ready to die through sickness.
 I looked for some to take pity, but not one !
 And for comforters, but I found them not.
 21 They gave me also hemlock with my food ;
 And in my thirst they gave me vinegar to
 drink.
 22 Their table shall be to them for a snare,
 And their feast-offerings for a trap :
 23 Their eyes shall be dim so that they cannot see ;
 And their loins be made continually to shake.
 24 Pour on them thine indignation,
 And let thy fierce anger seize them.
 25 Their habitations shall become desolate ;
 And in their tents shall there be no inhabitant.
 26 For they persecute him whom thou smitest,
 And 'add' grief to him whom thou wound-est.
 27 Thou givest them up to misery for iniquity ;
 And they shall not attain thy righteousness.
 28 They shall be blotted out of the record of the living ; [teous.
 And shall not be enrolled among the righ-

- But as to me, though humbled and af- 29
 flicted, [high !
 Thy salvation, O God, shall raise me on
 I will praise the name of God with a song ; 30
 I will magnify him with thanksgiving ;
 For this will be more acceptable to Jehovah, 31
 Than a full-horned and a full-hoofed steer.
 The afflicted shall see and rejoice ; 32
 And their hearts who seek God, shall be re-
 For Jehovah listeneth to the poor, [vived. 33
 And despiseth not those bound for his sake.

 For God will still save Zion, 35
 And build up the cities of Judah ; [it ;
 And again shall they dwell there and possess 36
 Yea, the seed of his servants shall inherit it,
 And they who love his name shall dwell in it.

PSALM LXX.

The psalmist implores divine aid against his enemies, and prays that the righteous may ever have cause to rejoice.

- Be pleased, O Jehovah, to deliver me : 1
 Haste, O Jehovah, to mine aid. [ther,
 They shall be ashamed and confounded toge- 2
 Who seek to take away my life : [founded,
 They shall be driven backward and con-
 Who wish evil unto me.
 They shall receive for their reward, shame, 3
 Who say concerning me, Aha ! Aha !
 But all those, who seek thee, 4
 Shall rejoice and be glad in thee :
 Those, who delight in thy salvation,
 Shall say, Be Jehovah ever magnified.
 When I am afflicted and needy, 5
 Then may Jehovah think on me.
 Thou art my helper and my deliverer ;
 Make no delay, O my God.

PSALM LXXI.

This psalm has no title, but was probably written by David. He expresses his confidence, and hope of final deliverance.

- In thee, O Jehovah, do I put my trust ; 1
 Let me never be put to confusion.
 In thy righteousness rescue and deliver me ; 2
 Incline to me thine ear, and save me.

13—21. To thee, O God] In this whole paragraph the royal sufferer describes his situation in the strongest language.

19. The reproach cast] Hebrew, 'my reproach' ; that is, the reproach which I suffer, the reproach cast on me.

21. Hemlock] This is now generally admitted to be the plant meant by זמור and not gall. It is often joined with wormwood, See Deut. xxix. 18, and note there. Vinegar, made of sour or unripe grapes. This verse is applied to the treatment our Lord received, Matt. xxvii. 34 ; John xix. 28—30.

22—28. This whole paragraph seems to refer peculiarly to the judgments which should fall on the Jews for their sins, and especially for their unbelief and rejection of our Lord. This has been strikingly fulfilled.

23. Eyes shall] They shall be so stupid as not to see the signs of the times, nor to acknowledge Messiah when he comes among them, Rom. xi. 10.

25. Their habitations] The apostle applies this to Judas, Acts ii. 20 ; and this is just, as he was one of that unbelieving and wicked generation, and the betrayer of our Lord.

26. Add grief] David means, they added to his affliction by their insults and reproaches ; so they did to our Lord, when his hour was come.

27. For iniquity] Having rejected all the overtures of divine mercy, God gave them up to a reprobate mind, and to the greatest calamities.

33. Those bound for] Literally, 'his bound ones' ; but as this is ambiguous, the rendering given is adopted.

34—36. These verses were probably added by some of the prophets during the captivity.

PSALM LXX. 1—5. For notes, see Ps. xl. 13—17, which is the same as this.

PSALM LXXI. 2. Thy righteousness] Display it in punishing mine enemies, and saving me from them.

- 3 Be thou to me a tower of strength,
To which I may continually resort.
Give command that I may be saved;
For my rock and my fortress art thou.
- 4 Deliver me, my God, from the hand of the
wicked,—
From the hand of the unjust oppressor :
- 5 For thou art my hope, O Lord ;
My trust, O Jehovah, from my youth.
- 6 On thee I have depended from the womb :
From my birth thou hast supported me ;
- 7 And my praise shall continually be of thee.
To the multitude I am like a wonder :
But thou art my strong refuge.
- 8 My mouth shall be filled with thy praise,
And with thy glory all the day long.
- 9 Cast me not off in the time of old age ;
When my strength faileth, forsake me not.
- 10 For mine enemies speak concerning me ;
And they who watch for my life consult to—
- 11 They say, God hath forsaken him ; [gether.
Pursue and take him, for there is no deliverer.
- 12 O God be not thou far from me ;
My God, hasten to mine assistance.
- 13 Let the adversaries of my life be ashamed ;
Be they confounded, and covered with dis-
And dishonour, who seek my hurt. [grace
- 14 For in thee I will continually hope,
And will yet praise thee more and more.
- 15 My mouth shall declare thy righteousness,
And thy salvation, all the day long :
Though I know not how to recount them.
- 16 I will go on through thy strength, Jehovah !
I will mention thy righteousness, thine only.
- 17 Thou, O God, hast taught me from my youth ;
And till now I have declared thy wondrous deeds.
- 18 When I am become old and grey-headed,
O God, forsake me not,—
Until I have showed thy power to this race ;
To every one who shall come, thy might.
- 19 For thy righteousness, O God, is very high ;
O God, who doest wonders, who is like
thee?

6. Supported me] The Arabic sense of נִסְּתִי, supported me, is parallel with the preceding line. The versions render 'my protector,' or he who protects me, which is nearly the sense adopted.

7. I am like] I am regarded as a prodigy, so many and so unusual have been my sufferings and deliverances.

14. For in thee] The words supplied seem necessary.—Yet praise thee] Hebrew is, 'I will add to all thy praise.'

15. How to recount them] Thy righteous acts and thy deliverances I am not able fully to declare. See note, Heb. Bib. and compare Ps. xl. 6.

16. I will go on] Ainsworth explains, 'I will enter into this work of praising God.'

18. Until I have] He wishes to live to instruct both the present race and all posterity, in the righteous and mighty deeds of Jehovah.

20. Made me experience] So the verb often signifies, and few men ever experienced more severe trials than David, but out of them all, the Lord delivered him.

- Though thou hast made me experience 20
Many and grievous troubles,
Yet thou art wont to revive me again,
And again raise me from the depths of the
earth.
- My greatness thou wilt yet increase, 21
And wilt comfort me on every side.
- I will praise thy truth on the psaltery ; 22
I will sing to thee, my God, on the harp,
O thou, the Holy One of Israel.
- My lips shall rejoice when I sing to thee, 23
And my soul, which thou hast redeemed.
- My tongue shall all the day talk of thy 24
justice :
For ashamed—for confounded shall they be,
Who seek my hurt.

PSALM LXXII.

No author is mentioned, but this psalm was probably composed by David or Asaph, after Solomon was anointed to be king over Israel; and while referring to him it may also be regarded as a prophecy of the Messiah.

For Solomon.

- GIVE to the king thy judgments, O God, 1
And thy righteousness to the king's son.
He shall judge the people with righteousness, 2
And thine afflicted with equity :
To the people let the mountains bring peace, 3
And the hills proclaim his acts of righteousness. [ple ;
- For he shall judge the afflicted of the peo- 4
He shall save the children of the needy,
And shall break in pieces the oppressor.
- He shall 'endure' as long as the sun, 5
And like the moon through all generations.
- He shall be like rain on the shorn meadow ; 6
Like copious showers which water the earth.
- In his days 'righteousness' shall flourish ; 7
And peace abound, till the moon be no more.
- He shall have dominion from sea to sea. 8
And from the river to the ends of the earth.
- The people of the desert to him shall bow 9
down,
And his enemies shall lick the dust.
- Kings of Tarshish and the isles shall bring 10
presents ;

PSALM LXXII. 1. King's son] Messiah was to spring from the loins of David.

2. Thine afflicted] Ainsworth unites two senses of the term, 'thy poor afflicted;' perhaps those persecuted for his sake are intended.

3. To the people] It was, and still is, common in the East to announce good or bad news from the tops of mountains and other eminences, Kings iii. 28.

5. He shall endure] The context seems to require this reading of the Sept.

6—8. Sea to sea] This refers to the final triumph of Messiah over all nations. Compare Zech. ix. 9, 10.

7 (v) Versions.

9. The people of the desert] The wild Arabs shall be brought to own his authority. So they were, though since they have apostatized, and followed the false prophet.—

Lick the dust] This denotes prostration before him, as is the eastern custom; so that his enemies shall submit themselves.

10. Kings of Tarshish] See note, 1 Kings x. 22. Mi-

- Kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts ;
 11 Yea, all kings to him shall bow down ;
 And all the nations shall serve him.
 12 For the needy who crieth, he shall deliver ;
 And the afflicted, who hath none to help him.
 13 The weak and the needy he shall spare,
 And the lives of the needy he shall preserve. [them,
 14 From deceit and violence he shall redeem
 And their blood shall be precious in his sight.
 15 And he shall live, and the gold of Sheba shall be given to him ;
 And continually shall men pray for him,
 And every day shall they praise him.
 16 Abundance of corn shall be on the ground ;
 On mountain-tops its crops shall shake as Lebanon ; [earth.
 And citizens shall flourish as the grass of the 17 His name shall endure for ever !
 His name shall continue like the sun !
 "All the tribes of the earth" shall be blessed in him,
 And all nations shall call him blessed.
 18 Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel,
 Who alone doeth wonderful deeds ;
 Blessed be his glorious name for ever :
 Be the whole earth filled with his glory ;
 Amen—and Amen.
 The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended.

PSALM LXXIII.

Asaph was perplexed with the prosperity of the wicked, but learnt not to envy them, as they would soon be cut off. This psalm begins the third book according to the division of the Jews.

A Psalm of Asaph.

- 1 TRULY God is good to Israel—
 To those who are pure of heart.

Michaelis renders, 'kings of Spain, and of the dwellings of Japhet.' Compare Gen. x. 4.—Sheba and Seba] Arabia and Africa or Ethiopia. Compare Gen. x. 7 ; 1 Kings x. 1—10 ; Matt. xii. 41.

12—14. For the needy] Such have ever formed the chief part of the church of God.—And their blood] That is their death, meaning that he regardeth their life, and will not easily suffer them to be killed, for that it is precious and dear unto him, Acts xx. 24. See Ps. cxvi. 15.

15. He shall live] May there be a reference to the resurrection of our Lord ? Or may the prophecy refer to the perpetuity of his life and reign ?—Shall men pray] For his success, the establishment and extension of his kingdom.

16. Abundance of corn] Both in the Chaldee and Arabic the word denotes 'diffusion, abundance,' and this seems most apposite.

17. Shall be blessed] Compare Gen. xxii. 18, with xii. 3. For raising up this king, Jehovah is praised in the closing verses.

20. The prayers] The opinion of Michaelis and others is probable in itself, that this is the end of the first collection of Psalms, which was made probably under Solomon for the service of the temple ; and that the second collection was made much later, perhaps under Hezekiah, (see Prov. xxv. 1,) though some of them as late as the Babylonish captivity, as Ps. lxxix. and cxxxvii.

PSALM LXXIII. 1—3. Truly God] In giving them his good land, and his good and holy laws.

4. For they have] Hebrew, 'no writhings, or contortions,' the effect is put for the cause.—But sound] This version

- But as to me, my feet were ready to slide ; 2
 My steps were almost tottering,
 While I envied the madly profane. 3
 And saw the prosperity of the wicked.
 For they have no painful diseases ; 4
 But sound and firm is their strength.
 The misery of other men they do not experience ; 5
 Nor, like other men, are they afflicted.
 Hence pride encompasseth them as a chain ; 6
 And as a garment, violence covereth them.
 From within issue their 'iniquities ;' 7
 The designs of the heart burst forth.
 They scoff and speak wickedly ; 8
 Of oppression they speak haughtily.
 They set their mouths against the heavens, 9
 And their tongue attacks all on earth.
 'My' people, therefore, turn aside hither, 10
 That they may 'find' water in abundance,
 And they say, How can God know ? 11
 And is there knowledge in the Most High ?
 Behold, these are the ungodly, 12
 Yet they enjoy continued prosperity ;
 They increase in riches and power.
 Truly in vain have I cleansed my heart, 13
 And washed my hands in proof of innocence :
 For all the day long I am afflicted, 14
 And I am chastened every morning.
 If I should speak and talk like these, 15
 Behold ! I should then deal deceitfully
 With the generation of thy children.
 Yet, when I studied to know this matter, 16
 It appeared too difficult for me,
 Until I entered the sanctuary of God, 17
 And learned to consider their latter end.
 Surely thou settest them on slippery ground ; 18
 Thou castest them into utter destruction.
 How suddenly are they brought to desolation ! 19 arises by reading למר with Mærlus and one manuscript, of which Lowth and others approve. The whole connexion proves, that the psalmist is not speaking of the death of wicked men, but of their prosperity in life.

6. Encompasseth] Compare Prov. i. 9, and Cant. iv. 9. This is a metaphorical allusion to the rich collars or chains worn about the necks of great personages.

7. From within] Hebrew, 'midriff, or pericardium,' which is used metaphorically for the mind, as heart is in the next line. (v) The versions.

8. They scoff] So, De Dieu from the Chaldee and Syriac.

9. Attacks all] Literally, 'their tongue marcheth, &c.' like plunderers, attacking every one they meet.

10. My people] So the psalmist calls the Israelites, who, from seeing the prosperity of the wicked heathens, were tempted to doubt the providence of God. (v) The versions.

11. And they say] This is the language of those scoffers and prosperous sinners mentioned in the preceding verses.

12. Continued] The term עולם does not occur in the sense of the world, in the book of Psalms. Its general signification is duration, and hence eternity.

13. Truly in vain] Here an Israelite is introduced as lamenting, that though he had endeavoured to keep himself pure, yet he was afflicted.

15. Deal deceitfully] I should betray the cause of religion, and support their impiety.

18. Surely thou settest] The psalmist, instructed from above, sees the wicked, amidst all their prosperity, falling and utterly perishing.

By calamities they are utterly consumed !
 20 Like to a dream after one awaketh,
 So wilt thou, Jehovah, when thou risest up,
 Destroy their shadowy grandeur.
 21 When my heart was vexed, and my reins pierced,
 22 I also was stupid and understood not :
 I was like the brute beasts before thee.
 23 Yet have I ever been with thee ;
 Thy right hand hath held me up.
 24 By thy counsel thou wilt still guide me,
 And at last wilt receive me to glory.
 25 Whom have I in the heavens but thee ?
 Nor is there one on earth I desire besides 26 Although my flesh and my heart fail, [thee.
 Yet the support of my heart and my portion shall God be for ever. [rish !
 27 For lo, they who depart from thee shall pe-
 All who revolt from thee shall be destroyed !
 28 But it is good for me to draw near to God :
 In Jehovah I have put my trust,
 That I may yet declare all his doings
 "In the gates of the daughter of Zion."

PSALM LXXIV.

The desolation of the temple is lamented, and prayer offered for God's favour. This psalm was probably composed during the captivity.

A Psalm of Asaph.

1 WHY hast thou, O God, cast us off ?
 Shall thine anger smoke for ever,
 Against the flock of thine own pasture ?
 2 Remember thine own assembly,
 Whom thou didst purchase of old ;
 Thy chosen heritage, which thou didst redeem : [dwell.
 This mount Zion where thou didst once
 3 Hasten thy steps to these complete desolations ;
 Every thing in thy sanctuary, the enemy hath destroyed.
 4 Thy foes roar, where thy set feasts were kept :

20. When thou risest up] In judgment. Shadowy grandeur—All their riches, honours, and enjoyments are but as the image or shadow ; and like these they flee away.

21. Was stupid] That is, before he was instructed in the sanctuary.

23. Ever been with thee] He wonders, therefore, that he had not before understood this subject.

25. In the heavens] God was the object of his supreme delight, and he might well conclude that God would be his portion for ever.

28. But it is good] Nearness to God is my felicity. This is a fine contrast with the preceding verse. On the authority of the versions the last line is added, which makes a suitable close.

PSALM LXXIV. 2. Thine own assembly] The word signifies the people collected into a body politic.

4. Set-feasts] During the seasons when they should have been kept, the enemy was exulting.—Their own symbols] That is, of idolatry. They had set up the images of their gods, and these were signs of the victory they had obtained.

5, 6. As men are seen] Hebrew, 'as it is known.' The verb is used impersonally and collectively. Compare Jer. xlv. 22, 23.

Their own symbols they have set up for signs !

As men are seen with uplifted axes, 5
 Cutting down the thick wood ;
 So the whole carved work of thy temple, 6
 With chisel and mallet, they have hewed
 To thy sanctuary they have set fire ! [down. 7
 The dwelling place of thy name they profaned,

By levelling it even with the ground.
 They said in their hearts, Let us wholly de- 8
 stroy them ; [land.

Let us abolish" all God's set feasts in the
 Our own sacred rites we see not : 9
 Nor is there any prophet among us ;
 Any who knoweth how long this shall be.

How long, O God, shall the foe reproach ? 10
 Shall the enemy for ever blaspheme thy
 Why hast thou withdrawn thy hand ? [name ? 11
 Pluck thy right hand from thy bosom.

For thou, O God, art "our" king from of old, 12
 Who workest salvation amidst the earth.

By thy strength thou didst divide the sea ; 13
 The heads of sea monsters thou brakest in the waters ;

The heads of crocodiles thou didst crush ; 14
 And gavest food for the people in the desert.

Thou madest the fountain and torrent burst 15
 Thou didst dry up mighty rivers ! [forth !
 Thine is the day—thine also is the night : 16
 Thou didst prepare the stars and the sun !

Thou fixedst all the boundaries of the earth ! 17
 Summer and winter, thou madest them.

Remember, Jehovah, that the enemy hath 18
 reproached ; [name.

That a foolish people have blasphemed thy Deliver not thy turtle-dove to the bird of 19
 prey :

Forget not for ever thine afflicted people.

Have respect to "thine own" covenant ; 20

For the obscure parts of the land
 Are full of the haunts of violence.

7. Of thy name] That is, the place where thy name was wont to be invoked and celebrated.

8. Let us abolish] The word is most commonly used in reference to the festivals, which God commanded the Israelites to keep ; so that it is applied to the whole of any such festival, Lam. i. 4 ; Hos. ix. 5.

9. Sacred rites] So Dathe, and the term אֵימָה is used in this sense respecting circumcision, Gen. xvii. 18, and respecting the sabbath, Exod. xxxi. 13, 17.—We see not] That is, they are no longer observed.

11. Pluck thy] That is, exert thy powerful hand to save us.

13. Heads of] That is, Pharaoh and his hosts ; who were called in this verse crocodiles, which are known to inhabit the Nile. Compare Job xli. 1, and note.

16. The stars] As מִזְרֵה denotes a luminary, and is distinguished from the sun, it seems used here collectively for the other luminaries, the moon and stars.

19. Bird of prey] The hawk, or the eagle, the natural enemies of the dove. The simile is beautiful. Compare xi. 1.

20. Thine own] Made with our fathers, as the Chaldee explains it.—The obscure parts] That is, all the lurking holes were occupied by lawless banditti, who attacked and plundered wherever they could.

- 21 O let not the humbled return ashamed ;
But let the poor and needy praise thy name !
22 Arise, O God ; plead thine own cause ;
Remember how the foolish daily reproach thee.
23 Forget not the noise of thine adversaries ;
The continually increasing tumult of thy foes.

PSALM LXXV.

If this psalm were composed by Asaph, it must have been for David in the early part of his reign.

To the chief musician Al-taschith ; a Psalm or Song of Asaph.

- 1 WE praise thee, O God,—we give thanks !
"We invoke" thy name, we declare thy wonders !
2 Since I obtained a convenient season,
I have judged with integrity.
3 The land, with its inhabitants, was dissolved ;
But its pillars I have re-established.
4 To profane boasters I said, Boast not ;
And to the wicked, Lift not up the horn :
5 Lift not up your horn on high ;
Nor speak with a stiffened neck :
6 For neither from the east, nor from the west,
Nor from the south, cometh advancement :
7 But God himself is the judge ;
Who humbleth one, and exalteth another.
8 For in the hand of Jehovah there is a cup,
And it is full of red, mixed wine,
He will pour it out "here and there ;"
Yea, its very dregs he will squeeze out,
And all the wicked of the land shall drink.
9 But I shall "joyfully exult" for ever,
And sing praises to the God of Jacob.
10 All the horns of the wicked he will cut off ;
But the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

PSALM LXXVI.

This is a psalm of thanksgiving for victory over enemies, probably composed at the same time as the forty-sixth.

To the chief musician on Neginoth ; a Psalm or Song of Asaph.

- 1 God is known in Judah ;
Great is his name in Israel.
2 In Salem is his tabernacle,
And his dwelling-place in Zion.

21. Humbled return] Let them not return from a throne of grace as if repulsed, but let them find mercy in thy sight.

23. Increasing tumult] The meaning is, their insolence and oppression were ever increasing.

PSALM LXXV. 1. We invoke thy] So the versions, of which the best critics approve.

2. A convenient season] Not one of the ancient versions render 'congregation,' but all refer it to a proper time.

3. Was dissolved] In the latter part of Saul's reign, and during the war between David and the house of Saul, the country must have suffered greatly. By supporting and enforcing the law, David re-established order.

4. Mixed wine] Wine of greater strength ; for so mixed wine denotes. Here the cup and the wine in it represent the just judgments of God. (a) Versions.

9. (v) Sept. Syr.

PSALM LXXVI. *2. Salem] It is probable that this name

- There broke he the winged arrows, 3
The shield and sword, the weapons of war.
Thou, Zion, art more glorious and ex- 4
cellent

Than the mountains stored with prey.
The stout-hearted are spoiled—they sleep 5
their sleep, [hands.

Nor did any of the men of might find their
At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, 6
The horseman and horse sunk asleep.

Thou, thou, Jehovah, art to be feared : 7
And who can stand before thee when once angry ? [heard ;

From heaven thou madest thy sentence 8
The earth feared—and was still :

When God arose to execute judgment, 9
To save all the afflicted in the land.

Surely the wrath of men shall gain thee 10
praise ; [strain !

The remainder of their wrath thou wilt re-
Vow and perform to Jehovah your God ; 11

Let all that are round about him

Bring presents to him who ought to be feared.

He controlleth the spirit of princes ; 12

He is terrible to the kings of the earth !

PSALM LXXVII.

This psalmist laments the afflicted state of Israel, and calls to mind God's former mercies, as a ground of hope and comfort. Probably composed during the captivity.

To the chief musician Jeduthun ; a Psalm of Asaph.

I CRY out to God with my voice : 1

With my voice to God that he may hear me.

In the day of my distress I seek "Jehovah !" 2

By night, my hand is constantly stretched
out ;

My soul refuseth to be comforted.

I remember God, and am troubled ; 3

I muse, and my spirit is overwhelmed.

Thou holdest mine eyes waking ; 4

I am so confounded that I cannot speak.

I consider the days of old ; 5

I call to mind the years of ancient times :

In the night "I commune" with my heart ; 6

I muse and my spirit thus searcheth :

Will God for ever cast us off ? 7

And will he be favourable no more ?

Is his kindness withdrawn for ever ? 8 was given, because here peace was to be made by the blood of the cross.

3. The winged-arrows] So Michaelis and Dathe, which is a metaphor often used by the poets of all nations. The Hebrew is, 'the wings of the bow.'

4. Stored with prey] So the Chaldee ; and the mountains stored with prey mean the kingdoms which had robbed and plundered others. Mount Zion had become more glorious than other mounts.

8. From heaven] God is represented, as first pronouncing the sentence on his enemies, and then arising to execute it.—The earth] The countries of the heathen feared, while that of Israel was quiet and tranquil.

PSALM LXXVII. 2. My hand] So Ainsworth and others render. Stretching out his hand continually, means imploring divine aid. (v) MSS.

6. I adopt the reading of Hare, which Bishop Lowth approves. (v) Versions.

- Shall his promise fail for evermore ?
 9 Hath God forgotten to be gracious ?
 Hath he in anger shut up his compassion ?
 10 Then I said, This is my sorrow ;
 The right hand of the Most High can change it.
 11 I will call to mind the works of Jehovah :
 Yea, I will call to mind thy wonders of old.
 12 On all thy works I will meditate,
 And I will talk of all thy doings.
 13 Thy way, O God, is in holiness ;
 Who so great a God as 'our' God ?
 14 'Thou art a God who doest wonders !
 Thou hast showed thy power among the nations.
 15 With thine arm thou redeemedst thy people,
 The sons of Jacob and of Joseph.
 16 The waters saw thee, O God,
 The waters saw thee and were afraid !
 Yea, the depths themselves were troubled.
 17 The clouds poured out water !
 The skies sent forth a sound !
 Thine arrows also flew abroad ! [vens !
 18 The sound of thy thunder was in the hea-
 Thy lightnings illumined the globe !
 The earth itself trembled and shook !
 19 On the sea was thy way, O Jehovah,
 And on the deep waters thy path ;
 Yet thy footsteps were not perceived.
 20 Thy people thou leadest like a flock,
 Under the conduct of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

This psalm contains a short history of the Israelites from their deliverance down to the time of David, and was designed to remind them that punishment invariably followed sin.

Maschil of Asaph.

- 1 GIVE ear, my people, to my instruction ;
 Incline your ears to the words of my mouth.
 2 My mouth I will open with wise remarks ;
 I will utter the memorable things of old,
 3 Which we have heard and known,
 And our fathers have related to us.
 4 These we will not hide from their children,
 But rehearse to the next generation,
 The praises of Jehovah and his power ;

10. Then I said] For the text and reasons, see note Fam. Bib.

13. In holiness] The meaning seems to be, that God's way of dealing with his people is holy and just, however mysterious and incomprehensible.

17. The depths] The gulfs of the Red sea.—The clouds] Compare Exod. xiv. 24, 25. All that follows refers to the passage of the Red sea, and all the other circumstances attendant on their journey.

PSALM LXXXVIII. 1. My instruction] This is the sense of the term here, and not law; as the next line proves ; for it is parallel 'to the words of his mouth.'

2. Wise remarks] The term parable is surely improper here. The word means any sentence or axiom, concise, and confined to a certain form or manner : as is evident from 1 Sam. xxiv. 14, and from many examples in the Proverbs of Solomon.

5. Testimony for Jacob] This refers to the injunction recorded, Deut. iv. 9, 10.

8. Like their fathers] They are often mentioned as a

And the wonderful work which he hath done. [cob.

For he established a testimony for Ja- 5
 And appointed a law for Israel ;
 Which he commanded our fathers
 To make known to their children ;
 That the next generation might know them ; 6
 The children who should be born and rise up ;
 That they should relate them to their children :
 That in God they might place their hope, 7
 And not forget his works, but keep his commands ;
 And might not be like their fathers, 8
 A stubborn and rebellious generation ;
 A generation, whose hearts were not stead-
 Nor their minds faithful unto God. [fast,
 The children of Ephraim, like armed bow- 9
 Who turn back in the day of battle, [men
 Kept not the covenant of their God, 10
 But refused to walk by his law.
 They forgot his works, 11
 And the wonders he had shown to them :
 The wonders he did in the sight of their 12
 fathers,

In the land of Egypt—in the field of Zoan.

He divided the sea that they might pass ; 13
 And he made the waters to stand as an heap.
 By day he led them by a cloud, 14
 And all the night by a fiery light.
 He rent the rocks in the wilderness, 15
 And gave them drink as from the great deep.
 He brought forth streams from the rock, 16
 And made waters run down like rivers !
 Yet they still sinned against him, 17
 Provoking the Most High in the desert.
 They even tempted God in their hearts, 18
 By asking food for their pleasure.
 Yea, they spoke against God, and said, 19
 Can God spread a table in the wilderness ?
 (Be it that he smote the rock— 20
 That waters flowed—that streams rushed
 Is he able also to give bread ? [forth)
 Can he provide flesh for his people ?
 When Jehovah heard this he was wroth ; 21
 So a fire was kindled against Jacob, stubborn and perverse race, Exod. xxxii. 9 ; Deut. xxxi. 27.

9—12. Children of Ephraim] Having noticed the stubbornness of those redeemed from Egypt, Asaph gives an instance of it in the conduct of the ten tribes, of which Ephraim was the head. They set up the calves at Dan and Bethel, and, in a great degree, turned to idols.

15. The rocks] There is a reference to the rock at Horeb, Exod. xvii. 6, and to that in Kadesh, Numb. xx. 1, 11. The smitten rock the apostle makes to be typical of our Lord, 1 Cor. x. 4.

18. For their pleasure] Not for their necessity ; God had provided for their real wants in giving them manna, Exod. xvi. 2.

19. Against God] The Sept. render, 'they spoke unworthily of God ;' that is, by doubting his power after so many proofs of it.

20. Be it that] The Hebrew particle an is used in a conditional sense, expressive of doubt, Exod. iv. 1 ; Dan. iv. 24 ; and this sense seems most suitable here.

And anger also arose against Israel ;
 22 Because they believed not in God,
 Nor trusted in his saving power.
 23 Yet, he had commanded the clouds above,
 And the doors of the heavens he had opened ; [food ;
 24 And had rained down on them manna for
 The corn of the heavens he had given to
 them ;
 25 Every one ate the bread of the mighty ;
 Provision he had sent them to the full.
 26 He removed the east wind from the heavens, [wind ;
 And by his power he brought in the south
 27 And he rained down flesh upon them as dust,
 And feathered fowls as the sand of the sea !
 28 He caused them to fall amidst their camp,
 Round about their habitations.
 29 So they ate and filled well themselves :
 For he brought them what they desired.
 30 Their desire was scarce satisfied ;
 Still was their meat in their mouths,
 31 When the wrath of God arose against them ;
 And he slew the fattest among them,
 And smote down the chosen of Israel.
 32 For all this they still sinned,
 And believed not his wondrous works.
 33 Hence he consumed their days in vanity.
 And their years in trouble.
 34 When he smote them, they sought him,
 And turned and inquired for God.
 35 Then they remembered that God was their rock ;
 And God, the Most High, their Redeemer.
 36 Yet they flattered him with their mouths,
 And with their tongues they lied unto him ;
 37 For their hearts were not upright with him,
 Nor were they steadfast in his covenant.
 38 But he, full of compassion, forgave their iniquity,
 And did not utterly destroy them ;
 He many a time turned away his anger,
 And did not stir up all his wrath :
 39 For he remembered they were but flesh ;
 A breath that passeth and returneth not.
 40 How oft did they provoke him in the desert !
 How oft did they grieve him in the wilderness !
 41 Yea, again and again, they tempted God,

And 'provoked' the Holy One of Israel.
 They remembered not the works of his 42
 hands,
 When he redeemed them from the enemy ;
 The miracles which he wrought in Egypt ; 43
 The wonders that he did in the field of Zoan !
 How he turned their rivers into blood, 44
 And their streams—so that they could not drink !
 He sent among them beetles, which de- 45
 voured them,
 And frogs which destroyed them.
 He gave also their produce to the devourer, 46
 And the fruits of their labour to the locust.
 He smote their vines with hail, 47
 And their sycamores with nipping frost.
 He gave up their cattle also to the hail, 48
 And their flocks to the hot thunder-bolt.
 He cast on them his fierce anger, 49
 Indignation, wrath, and fury ;
 By sending to them messengers of evils.
 He made a path for his anger ; 50
 He spared not themselves from death,
 But gave up their life to the pestilence.
 He smote all the first-born of Egypt, 51
 The prime of their strength, in the tents of Ham ! [sheep,
 But his own people he led forth like 52
 And like a flock guided them in the wilderness. [not ;
 He led them safely, so that they feared 53
 For the sea had overwhelmed their enemies.
 He brought them to his own hallowed border, 54
 That hilly country which his hand had acquired.
 He drove out the nations before them ; 55
 He also divided the land for an inheritance,
 And made the tribes of Israel dwell in their tents. [High,
 Yet they tempted and provoked God Most 56
 And did not keep his testimonies !
 Like their fathers they revolted, and dealt 57
 deceitfully ;
 They turned back like a bow unstrung.
 They provoked him by their high places, 58
 And roused him to jealousy by their idols.
 When God attended to this he was wroth, 59
 And so greatly abhorred Israel,
 That he forsook the tabernacle of Shiloh, 60
 The tent in which he dwelt among men.

25. Bread of the mighty] So the marginal version, and rightly ; for in no place does אֱלֵיִם signify angels. Bread of the best kind, delicious food, such as the rich and mighty eat.

26. Removed the east wind] So the Sept. Compare Num. xi. 31.

29. What they] Hebrew, 'their desire,' which is here and elsewhere used for the object of desire, as the verb suggests.

30—34. Their desire] Hebrew is, 'they were not estranged from their desire or the food desired.' See Note, Num. xi. 33.

36—39. Yet they] The two first of these verses show the insincerity and instability of the Jewish people ; and the two latter represent the mercy and kindness of God.

40. How oft] Ainsworth has observed, that we have an account of seventeen instances of their sinning and rebelling. See note Fam. Bib.

41. Provoked] So the Sept. Vulg. and Syr. render.

44—48. See on Exodus, seventh to the thirteenth chapters.

49. Messengers of evils] So Ainsworth renders, and explains by saying that Moses and Aaron may be meant, whom Jehovah sent to denounce the plagues before they came, and by their hand brought them on Egypt.

57. Their fathers] Who for their sins died in the wilderness.

- 61 So he gave up the ark, his strength, to captivity,
And his glory into the hand of the enemy.
- 62 He delivered up also his people to the sword,
And with his own heritage he was wroth.
- 63 Their young men the fire devoured,
And their virgins celebrated no marriage-feast.
- 64 Their priests fell by the sword,
And their widows made no lamentation.
- 65 But at length, Jehovah awoke as from sleep,
Like a mighty man exulting through wine,
- 66 And smote his enemies in the hinder parts;
And he put them to perpetual disgrace.
- 67 Moreover, he refused the tent of Joseph,
And chose not the tribe of Ephraim;
- 68 But chose the tribe of Judah,
The mount Zion which he loved:
- 69 And he built his sanctuary as a palace,
And, like the earth, hath established it for ever.
- 70 And he chose his servant David,
Whom he took from the sheepfolds;
- 71 From following nursing ewes, he brought him,
To feed his people, the offspring of Jacob,
And the sons of Israel his inheritance.
- 72 He fed them in the integrity of his heart,
And by the skill of his hand conducted them.

PSALM LXXIX.

This psalm is similar to the seventy-fourth, and the author deplores the destruction of the city and temple.

A Psalm of Asaph.

- 1 HEATHENS, O God, have invaded thy heritage;
They have polluted thy holy temple—
They have laid Jerusalem in heaps.
- 2 They have given the dead bodies of thy servants
For food to the fowls of the heavens;
The flesh of thy saints to the wild beasts.
- 3 Their blood they have shed as water around Jerusalem,
And there was no one ready to bury them.

61. Ark, his] See Ps. cxxxii. 8, and 1 Sam. iv. 11. Ark is supplied from the other psalm for the sake of perspicuity. The ark was called his strength and his glory, because he thence displayed his power and glory.

63. No marriage-feast] They remained unmarried. The versions either read differently, or derived from a different root, as they render, 'their virgins were not lamented, or did not lament.'

65, 66. Jehovah awoke] That is, rose up to avenge his people of their enemies.—Hinder parts] Hare thinks this alludes to the emeralds inflicted on the Philistines.

69. As a palace] He refers to the temple, which was the palace of the great king, and a place also of defence, both which the word may denote.

PSALM LXXIX. 1.—3. Heathens] This description of the attack and seizure of the city and temple, and the slaughter of the people, is forcible; and what must have excited the most painful reflections in the mind of survivors.

- We are a reproach to our neighbours,
A scorn and derision to those around us.
- How long, Jehovah, wilt thou be angry? 5
Shall thy jealousy for ever burn like fire?
Pour out thy wrath on nations who own thee 6
not; [name.
On the kingdoms which call not on thy
For they have devoured Jacob, 7
And his habitation have they laid waste.
Remember not against us former iniquities; 8
Let thy tender mercy speedily succour us:
For exceedingly low are we brought.
- Help us, O thou God of our salvation; 9
For the glory of thy name deliver us;
And for thy name's sake pardon our sins.
Why should heathens say, Where is their 10
God? [eyes,
Be thou known among heathens, before our
By avenging the shed-blood of thy servants.
Let the sigh of the prisoner come before 11
thee;
According to the greatness of thy power,
Preserve thou those appointed to death:
And return, seven-fold, into our neighbour's 12 bosom, [Jehovah.
The reproach which they have cast on thee,
So we thy people, and the flock of thy pas- 13
Will praise thee for ever; [ture,
Will rehearse thy praise through all generations.

PSALM LXXX.

The occasion of this psalm is not ascertained: some think it refers to the captivity of the ten tribes, and the low state of Judah.

To the chief musician upon Shushannoim Eduth; a Psalm of Asaph.

- GIVE ear, O Shepherd of Israel, 1
Who didst lead Joseph like a flock!
Thou who sittest on the cherub, shine forth. 2
Before Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh,
Stir up thy strength, and come to save us.
- Restore us, Jehovah, God of hosts; 3
Let thy face shine, and we shall be saved.
- How long, Jehovah, God of hosts, 4
Wilt thou be wroth at the prayer of thy people? [eat,
The bread of weeping thou hast made them 5
And given them tears in abundance to drink.

5.—7. How long] Under calamities the prophets often inquired, how long? That is, how long they were to continue; and they pleaded with God to turn from his anger.

9. Help us] So the Sept. which is evidently more suitable than the Masoretic division.

11. Appointed to death] Hebrew, 'songs of death;' which signifies obnoxious to, or destined to death. Compare 1 Sam. xx. 31; Ps. cii. 21, and 2 Thess. ii. 3.

PSALM LXXX. 1, 2. Joseph] Ainsworth supposes he is mentioned as chief, because the birth-right was taken from Reuben, and given to him, 1 Chron. v. 1, 2. Ps. lxxvii. 16, 21.

3. Restore us] This verse was most probably the chorus, and no doubt was originally the same in the three places.

4. Wroth at thee] Hebrew, 'wilt thou smoke;' that is, as if most highly incensed, and 'wilt not hear the prayer of thy people.'

5. The bread of weeping] Hammond supposes the bread of mourners is intended, Hos. ix. 4.

- 6 Thou hast made us a strife to our neighbours,
And our enemies hold us in derision.
- 7 Restore us, Jehovah, God of hosts;
Let thy face shine, and we shall be saved.
- 8 A vine thou didst bring out of Egypt;
Thou castedst out the nations, and plant-edst it.
- 9 Thou preparedst the ground for it;
It spread its roots and filled the land.
- 10 The mountains were covered with its shade,
And with its tendrils the lofty cedars.
- 11 Its boughs it extended to the sea,
And its branches to the great river.
- 12 Why hast thou broken down its fences
So that every passenger croppeth it?
- 13 The boar from the forest wasteth it,
And the wild beasts of the field devour it.
- 14 God of hosts, return, we beseech thee;
Look down from the heavens and see,
And again regard this vine,
- 15 For the plant which thy right hand planted,
And the branch which thyself madest strong,
- 16 Have been cut down and burned with fire;
Have perished at the rebuke of thy countenance! [man,
- 17 Let thy hand be over thy right-hand
Over the son of man, whom thyself madest strong.
- 18 So will we not revolt again from thee;
Revive us, and we will call on thy name.
- 19 Restore us, O Jehovah, God of hosts;
Let thy face shine, and we shall be saved.

PSALM LXXXI.

This psalm was composed for, and sung at the feast of trumpets, Lev. xxiii. 24. It is an exhortation to obedience and gratitude.

For the first musician on the Gittith; a Psalm of Asaph.

- I SING joyfully to God, our strength:
Sing aloud to the God of Jacob.

6. Strife to our] They contend among themselves for the privilege of plundering us.

8—16. A vine] This paragraph contains a most beautiful allegory, which every reader of taste must perceive, and easily understand. The vine signifies the Jewish people.

11. The sea, great river] The Mediterranean and Euphrates. These were the boundaries of the land promised to Abraham.

12. Its fences] Taken away thy protection, and exposed thy vineyard to the intrusion of every traveller.

13. The boar] This verse represents the kings of Assyria and Babylon, who like wild-beasts laid waste the country of Judea.

15. The plant] By the plant is meant the vine, and by the branch or stem, the royal house of David.

17. Be over thy right-hand man] If by the man, we understand the king, it is a prayer for his preservation.—Over the son of man] This is parallel to man in the former line.—Whom thyself] He had raised David, and established the kingly power in his hand, and engaged that from him should spring a just ruler over mankind, that is, Messiah. By virtue of this promise, he had made him strong, so that his seed could not fail, till the promise was fulfilled.

PSALM LXXXI. 3. Appointed time] I derive from

- Raise the psalm and strike the tabour,
The sweet sounding harp, and the lute.
- Blow the trumpet at the new moon,
At the appointed times on our solemn feast
For this was a statute for Israel, [day: 4
An ordinance of the God of Jacob.
- He ordained this for a testimony to Joseph, 5
When he came forth from the land of Egypt,
Where "he heard" a language "he knew not."
- I removed the burden from their shoul- 6
der; [tub.
Their hands were released from the mortar-
In distress ye called, and I rescued you: 7
I answered you in the secret place of thunder:
- I proved you at the waters of Meribah.
Hear, my people, while I testify to you. 8
O that Israel would hearken unto me!
Let there be no strange god among you; 9
Nor worship ye any foreign god:
I, Jehovah, am your God, 10
Who brought you out of the land of Egypt:
Open wide thy mouth, and I will fill it. 11
But my people hearkened not to my voice,
And Israel showed no regard unto me.
So I gave them up to the devices of their 12
heart,
And they walked after their own counsels.
O that my people had hearkened unto 13
me!
That Israel had walked in my ways!
Soon would I have humbled their enemies, 14
And turned my hand against their adversaries.
- The haters of Jehovah should have submit- 15
ted to them,
And their happy state should have been for ever.
- I would have fed them with the best wheat, 16
And with honey from the rock satisfied
"them."

וַיִּסַּד, he numbered, and hence a number, or specified time. The plural is adopted, because the sense requires it, and the Syr. so renders.

5. To Joseph] Jacob, Israel, and Joseph, are used for the whole race of Abraham.—Heard a] So the versions render; and the third person and not the first is evidently proper, as the next verse proves. To hear a language they knew not, signifies, that they were strangers in Egypt.

6. Burden] All their hard services in Egypt, Exod. i. 11. and v. 4—8.—Mortar-tub] Used for making bricks, Exod. i. 14.

7. Ye called] This seems to refer to their distressing situation, when Pharaoh with his host followed them, Exod. xiv. 10.—Answered you] The secret place means the cloud in which Jehovah dwelt, and which was dense and black to the Egyptians, and whence issued thunder to confound them, Exod. xiv. 19—25; Ps. lxxviii. 18, 19.

8. Testify to you] Make known what is my will, and what is your duty.

11. Open wide] Express your desires in prayer, and I will answer and satisfy them.

15. Their happy state] Hebrew, 'their time'; but it is used here for a happy time, state or condition, as Vatable and others have observed.

PSALM LXXXII.

God is introduced as reprehending the judges and pointing out their duty. When this psalm was composed is uncertain.

A Psalm of Asaph.

- 1 God standeth in the assembly of the mighty ;
Among the judges he judgeth, saying,
- 2 How long will ye judge unjustly,
And respect the persons of the wicked ?
- 3 Defend the poor and the fatherless :
Do justice to the afflicted and needy.
- 4 Deliver the poor and the destitute :
Rescue them from the hand of the wicked.
- 5 They know not, nor will understand ;
They walk on in darkness :
Hence all the foundations of the land totter.
- 6 I said, on your appointment, Ye are gods,
And all of you children of the Most High !
- 7 But ye shall die like other men,
And fall as well as they, O ye princes.
- 8 Arise, O God, judge the earth ;
For thou hast power over all nations.

PSALM LXXXIII.

Asaph implores divine aid against the enemies of Israel. This psalm was composed when the neighbouring kings combined against Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 1—12.

A Psalm or Song of Asaph.

- 1 KEEP not thou silence, O God ;
Be no longer mute, nor still, O God.
- 2 For lo ! thine enemies are tumultuous—
And they who hate thee lift up the head.
- 3 Against thy people they craftily form plots,
And consult together against thy hidden
- 4 Come, say they, let us cut them off, [ones].
So that they may be no more a nation ;
Nor even the name of Israel be remembered.
- 5 With one consent, they consult together :
Against thee they have confederated :
- 6 The tents of Edom and of the Ishmaelites—
Of Moab and of the Hagarenes—
- 7 Of Gebal, Ammon, and Amalek—
Of Philistia, with the inhabitants of Tyre.

PSALM LXXXII. 1. Judges] Compare Exod. xxi. 6, and xxii. 7, 8, 27, where the judges are called אֵלֹהִים gods, and whose office it was to judge men for him.

2. Respect the persons] See Deut. i. 17, and xvi. 19. This conduct was forbidden both in regard to the rich and the poor.

3. Defend] Or advocate the cause of the poor. As such persons were more exposed to oppression, it was the duty of upright magistrates to see that justice was strictly dispensed.

5. They know not] They were ignorant of their duty, nor properly acquainted with the law, Micah iii. 1; Jer. x. 21.—Foundations] That is, the laws which are the foundations of the state, Ps. xi. 3.

6. I said] Compare Exod. xxii. 27, and Prov. viii. 15, 16, 7. As well as they] Hebrew, 'as one of them,' compare Gen. xlix. 16; Judg. xvi. 7, 11.

PSALM LXXXIII. 3. Thy hidden ones] That is, those under thy peculiar protection, and are to thee, as hidden treasures.

6—8. Hagarenes] An Arabic tribe. They seem to have dwelt east of Gilead, 1 Chron. v. 10, 19, 20.—Gebal] A

PSALM LXXXIV.

The happiness of those who attend on divine worship is described. This psalm was probably composed by David, during Absalom's rebellion.

To the chief musician upon Gittith ; a Psalm for the sons of Korah.

- How lovely are thy tabernacles, Jehovah 1
of hosts ! [of Jehovah !
My soul longeth, yea, fainteth for the courts 2
My heart and flesh cry out for the living
God !
Yea, as the sparrow findeth a house, 3
And the swallow a nest for herself,
Where she may lay her young ;
So I seek thine altars, Jehovah of hosts,
My king and my God,
Happy they who dwell in thy house ! 4
They will be for ever praising thee.

region adjoining Tyre, figuratively put for the people inhabiting it.—An arm] That is, the chief strength.

9. As to Midian] See Numb. xxxi. 1—32; Judg. vii. 12, 22.—Sisera] Judg. iv. 13, and v. 19, 21.

10, 11. Endor] Compare Josh. vii. 11, with Judg. i. 27. Horeb and Zeeb] Judg. vii. 25.—Zebah] Judg. viii. 5—21.

12. God's habitations] Not the sanctuary and the city of Jerusalem only, but the whole land.

13. Whirling chaff] So Kimchi and others render ; and the sense is most suitable.

16. That they may] That those who are spared may seek and worship thee.

PSALM LXXXIV. 1. Tabernacles] The plural seems to be used to denote excellence. It is clear that the author refers to God's tabernacle only, as he afterwards mentions its courts.

2. My heart and flesh] That is, my whole person.

3. Yea, as the] Now as altars were used daily for the offerings of Israel, and the priests perpetually ministered at them, it is not probable that birds would build their nests there, or that they would be suffered to do so. By the version given this difficulty is removed.

- 5 Happy the men whose strength thou art ;
Strong confidence reigns in their heart.
- 6 Though they pass through a desolate valley,
Yet shall they drink from a fountain ;
Yea, the rain shall cover it with blessings.
- 7 They shall go from strength to strength,
Till each appeareth before God in Zion.
- 8 O Jehovah, God of hosts, hear my prayer :
Give ear unto me, O God of Jacob.
- 9 O God our shield, behold, and regard
The person of thine Anointed.
- 10 For better is a day in thy courts, than a thousand ! [of my God,
I had rather be a door-keeper in the house
Than dwell in the tents of the wicked.
- 11 For a sun and a shield is God Jehovah ;
Jehovah will give grace and glory :
No good thing will he withhold
From those who walk uprightly.
- 12 O Jehovah of hosts,
Happy the man who trusteth in thee !

PSALM LXXXV.

This psalm contains the prayer of the people in a state of affliction, for the restoration of their former prosperity. Some think that it was composed during their captivity ; and others during their distresses after their return.

To the chief musician ; a Psalm for the sons of Korah.

- 1 THOU, O Jehovah, wast favourable to thy
land ;
Thou didst restore the captivity of Jacob ;
- 2 Thou didst forgive the 'iniquities' of thy Thou didst cover all their sins ; [people ;
- 3 Thou didst restrain all thy wrath ;
Thou didst turn away thine hot anger.
- 4 Now restore us, O God of our salvation,
And turn away thy wrath from us.
- 5 Wilt thou, for ever, be angry with us ?
Wilt thou prolong thy wrath to all genera-
- 6 Wilt thou not revive us again, [tions ?
That thy people may rejoice in thee ?
- 7 Show us, O Jehovah, thy mercy,

5. Confidence reigns] Hebrew, 'ascents are in their heart,' as the Greek renders. It is used here figuratively. For what can the ascents, or elevations in the heart mean, but strong hope or confidence, as the Chaldee renders ?

6. Desolate valley] All the ancient versions suppose it an appellative, and render as if they had read בְּכָה.—They shall drink] So seven manuscripts read.—Yea, the rain] Some consider כִּימָה to mean the autumnal rain.

7. From strength] They shall increase in strength ; as 'from evil to evil,' Jerem. ix. 3, means, to increase in evil, or to grow more evil. Compare Rom. i. 17, and 2 Cor. iii. 18. Some think that חַיִּים signifies company, but this sense cannot be proper here, when the author is speaking of all the companies who went up to Jerusalem.

9. O God, our shield] So the Sept. and most render ; but Ainsworth and others consider our shield to be in the objective case : 'See thou, O God, our shield, and regard,' &c. Kings are called the shields, that is, the defenders and protectors of the earth, Ps. xlvii. 9. The usual version is adopted, because God is so commonly styled the shield of his people.

10. A door-keeper] Perform one of the lowest offices there.—Than dwell] That is, among the wicked, however distinguished or honoured.

11. Sun and a shield] The metaphors are bold, but beautiful. God is the source of spiritual light, and life, and safety to those who serve him.

And grant us thy salvation.

- I will hear what God Jehovah will speak. 8
- Truly he speaketh peace to his people—his saints,
But let them not turn again to folly. [him :
Surely his salvation is nigh to such as fear 9
He will make his glory to dwell in our land.
Mercy and truth are met together ; 10
Righteousness and peace have embraced !
Truth shall spring up from the earth, 11
And righteousness look down from the hea-
Yea, Jehovah shall give what is good, [vens ! 12
And our land shall yield its increase.
Righteousness shall walk before him, 13
And 'direct' in the way of his steps.

PSALM LXXXVI.

The psalmist, while he expresses his hope that God would hear him, solicits aid against his enemies. This psalm is referred to the time of Saul.

A Prayer of David.

- INCLINE thine ear, O Jehovah, and hear 1
For afflicted and destitute am I. [me ;
- Preserve my soul, for 'thou' art merciful ; 2
Save, my God, thy servant who trusteth in
Be gracious unto me, O Jehovah ; [thee. 3
For on thee do I daily call.
Make glad the soul of thy servant ; 4
For to thee, Lord, do I lift up my soul.
For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to for- 5
give, [thee.
And abundant in mercy to all who call on
Give ear, O Jehovah, to my prayer, 6
And attend unto my supplicating voice.
In the day of my distress I call on thee, 7
Because thou art wont to answer me.
Among the gods there is none like thee, 8
Jehovah,
Nor are there any works like thy works.
All the nations whom thou hast made 9
Shall come and worship thee, Jehovah,
And shall ascribe glory to thy name.

PSALM LXXXV. 1—3. Wast favourable] That is, in former times.—Captivity] The people taken captive. See Ps. lxxviii. 19, and note to Fam. Bib.

5—7. These expostulations show the distress of the people, and their earnest desires for deliverance.

8. I will hear] I will hear what God will speak from his holy oracle. And what follows in this verse contains the answer which he received.

9. He will make] So the Syriac translator. The sense is, he will restore his temple and worship, and especially fulfil his promise, by sending Messiah, who was to be the glory of Israel, as well as a light to lighten the gentiles.

10. Are met] If this be taken as denoting human virtues, it is a beautiful representation of their union in the same heart. Truth will be found where mercy and kindness dwell ; and peace is the associate and companion of righteousness. But if we apply them as displayed in the work of our Lord, they are still more proper. They met, they embraced both in his life and death.

PSALM LXXXVI. 2. Thou art merciful] This reading of the Syr. and 2 MSS. is much preferable to the text. Our margin, 'I am one, whom thou favorest.'

7. Art wont to] For this sense of the future, see Glasius and Dathe. He resolves to pray, from God's usual kindness in hearing him.

- 10 For great art thou and doest wonders !
Thou art the only true God !
- 11 Teach me, Jehovah, thy way,
That I may walk by thy truth :
Unite my heart to fear thy name.
- 12 I will praise thee, my God, with all my heart ;
I will glorify thy name for evermore.
- 13 For great has been thy mercy towards me ;
And thou hast rescued me from the lowest hades !
- 14 The proud, O God, are risen against me ;
And the assembly of the violent seek my
They have not set thee before them. [life :
- 15 But thou, Lord, art a God merciful and gracious, [truth.
Long-suffering, abundant in mercy and
- 16 O regard me, and be gracious unto me ;
Give thy strength unto thy servant,
And save the son of thy handmaid.
- 17 Show me a token for good, [ashamed,
That they who hate me may see and be
When thou, Jehovah, helpest and comfort-est me.

PSALM LXXXVII.

This psalm celebrates the union of the Gentiles with the church. Some suppose it written after the destruction of Sennacherib's host, 2 Chron. xxxii. 33.

A Psalm or Song for the Sons of Korah.

- 1 THE foundations of Zion are on holy

More than any of the dwellings of Jacob.

11. Unite my heart. The thoughts and desires of it. Let them all centre in revering thee.

14. Assembly of the Saul and his court.—Have not set They pay no regard to thy will.

17. A token for good Let thy favour to me be so evident, that my enemies may be put to shame, and desist from their attempts to destroy me.

PSALM LXXXVII. 1. Zion Is supplied from the following verse.—Holy mountains So all the mountains on which the city stood are called. The temple occupied part of mount Moriah, as well as Zion.

3. Glorious things Compare Is. lxii. 1, 7, and lxxv. 18, &c.; lxxvi. 10, &c.; Zech. i. 14, &c. ii. 4, 12, and viii. 3, &c. The prophets announced a period, when the church should be glorious, by the accession of the Gentiles.

4. Shall I mention God is introduced as here speaking, as is apparent from the pronoun, affixed to the participle, 'those knowing me, or acknowledging me.'—Rahab Most commentators understand Egypt to be meant. Compare Is. xix. 25, with Ps. lxxxix. 10. Egypt and Babylon were the greatest enemies of Israel; but these shall be changed, and become as it were natives of the land, associated together under one king, the son of David, our Lord.

This man was born there.

They shall sing as those leading the dance ; 7
Each shall say, all my springs are in thee.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

This psalm contains the prayer of a man greatly afflicted and ready to die. Some refer it to Hezekiah, and others to Uzziah.

A Song or Psalm for the sons of Korah ; to the chief musician upon Mahalath Leannoth, Maschil of He-man, the Ezrahite.

- O JEHOVAH, the God of my salvation ! 1
By day and by night I cry unto thee.
Let my prayer come before thee : 2
Incline thine ear to my cry.
For filled with troubles is my soul, 3
And my life approacheth unto hades. [pit :
I am counted with those going down to the 4
I am as a man that hath no strength left.
I am as one laid low among the dead ; 5
Like the slain who lie in the grave,
Whom thou no more rememberest,
And who are cut off by thy hand.
In the lowest pit thou hast placed me ; 6
In a most dark and deep abyss.
Thy wrath presseth hard upon me, 7
And with all thy waves thou afflictest me.
Thou hast put my acquaintance far from 8 me ; [tion.
- To them thou hast made me an abomina-
I am so shut up that I cannot come forth !
Mine eyes languish through my affliction.
- On thee, O Jehovah, do I call daily ; 9
Unto thee do I stretch out my hand.
Wilt thou show wonders to the dead ? 10
Shall the deceased arise and praise thee ?
Shall thy kindness be declared in the grave, 11
Or thy truth in the state of destruction ?
Shall thy wonders be known in darkness ? 12
Thy righteousness in the land of oblivion ?
Unto thee, O Jehovah, do I cry aloud ; 13
In the morning my prayer cometh to thee.
Why, O Jehovah, castest thou off my soul ? 14
Why hidest thou thy face from me ?

5. Yea, of Zion Having mentioned the adopted children of Zion, he now notices her own. Many of these should be peculiarly distinguished, and mentioned among all the nations with praise.

7. They shall sing The participle is used for the future, and refers to people understood in the preceding verse.—All my springs or fountains Fountains are used to denote abundance of all good, temporal and spiritual, Ps. xxxvi. 9, and Is. xii. 3. These words constitute the song which those born in Zion shall sing. See note, Heb. Bib.

PSALM LXXXVIII. 3. My life He was ready to die, as the next verse proves.

5. Laid low among The Arabic sense of $\psi\pi\tau$ is adopted, as it is difficult to fix any meaning to free in this connexion, and the next line supports this sense. See note, Heb. Bib.

6. In a most dark The plural nouns are used to denote the superlative degree. The Hebrew is, 'in darknesses, in abysses.'

7. Presseth hard So Symmachus rendered. See Parkhurst on the word.

10—12. Arise and praise thee That is, Shall they return to live on earth, and to serve thee ? These verses intimate, that after death no means will be employed to bring them

- 15 Afflicted I have been, and ready to die from my youth ;
I have borne thy terrors, and am distracted.
16 Thy fierce wrath hath gone over me ;
Thy terrors have wholly consumed me.
17 Like water, they daily surround me ;
They encompass me altogether.
18 Thou hast put far from me lover and friend,
And "withdrawn" from me my acquaintance.

PSALM LXXXIX.

This psalm contains, first, a prayer for the kingdom of David now oppressed, and the author pleads the promises made to David, 2 Sam. vii.; secondly, he contrasts with these promises the present state of the kingdom. It was probably written in the beginning of the captivity, when only the poor were left in the land.

Maschil of Ethan, the Ezrahite.

- 1 OF thy mercy, Jehovah, will I ever sing ;
With my mouth I will make known thy
From generation to generation. [truth,
2 For I said, Thy mercy shall ever endure ;
In the very heavens thou hast established thy truth.
3 I have made a covenant with my chosen ;
I have sworn unto David, my servant,
4 Thy seed I will establish for ever,
And build up thy throne to all generations.
5 Let the heavens praise thy wonders, Jehovah ;
The assembly of the holy ones, thy truth.
6 For who in the heavens is equal to Jehovah ?
Who like Jehovah among the sons of "God?"
7 A God most awful in the assembly of holy ones, [him.
And to be feared by all who are round about 8 Jehovah, God of hosts, who is like to thee ?
Powerful art thou, O Jehovah,
And thy faithfulness is round about thee.
9 Thou rulest the raging of the sea ;
When its billows rise, thou stillest them.
10 As one wounded, thou didst crush Rahab ;
With thy strong arm thou scatterest thy back to live on earth, nor will they have any opportunity of repenting, of knowing God's truth, or finding mercy.

15. Ready to die] I have lived a dying life. This is true of every man, but strikingly so of one, who passes his days in affliction.

PSALM LXXXIX. 3, 4. I have made] These verses are the words of Jehovah, 1 Chron. xvii. 11, and they have only their completion in our Lord, Luke i. 69, &c.

5. The assembly] The parallelism requires that we should thus render ; and the 'assembly of holy ones' is synonymous 'with the heavens,' meaning the angels.

6. The sons of God] So all the ancient versions render. Angels are called 'sons of God,' but we no where read of 'the sons of angels, or heavenly powers.'

7. Most awful] In his majesty, glory, and holiness, so that the highest angels are filled with profound awe in his presence.

8. His faithfulness] He brings evidences of God's power and faithfulness in what follows.

12. Tabor and Hermon] The Chaldee explains, the east and the west, because these two mountains were east and west of one another, Jos. xi. 5 ; Judg. iv. 6.

Tabor and Hermon sing aloud to thy name !
Mighty is thine arm—powerful is thy hand : 13
Thy right hand is highly exalted. [throne !
Justice and judgment are the basis of thy 14
Mercy and truth precede thy face. [sound !
Happy the people who know the joyful 15
In the light of thy countenance, Jehovah,
they walk ;

In thy name they exult all the day along, 16
And by thy righteousness they are exalted.
For thou wast the glory of 'our strength,' 17
And by thy favour our horn was exalted.
Verily, Jehovah was our protector, 18
And the holy one of Israel, our king.

Then thou didst speak in vision concern- 19
ing thy pious one, and saidst :

I have laid help on one that is mighty ;
I have exalted one chosen from the people :
I have found out David, my servant ; 20
With my holy oil I have anointed him !

Whom, with my own hand, I will establish. 21
And whom mine own arm shall strengthen.

The enemy shall never subdue him, 22
Nor the wicked person afflict him.

For I will beat down his foes before his face, 23
And I will smite down those who hate him.

My truth and my mercy shall be with him, 24
And in my name shall his horn be exalted.

His left hand I will place on the sea, 25
And his right hand on the rivers.

He shall cry to me, My father art thou ; 26
My God and the rock of my salvation.

I will even make him my first-born, 27
Higher than the kings of the earth.

My kindness I will ever preserve for him, 28
And my covenant with him shall be stedfast.

His seed I will for ever establish, 29
And his throne as the days of the heavens.

Should his children forsake my law, 30
And walk not after my judgments ;

Should they violate my statutes, 31
And observe not my commandments :

Then I will punish their transgression with 32
a rod,

And their iniquity with scourges ;

15. Joyful sound] That is, of the trumpet, which was blown to call the people to war, to the assemblies, and at their solemn feasts, and over their sacrifices ; and especially at the year of Jubilee. The 'joyful sound' refers to all God's institutions.

17. (v) Syr.

19—37. Then thou] In this paragraph the prophet returns to the covenant made with David, mentioned verses 3, 4 ; and he dwells on it and illustrates it as containing the ground of his hopes.

20. David my] David was an eminent type of our Lord, who is promised under this name, Jer. xxx. 9 ; Ezek. xxxiv. 23 ; and Hos. iii. 5.

27. My first-born] Kings and rulers are called from their office, 'sons of God,' Ps. lxxii. 6 ; and the first-born of these denotes the greatest, the chief. This passage is strictly true of him who was both David's son and Lord. Compare Col. ii. 15—18 ; Heb. i. 6 ; and Rev. i. 5.

30—33. The history of Israel shows how God punished the wicked kings, but he still preserved the house of David, until he came in whom all the promises were fulfilled.

- 33 But my kindness I will not take from him,
Nor will I suffer my faithfulness to fail.
- 34 My covenant I will not violate,
Nor alter what hath gone out of my lips.
- 35 I have once sworn by my own holiness,
That I would not lie unto David.
- 36 His seed shall endure for ever ;
And his throne before me, like the sun ;
- 37 Like the moon, it shall be for ever fixed ;
And like the faithful witness in the sky !
- 38 Yet now thou hast rejected and abhorred,
Thou art wroth with thine anointed.
- 39 Hast thou made void the covenant with thy servant ?
His crown thou hast profaned to the ground.
- 40 Thou hast broken down all his fences,
And his strong holds thou hast destroyed.
- 41 All who pass on the way plunder him ;
He is a reproach to his neighbours.
- 42 Thou hast exalted the right hand of his foes,
And hast caused all his enemies to rejoice.
- 43 Yea, thou hast turned the edge of his sword,
And made him unable to stand in battle.
- 44 Thou hast put an end to his glory,
And cast down his throne to the ground.
- 45 The days of his youth thou hast shortened,
And thou hast covered him with shame.
- 46 How long, Jehovah, wilt thou hide thyself ?
Shall thy wrath for ever burn like fire ?
- 47 Remember how short is my duration !
Wherefore hast thou made all men a vanity ?
- 48 What man shall live and not see death,
Or rescue his soul from the power of hades ?
- 49 Where, Jehovah, are thy former kindnesses,
Which in thy truth thou sworest to David ?
- 50 Remember, Jehovah, the reproach of thy "servant ;"
I carry in my bosom the taunts of many peoples !
- 51 Of thine enemies, O Jehovah, who reproach—
Who reproach the steps of thine anointed !
- 52 (Blessed for ever be Jehovah, Amen and Amen.)

37. Witness in the sky] He refers to the rainbow, which continues yet to be a witness of God's faithfulness to his word, Gen. ix. 9.

38—45. Yet now] If Hezekiah was the author, he contrasts his own circumstances with the magnificent promises made to David, and doubts whether God had not made void the covenant, because of the present calamitous state of the kingdom. In this paragraph we have a striking instance of what often occurs in the scriptures, that God is said to do, what he suffers to be done, what he does not prevent.

47. How short my] He now laments the shortness and vanity of life in its happiest circumstances. This is urged as a reason to excite the divine compassion.

50. (v) Syr. Chald. MSS.

PSALM XC. 3. But man] He refers to Gen. iii. 19, 'dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return.' He contrasts the brevity of man's life with God's eternal duration.

4. As one day] Or as yesterday which hath passed. Compare 2 Pet. iii. 8.—Watch-tide] That is, three hours.

5. Is suddenly changed] So our margin renders the verb ;

PSALM XC.

This psalm contains reflections on the shortness and miseries of life. If the title be correct, it might be written when the chief part of the Israelites had died for their sin.

A Prayer of Moses.

- THOU, O Lord, hast been a refuge for us, 1
From generation to generation.
Before the mountains were brought forth, 2
Or thou hadst formed the earth and the world, [God !
From eternity to eternity thou existest, O
But man thou turnest again to dust ; 3
For thou sayest, Return, ye sons of man.
For, in thy sight, a thousand years 4
Are but as one day when it is past ;
Or as a watch-tide of the night.
Thou carriest them away as with a flood ! 5
They are but like a sleep :
Like grass which is suddenly changed ; [eth,
Which in the morning springeth and grow- 6
But ere evening it is cut down and withered.
Thus are we consumed by thine anger, 7
And at thy wrath are filled with terror.
Thou testest our iniquities before thee ; 8
Our secret sins in the light of thy countenance.
Hence all our days pass away in thy wrath ; 9
We spend our years as a fleeting vapour :
The days of our life are seventy years ; 10
And if through vigour they are eighty years,
Yet is their boasted strength, labour and sorrow :
For it is soon cut off—and we fly away !
Yet who regardeth the power of thine anger ? 11
Or thy wrath with reverence becoming thee ?
So teach us to number our days, 12
That we may apply our hearts to wisdom.
Turn to us, Jehovah—how long ere this be ! 13
O be thou reconciled to thy servants.
Satisfy us early with thy mercy, 14
That we may rejoice and be glad all our days.
Make us glad according to the days of our 15
affliction ;
According to the years we have suffered evil.
Let thy work be shown to thy servants, 16
And thy glory unto their children.

and the word not only denotes the morning, but early, suddenly. This is explained in the next verse.

7. At thy wrath] Thy threatening, that we must die in the wilderness, and not enter the good land.

9. Fleeting vapour] The Chaldee, 'as the breath of the mouth in winter.' Compare James iv. 14.

10. And if through vigour] That is, of the natural constitution, some men reach eighty years, yet is their boasted strength attended with the infirmities and sorrows of old age, and soon it is cut off.

11. Regardeth] That is, in a proper manner. So Coverdale rendered.

13. Reconciled] 'Change thy mind in respect to thy servants,' which, as he is supposed to be angry, is 'to be reconciled.'

15. Suffered] Hebrew, seen ; but it is usual to say, to see, for to experience, to suffer, or to enjoy, according to the noun with which it is connected.

16. Thy glory] God's works of mercy are his glory, as they display his perfections.

17 Let thy favour, Jehovah our God, be upon us;
And the work of our hands do thou establish;
Yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.

PSALM XCI.

This beautiful psalm may have been composed by David: and there are parts of it, which make the supposition very probable. See ver. 14, and 16. In the Sept. Vulg. and Arab. it is called, a praise song of David.

1 SITTING under the covert of the Most High,— Lodging under the shade of the Almighty,—
2 I say, Jehovah is my refuge and my fortress;
My God, in him I put my trust.
3 Surely, he shall deliver thee
From the snare of the fowler,
And from all mischievous designs.
4 With his feathers he shall cover thee,
And under his wings thou shalt be safe.
5 His truth shall be thy shield and buckler;
Nor shalt thou fear the terror by night;
Nor the arrow that flieth by day;
6 Nor the pestilence that walketh in darkness;
Nor the destruction that wasteth at noon—
7 A thousand shall fall by thy side, [day!
And ten thousand on thy right hand:
But to thee, destruction shall not approach.
8 Thou shalt only behold with thine eyes,
And see the recompense of the wicked.
9 Because thou hast made Jehovah thy refuge,
Even the Most High, thy secure abode;
10 No evil shall befall thee,
Nor any plague come near thy dwelling.
11 For his angels he will charge concerning
To preserve thee in all thy ways. [thee,
12 They shall bear thee up in their hand,
Lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.
13 On the lion and adder thou shalt tread;
On the lion and dragon thou shalt trample.
14 Because he loveth me, I will deliver him;
I will set him on high, because he regardeth my name.
15 When he calleth on me, I will answer him;
I will be with him in trouble;

17. Let thy favour] Hebrew, 'pleasantness,' which is obviously used for benignity, kindness, or favour.

PSALM XCI. 1, 2. Sitting under] For the reason of this version, see note, Heb. Bib. It arises from varying the points, and so Symmachus rendered.

3. Snare of] A fowler represents any enemy, who tries to ensnare or ruin the pious man; and snare, the arts which he employs.—Mischievous designs] So the versions render.

4. With his feathers] A beautiful image, implying both affection and protection.

5—7. His truth] Defended by this, thou shalt not fear the terror by night; any unforeseen and unexpected calamities.—Arrow by day] Any disease or plague, Deut. xxxii. 23, 42.

9. Thy refuge] This is the conjectural reading of Merrick, which was approved by Lowth.

13. Lion and dragon] Instead of lion, the versions render serpent; but in the next line they render שׂוּרִי, lion. In our Lord's temptation, the former verses are, by the tempter, applied to him, Matt. iv. 6.

14. Because he] Here Jehovah is introduced as announcing

I will deliver him and honour him.
With long life I will satisfy him,
And show to him my salvation.

PSALM XCII.

This psalm contains an exhortation to praise God for the display of his power, wisdom, and goodness, in creation and providence.

A Psalm or Song for the Sabbath.

It is good to give thanks to Jehovah, 1
And to sing psalms to thy name, O Most High!
To declare thy kindness in the morning, 2
And thy faithfulness every evening;
On the ten-stringed instrument and on the 3
With the sweet melody of the harp. [lyre,
For thou, Jehovah, gladdenest me by thy 4
doings.
In the works of thy hands I will triumph.
How great are thy works, O Jehovah! 5
How very profound are thy counsels!
The stupid man never regardeth, 6
Nor doth the foolish man understand this,—
That when the wicked spring up as the herb- 7 age,
And all the workers of iniquity flourish;
It is that they may be cut down for ever!
And thou, Jehovah, art for ever exalted! 8
For lo, thine enemies, Jehovah! 9
For lo, thine enemies shall perish,
And all the workers of iniquity be scattered;
But my horn thou wilt exalt as that of the 10
rhinoceros;
"Thou wilt anoint" me with fresh oil.
Mine eye shall see the fall of mine enemies; 11
Mine ear shall hear of the destruction
Of the wicked, who rise up against me.
The righteous shall flourish as the palm- 12
tree;
He shall grow up like a cedar of Lebanon:
Planted in the house of Jehovah, 13
They shall flourish in the courts of our God!
In old age they shall still be fruitful; 14
Full of sap, and green shall they be:
To show, that Jehovah, my rock, is upright, 15
And that in him there is no unrighteousness.

ing his will respecting the pious man.—Set him on high] In a place of security.

PSALM XCII. 2. In the morning] The morning and evening sacrifices are often mentioned; and on the sabbath these were double; so should be our devotional exercises.

3. Sweet melody] Some think Higgaion means an instrument; but it was rather a well-known tune, to which many psalms were sung.

5. Thy counsels or designs] So the word is often rendered; and the psalmist uttered the same sentiment as the apostle, Rom. xi. 33; 'O the depth of the riches,' &c.

10. Rhinoceros] See notes, Numb. xxiii. 22, and Job xxxix. 9, &c.—Fresh oil] On feast days they were accustomed to anoint their heads with oil, Ps. xxiii. 5; and to use it as a medicine to increase their strength. Hence the sense is, thou wilt increase my strength, and give me occasions of rejoicing.

13. Planted] It would be in vain to seek for literal trees planted in, or perhaps near, the house of God. But still, when good persons, whose desire is to dwell in it for ever, Ps. xxiii. 6, xviii. 4, (compare Luke ii. 37,) have been just

PSALM XCIII.

God is praised as the king and defender of his own land.

- 1 JEHOVAH reigneth, clothed with majesty;
Clothed and begirt is Jehovah with strength:
The world is fixed, it cannot be moved.
- 2 Thy throne, Jehovah, was established of
From eternity thou existest. [old:]
- 3 The floods, O Jehovah, rise high,—
The floods raise high their voice;
The floods raise high their breakers:
- 4 Jehovah, on high, is mightier
Than the roaring of many waters,
Or the mighty billows of the sea.
- 5 Thy testimonies are most sure;
Holiness becometh thy house,
O Jehovah, to the remotest of ages!

PSALM XCIV.

This psalm contains ardent prayers that God would punish those wicked men who persecuted others. The versions style it a psalm of David.

- 1 O God Jehovah, who takest vengeance,
O God, who takest vengeance, shine forth.
- 2 Ascend on high, thou judge of the earth;
To the proud return a recompense.
- 3 O Jehovah! how long shall the wicked—
How long shall the wicked triumph?
- 4 Shall they utter and speak hard things—
Shall all the workers of iniquity boast?
- 5 Thy own people, Jehovah, they oppress;
And thine heritage, they also afflict.
- 6 The widow and the stranger they slay,
And they murder the fatherless.
- 7 Yet they say, Jehovah will not see;
The God of Jacob will not regard.
- 8 Be instructed, ye most stupid of peoples!
Ah! ye fools, when will ye be wise?
- 9 Shall not He, who planted the ear, hear?
Shall not He, who formed the eye, see?
- 10 Shall not He, who chastiseth nations, correct?
[ledge?] Hath not He, who teacheth man, know?
- 11 Jehovah knoweth the designs of men
That they are altogether vanity!
- 12 Happy the man whom thou, Jehovah, instructest,

before compared to trees, it is not very harsh to speak of these persons, as planted in that house, and flourishing there.

PSALM XCIII. 1. Clothed and begirt] Appears in the majesty of king of the universe, ready to do whatsoever he pleaseth.

4. Mightier] Compare Ps. xxix. 10. The comparison is forcible and impressive.

PSALM XCIV. 1. Shine forth] In mercy to us, and in terror to our enemies, Ps. lxxx. 2.

2. Ascend on high] To the judgment seat. So Ainsworth and others explain.

5. Thy own people.] The serious, the truly pious, who were Israelites indeed.

7. Will not see] It is probable, that many of them, being unbelievers, denied God's providence and interference in human affairs, as unworthy of his notice.

9—11. Shall not he] This is one of the most beautiful and convincing appeals to the common sense and conscience of men.—Planted] That is, made. So in Is. li. 16. —Designs of men] Paul quotes these words, 1 Cor. iii. 20. where we read the wise instead of men. And this reading

- And whom thou teachest out of thy law;
To give him rest in the days of adversity, 13
Till the pit be digged for the wicked:
For Jehovah will not forsake his people, 14
Nor desert his own inheritance.
For judgment in righteousness shall return, 15
And all the upright of heart shall follow it.
Who will rise up for me against evil- 16
doers? [iniquity?]
Who will stand up for me against workers of Unless Jehovah become my help, 17
Soon will my soul dwell in silence.
When I say, that my foot is tottering, 18
Let thy kindness, Jehovah, support me.
In the multitude of mine inward anxieties, 19
Let thy comforts delight my soul.

- Wilt thou favour the throne of iniquity, 20
Which sanctions oppression by statute?
They band together against the life of the 21
just, [demn.]
And the blood of the innocent they con-
But Jehovah is unto me a fortress, 22
And my God is the rock of my refuge.
He shall bring on them their own iniquity, 23
And in their wickedness shall cut them off;
Yea, Jehovah, our God, shall cut them off.

PSALM XCV.

This psalm consists of two parts. In the first, 1—7, the Israelites speak, in the second, 8—11, God addresses them. The Greek and Paul, Heb. iv. 7, call it, a psalm of David.

- O come, let us sing to Jehovah! 1
Sing aloud to the rock of our salvation!
Let us come before him with thanksgiving, 2
And in psalms sing aloud unto him.
For a great God is Jehovah! 3
A great king over all gods!
In his hand are the depths of the earth; 4
And his are the heights of the mountains.
The sea is his, for he made it, 5
And his hands formed the dry land.
O come, let us worship and bow down; 6
Let us kneel before Jehovah, our Maker;
For he is our God, and we the flock of his 7 pasture,

is that of the Ethiopic version here; and was most probably in the copy which Paul used.

14. His people] Finally forsake those whom he hath fore-known and chosen, says Ainsworth, 1 Sam. xii. 22; Rom. xi. 1. 2.

15. Judgment] Lowth refers to Is. xliii. 3, as containing the same sentiment.

19. Inward anxieties] That is, perplexing and distressing thoughts.

20. Wilt thou] Hebrew, 'associate thyself with the throne,' &c.

21. Life of the just] Hebrew, 'soul,' &c. but the next clause confines it to the sense given; as it is parallel with the blood of the innocent.

PSALM XCV. 3. A great God] He is a great king, ruling over all that are accounted gods, whether angels, or princes, or idols.

4. In his hand] That is, in his power, are the depths of the earth, with all its hidden treasures; and the highest mountains he hath established.

7. Flock of his pasture] Two words have been transposed

- The people his own hand conducteth.
 8 To day, I pray, hearken unto his voice.
 Harden not your hearts, as at Meribah;
 As when at Massah, in the wilderness;
 9 Where your fathers tempted me,
 Tried me—though they had seen my works.
 10 Forty years was I grieved with that race,
 And said, A people erring in heart are they,
 And they have not regarded my ways;
 11 Concerning whom I swore in my wrath,
 That they should not enter into my rest.

PSALM XCVI.

This is a song of praise, in which all nations are invited to join. It was first used, when David brought the ark to mount Zion, 1 Chron. xvi. 23—34.

- 1 SING unto Jehovah a new song;
 Sing unto Jehovah, all the earth.
 2 Sing unto Jehovah, bless his name;
 Publish from day to day his salvation.
 3 Declare his glory among the nations;
 Among all peoples, his wonderful deeds!
 4 For great is Jehovah, and highly to be
 He is to be feared above all gods! [praised;
 5 For all the gods of the nations are idols;
 But Jehovah made the heavens.
 6 Honour and majesty attend his presence;
 Power and beauty are in his sanctuary.
 7 Give to Jehovah, kindreds of the people,—
 Give to Jehovah, glory and power:
 8 To Jehovah give the glory due to his name:
 Bring a present when ye enter his courts.
 9 Worship Jehovah with holy reverence;
 Tremble before him, all the earth;
 10 For he fixed the world that it cannot be moved;
 He judgeth the peoples with uprightness;
 Say among the nations, Jehovah is king.
 11 Let the heavens be glad, and the earth re-
 Let the sea with all its fulness roar: [joice;
 12 Let the fields, with all that is therein, exult;
 Let all the trees of the forest sing aloud
 13 Before Jehovah—for he cometh to judge
 the earth.

in the common text, as is clear to every one who reflects. Compare Ps. lxxix. 13, and c. 3.

8. Meribah—Massah] Exod. xvii. 7; Deut. vi. 16. Ainsworth renders as a proper name. They signify, 'contention,' and 'temptation,' as the Greek renders, and Paul, Heb. iii. 7. and iv. 7, as the next verse explains. Compare 1 Cor. x. 9.

10. Forty years] The period of their sojourning in the wilderness.—Not regarded] There was not so much a defect in their knowledge, as in their will and the disposition of their hearts.

PSALM XCVI. 4. Highly to be praised] He is worthy of the highest praises; and these should be given to him.

5. Idols] Literally, 'things of nought,' of no value, Job xiii. 4: a mere imagination. See 1 Cor. viii. 4, and x. 19.

6. In his sanctuary] In the other copy it is, his place, but most probably holy has been dropped.

7. Kindreds of the] In the 3d verse, the people of Israel were exhorted to declare God's glory among the nations; and now he invites the nations to come and give glory to God.

9. Holy reverence] See note, Ps. xxix. 2.

10, 11. The order of these verses is different in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xxx. 33.—Let the heavens] When

The world he will judge with righteousness,
 And the peoples according to his truth.

PSALM XCVII.

This also is a song of praise, and probably was composed on the same occasion. In the Greek it is styled, a psalm of David.

- JEHOVAH reigneth; let the earth exult: 1
 Let its numerous regions be glad!
 Clouds and darkness are round about 2
 him: [throne:
 Justice and judgment are the basis of his
 A fire marcheth before him, 3
 And burneth up his enemies around.
 His lightnings illumine the world: 4
 The earth beholdeth and trembleth.
 The mountains melt as wax at the presence 5
 of Jehovah: [earth:
 At the presence of the Lord of the whole
 The heavens declare his righteousness, 6
 And all the peoples behold his glory.
 Ashamed be all they who serve carved gods; 7
 Who boast themselves in their own idols.
 Worship him, all ye 'his angels.'
 Zion heard and is glad; the cities of Ju- 8
 dah exult,
 Because of thy judgments, Jehovah. [earth;
 For thou, Jehovah, art high over all the 9
 Far exalted above all the gods.
 Jehovah loveth those who hate evil; 10
 He preserveth the souls of his saints;
 From the hand of the wicked he delivereth 11
 them.
 Light is sown for the righteous, 11
 And gladness for the upright of heart.
 Rejoice, ye righteous, in Jehovah, 12
 And celebrate, with praise, his holiness.

PSALM XCVIII.

This psalm is of the same kind with the two preceding, in which the psalmist extols the victory and salvation of the Redeemer, and calls on all to praise him. In the Greek it is called, a psalm of David.

- SING to Jehovah a new song: 1
 For wonderful things hath he done:

Jehovah came in the tokens of his favour, to save his people and to judge his enemies, all nature was summoned to rejoice before him.

13. He cometh] The words (בא) are omitted on the authority of the Syr. and numerous MSS. See note, Heb. Bib.

PSALM XCVII. 1. Regions] So Michaelis has proved the word ארץ signifies, and not merely isles. See note, Heb. Bib.

2—7. Clouds] Compare with this paragraph, Ps. xviii. 9—14. The images are borrowed from the descent of God on Mount Sinai. Probably from some various reading of the Greek version here, the apostle's quotation was made, Heb. i. 6; 'Let all the angels of God worship him.'

11. Light is sown] If we might attribute the sense of hid, as seed in the ground, to the verb sown, the metaphor would be more just. Light denotes prosperity, and this is sown for the just and shall spring up. Compare Esth. viii. 16; Is. lix. 9. See Merriek.

PSALM XCVIII. 1. Victory or salvation] The salvation effected was by our Lord's victory over his enemies, Is. lix. 16, and lxiii. 5.

- His own right hand, and his holy arm,
Have obtained for him the victory.
- 2 Jehovah hath made known his salvation;
In the sight of the nations hath displayed his righteousness.
- 3 His mercy and truth he hath remembered towards the house of Israel,
All the remotest parts of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.
- 4 Resound the praise of Jehovah all the
earth;
Burst forth into joy, and shout and sing praise.
- 5 Sing praise to Jehovah with the harp;
With the harp accompanied with the voice.
- 6 With clarions and the sound of trumpet,
Resound the praise of Jehovah, the king.
- 7 Let the sea and its fulness resound—
The world and its inhabitants.
- 8 Let the rivers clap their hands;
And let the mountains shout together.
- 9 Before Jehovah who cometh to judge the
earth.
With righteousness he will judge the world,
And the peoples, with uprightness.

PSALM XCIX.

*This also is a psalm of praise to God as the hearer of prayer.
In the Greek it is styled, a psalm of David.*

- 1 JEHOVAH reigneth—let the peoples tremble!
He sitteth on cherubs—let the earth totter!
- 2 Great is Jehovah in Zion!
And high is He above all peoples.
- 3 Let them praise thy great and awful name;
For holy and powerful is it.
- 4 A king, who lovest justice, art thou;
Equitable judgment thou hast established,
And righteousness thou hast done in Jacob.
- 5 Exalt Jehovah, our God,
And worship at his footstool, for he is holy.
- 6 When Moses and Aaron, his chief servants,
And Samuel, one who called on his name,—
When they called on Jehovah, he answered
them;
- 7 From the cloudy pillar he spoke unto them;
And they observed his testimonies,
And the statutes which he gave unto them.

2. Made known] By the appearance of his son in the flesh, and the wonders which he did.—Displayed] In the gospel to all men; that righteousness which is enjoyed by faith. Rom. iii. 22.

4—6. Resound] As in a grand procession let the singers and musicians unite in the praises of this glorious king.

7—9. Let the sea] Nothing can be conceived more sublime than this address to inanimate objects, to join the chorus in praise of the advent of the Saviour.

PSALM XCIX. 1. Sitteth on cherubs] Compare Ps. xviii. 10, and lxxx. 1.

6. His chief servants] Ainsworth explains כהנים to mean here, chief ministers, as well as priests. 2 Sam. viii. 18.

7. Cloudy pillar] That is, to Moses and Aaron; and he spoke to Samuel from the mercy-seat.

8. Evil deeds] Some refer this to the evil deeds of the people; but they refer to Moses and Aaron, who so pro-

- Thou, Jehovah, our God, didst answer 8
them;
A forgiving God thou wast unto them,
Though their evil deeds thou didst punish.
- Exalt Jehovah, our God, 9
And worship at his holy mountain:
For Jehovah, our God, is holy.

PSALM C.

This psalm seems to have been composed for the Israelites, when they offered their thank offerings, Lev. vii. 12.

A Psalm of Praise.

- LET all the earth cry aloud to Jehovah! 1
Serve Jehovah with gladness; 2
Come into his presence with singing.
Know that Jehovah only is God: 3
He made us, and 'his' own we are;
His people, and the sheep of his pasture.
Enter his gates with thanksgiving; 4
His courts, with songs of praise.
To him be thankful and bless his name;
For good is Jehovah; his mercy everlast- 5
ing;
And his truth from generation to generation.

PSALM CI.

*This psalm contains the pious resolutions of David as a king.
Some think that it was composed when David was made king over all Israel, 2 Sam. v.*

A Psalm of Asaph.

- OF mercy and judgment I will sing; 1
Unto thee, Jehovah, I will sing praise.
I will attend to the path of integrity; 2
(O when wilt thou come unto me?)
I will walk with an upright heart
In the midst of mine own family.
I will not bear with any lawless deed; 3
Him who committeth transgression I detest;
To me such an one shall not cleave. [me;
He of a perverse heart shall depart from 4
I will not favour a wicked person.
Whoso secretly slandereth his neighbour 5
him will I utterly root out;
Him that hath high looks and a proud heart
I will not suffer to dwell with me.
Mine eye shall be on the faithful of the land, 6
That they may dwell with me. [me:
He who walketh in the right way shall serve voked God, that they were not permitted to enter into the promised land. See Numb. xx. 12; Deut. xxxii. 50—52.

PSALM C. 3. His we are] So the Keri, supported by four manuscripts and the Chaldee and Jerom. In this reading there is a beautiful and important truth. Having made us, supported us, and blessed us, we are his by the strongest ties.

PSALM CI. 2. Attend to] For this sense see Schindler. —Own family] So house here obviously signifies.

3. I will not bear with] Hebrew, 'I will not set before my eyes.' I will not propose it to myself, or regard it, as this phrase signifies.

4. I will not favour] In most languages, to know is used in this sense.

5. Root out] Kimchi explains, 'cut off out of my sight,' that is, banish from me.—High looks] That is, the haughty and ambitious, who stick at nothing to gain their object,

- 7 He who practiseth deceit shall not dwell in my house, [sight.
He that uttereth lies shall not stand in my 8 Every morning will I cut off some of the wicked of the land,
Until I have destroyed, from the city of Jehovah, all the workers of iniquity.

PSALM CII.

The psalmist pleads that the time to favour Zion was now come. It is probably conjectured that it was composed near the end of the captivity, in Babylon.

A Prayer of the afflicted, when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his complaint before the Lord.

- 1 O JEHOVAH, hear my prayer,
And let my cry come up unto thee.
2 Hide not thy face from me;
In the day of distress, bend thine ear to me;
In the day when I call, speedily answer me.
3 For, consumed like smoke, are my days,
And my bones are scorched like a fire-brand.
4 My heart is smitten and withered as grass.
So that I forget to eat my bread! [skin.
5 Through my grief, my bones cleave to my
6 I am like a pelican in the wilderness:
I am like the sea-gull on the desert-shore;
7 I watch, and am like a little bird;
As a little bird alone on a house-roof.
9 Mine enemies reproach me all the day;
Madly raging, they swear by me.
9 Because I eat ashes as bread,
And with tears mingle my drink,
10 On account of thine indignation and wrath:
For thou liftedst me up only to cast me down.
11 My days are like the declining shadow,
And I am withered away like grass.
12 But thou, Jehovah, endurest for ever,
And thy remembrance through all generations.
13 Thou wilt yet arise, and have mercy on Zion:
come!
For the appointed time to favour her is 14 For thy servants take pleasure in her stones,
And show tender regard to her very dust.
15 Then shall nations fear "thy" name, Jehovah,

8. Every morning] Justice was administered in the morning; and the sense is, he would punish the wicked brought before him.

PSALM CII. 1—7. O Jehovah] The author, speaking concerning himself, represents the sad state of every Israelite, or the whole people in captivity.

4. My heart] That is, I am smitten, the heart being used like the soul, for himself.

6. Pelican—sea-gull] See Lev. xi. 18, and note Heb. Bib. The sense is, I make a doleful noise like these birds.

7. I watch] That is, I look for deliverance, but am disappointed.

8. Swear by me] 'They take the form of execration from me.' Is. lxv. 15. Jer. xxix. 22. Bishop Secker explains in the same manner.

9. Ashes as bread] This means, eat bread, when sat on or covered with ashes. This and the next verse contain the reason why the Jews were become a subject of execration.

And all the kings of the earth, thy glory.
When Jehovah hath rebuilt Zion, 16
He will appear in his own glory: [tute,
When he regardeth the prayer of the desti- 17
And shall no more despise their petition.
Let this be written for a future generation, 18
That a people to be born may praise Jehovah:

Because he looked from his high sanctuary; 19
From the heavens Jehovah beheld the earth!
To attend to the groaning of prisoners; 20
To release those who were doomed to death:
That Jehovah's name may be declared in 21
Zion, [lem;
And his praise again resounded in Jerusa-
When peoples shall be assembled together, 22
And the kingdoms, to serve Jehovah.

Should my strength be exhausted by the 23 way,—

Should my days be shortened, yet I will say,
My God, take me not off amidst my days; 24
For thy years endure through all generations.
Of old, thou, Jehovah, didst found the earth, 25
And the heavens are the works of thy hands.
These may perish—but thou shalt remain: 26
They all may be worn out like a garment,
And as a vesture thou mayest change them:
Though they be changed, yet thou art the 27
And thy years shall not have an end. [same,
O may the children of thy servants be settled, 28
And their seed be ever established before thee.

PSALM CIII.

This psalm is an exhortation to praise God for his mercy. Dathe conjectures that it was composed after his affliction for the child of Bethsheba, 2 Sam. xiii. 13—20.

A Psalm of David.

- BLESS Jehovah, O my soul, 1
And all that is in me, his holy name.
Bless Jehovah, O my soul, 2
And forget not any of his benefits.
It is he who forgiveth all thine iniquities, 3
And who healeth all thy diseases;
Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; 4
Who crowneth thee with kindness and mercy:

13. Appointed time] The end of the seventy years which God had fixed for the duration of the captivity, Jer. xxv. 12, and xxix. 10; Dan. ix. 2.

15. Fear thy name] Zion being restored, and Messiah the prince being come, the gentiles shall venerate and worship thee. (v) Versions.

18—22. Let this be] The whole paragraph has an implied reference to the coming and work of the Saviour, and the calling of all nations to the knowledge of God's salvation.

23. Should my strength] The psalmist, considering the length of the journey to the promised land, fears that neither strength nor life would be sufficient to accomplish it.

26. Worn out] So the term properly signifies; and does not this intimate, that God will produce some great change in the system of nature? Kimchi rendered in the conditional mood.

PSALM CIII. 3. Forgiveth] The prophet had announced to him that his sin was forgiven, which instance of divine mercy he celebrates.

- 5 Who satisfieth thy mouth with good,
So that thy youth is renewed like an eagle's.
- 6 Jehovah executeth righteousness
And judgment, for all the oppressed.
- 7 He made known his ways to Moses,
And his works to the children of Israel.
- 8 Compassionate and kind is Jehovah;
Slow to anger, but abundant in mercy.
- 9 He will not always contend with us,
Nor will he preserve his anger for ever.
- 10 He hath not dealt with us according to our sins, [ties.
Nor rendered to us according to our iniqui-
- 11 For high as the heavens are above the earth,
So great is his mercy to those who fear him:
- 12 Far as the east is from the west,
So far hath he removed our transgressions from us.
- 13 Like as a father pitieth his children,
Jehovah pitieth those who fear him.
- 14 For he knoweth what is our frame;
He remembereth that we are but dust.
- 15 As to man, his days are like grass;
He so flourisheth as the flower of the field,
- 16 Which, when the blast passeth over, is gone,
And its place shall know it no more.
- 17 But the mercy of Jehovah is from eternity,
And to eternity, on those who fear him,
And his righteousness to children's children;
- 18 To those who keep his covenant,
And are mindful to practise his precepts.
- 19 Jehovah hath fixed his throne in the heavens,
And his empire ruleth over all things.
- 20 Bless Jehovah, ye his angels! [mand,
Who, excelling in strength, fulfil his com-
By hearkening to the voice of his word.
- 21 Bless Jehovah, all ye his hosts;
Ye ministers of his, who do his pleasure.
- 22 Bless Jehovah, all ye his works,
In every place of his dominion:
Bless Jehovah, O my soul!

PSALM CIV.

This psalm contains reflections on the power and providence of God. In the Greek it is called, a psalm of David.

- Bless Jehovah, O my soul! 1
Jehovah, my God, thou art very great!
With glory and majesty thou art clothed!
Arraying thyself with light as a garment, 2
Stretching out the heavens like a curtain,
Flooring thy chambers with waters! 3
Using the clouds as thy chariot!
Walking on the wings of the wind!
Making the winds as thy angels, 4
And flaming fire as thy ministers!
Thou laidest the foundations of the earth, 5
So that it should never be removed. [ment:
Thou didst cover it with the deep as a gar- 6
The waters stood above the mountains!
At thy rebuke they instantly fled: 7
At the voice of thy thunder they hasted away!
They ascend the hills—they descend the val- 8 lies,
To the place thou hadst appointed for them.
A bound thou settest, which they may not 9
pass;
Nor again return to cover the earth!
Thou sendest forth springs into brooks, 10
Which run along between the mountains:
Where drink all the beasts of the field, 11
And the wild-asses quench their thirst.
By them dwell the birds of the heavens, 12
And sing from the leafy branches.
Thou waterest the hills from thy chambers; 13
The earth is filled with thy productions.
Grass thou makest to grow for the cattle, 14
And herbage for the service of man.
Out of the earth thou bringest forth food,
And wine, which gladdeneth the heart of 15
man;
Oil, which maketh the face to shine,
And bread, which strengtheneth man's heart.
The trees of Jehovah are full-grown; 16
The cedars of Lebanon, which he planted;

5. Renewed like] The youth of the eagle is, probably, that renovation of strength and spirits, which is experienced by this bird after moulting, Job xxxiii. 25.

7. His ways] His will and his purposes; or his method of dealing with men. See Exod. xxxiii. 13, and xxiv. 6, 7.

15. As to man] The shortness of life is contrasted with the duration of divine mercy, which involves every period of time, and extends to eternity.

19. And to his empire] The first sense of empire, is 'imperial power, supreme dominion, or sovereign command,' and in this sense the term is used.

20. Voice of his word] His will made known to them, as men make theirs known by their voice.

PSALM CIV. 2. Flooring thy] The high clouds he elegantly considers as the upper chamber of God's palace, the floors of which are the waters which the clouds contain. The paragraph is rendered in the second person, as the third is merely idiomatical, and is not proper in our language.

4. As thy angels] The word primarily denotes a 'messenger,' and it was applied to angels, as God's messengers to men. David is speaking of the phenomena of nature, of visible nature; and having mentioned that God walketh on the wings of the wind, he naturally adds, 'He maketh the winds as his angels; and flaming fire, or the lightning, as his ministers!' Here all is connected, I consider the 5 of comparison understood, as it is frequently as his angels, like them obedient to his will, and swift and powerful to execute it. This version also supports the apostle's reasoning, that, David did in this passage speak of, or concerning the angels, Heb. i. 7.

6—9. Thou didst cover it] The earth, when first formed, according to Moses, was covered with waters, which he calls the abyss. See Gen. i. 2.—Above the mountains] This has led many to think of the deluge, supposing that the mountains were formed by the deluge, obviously contrary to what Moses relates, Gen. vii. 19, 20.

8. They ascend thee] When they were parted from the dry land, as if that thing were effected by thunder, wind, and tempest, called here God's rebuke driving the waters, ver. 7; see Ps. xviii. 16.

9. A bound thou] Compare Job xxxviii. 8—11; Ps. cxlviii. 6. At the deluge God suspended this law of creation, but by his covenant with Noah restored it.

13. Thy productions] Hebrew 'fruit of thy works.' The sense is, that in consequence of the earth being watered, it yieldeth its increase.

16. Trees of Jehovah] Is Jehovah an epithet? The tallest, the most stately trees!—Full grown] The noun פֶּבֶעַ denotes fulness; and here has the sense given.

In which the birds build their nests.

- 17 Among the fir trees the stork maketh her abode ;
 18 The high mountains are for the wild goats :
 And the rocks are a refuge for the jerboas.
 19 The moon thou madest for stated seasons :
 The sun knoweth the time of his setting.
 20 Thou bringest on darkness, and it is night,
 When all the beasts of the forest creep forth :
 21 The young lions roar after their prey,
 And seek from God their food.
 22 The sun ariseth—they withdraw themselves
 And lie down again in their dens.
 23 Then man goeth forth to his work,
 And to his labour, until the evening.
 24 How manifold, Jehovah, are thy works !
 In wisdom hast thou made them all !
 The earth is full of thy riches :
 25 And in that great and wide sea
 Are reptiles without number ;
 Animals both small and great.
 26 There the ships pass along : [edst.
 There sporteth Leviathan which thou form-
 27 All these wait, as dependents, on thee,
 That they may have their food in due season.
 28 What thou givest to them they gather :
 Openest thou thy hand ? they are filled with
 good ;
 29 Hidest thou thy face ? they are confounded !
 Takest thou away their breath ? they die,
 And to their dust again they return.
 30 Sendest thou forth thy Spirit ? they are created !
 And thou renewest the face of the earth !
 31 The glory of Jehovah endureth for ever ;
 Jehovah rejoiceth in his own works.
 32 He looketh to the earth, and it trembleth ;
 He toucheth the mountains, and they smoke.
 33 While I live, I will sing unto Jehovah ;
 While I exist, I will sing praises to my
 God.
 34 My meditation on him shall be pleasant ;
 In Jehovah I will rejoice.
 35 Sinners shall be consumed from the earth ;
 And the wicked shall exist no more :
 Bless Jehovah, O my soul ! Praise Jehovah !

18. The jerboa, or bear-mouse] This abounded in the mountainous country of Judea, and especially about Lebanon.

24. In wisdom] They all prove thy wisdom, being exactly adapted to answer thy designs.

26. Leviathan] Compare Job xli. 1, &c. and note.

28. Openest thou] Hebrew, 'wilt thou, or thou wilt open,' &c. This version gives a beauty and force to the passage : and the antithesis, which is evidently intended, is more striking.

30. Renewest] By covering it with new produce. What author has painted the operations of God in nature in such just and glowing colours as the psalmist ?

32. He looketh] These metaphorical expressions seem to be borrowed from the effects of lightning and thunder. One look of God's, like lightning and thunder, makes the globe to tremble.

PSALM CV.

This psalm of praise is the same as that which was sung on bringing the ark to Zion, as far as the 16th verse, and the remainder. Dathe thinks, was added by some prophet, and sung at the dedication of the second temple.

- O GIVE thanks to Jehovah ! call on his 1
 name ;
 Make known among the peoples his deeds.
 Sing to him—to him sing praise ; 2
 And rehearse all his wonderful works.
 Glory, ye his people, in his holy name ; 3
 Be joyful the heart of those who seek Jehovah.
 Seek Jehovah, and his strength ; 4
 Seek, continually, his presence.
 Commemorate his marvellous works ; 5
 His wonders, and the judgments of his mouth,
 Ye seed of Abraham, his servant ; 6
 Ye children of Jacob, his chosen one.
 He, Jehovah, is our God ; 7
 His judgments are known through all the
 earth.
 He remembereth his covenant perpetually ; 8
 The word that he gave to a thousand generations :
 The covenant which he made with Abraham ; 9
 And his oath which he swore unto Isaac ;
 Which he confirmed to Jacob, for a statute ; 10
 Unto Israel, for a perpetual covenant,
 Saying, To thee I will give the land of Canaan 11
 For the lot of thine inheritance :
 When they were but few in number ; 12
 Very few, and strangers in the place.
 When they went from nation to nation, 13
 From one kingdom to another people,
 He suffered no man to oppress them ; 14
 Yea, he reprov'd kings for their sake, saying,
 Touch not mine anointed, 15
 And to my prophets do no harm.
 When he brought a famine on the land, 16
 And broke the whole staff of bread :
 He had sent a man before them ; 17
 Joseph had been sold as a slave !
 His feet had been galled with fetters, 18
 And iron had pierced his soul ;
 Until his prediction had come to pass, 19
 And the word of Jehovah had cleared him.
 The king then sent and loosed him ; 20
 The ruler of peoples, and set him free :

PSALM CV. 8. He remembereth] In the other copy it is 'remember ye;' but the text here may have been designedly altered by the author of the following part.

14. Reprov'd kings] Plaguing Pharaoh, Gen. xii. 17, and threatening Abimelech, Gen. xx. 3.

15. Anointed] That is, persons dedicated to God ; or who enjoy the dignity of kings.—Prophets] So Abraham is called, Gen. xx. 7 ; and Jacob possessed the spirit of prophecy, as appears from Gen. xlix. Also Isaac predicted future things, Gen. xxvii. 27, &c.

18. Iron had] With which he was bound, Gen. xxxix. 20.

19. Until his prediction] This is the version of Green, of which Kennicott and others have approved. The first clause refers to the completion of his interpretation of the dreams of the chief butler and baker ; the second to the interpretation of Pharaoh's dreams, called the oracle of Jehovah, because sent by him to Pharaoh, Gen. xli. 25.

21 He made him lord of his own house,
And ruler over all his possessions. [sure,
22 That he might "correct" his princes at plea-
And teach his senators wisdom !
23 Then Israel went down to Egypt,
And Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.
24 There God increased his people greatly,
And made them stronger than their enemies.
25 Their heart was turned to hate his people,
And to act deceitfully with his servants.
26 He then sent his servant Moses,
And Aaron whom he had chosen.
27 They showed his signs among them,
And his wonders in the land of Ham.
28 He sent darkness and it was spread over
"Still they rebelled" against his word. [them ;
29 He turned their waters into blood ;
And he slew their fish !
30 Their land swarmed with frogs,
Even in the chambers of their kings !
31 He spoke—and beetles came ;
And gnats swarmed in every region.
32 Instead of rain, he gave them hail, [land.
And flashes of lightning through all their 33 Their vines and fig-trees he also smote,
And broke the trees of their coasts !
34 He spoke—and the locusts came ;
And caterpillars, without number,
35 Which ate up all the herbage of their land,
And devoured the fruits of their ground.
36 He smote also the first-born in their laud ;
The prime of all their strength.
37 He brought forth his people with silver and gold ; [tribes.
And there was no one feeble among their 38 Egypt rejoiced on their departure ;
For the fear of them had fallen upon them.
39 He spread a cloud for their covering,
And a fire to enlighten them by night.
40 They asked, and he brought quails,
And satisfied them with the bread of heaven.
41 He opened the rock, and the waters gushed
out ;
They flowed in streams even in dry places !
42 For he remembered his holy promise,
Which he had made to his servant Abraham :
43 Hence he brought forth his people with joy ;
With the song of triumph, his chosen ones.
44 He gave to them the lands of nations,
45 And the labours of peoples they inherited ;

That they might keep his statutes,
And observe his laws.—Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CVI.

This psalm relates the ingratitude and disobedience of the Israelites, which were the cause of their afflictions and sorrows. It was probably written after the captivity, to warn the people, and to lead them to obey the law.

Praise Jehovah.

GIVE thanks to Jehovah ; for he is good ; 1
For his mercy endureth for ever. [yah ?
Who can express the mighty acts of Jeho- 2
Who can show forth all his praise ?
Happy are they who observe justice ; 3
And at all times practise righteousness.
Remember me, O Jehovah, with the favour 4
Which thou bearest to thine own people,
And visit me with thy salvation ;
That I may see the prosperity of thy chosen ; 5
That I may rejoice with the joy of thy nation,
And may glory with thine inheritance.
We have sinned together with our fathers ; 6
We have acted perversely and done wickedly.
Our fathers sinned in Egypt ; 7
They considered not thy wondrous works,
They remembered not thy many mercies,
But rebelled 'as they marched' to the Red sea !
Yet he saved them for his own name's sake, 8
That he might make known his mighty power. [up :
He rebuked the Red sea, and it was dried 9
And through the deeps he led them as in a desert !
He saved them from the hand of the foe, 10
And redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.
The waters so covered their adversaries, 11
That not one of them was left alive. [praise ;
Then they believed his words and sang his 12
But his works they soon forgot, 13
And waited not for his directing counsel.
For they lusted exceedingly in the desert, 14
And tempted God in the wilderness.
So he granted them their request, 15
But sent wasting diseases among them.
In the camp they were jealous of Moses, 16
And of Aaron, who was the hallowed of Jehovah. [than,
The earth opened, and swallowed up Da- 17
And overwhelmed the company of Abiram.
Among their company a fire was kindled, 18

22. Might correct] The best critics have preferred this reading of the Sept. Vulg. and Arab. to the text.

28. Still they rebelled] So the Sept. and Syr. omit the negative. The psalmist does not observe the order in which the plagues were sent.

29—31. Waters into blood] Exod. vii. 20, viii. 6, 17—24.

32—37. Hail. Silver and gold] Compare Exod. ix.—xii. 35.—Feeble] This is remarkable, considering their number. They were generally healthy and vigorous. This is promised, Is. xxxiii. 24. 40. They asked] Exod. xvi. 12, &c.

PSALM CVI. 4, 5. Remember] The psalmist first offers up his request for himself, and then adverts to the whole body of the people, whose prosperity, joy, and triumph he wishes to share.

7. As they marched] This reading arises from joining two words into one, and is supported by the Sept. and Arab. versions. Compare Exod. xiv. 11.

12. Sang his praise] He alludes to the song of Moses, Exod. xv.

13. Directing counsel] Instead of consulting God by Moses, they murmured against him and Moses. He refers to Exod. xv. 24.

15. Wasting diseases] So Michaelis renders, and remarks that מר, in the Arabic, signifies, 'one emaciated by disease.' Compare Numb. xi. 33—35, and xxxiii. 15—16.

16—18. Numb. xvi. 1, &c.

Whose flame burned up the wicked.
 19 At Horeb they made a golden calf,
 And worshipped a molten image.
 20 Thus they changed what was their glory
 Into the likeness of an ox eating grass.
 21 They forgot the God who had saved them ;
 Who had done such great things in Egypt ;
 22 Such wonderful things in the land of Ham ;
 Such terrible things at the Red-sea !
 23 He therefore said that he would destroy
 them,
 Had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the breach,
 To turn away his destroying wrath,
 24 Then they despised the desirable land,
 And believed not his word ;
 25 But murmured in their tents,
 And hearkened not to the voice of Jehovah !
 26 Hence he swore concerning them,
 That he would overthrow them in the desert,— [tions,
 27 And overthrow their seed among the na-
 When he had dispersed them into different lands.
 28 They wore the badges of Baal-peor,
 And ate the sacrifices of dead idols.
 29 So they provoked him by their evil deeds,
 And the plague broke out among them.
 30 Then stood up Phinehas and avenged the crime,
 And the plague was restrained ; [ness
 31 And this was counted to him for righteous-
 Throughout all future generations.
 32 They provoked him at the waters of Meribah,
 Where Moses suffered for their sakes :
 33 For they so irritated his spirit,
 That he spoke rashly with his lips.
 34 They destroyed not the nations,
 As Jehovah had commanded them :
 35 But mingled amongst those heathens,
 And learned their evil works.
 36 They even served their idols,
 And they became to them a snare.
 37 They sacrificed their sons and daughters to demons.
 38 Thus they shed innocent blood ;
 The blood of their sons and daughters,
 Whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan !
 Thus the land was polluted with blood,

20. Thus they changed] As far as they could, and in respect to their worship, the pure and invisible God, into the likeness of an ox, &c. Exod. xxxii. 2, &c.

23. Had not Moses] See Exod. xxxii. 11—14, and Deut. ix. 13, 14.

26. Swore] So the idiomatical words, 'Lifting his hands,' signify. See Numb. xiv. Compare Exod. xx. 5, and xxxii. 34; Levit. xxvi. 33.

28. Wore the badges] Compare Numb. xxv. 2, and note. — Dead or lifeless idols] It was usual for the offerers to eat the chief parts of the sacrifice. Hence the remarks and advice of Paul on this subject, 1 Cor. viii. 1—13.

30—32. Avenged] Numb. xxv. 5—7, and note—Provoked him] Numb. xx. 22.

And they defiled themselves by their works, 39
 And played the harlot with their own delusions.

Hence was the wrath of Jehovah 40
 Enkindled against his own people,
 And he abhorred his own heritage, [then ;
 So he gave them into the hand of the hea- 41
 And they who hated them ruled over them.
 Their enemies greatly oppressed them, 42
 And under their hand they were humbled.
 Many, many times he rescued them : 43
 Still they provoked him with their counsel,
 And again were brought low for their iniquity.
 Yet did he regard their distress, 44
 When he heard their cries :
 He remembered his covenant with them, 45
 And relented according to his great mercy.
 He made them to be pitied of those 46
 Who had carried them into captivity.
 Save us, O Jehovah, our God, 47
 And gather us from among the heathens,
 To give thanks to thy holy name,
 And to glory in praising thee.
 Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, 48
 From eternity to eternity :
 And let all the people say, Amen.
 Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CVII.

*This psalm treats of God's providence towards the Israelites, which the psalmist illustrates in various instances,
 —towards exiles, 2—9; prisoners, 10—16; the afflicted, 17—22; sailors, 23—32, and then in regard to civil changes in a country. It was probably composed after their return from captivity. This begins the fifth book of the psalms.*

GIVE thanks to Jehovah ; for he is good, 1
 For his mercy endureth for ever.
 Thus should the redeemed of Jehovah say, 2
 Whom he hath redeemed from the oppressor,
 And gathered from distant lands ; 3
 From the east, and from the west,
 From the north, and from the south.
 They wandered in a solitary desert ; 4
 They could find no way to a habitable city.
 Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in 5
 them ;
 But, in their trouble, they cried to Jehovah, 6
 And from their distresses he delivered them.
 He also directed them in the right path, 7
 Until they came to a habitable city :

37. To demons] That is, the idols before mentioned ; and this proves that in the worship of Molech human victims were offered. From the New Testament it is clear, that there was a distinction between demons and devils. Hence demons were the spirits of dead men, and devils fallen angels.

39. Played the harlot] That is, like a faithless woman they forsook God, and worshipped idols.

PSALM CVII. 4. Solitary desert] That between the Euphrates and Judea, Ezra viii. 21, 22.

7. Habitable city] The Chaldee explains this to mean, Jerusalem ; and this was the city of their fathers to which the exiles returned.

- 6 Let these praise Jehovah for his mercy,
And for his wonderful works to the sons of men ;
- 9 For he hath satisfied the thirsty soul ;
And the hungry soul he hath filled with good. [shade,
- 10 Those who sat in darkness and death-
Being miserably fettered with iron ;
- 11 Because they had rejected the words of God,
And contemned the counsel of the Most High. [ships ;
- 12 Hence he humbled their hearts with hard-
They fell down, and there was none to help up.
- 13 But, in their trouble, they cried to Jehovah,
And from their distresses he delivered them :
- 14 He brought them out of darkness and death-
shade,
And broke their bonds asunder.
- 15 Let these praise Jehovah for his mercy,
And for his wonderful works to the sons of men !
- 16 For he hath broken the gates of brass ;
And the bars of iron he hath cut asunder.
- 17 Sinners, because of their transgressions,
And of their iniquities, are afflicted :
- 18 Their soul abhorreth all sorts of food,
And they draw near to the gates of death.
- 19 But, in their trouble, they cry to Jehovah,
And from their distresses he delivereth them.
- 20 He sendeth forth his word and healeth them,
And he rescueth them from destruction.
- 21 Let these praise Jehovah for his mercy,
And for his wonderful works to the sons of men ;
- 22 Let them sacrifice sacrifices of thanksgiving,
And with joy celebrate his wonders.
- 23 Those who traverse the sea in ships,
Whose occupation is on the great waters—
- 24 Those see the works of Jehovah,
And his wonders in the great deep.
- 25 For he commandeth, and the tempest ariseth,
And raiseth high its billows.
- 26 They mount up to the heavens !
They sink down again into the deep !
Their soul melteth away with fear.
- 27 They reel and stagger like a drunken man,
And all their wisdom is swallowed up.
- 28 Then in their trouble they cry to Jehovah,

And from their distresses he delivereth them.
The storm he turneth into a calm ; 29
And its waves are hushed to silence.
When they are stilled, the mariners rejoice ; 30
And he bringeth them to their desired haven.
Let them praise Jehovah for his mercy, 31
And for his wonderful works to the sons of men. [people,
Let them extol him in the assembly of the 32
And praise him in the session of the elders.
He turneth rivers into a wilderness, 33
And water-springs into dry ground ;
A fruitful land into a barren soil, 34
For the wickedness of those who inhabit it !
He turneth also a wilderness into a water- 35
pool ;
And the dry land into a spring of water ;
And he causeth the famishing to dwell there, 36
That they may prepare an habitable city ;
And sow fields and plant vineyards, 37
Which may yield abundant produce.
So he blesseth them, and they multiply 38
greatly,
And their cattle he suffereth not to decrease.
Others decrease, and are humbled, 39
Through oppression, affliction, and sorrow.
He poureth contempt upon princes, 40
And maketh them wander in a pathless waste :
While the needy he raiseth from affliction, 41
And maketh his family like a flock !
The upright shall see this and rejoice, 42
And all iniquity shall stop her mouth.
Whoso is wise, will also observe these 43 things, [vah.
And understand the loving-kindness of Jeho-

PSALM CVIII.

*This psalm is made from Psalms lvii. 8—12, lx. 7—14.
On what occasion this was made does not appear.*

A Psalm or Song of David.

- My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is 1
fixed ;
I will sing and give praise unto thee.
Awake, my glory, awake lyre, and harp ! 2
I myself will awake at the early morn !
I will praise thee, Jehovah, among the people ; 3
I will sing unto thee, among the nations.
For great unto the heavens is thy mercy ; 4

10. Those who sat] Schnurrer thinks that the two first verses were repeated here, and after the 17th and 23d verses. This opinion, from the structure of the psalm, is highly probable.

16. Gates of brass] Compare Is. xlv. 2. The sense is, God delivered them from prison.

17. Sinners] Disease is often represented as the punishment of sin ; and which God in mercy sanctifies to bring to repentance. Compare Job. xxxiii. 19—28.

20. He sendeth] That is, he wills and commands that they should recover, and blesses the means employed to effect their recovery, 2 Kings xx. 1—7.

23. Whose occupation] Who sail on the ocean to catch fish, for the purpose of trade ; carrying the produce of one country to another.

27. Stagger] The ship is so driven and tossed, that they cannot stand.—Their wisdom] So the margin renders, which is more proper. All their nautical skill seems unavailing ; and as their last resort, they fly to God by prayer, Jonah i. 4, &c.

30. Mariners] I have inserted the nominative, that the sense may be perceived, the first clause referring to the waves.

32. Session of the] The Jews from this psalm have formed the following rule or canon : four must confess unto God ; the sick when healed ; the prisoner when released ; sailors when they are come up to land ; and way-faring men when they return home.

39. Others decrease] For their offences, God gives them up to oppression and captivity ; and wicked princes he punisheth with banishment or destruction, while those whom they oppressed are raised to honour.

- And thy faithfulness reacheth unto the skies.
 5 Exalt thyself, O God, above the heavens ;
 Display thy glory over all the earth.
 6 That thy beloved may be delivered ;
 Hear, and save us by thy right hand.
 7 God speaketh in his sanctuary,
 I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem,
 And measure out the valley of Succoth.
 8 Gilead shall be mine, and mine Manasseh ;
 Ephraim shall be the helmet of my head :
 Judah shall be my law-giver.
 9 Moab shall become my washing-pot ;
 And to Edom will I throw my sandal ;
 Over Philistia shall I triumph !
 10 Who will bring me to that strong city ?
 Who will conduct me to Edom ?
 11 Wilt not thou, O God, who didst cast us off,
 And didst not go forth with our hosts ?
 12 Grant us relief from trouble ;
 For vain is the assistance of man.
 13 Through God we shall act valiantly ;
 For he will tread down our enemies.

PSALM CIX.

It is thought, with great probability, that David composed this psalm during Absalom's rebellion ; and that he had in his mind especially Ahithophel, his professed friend, but who betrayed him, as Judas did his Lord, to whom Peter applies it, Acts i. 16.

To the chief musician.

- 1 O God, my praise, be not thou silent :
 2 For the wicked and the deceitful
 Have opened their mouths against me ;—
 Have spoken against me with lying tongues.
 3 With words of hatred they attack me,
 And fight against me without cause.
 4 For my love they are mine adversaries ;
 And I am become their abhorrence.
 5 Thus they render to me evil for good,
 And hatred in return for my love.
 6 Let his wickedness be visited on him,
 And the accuser stand at his right hand.
 7 When judged, let him be found guilty,

PSALM CIX. 4. Abhorrence] For this sense of רָחַק, see Job i. 22, where the primary sense is stated to be what is 'tasteless, insipid, and foolish.'

6. Let his wickedness] We may consider רָשָׁע here, not as an adjective, but as a noun, the pronominal affix being understood. Dr. Sykes and Michaelis contend, that this verse to the 19th inclusive, is the language of David's enemies, and they would render thus, 'Set, say they, a wicked, &c.' They think this removes the difficulty of supposing that a pious man, like David, should utter such awful imprecations on his enemies. Admitting this to be just, David, in the 20th verse, makes all that they have said his own, by praying, 'Let this be the reward of my foes from Jehovah,' &c. so that the difficulty would still remain in all its force. We must then say, that in all such passages two things were united, both prediction and approbation ; that the sacred writers, under the influence of the Spirit, saw what was the purpose and determination of God, respecting incorrigibly wicked persons ; and that when they said, 'Let such and such calamities come upon them,' it was no more than saying, 'Let thy will be done.' This also shows, that no uninspired person should adopt such language ; as in his mouth it can only evidence the malice and wishes of his own depraved heart.

8. And his office] If this refers to Ahithophel primarily,

- And his petition be an offence.
 Let his days be few in number, 8
 And his office let another take. [widow.
 Let his children be orphans, and his wife a 9
 Let his children be vagabonds and beggars, 10
 And driven from their homes to seek bread.
 Let his creditors seize on all that he hath, 11
 And strangers plunder his labour.
 Let there be no one to show him kindness, 12
 Nor any to take compassion on his orphans.
 Let his whole posterity be cut off ; [out. 13
 In 'one' generation let 'his' name be blotted
 Let the iniquity of his forefathers be remem- 14
 bered by Jehovah, [out.
 And the sin of his mother not be blotted
 Let them be always before Jehovah, 15
 And his memory be cut off from the earth ;
 Because he remembered not to show kind- 16
 ness,
 But persecuted one afflicted and needy,
 And sought the death of the broken of heart.
 As he loved cursing, so let it come on him : 17
 As he desired not blessing, let it be far from
 As he put on cursing like a garment. [him. 18
 Let it enter like water into his bowels,
 And, like oil, let it penetrate his bones.
 Let it be on him like the garment which 19
 covereth him, [begirt.
 And like the girdle with which he is ever
 Be this the reward of my foes from Jehovah ; 20
 Of those who devise evil against my life !
 But do thou, O Jehovah, my God, 21
 Take my part for thy own name's sake :
 And out of thy excellent kindness deliver me.
 For afflicted and destitute am I, 22
 And my heart is wounded within me.
 I am going off like a declining shadow ; 23
 Like a locust I am tossed to and fro.
 My knees are feeble through fasting, 24
 And my flesh parched for want of oil.
 To my foes I am become a reproach ; 25
 They gaze at me ; they shake their heads !

his office must mean that of counsellor ; and as also intending Judas, that which he had held. Ahithophel and Judas died in the same manner.

16. To show kindness] Neither Ahithophel nor Judas showed any to those to whom they were under the greatest obligations ; but both proved traitors.

20. Be this] This seems to intimate, that what has been said emphatically against one person, is to be understood of all associated with him ; both Ahithophel and those engaged with him, on the one hand, and on the other, Judas, Pontius Pilate, and the Jewish nation, who rose up against the Son of David.

21. Take my part] Compare 1 Sam. xiv. 6, 45, and Jer. xiv. 7.

23. Like a locust] The psalmist alludes to their being driven about from place to place by fire, noise, and other means employed by the people to disperse those dreadful ravagers.

24. My flesh parched] Or, my flesh faileth, &c. The term oil is preferred to fatness, because in affliction the Jews did not anoint themselves, and this is the more frequent sense of the word.

25. They gaze at me] How applicable is this to our Lord !

- 26 Help me, O Jehovah, my God!
Save me, according to thy own mercy:
27 That they may know that this is thy hand,
That thou, Jehovah, hast wrought it.
28 When they curse, do thou bless;
When they rise up, let them be put to shame;
But let thy servant be made joyful.
29 Let mine adversary be clothed with disgrace,
And be covered with shame as with a garment.
30 I will greatly praise Jehovah with my mouth;
Amid the multitude I will praise him:
31 For he standeth at the right hand of the needy,
To save him from those who would condemn

PSALM CX.

This psalm describes the kingdom, priesthood, and triumphs of the Saviour, Matt. xxii. 42.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 To my Lord Jehovah said, Sit at my right hand,
Until I make thine enemies thy footstool.
2 From Zion Jehovah shall extend thy powerful sceptre,
And 'thou shalt' rule amidst thine enemies.
3 Most willing shall be thy people,
In the day when thy power is displayed
On these hallowed 'mountains';
Thy progeny shall be as dew from the womb of the morn.
4 Jehovah hath sworn, nor will he repent;
Thou (said he) art a priest for ever,
According to the order of Melchizedek.
5 The Lord at thy right hand, 'Jehovah,'
Shall, in the day of his wrath, smite kings,

Shall execute judgment among the nations, 6
And fill the field with carcasses,
And smite the 'chiefs' of many countries.
He shall drink of the stream by the way; 7
And 'shall, therefore, be exalted' as chief.

PSALMS CXI. CXII.

These psalms briefly commemorate the Divine favours, and the conduct and privileges of good men. They are alphabetic, each line beginning with the proper Hebrew letter.

Praise Jehovah.

- א I will praise Jehovah with my whole heart, 1
ב In the convened assembly of the upright.
ג Great are the works of Jehovah; 2
ד Sought out by all those who delight 'in him.'
ה Honourable and glorious is his work, 3
ו And his righteousness endureth for ever.
ז He maketh his wonderful works to be remembered; 4
ח Gracious and compassionate is Jehovah.
ט Food he giveth to those who fear him; 5
י Of his covenant he is ever mindful.
יא His mighty deeds he hath showed to his people, 6
יב By giving them the heritage of nations.
יג The works of his hands are truth and justice; 7
יד All his statutes are faithful: [ice;
יז They are established for ever and ever, 8
יח Because made with truth and uprightness.
יט He sent redemption to his people; 9
כ He appointed his covenant for ever;
כא Holy and venerable is his name.
כב The sum of wisdom is the fear of Jehovah; 10
כג A good understanding have all who 'exercise it.'
כד His praise shall abide for ever.

PSALM CX. 1. To my Lord] David, in vision, seems to have been present when the Father gave a commission to Messiah to appear as the king of Zion, and to engage in the work of establishing his empire among men.—At my right] The right hand was the most honourable place, and here it means God's power and majesty in the heavens, 1 Kings ii. 19. Luke xxii. 69. Heb. i. 3, 13.

2. Thou shalt] So the Arabic and Chaldee render.

3. Most willing] The plural is used in the text, willingness, as an adjective in the highest degree.—In the day] By power is denoted the exertions of Messiah's divine power, in the miracles which he wrought, and which he communicated to others, for the purpose of extending his empire of truth and grace.—Hallowed mountains] So a great number of good Hebrew manuscripts and ed. as well as Jerom and Symmachus read. By 'hallowed mountains' the whole country of Judea is meant, which was mountainous, and called holy, because separated from other countries as Jehovah's residence, Deut. iii. 25.—Thy progeny] So the Chaldee renders; and 'thy progeny' is evidently parallel with 'thy people,' before. The metaphor of dew is parallel with most willing, as it descends spontaneously, as well as copiously, in hot climates. The whole represents the insinuating influence of the gospel, and the vast multitudes which should be turned to God.

4. A priest for] This revelation is made, as containing a matter of importance, with the greatest solemnity. Jehovah appoints his son to the priesthood, with an oath, and will not repent nor change, Heb. vii. 20—22.—For ever] Ordinary men, who, under the law, discharged this office, died; but Jesus, continuing for ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood.—According to the] Not one springing from Levi, but one of another tribe, and one of another order. Compare Heb.

v. 6—10, &c. This verse, in connexion with the second, shows the union of the mitre and sceptre,—of the priestly and kingly offices in the same person, as Zechariah also foretold, vi. 13; and as the person, Melchizedek, exercised.

5. The Lord at] On the authority of some manuscripts is Jehovah added, as it is implied in the text itself.—Smite kings] Here Messiah is represented as a king, going forth against his enemies, and obtaining a complete conquest over them, Isa. lxiii. 1—6. Accordingly, many kings and emperors, who set themselves to oppose Christianity, were destroyed in a dreadful manner, as were the unbelieving Jews.

6. Chiefs of many] Hebrew, 'of a large land'; but the singular is used in a collective sense, and the usual version is just.

7. Shall drink] The verb signifies to feast, to banquet; and the sense may be, that Messiah, being refreshed after his victory, he shall peacefully reign as head over all. See Colos. i. 18, and Eph. i. 20—23.

PSALM CXI. 1. In the convened assembly] Hebrew, 'in the assembly and convention, &c.' but the latter noun seems to be used as an adjective. Compare Gen. iii. 16, and note.

2. Who delight in] or whose delights are in him.

5. Food he giveth] So טרף is rendered Mal. iii. 10. 'And let there be food in my house, &c.' See Prov. xxxi. 15.

9. Appointed his] The word is used for to appoint, to make; as Ps. xlii. 8, 'to command' the blessing, means, 'to confer it.'

10. Who exercise it] Secker and others follow the Sept. and refer the pronoun to 'the fear of Jehovah,' which the connexion favours.

PSALM CXII.

Praise Jehovah.

- 1 κ Happy the man who feareth Jehovah,
 2 λ And in his commands greatly delighteth.
 3 η Powerful on the earth shall be his seed;
 4 ι For the race of the upright shall be blessed.
 5 κ Wealth and riches shall be in his house,
 6 λ And his righteousness endureth for ever.
 7 μ In darkness light ariseth to the upright;
 8 ν To the kind, compassionate, and righteous.
 9 ξ A good man is kind and lendeth;
 10 ο He manages his affairs with judgment:
 11 π Surely he shall never be moved;
 12 ρ The righteous shall ever be had in remembrance:
 13 σ Of an evil report he shall not be afraid;
 14 τ With a fixed heart he trusteth in Jehovah.
 15 θ His heart being firm he shall not fear,
 16 ι While he seeth the fall of his adversaries.
 17 κ He disperseth, he giveth to the needy;
 18 λ His righteousness endureth for ever;
 19 μ His horn shall be exalted with honour.
 20 ν The wicked shall see—and be grieved,
 21 ξ Shall gnash his teeth and melt away:
 22 ο The hope of the wicked shall perish.

PSALMS CXIII. CXIV.

The first of these psalms is a thanksgiving to God for his kindness to the poor and afflicted; and the second rehearse the miracles at the Red Sea, Exod. xiv.

Praise Jehovah.

- 1 Π PRAISE, ye servants of Jehovah,
 Praise the name of Jehovah.
 2 Blessed be the name of Jehovah,
 From this time forth, and for evermore.
 3 From the rising to the setting sun,
 Praised be the name of Jehovah!
 4 High above all nations is Jehovah!
 Higher than the heavens is his glory!
 5 Who is like unto Jehovah, our God?

PSALM CXII. 2. His seed] The Chaldee explains, 'his sons shall be mighty in the law.'

4. To the kind] So Dathe, who considers the preposition λ implied before the terms in this line; and which explains and amplifies the character of the upright.

8. While he] While judgments are overwhelming them, his confidence shall be unshaken.

9. He disperseth, he giveth] i. e. He giveth liberally.

PSALM CXIII. 3. From the rising] Let all people, who dwell in the east or west, praise the name of Jehovah.

5, 6. Who is like] Lowth observes, here the two members of the latter line are to be referred severally to the two preceding lines; as if it were, 'Who is exalted to dwell in the heavens, and who humbleth himself to inspect the things that are in the earth.' Compare Cant. i. Ps. cxxxviii. 6. Jer. xlix. 8.

9. A joyful mother] Joyful for what the Lord hath done for her. 'Praise Jehovah,' is the title of the next psalm.

PSALM CXIV. 1. When Israel] This psalm in the Hebrew is divided into four equal parts, each consisting of

Who, though exalted to dwell on high,
 Yet humbleth himself to look down 6
 On the heavens, and on the earth.
 He raiseth the poor from the dust, 7
 And from the dunghill exalteth the needy;
 Seating him among the nobles,— 8
 Among the nobles of his own people!
 She who resideth at home, barren, 9
 He maketh a joyful mother of children.

PSALM CXIV.

Praise Jehovah.

WHEN Israel came out of Egypt; 1
 The house of Jacob from a foreign people;
 Judah became his hallowed people; 2
 Israel Jehovah's dominion.
 The sea saw him, and fled: 3
 The Jordan went backwards!
 The mountains skipped like rams, 4
 And the hills, like the young of the flock!
 What ailed thee, O sea, that thou fled- 5
 dest?
 Jordan, that thou wentest backwards?
 Mountains, that ye skipped like rams? 6
 And ye hills, like the young of the flock?
 At the presence of the Lord the earth 7
 trembled;
 At the presence of the God of Jacob;
 Who turned the rock into a pool of water, 8
 And the flint into fountains of water!

PSALM CXV.

The psalmist admires the sovereignty of God, shows the vanity of idols, and exhorts to confidence in him. It is supposed that this psalm was composed in the time of Hezekiah. See 2 Kings xviii. and xix.

NOT unto us, O Jehovah, not unto us; 1
 But unto thy own name give glory,
 For thy mercy and for thy truth's sake.
 Why should the heathen say, 2
 Where now is their God?
 Our God is in the heavens, 3
 Doing whatsoever he pleaseth.
 But their idols of silver and gold 4

two verses. They form what Lowth has justly called synonymous parallels.

2. His hallowed] It is a known idiom of the Hebrew to use abstract terms for concrete. See Exod. xxii. 30. Levit. xi. 44.

3. The sea] The Red Sea, through which Israel passed, saw him in the exercise of his power, Exod. xiv. 21; and the Jordan rolled back his waves to afford a passage to his chosen, Josh. iii.

4. Mountains] Sinai, Horeb, and other neighbouring mountains, when he gave his law, Exod. xix. 18. Hab. iii. 6.

5, 6. What ailed thee] Nothing can exceed the beauty of these verses! The prosopopœia is bold, but striking. The following verses show the reason why there was this commotion and change in nature; the author of nature was present.

PSALM CXV. 1. Not to us] That is, not for the purpose of honouring us do thou deliver us, but give this glory to thy own name.

2. Should the heathen say] Why shouldst thou give them reason to say, Where is their God?

3. Our God is] This is an answer to the foregoing question.

- Are the work of the hands of men.
 5 Mouths have they, but speak not;
 Eyes have they, but see not;
 6 Ears have they, but hear not;
 Noses have they, but smell not;
 7 Hands have they, but handle not;
 Feet have they, but walk not;
 Nor can they talk through their throat.
 8 Be those who make them like unto them;
 And all who put their trust in them.
 9 'House' of Israel, trust thou in Jehovah;
 He is their help and their shield.
 10 House of Aaron, trust thou in Jehovah:
 He is their help and their shield.
 11 Ye who fear Jehovah, trust in Jehovah:
 He is their help and their shield.
 12 May Jehovah remember us, and bless us:
 May he bless the house of Aaron;
 13 May he bless those who fear him,
 Both the small and the great.
 14 May Jehovah heap blessings on you;
 On yourselves and on your children.
 15 Blessed be ye, by Jehovah,
 Who made the heavens and the earth.
 16 The heavens are Jehovah's heavens;
 But the earth he gave to the children of men.
 17 The dead praise not Jehovah;
 Nor any who go down to silence!
 18 But we will bless Jehovah,
 From this time forth and for evermore.
 Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CXVI.

This is a song of praise for aid afforded, and deliverance wrought, in a dangerous disease. It is by many referred to Hezekiah, Is. xxxviii.

- 1 I LOVE Jehovah, who hath heard
 My voice and my supplication.
 2 Because to me he hath inclined his ear,
 I will call upon him as long as I live.
 3 The snares of death had encompassed me;
 The cords of hades had enclosed me:

8. Be those] Let both the makers and worshippers of idols become as unable to move or speak as these idols are.

11. Ye who fear] Proselytes of the nations, who are styled, 'men that fear God,' Acts x. 2, 22. and xiii. 16.

16. The heavens are] The heavens he occupies as his own peculiar residence; but the earth he has given for the habitation of man.

17. The dead praise] The meaning is, if thou sufferest us, thy people, to perish by the hand of their enemies, who will there be on earth to praise thee? All other nations praise their gods, and thy name will be unknown and not celebrated. Hence the author meant, not to speak of the state of the dead, otherwise than as it is opposed to that of the living.

18. But we will] He concludes with expressing his confidence, that Israel would be preserved to bless God's name, through every period of time.

PSALM CXVI. 3, 4. The snares] Compare Ps. xviii. 5. He here describes his dangerous state, when he prayed to Jehovah to deliver him.

7. Thy rest] Or usual state of tranquillity, arising from confidence in God, Matt. xi. 29.—Hath dealt kindly]

- I experienced distress and anguish.
 Then called I on the name of Jehovah;
 O Jehovah, I pray, deliver my soul.
 Gracious and righteous is Jehovah;
 Yea, our God is full of compassion.
 Jehovah preserveth the simple:
 I was brought low, yet he saved me.
 Return, O my soul, to thy rest,
 For Jehovah hath dealt kindly with thee.
 Thou hast delivered my soul from death,
 Mine eyes from tears, and my feet from fall-
 I shall still walk before Jehovah, [ing. 9
 In the land of the living.

- I believed in Jehovah, though I said,
 I am too greatly afflicted:
 Yea, I said in my agitation,
 Every man is found a liar.
 What shall I render to Jehovah,
 For all his favours bestowed on me?
 The cup of salvation I will lift up,
 And call on the name of Jehovah.
 My vows I will pay unto Jehovah,
 Now in the presence of all his people.
 Too precious in the eyes of Jehovah
 Are his saints, to give them up to death.
 Truly, Jehovah, since I am thy servant—
 Thy servant and the son of thy handmaid,
 Thou hast now loosed my bonds.
 To thee I will offer a sacrifice of praise,
 And will call on the name of Jehovah.
 My vows I will pay unto Jehovah,
 Now in the presence of all his people:
 In the courts of Jehovah's house;
 In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem.
 Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CXVII.

- PRAISE Jehovah, all ye nations;
 Celebrate him, all ye peoples.
 For great toward us is his kindness,
 And the truth of Jehovah is everlasting.
 Praise Jehovah.

Bountifulness or kindness is the principle whence flow kind acts.

8. Thou hast] Compare Is. xxxvii. Hezekiah might with propriety say, I shall still walk before, &c.

10. I believed in Jehovah] The complete phrase occurs, Gen. xv. 6.—Too greatly] There must be something of murmuring intended, which on reflection he blames.

11. In my agitation] Compare Ps. xxxi. 23, and note.—That every man] That no reliance can be safely placed in human aid. Perhaps Hezekiah doubted the truth of God's promise by Isaiah, for which he now reproved himself.

13. The cup of] He calls the cup used on offering eucharistic sacrifices, the cup of salvation, that is, commemorating salvation, as the apostle calls the sacramental cup, the cup of blessing.

15. To death] Ainsworth explains the sense to be, 'God will not easily suffer his saints to be slain,' or to die by disease before they have finished the work allotted to them. Their life is too valuable in his eyes to suffer this. Compare Ps. lxxii. 14. 1 Sam. xxvi. 31. 2 Kings i. 13.

PSALM CXVII. 1, 2. This psalm was probably composed and sung on the restoration of the temple after the captivity. All nations are invited to praise God.

PSALM CXVIII.

This psalm contains the thanks of the king for deliverance from great danger, by a signal victory over his enemies. The opinion that it was composed by David, after his many victories, is most probable; and sung by alternate choirs at some public festivity. From the 22d verse we have a prophecy of our Lord.

- 1 GIVE thanks to Jehovah; for he is good:
For his mercy endureth for ever.
- 2 Let the "house" of Israel now say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
- 3 Let the house of Aaron now say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
- 4 Let those who fear Jehovah now say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
- 5 In distress I called on Jehovah;
Jehovah answered me by granting relief.
- 6 Jehovah being with me, I will not fear
What man can do against me.
- 7 Jehovah being with me as my helper,
I shall see the fall of such as hate me.
- 8 It is better to trust in Jehovah,
Than to put confidence in man:
- 9 It is better to trust in Jehovah,
Than to put confidence in princes.
- 10 All the nations beset me around;
But through Jehovah's name I cut them off.
- 11 Again and again, they beset me around;
But through Jehovah's name I cut them off.
- 12 They beset me around like bees;
But, as a fire of thorns, they were soon extinct:
For through Jehovah's name I cut them off.
- 13 They "pushed" forcibly at me that I might
But Jehovah, my helper, sustained me. [full;]
- 14 My strength and song is Jehovah;
For he hath become my salvation.
- 15 The voice of joy and triumph
Resounds in the tabernacles of the just.
The right hand of Jehovah doeth valiantly!
- 16 The right hand of Jehovah is exalted;
The right hand of Jehovah doeth valiantly!
- 17 I shall not die: I shall surely live,

PSALM CXVIII. 1. For his mercy] This line was the response of the second choir. Rosenmuller considers this a dramatic psalm, the king speaking to verse 22, afterwards the priests and people. 2. (a) Sept. Arab.

3. House of Aaron] He names the family of Aaron particularly, both on account of its dignity, and of its office, to celebrate Jehovah.

10. Cut them off] The whole of the psalm proves, that the author is speaking of a past, and not a future event. Cutting off means, subduing them.

13. They pushed] So the Arab. and as nations are the antecedent, it is preferable.

17. I shall not die] His enemies sought his destruction. He insults them by saying, I shall not die, &c. that is, by your hand. Jehovah has suffered me to be chastised, but has not and will not deliver me up to death.

19. Gates of righteousness] That is, of the sanctuary, Is. xxvi. 2, and 2 Chron. xxiii. 19. The king, who was now standing before the sanctuary, commands the priests and Levites to open the door, Ps. xxiv. 8.

20. This is the gate] Kennicott supposes, and it seems most probable, that this verse was spoken or sung by the priest—the next by the king—the three next a chorus by the people—the 25th by the king—the two next by the priest—the 28th by the king, and the last the grand chorus of the whole.

And shall still rehearse the works of Jehovah.

Though he hath severely chastised me, 18
Yet hath he not delivered me up to death.

Open for me the gates of righteousness; 19
I will go into them, and praise Jehovah.

This is the gate of Jehovah, 20
By which the righteous shall enter!

I will praise thee; for thou hast heard me, 21
And art become my salvation.

The stone which the builders rejected 22
Is become the chief corner-stone.

By Jehovah hath this been done! 23
And it is wonderful in our eyes!

This is the day Jehovah hath made; 24
We will rejoice and be glad thereon.

Save now, we beseech thee; Jehovah, now 25
save—

We beseech thee, Jehovah, now prosper us.

Blessed is he that cometh in the name of 26
Jehovah:

We bless you from the house of Jehovah.

The true God is Jehovah, who shineth on us: 27
Bind the festive sacrifice with cords unto the horns of the altar!

Thou art my God, and I will praise thee; 28
Thou art my God, and I will extol thee.

Praise Jehovah; for he is good; 29
For his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM CXIX.

In this psalm the author expresses his love to God's word, and the delight which he had in meditating upon it. The structure is singular, consisting of twenty-two sections, and each section consists of eight verses, each beginning with the same Hebrew letter.

& HAPPY they, who, upright and sincere 1
in the way,

Walk according to the law of Jehovah.

Happy they, who keep his testimonies, 2
And seek him with their whole heart.

Truly they commit no iniquity: 3
They walk in his ways.

Thou, Jehovah, hast commanded us 4

22. The stone] This is clearly figurative, and signifies, first, David himself, and then, his son, Christ, as particularly intended. The builders mean, the chief men of Israel, who for a long time refused David, as their posterity did Christ, as king over them. Compare Matt. xxi. 42; Acts iv. 11, and 1 Pet. ii. 6, 7. I have rendered chief corner-stone, meaning of the foundation, as I am satisfied it does not denote the top-stone. Compare Is. xxviii. 16; Zech. iv. 7—9; Eph. ii. 20.

24. Jehovah hath made] Distinguished and made illustrious, 1 Sam. xii. 6; and also the sanctifying and observing of it, Deut. v. 15; Exod. xxiv. 21. If this referred to the day on which David was raised to the throne, it may be more emphatically applied to the day when our Lord was raised from the dead, and which has been honoured as holy to the Lord.

25. Save now] In Hebrew, Hoshiah-na, or Hosanna, as it is sounded in Greek, Matt. xxi. 9, 15, where the people and children welcome Christ into Jerusalem.

26. Blessed be he] The priest thus speaks on seeing the king; and then addresses the people, pronouncing benedictions on them, and calling on the Levites to bind the victims to the horns of the altar.

PSALM CXIX. 1. Who sincere] This is our marginal version; and it is more just to the sense of the text than 'undefiled.'

- Strictly to observe thy precepts.
 5 O that my ways may be directed
 To the observance of thy statutes !
 6 Then shall I not be put to shame,
 When I regard thy commandments.
 7 I will praise thee with an upright heart
 When I have learned thy just judgments.

 Let me not stray from thy commandments.

 That I may not sin against thee.
 12 Blessed art thou, O Jehovah !
 Teach me thy statutes.
 13 With my lips I daily recount
 All the judgments of thy mouth.
 14 In the way of thy testimonies I rejoice,
 Much more than in all riches.
 15 I will meditate on thy precepts,
 And have respect to thy ways.
 16 I will delight myself with thy statutes ;
 Never will I forget thy word.
 17 ♪ Deal kindly with thy servant,
 That I may live and observe thy word.
 18 Open the eyes of thy servant,
 That I may behold the wonders of thy law.
 19 I am a sojourner upon earth ;
 Hide not thy commandments from me.

 For thy judgments, at all seasons.

 Who stray from thy commandments.

 For I have kept thy testimonies.

 Still teach me thy statutes.

 That I may talk of thy wondrous works.
 28 My soul languisheth through grief :
 Strengthen me according to thy word.

6. Then I shall not] The surest way to avoid the reproaches of others is to regard all God's commands.

8. Do not utterly] But rather strengthen my desires and assist me to keep thy statutes.

18. The wonders] The law of Moses contained many such things, as a typical system, and the Psalmist desires divine illumination, that he might contemplate them, for the support of his own hope of a better life.

21. The proud, the] The words are in apposition ; for the proud are under the curse.

25. My sou.] That is, I am greatly afflicted, I am ready to die, both in body and mind.

 Turn mine eyes from beholding vanity ; 37
 And revive me in thy way,
 Establish thy word unto thy servant, 38
 That I may walk in thy fear.
 Turn from me the reproach which I dread ; 39
 For thy judgments to me are excellent.
 Behold ! I long after thy precepts : 40
 According to thy righteousness revive me.
 ♪ Let thy mercy come to me, O Jehovah ; 41
 Thy salvation, according to thy word.
 Then can I answer him who reproacheth me ; 42
 Because in thy word do I trust.
 Take not the word of truth from my mouth : 43
 For I depend on thy judgments.
 I will observe thy law continually, 44
 And thy statutes, even for ever.
 Then shall I walk on at large, 45
 When I seek to know thy precepts.
 I will also speak of thy testimonies before 46
 kings,
 And will not be ashamed.
 I will delight myself in thy commandments, 47
 Which I most ardently love.
 I will embrace thy commandments, 48
 And will meditate on thy statutes.
 ♪ Remember "thy" promise to thy servant, 49
 Upon which thou hast caused me to rely.
 This is my comfort in my affliction,— 50
 That thy word reviveth me.
 The proud have greatly derided me ; 51
 Yet do I not turn from thy law.
 I call to mind thy judgment of old, 52
 Jehovah, and comfort myself.

common reading and version must be apparent to every reader.

32. Enlarged my] With wisdom, as 1 Kings iv. 29, or with comfort, as Is. lx. 5.

38. That I may walk] Read נִשְׁלַח as a verb.

41. Come to me] Be exercised towards me, and impart a special sense of it to my heart.

47. Most ardently] The redundant words עַד בְּאֵר, verse 43, are transposed here as they seem proper.

48. I will embrace] Hebrew, 'receive with both hands;' the sense is given. The common text has, which I have loved, repeated by mistake from the preceding line, as is evident from the structure of the sentence.

49. Upon which] God's promise is the only foundation of faith and hope. (v) Versions.

- 53 Horror hath seized me, because of the wicked,
Who forsake thy law.
- 54 Thy statutes have been my songs,
In the house of my pilgrimage.
- 55 By night, Jehovah, I remember thy name ;
And thy law I would observe.
- 56 This hath been my "consolation,"
That I have kept thy precepts.
- 57 ⁿ Thou art my portion, O Jehovah :
I have purposed to keep thy words.
- 58 With my whole heart I entreat thy favour ;
Be gracious to me according to thy word.
- 59 I have thought on my ways, Jehovah,
And turned my feet to thy testimonies.
- 60 I make haste, and delay not,
To observe thy commandments.
- 61 The snares of the wicked enclose me ;
Yet do I not forget thy law.
- 62 At midnight I rise to give thanks to thee,
Because of thy righteous judgments.
- 63 I am the companion of all who fear thee ;
Of those who observe thy precepts.
- 64 The earth, Jehovah, is full of thy kindness :
Teach me thy statutes.
- 55 ^o Thou doest good to thy servant,
O Jehovah, according to thy word.
- 66 Discretion and knowledge, teach thou me ;
For in thy commandments do I confide.
- 67 Before I was afflicted, I went astray ;
But now I observe thy word.
- 68 Thou, Jehovah, art good, and doest good :
Teach me thy statutes.
- 69 The proud have devised a lie against me :
Yet with my whole heart I keep thy precepts.
- 70 Their heart is void of all feeling :
But in thy law do I delight.
- 71 It is good for me that I was afflicted,
Because I learned thy statutes.
- 72 Better to me is the law of thy mouth,
'Than thousands of gold and silver.
- 73 ^y Thy hands made me and formed me :
Teach me that I may learn thy commandments.
- 74 They, who fear thee, shall see and rejoice,
Because I have hoped in thy word.
- 75 I know, Jehovah, that right are thy judgments,
And that in faithfulness thou afflictedst me ;
- 76 Let now thy mercy be my consolation,
According to thy word to thy servant.
- Let thy mercies come to me, that I may live ; 77
For thy law is all my delight.
Let the proud be ashamed ; for without cause 78
They have dealt perversely with me :
Yet do I meditate on thy precepts.
Let those turn to me who fear thee ; 79
Who know thy testimonies.
Let my heart be sincere in thy statutes, 80
That I may never be ashamed.
^o My soul fainteth for thy salvation ; 81
But in thy words do I hope.
Mine eyes fail for thy word ; 82
When, say I, wilt thou comfort me ?
For I am like a skin-bottle in the smoke ; 83
Yet do I not forget thy precepts.
How many are the days of thy servant ? 84
When wilt thou punish my persecutors ?
The proud have digged pits for me : 85
They who act not according to thy law.
All thy commandments are faithful : [me. 86
Without cause they persecute me ; help thou
Soon would they consume me on earth : 87
But I forsake not thy precepts.
According to thy mercy revive thou me, 88
That I may observe the testimonies of thy mouth.
^y "Thou existest" for ever, O Jehovah ! 89
Thy word is established in the heavens.
Thy faithfulness is through all generations : 90
Thou hast established the earth, and it
abideth. [day ;
According to thy decree it abideth to this 91
For all creatures are thy servants.
Unless thy law had been my delight, 92
I should have perished in mine affliction.
I will never forget thy precepts ; 93
For by them thou revivest me. [cepts.
Thine am I ; O save me, for I seek thy pre- 94
The wicked wait that they may destroy me ; 95
Yet thy testimonies do I consider.
I have seen an end to all perfection ; 96
For thy commandment is exceedingly broad.
^o How greatly do I love thy law ! 97
It is daily my meditation.
Thou, through thy commandment, 98
Hast made me wiser than my enemies ;
For it is ever present with me.
I am become wiser than all my teachers, 99
Because thy testimonies are my meditation.
I understand more than the ancients, 100

54. My songs] In this life nothing yields so much joy as God's holy word.

56. My consolation] This word the Syriac has preserved, which makes out the sense.

57. I have purposed] So אמרתי signifies Ps. xxxi. 14, and cxi. 6. 'I said or determined with myself.'

61. Enclosed me] The word ערר occurs only here, as a verb, which Michaelis observes is usual in the Ethiopic, in the sense attributed.

66. Discretion] See note, Heb. Bib.

70. Their heart] I have rendered after Michaelis, preferring the sense to the idiomatical, and to an English reader, almost unintelligible words, as fat as grease!

83. Skin-bottle] As their bottles were made of skins, if they were placed in the smoke or near the fire, they would soon become scorched and dried up, and lose all their strength.

89. Thou existest, or art] So the Syriac, which completes the sense.—In the heavens] In the order and course of the heavenly bodies. These obey thy word or will.

96. An end to all] Every thing on earth fails and perishes. Nothing continues in the same state.—Broad] Extending to all creatures and to all times.

98. Thy commandment] So the versions and many manuscripts ; and by commandment is meant, all God's revealed will. This he studied, and became wiser even than the Levites in Saul's time, who were the usual teachers of the law. David had a better teacher.

- Because I keep thy precepts.
 101 From every evil path I refrain my feet,
 That I may observe thy word.
 102 From thy judgments I have not departed,
 Because thou hast taught me.
 103 How sweet are thy words to my taste!
 Yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth.
 104 By thy precepts I attain understanding;
 Hence I hate every false path.
 105 γ A lamp is thy word unto my feet,
 And a light unto my paths.
 106 I have sworn, and I will perform it,
 That I would observe thy just judgments.
 107 I am exceedingly afflicted:
 Revive me, Jehovah, according to thy word.
 108 Accept, I beseech thee, my vows, Jehovah,
 And teach me thy judgments.
 109 My life is continually in danger;
 Yet do I not forget thy law.
 110 The wicked have laid a snare for me;
 Yet from thy precepts I have not erred.
 111 Thy testimonies are my heritage for ever;
 For they are the delight of my heart.
 112 I apply my heart to practise thy precepts;
 For me remains an everlasting reward.
 113 δ I hate wicked thoughts, but thy law
 do I love.
 114 Thou art my refuge and my shield;
 In thy word do I hope.
 115 Depart from me, ye evil doers;
 For the commands of my God will I keep.
 116 Uphold me according to thy word, that I may live,
 And let me not be ashamed of my hope.
 117 Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe:
 Then will I always regard thy statutes.
 118 Thou treadest down all erring from thy statutes:
 For vain is all their subtilty.
 119 Thou 'countest' all the wicked of the earth
 as dross;
 Therefore I love thy testimonies.
 120 My flesh trembleth through dread of thee;
 And of thy judgments I am afraid.
 121 ρ I have executed judgment and justice;
 Leave me not to mine oppressors.
 122 Be surety for thy servant for his good,
 And let not the proud oppress me.
 123 Mine eyes fail for thy salvation,
 And the fulfilment of thy righteous word.
 124 Treat thy servant according to thy mercy,
 And teach thou me thy statutes.
 I am thy servant; instruct me,
 That I may know thy testimonies.
 It is time for Jehovah to execute judgment;
 For they have made void thy law.
 Truly I love thy commandments,
 More than gold—than fine gold.
 Wherefore I deem all thy precepts right;
 But every false path do I hate.
 δ Wonderful are thy testimonies;
 Therefore my soul keepeth them.
 The opening of thy words giveth light,
 And imparts instruction to the simple.
 I opened my mouth and panted;
 For I longed for thy commandments.
 O regard me, and be gracious to me,
 As thou art wont to be to such as love thy name.
 Direct my steps according to thy word,
 And let no iniquity rule over me.
 Deliver me from the oppression of man;
 Then will I observe thy precepts.
 Make thy face to shine on thy servant;
 And teach thou me thy statutes.
 Mine eyes pour out streams of water,
 Because men observe not thy law.
 γ Righteous art thou, O Jehovah,
 And just are thy judgments.
 Thou hast commanded righteousness,
 And thy testimonies are very sure.
 My zeal hath consumed me,
 Because my foes forget thy words.
 Thy word is exceedingly pure;
 Hence thy servant loveth it.
 Though I am little, and despised,
 Yet do I not forget thy precepts.
 Thy righteousness is everlasting,
 And thy law is truth itself.
 Distress and anguish have seized me;
 Yet are thy commandments my delight.
 Righteous are thy testimonies for ever:
 Instruct me by them, that I may live.
 ρ With my whole heart I call; hear me,
 Jehovah,
 And I will keep thy precepts.
 I call on thee; O save me;
 And I will observe thy testimonies.
 I rise before the day dawn, and cry out;
 In thy word do I hope.
 Mine eyes prevent the night watches,
 That I may meditate on thy word.

108. My vows] Hebrew, 'the voluntaries of my mouth,' or free-will offerings, &c. Compare Deut. xxiii. 23.

109. In danger] From the attempts of his enemies. Compare Judg. xii. 3, and 1 Sam. xix. 5.

112. Everlasting reward] So the Greek has rendered.

113. Wicked thoughts] These were doubting, fluctuating opinions respecting the object of worship; whether Jehovah is to be served or idols. It is the word Elijah used when he addressed the Israelites, 1 Kings xviii. 21, rendered, 'halting between two opinions.'

118. Their subtilty] Exercised against thee, and thy cause and people.

119. Countest] So the versions, reading חשבה.

128. Right] With the Greek, the second כל is omitted as clearly improper. All the versions read thy precepts.

130. The opening] The declaration or exposition, as the Greek renders. The term implies both the word of God, and the means of knowing it.

138. Thou hast] I join 'testimonies' to the second line, transposing the vau, which the construction requires.

148. Prevent the] That is, before the night watches depart, mine eyes are open, and I begin to meditate on thy blessed word.

- 149 Listen to my voice, according to thy mercy ;
O Jehovah, revive me as thou art wont to do.
- 150 They who follow mischief draw near ;
They who are far from thy law.
- 151 Thou also, Jehovah, art near,
And all thy commandments are truth.
- 152 Long have I known, in respect to thy testimonies,
That thou hast established them for ever.
- 153 γ Regard mine affliction and deliver me :
For thy law I do not forget.
- 154 Plead my cause, and rescue me ;
By thy word revive me.
- 155 Salvation is far from the wicked ;
For they seek not thy statutes.
- 156 Numerous are thy mercies, O Jehovah ;
Revive me as thou art wont to do.
- 157 Many are my persecutors and enemies ;
Yet do I not turn from thy testimonies.
- 158 I looked on transgressors and was grieved,
Because they observed not thy word.
- 159 Consider how I love thy precepts :
According to thy mercy revive me, O Jehovah.
- 160 From the beginning thy word is truth,
And all thy righteous judgments are eternal.
- 161 ω Princes have, without cause, persecuted me ;
Yet my heart is awed by thy word.
- 162 I rejoice as much in thy word
As one that findeth great spoil.
- 163 I detest and abhor falsehood ;
But thy law do I love.
- 164 Seven times on a day I praise thee,
On account of thy righteous judgments.
- 165 Great peace have they who love thy law,
Nor with a stumbling block shall they meet.
- 166 I have waited, Jehovah, for thy salvation,
And I have done thy commandments.
- 167 My soul observeth thy testimonies ;
For I love them exceedingly.
- 168 Thy precepts and testimonies I have observed ;
And all my ways are before thee.
- 169 α Let my cry approach thee, O Jehovah,
And instruct me according to thy word.
- 170 Let my supplication come before thee ;
According to thy word rescue me.
- My lips shall utter praise,
When thou hast taught me thy statutes.
- My tongue shall resound thy word ;
For just are all thy commandments.
- Let thy hand be my help ;
For I have chosen thy precepts.
- I long for thy salvation, O Jehovah,
And thy law is my delight.
- Let my soul live, that it may praise thee,
And let thy judgments help me.
- I have strayed like a lost sheep—seek thy servant ;
For I do not forget thy commandments.

PSALM CXX.

This psalm contains a complaint of calumny and distraction.

A Song of Degrees.

- In my distress I cried unto Jehovah,
And he answered me.
- O Jehovah, rescue my soul,
From false lips, from a deceitful tongue.
- What shall be rendered to thee, false lip ?
What shall be done to thee, deceitful tongue ?
- They are like the sharp arrows of the mighty,
Or the glowing embers of broom.
- Wo is me, that I sojourn in Meshech,
And dwell in the tents of Kedar !
- Long has my soul dwelt with those hating peace ;
- Yea, when I speak of peace, they are for war.

PSALM CXXI.

The pious seek divine aid, and receive a promise of the divine favour and protection.

A Song of Degrees or Ascents.

- SMALL I raise mine eyes to the hills ?
Shall help thence come unto me ?
- My help cometh from Jehovah,
Who made the heavens and the earth.
- He will not suffer thy foot to be moved ;
He who guardeth thee will never slumber ;
- He who guardeth Israel
Will neither slumber nor sleep.
- Jehovah is he who guardeth thee ;
Jehovah is thy shade on thy right hand.
- The sun shall not smite thee by day,

149. As thou art wont] For this sense of the text, see verse 123; and so verse 156.

160. From the beginning] The preposition γ is understood; and the sense given is supported by the next line.

165. A stumbling-block] This is the marginal version, which Secker approves.

PSALM CXX. 1. In distress] This and the fourteen following psalms are called songs of degrees or ascents. The most probable opinion is that of Tilling, that most of these psalms were composed and sung after the return from Babylon, during the period from their departure, till the establishment of the church and state.

2. False lip] From the reproaches of Tobias, and Sanballat, and others, Ezra iv. 1, 2, &c.

3. What shall?] This apostrophe to enemies is beautiful; and reminds them that they should one day receive their due reward.

4. They are like] That is, the false lips and lying tongue are keen and piercing as the sharp arrow shot by a powerful strong man; or scorching as an intense fire.

5. Meshech] Meshech was the son of Japheth, Gen. x. 2, from whom the Moschi descended, who dwelt between the Euxine and Caspian seas, and afterwards peopled Russia. Kedar and his posterity peopled a part of Arabia, Gen. ii. 13. Both these people were fierce, and led a wandering life; and the author compares the state of the Jews to one sojourning among them, unsettled, and insecure.

PSALM CXXI. 1. Shall I raise] This is our marginal version. Hills or mountains, mean the idols which were worshipped there; and the evident opposition between this and the next verse supports this view of the passage, Deut. xii. 2; Jerem. iii. 23.

3—7. Compare Psalm xci. 5, &c. Departure] Out of the state of captivity and return to thy own land; or who shall preserve thee in all thy concerns, as this phrase often signifies, Deut. xxviii. 6, and Sam. viii. 20.

- Nor the moon by night.
 7 Jehovah shall guard thee from all evil ;
 He shall preserve thy life. [return.
 8 Jehovah shall guard thy departure and
 From this time forth even for ever.

PSALM CXXII.

Jerusalem is praised as the capital where the king reigned and administered justice ; but especially as the centre of Divine worship.

A Song of Degrees by David.

- 1 I REJOICED with those who said to me,
 Let us go up to the house of Jehovah.
 2 Our feet are now standing
 Within thy gates, O Jerusalem.
 3 Jerusalem is built like a city,
 Whose structures are closely united :
 4 Whither the tribes go up ; [Israel,
 The tribes of Jehovah, to the testimony of
 To give thanks to the name of Jehovah.
 5 For there are set thrones of judgment,
 The thrones of the house of David.
 6 Pray for the peace of Jerusalem ;
 They shall prosper, who love thee.
 7 Peace be within thy walls,
 And prosperity within thy palaces !
 8 For my brethren and companions' sakes,
 I will now say, Peace be within thee.
 9 Because of the house of Jehovah our God,
 I will ever seek thy prosperity.

PSALM CXXIII.

Complaints of the contempt and insults of their enemies, and prayer for Divine aid.

A Song of Degrees.

- 1 To thee do I raise mine eyes,
 O thou who dwellest in the heavens.
 2 Lo ! as the eyes of servants
 Attend to the hand of their masters :—
 As the eyes of a maid to the hand of her mistress ;
 So our eyes look to Jehovah, our God,
 Until that he have mercy on us. [us ;
 3 Be gracious to us, Jehovah, be gracious to
 For we are greatly filled with contempt.

PSALM CXXII. 2. Now standing] The present time is here more emphatical, and introduces what follows with more propriety than the past, as some render.

5. Thrones] This respects not only the throne of the king, but those of his house.

6—8. Pray for] If the Jews were to pray for the peace of a foreign city, in which they might be forced to dwell, how much more was it their duty to pray for the peace of Jerusalem. This applies to all men and to all times.

9. House of Jehovah] This raised Jerusalem to the most peculiar honour, and for the sake of God's house, his servants sought its welfare and prosperity.

PSALM CXXIII. 1. Who dwellest] Or, who sittest there, as a king on his throne. For heaven is God's throne, Is. lxvi. 1.

2. Lo ! as the eyes] Harmer has given the true sense of this comparison : as a slave, ordered by a master or mistress to be chastised for a fault, turns his or her imploring eyes to that superior, till that motion of the hand appears, which puts an end to the bitterness that is felt ; so our eyes are up to thee, our God, till thy hand shall give the signal for putting an end to our sorrows.

3. Filled with. We are so despised, that we cannot

- We are greatly filled with contempt— 4
 With the derision of the insolent—
 With the contempt of proud oppressors.

PSALM CXXIV.

This psalm contains praise for victory, and was probably composed by David after his victory over the Philistines. 2 Sam. v. 19.

A Song of Degrees by David.

- UNLESS Jehovah had been with us, 1
 Now may Israel say ;
 Unless Jehovah had been with us, 2
 When men rose up against us ;
 Then had they swallowed us up alive : 3
 For against us was their wrath kindled :
 Then had the waters overwhelmed us— 4
 The torrent had rolled over us ;
 Over us had the proud waters rolled. 5
 Blessed be Jehovah, our God, 6
 Who hath not given us up as a prey to their teeth. [snare ;
 We are as a bird escaped from the fowler's 7
 The snare is broken, and we have escaped.
 Our help is in the name of Jehovah, 8
 Who made the heavens and the earth.

PSALM CXXV.

Confidence should be always placed in God ; and prayer for support. Some refer this psalm to Hezekiah's reign.

A Song of Degrees.

- THEY who trust in Jehovah shall be as 1
 mount Zion, [ever.
 Which cannot be removed, but abideth for
 As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, 2
 So Jehovah is round about his people,
 From this time forth, even for ever.
 The rod of wickedness shall not abide on the 3
 lot of the righteous ;
 Lest the righteous should stretch out their hands to iniquity. [good—
 Jehovah doeth good to those who are 4
 To those who are upright of heart.
 But those who turn aside to crooked paths, 5
 Will Jehovah punish with the wicked.
 Yet shall prosperity be upon Israel.

bear it, any more than the surcharged stomach the load with which it is oppressed.

4. Insolent] Of those insolent through prosperity. As the word is parallel with the proud, it must have the sense given.

PSALM CXXIV. 2. Had been with us] Affording us his aid.

4. Over us] Hebrew, 'our soul.' Here again the term is used for the pronoun, as it is in the next line, and in the seventh verse. Waters are used for many people, Is. lix. 19, &c.

PSALM CXXV. 2. As the mountains] The comparison beautifully illustrates the power and constant care of God towards those who trust in him.

3. The rod of] That is, the sceptre or power of the wicked shall not always rule over and oppress God's people, lest they should be overcome by their sufferings, and apostatize from God to idols.

5. Punish with] Hebrew, 'lead forth,' that is, as criminals condemned, to undergo the sentence of the law. The author represents the case of apostates as similar to that of the heathens, and they will be punished together.

PSALM CXXVI.

A song of praise for the deliverance from captivity in Babylon.

A Song of Degrees.

- 1 WHEN Jehovah reversed the captivity of Zion,
We were like those who dream.
- 2 Then were our mouths filled with laughter,
And our tongues with rejoicing:
Then said they among the nations,
Jehovah hath done great things for them.
- 3 Jehovah hath done great things for us;
And hence are we glad.
- 4 Restore, O Jehovah, our captivity,
As thou restorest the torrents of the south.
- 5 They who sow with tears, shall reap with joy. [seed,
- 6 For he that goeth forth weeping to sow the
Shall assuredly come again with joy.
Bringing his sheaves with him.

PSALM CXXVII.

God's blessing only gives and secures success.

A Song of Degrees by Solomon.

- 1 IF Jehovah build not up a house,
The builders of it labour in vain:
If Jehovah guard not a city,
The guard watcheth in vain.
- 2 It is vain for you to rise up early,
And to go late to rest from labour,
Eating the bread of sorrows;
For to his beloved he giveth sleep.
- 3 Lo, children are an heritage from Jehovah,
And the fruit of the womb is a reward.
- 4 Like arrows in the hand of the mighty,
So are vigorous young men.
- 5 Happy the man, whose quiver is full of them!
They shall not be put to shame,
But destroy their enemies in the gate.

PSALM CXXVI. 1. Reversed the] That is, put an end to it, by the decree of Cyrus.

4. Restore our] The psalmist prays that God would complete what he had begun, by bringing back again all his captive people, as he is wont to restore by the rains in autumn, those torrents, which had been dried up by the heat of summer.

5, 6. They who sow] This seems a proverbial phrase to denote 'undertaking any thing, which is attended with difficulty and uncertainty.'

PSALM CXXVII. 1. If Jehovah] As there is a reference to the increase both of a family and of the property, 'build up' is adopted. Compare Exod. i. 21; Deut. xxv. 9, and 1 Sam. ii. 35.

2. Bread of sorrows] Either that acquired by much pain and sorrow, Prov. iv. 17; or such as men in affliction are accustomed to eat.—For to his beloved] Those who are devoted to him shall enjoy bread sufficient. The versions read in the plural.

4. So are vigorous] So Ainsworth explains, 'Young men, who are a help to their parents against their enemies, as arrows are to the warrior in battle,' Prov. xx. 29, and 1 John ii. 14.

5. Quiver is full] That is, his house, where they reside, until called forth to active services, as arrows in a quiver, until the time to use them.—But destroy] This is our marginal version, and for this sense see 2 Chron. xxii. 10.

PSALM CXXVIII. 2. Of the labour] That is, things got

PSALM CXXVIII.

The blessing of God on the pious, in their labour, their families and the church.

A Song of Degrees.

- HAPPY is every one who feareth Jehovah; 1
Who walketh in his ways.
Of the labour of thy hands shalt thou eat; 2
Thou shalt be happy and prosperous.
Thy wife, in the apartment of thy house, 3
Shall be like a fruitful vine;
Thy children, around thy table,
Shall be like olive-plants.
Behold! thus shall the man be blessed; 4
The man who feareth Jehovah!
Jehovah shall bless thee from Zion; 5
And thou shalt see Jerusalem's prosperity
All the days of thy life:
Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children, 6
And peace upon Israel.

PSALM CXXIX.

This psalm contains thanks for unexpected aid, and confident hope that the enemies of Zion shall be subdued.

A Song of Degrees.

- MUCH have they afflicted me from my 1
Now may Israel say; [youth,
Much have they afflicted me from my youth, 2
Yet have they not prevailed against me.
The plowers ploughed upon my back, 3
And made long their furrows.
Jehovah, who is righteous, 4
Hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.
Let all those who hate Zion 5
Be ashamed and put to flight.
Let them be as produce on the house roof, 6
Which, before it groweth up, is withered:
With which the mower filleth not his hand, 7
Nor he, who gathereth sheaves, his bosom:
Nor do they who pass by say, 8
The blessing of Jehovah be upon you;
We bless you in the name of Jehovah.

by labour, as Gen. iii. 19, and which is said to be from the hand of God, Eccles. ii. 24, as the contrary is a curse, Deut. xxviii. 30—33.

3. Thy wife in the] It is well known that the women ever had, and now have, in the east, separate apartments. The sides of the house may mean the apartments of the wife. We have no proof that vines were trained against the sides or walls of houses, nor that olive plants surrounded their table. The comparison simply applies to the fruitfulness of the vine, and to the order in which the olives were planted. Compare 1 Sam. xxiv. 4; Is. xiv. 15; Jon. i. 5.

4—6. Behold thus] With a numerous offspring, with seeing the prosperity of the church, and with a vigorous old age.

PSALM CXXIX. 2. Much have] So Secker renders, and Ainsworth explains.

3. The plowers] This strong figure means, that they inflicted many and grievous plagues on them; but Jehovah had now appeared and cut asunder the cords with which their yoke of oppression had been tied.

6. As produce] This general term is adopted, as from what follows it seems to denote both grass and corn, and which, growing on the house roof, had not sufficient soil; and being more exposed to the intense heat of the sun, soon withered.

8. The blessing of] This was the usual language in harvest. See Ruth ii. 1.

PSALM CXXX.

This psalm contains the language of a penitent people, and encouragement to hope for God's mercy. Some refer it to Ezra ix. 10.

A Song of Degrees.

- 1 Out of the deeps I cried to thee, Jehovah :
- 2 O Jehovah, hearken to my voice ;
Let thine ears attend to my supplication.
- 3 If thou shouldst mark down iniquities,
O Jehovah, who could stand ?
- 4 But with thee there is forgiveness,
To the end that thou mayest be feared.
- 5 I wait for Jehovah, my soul waiteth,
And in his word do I hope :
- 6 My soul waiteth for Jehovah,
More than watchmen for the morning ;
Yea, more than watchmen for the morning.
- 7 Let Israel hope in Jehovah ;
For with Jehovah there is mercy,
And with him plenteous redemption.
- 8 Truly he will redeem Israel
From all their iniquities.

PSALM CXXXI.

David defends himself against the accusation of his enemies that he was aspiring to the kingdom. It must have been written before he was king.

A Song of Degrees by David.

- 1 O Jehovah, my heart is not haughty,
Nor are mine eyes lifted up ;
Nor do I exercise myself in great things,
In things which are so far above me.
- 2 Verily I have humbled and quieted myself ;
I am as a child weaned by its mother :
My soul within me is as a weaned child.
- 3 Let Israel hope in Jehovah,
From this time forth even for ever.

PSALM CXXXII.

This psalm was composed for the dedication of Solomon's temple, and was most probably used at that of the second temple, 2 Chron. v. 6.

A Song of Degrees.

- 1 O Jehovah, remember David,
And all his pious labours ;
- 2 How he swore to Jehovah,

PSALM CXXX. 3. Mark down] Many commentators have observed that the verb has this force here, to mark down for the purpose of punishing, who could stand ?

6. Than watchmen] Either alluding to the city guards, or to the priests, who watched at the temple.

PSALM CXXXI. 1. Haughty] Proud and assuming ; nor do my looks betray contempt of others.

2. As a child] A child of three years old forms no schemes of power or wealth ; and three free, David observes, was his mind from any such thoughts.

PSALM CXXXII. 1. And all his labours] Undertaken in reference to the ark, and in making preparations for the temple. This sense Secker, after the Sept., attributes to the text, and observes that there follows nothing about his afflictions.

3—5. Truly I will not] This vow must not be interpreted too strictly. The whole means no more, than that he was fully resolved to build a place for the ark, 2 Sam. vii. 3, &c. Compare Prov. vi. 4.

5. I find out] That is, prepare a place for the ark, as the next clause explains, and Acts vii. 46.

6. Lo, we heard of it] That is, of the place which God himself chose for his own residence. The district of] It is

And vowed to the mighty one of Jacob.

Truly I will not enter my house, 3

Nor will I go up to my bed ;—

I will not give sleep to mine eyes, 4

Nor slumber to mine eye-lids,

Until I find out a place for Jehovah, 5

A dwelling for the mighty one of Jacob.

Lo, we heard of it as near Ephratah ; 6

We found it in the district of the forest.

Let us go into his tabernacle ; 7

Let us worship at his footstool.

Arise, Jehovah, and enter into thy rest ; 8

Thou and the ark of thy strength.

Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness, 9

And thy saints shout aloud for joy.

For the sake of David, thy servant, 10

Reject not the prayer of thine anointed.

Jehovah hath sworn in truth to David, 11

And never will he turn from it, saying :

Of the fruit of thy body will I set on thy throne.

If thy children keep my covenant, 12

And the testimonies which I shall teach them,

Their children shall sit on thy throne for ever.

For Jehovah hath chosen Zion, 13

He hath desired it for his habitation.

This (said he) is my rest for ever ; 14

Here I will dwell for I have desired it.

I will abundantly bless her provisions : 15

I will satisfy her poor with bread.

I will clothe her priests with salvation, 16

And her saints shall sing aloud for joy.

There I will make the horn of David to bud ; 17

I have ordained a lamp for mine anointed.

His enemies I will clothe with shame ; 18

But upon himself shall his crown flourish.

PSALM CXXXIII.

This psalm celebrates brotherly love ; and was probably composed after David became King over all Israel ; and was used after the captivity to enforce union and concord, Nehem. viii. 1. &c.

A Song of Degrees by David.

BEHOLD, how good, how pleasant it is, 1

For brethren to dwell together in unity !

It is like the precious ointment on the head, 2 probable that the mountain might have been a forest, and that much wood might still remain before the temple was erected, 1 Chron. xx. 18. and xxii. 1.

8. Arise, Jehovah] Compare Numb. x. 35, and notes there.

9. Thy priests be clothed] That is, let them justly and holily administer their priests' office, Job xxix. 14.

10—12. Reject not the prayer] Hebrew, 'Turn not away the face,' &c. which is rendered 1 Kings ii. 16, 'deny me not,' and verse 20, 'say me not nay.' See 2 Sam. vii. 12, &c.

14—18. This is my rest] This declaration and answer to the preceding request God might make from the oracle, or by the mouth of some prophet.

17. Horn of David to bud] Or, to grow, that is, the kingdom and power to increase in the house of David by Messiah.

18. His enemies] Of him called the horn of David, or Messiah. They shall be put to everlasting shame, but the crown shall flourish on his head.

PSALM CXXXIII. 2. Precious ointment] Some render 'most precious.' Compare Exod. xxx. 23.—To the collar] Hebrew, the mouth, the upper hole or border,

And which ran down on the beard of Aaron ;
Thence descended to the collar of his garments :

- 3 It is like the dew which descends on Hermon, [Zion ;
Or which descends on the mountains of
For there Jehovah commandeth a blessing,
And vouchsafeth life, even for evermore.

PSALM CXXXIV.

This psalm is an exhortation to priests and Levites to praise God ; and their pious request for the prophet.

A Song of Degrees.

- 1 BLESS Jehovah, all ye his servants ;
Ye, who by night stand in the house of Jehovah.
2 Raise your hands towards the holy place,
And bless the name of Jehovah.
3 From Zion may Jehovah bless thee,
Who made the heavens and the earth.

PSALM CXXXV.

A song of thanksgiving, in which the goodness of God is celebrated, 1—7 ; his favours conferred on Israel, 8—14 ; and the vanity of idols, 15—21.

Praise Jehovah.

- 1 PRAISE the name of Jehovah ;
Ye servants of Jehovah, praise him ;
2 Ye who stand in the house of Jehovah ;
In the courts of the house of our God.
3 Praise Jehovah, for Jehovah is good ;
Sing praise to his name, for it is pleasant.
4 For Jehovah hath chosen Jacob for himself,
And Israel, for his peculiar treasure.
5 Truly I know that great is Jehovah,
And that our Lord is above all gods.
6 Jehovah doeth whatsoever he pleaseth
In the heavens, and on the earth,
In the waters and in all the deeps.
7 He causeth the clouds to ascend
From the extremity of the earth ;
He maketh lightnings with the rain,
And bringeth the wind from his treasures.
8 'Tis he who smote the first-born of Egypt ;
Both the first born of man and of cattle :
9 Who sent prodigies and wonders
Into the midst of thee, O Egypt,
On Pharaoh and on his servants :
10 Who smote many nations
And slew powerful kings ;

- Sihon, king of the Amorites, 11
And Og, king of Bashan ;
And those of all the kingdoms of Canaan ;
And gave their land for a heritage ; 12
For a heritage to his people Israel.
Thy name, O Jehovah, is eternal ; 13
Thy memorial, through all generations.
For Jehovah doeth justice to his people, 14
And repenteth concerning his servants.

- But their idols of silver and gold 15
Are the work of men's hands.
Mouths have they, but speak not ; 16
Eyes have they, but see not ;
Ears have they, but hear not ; 17
Yea, there is no breath in their mouths.
Be those who make them like unto them ; 18
And all who put their trust in them.
Bless Jehovah, O house of Israel ; 19
Bless Jehovah, O house of Aaron :
Bless Jehovah, O house of Levi : 20
Bless Jehovah, O ye who fear him.
From Zion be Jehovah blessed ! 21
He who dwelleth at Jerusalem !
Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CXXXVI.

This psalm is similar to the preceding, and records the mercies of God towards Israel. Every second line may be considered as a chorus, after each hemistich, and makes a perpetual epode.

- GIVE thanks to Jehovah, for he is good : 1
For his mercy endureth for ever.
Give thanks to the God of gods : 2
For his mercy endureth for ever.
Give thanks to the Lord of lords : 3
For his mercy endureth for ever.
To him who alone doth great wonders : 4
For his mercy endureth for ever.
To him who by wisdom made the heavens ; 5
For his mercy endureth for ever.
Who stretched out the earth upon the 6
For his mercy endureth for ever. [waters :
Who made the great luminaries : 7
For his mercy endureth for ever.
The sun to regulate the day ; 8
For his mercy endureth for ever.
The moon and stars to regulate the night : 9
For his mercy endureth for ever.
Who smote the first-born of the Egyptians : 10
For his mercy endureth for ever.
But brought forth Israel from among them : 11
For his mercy endureth for ever.

which was bound about that it might not be rent, Exod. xxxi. 23.

3, 4. As the dew] There is an ellipsis of שירר before Hermon ; for it is impossible that the dew of Hermon, which was more than thirty miles distant, should fall on mount Zion, and other contiguous mountains.—There Jehovah] That is, on brethren who dwell in unity and concord. He secures to them the blessing of a long life here, and of a happy one hereafter.

PSALM CXXXIV. 1. By night stand] It was the office of the priests and Levites to minister in the sanctuary, and to keep watch by night, in their courses, Deut. x. 8, and Levit. viii. 35, and 1 Chron. ix. 33.

PSALM CXXXV. 4. Peculiar treasure] This was promised by the law, Exod. xix. 5 ; but performed by Christ, as redeeming and purifying his people, Tit. ii. 14, and 1 Pet. ii. 9.

7. Clouds] So the Greek ; Hebrew, 'the elevations,' which most naturally signifies the clouds.

11—14. Those of all] Thirty-one kings, as it is reckoned, Josh. xii. 9—24. The same as Deut. xxxii. 36.

15—18. The same as Ps. cxv. 4—8, where see notes.

PSALM CXXXVI. 6. Stretched out the earth] Compare Gen. i. 9, 14—16 ; Ps. xlii. 2, 8, 9.

10. First born of the] The sense is preferred to the order of the Hebrew words,

- 12 With a strong hand, and an outstretched arm :
For his mercy endureth for ever. [arm :
13 Who divided the Red Sea into two parts :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
14 And caused Israel to pass through it :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
15 But destroyed Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
16 Who led his people through the desert :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
17 Who smote great kings :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
18 And slew mighty kings :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
19 Sihon, king of the Amorites :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
20 And Og, king of Bashan :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
21 And gave their land for a heritage :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
22 For a heritage to Israel, his servant :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
23 In our low estate he remembered us :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
24 And rescued us from our enemies :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
25 He giveth food to all flesh :
For his mercy endureth for ever.
26 Give thanks to the God of the heavens :
For his mercy endureth for ever.

PSALM CXXXVII.

This psalm commemorates the unhappy state of the captives in Babylon, and was composed soon after their return, as seems most probable.

- 1 By the rivers of Babylon we sat down,
And we wept when we remembered Zion.
2 On the willows, by the rivers, we hung our harps :
3 For there they who had made us captive
Demanded of us a song ; [ing,
And they who carried us away, mirth ; say-
Sing to us one of the songs of Zion.
4 How could we sing the song of Jehovah
In a foreign land ?
5 O Jerusalem, if I forget thee,
Let my right hand forget its office.
6 Let my tongue cleave to my mouth,

11—16. Who divided, &c. Exod. xiv. 21 ; xv. 22 ; and Ps. lxxviii. 13.

PSALM CXXXVII. 1. Rivers of Babylon] Babylon seems here used for the kingdom ; and the rivers Euphrates, Tigris, Chabor, and Ulai are perhaps meant, near to which some of the captives dwelt. See Ezek. i. 3 ; Dan. viii. 2.

3. A song,—mirth] From this it appears that the Jews were thought to excel in the knowledge of music ; or did their conquerors make this demand for the purpose of insult ? No hint of this is given.

4. Foreign land] Jehovah's worship was confined, according to the law of Moses, to the land of Judea. But this reply may mean, as captives, they had no heart to sing.

6. If I do not] Literally, If I do not exalt Jerusalem above the chief, or top, of my joy : that is, if I do not make it the principal subject of my joy.

8. Desolating] Who hast made so many kingdoms only

If I do not remember thee :

If I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.

Remember, Jehovah, the children of Edom, 7
Who said in the day of Jerusalem's distress,
Raze, raze it, to its very foundation.
O desolating daughter of Babylon, 8
Happy shall he be who shall render to thee
The recompense that thou hast rendered
Happy he who taketh thy little ones, [to us ! 9
And dasheth them against the rock !

PSALM CXXXVIII.

David testifies his own experience of God's mercy and faithfulness, and invites all to praise him. It was probably composed in the beginning of his reign.

I WILL praise thee. "Jehovah," with all 1
my heart ;
Before the gods I will sing praise to thee.
I will worship towards thy holy temple, 2
And I will praise thy name,
On account of thy mercy and thy truth ;
For thou hast magnified by thy promise,
Thy name above every name.
In the day when I called thou answeredst 3
And didst impart strength to my soul. [me,
All the kings of the earth shall praise 4
thee, Jehovah,
When they hear the words of thy mouth.
They shall sing in the ways of Jehovah ; 5
For great is the glory of Jehovah.
Though Jehovah be high, yet he regardeth 6
the lowly ;
But the proud he noticeth at a distance.
When I walk amidst trouble thou wilt re- 7
vive me, [my foes :
And with thy hand repress the anger of
And thine own right hand shall save me.
Jehovah will perform this for me : 8
Thy mercy, Jehovah, endureth for ever ;
Forsake not the work of thy hands.

PSALM CXXXIX.

David celebrates God's omniscience and all-seeing and directing providence.

To the chief musician ; a Psalm of David.

O JEHOVAH, thou searchest and provest 1
me. [rising ;
Thou knowest my down-sitting and up- 2

a waste. Others render in the passive, 'O daughter of Babylon who art to be made desolate.' This and the next verse respect the law, Exod. xxi. 24.

PSALM CXXXVIII. 1. (a) The versions.

2. By thy promise] Or, 'thy word,' but that promise is intended most expositors agree. By fulfilling the promise which he had made to David, he had afforded the most striking proof of his mercy, power, and faithfulness.

3. Strength to my] Made me vigorous and full of courage to undertake any enterprise to which thou mightest call me.

4. All the kings] Kimchi explains this to mean, all the kings who knew or heard of David, 1 Chron. xiv. 7.

6. At a distance] Admits them to no familiarity, but disdains them and will punish them. Compare James iv. 6, and Pet. v. 5.

7. And with thy hand] Hebrew, 'stretch out thy hand against the wrath,' &c. The sense is preferred to the idiom.

- Thou understandest my thoughts from afar.
 3 Thou sittest my path and my lying down,
 And art acquainted with all my ways.
 4 For there is not a word on my tongue,
 But thou, Jehovah, perfectly knowest it.
 5 Thou enclovest me behind and before,
 And layest thy hand upon me.
 6 Thy knowledge is above my understanding;
 It is so high that I cannot attain unto it.
 7 Whither can I go from thy spirit?
 Whither can I flee from thy presence?
 8 If I ascend the heavens, thou art there!
 Or make my bed in hades, lo, thou art
 9 If I take the wings of the morning [there!
 And dwell in the remotest parts of the sea;
 10 Yet there thy hand would lead me,
 And thy right hand uphold me.
 11 If I say, Surely darkness shall cover me,
 And the night "be as a shroud" about me:
 12 Yet darkness cannot hide from thee;
 For as to thee, the night shineth as the day;
 The darkness and the light are alike.
 13 Thou didst form my reins;
 Thou coverdest me in my mother's womb.
 14 I will praise thee, for I am wonderfully
 made:
 Marvellous are thy works, Jehovah,
 Which my soul readily acknowledgeth.
 15 My substance was not hidden from thee,
 When I was formed in the concealed place,
 Curiously wrought in the lowest parts of
 the earth.
 16 Thine eyes saw my embryo members;
 And in thy book were all of them written;
 They were fashioned daily, and none of them wanting. [God!
 17 How precious to me are thy thoughts, O
 How exceedingly great is the sum of them!

Should I count them, they exceed in num- 18
 ber the sand:
 When I awake, still I meditate on thee!
 Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God; 19
 Bloody men, thou wilt remove from me,
 Who wickedly rebel against thee; 20
 Thine enemies, who take thy name in vain.
 Do not I hate those, Jehovah, who hate 21
 thee?
 And abhor those who rise up against thee?
 I hate them with a perfect hatred; 22
 I count them for mine own enemies.
 Search me, O God, and prove my heart; 23
 Try me, and prove my thoughts:
 And see, if in me be any way of provoca- 24
 And lead me in the way of eternity. [tion,

PSALM CXL.

David prayeth to be delivered from his enemies. Some refer it to Doeg and Saul.

A Song of Degrees.

To the chief musician; a Psalm of David.

DELIVER me, Jehovah, from the evil man; 1
 From the man of violence preserve me;
 From such as devise mischief in their hearts; 2
 As daily assemble for the purpose of war.
 They make sharp their tongue like a serpent; 3
 The poison of asps is under their lips.
 Keep me, Jehovah, from the hands of the 4
 wicked;
 From the men of violence preserve me,
 Who contrive to subvert my steps.
 The proud have laid a snare for me; 5
 A toil have they spread *for my feet;
 Near my path have they set traps for me.
 I said to Jehovah, Thou art my God; 6
 Attend, O Jehovah, to my supplication.
 O Lord Jehovah, my most powerful Saviour, 7

PSALM CXXXIX. 2. My thoughts] And if God knew these, it is obvious he must be acquainted with all his ways.

3. Sittest] Our marginal version is 'winnowest.'

5. Enclovest me behind] That is, on every hand; yea, thou layest thy hand upon me, so that I cannot escape from
 thee.

6. Thy knowledge] So Symmachus renders, and so others explain.—Is above my] Hebrew, 'wonderful beyond me.'
 See Deut. xxx. 11.

7. Thy spirit] From thy mind or knowledge, as the word is used Is. xl. 13. compare with Rom. xi. 34. This sense seems to be best supported by the context.

8. Heavens—hades] Here these places are opposed, as being at the greatest distance from each other, the one for height and the other for depth.

9. The wings] So he calls the rays of light, which most swiftly fly from one extremity of the earth to another.

11. Be as a shroud] So the Chaldee, which is here necessary, as there is an evident antithesis between this and the following verse.

13. Didst form] For this sense of the verb, see Gen.
 xiv. 19, 20, and Deut. xxxii. 6.—Coverdest me] Compare Job x. 11. Some refer this to the involucra of the fetus in the womb. The sense is, 'Thou formedst my inward parts, thou tookest care of me in the womb.'

14. I am wonderfully made] This expresses the full sense of the text.—Acknowledgeth] This sense of the verb obtains in other places. He not only knew, but readily and gratefully owned God's hand in his wonderful formation.

15. Curiously wrought] Or, 'embroidered,' as Ainsworth translates. This beautiful metaphor illustrates the wonderful mechanism of the human body, the various implications of the veins, arteries, fibres, and membranes; the indescribable texture of the whole fabric. Ezek. xxvi. 20; xxxii.

 18, 24.

16. My embryo members] For the sense given to the term מְעִי see Mich. Suppl. Lex. who has illustrated and explained this term fully.

17. Thy thoughts] Thy designs and counsels, as manifest in thy works, and especially in the formation of man.

18. Still I meditate] The text is elliptical, and I have supplied as the sense obviously requires. After spending the day in reflection on the Author of his being, and closing his eyes without having fathomed the depths of his wisdom, he awakes to pursue the subject and meditate on him.

21. Do not I] This strong language only means, that David could not bear with those wicked men, who opposed
 God as far as it was in their power.

24. Way of provocation] The way or conduct which may provoke thee.—Way of eternity] Which leads to a happy eternity.

PSALM CXL. 3. Make sharp] To curse and execrate
 me.

5. Snare—toil—traps] Mean they tried to lay hold of him and destroy him. They hunted him as if a wild beast.
 (a) Versions.

7. My most powerful] Hebrew, 'the strength or power of my help or salvation.' The Syriac is followed in the version given, as more clear, as well as expressing the sense of the idiom.

- Thou hast covered my head in the day of battle;
 8 Grant not, Jehovah, the desires of the wicked;
 Let not their wicked device succeed.
 9 Let not those who surround me raise the head:
 [them.
 Let the mischief of their own lips cover
 10 On them God will pour flakes of fire;
 He will cast them into deep pits;
 Nor shall they be able to rise up again.
 11 The evil speaker shall not be established in the land;
 [tion.
 The man of violence he will hunt to destruc-
 12 I know that Jehovah will support
 The cause of the poor—the right of the needy.
 13 Surely the righteous shall praise thy name;
 The upright shall dwell in thy presence.

PSALM CXLI.

This psalm is similar to the last, and probably written at the same time and on the same occasion.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 O JEHOVAH, on thee I call; haste to me;
 When I call on thee, hear my voice. [thee;
 2 Let my prayer be directed as incense before
 The raising of my hands as the evening sacrifice.
 [mouth.
 3 Place, O Jehovah, a watch before my
 A guard, before the door of my lips.
 4 Let not my heart incline to an evil thing,
 To practise deeds of wickedness,
 With those men who work iniquity;
 Let me not even eat of their delicacies.
 5 Let the just smite me, and it will be a kindness;
 Or reprove me, and it will be as precious oil,
 Which will not bruise my head:
 For still will I pray in their calamities.
 6 Their chiefs were let go among the rocks;
 And they heard how pleasant were my words.
 [the earth.
 7 As when one cutteth and cleaveth wood on
 Our bones are scattered at the mouth of the pit;
 [look;
 8 Yet to thee, O Lord Jehovah, mine eyes

9. Raise the head] That is, in triumph, boasting that they have accomplished their purposes. For the text, see note, Heb. Bib.

10. Pour flakes] Secker ingeniously conjectured that the true reading is מִטֵּשֵׁר, he will rain on them, &c. Compare Ps. xi. 5.

12. I know that] Having predicted the overthrow of his enemies, he expresses his confidence that Jehovah would appear in his favour and vindicate the oppressed.

PSALM CXLI. 2. As incense] The incense was offered up in the morning, and is opposed to the evening sacrifice, at the time of offering which (i. e. three o'clock in the afternoon) devout Jews at a distance from Jerusalem used to send up their prayers to God.

5. Let the just smite] That is, correct me, if I should ever 'practise deeds of wickedness.'—Precious oil] Or, ointment. Comp. Exod. xxx. 23, which will not injure but strengthen and revive me.

6. Their chiefs] He refers to what is related, 1 Sam. xxiv. 1, &c. where Saul and his chiefs were dismissed or

- In thee do I hope; leave me not destitute.
 Keep me from the snare they have laid for me;
 And from the traps of the workers of iniquity.
 Let the wicked fall together into their own nets;
 But as to me, may I pass on with safety.

PSALM CXLI.

This psalm contains the most fervent prayers for divine help when the author was in the greatest danger, 1 Sam. xxii. 12. An instructive psalm of David, when he was in the cave.

- I CRIED with my voice unto Jehovah;
 With my voice did I make my supplication.
 I poured out my complaint before him;
 I declared unto him my distress.
 When my spirit within me was overwhelmed,
 Then thou knewest my path.
 In the way wherein I walked,
 They had secretly laid a snare for me.
 I looked on my right hand and beheld,
 But none would acknowledge me.
 Flight itself was taken from me,
 And no one cared for my life.
 Then I cried unto thee, O Jehovah;
 I said, Thou art my only refuge,
 And my portion in the land of the living.
 Attend, O God, unto my cry,
 For very low am I brought.
 Deliver me from my persecutors,
 For they are much stronger than I.
 Bring my soul out of prison
 That I may praise thy name.
 Then will the righteous surround me.
 When thou shalt thus deal kindly with me.

PSALM CXLI.

David complains of his sufferings, and prays for deliverance from his enemies. This psalm is thought to have been composed under Absalom's rebellion.

A Psalm of David.

- O JEHOVAH, hear my prayer;
 Give ear to my supplication:
 In thy truth and righteousness answer me.
 Enter not into judgment with thy servant;
 For in thy sight no man living can be justified.

let go when David had it in his power to put them off.—How pleasant] He here refers to verses 10—15, which see.

7. As when one] The ellipsis must be so supplied. 'As when one cutteth and cleaveth wood on the earth, the fragments, the chips are scattered around; so our bones are scattered,' &c. Perhaps some of David's adherents had fallen into Saul's hand, whom he had ordered to be slain, or that David refers to the slaughter of the priests, 1 Sam. xxii. 16—19.

PSALM CXLI. 3. Overwhelmed] That is, with distress and trouble.

4. Would acknowledge] He refers to those around Saul, to the courtiers.—No one cared] No one sought my preservation; but all seemed to be bent on my destruction.

7. Surround me] When they see thy kindness in preserving me, they will be encouraged to flock to me, and to support my just cause.

PSALM CXLI. 2. Enter not] 'Go not to law with me,' as Ainsworth proposes to render; for by the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified, Rom. iii. 20.

- 3 Truly the enemy hath persecuted my soul,
And crushed down my life to the ground;
Hath made me to dwell in darkness,
As those who are for ever dead.
- 4 Hence is my spirit within me overwhelmed;
My heart within me is desolate.
- 5 I call to mind the days of old;
I meditate on all thy glorious deeds;
I muse on the works of thy hands.
- 6 I stretch forth my hands unto thee:
My soul as a parched land thirsteth for thee.
- 7 Speedily answer me, O Jehovah;
For my spirit utterly faileth:
Hide not thy countenance from me;
For I am like those who descend to the pit.
- 8 Early let me experience thy mercy;
For in thee do I put my trust.
Make known to me the way in which I should walk;
For unto thee do I lift up my soul.
- 9 Deliver me from mine enemies, O Jehovah;
For unto thee do I fly for refuge. [God:]
- 10 Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my Let thy good spirit guide me in a plain
"path."
- 11 For thy name's sake, Jehovah, revive me;
In thy mercy bring me out of distress.
- 12 In thy justice cut off mine enemies;
And destroy all mine adversaries;
For thy servant I am.

PSALM CXLIV.

This is a song of praise for victory obtained over truce-breakers. Some refer it to the war with the Ammonites, 2 Sam. x.

A Psalm of David.

- 1 BLESSED be Jehovah, my rock,
Who traineth my hands for the war,
And my fingers for the battle.
- 2 He is my "refuge" and my fortress;
My high tower and safe retreat;
My shield in whom I put my trust;
Who subdueth "peoples" under me.
- 3 O Jehovah, what is man that thou carest
for him?
The son of man that thou so regardest him?
- 4 Man resembleth the empty vapour;
His days, like the shadow, pass away.

3. As those who] That is, in respect to this world; for they shall return to dwell no more here.

7. For I am] So our marginal version; and this is right, as it expresses the reason of his earnest request for speedy aid.

10. (v) Sept.

PSALM CXLIV. 2. My refuge] This reading, preserved by the Syriac, is evidently more suitable to the context than 'my mercy;' and is supported by the parallel place, Ps. xviii. 1.—Peoples under me] So the Versions and MSS. read, and the connexion supports it.

4. Empty vapour] 'The breath of the mouth.' Michaelis observes that this is the original sense of the word, and the other senses of emptiness, vanity, are derived from it.

5, 6. Bow the heavens] Compare Ps. xviii. 9, 14. (v) Syr. Arab. and MSS.

7. Many waters] That is, many enemies who are like to overwhelming inundations.

- O Jehovah, bow the "heavens" and descend;
Touch the mountains and they shall smoke.
Cast forth lightning, and disperse them;
Shoot forth thine arrows, and confound
Stretch forth thy hand from on high, [them.]
And deliver me from many waters;
'Rescue' me from the hand of a strange
For their mouth speaketh vanity, [people];
And their right hand is a right hand of
falsehood.

I will sing a new song to thee, O God;
On the ten-stringed lute I will praise thee.
Thou art he who givest victory to "thy king,"
Who deliverest David thy servant.
From the destroying sword still deliver me;
Rescue me from the hand of a strange
For their mouth speaketh vanity, [people];
And their right hand is a right hand of
falsehood.

Let our sons become in their youth
Like vigorously growing plants;—
Our daughters like corner columns,
Wrought after the form of those of a palace.
May our storehouses be full of every kind of produce;
Our flocks become thousands;
Yea tens of thousands in our open pastures!
May our oxen be strong for labour;
Let there be no breaking in—no rushing
No outcry in our public places. [out—
Happy that people, who are in such a state!

Happy that people whose God is Jehovah!

PSALM CXLV.

David celebrates the power, goodness, and providence of God, exercised towards those who fear and serve him. This psalm is thought to have been composed in the latter part of David's life. It is alphabetic.

A Psalm of Praise by David.

- 8 I WILL extol thee, my God and King;
And I will bless thy name for ever and ever.
- 9 Every day will I bless thee;
And I will praise thy name for ever and ever.
- 10 Great is Jehovah, and greatly to be praised;
Yea, his greatness is unsearchable.

8. Speaketh vanity] That is, not truth but lies; and in their oaths, when they raise their right hand to God, swearing to a covenant, they deal falsely.

10. Who givest] All the versions render in the second person, which is more suitable. The repetition of the last line of the seventh verse and the eighth is made with great and admirable effect. (v) Syr.

12. Let our sons] This is a new paragraph, and אָמֵן is redundant, or else a mistake for some verb.—Corner columns] This is the sense of the term both in the Syr. and Arab. and which is now generally adopted.—Wrought after] That is, in the fittest and best proportions, combining strength, symmetry, and beauty. No comparison can be more delicate.

14. No breaking in] That is, of the enemy, entering a city by force; no rushing out of the people, seeking safety by flight.—No outcry] The Chaldee, 'no howling,' on account of public calamities, or on account of oppression and injustice.

PSALM CXLVI.

This psalm is an exhortation to trust in the power and fidelity of God, as opposed to the weakness and faithless-ness of men.

- 1 PRAISE Jehovah, O my soul.

PSALM CXLV. 5. They shall] The versions have retained the genuine text in this and the next verse.

9. Who wait on him] The psalmist rises from one specified instance of divine goodness and mercy, to his general kindness towards all his works

11—13. Thy empire] Denoting imperial power, or authority—governing power, and as synonymous with 'dominion.'
It comprises God's natural and moral government, which extends to all his works, and shall be everlasting. On the authority of the versions the verse beginning with the letter Nun is added, which by some accident has been omitted in the present Hebrew Text.

PSALM CXLVI. 3. No salvation] That is, no power to save others, nor even himself.

4. His designs] That is, respecting this life, all perish;
come to nothing, and never will by him be accomplished.

5. In the God of] Who promised to Jacob, 'I will be with thee and keep thee,' Gen. xxviii. 15, who hath made

- I will praise Jehovah, while I live; 2
I will sing to my God, while I exist.
- Put not your trust in princes, 3
Nor in man, with whom is no salvation.
For his spirit departeth, 4
He returneth to his own earth;
And that very day his designs perish.
Happy he whose help is in the God of Jacob; 5
Whose hope is in Jehovah, his God!
Who made the heavens and the earth, 6
The sea, and all that is therein;
Who keepeth his truth for ever;
Who executeth justice for the oppressed, 7
And who giveth food to the hungry.
Jehovah releaseth the prisoners;
Jehovah openeth the eyes of the blind; 8
Jehovah raiseth those who are bowed down;
Jehovah loveth the righteous.
Jehovah preserveth the strangers; 9
The orphan and widow he supporteth,
But the way of the wicked he subverteth.
Jehovah shall reign for ever; 10
Thy God, O Zion, through all generations.
Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CXLVII.

In this psalm, God's mercy to Israel and his works of nature and providence are celebrated.

A Psalm of Haggai and Zechariah. Hallelujah.

- PRAISE Jehovah, for he is good, 1
Sing praise to our God, for it is pleasant;
Praise becometh "the upright."
Jehovah rebuildeth Jerusalem; 2
He assembleth the outcasts of Israel,
He healeth the broken of heart, 3
And bindeth up their wounds.
He counteth the number of the stars; 4
He calleth them all by name.
Great is our Lord, and of great power, 5
And his understanding is infinite.
Jehovah supporteth the humble, 6
But casteth down the wicked to the earth.
Sing responsively with thanks to Je- 7
hovah;
Sing praise with the harp to our God;
Who covereth the heavens with clouds; 8
Who prepareth rain for the earth;

all things, and whose promise can never fail either for want of power or faithfulness.

7—9. Justice] In his moral government he punishes oppressors and saves the oppressed; provides for the needy, releases prisoners, and brings those shut up in darkness to the light.

PSALM CXLVII. 1. Becometh the upright] Is suitable to their character, and a duty which they love to perform.
See note Heb. Bib.

2. Outcasts] Or the dispersed, as 1 Pet. i. 1; and Jam.
i. 1.—This comprises both those in captivity, and those who had sought a retreat in foreign lands.

4. He counteth] Which to man, with all the assistance from glasses of the greatest magnifying power, is wholly impossible; Gen. xv. 5; Isa. xl. 26; Jer. xxxiii. 22.

5. His understanding] Or, 'the things which he under-standeth, are unsearchable.'

- Who causeth herbage to grow on moun-
 9 Who giveth to the cattle their food ; [tains :
 To the young ravens also, which cry to him.
 10 He delighteth not in the courage of the horse ;
 Nor hath pleasure in the stout warrior.
 11 Jehovah hath pleasure in those who fear
 In those who hope in his mercy. [him ;
 12 Praise Jehovah, O Jerusalem ;
 Praise thy God, O Zion.
 13 For he strengtheneth the bars of thy gates,
 And blesseth thy children within thee.
 14 He maketh peace in thy borders ;
 With the best wheat he satisfieth thee.
 15 He sendeth forth his injunction to the earth,
 And his command runneth swiftly.
 16 He giveth snow like wool ;
 He scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes.
 17 He casteth down pieces of ice :
 Who can stand before his cold ?
 18 He sendeth his word, and melteth them ;
 He maketh the wind to blow, and the waters flow.
 19 His word he hath declared to Jacob :
 His statutes and judgments to Israel.
 20 Thus hath he not done to any other nation :
 For as to his judgments, they know them
 Praise Jehovah. [not.

PSALM CXLVIII.

All creatures, animate and inanimate, are invited to praise God.

A Psalm of Haggai and Zechariah. Hallelujah.
 Praise Jehovah.

- 1 PRAISE Jehovah from the heavens :
 Praise him, all ye that dwell on high.
- 2 Praise him, all ye his angels :
 Praise him, all ye his hosts.
- 3 Praise him, ye sun and moon :
 Praise him, all ye stars of light.
- 4 Praise him, ye heavens of heavens : [vens.
 And ye waters, which are above the hea-
- 5 Let these praise the name of Jehovah ;
 For he commanded, and they were created :

- He established them for ever and ever ; 6
 He made a decree, which they never trans-
 Praise Jehovah from the earth : [gress. 7
 Sea-monsters, and all the deeps ;
 Fire and hail, snow and vapour ; 8
 Stormy wind, fulfilling his word :
 Mountains, and all hills ; 9
 Fruit-trees, and all cedars ;
 Wild-beasts, and all cattle ; 10
 Reptiles, and all winged birds ;
 Kings of the earth, and all people ; 11
 Princes, and all the judges of the earth ;
 Young men, and maidens ; 12
 Old men, and children :
 Let these praise the name of Jehovah ; 13
 For his name alone ought to be extolled :
 His glory is above the earth or the heavens.
 Since he hath exalted the horn of his people, 14
 He is the praise of his pious servants ;
 Of the sons of Israel, his favoured people.
 Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CXLIX.

This is a song of praise for victory obtained over enemies. Some refer it to Nehemiah. See ch. iv. and vi. It has no title but Hallelujah.

- SING to Jehovah a new song ; 1
 His praise, in the assembly of the saints.
 Let Israel rejoice in his Maker ; 2
 Let the sons of Zion exult in their king.
 Let them praise his name with the lute ; 3
 Let them sing to him with the tabret and harp.
 For Jehovah taketh pleasure in his people ; 4
 The humble he adorneth with salvation.
 Let the saints gloriously exult ; 5
 Let them sing aloud on their couches ;
 Let the high praises of God be in their mouths, 6
 And a two-edged sword in their hand ;
 To execute judgment on the heathen, 7
 And inflict corrections on the peoples ;
 To bind their kings with chains, 8
 And their nobles with fetters of iron ;
 To execute on them the judgment decreed : 9

9. Young ravens] There is evidently something particular in the habits of young ravens, which led the author of Job as well as the Psalmist to select them as singular instances of the care of providence. Compare Luke xii. 24. with Matt. vi. 26. Bochart asserts that the raven expels her young from the nest as soon as ever they have the power to fly ; and in this weak state they make a croaking noise, which God is said to hear, and to defend and provide for them.

10. In the courage of the] The horse is put for cavalry, as the 'stout warrior' is for infantry. Compare Ps. xxxiii. 13, 16.

15. Runneth swiftly] There is an allusion to the messengers of kings ; whose decrees are swiftly spread abroad and executed.

18. The wind to blow] From a warm quarter, and then the rivers and torrents are again supplied with water.

PSALM CXLVIII. 1. Ye that dwell on high] Or in the high places. The celestial powers are meant, as in the next verse.

4. Above the heavens] Gen. i. 7. Hence the 'heavens of heavens' means the highest celestial heavens in opposition to the aerial heavens.

7. From the earth] From the heavens and their phenomena, he descends regularly to the waters under the firmament.

14. His favoured] The Hebrew is, 'near to him,' admitted to intimacy and friendship, which was a peculiar favour, Deut. iv. 7 ; Rom. ix. 4, 5.

PSALM CXLIX. 2. His maker] The text is plural, 'they who made him,' according to the points, but none of the old translators have so rendered. Compare Ps. lxx. 5 ; Is. xlv. 2. and li. 13.

4. Adorneth] Those who were clothed with sack-cloth on account of their oppressions, he saves, and clothes with the robes of joy.

5—9. Let the saints] This whole paragraph applies to the Israelites who built the wall of Jerusalem, armed as if ready for battle ; and perhaps this psalm was sung to animate and encourage them, Nesh. iv. 13, &c.—Couches] While conversing together in the divan ; let them sing to him who gives them such happiness and security.

6. High praises] In this and the following verses there is a reference to the conquest of Canaan under Joshua ; and the author both prays for and predicts some future similar triumph of his people over their enemies.

This honour awaiteth all his saints.
Praise Jehovah.

PSALM CL.

This psalm was most probably composed by David for the annual festivals, and used on that occasion after the captivity. Hallelujah.

- 1 PRAISE God for his own holiness;
Praise him for the expanse of his power.
- 2 Praise him for his mighty deeds;

PSALM CL. 1. His own holiness] His 'holiness,' his essential purity and perfection is the first subject of praise. The second is for the exertion of his almighty power, forming the expanse of heaven; and including the whole of his works.

2. Mighty deeds] In the preservation and government of all his works. This is the third subject of praise; and the Praise him for his excellent greatness.

Praise him with the sound of trumpet; 3
Praise him with the psaltery and harp.
Praise him with the tabret and lute: 4
Praise him with flute and pipe.
Praise him with the soft-toned cymbal; 5
Praise him with the loud-toned cymbal;
Let whatever breatheth praise Jehovah. 6
Praise Jehovah.

fourth is, 'his excellent goodness,' as the king of Israel displaying his moral attributes, and receiving the homage and worship of his people.

3—6. Here are enumerated the various instruments which the Jews used in their solemn services, as accompaniments to the voice. With them instrumental music was dedicated to the sanctuary.

PROVERBS.

INTRODUCTION.

ONE method of communicating wisdom among the ancients was, by stating some weighty truth in a short and compressed form, and in poetic language, that it might be the more easily remembered. Thus the wise men of Greece delivered moral maxims; and thus God was pleased to direct Solomon to write, for the instruction of youth and for the direction of old age. The Proverbs are indeed adapted to all ages, conditions, and ranks among men. The author of these Proverbs was Solomon, who is said to have written three thousand; 1 Kings iv. 32: and those considered of the greatest use are here collected together. The first part, from chapter one to ten, contains an exhortation to wisdom; the second, from chapter ten to the twenty-fifth, contains those moral axioms in which this wisdom consists; and the third, the Proverbs collected by Hezekiah's order, chapter twenty-five to the twenty-ninth inclusive; and the fourth, the two last chapters, which were probably written by some other inspired author.

CHAPTER I.

The title and design of the book, 1—6; the nature of wisdom, 7—10; an exhortation to regard it, 11—19; and the remainder is the address of Wisdom to men.

- 1 THE Proverbs of Solomon, King of Israel, which are designed,
- 2 To impart wisdom and instruction;—
To make known the words of prudence;
- 3 To render skilful instruction acceptable;—
To teach justice, judgment, and equity;
- 4 To give to the simple discernment;
To the young man knowledge and discretion.
- 5 The wise will attend, and increase knowledge, [ment];
And the prudent will acquire sound judgment.

CHAP. I. 2. To impart] Hebrew, 'for the knowing of,' &c.

4. Simple] Those inexperienced, and who for this reason are most likely to be led astray by evil examples.—Discernment] The word עֵצָה is often used in a bad sense for 'craft, cunning,' &c. but it is here used in a good one, for the effect of wise instruction.

5. Sound judgment] Such as the skilful pilot possesses who knows how to steer the vessel properly. By the use of the word חָכָמָה Solomon beautifully represents human life as a voyage, and wisdom as the pilot directing its course.

6. A proverb] A sententious wise saying.—Acute sayings] Those which contain force and weight, or which penetrate the mind.

7. Sum of wisdom] The term שִׁמְרָה is ambiguous, having

To understand a proverb and its just sense; 6
The words of the wise, and their acute sayings. [dom,
The fear of Jehovah is the sum of wisdom. 7
But wisdom and instruction the foolish despise. [father,
Listen, my son, to the instruction of thy mother. 8
And forsake not the admonition of thy mother.
For as a graceful ornament to thy head, 9
And as chains of gold about thy neck, shall they be.
My son, if sinners entice thee, 10
Consent thou not unto them.
If they say, Come thou with us; 11
Let us lay wait for blood; [cent];
Let us lurk for those who in vain are inno-both the sense of 'beginning,' or of 'sum,' chief part, as our margin has it. To fear and serve God is doubtless our chief wisdom.

8. Admonition] The term חִנּוּךְ in this 'connexion is parallel to 'instruction,' and signifies, not a law, an authoritative statute, but admonition or advice. See Gesenius.

9. Graceful ornament] Or, turban. All the orientals wear them; and the rich are distinguished, both by the form and costly materials of which they are made. (a) Sept.

10. Sinners] This term means here, men, who, to obtain wealth, stick at nothing, but are ready to commit both robbery and murder, as the following verses prove. (v) Sept. Vulg. MSS.

11. In vain are] That is, their innocence shall be no defence to them.

- 12 Let us destroy them, as hades, though vigorous; [the pit.
Though perfect, as those that go down to 13 Every kind of precious treasure shall we
We shall fill our houses with spoil: [find;
14 Cast thy lot among us;
Let there be one purse for us all.
15 My son, walk not in the way with them;
Withdraw thy foot from their path:
16 For their feet run to evil,
And they haste to shed "innocent" blood.
17 Surely in vain is the net spread out,
Before the eyes of any bird!
18 But these lay wait for their own blood;
They lay snares for their own lives.
19 Such are the ways of all greedy of lucre;
For it taketh away the life of its possessors.
20 Wisdom crieth aloud in the streets;
In the public places she giveth her voice;
21 Amidst the noisy throng she crieth out;
At the entrances of the gates of the city
She uttereth her words, saying,
22 How long will ye simple love folly,
And ye scoffers delight in scoffing,
And ye fools hate knowledge?
23 Turn ye at my reproof:
Lo! to you I will pour out my mind;
To you I will make known my words.
24 Because I called and ye refused;
Stretched out my hands, and no one regarded;
25 But ye have rejected all my counsel,
And would not incline to my reproof:
26 I also will laugh at your calamity;
I will mock, when what you feared cometh;
27 When what you feared cometh like a tempest,
And your calamity rusheth on like a whirl-
When distress and anguish come upon you.
28 Then will they call on me, but I will not answer;
Then will they seek me, but shall not find 29 Forasmuch as they hated knowledge,
And did not choose the fear of Jehovah;
30 Did not incline to my counsel;

But contemptuously rejected all my reproof;
Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their 31
ways,
And be satisfied with their own devices.
For the defection of the simple shall slay 32
them,
And the security of fools shall destroy them;
But he that heareth me shall dwell safely, 33
And rest secure from the dread of evil.

CHAPTER II.

Solomon shows that wisdom may be obtained, and represents the advantages of it, in securing from the snares of the evil, and leading in the way to happiness.

My son, if thou wilt receive my words, 1
And lay up my commands with thee;
'And incline' thine ear to wisdom, 2
And apply thy heart to understanding;—
Yea, if thou wilt cry for prudence, 3
And raise thy voice for understanding;—
If thou wilt seek for her as for silver, 4
And search for her, as for hidden treasures;—
Then shalt thou learn the fear of Jehovah, 5
And shalt attain the knowledge of God.
For Jehovah imparteth wisdom; 6
From his mouth come knowledge and understanding.
He layeth up 'salvation' for the just; 7
A shield is he to them that walk uprightly;—
To them that keep the paths of judgments; 8
For the way of his saints he guardeth.
Then shalt thou know justice and judgment, 9
And equity, and every good path.
When wisdom entereth thy heart, 10
And knowledge is pleasant to thy soul;
Discretion shall watch over thee; 11
Understanding shall so preserve thee,
As to keep thee from the way of the wicked; 12
From men that speak perverse things;
Who forsake the paths of integrity, 13
And walk in the ways of darkness;
Who rejoice in doing what is evil, 14
And exult in the most profligate deeds;
Whose ways are perverse, and their paths 15
crooked:

12. Though vigorous] In the vigour of their days.—And though perfect] In their health, and flourishing in their circumstances, 'let us destroy them as those that go,' &c.

16. (a) Syr.

17. Surely in vain] There is no bird so silly, but when it sees the net spread for it, flies away; but these men are more silly and foolish, as they are but seeking their own destruction.

19. For it taketh] It occasions the destruction of those who acquire it by robbery and murder.

20. Wisdom] Wisdom is here personified, and represented as a woman who opens her school in the most public place, to which she invites all with whom she meets.

22. In scoffing] The scoffer is undoubtedly a libertine, who laughs at all seriousness and religion, Ps. i. 1.

23. Pour out my mind] Michaelis, 'I will open my whole heart.' The next line proves that יָרַי is here used in the sense given; the mind melodiously for the thoughts and sentiments of the mind. Compare Ps. lxxviii. 2.

26. What you feared] Hebrew, 'your fear,' which is used for the object of it; and so in the next verse.

28. Then will they] Calamity will constrain them to cry out; distress and anguish of mind will force them to think on their folly in neglecting wisdom and piety.—Will not answer] 'Because, they cry not from a principle of sincere contrition, but from fear only.' The reason is assigned in what follows.

32. For the defection] Or 'aversion,' as Michaelis and Dathe render.—Security of fools] Secure in their own opinion; having nothing to fear. This denotes a hardened impenitent state.

CHAP. II. 1—6. My son] These verses strongly represent the necessity of employing means to acquire knowledge and wisdom; and especially studying God's word; for Jehovah imparteth wisdom, &c. (v) Syr.

7. Salvation] This reading of the versions is preferred, as more agreeable to the context, and as parallel with shield in the next line.

8. To them that keep] This line is joined in construction with the preceding; and a much better sense arises, than by referring it to God.

10—15. When wisdom] The advantage of divine wisdom

- 16 As to keep thee from the strange woman—
From the adulteress who flattereth with her words;
17 Who hath forsaken the guide of her youth,
And forgotten the covenant of her God.
18 Truly her house leadeth down to death,
And her paths to the miserable in hades.
19 Not any who approach her shall return,
Nor shall they revisit the paths of life.
20 Therefore walk in the way of good men,
And keep the paths of the just.
21 For the upright shall inhabit the land,
And the perfect shall be established therein;
22 But the wicked shall be cut off from the
earth,
And transgressors shall be rooted out of it.

CHAPTER III.

Solomon recommends wisdom, by the many blessings connected with it; and cautions against various evils.

- 1 My son, forget not my admonitions;
But let thy heart keep my precepts:
2 For length of days and of years,
Life and peace shall they add to thee.
3 Let not mercy and truth forsake thee,
Bind them around thy neck;
Inscribe them on the table of thy heart:
4 So shalt thou find favour and great esteem,
In the eyes of God and man.
5 Trust in Jehovah with all thy heart;
But on thine own prudence rely thou not.
6 In all thy ways acknowledge him,
And he shall direct thy paths.
7 Be not wise in thine own eyes;
But fear Jehovah, and depart from evil.
8 This shall be health to thy 'flesh,'
And marrow to thy bones.
9 Honour Jehovah with thy riches,
And with the first-fruits of all thine increase;
10 So shall thy storehouses be wholly filled,
And thy vats overflow with new wine.
11 Despise not, my son, the chastening of Jehovah,
Nor be impatient under his correction.

is, that it preserves from the paths of the wicked, whose delight is in lolly and vice.

16. As to keep thee] This verse depends in construction on the eleventh.—Adulteress] As is clear from the next verse, as she is said to forsake her guide, that is, 'her husband;' and 'to forget the covenant of her God.'

18. Miserable in hades] For the reasons of this version see note Job xxvii. 5, and the subject here evidently supports the opinion there stated.

CHAP. III. 2. Life and peace] The obvious order of the text is followed. Not only are many days promised, but a life, however long, attended with peace and prosperity.

4. Great esteem] As a verb, שָׁלוֹם signifies 'to consider,' and as a noun, 'consideration,' 'success,' 'prosperity.' To find 'good consideration' in the eyes of another is to find great esteem.

8. Thy flesh] This reading of the Syr. and Arab. is supported by other places, where the bones and the flesh are opposed to each other; but the bones and the navel occur in no other place, ch. iv. 22, and xiv. 30. Ps. xxxviii. 4.

11. Be impatient] The verb יָקַח signifies, to boil, to be angry, to bear with difficulty any thing, that is, 'to be impatient.' See Michaelis in verb.

For whom Jehovah loveth he correcteth, 12
And scourgeth every son whom he accepteth.

Happy the man that findeth wisdom; 13
The man that attaineth understanding!

For her merchandise is better than that of 14
silver;

And her increase than that of fine gold.

She is more precious than pearls; 15

And all the objects of desire are not equal to

In her right hand is length of days; [her. 16

In her left are riches and honour.

Her ways are ways of pleasantness, 17

And all her paths are peace.

A tree of life is she to those who possess her; 18

And happy is he who retaineth her.

By wisdom Jehovah founded the earth; 19

By understanding he established the heavens. [forth,

By his knowledge he made the depths burst 20

And the skies drop down to the dew. [eyes;

My son, let them not depart from thine 21

Keep sound wisdom and discretion;

For they shall be life to thy soul, 22

And a graceful ornament to thy neck.

Then shalt thou walk securely in thy way, 23

And thy foot shall not stumble.

If thou lie down, thou shalt not be afraid; 24

Yea thou shalt lie down and sweet shall be thy sleep.

Of sudden terror thou shalt not be afraid, 25

Nor of the approaching desolation of the

wicked:

For Jehovah shall be thy confidence, 26

And shall keep thy foot from being snared.

Withhold not a favour from its proper 27
object,

When it is in the power of thy hand to do it.

Say not to thy 'neighbour,' Come again, 28

And to-morrow I will give unto thee;

When thou hast what he needeth.

Devise not evil against thy neighbour, 29

When he dwelleth securely by thee.

Strive not with a man without cause, 30

12. And scourgeth] The version of the Sept. and of Paul, Heb. xii. 6, is adopted; which arises from reading כָּאֵב נֹכַח as a noun but a verb.

14—18. The reader of taste cannot but discern the beauty and delicacy of this fine personification.—Her merchandise] The things in which she traffics are far superior to the traffic of silver; and 'her increase' or revenue, or advantages are above those of gold.

18. A tree of life] He alludes to Gen. ii. 9, and iii. 22; and means that this divine, spiritual wisdom is the pledge and means of everlasting life and happiness.

21. Let them not depart] Here the pronoun 'them' refers to 'sound wisdom and discretion' in the next line.

27. Its proper object] אוֹרָתוֹ signifies here a 'favour,' as it appears to do, then must בעָלָיו mean those needing it, or in other words, 'its proper objects.' See Levit. xxv. 35, and Deut. xv. 7, &c. The next verse explains and illustrates the same sentiment as this. 28. (v) Syriac, Chaldaic MSS.

29. When he dwelleth] When he trusts to thy honour and honesty, and has given thee no just ground of offence.

- When to thee he hath done no harm.
 31 Envy not the man of violence,
 Nor choose any of his ways.
 32 For the abomination of Jehovah is the fro-
 But with the upright is his counsel. [ward, 33 The curse of Jehovah is on the house of the wicked,
 But the habitation of the just he blesseth.
 34 Surely he scorneth the scornors;
 But to the humble he sheweth favour.
 35 The wise shall inherit glory;
 But disgrace raiseth fools to notice.

CHAPTER IV.

Solomon enforces instruction by example; presses the study of wisdom, and of watchfulness over the heart.

- 1 HEAR, ye children, a father's instruction:
 And attend that ye may attain understanding.
 2 For to you will I impart good doctrine:
 Hence forsake not my precepts.
 3 For the beloved son of my father was I,
 And most dear in the sight of my mother.
 4 And he taught me, and said unto me,
 Let thy heart firmly retain my words;
 Keep my commands and thou shalt live.
 5 Acquire wisdom, acquire prudence;
 Forget not, nor turn from the words of my mouth.
 7 Wisdom is the chief thing; acquire wisdom;
 With all thy acquisitions acquire prudence.
 6 Forsake her not, and she will keep thee;
 Love her, and she will preserve thee.
 8 Exalt her, and she will promote thee;
 She will honour thee when thou embracest
 her. [head;
 9 She will give a graceful ornament to thy
 A crown of glory will she confer on thee.
 10 Hear, my son, and receive my sayings,
 And the years of thy life shall be many.
 11 For the way of wisdom do I teach thee;
 I conduct thee in right paths. [straitened;
 12 When thou goest, thy steps shall not be
 And when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble.

35. Disgrace] This is the sense of the present text; but Houbigant supposes the true reading to be כִּסְיָא, according to the Chaldee and Syriac. 'But fools shall possess shame.'

CHAP. IV. 3. Beloved son] With Durell and others יָר is joined to this line, to which it evidently belongs, that both the sense and parallelism may be complete.—Most dear] Or the 'only one.' The word signifies either. Comp. I Chron. xxix. 1.

4. He taught me] The instruction which David gave Solomon, extends to the close of the ninth verse; and in the tenth Solomon again speaks.

7, 6. Forsake her] As the pronoun 'her' cannot agree to 'the words of my mouth,' which close the fifth verse, it is evident these verses have been transposed.

11. I teach thee] The Sept. renders in the present tense; which seems to be more suitable to the context.

16. To fall] Either into sin or mischief.

17. Bread] That is, they acquire their food and support by sinful deeds.

18. The path of] The metaphor is beautiful, and the sense of it instructive. As the light first tinges the east and

Firmly retain instruction; let her not go; 13
 Preserve her; for she is thy life.
 Enter not into the path of the wicked, 14
 Nor walk in the way of evil men.
 Shun it; pass not even over it; 15
 Turn from it, and pass away.
 For they sleep not unless they have done 16
 Yea their sleep is taken away, [evil;
 Unless they have caused some one to fall.
 For they eat the bread of wickedness, 17
 And the wine of violence do they drink.
 The path of the just is like the shining light, 18
 Which shineth more and more to the perfect day.

But the way of the wicked is like darkness; 19
 They know not against what they stumble.

My son, attentively regard my words; 20
 Incline thine ear to my sayings.
 Let them not depart from thine eyes; 21
 Keep them within thy heart.
 For life are they to those who find them, 22
 And health to all their flesh.
 Keep thy heart with all diligence; 23
 For out of it are the streams of life.
 Frowardness of mouth remove from thee; 24
 And perverseness of lips put far away.
 Let thine eyes look straight on, 25
 And thine eyelids be directed forward.
 Ponder the path of thy feet, 26
 And all thy ways shall be established.
 Turn not to the right or to the left; 27
 But keep back thy foot from evil.

CHAPTER V.

Solomon still presses the study of wisdom, cautions young men against the seductive arts of harlots, and recommends marriage and conjugal fidelity.

- My son, be attentive to my wisdom, 1
 And incline thine ear to my instruction;
 That thou mayest preserve discretion, 2
 And that thy lips may keep knowledge.
 "Attend not to a deceitful woman;" 3
 For though the lips of the harlot drop honey,
 And her mouth be smoother than oil;
 Yet at last she is bitter as wormwood; 4 increases until the sun has attained its meridian glory and splendour; so is the course of a just man. How different this from the path of the wicked!

23. For out of it] Hebrew, 'the goings forth of life.' Gesen. renders, the well-springs of life, that is, of happiness. There is a double sense in the text. The heart is the fountain, whence issue all the streams of blood which flow through every part of the body; and the blood is said to be the life. Compare Gen. ix. 4-6. The heart, understood figuratively for the mind with its dispositions, is the fountain of the moral life. For as the heart is pure or corrupt, so is the course of a man's life. Compare Matt. xv. 19.

24. Frowardness] The noun is here necessary; and so most of the versions render.

CHAP. V. 3. Attend not] On the authority of the Sept. and Arab. this line is admitted, as properly introducing what follows; and because it cannot be a various rendering of the text.—Drop honey] Though her language is soothing and sweet to a depraved mind, yet the end of her ways is bitter and destructive.

- Piercing as a two-edged sword.
 5 Her feet rush down to death ;
 Her steps boldly invade hades.
 6 The course of her life she doth "not" regard ;
 Changeable are her paths, and cannot be known.
 7 And now, my son, hearken unto me,
 And depart not from the words of my
 8 Far removed from her be thy way ; [mouth.
 Approach not the door of her house,
 9 Lest thou give up thy glory to others,
 And thy years to the cruel ;
 10 Lest aliens be satiated with thy wealth,
 And thy labours pass into the house of strangers ;
 11 And in thy latter end thou roar out,
 When the flesh of thy body is consumed,
 12 And say, Why did I hate instruction ?
 Why did my heart detest reproof ?
 13 Why did I not hearken to my teachers,
 And to my instructors incline mine ear ?
 14 I was near falling into the chief calamity,
 Amidst the congregation and the assembly.
 15 Drink waters out of thine own cistern,
 And flowing waters out of thine own well.
 16 Should thy fountains be dispersed abroad ?
 Thy streamlets of water, through the streets ?
 17 Let them be for thine own use alone,
 And let not strangers partake with thee.
 18 Let thy fountain belong to thyself only,
 And rejoice with the wife of thy youth.
 19 Lovely as the hind ! graceful as the roe !
 Let her love always satisfy thee ;
 With her affection be thou ever delighted.
 20 For why be delighted, my son, with a har-
 And embrace the bosom of a stranger ? [lot, 21 For before the eyes of Jehovah are the ways of man,
 And he pondereth all his paths.
 22 "By" his iniquities the transgressor is snared,
 And by the cords of his sins is he bound.
 23 He shall die, as he received not instruction,
 But through his great folly went astray.

CHAPTER VI.

Advice against suretyship, idleness, and taunting ; the blessings of obedience, and the mischiefs of whoredom and adultery.

- 1 My son, if thou be surety for thy friend,—

- If thou hast stricken thy hand for a stranger ;
 By the words of thy mouth thou art snared ; 2
 Thou art caught by the words of thy lips.
 Do this now, my son, and get free : 3
 Since thou art in the power of thy friend,
 Go, make haste, and urge on thy friend.
 Give not sleep to thine eyes, 4
 Nor slumber to thine eye-lids ;
 Escape as the antelope from the toils, 5
 And as a bird from the fowler's snare.
 Go to the ant, thou sluggard ; 6
 Consider her ways, and be wise :
 Who, though she hath no leader, 7
 No governor or ruler,
 Prepareth her food in summer, 8
 And in harvest storeth up her provision.
 How long, O sluggard, wilt thou repose ? 9
 When rise up from thy sleep ?
 Yet a little sleep, yet a little slumber, 10
 Yet a little folding of the hands to rest !
 Truly thy poverty shall come as a traveller, 11
 And thy want as an armed man.
 A worthless man, a wicked man, 12
 Walketh after the frowardness of his mouth.
 He winketh with his eyes ; 13
 He maketh signs with his feet ;
 He instructeth with his fingers,
 In his depraved heart he deviseth evil ; 14
 At all times he spreadeth discords.
 Suddenly therefore shall his destruction come ; 15
 In a moment he shall perish without remedy.
 These six things Jehovah hateth, 16
 Yea seven are his abomination :
 Lofty eyes, a false tongue, 17
 And hands that shed innocent blood :
 A heart that formeth wicked designs ; 18
 Feet that hastily run to evil ;
 A false witness, that uttereth lies, 19
 And one spreading discords among brethren.
 Keep, my son, the precepts of thy father, 20
 And forsake not the instruction of thy mother.
 Bind them on thy heart continually ; 21
 With them encollar thy neck.
 When thou gcest, instruction shall lead thee ; 22
 When thou sleepest, she shall guard thee,
 And when thou awakest, converse with thee.
 For precept is a lamp and instruction a 23
 light ;

5. Her feet rush] She is fearless of that destruction which she bringeth on herself and on others.

6. The course] For the text followed, see note Heb. or Fam. Bib.

9. Thy glory—thy years] Thy strength and vigour ; and lest thy property be spent in supporting them and their dependents.

14. I was near] The version adopted is that of Dathe. The meaning is, that his conduct had nearly exposed him to be seized, tried and condemned, amidst the congregation and assembly.

15—18. Drink waters] Under this emblem matrimony is recommended : for marriage is honourable to all. Comp. Numb. xxiv. 7 ; Is. xlvi. 1, and li. 1.

16. Should thy] 'Fountains and streamlets' are synonymous with 'well' in the preceding verse, and the sense is,

'shouldst' thou converse with a woman, who is common to all, as water flowing in the streets ? 22. (a) Syr.

CHAP. VI. 1. A stranger] That is, another person ; it is used here as parallel with friends.

3. Urge on] That is, urge him to fulfil his engagements as soon as possible. For the sense of the verb given, see the Sept. and Aquila, and the two following verses support it.

10, 11. Yet a little sleep] Indolence and inattention to one's business is speedily followed by poverty.

12—15. A worthless man] Solomon here describes one who employs his time in buffoonery ; and who makes his members the instruments of his feats.

16—19. These six] This kind of enumeration seems to have been proverbial. Compare chap. xxx. 15, 18, 29, Joh. v. 19 ; Amos i. 3.

22. Instruction shall] The noun is supplied from the

- And correction "and" reproof are the way of life :
- 24 To keep thee from the wife of another ;
From the flattering tongue of the stranger.
- 25 Let not thy heart lust after her beauty,
Nor be thou ensnared with her glances.
- 26 For the price of a harlot is but a piece of bread ;
But the adulteress hunteth the precious life.
- 27 Can a man take fire in his bosom,
And his garments not be burned ?
- 28 Can a man walk on burning embers,
And his feet not be scorched ?
- 29 So is he that approacheth his neighbour's wife ;
Whosoever toucheth her shall not be guiltless.
- 30 The thief is not overlooked when he steal-
To satisfy his appetite when famished : [eth,
- 31 But if found, he must restore sevenfold ;
He must give all the substance of his house.
- 32 He that committeth adultery is void of wisdom ;
He that doeth this destroyeth his own life.
- 33 Punishment and shame shall he experience,
And his reproach shall not be wiped away.
- 34 For jealousy renders a man furious ;
Nor will he spare in the day of vengeance.
- 35 He will not accept of any ransom,
Nor be pacified with the offering of many gifts.
- CHAPTER VII.
- Regard to wisdom urged; the arts of the adulteress described, and the misery of those allured by her.*
- 1 My son, keep my sayings,
And lay up my precepts with thee.
- 2 Keep my precepts, and thou shalt live ;
And my instruction as the apple of thine eyes.
- 3 Bind them upon thy fingers ;
Inscribe them on the table of thy heart.
- 4 Say to wisdom, Thou art my sister ;
And call prudence thy kinswoman :
- 5 That they may keep thee from the adulteress ;
From the stranger that flattereth with her [words.
- 6 Standing at the window of my house,
I looked through the lattice,
- 7 And I saw among the simple ones ;
I observed among the youths,
- A young man without wisdom,
Passing on the street, near her corner ; 8
And he went the way to her house :
(This is done in the twilight, in the evening, 9
Or in the gloomy darkness of the night.)
And, behold ! the woman at length met him, 10
In the attire of a harlot, and subtle of heart :
(She is clamorous, and ungovernable, 11
And will not abide at home.
Now she is in the market, then in the streets, 12
And at every corner she lieth in wait.)
Then she laid hold on him and kissed him, 13
And, with an impudent face, said to him,
Feast-offerings have I at home ; 14
I have this day been paying my vows.
Therefore came I forth to meet thee ;— 15
To seek thee in the dusk, and I have found thee.
I have decked my bed with tapestry ; 16
With coverlets of the fine linen of Egypt.
I have perfumed my couch with myrrh, 17
With aloes and with cinnamon. [ing ;
Come let us drink our fill of love until morn- 18
Let us delight ourselves with caresses.
For my husband is not at home ; 19
He is gone upon a long journey.
A purse of silver he hath taken with him ; 20
At the new moon he will come home.
With her much fair speech, she enticed 21
him ; [him.
With the flattery of her lips she constrained
He goeth after her immediately, 22
As an ox goeth to the slaughter,
Or as "the hart" boundeth into the net,
Until a dart pierce through its liver :— 23
As a bird hasteneth to the snare,
And knoweth not that it is laid for its life.
Therefore, my son, now hearken to me, 24
And attend to the words of my mouth.
Let not thy heart incline to her ways ; 25
Go not astray in her paths.
For she hath cast down many wounded ; 26
But, many more are they whom she hath slain.
Her house is the way to hades, 27
Leading down to the chambers of death.

20th verse.—Converse] This is a beautiful thought, intimating that instruction will be his companion and adviser on all occasions.

24. The wife of another] It is well known that pr signifies, as it is pronounced, either 'evil, wicked,' or 'a neighbour.' I take it in the latter sense.

26. For the price] The harlot pursues her trade for bread, as well as through depravity of heart ; but the adulteress occasions both the loss of her own life and of his who goes in to her, Levit. xx. 10.

30. Not overlooked] Though his crime is mitigated by his necessity ; yet if detected, he must restore sevenfold, &c. How foolish then is he to incur this risk ! And how much more he that committeth adultery ! For he incurs the greatest disgrace, and destroyeth his own life.

CHAP. VII. 4. Say to wisdom] To signify the most intimate familiarity with or relation to a thing, the orientals use terms expressive of consanguinity. So Job xvii. 18 ; xxx. 29.

10. The woman] I render definitely, as it appears to indicate something of an appointment, an assignation, which the imprudent youth had made with the adulteress. In the two next verses Solomon describes her conduct.

14. Feast-offerings] Thus we find the forms of religion observed as a cloak to the most shameful profligacy.

20. New moon] So our margin renders, and Michaelis contends that it refers to the feast of booths particularly, when all the Jews were to assemble at Jerusalem.

22—23. As the hart] This reading of the versions is approved by the best critics ; and the connexion favours it. The words rendered 'to the correction of the stocks,' have no such signification. See Hunt, in Prov.

CHAPTER VIII.

The fame and evidence of wisdom, 1—10; the nature, excellency, and riches of it, 12—18; power and eternity of it.

- 1 DOTH not wisdom cry aloud,
And understanding raise her voice ?
- 2 At the top of high places, by the way,
Where cross paths meet, she standeth.
- 3 At the gate-way, the entrance of the city ;
At the door-way, she crieth aloud.
- 4 To you, O men, saieth she, I call ;
To you, sons of men, is my voice directed.
- 5 O ye simple, learn prudence ;
O ye foolish, attain understanding.
- 6 Hear, for I will speak of excellent things ;
And my lips shall utter things that are right.
- 7 For my mouth shall speak truth,
And "falsehood" be the abhorrence of my
- 8 All the words of my mouth are just ; [lips.
In them is nothing winding or perverse.
- 9 They are all of them plain to the intelligent,
And right to such as have attained knowledge.
- 10 Receive my instruction rather than silver,
And knowledge rather than pure gold.
- 11 For wisdom is more precious than pearls,
And all the objects of desire are not equal
- 12 I wisdom dwell with prudence, [to her.
And find out the knowledge of artful devices.
- 13 I fear Jehovah, and hate wickedness ;
Pride, arrogance, and the way of the wicked,
And the froward mouth, do I hate.
- 14 With me is counsel and sound wisdom :
With me is prudence, with me is might.
- 15 Through me kings reign,
And counsellors make just decrees.
- 16 Through me princes possess dominion,
The nobles, and all the "judges of the earth."
- 17 I love those who love me,
And those who early seek me shall find me.
- 18 Riches and honour are with me ;
Yea, durable riches and righteousness.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Doth not wisdom] It has been disputed whether wisdom here signifies the attribute so called, or, our Lord, who, Luke xi. 49. is called 'the wisdom of God.' The Spirit might intend to give such a representation as would suit both the natural attribute of divine wisdom, and our Lord by whom it was exercised and displayed.

6. Hear, for I.] To gain attention, she declares, that every sentence should be as apples of gold in pictures of silver ; she would speak of excellent things.

7. (v) The versions.

10. Rather than silver] Comp. chap. iii. 15.

12. Artful devices] This line is ambiguous, and admits various senses. That adopted is the most common signification.

13. I fear Jehovah] The conjecture of Dæderlein is followed in reading here as a verb, because it preserves the connexion, and makes no real difference in the sense. Wisdom dwells with the lowly.

15. Kings reign] That is, wisely and justly. When wisdom is their counsellor, their power and authority are established.

17. I love those] Those who love divine wisdom discover it by seeking it in the works, but especially in the word of God ; and He who is wisdom will reward their love by the tokens of his own.

- My fruit is better than the finest gold, 19
And my revenue, than the purest silver.
- I lead in the way of righteousness, 20
In the midst of the paths of judgment.
I will enrich those who love me, 21
And their treasures I will fill. [his way,
Jehovah possessed me at the beginning of 22
Before his works, from the remotest period.
From eternity I was anointed to reign, 23
Before the beginning, before the earth was.
When there were no seas I was brought 24
No fountains abounding with water. [forth,
Before the mountains were settled, 25
Before the hills, I was brought forth :
When as yet he had not made the earth, 26
Or the water, or an atom of the dust of the globe. [there ;
When he established the heavens, I was 27
When he drew a circle around the ocean ;
When he established the clouds above ; 28
When he made strong the fountains of the deep ;
When he appointed to the sea its bounds, 29
So that its waters should not pass their limits ; [earth,
When he traced out the foundations of the
Then was I as a workman with him ; 30
And from day to day was I delighted,
Rejoicing continually in his presence ;
Rejoicing in the habitable part of the earth ; 31
And my delight was with the sons of men.
Now, therefore, hearken to me, O chil- 32
dren ;
For happy are they who keep my ways.
Hearken to instruction, and be wise, 33
And turn not aside from it.
Happy is the man that hearkeneth to me, 34
That watcheth daily at my gates,
That waiteth at the posts of my doors !
For whoso findeth me, findeth life, 35
And shall receive favour from Jehovah.
But he who misseth me, wrongeth his own 36
All who hate me, love death. [soul ;

22. Jehovah possessed] This description applies peculiarly to our Lord by whom the worlds and all things therein were made, as well as to that wisdom which is essential to the divine nature.

23. Anointed to] So Michaelis has rendered, to give the full force of the verb. She is said 'to be brought forth,' before any other thing was made, but this applies, I think, not to her existence, but to her operations. Our Lord was 'anointed to reign,' first as the person by whom the Father resolved to do all his works ; and secondly, as the redeemer of men. Coloss. i. 16, &c.

30. A workman] So both the Greek and Syriac render ; and Geierus and many others follow them. The word is so rendered Cant. vii. 1. I have supplied as, because wisdom is a feminine noun.

31. With the sons] Wisdom rejoiced in the effects of her own skill and power, in the formation of all things, but especially in the human race. So the delight of our Lord was in the sons of men ; as first made in the divine image, and as fallen still possessing the noble powers of the mind. He so loved them as to engage in the work of redeeming them, and restoring them to holiness and happiness.

36. Misseth me] So Gesen. renders ; and this term, as meaning 'to fail to obtain,' expresses fully the sense.

CHAPTER IX.

Wisdom and Folly are represented as sending their invitations to men; and the different treatment of their respective guests.

- 1 WISDOM hath builded her house
Upon seven finely wrought columns.
- 2 She hath killed her beasts and mixed her
Yea her table hath she prepared. [wine;
- 3 She sendeth her maids to invite guests;
And she crieth in the high places of the city,
- 4 Whoso is simple, let him turn hither;
And to those void of understanding, she
- 5 Come eat of my bread, [saith,
And drink of the wine which I have mixed.
- 6 Forsake the foolish, and live;
And walk in the way of prudence.
- 7 He that reproveth a scoffer, receiveth disgrace;
And he that rebuketh the wicked, a blot.
- 8 Rebuke not a scoffer, lest he hate thee;
Rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee.
- 9 Instruct the wise, and he will be more wise;
Teach the just, and he will increase in learning. [Jehovah,
- 10 The beginning of wisdom is the fear of
And the knowledge of holy things, understanding.
- 11 For through me shall thy days be multiplied,
And years of life shall be added unto thee.
- 12 If thou be wise, thou wilt be wise for thyself;
And if thou scoffest, thou alone shalt suffer
for it.
- 13 FOLLY as a harlot is clamorous.
She is thoughtless, and knoweth no "shame."
- 14 For she sitteth at the door of her house,
On a seat, in the highest part of the city,
- 15 To call in those who pass on the way;
Who are directing their steps in right paths:
- 16 Whoso is simple, let him turn hither;
And to him void of understanding, she saith,
- 17 Stolen waters are sweet,
And bread eaten in secret is pleasant.

CHAP. IX. 1. Wisdom hath] Wisdom has built for herself a magnificent palace, and prepared a sumptuous feast, to which she invites all, but especially the poor. Mat. xxvii. 2. Luke xiv. 16.

3. She sendeth] Her maids denote the servants of wisdom, the ministers of the word, whose office it is to invite men to the feast which wisdom and love have prepared.

7. A scoffer] Wisdom refuseth to invite scoffers, as being incorrigible, and turning the reproof intended to reform them, into disgrace to him that kindly gives it. Mat. vii. 6.

10. Holy things] Of whatever relates to the service of God; for all these things are called holy. Some understand 'holy persons' to be meant; and others think the plural is used by way of excellence to denote 'the most holy one.'

12. Wise for thyself] 'Thou receivest the advantage of it, but conferrest nothing on me; so if thou scoffest, thou wilt not injure me,' but thyself. Comp. Job xxxv. 5—8.

13. Folly is] Hebrew, 'the woman or wife of folly;' or 'the woman folly;' for the texts admits these senses. As Wisdom is represented inviting guests, so Folly is represented as also inviting guests, and using the same language which wisdom had used; 'whoso is simple let him turn hither.' Sept. Arab.

17. Stolen waters] Wisdom cried, 'forsake the foolish

He knoweth not that miserable ghosts are 18
there,

And that her guests are in the depths of hades.

CHAPTER X.

What follows are properly proverbs, consisting of short, forcible remarks, concluded in a single verse.

Proverbs of Solomon.

- A WISE son giveth joy to his father; 1
But a foolish son is the grief of his mother.
- Treasures wickedly obtained profit nothing; 2
But righteousness delivereth from death.
- Jehovah will not suffer the righteous to fa- 3
mish;
But the substance of the wicked he taketh
away.
- Poor will he be who labours with a slack 4
hand;
But the hand of the diligent maketh rich.
- He who gathereth in summer is a wise son; 5
But a disgraceful son is he that sleepeth in harvest.
- Blessings are upon the head of the just; 6
But violence covereth the mouth of the
wicked.
- The memory of the just shall be blessed; 7
But the name of the wicked shall rot.
- The wise in heart will receive precepts; 8
But the prating fool will be offended.
- He that walketh uprightly, walketh surely; 9
But he that perverteth his ways shall be known.
- He that winketh with the eye causeth grief; 10
And the prating fool shall fall.
- A fountain of life is the mouth of the just; 11
But violence covereth the mouth of the
wicked.
- Hatred stirreth up contentions; 12
But love pardoneth all offences.
- On the lips of the prudent wisdom is found; 13
But for the back of the fool is found a rod.

and live;' she invited her guests 'to eat the fat and drink the sweet;' but folly has nothing to offer but stolen waters, and bread eaten in secret; she addresses the depravity of men, and allures by proposing the pleasure of enjoying what is forbidden.

18. Miserable ghosts] Solomon represents the abode of folly as the haunts of ghosts, and her guests as already in 'the depths,' in the miserable part, of the unseen world.

CHAP. X. 1. Proverbs] Some learned men suppose that the preceding nine chapters were published by Solomon himself; and that what follows to the 25th were collected and published by some other person.

3. The righteous] Hebrew, 'soul of the righteous' or 'righteous soul' or 'person.'

6. Blessings are] Men value such characters, and pray for blessings to rest on them; and God hears their prayers. — Violence covereth] The violence they have done shall be repaid, and they be as condemned malefactors, whose faces were wont to be covered, Est. vii. 8; Job ix. 24.

8. Be offended] For this sense of the verb, see Buxtorf. In the 10th verse, the usual one is given.

12. Love pardoneth] So the words naturally signify, as Ps. xxxii. 1, &c. Michaelis renders, 'Love overlooketh,' and Dathe, 'willingly excuseth all offences.'

- 14 The wise treasure up knowledge ;
But the mouth of fools bringeth destruction.
- 15 The wealth of the rich is his strong city ;
But the destruction of the poor is their poverty.
- 16 The labour of the just is for life ;
But the increase of the wicked, for sin.
- 17 He that keepeth instruction is in the way of life ;
But he that rejecteth reproof, goeth astray.
- 18 He that covereth hatred hath false lips ;
But he that uttereth a slander is a fool.
- 19 In a multitude of words
There will not be wanting transgression ;
Hence wise is he that restraineth his lips.
- 20 The tongue of the just is as refined silver ;
But the heart of the wicked is as mere dross.
- 21 The lips of the righteous feed many ;
But fools die for want of understanding.
- 22 The blessing of Jehovah maketh rich ;
And with it, he giveth no sorrow :
- 23 As, to do mischief, is pleasure to a fool ;
So is it, to act wisely, to a man of knowledge.
- 24 The dread of the wicked shall come on him ;
But the desire of the righteous shall be granted.
- 25 As the passing whirlwind, so the wicked is not ;
But the just shall be established for ever.
- 26 As vinegar to the teeth, or smoke to the eyes,
So is the sluggard to those who send him.
- 27 The fear of Jehovah prolongeth the days of life ; [ened.
- But the years of the wicked shall be short-
- 28 The expectation of the just endeth in joy ;
But the hope of the wicked shall perish.
- 29 A fortress to the upright in the way is Jehovah ; [quity.
- But destruction shall be to workers of in-
- 30 The righteous shall never be removed ;
But the wicked shall not inhabit the earth.
- 31 The mouth of the just bringeth forth wisdom ;
But the froward tongue shall be cut out.
- 32 The lips of the just know what is acceptable ;

But the mouth of the wicked is frowardness.

CHAPTER XI.

- A FALSE balance is an abomination to 1
Jehovah ;
But a just weight is his delight.
- When pride cometh, then cometh disgrace ; 2
But with the humble is wisdom. [them ;
The integrity of the upright shall guide 3
But the perverseness of the wicked will destroy them.
- Riches profit not in the day of wrath ; 4
But righteousness delivereth from death.
- The righteousness of the perfect will direct 5
his way ; [fall.
But by his own wickedness shall the wicked
The righteousness of the upright will deliver 6
them ;
But the wicked by depravity shall be snared.
- When the 'righteous' dieth hope perisheth 7
not ;
But the expectation of the unjust perisheth.
- The righteous is delivered out of distress ; 8
But the wicked shall come into his place.
- By his mouth the impious destroyeth his 9
friends ;
But by knowledge the just are delivered.
- When the just prosper, the city rejoiceth ; 10
But when the wicked perish, there is shouting. [alted ;
By the blessing of the upright a city is ex- 11
But by the mouth of the wicked it is overthrown.
- One void of wisdom despiseth his neighbour ; 12
But a man of understanding will be silent.
- A tale-bearer goeth about revealing secrets ; 13
But he of a faithful spirit concealeth a thing.
- Through want of wise counsels a people fall ; 14
But through much 'counsel' there is safety.
- He that is bound for another shall smart 15
for it ;
But he that hateth suretyship is secure.
- A gracious woman secureth honour, 16
And mighty men secure riches.
- He that doeth good to his soul is a kind man ; 17

14. Treasure up] For use when wanted ; and they apply it for their own advantage as well as for the edification of others.

16. For life] That is, the support of life, and he receives and enjoys what is necessary.—For sin] Occasions it, as it affords the means of gratifying their depraved desires.

20. As mere dross] Hebrew, 'of no value.' This conveys the sense, in opposition to refined silver.

21. Feed many] This implies not only instruction, but guidance and government ; such as a shepherd exercises over his flock.

25. Passing whirlwind] Or tempest, which rages with violence but is soon over ; so vanish the wicked, when the day of vengeance cometh.

29. A fortress] A place of defence and security, as the word is often rendered.

CHAP. XI. 1. A false balance] The use of false weights and measures in commerce is highly displeasing to God.

2. When pride] Pride exposes a man sooner or later to disgrace.—But with the humble] Such are conscious of their liability to mistakes, and act cautiously in every affair.

5. Will direct] His principles will influence his conduct.

7. When the righteous] The reading of the Greek is preferred as giving us that contrast which so generally prevails in the Proverbs.

8. The righteous] They shall be delivered from unfounded accusations ; and their false accusers shall suffer the punishment which they intended to bring on them.

12. Despiseth his] Will not regard his advice or instructions, but will rashly venture on every scheme ; while a man of wisdom will silently listen to advice and follow it, when good.

14. Through much counsel] So the versions read. By 'much counsel' every matter is weighed, and the best plan chosen, which leads to security ; while rash counsels end in disgrace.

16. A gracious woman] A woman adorned with the virtues of her sex, and of religion, secures honour as her unalienable possession.

- But he that troubleth his own flesh is cruel.
 18 The wicked laboureth for a false recompense; [reward.
 But he sowing righteousness hath a sure
 19 For as righteousness conducteth to life;
 So he that pursueth evil hasteneth to death.
 20 The abomination of Jehovah are the forward in heart;
 But those upright in their way are his delight.
 21 Though hand be joined with hand,
 The wicked shall not go unpunished;
 But the seed of the righteous shall be delivered.
 22 As a ring of gold in the snout of a swine,
 Is a beautiful woman without discretion.
 23 The desire of the righteous is truly good;
 But the hope of the wicked passeth away.
 24 One distributeth, and yet increaseth the more; [yet bec ometh poor.
 Another withholdeth more than right, and 25 The liberal person shall be made fat;
 And he that watereth shall himself also be watered. [curse;
 26 Him that withholdeth corn people will
 But blessing is on the head of him that selleth it.
 27 He that studies to do good shall find favour;
 But he that seeketh evil, on him shall it come.
 28 He that trusteth in his riches shall fall;
 But the just, like a growing branch, shall flourish. [wind;
 29 He that troubleth his house shall inherit
 And the fool shall be servant to the wise in heart.
 30 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life;
 And he that winneth souls is wise.
 31 If the righteous be rewarded on earth,
 How much more the wicked and the sinner?

CHAPTER XII.

- 1 He that loveth instruction, loveth knowledge; [rant.
 But he that hateth correction, abideth igno-

- A good man obtaineth favour from Jehovah; 2
 But the man of evil devices he will condemn;
 No man, by wickedness, shall be established; 3
 But the root of the just shall not be moved.
 A virtuous wife is the crown of her husband; 4
 But a vile one is as rottenness to his bones.
 The purposes of the righteous are right; 5
 But the counsels of the wicked are deceitful.
 The designs of the wicked are to lay wait 6
 for blood; [them.
 But the mouth of the upright shall deliver
 The wicked are overthrown, and are not; 7
 But the house of the righteous shall stand.
 According to his wisdom will a man be 8
 praised;
 But the perverse of heart shall be despised.
 Better is one despised, who serveth himself, 9
 Than he who glorieth, and yet wanteth bread.
 A just man regardeth the life of his beast: 10
 But the mercies of the wicked are cruel.
 He that tilleth his land shall be filled with 11
 bread;
 But he that followeth vain things is foolish.
 An evil man coveteth the net of the wicked; 12
 But the root of the righteous yieldeth fruit.
 By the offence of his lips the wicked is 13
 snared;
 But the just shall come out of trouble.
 By the fruits of the mouth shall a man en- 14
 joy good, [given him.
 And the reward of a man's hands shall be
 The way of a fool is right in his own eyes; 15
 But he that hearkeneth to counsel is wise.
 A fool maketh known his wrath at once; 16
 But a prudent man covereth a disgrace.
 A "just man" will utter and declare the 17
 truth;
 But a false witness will utter deceit.
 A babbler is like the piercings of a sword; 18
 But the tongue of the wise is as a medicine.
 The lip of truth shall be established for ever; 19
 But the false tongue, only for a moment.

21. Though hand be] Though the wicked form confederacies to support and defend one another, and to preserve their power and ill-gotten wealth, yet the day of retribution will come.

22. As a ring of gold] Would be disgraced in the snout of a filthy swine, so is female beauty, when unsupported by modesty and discretion.

23. Truly good] Good in its nature, having what is good for its object; and in its degree, not exceeding due bounds. —Passeth away] The Sept. and Arab. read עברת as a verb.

24. One distributeth] Giveth liberally to the poor, Ps. cxii. 2, and yet through the divine blessing increaseth in wealth. —Another] What is due to the poor, and by degrees his wealth is diminished.

30. Winneth souls] If by 'the fruit of the righteous,' we understand his kindness in words and deeds, we may understand this clause, the effect of his labours. He winneth souls or persons, gaineth their esteem and favour, and turneth them to God.

31. If the righteous] Be chastised and punished for his sins, how much more the wicked, &c. The latter clause supports the sense given of the former. 1 Pet. iv. 17, 18.

CHAP. XII. 1. Abideth ignorant] This is the natural consequence of hating correction.

4. A vile one] By her immodesty and unfaithfulness is as rottenness, &c.

6. The designs of] Such characters have their agreed signals, and their peculiar terms for the regulation of their unrighteous conduct, and 'their words' are put for the designs they had formed.

9. One despised] The meaning is, a person who is his own servant, and can do what is necessary for himself, is better and more happy than a person who boasts of his rank, when he is reduced to misery and poverty.

12. Coveteth the net] By which they catch their prey, and become rich. He approprieth and maketh use of those cunning arts, by which, for a season, they prosper.

16. At once] Immediately on any provocation he rages, unmindful of time, persons, or circumstances—Covereth a] He bears it with patience, and if deserved, it leads such to repentance.

17. A just man] This reading the context requires, and it consists only in adding a different vowel point. (v) Versions and 1 MS.

- 20 Deceit is in the heart of those that devise evil;
But to the counsellors of peace there is joy.
21 Not any trouble shall befall a just man;
But the wicked shall be filled with evil.
22 The abomination of Jehovah are false lips;
But they who utter truth are his delight.
23 A prudent man concealeth knowledge;
But the heart of fools proclaimeth its folly.
24 The hand of the diligent shall bear rule;
But he that is slothful shall pay tribute.
25 Grief in the heart of a man boweth it down;
But a kind word maketh it joyful.
26 The righteous examineth his own thoughts;
But the way of the wicked seduceth them.
27 The slothful will not seize his own prey;
But the wealth of a diligent man is precious.
28 In the way of righteousness is life;
But the pathway of sin leadeth to death.

tite;
But the stomach of the wicked shall want.

21. Any trouble] This must be understood as opposed to the miseries which the wicked suffer. The just shall not suffer like them, either in this or a future state.

26. The righteous] The ambiguity of two words has occasioned very different renderings of this line. The version given arises from reading יר as a verb from ירר, with Durrell and many others. For the sense of כרתיו compare Ps. cxxxix. 2, where it is rendered 'thoughts.' The sense is, that such a man doeth nothing without due deliberation, and hence he succeeds in his designs; but the way of the wicked, their thoughts and purposes, being rash and precipitate, seduce them to their ruin.

CHAP. XIII. 3. He that guardeth] The person who thinks much, and only speaks when necessary, consults his peace and comfort, while he that talks at random exposes himself to danger and ruin.

5. Is odious] By his profane and his unprofitable jests, he makes himself odious, &c.

7. One pretendeth] That he may gain credit among men, and cheat them the more, and another hideth his wealth under the guise of poverty that he may keep it more safely.

8. Heareth not rebuke] Riches sometimes are the ransom of a man's life, but poverty secures a man, so that thieves or oppressors let him alone.

9. Shine with brightness] The Syriac sense of יאמר is adopted, and this forms a good contrast with the next line.

10. A vain man] With many critics, קר is considered as a noun, as the old translators did.

11. Given to vanity] To vain pleasures and pursuits. These soon diminish a man's substance; but the diligent hand will make rich.

12. Hope deferred] Or when what we hope for ever recedes from our grasp, the heart sickens with disappointment.

13. Shall be held guilty] By word is probably meant the word of God; which cannot be despised without incurring guilt.

15. The wise conduct] The latter clause requires the version given of this. See note, Heb. Bib. This version arises from changing the points.

19. Of what is forbidden] For the reason of this version see Michaelis. Forbidden things are more sweet to sinful men on that account.

23. The tilled land] That is, land cultivated by his industry, will produce sufficient for his use; but some for want

Yet the end of it leadeth to death.
- 13 Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful ;
And the end of that joy is sadness.
- 14 The backslider in heart shall be filled with his way ;
But a good man, with the fruits of his works.
- 15 The simple believeth every word ;
But the prudent looketh well to his steps.
- 16 The wise feareth and departeth from evil ;
But a fool transgresseth, and yet is confident.
- 17 The passionate man worketh folly,
And the man of wicked devices is hated.
- 18 The simple possess folly as an inheritance ;
But the prudent ardently seek knowledge.
- 19 The evil bow in the presence of the good,
And the wicked at the gates of the just.
- 20 A poor man is hated by his neighbour ;

But many profess regard to the rich.
He that despiseth his poor friend sinneth ; 21
But blessed is he that is kind to the poor.
Do not they who devise evil miss their aim ? 22
But kindness and truth they find who devise
In all labour there is profit ; [good. 23
But talkativeness tendeth only to want.
The crown of the wise is their wealth ; 24
But the possession of fools is folly.
A true witness saveth lives ; 25
But a deceitful one uttereth lies.
In the fear of God is strong confidence ; 26
For to his children he will be a refuge.
The fear of Jehovah is a fountain of life, 27
To turn men from the snares of death.
In a numerous people is the glory of a king ; 28
And in the want of people is the ruin of a prince.
He slow to wrath is of great understanding ; 29
But he of a hasty spirit exalteth folly.
The life of the body is a sound heart ; 30
But envy is the rottenness of the bones.
He that oppreseth the poor dishonours his 31
Maker ; [him.

Righteousness exalteth a nation ; 34
But sin is the reproach of a people.
A wise servant possesseth the king's favour ; 35
But his wrath is against him bringing disgrace.

CHAPTER XV.

- A soft answer turneth away wrath ; 1
But a provoking word stirreth up anger.
- The tongue of the wise maketh knowledge 2
useful ;
But the mouth of fools poureth out folly.
- The eyes of Jehovah are in every place, 3
Beholding the evil and the good.
- A healing tongue is as the tree of life ; 4
But a perverse one, like a destructive wind.
- A fool despiseth his father's instruction ; 5 of prudence and discretion, in the management of their land, come to want.

CHAP. XIV. 1. Buildeth up her house] She promotes the prosperity of her family, while a foolish one by misconduct disgraces and ruins her family.

3. A sharp spear] So Michaelis has rendered and supported this sense. Solomon intends the cutting reproaches, the curses of the wicked.

9. Guilt exposeth] The text will not admit the common version. Poole and others render, 'Sin deludes, or makes a mock of fools.' This is more agreeable to the text, and is adopted.

10. The heart] No one can ascertain the degree of sorrow or joy which another experiences, 1 Cor. ii. 11.

12. Leadeth to] The Chaldee reads ידר, which considered as a verb gives a clear and correct sense.

13. Even in] In this uncertain state, the cup of joy is succeeded by that of sorrow, and sometimes while the countenance wears a smile, the heart is full of grief.

14. Fruits of his works] This sense of the text arises from reading with different vowels ; and the Greek and Arabic translators so read.

18. Ardently seek] By reading כרר in Hiphil, it signifies to gird one's self, to pursue a thing with earnestness. In the former line, 'as an inheritance' denotes, that they hold and retain folly, as a man does his inheritance.

22. Miss their aim] Their object is, to secure wealth and honour, but find themselves disappointed.

26. To his children] That is, God's children. To them he will afford his aid and protection.

32. In his wickedness] This verse contains a strong proof of the belief of a future state of rewards and punishments in the time of Solomon.

CHAP. XV. 4. A destructive wind] The Hebrew is, 'a

- But he that regardeth reproof is prudent.
 6 The house of the righteous hath great stores;
 But the revenue of the wicked is troubled.
 7 The lips of the wise spread abroad knowledge;
 But the heart of fools, what is not right.
 8 The sacrifice of the wicked Jehovah abhorreth;
 But the prayer of the upright is his delight.
 9 Jehovah abhorreth the way of the wicked;
 But him that followeth righteousness he loveth. [correction;
 10 To one forsaking the way shall be grievous
 But he that hateth reproof shall die.
 11 Hades and destruction are before Jehovah;
 How much more the hearts of the sons of men?
 12 A scoffer loveth not one that rebuketh him;
 And with wise men he will not walk.
 13 A joyful heart maketh a cheerful countenance: [down.
 But by grief of heart the spirit is broken
 14 The heart of the prudent seeketh knowledge;
 But the mouth of fools feedeth folly.
 15 All the days of the afflicted are evil;
 But a cheerful heart is a constant feast.
 16 Better is a little with the fear of Jehovah,
 Than great treasure, and anxiety therewith.
 17 Better is a dinner on herbs, where love is,
 Than a fatted ox, and hatred therewith.
 18 A wrathful man stirreth up quarrels;
 But one slow to anger appeaseth strife.
 19 The sluggard's way is as an hedge of thorns;
 But the way of the upright is as the highway.
 20 A wise son maketh a father glad;
 But a foolish son despiseth his mother.
 21 Folly is joy to one destitute of wisdom;
 But a man of prudence walketh uprightly.
 22 Without consultation designs miscarry;
 But by many counsellors they are established.
 23 A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth;
 And how good is a word spoken in due season!

The path of life to the wise is above, 24
 That he may depart from hades beneath.
 The house of the proud Jehovah will demolish;
 But the widow's landmark he will establish.
 The thoughts of the wicked Jehovah abhorreth;
 But pleasing are the words of the pure.
 One greedy of gain troubleth his own house;
 But he that hateth bribes shall live. [swer;
 The heart of the just studieth what to answer;
 But the mouth of the wicked poureth out
 Jehovah is far from the wicked; [evils. 29
 But he heareth the prayer of the just.
 The light of the eyes rejoiceth the heart, 30
 And a good report maketh fat the bones.
 The ear that hearkeneth to salutary reproof
 Shall abide among the wise. [soul;
 He that refuseth correction, despiseth his
 But he that heareth reproof gaineth wisdom.
 The fear of Jehovah is what wisdom teacheth, 33
 And that before honour is humility.

CHAPTER XVI.

IN respect to man, the preparations of the heart
 And the utterance of the tongue are from Jehovah.
 All the ways of man are pure in his own eyes;
 But Jehovah pondereth the spirits of men.
 Commit thy works unto Jehovah,
 And thy purposes shall be established.
 Jehovah maketh all things to serve his design;
 Yea, even the wicked, in the day of calamity.
 Every one proud in heart Jehovah abhorreth;
 Though hand join in hand he shall not be
 By mercy and truth iniquity is covered;
 And by the fear of Jehovah men depart from evil.
 When a man's ways are pleasing to Jehovah,
 He reconcileth even his enemies unto him.
 Better is a little with righteousness,
 Than great revenues without right.

breaking or destroying by the wind; the sense of which is given.

6. Is troubled] Being obtained unjustly, it is enjoyed with fear and trouble.

10. Forsaking the way] The way of duty, either to man or God.

11. Hades] The whole invisible world is under the inspection of Jehovah. The language of this passage shows, that hades cannot mean the grave, but implies a state more difficult to inspect than the hearts of men.

15. Are evil] That is, no affliction is in itself joyous, but grievous.

16. And anxiety] When a man's mind is distracted with fears and cares, he has no enjoyment of what he possesses.

19. Is as an hedge] That is, it seems so to him. It is full of difficulties, which his indolence suggests it is impossible to overcome.

23. By the answer] When he answereth to a matter wisely and prudently, he has joy in reflecting on it; and what comfort does a word fitly spoken yield!

24. Is above] The way to attain life is for a man to set his heart on things above; to have a constant regard to the glories of another world, that he may live holily in this.

CHAP. XVI. 1. The preparations] Or right dispositions of the heart. I have adopted, as to the sense, the common version; but I yet doubt whether the other rendering is not the just one. To man belongs the preparations, &c.

4. To serve his designs] The version of Grotius, Secker, and others, I have adopted, by reading למען as a verb; and the meaning is, that as God hath made all things, so all things both in the natural and moral world are under his wise, unerring direction and government; yea, even the wicked, who refuse to obey his word, are manifestly under his control, in the day of calamity, when he punishes their sins. See note Heb. or Fam. Bib.

6. Is covered] The verb is thus translated, Ps. lxxix. 9.

- 9 The heart of a man deviseth his way ;
But Jehovah directeth his steps.
- 10 Mature counsel should be on the lips of a king,
That his mouth may not transgress in judgment.
- 11 A just weight and balance are from Jehovah ;
All the weights of the bag are his work.
- 12 To do wickedly should be the abhorrence of kings ;
For by righteousness is a throne established.
- 13 Righteous lips should be the delight of kings,
And they should love those who speak right.
- 14 The wrath of a king is as a messenger of death ;
Yet a wise man will pacify it.
- 15 In the light of a king's countenance is life,
And his favour is as the cloud of autumn rain.
- 16 It is far better to acquire wisdom than gold ;
And to acquire prudence, is preferable to silver.
- 17 The highway of the upright is to depart from And he that keepeth his way preserveth his soul.
- 18 Pride goeth before destruction,
And a haughty spirit before a fall.
- 19 Better is it to be humble in spirit with the lowly,
Than to divide the spoil with the proud.
- 20 He that acteth prudently will find good ;
But happy is he that trusteth in Jehovah.
- 21 The prudent shall be called wise in heart,
And his honeyed lips will increase learning.
- 22 Wisdom to its possessor is a fountain of life ;
But the instruction of fools is folly.
- 23 The heart of the wise maketh his mouth prudent,
And addeth learning to his lips.
- 24 Like drops of honey are pleasant words,
Sweet to the soul, and health to the bones.
- 25 Often doth a way seem right to a man ;
But the end of it leadeth to death.
- 26 A labouring person laboreth for himself ;
For his own mouth imposeth it upon him.
- 27 A worthless man diggeth up evil,
And on his lips there is a flaming torch.
- 28 A froward man soweth contention,
And a whisperer separateth chief friends.
- 29 A violent man allureth his friend,
And leadeth him in a way not good.

He closeth his eyes to devise froward things ;
He biteth his lips,—then doeth the evil.

21. And his honeyed] The noun is rendered adjectively ; and by honeyed lips is meant eloquence, persuasive and alluring speech.

26. Imposeth it upon him] That is, his appetite renders it necessary that he should labour for his support.

27. Flaming torch] His words are like firebrands, full of bitterness and cursing.

CHAP. XVII. 2. And divideth] The verb חָלַק admits both the sense of dividing and of enjoying. The former is preferred, as it shows in what manner such a servant rules over a profligate son. Compare Gen. xv. 2, 3.

4. But the just] This is the reading of the versions. The text is, 'And a liar giveth heed to a naughty tongue ; which is the same sentiment as the first line.

8. To its receiver] Hebrew, 'in the eyes of its lord,' or 'owner ;' but from the connexion, it must have the sense given.—Whithersoever] A gift maketh way for a man, and all love him that giveth gifts.

11. A rebellious man] Bringeth on himself calamity and ruin ; for against him all the power of the state is collected.

14. Before anger is] For the sense given to רִיבֹנֶלֶת, see Michaelis. It occurs only three times, and all in this book. The sense given, suits all the places.

- 17 A friend loveth at all times,
And a brother is born for a time of adversity.
- 18 A man, void of prudence, striketh hands,
And becometh surety for his friend.
- 19 He that loveth strife loveth transgression;

- 1 THE opinionist seeketh his own desire;
He in anger ridiculeth all sound wisdom.
- 2 A fool delighteth not in understanding;
But in discovering the thoughts of his heart.
- 3 When the wicked cometh, cometh also contempt,
And with public disgrace, reproach.

- 5 It is not good to respect the person of the wicked,
So as to overthrow the just in judgment.
- 6 The lips of a fool bring him into contention,

19. High his gate] The gate of his house, which marks his pride and ostentation, which bring on ruin. Some understand by his gate, the opening of his lips, 'the door of his mouth'; a sense highly improbable.

22. As to health] So Gesen. renders; and this sense is contrasted with 'drieth the bones' in the next line.

24. In the countenance] Knowledge and wisdom are indicated by the looks and features of a man, while the vacant and wandering stare of another shows his folly.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. The opinionist] One separated, one who thinks no one right but himself, and despiseth the opinion and conversation of others; he ridiculeth, &c. or reproacheth all sound wisdom. So Cocceius, Schultens, and others render; and the natural order favours the sense given. Our translators seem to have taken the passage in a good sense contrary to all the old versions.

4. A man's mouth] That is, the words of a wise man, as the next line proves.

8. Greedily swallowed] Schultens was the first, who from the Arab. gave a just sense to the verb לָבַח, which only occurs here and chap. xxvi. 22.

9. The spendthrift] Hebrew, 'the master of wasting,' or one addicted to extravagance.

14. The spirit of a man] The spirit of a man may support some bodily infirmity, but when the spirit is wounded, how can this be supported?

18. The lot] From this it appears that, in litigations or quarrels, the Jews had recourse to the lot in the days of Solomon, which was considered as giving the decision of the Almighty.

19. A brother] It has been observed that when brothers quarrel and fight, they appear most enraged, and are scarcely ever reconciled.

22. Findeth a wife] I have followed the text, although Kennicott contends that it is deficient, and that we should read, a good wife. This is implied, and Solomon commend matrimony, as the ordinance of God.

CHAPTER XIX.

- 1 BETTER is a poor man walking in his integrity,
Than he perverse "in his ways" though "rich."
- 2 For the soul to be without knowledge is not good;
And he that hasteth with his feet sinneth.
- 3 The folly of a man perverteth his way,
And then his heart is angry with Jehovah.
- 4 Wealth maketh many friends;
But the poor is deserted by his neighbour.
- 5 A false witness shall not go unpunished,
And he that uttereth lies shall not escape.
- 6 Many seek the favour of a prince;
And every one is the friend of a liberal man.
- 7 All the brethren of the poor hate him;
Much more will friends stand aloof from him.
He followeth them with words, yet they regard not.
- 8 He that gaineth wisdom loveth his own soul,
And he that preserveth prudence shall find good.
- 9 A false witness shall not go unpunished,
And he that uttereth lies shall perish.
- 10 Authority becometh not a fool;
Much less for a servant to rule over princes.
- 11 The prudence of a man deferreth his anger;
And it is his glory to pass over an offence.

But he that neglecteth his ways shall die.

And his recompense will he render unto
- 18 Correct thy son while there is yet hope,
And thy soul shall not long for his death.
- 19 A man of great wrath shall suffer punishment;

CHAP. XIX. 1. In his ways] The readings of MSS. and Versions adopted restore the antithesis, and give a just and proper sense.

2. For he that hasteth] A person without knowledge hasteneth after mischief. He falls into every snare.

7. Hate him] They act towards him, as if they did; and those who professed themselves his friends stand aloof, not regarding his entreaties.

10. Authority] For this sense, see Hunt. If by fool we understand a wicked man, the delights and pleasures of offence are what he desires, and most suitable to his character; but power and authority in the hands of such men is very injurious.

13. Contentious wife] Geierus has quoted a proverb of the Illyrians, 'That there is no necessity for him to go to war who hath a smoking house, a dropping roof, and a contentious wife; for he nat'ly war in his own house.'

- For if thou deliver him, he will still offend.

- A king, sitting on the throne of judgment, 8
Disperseth all wickedness with his eyes.

18. Thy soul shall not long] Hebrew, 'Thou shalt not lift up thy soul for his death.' Thou shalt not pray or wish for it.

22. Maketh a man] Here desire is put for what is desirable or estimable by a frequent idiom of the Hebrew. — Rich one] A poor man does not raise expectations, either by his circumstances or words; but the rich false one makes promises which he does not fulfil.

CHAP. XX. 1. Mocketh] Or maketh one to mock and rage. The effects of wine or strong liquor are evidently intended.

2. Sinneth against his life] Exposeth his life to danger. For absolute kings do according to their pleasure.

6. Many men] By omitting וְכַלּוּלֵי in the Versions, the construction and sense are restored.

8. Disperseth all] The due administration of justice checks the boldness of offenders.

- 9 Who can say, I have cleansed my heart,
I have purified myself from my sin ?
- 10 Divers weights and divers measures
Are both alike the abhorrence of Jehovah.
- 11 Even a boy will dissemble as to his actions ;
Is he pure, is he upright in his conduct ?

And with good advice make war.
- 19 A talebearer going about revealeth secrets ;
Hence meddle not with him that enticeth with his lips.
- 20 Whoso curseth his father, or his mother,
His lamp shall be put out in thick darkness.
- 21 An inheritance may at first be hastily gotten,
But its end shall not be blessed.
- 22 Say not, I will recompense an evil ;
Wait on Jehovah, and he will save thee.
- 23 Divers weights are Jehovah's abhorrence ;
And deceitful balances are not good.
- 24 The steps of a man are directed by Jehovah ;
For what man can understand his way ?
- 25 It is a snare to a man to retain what is holy,
And after vows then to make inquiry.
- 26 A wise king disperseth the wicked,
And bringeth over them the threshing-wain.
- 27 The spirit of man is the lamp of Jehovah,
Which searcheth all the inward recesses.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE heart of a king is in Jehovah's hand, 1
And, as water-streams, he turneth it where-soever he will.

Every way of man is right in his own eyes ; 2
But Jehovah pondereth the hearts of men.

The practice of justice and equity 3
Is more acceptable to Jehovah than sacrifice.

The designs of the diligent tend to plenty ; 5
But those of one too hasty, only to want.

He that acquireth treasures by a false 6 tongue,

The plunder of the wicked terrifieth them, 7
Yet they refuse to do what is right.

The way of a vile man is full of turnings, 8
But the pure is upright in his works.

Better is it to dwell on the corner of a roof, 9

11. Even a boy] Such an one soon begins to conceal what he knows to be wrong, and when interrogated will equivocate and dissemble. Is he pure ? &c.

16. Take his] This is not so much a precept as a caution to avoid suretyship, from the general consequences of it.

17. Bread of deceit] Gain or pleasure procured by unlawful methods. This shall be at last as disagreeable as sand in the mouth.

21. Hastily gotten] By injustice or oppression ; and such inheritance shall not abide.

25. To retain what] Solomon refers to the law respecting vows, Lev. xxvii. 1—27.

26. The threshing-wain] This must have been a capital and severe punishment. Compare Is. xxviii. 25, and xxx. 22, &c.

27. Which searcheth] Discerning not only a man's outward actions, but his inward thoughts, which no other man can see. 1 Cor. ii. 11.

30. The suppuration] See Parkhurst on חָבַר. The blueness of a wound cannot be said to cleanse it ; but suppuration does. So do stripes the evil humours of the mind.

CHAP. XXI. 1. As a water-stream] The order of the text cannot be adopted in a version without creating obscurity. See Ps. i. 3.

4. Light of the wicked] So our marginal version has it.

6. Pursueth vanity] Or, as others render, 'a vapour ;' and in his eager pursuit he falleth into the snares of death ; his crimes find him out and he perisheth. (v) Sept. Vulg. 2 MSS.

7. What is right] That is, they refuse to make restitution to those whom they have robbed and plundered.

8. A vile man] The conduct of such a man is regulated by no principles of honour or honesty.

12. The righteous] As the text stands, this is the most literal version. Grey omits לָרַע and transposes רָשָׁע from the first line to supply its place ; and renders, 'the righteous prospereth in his house ; but wickedness overthroweth the wicked.'

16. In the assembly] There is a reference in the text not to the dead only, but to the miserable dead. Some particular punishment is evidently intended, but none is expressed, unless we give the sense which is attributed.

- 17 He that loveth pleasure shall be a man of want ; [rich.
And he that loveth wine and oil shall not be 18 The wicked shall be a ransom for the just,
And the transgressor, for the upright.
19 Better is it to dwell in a desert land,
Than with a contentious, angry woman.
20 Desirable treasure and ointments are in the house of the wise ;
But a foolish man swalloweth them up.
21 He that followeth righteousness and mercy
Shall find life, and riches, and honour.
22 The wise scaleth the city of the mighty,
And casteth down its strong defence.
23 He that keepeth his mouth and his tongue,
Keepeth his soul from troubles.
24 Proud and arrogant scoffer is his name,
Who only acteth through the rage of pride.

Because his hands refuse to labour :

But the righteous giveth and withholdeth not. [tion,

Because they bring it with an evil design.
28 A false witness shall perish ;
For the man that heareth will speak the truth.
29 A wicked man hardeneth his face ;
But the upright considereth his steps.
30 Neither wisdom, understanding, nor counsel
Shall prevail against Jehovah.

But the victory is from Jehovah.

CHAP. XXII. 2. Meet together] They live together and need one another's assistance. It is the will of God, their common Creator, that they should be useful to one another.

8. The rod] The rod of punishment. This reading of the Sept. consists in the change of a single letter ; and seems to be the true one.

- The rich man ruleth over the poor, 7
And the borrower is servant to the lender.
He that soweth iniquity shall reap trouble, 8
And the rod shall consume his 'works.'
The liberal man shall be blessed, 9
Because he giveth of his bread to the poor.
Expel the scoffer, and strife will depart ; 10

9. The liberal man] Hebrew, 'He of a good eye,' which idiom signifies a kind, liberal person.

11. Jehovah loveth] The versions supply Jehovah.

14. The abhorred of] 'The impure and licentious, who seek only the gratification of their own lusts.'

15. Firmly fixed] Or 'bound fast.' By the depravity of nature, it is deeply rooted and so firmly fixed, that frequently nothing but the severest discipline will drive it from him.

19. I have this] The Sept. is followed instead of the usual and improper reading of the text.

20. (v) Many MSS.

He shall not stand in the presence of the mean.

And cease from thine own prudence.
- 5 Wilt thou dart thine eye on what is not ?
For assuredly riches make for themselves wings,
And fly away as the eagle towards heaven.
- 6 Eat thou not the bread of the envious,
Nor desire any of his dainties.

He will say to thee, Eat and drink ;
But his heart is not with thee. [up,

And deem thy courteous words to be corrupt.
- 9 Speak not in the hearing of a fool ;
For he will despise thy wise discourse.
- 10 Remove not the ancient landmark ;
And enter not the fields of the fatherless ;
- 11 For "Jehovah," their avenger, is mighty ;
He will plead their cause against thee.
- 12 Apply thy heart to instruction,
And thine ears to the words of knowledge.
- 13 Withhold not correction from a child ;
For if thou smite him with the rod, he shall not die :
- 14 Yea, if thou shalt smite him with the rod,
Thou shalt deliver his soul from hades.
- 15 O my son, if thy heart become wise,
My heart, yea mine, shall rejoice.
- 16 My reins shall even exult,
When thy lips speak right things.
- 17 Let not thy heart envy sinners ;
But live daily in the fear of Jehovah :
- 18 For there is a certain future reward,
And thy hope shall not be cut off.
- 19 Hear thou, my son, and be wise ;
And let thy conscience direct thy way.
- 20 Be not among those drunk with wine ;
Among those addicted to revellings ;
- 21 For the drunkard and reveller shall be poor,

CHAP. XXIII. 2. Put a knife] That is, if a man indulge to excess in the presence of a wise prince, he will incur his displeasure and expose his own life to danger.

5. They make] Or, 'they have wings and fly away.' They are lost suddenly and unexpectedly.

6—8. Eat thou not] These verses describe a vice peculiarly odious, but very common. How often do men invite others to partake with them, and yet grudge every morsel they take ! 11. (a) Sept. Arab.

18. For there is] This is the version of Michaelis and Dathe ; and the genuine sense of the text, as the next line most naturally refers to the hope of a better state.

19. Thy conscience] Or heart, direct and guide thy way.

CHAPTER XXIV.

- BE not thou envious at wicked men, 1
Nor even desire to be among them.
For their heart studieth destruction, 2
And their lips speak mischief.
By wisdom a house is builded up, 3
And by understanding it is established.
By knowledge the chambers are filled 4
With all precious and pleasant treasure.
The wise prevaileth over the strong, 5
And the man of knowledge over the mighty.
Hence by wise counsel make thou war ; 6
For in much counsel there is safety.
Wisdom is too high for a fool ; 7

30. Who associate] Confederate together, being addicted to the same vice. Mixed wine was stronger than pure, and hence the reason why such characters fly to it.

33. Thine eyes] How just is this remark ! 'Thy heart will suggest,' literally will speak, but the sense given our language requires.

34. Yea thou] Become insensible of danger, and buried in sleep.

35. They have] This implies that he apologizes for his sin and resolves to repeat it ; and this is but too general a practice. Habitual drunkards are rarely reformed.

CHAP. XXIV. 5. The wise prevaileth] This version arises from reading כָּבִיר as a verb instead of a noun. So Michaelis and others render.

- He durst not open his mouth in the assembly.
- 8 He that formeth plans for doing evil Shall be called, A master of devices.
- 9 The thought of foolishness is sin ; But the scoffer is an abomination to men.

When I had seen, I considered it well ; 32 I looked and received instruction : A little more sleep, a little more slumber, 33 A little more folding of the hands to rest ; And thy poverty shall come as a traveller, 34 And thy want, as an armed man.

CHAPTER XXV.

- THESE are also the Proverbs of Solomon, 1 which the men of Hezekiah, king of Judah, collected. It is the glory of God to conceal a thing ; 2 But the glory of a king to search a thing out. [depth, The heavens for height, and the earth for 3 And the hearts of kings are unsearchable. Remove the dross from the silver, 4 And pure metal will come forth to the refiner ; [sence, Remove the wicked from the king's pre- 5 And his throne shall be established in righteousness. Honour not thyself in the king's presence, 6 And stand not in the place of great men ;

7. Durst not] He is conscious of his inability to speak in public, and therefore it is his wisdom to be silent.

8. Master of devices] Such a character is meant as lives by his cunning and wickedness.

9. The thought] Device or purpose of folly, or as the Syriac and Vulgate, 'of the fool is sin.' His design is wrong in its principle.

11, 12. In the latter verse the reading of the Versions is adopted, and the force of לֹא extends to the next lines, which it does in other instances. The meaning seems to be, if thou see a man unjustly seized or condemned, when it is in thy power to deliver him ; and if thou say, 'I know him not, and I care not what is done to him,' will not God charge thee with the crime of blood, because thou neglectest to defend and rescue thy fellow-man ?

13. As thou eatest] The verb is in the imperative, but must be rendered conditionally to answer the next verse.

15, 16. Lay not wait] The connexion makes it clear that the falling of the just means his falling into calamities and misfortunes. He may often suffer these and yet regain his prosperity ; but the wicked will be overwhelmed at last with evils ; his crimes will be punished.

18. Upon thee] These words are necessarily understood, and ought to be supplied ; or else a strange sentiment is delivered indeed !

20. No reward] No prosperity, no riches ; or no satisfaction in these things.

22. From both] From Jehovah and the king.

31—34. With weeds] So קִשְׁקִשׁ signifies, according to Michaelis, and not nettles exclusively. Compare chap. vi. 9—11.

CHAP. XXV. 1. These are also] From this verse it appears, that the two former parts of this book, chap. i.—ix. and x.—xxiv. were among the sacred books in the time of Hezekiah ; and that he searched for any remaining proverbs of Solomon, that they might be added to these.

2. To conceal a thing] To keep his counsels and designs in his own breast, and to carry them into effect by secret and unknown methods ; but a king derives his honour for prudence and wisdom by searching out a matter ; and not less by keeping secret his own intentions.

4—7. Remove the dross] What dross is to silver, evil courtiers are to kings. Let them be removed, and good men put in their places. Compare Luke xiv. 10.

Than to be put lower in the presence of a

As to eat much honey is not good, 27

As the wandering bird or circling swallow, 2
So the curse causeless shall not come.
As the whip for the horse, and bridle for the 3

So is the rod prepared for the back of fools.
Answer not a fool, according to his folly, 4
Lest thou also become like unto him.
Answer a fool according to his folly, 5
Lest he should become wise in his own eyes.

lence,
Is he that sendeth a message by a fool.
As the legs of the lame are feeble ; 7
So is a proverb in the mouth of fools.
As one that bindeth a stone in a sling, 8
Is he that giveth honour to a fool.
As a thorn-branch in the hand of a drunkard, 9
So is a proverb in the mouth of fools.

8. Consider] This version arises from considering the verb as the imperative, and not as a participle. This verb occurs Ps. lxxxviii. 16. See Lex. Simon.

10. Condemn thee] As acting disgracefully, by betraying the confidence reposed in thee.

11. Apples of gold] Harmer judges citrons are meant. Among figures] The word is used for 'an imagination,' a picture in the mind, 'a figure,' sculptured on stone, drawn on a wall, &c. Compare Levit. xxvi. 1; Ezek. viii. 12; Numb. xxxiii. 52.

12. Obedient ear] He who hearkens to reproof will regard it as proper, and beautiful as a golden pendent.

13. As a vessel] Hunt has proved that it most probably denotes some vessel in which snow was preserved for the purpose of cooling their liquors. Compare Exod. xvi. 33.

14. A false gift] Either pretending that he has given, or will give something, without doing it. Like clouds and wind without rain, he disappoints expectation.

18. Like a club] From this it should seem the club was used as an offensive weapon, as well as the sword and arrow. A false witness is as destructive to a man as these weapons of death.

19. Is trust] A broken tooth or a lame foot are unfit for their office ; and as any reliance on them is vain, so is confidence in the treacherous.

20. Is he that singeth] This is as improper as to strip on a cold day, and raises a ferment of conflicting passions, like vinegar poured upon nitre.

22. Coals of fire] Your kindness shall melt him ; and reflections on his own unjust enmity shall be painful to him, Rom. xii. 20.

23. So a whispering tongue] When there is much whispering in company, it begets suspicion that something is said against some present, and this produces angry looks.

26. Offending before] Being moved from his steadfastness, so as to do what is wrong, either in respect to God or man.

27. So the contempt] This version arises from adopting the Arabic sense of the word. As eating too much honey will produce nausea and sickness ; so from experiencing the emptiness and vanity of honour arises the contempt of it.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. As snow] As these are unseasonable, and unsuitable, so honour, &c.

2. As the wandering] The meaning seems to be, as these birds fly here and there without any particular intention, so imprecations uttered rashly shall have no effect.

4, 5. These opposite directions may be proper when referred to different times and circumstances. 'Answer not a fool,' &c. when he is in a passion, or drunk ; for in this case thou wilt be guilty of the folly of casting pearls before swine. 'Answer a fool,' &c. when he is calm and sober, rebuke him sharply, and convince him of his folly, that he may be ashamed of it, and not be wise in his own eyes.

6. As one lame] As a lame man who drinketh violence, or is eager after spoil, but unable to obtain it ; is he that, &c. He is disappointed, because he employs an unfit instrument.

7. So is a proverb] It loses its force, its point from the manner in which it is applied.

8. That bindeth] And which cannot of course be thrown out ; so improperly doth he act who giveth honour to a fool.

9. As a thorn-branch] Which may injure both himself and others; so is a proverb, &c. It may be applied improperly and so become the cause of contention.

10. Every drunkard] The text is here uncertain, and the meaning of every word ambiguous; so that we have as many versions as translators. See note Heb. Bib.

13—17. The slothful] Compare chap. xix. 25. and xxii. 13.

18—19. As one that] As such a man may do real injury, so doth he who deceiveth his neighbour.

23. As silver dross] As this appears beautiful, and hides and covers the clay; so flattering lips are often agreeable, but they are only the gilding of a wicked heart.

26. His wickedness] He shall be brought to public shame and punishment; his deceit being detected and exposed.

CHAP. XXVII. 4. Sweeping rain] Jealousy is our marginal version.

8. His place] That is, from his home, leaving his family and neglecting his own concerns.

9. So agreeable] Durell so renders; and at least the sense is clear.

12, 13. The prudent] Compare ch. xxii. 3; xx. 16.

14. To him it will be] With 1 MS. and Sept. the two words rising early in the morning, are omitted, as unnecessary and as unmeaning. He who doth this betrays a mean sneaking spirit, which his friend will discover and despise.

16. He that would] Conceal from others her noise and reproaches, undertakes what is as impossible as it is to hide the wind that it shall not blow, or the perfume that it shall not spread abroad.

19. As from water] Various turns have been given to this proverb. Castellin and others render, 'As water representeth the face to the face; so doth the heart, the man to the man.' In this version a man's heart suggests to him-

- 21 As a crucible the silver, and a furnace the gold ; [him.

self his own moral character, as the water represents his face. In mine the sense is, that there are the same natural powers and affections in one man as in another ; and the same depravity is alike found in the hearts of all.

23-27. Acquaint thyself] We have here attention to the breeding of cattle and the cultivation of the land recommended.

CHAP. XXVIII. 2. But by a prudent] The term יָדָע, with 2 MSS. is omitted, as being included as to sense in the term prudent ; for this implies knowledge.

3. A needy ruler] Hunt has justified this sense of the text, which removes all obscurity.

8. Gathereth for] That is, it sometimes so occurreth through the providence of God.

11. Searcheth him] And exposeth his ignorance, notwithstanding his riches.

12. The just triumph] Over their opponents, and are raised to places of power and trust, then is the glory of a state secured. Parkhurst's version of the latter clause is, stripped, even of his upper garment. He is plundered of all things.

15. Hungry bear] These animals destroy more than they can eat.

17. A man oppressed] A man guilty of murder often destroys himself. The fear of being seized and punished leads to this awful deed.

18. Fall into the pit] The Sept. is followed as containing the better reading.

22. Coveting eye] So the versions render. Such a man grasps at all within his reach ; and often meets with disappointment.

25, 26. Covetous soul] Hebrew, he of wide or large desire, or soul, which may be applied either to liberality or covetousness ; the second line of each verse is transposed as forming a better contrast.

27. That refuseth] The Hebrew is, 'hideth his eyes, that is, refuseth, regards them not.

CHAP. XXIX. 1. A man often] That becometh as a restive untamed beast, that obstinately persists in his sins, shall utterly perish.

3. He that feedeth] So the old version renders, as did the Geneva translators.

4. Receiveth gifts] The word in all other places denotes oblations or gifts offered to God; but if it be the true reading it must here denote bribes.

7. Will not attain] They despise the poor, and care not how they are treated.

9. He is not dismayed] That is, the fool maintains his cause, being alike insensible to the sharp rebukes, or cutting taunts of the wise.

12. A false report] This will encourage the malicious, and spies and informers will abound. The whole people will be corrupted.

18. Without revelation] Or vision, such as the prophets had. How true this remark is, may be proved from the state of the heathen world. Compare Num. vi. 18.

21. Will in the end] The text and the sense of this verse are doubtful, as appears from the old and modern versions, but the common one is as probable as any.

24. Confess] Or declare what he knoweth. This alludes to the form of administering an oath amongst the Jews; see Matt. xxvi. 63. Compare Lev. v. 1.

But happy is he that keepeth the law.
That servant will not be corrected by words, 19

the divine sayings which he spoke to Ithiel^o

Surely I am more ignorant than any one; 2
Nor have I the understanding of some men:
For I have never learned wisdom; 3
Nor have I the knowledge of holy things.

Who gathereth the wind in his fists?
Who bindeth the waters as in a garment?
Who establisheth all the ends of the earth?
What is his name, or the name of his son?
The whole word of God is pure; 5
He is a shield to those that trust in him.

Two things do I request of thee, O God! 7
While I live, withhold them not from me.
Remove far from me vanity and falsehood; 8

CHAP. XXX. 1. Ithiel and Ucal] There is much uncertainty respecting the sense of this verse. The Greek and the Vulg. read not as proper names, but as appellatives. The common version is best supported, omitting the repetition of Ithiel. We have one of these persons mentioned Neh. xi. 7. and Grotius considers them friends of Agur.

3. Learned wisdom] Like Amos, Agur was not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, yet the Lord taught him to utter divine and weighty truths.

4. Who ascendeth] These questions imply that man's knowledge of God's works is limited and imperfect, and much more so of God and of His Son. The Sept. Alex. has, Sons, by which may be meant, the angels. Grabe has restored Son, and Calovius and others understand it to mean our Lord, the eternal Son of God. Compare John iii. 13. On the authority of Sept. Vat. and Arab. the words, if thou knowest, are omitted, which, as Secker observes, do not improve the sense.

5. The whole word] As by searching we cannot find out God or his works to perfection, it will be our wisdom to submit to his revealed will. This is true and important, and nothing can be added to it without corrupting it.

8. Bread sufficient] As Mede has observed, there is a twofold sufficiency, one of nature, and another of condition, to both of which there may be a reference. Comp. Matt. vi. 11.

- Give me neither poverty nor riches ;
Feed me but with bread sufficient for me ;
- 9 Lest I be full and deny thee,
And say, Who is Jehovah ?
Or lest I become poor and steal,
And take the name of my God in vain.
- 10 Accuse not a servant to his master,
Lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty.
- 11 There is a race who curse their father,
And bless not their own mother ;—
- 12 A race that are pure in their own eyes,
But are not washed from their pollution ;—
- 13 A race, how lofty are their eyes,
And their eye-lids, how are they lifted up !—
- 14 A race whose teeth are like swords,
And their jaw-teeth are as knives ;
To devour the poor from off the earth,
And the needy from among men.
- 15 The horseleech hath two daughters,
Which are ever crying, Give, give :
There are three things that are not satisfied ;
Yea, four that say not, We have enough :
- 16 Hades and the barren womb ;
The earth not to be satisfied with water,
And the fire never saith, 'There is enough.
- 17 The eye that derideth a father,
And despiseth the "instruction" of a mother ;
The ravens of the valley shall pick out,
And the progeny of the eagle devour.
- 18 'There are three things to me inscrutable ;
Yea, there are four which I know not :
- 19 The way of an eagle through the air,
The way of a serpent upon a rock,
The way of a ship through the midst of the
And the way of a man "in his youth." [sea.
- 20 Thus also is the way of the adulteress ;
She eateth and wipeth her mouth,
And saith, I have done no iniquity.
- 21 By three things a land is shaken ;
Yea, there are four which it cannot bear :
- 22 By a servant when he is made a king,
And a fool when he is filled with bread ;
- 23 By a hated wife, when she obtaineth power,

- And a maid, when she supplanteth her mistress.
- There are four things little upon earth, 24
Yet do they possess the greatest wisdom :
The ants, though a race of no strength, 25
Yet do they prepare their food in summer.
The jerboas are a race not vigorous, 26
Yet they make their houses in the rocks :
The locusts, though they have no king, 27
Yet they all go forth in bands :
The spider taketh hold with her hands, 28
And she dwelleth in the palaces of kings.
There are three that walk with dignity ; 29
Yea, four that are majestic in their gait :
The lion, most powerful among beasts, 30
And that turneth not away from any :
The war-horse, and the he-goat, 31
And a king against whom no one can stand.
If through pride thou hast done foolishly, 32
Or devised mischief, put thy hand on thy mouth : [ter,
For as churning cream bringeth forth but- 33
And wringing the nose bringeth forth blood,
So the provoking of wrath bringeth forth strife.

CHAPTER XXXI.

- THE words of his mother to the king ; 1
The divine sayings which she taught him.
- What, my son ! what, O son of my womb ! 2
What shall I say, thou son of my vows ?
- Give not thy substance to women, 3
And thy ways to what hath destroyed kings.
- It is not for kings, O Lemuel, 4
It is not for kings to be lovers of wine ;
Nor for princes to covet strong drink :
Lest they drink and forget the law, 5
And pervert the cause of any oppressed.
- Give strong drink to one ready to perish, 6
And wine to him distressed in mind.
- Let him drink and forget his poverty, 7
And remember his misery no more.
- Open thy mouth for one that cannot speak ; 8

9. In vain] These words must be supplied to fill up the sense. The danger of perjury among the Jews is obvious, by reason of a custom, or law amongst them, to tender an oath to those who were accused or suspected of theft, to clear and purge themselves.

10. Lest he curse] And the curse being deserved come upon thee: for God is the avenger of all those who are unjustly treated.

14. A race] This whole paragraph represents a set of proud and unprincipled hypocrites, who make gain of godliness, and plunder the poor and needy.

15. Two daughters] Hunt contends these are, 'Give, give.' That is, he calls the insatiable desire of blood, the two daughters of the horse-leech. By this emblem, Agur represents the character of ambitious and avaricious men. He amplifies the same subject in the following lines.

17. Shall pick out] Such sons shall forfeit their lives, and become a prey for the birds of the air. (v) Versions.

19. The way of a man] The comparisons preceding show that this last refers to something of which no account can be given, or of which no trace can be discovered. Thus Agur could not account for the flight of the eagle, nor for the motion of the serpent, nor that of a vessel through the deep; none of which leaves any mark of its path. Equally unaccountable to him was the way of a man in his youth; hurried on by the force of his passions, and governed by no fixed principles: so secret frequently in the indulgences of his vices, that no trace of them could be perceived. (v) Versions.

23. By a hated] For this elegant and just version, the public are indebted to Dr. Hunt. Compare Deut. xxi. 15, &c. These four evils occasion much trouble in a land.

25, 28. These little creatures are noticed for that instinct which impels them to provide for their future support and welfare.

31. The war-horse] So Schultens and Michaelis render. The former has supported this version with strong reasons.

CHAP. XXXI. 1. The words] For the text followed see note Heb. Bib.

4. O Lemuel] This name is here retained, though there may be some reason to doubt concerning it: for we never read of any such king in any other part of scripture. If these are the words of Bathsheba, the name must be considered as an epithet. The advice given is important, and happy had it been for Solomon had he followed it.

6. Strong drink] Mr. Wintle thinks that עֲרֵב here has a reference to the intoxicating draught that was usually administered by the Jews to a man just ready to suffer death. See Matt. xxvii. 34, &c. Thus the 2d clause will be explanatory of the former.

- In the cause of such as are ready to perish.
 9 Open thy mouth, judge righteously,
 And defend the oppressed and needy.

 And worketh cheerfully with her hands.
 14 She is like the ships of a merchant;
 She bringeth in her food from afar.
 15 She ariseth, while it is yet night,
 And giveth food to her household,
 And appointeth to her maids their task.
 16 She considereth a field and buyeth it;
 With the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.
 17 She girdeth up her loins for strength,
 And by exercise giveth vigour to her arms.
 18 She findeth that her traffic is profitable;
 Nor at night is her candle put out.
 19 She applieth her hands to the spindle;
 And in her palms she holdeth the distaff.
 20 She openeth her hands to the poor,

- And stretcheth them out to the needy.
 She feareth not for her household in winter; 21
 For all of them are clothed with double

 She worketh for herself beautiful coverlets; 22
 Her vestment is of cotton, dyed purple.

 When he sitteth among the elders of the land.

 And she shall rejoice in time to come.
 She openeth her mouth in wisdom, 26

 Her children rise up, and bless her; 28

 And in the assemblies her works praise her.

8. In the cause of] There is some uncertainty respecting the sense of בני מלוק, sons of changing, or 'passing away.' The common opinion is adopted, that, 'like sons of death,' they mean 'persons ready to perish.'

10. Who is he] We are not informed who was the author of this poem on a virtuous wife; it is composed in the order of the Hebrew alphabet, each verse beginning with its proper letter.

11. And of his property] Schultens considers ורשלו as here denoting the fruits of a man's industry and labour, his income or property; and this he may safely confide to such a wife.

16. With the fruit] That is, by her gains she planteth a vineyard. Did the Hebrew women occasionally labour in the field? From this it should seem that they did, as well as spin, weave, sew, &c.

17. By exercise] This is the sense of the Hebrew, 'she maketh strong her arms.'

18—20. She findeth] Here her industry is praised; and illustrated by her candle not being put out at night. Her kindness and charity are next noticed.

21. In winter] Hebrew, 'on account of the snow.' I consider that כשלג is used to denote the cold season.—Double garments] So our marginal version, which is much better than scarlet.

24. Girdles] These were a common article of traffic, and variously ornamented. Some were very costly, and worn only by the rich.

ECCLESIASTES.

INTRODUCTION.

Who was the author of this book has been much disputed. The most common opinion attributes it to Solomon, because he styles himself the son of David. What the author says of his works, riches, possessions, and pleasures, agrees to Solomon in a particular manner, according to the history in Kings and Chronicles. From the circumstances mentioned in this book, the author could not be young when he wrote it. It must have been written towards the close of life, when, on a review of the magnificent works which he had built, and the anxieties and toils which he had experienced, and the sins and follies which he had done, he confessed that there is vanity in every thing in this world. We may then consider this book as an evidence of Solomon's repentance after having revolted for a season to idols.

CHAPTER I.

Vanity of creatures from their perishing nature, and of human toils from their yielding no lasting satisfaction.

- 1 THE discourses of the preacher, the son of David, who reigned at Jerusalem.

CHAP. I. 1. Who reigned] This version arises from considering (מלך) as a participle and not a noun.

2. Vanity of vanities] That is, 'most vain;' but as there is a kind of emphasis in this repetition of the noun, it is retained. This may be regarded as the text of all that follows.

- Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; 2
 Vanity of vanities! all is vanity.
 What profit hath man in all his labour, 3
 With which he toileth under the sun? [eth;
 One generation goeth, and another com- 4

3. What profit] He can find very little true satisfaction in all his pains about earthly things. He argues this from the shortness of human life in general, which he illustrates by the continual changes which we behold in the natural world.

- But the earth abideth for ever.
 5 The sun also riseth, and the sun goeth down,
 And hasteth to the place where he arose.
 6 He moveth on towards the south,
 And then returneth towards the north.
 Around, around veereth the wind,
 And is ever repeating its circuits.
 7 All the rivers run into the sea,
 Yet the sea doth not overflow :
 To the place whence the rivers issue forth,
 To the same do they return, to flow again.
 8 All the things that are thus full of labour,
 A man is not able to recount ;
 Nor would the eye be satisfied with seeing them, [them].
 Nor would the ear be filled with hearing
 9 What is that which hath been, but what shall be ? [done ?]
 What hath been done, but what shall be
 So that there is nothing new under the sun.
 10 Is there a thing of which it can be said, See,
 this is new ? [fore us].
 It hath been already in ages that were be-
 11 But of former things there is no memorial,
 Nor will there be any of future things,
 Among those who shall come after them.
 12 I the preacher am king over Israel, in Jerusalem ;
 13 And I applied my heart to seek and search
 By wisdom concerning all things
 Which are done under the heavens :
 This evil occupation hath God given to men,
 That they may weary themselves therein.
 14 I have considered all the works
 Which are done under the sun ;
 And, lo, all is vanity, even a feeding on wind.
 15 What is crooked cannot be made straight,
 Nor can the defects of things be numbered.
 16 I communed with my own heart, saying,
 Lo, I have increased wisdom far beyond any
 That hath been before me in Jerusalem ;
 For I attained much wisdom and knowledge :
 17 For I applied myself to the study of wisdom,
 And to know excellence and prudence :

4—8. Here things most durable are subject to change ; have their vicissitudes, and nothing created is at rest. In the 5th verse the daily course of the sun is described ; and in the 6th his annual course through the signs of the zodiac. Nor have we reason to expect any thing more stable in future, For,

9—11. What is that] Men's labours and enjoyments are the same in general now as formerly. Nothing new has been or can be discovered to secure happiness in earthly things.

12. I, the preacher] In what follows, the preacher shows the vanity and insufficiency of human wisdom to make men happy ; although it appears best adapted to secure this end.

13. Weary themselves] If men would attain knowledge, they must search for it with great labour and acquire it by slow degrees.

14. Feeding on wind] That is, ends in the disappointment of hope. Compare Hos. xii. 2, 'Ephraim feedeth on wind ;' follows vain things, which disappoint his desires and

But even this I found to be a feeding on wind.

For in much wisdom is much vexation, 18
 And he that increaseth knowledge increaseth grief.

CHAPTER II.

The vanity of human labours, as yielding no solid satisfaction, 1—11 ; of human wisdom as not exempting from the common lot of nature, 12—17 ; and from not knowing who may enjoy the fruits of our labours.

- I SAID in mine heart, Come now, 1
 Make trial of mirth and enjoy pleasure :
 But behold, this also was vanity.
 To laughter I said, Art thou mad ? 2
 And to mirth, Why doest thou thus ?
 I examined my own heart 3
 Whether I should give myself to wine,
 My heart being still led by wisdom ;
 Or whether I should embrace folly,
 Until I might see in what is that good,
 For which men labour under the heavens,
 During all the days of their lives.
 I raised magnificent works ; 4
 I built for myself houses ; I planted for myself vineyards ;
 I made for myself gardens and groves, 5
 And planted in them fruit-trees of every kind ;
 I made also pools of water 6
 To water therewith the growing plantations.
 I bought men-servants and maid-servants, 7
 And had servants born in my house ;
 I possessed also herds and flocks in abundance,
 More than any had before me in Jerusalem ;
 I collected also silver and gold, 8
 And precious treasure from kings and provinces ;
 I procured men-singers and women-singers,
 And the sweetest instruments of music,
 The delight of the children of men.
 Thus I became great, and possessed more 9
 Than any who had been before me in Jerusalem ;
 My wisdom also remained with me.

expectations. This is the version of Aquila and Symmachus. See Gesen.

17. Excellence] Solomon laboured to know and understand whatever was most excellent and becoming, most fit to yield satisfaction, or to regulate conduct.

CHAP. II. 1. I said in mine] Solomon having found no pure, or continued delight in the extent and variety of his knowledge, [resolved to indulge in all lawful enjoyments.

2. Art thou mad ?] Desvœux and others render, 'made to shine ;' but the sense given is preferable.

3. Embrace folly] Pursue carnal pleasures, indulge my desires which may justly be called folly.

6. The growing plantations] Hebrew, 'the growing forest of trees.' The sense is given.

8. And the sweetest] This sense of the words שררה is as probable as any. Michaelis applies the words to the females Solomon collected for his harem. The feminine nouns may be used to denote those instruments which gave the

- 10 And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them.
I restrained not my heart from any joy ;
For my heart rejoiced in all my labour :
And in all my labour this was my portion.
- 11 But when I looked on all the works of my hands, [ployed,
And the labours in which I had been employed,
Behold ! all was vanity, even a feeding on wind !
For nothing remaineth under the sun.
- 12 I then turned myself to contemplate Wisdom, and vain-glory, and folly ;
(For what can the man do that cometh after the king,
But that which he hath already done ?)
- 13 And I perceived that wisdom excelleth folly, As far as light excelleth darkness.
- 14 For as to the wise, his eyes are in his head ; But the fool walketh on in darkness :
Yet I know that one event happeneth to all.
- 15 I therefore reasoned thus with myself ;
As it happeneth to the fool, so will it happen to me,
And to what purpose am I then more wise ?
I said in my heart, In this also is vanity.
- 16 For there will be no perpetual memorial, Either of the wise man or the fool ;
Since in future days all shall be forgotten ;
For how dieth the wise, but in like manner as the fool ?
- 17 I therefore was disgusted with life,
Because grievous to me is the work Which hath been done under the sun ;
For all is vanity, even a feeding on wind.
- 18 Moreover, I was disgusted with all my labours
In which I had laboured under the sun,
Because I must leave them to my successor :
- 19 And who knoweth whether he will be wise or foolish ?
Yet will he become lord of all my labours
In which I have wisely laboured under the sun.
In this also I perceive vanity. [sun.
- 20 I now thought that I must abandon all hope,
In respect to all the labour softest sounds, and most like the female voice. Music and song have ever been the delight of men.

10. Was my portion] I found entertainment in these things ; but this was all my portion, the pleasure ceased with the novelty.

12. Vain-glory and folly] The term חוללות here signifies the fame arising from riches, magnificent buildings, &c. and folly denotes the madness of such as expect happiness from these things.

14. Yet I know] Though the wise man hath many advantages over the fool, in the affairs of this life ; yet the same end awaits them both.

16. No perpetual memorial] It is promised to the righteous that " their memorial shall endure for ever," but there is no such promise respecting the mere wise men of this world.

18. To my successor] He mentions this as another source of vanity and disquiet. Had not Solomon his own son in mind ?

23. In the night] A man is so anxious to accomplish

In which I had laboured under the sun.
For one labours with wisdom, knowledge, 21
and skill ;
But to another who hath not laboured therein
Shall he leave it for his portion.
This also is vanity and a great evil.
What then is there to man after all his labour,
And after all the striving of his heart,
With which he hath laboured under the sun ? [grief ;
For all his days are sorrows, and his labour 23
Yea, in the night his heart hath no rest.
In this, also, I perceive much vanity.
Is it not good for man that he should eat 24
and drink,
And feast himself amidst his labour ?
But this, I perceive, is from the hand of God.
For who can eat or "drink" more than I ? 25
Truly to the man that is accepted in his 26
sight,
God giveth wisdom, knowledge, and joy ;
But to the sinner he appointeth the labour
Of gathering and heaping up riches, [him.
To give them to him who is accepted before
This also is vanity, even a feeding on wind.

CHAPTER III.

Vanity of human wisdom as confined to a certain time of acting, which, if we miss, our schemes and designs are vain ; yet God's works are perfect, &c.

For all things there is a season, 1
And a time for every purpose under the heavens.
There is a time to be born, and a time to die ; 2
A time to plant, and a time to root up what is planted. [serve ;
There is a time to slay, and a time to pre- 3
A time to pull down, and a time to build up.
There is a time to weep, and a time to laugh ; 4
A time to lament, and a time to dance.
A time to cast away stones, and a time to 5 gather stones ; [from embracing.
A time to embrace, and a time to refrain
There is a time to get, and a time to lose ; 6

some scheme, to gain some earthly good, that his thoughts will not suffer him to rest.

24. Not good] A proper and tranquil enjoyment of life comes from God, and this is what may be regarded as a man's portion.

25. For who can eat] The reading of the Versions is adopted as more connected with the close of the preceding verse. Had the good of man consisted in the gratification of the appetite, he must have enjoyed it.

26. This also is vanity] That is, as it respects sinners, whom God gives up to an insatiable, discontented mind, so that they labour and toil to heap up what, in the course of his providence, he often gives to the righteous.

CHAP. III. 1—8. There is a season] In this paragraph, Solomon shows the vanity of human life, from the circumstance that all things are subject to change, endure only for a time, have their own period, to which another and nearly opposite order of things succeeds. This he confirms from numerous examples taken from daily occurrences and experience.

- A time to keep, and a time to cast away.
 7 There is a time to rend, and a time to repair;
 A time to be silent, and a time to speak.
 8 There is a time to love, and a time to hate;
 A time to make war, and a time to make peace. [labour?
 9 What profit hath he who worketh from his

 Yet can no man find out the works of God,
 From their beginning unto their completion.
 12 I perceived then that there is nothing better
 Than for one to rejoice and to do good in his life. [drink, 13 But even this, that a man may eat and
 And enjoy the fruit of his labour, is the gift of God.
 14 I perceive that whatsoever God will do,
 That shall be done for ever;
 To it nothing can be added, and from it nothing taken:
 Yea, God doeth it that men may fear him.
 15 The thing that hath been is now,
 And what shall be hath already been;
 For God bringeth again what is past.
 16 Moreover, I have seen under the sun
 The place of judgment,—wickedness was there: [there.
 And the place of justice,—wickedness was 17 I then said in my heart,
 God will judge both the just and the wicked;
 Since for every purpose, and for every work,
 He hath appointed a proper season.
 18 I also further said in my heart
 Concerning this state of the sons of men,
 God proveth them, that they may see
 That they themselves are but as the beasts.
 19 For it happeneth to men as it doth to beasts,
 Yea, one event happeneth unto them:
 As the one die, so die the other;
 Yea, they have all one breath;

11. And hath put] Given them the desire to contemplate the objects and beauties of nature. There is an ellipsis of some verb, which is supplied.

14. Shall be done] So perfect is whatever he purposes or doeth, that no created agent can add to or take from it.

16, 17. Wickedness was] Solomon wisely inferred that God will some time rehear such causes, and judge both the righteous and the wicked.

18. God proveth] That is, God hath placed men in a state of trial, and will hereafter reward or punish them according to their conduct; though considered in reference to their birth, death, and corruption, they are but like the beasts.

21. Who knoweth the] Man and beast have the same organized bodies; they have the same breath; and this may be the object of human knowledge; but who can know the nature of the powers of the spirit which ascends to God its judge; who knows the place where it resides after

So that man hath no preeminence over a beast;

They are all vanity, and all go to one place; 20
 They are all of the dust, and to dust they return.

Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth 21
 on high? [the earth?

Or the spirit of a beast that goeth down to
 I see then that there is nothing better 22

Than for a man to rejoice in his works,
 Since this is the portion allotted unto him:

For who can bring him hither to see
 What may come to pass after his departure?

CHAPTER IV.

The preacher here shows that vanity is increased by oppression, envy, idleness, covetousness, solitariness, and obstinacy.

I THEN turned and considered all the op- 1

 Yea, he hath neither child nor brother;

Yet is there no end of all his labour,
 Neither is his eye satisfied with riches:

Nor doth he say, For whom do I labour,

This also is vanity and a distressing toil.

death? The state is revealed, but the place and manner of being are altogether unknown to mortals.—Which goeth down] This supports the opinion, that whatever may be the nature of the brutal spirit it perisheth after death; for whatever goeth down to the earth perisheth.

22. To rejoice] As the doctrine of a future state was not so clearly and fully revealed to the Jews as it is in the gospel, Solomon infers that our wisest course is to be content with the allotments of Providence, and not to torture our minds about what shall be in the world when we are departed.

CHAP. IV. 1. Tears of the oppressed] How often are the poor injured, and treated with the greatest injustice; and none are found ready to support or comfort them!

7, 8. Again] This describes the state of a wretched miser, who though he have none to possess what he acquires, yet pursues riches, and even deprives himself of the necessary enjoyments of life.

- 9 Two are better than one ; [hour.

10 If one fall, his companion may help him up ;
But wo to him that falleth, being alone,
And hath no companion to help him up !
11 Also, if two lie together they will be warm ;
But how can one be warm alone ?
12 If a man be too strong for one of them,
The two will be able to withstand him ;
And a threefold cord is not easily broken.
13 Better is a poor but wise youth
Than an old and foolish king,
Who will no longer be admonished.
14 For from prison he came forth to reign ;
Yet, in his own kingdom, was he born poor.
15 All the living, who walk under the sun,
I saw attending a second youth,
Who is about to stand up in his stead.

Errors to be avoided in religious service ; and the vanity of power and wealth.

- 1 KEEP thy foot when thou goest to the house of God ;
And be thou more ready to hearken,
Than to offer the sacrifice of fools :
For they know not that they do evil.
2 Be not rash with thy mouth,
And let not thy heart be hasty

So is the voice of a fool known by many 4 When thou vowest a vow to God,
Delay not to perform it ;
For he hath no delight in fools :
Pay then whatsoever thou hast vowed.
5 It is better that thou shouldst not vow,

- Than that thou shouldst vow and not pay.
Suffer not thy mouth to cause thee to sin ; 6
And say not to the priest, It was an error.
Why should God be angry at thy voice,
And destroy the work of thy hands ?
For as in many dreams is great vanity, 7
So also in many words : hence fear God.
If thou see the oppression of the poor, 8
And the perversion of law and justice in a land,
Be not too much moved at this matter ;
For one higher observes the high,
And he that is highest observes them both.
The produce of the earth is for all ; 9
And a king is supplied from the field.
He that loveth silver, silver will not sa- 10

Nor increase him that loveth abundance.
This also is vanity.
The more goods are increased, [them : 11
The more increased are they that consume
And what profit have their possessors,
Unless the beholding of them with their eyes ?
Sweet is the sleep of a labouring man, 12
Whether he hath eaten little or much ;
But the fulness of the rich deprives him of rest.
A painful evil have I seen under the sun, 13
Riches kept to the affliction of their possessor ;
For these riches by misfortune perish ; 14

As he came naked from the womb of his 15
So, as he came, must he certainly return ;
Nor is there aught gained by his labour,
Which he can take away with him.
And this is also a painful evil, 16
That in like manner as he came he must depart : [wind ?
What profit hath he that laboureth for
Yea all his days he eateth in darkness, 17
With much sorrow, pain, and vexation.
Behold that which I have seen : 18

9—12. Two are] Covetousness deprives a man of the benefits of friendship. Friends may assist one another in many ways, and especially in a time of adversity.

13—16. Better is a poor] In this paragraph Solomon adverts to the inconstancy of popular favour, even towards princes ; and consequently the vanity of it. Some think that there may be a reference to events in one of the states bordering on Judea.

18. A second youth] The people, become weary of the king of their choice, are ready to set up a second youth, either his son or some other, to reign in his stead. All the living, all the people of that country espouse his cause, and this 'second youth' becomes their leader ; yet such is their inconstancy, that they will not rejoice in him. See Judg. ix.

CHAP. V. 1. Keep thy foot] In this direction there is an allusion to the eastern custom of putting off the shoe in token of reverence.

2. In the heavens] Most highly exalted ; hence let thy words be few ; that is, well weighed and considered.

4—6. When thou] Compare Lev. xxvii. 2, &c.—Say not to the priest] It was the office of the priest to judge and decide respecting vows ; and the priest is called angel or messenger of the Lord.—It was an error] I vowed ignorantly and foolishly ; and I hope that you, as God's messenger, will absolve me on offering the sacrifice for sins of ignorance, Numb. xv. 26.

8. One higher] Inferior judges are amenable to the superior, and these to the king, as he is to a just and righteous God.

9. The produce] The sense is, that the king should watch over the peasantry, and preserve them from unjust exactions, as himself as well as they must be supplied with the necessaries of life from the cultivation of the earth.

10. This also] That acquisition should, instead of satisfying, only increase the desire of gaining more.

12. Fulness of the] His cloyed stomach often prevents any comfortable rest : and he is often tempted to envy the health and enjoyments of the poor.

15—17. As he came naked] Should a man enjoy his wealth until the close of life, then he must leave it. Death will strip him of all.

It is good and proper for one to eat and drink, [the sun,
And to enjoy the good of his labour under

Vanity of riches unenjoyed ; of wandering and unsatisfied desires, &c.

1 THERE is an evil which I see under the
And it is common among men : [sun ;
2 A man, to whom God giveth riches, wealth,
and honour, [sireth ;
So that he wanteth nothing that his soul de-
Yet God giveth him not the spirit to enjoy
them ;
But some other man shall enjoy them.
This is vanity and a painful disease.
3 Should this man beget a hundred children,
And should he live ever so many years ;
Yet, however many were the days of his life,
If his soul be not satisfied with good,
The very abortive, which hath no burial,
I say, is far happier than he.
4 For though it came in vain, and went in darkness, [ness ;
And though its name be covered with dark-
5 Though it saw not the sun, nor knew aught,
Yet had it more rest than the other.
6 Yea, should he live a twice thousand years,
He would not have any enjoyment :
And do not all go to one place ?
7 All the labour of man is for his mouth ;
But the appetite is never satisfied.
8 What then hath the wise more than the fool ?
Or what the poor man who understandeth
How to walk among the living ?

18. To eat and drink] In this and the following verses, Solomon shows that men ought to enjoy in moderation the bounties of Providence ; and of course, that it is equally the sin of any not to enjoy them, as it is to abuse them.

CHAP. VI. 2. Giveth him not the spirit] That is, he often permits and suffers men in the midst of abundance to indulge their own avarice, so that they have no spirit to partake of what they possess.

3-6. Should this man] Such a character may be blessed with a numerous family, and favoured with a long and prosperous life, yet can never have any enjoyment.

7. For his mouth] Hunger is soon satisfied ; but the appetite, the desire of the mind, is never satisfied.

8. What then hath] The advantage of wisdom is, that it curbs and regulates unreasonable desires ; so that a poor man who understandeth how to conduct himself properly, and to bring his mind to his circumstances, is far happier than the rich miser.

9. This is vanity] Indulging vain desires after things which are beyond our reach.

Better is the enjoyment of present things, 9
Than to pursue every object of desire :

For this is vanity, even a feeding on wind.

He that formerly existed received a name, 10
And it is known that it was Adam (of the earth.)

Let him not then dare to contend with one
That is mightier than himself.

Since many things do but increase vanity, 11
What profit can man derive from contention ? [life,

For who knoweth what is good for man in 12
The few days of his vain life that pass as a shadow ?

Or who can make known to a man
What shall be after him under the sun ?

CHAPTER VII.

Remedies against vanity are a good name, patience, and wisdom, &c.

A "good" name is better than precious 1 perfume ; [birth.

And the day of death than the day of one's
Better is it to go to the house of mourning, 2
Than to go to the house of feasting ;

For that is the end of all men,
And the living may lay it to his heart.

Better is sorrow than laughter ; 3
For by a sad countenance the heart is improved. [mourning.

The heart of the wise is in the house of 4
But the heart of fools in the house of mirth.

Better is it to hear the rebuke of the wise, 5
Than for one to listen to the song of fools.

For as the crackling of thorns under a pot, 6
Such is the laughter of a fool : this also is vanity.

Surely oppression maketh a wise man mad, 7
And a gift corrupteth the heart.

Better is the end than the beginning of a 8
thing ;

And better he who is of a patient spirit
Than he who is of a haughty spirit.

Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry ; 9
For anger resteth in the bosom of fools.

10. Every one born] Hebrew, 'He that is, or exists,' is already named ; every one born hath long ago received a name, alluding to Gen. ii. 7 ; iii. 19. And it is known that it is Adam (of the earth) to intimate man's origin, sin, weakness, and frailty.—Let him not] Let not any of the human race contend with God, and murmur against him.

11. Since many things] What profit can it be to man to multiply words against Providence ? Can this alter the nature of things ? Nay, man does not know what may be best for him, and should therefore submit to the all-wise dispensations of God.

CHAP. VII. 1. A good name] So the versions.—The day of death] Of such a man's death, as it is the end of his trouble, and the commencement of his perfect felicity.

2-6. It is better to go] These observations are founded on experience, and they are both true and important.

7. Oppression] If what is said regards the oppressor, and not the oppressed, it shows how power, and the abuse of it, counteracts the wisest maxims, and drives a man to madness to retain it, or extend it, when he is opposed.

- 10 Say not thou, How is it
That former days were better than these?
For thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this.
- 11 Wisdom is better than an inheritance,
And more useful to those who see the sun;
12 For wisdom is a defence—money is a defence,
But the excellence of attained wisdom is,
That it giveth life to its possessors.
- 13 Consider any work of God: [crooked?
Who indeed can make straight what is 14 In the day of prosperity be joyful,
Yet have respect to the day of adversity:
For this hath God made near to that,
So that a man cannot find out
What thing may next happen unto him.
- 15 All this I have seen in the days of my vanity: [teousness,
There is one just that perisheth in his right-
And one wicked who liveth long in his wickedness.
- 16 Be not thou righteous overmuch,
Nor make thyself otherwise;
For why shouldst thou destroy thyself?
- 17 Be not overmuch wicked, nor be thou foolish;
For why shouldst thou die before thy time?
- 18 Happy if thou retain this precept,
And from that withdraw not thy hand:
He that feareth God will escape both evils.
- 19 Wisdom giveth more strength to the wise
Than ten governors, who are in a city.
- 20 Truly, there is not a just man upon earth;
One that doeth good, and never sinneth.
- 21 Attend not to all things which are spoken,
Lest thou hear thy servant revile thee.

- For thy heart knoweth, that oftentimes 22
Thou also hast reviled others.
All these things have I wisely tried: 23
I said, I will be wise; but it is far from me.
Far off is that which hath been, 24
And exceedingly deep, who can find it?
Thus I applied my mind to know and to 25
search, [things:
And to find out wisdom and the reason of
To know also the wickedness of folly,
And the mad deeds of the foolish.
And I found more bitter than death, 26
The woman whose heart is snares and nets,
And whose hands are chains;
He that is truly good shall escape from her,
But by her shall the sinner be taken.
Behold! this I have found, saith the 27

Wisdom commended; kings are to be respected, providence observed, and adversity, united with piety, better than the prosperity of the wicked.

- Who is like the wise man, 1
And who, as he, knoweth how to explain a thing?
Wisdom maketh a man's face to shine,
And restoreth boldness to his countenance.
Keep, I advise thee, the king's command- 2
ment,

10. Say not thou] It is common to praise old times, and to think that they were better than present times; but the folly of this is, that those who then lived, did the same with respect to the times before.

14. Have respect] Never forget, even in the most prosperous state, that adversity may come; for in this changing state the one often succeeds the other.

16. Be thou not] This has been considered a singular precept; but when the connexion is observed, its propriety is evident. When we see a just man perish through his integrity or righteousness, or the wicked prolong his life through his wickedness, let not any one pretend to be 'more righteous or wise than God,' by arraigning the wisdom or justice of his providence. For he has reasons for permitting these things, though they are inscrutable to us.—Destroy thyself!] By impotence as it respects thy own sins, and unbelief as it regards the wise government of God.

17. Be not overwicked] We must not suppose that Solomon allows of any degree of wickedness, when he speaks of being 'overwicked;' but his meaning is, that excessive wickedness soon ends in the death of those who practise it. Dr. Wardlaw regards both these verses as a severe irony. If a man would secure the friendship of the world, and his own life, he must not be too religious, nor pretend to too much wisdom. Excess in wickedness will expose also to danger. Hence avoid these things. In this view the subject is relieved of some of its difficulties.

18. Both evils] Hebrew, 'All these things;' but this is limited by the context. The fear of God, will teach a man to bow to his judgment, and not to charge God foolishly, on the one hand, nor daringly to sin and transgress on the other.

20—22. Truly there] This is a humble confession of the lapsed state of man. For, in the opinion of Solomon, there is no one sinless.

23. Wisely tried] The reason of what hath been done, or is doing, is too deep for me to fathom, or for any other man.

25. And the mad] Hebrew, 'The foolishness of madness.' In this book abstract nouns are often used, when the actions of which they are the qualities are intended.

26. I found] The worst of sinners I found to be a woman without virtue.—He that is truly good] Hebrew, 'good before God,' good in his sight, or truly good, shall escape, &c.

28. As yet I seek] Hebrew, 'My soul seeketh.'—One wise man] One seems used for a few; and wise is implied. There are a few men who study and attain wisdom. Solomon only states his own experience; and many suppose that he refers to the thousand women of his own harem, 1 Kings ii. 3. They had been selected for their beauty, and not for the endowments of the mind.

29. Have I found out] My researches have led me to this conclusion. That though God made man upright, yet that he is fallen from that state, and his whole race have sought out, and practised many corruptions.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Who is like the] Whatever may be the imperfections of knowledge, and though many things are inscrutable, yet who is as the wise? who knoweth as well as he the reason of things?—Restoreth boldness] While good sense beams in his eye, confidence in his own knowledge and integrity, produces an undaunted boldness of countenance.

2. The oath before God] The oath of allegiance. Compare 1 Chron. xi. 3; xxix. 24; Ezek. xvii. 16, 18.

- And that, on account of the oath before God.
- 3 Depart not confounded from his presence ;
Nor persist in an evil matter ;
For he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him.
- 4 A king's command is enforced by power ;
And who may say to him, What doest thou ?
- 5 He that keepeth a command shall not know evil,
And a wise man will discern a proper time.
- 6 For there is a proper time for every purpose :
Yet the misery of man is great in this respect,
- 7 That he knoweth not what shall be ;
For what shall be, who can inform him ?
- 8 As no man hath power over the wind to restrain it ;
So no one hath power in the day of death :
There is no escape from that conflict ;
Nor will wickedness deliver those that practise it. [dered
- 9 All this have I seen, and attentively considered
Every work that is done under the sun,
And how man ruleth over man to his hurt.
- 10 And so I have seen the wicked buried and gone ; [gotten
From the palace they depart, and are for-
In the very city where they have thus done :
This also may be accounted vanity.
- 11 Because sentence for an evil work is not executed speedily.
Therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.
- 12 Though a sinner do evil a hundred times,
And should still prolong his days ;
Yet I know that it shall be well with those Who fear God, and worship before him :
- 13 But it shall not be well with the wicked,
Nor shall he prolong his days, but as a shadow,
Because he worshippeth not before God.
- 14 This vanity also is done upon earth :
There are righteous men to whom it happeneth
According to the work of the wicked ;
And wicked men, to whom it happeneth
According to the work of the righteous :

I said that this also is vanity.
I then commended joy ; 15
For nothing is better for a man under the sun,
Than to eat, and to drink, and to rejoice ;
For this shall abide with him in his labour the days of his life
Which God giveth him under the sun.
As I applied my mind to gain wisdom, 16
So also to see the business that is done on earth ;
(For neither by day nor by night
Do some men close their eyes to sleep :)
Yet I saw that, as to any work of God, 17
man cannot find out,
As to any work that is done under the sun :
For though a man labour to seek it, yet will he not find it :
Yea, though a wise man think to know it,
Yet will he not be able to find it out.

CHAPTER IX.

Men alike subject to death ; God's providence general, and the excellence of wisdom.

TRULY to all these things I applied my mind,
And all these things I diligently examined.
I then perceived that the just and the wise,
And their works, are in the hand of God ;
Yet cannot men know either love or hatred,
By all that is before them.
For all things happeneth alike to all ; 2
There is one event to the just and wicked ;
To the good "and evil," to the clean and unclean ; [sacrificeth not.
To him that sacrificeth and to him that sa-
As it happeneth to the good, so to the sinner ; [an oath.
As to the swearer, so to him that feareth
This evil is in all that is done under the sun, 3
That the same event happeneth to all ;
Yea, the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, [live,
And madness is in their heart while they
And after that they depart to the dead.
Yet to him that is joined to the living is 4
hope ;

3. Depart not confounded] Having violated some royal ordinance.

5. A proper time] Many MSS. read שְׂמִימָה, a right time, a fit opportunity ; that is, when it may be proper to give advice to a king.

7. He knoweth not] Events occur over which we have no control. Even kings feel their weakness on such occasions. For,

8. As no man hath] The word רִיח is rendered wind, and not spirit, because there is an evident comparison intended in the latter member of the text, which in the common version is wholly lost. The Syriac and Arabic so render.

10. From the palace] Hebrew, 'from the holy place,' where they dwelt. Kings were considered as sacred persons.—Where they had thus done] Though they boasted of their power, lived in pomp, and struck terror into others, yet how soon is all this seen to be vanity.

11. Because sentence] Human depravity abuses the patience and forbearance of God which is seen in a thousand instances.

13. Nor shall he prolong] In the former, Solomon states conditionally, 'should a sinner prolong his days ;' but in this he asserts positively, that he shall not prolong them more than others.

14. Righteous men] This shows the imperfection of the present state, and the necessity of a future one.

16, 17. To gain wisdom] If a man should employ all his time ; should he never close his eyes to sleep, yet will he not discover any of the works of God to perfection.

CHAP. IX. 1. Love or hatred] Though fully aware that every thing is under the regulation of a wise and just providence, yet men cannot tell whether they are loved or hated by the events and occurrences of life only.

2. And the evil] The structure of the sentence supports this reading of the versions, and without it the sense and parallelism are imperfect.

4. That is joined] So the Keri, supported by all the vers.

- For a living dog is better than a dead lion.
 5 The living indeed know that they must die,
 But the dead know not any thing;
 And they have no more a reward on earth;
 And the memorial of them is forgotten.
 6 Both their love and their hatred,
 And their envy have already perished;
 Nor have they a part any more for ever
 In whatsoever is done under the sun.
 7 Go then and eat thy bread with joy,
 And drink thy wine with a cheerful heart;
 For God now accepteth thy works.
 8 Let thy garments be at all times white;
 And let not thy head want ointment.
 9 Live joyfully with thy wife;
 Love her all the days of thy vain life
 Which God granteth thee under the sun:
 For this is thy portion in life, and in thy labour,
 In which thou labourest under the sun.
 10 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do with thy might; [ledge,
 For there is no work, or device, or know-
 Or wisdom, in the grave, whither thou art going.
 11 For I have often seen under the sun,
 That a race is not always won by the swift,
 Nor a victory obtained by the strong;
 Nor have the wise always necessary food,
 Nor the prudent riches, nor the skilful favour;
 But time and chance happen to them all.
 12 Truly man knoweth not what may befall
 him:
 Like fish which are caught in the net,
 Or birds that are taken in the snare;
 Like them are men snared in an evil time,
 When misfortune cometh suddenly upon
 them.
 13 Yet this wisdom I have seen in the world,
 And great it appeared unto me.
 11 There was a small city and few men in it;
 And there came against it a great king,
 And, besieging, he built great bulwarks against it:

5. Know not any thing] They have nothing to do with, nor any knowledge of, the various things of this life. The two following verses limit the sense of this as explained. Compare Job xiv. 21, &c.

7. Go then and eat] Let thy appearance be neither sorrowful nor sad; but while thy garments are white, let thy heart want no ointment.

9. With thy wife] Marriage is not only honourable, but contributes essentially to the comfort of life.

11. For I have] For as it sometimes happens that our labours are not crowned with the success which we expected, so we should be more diligent to embrace every opportunity which offers.

13. Yet this wisdom] Solomon shows that wisdom often effects more than power.

15. Yet not any remembered] They did not regard him as they ought, nor properly reward him, because he was poor.

18. One sinner] By violating the law, does much injury to a city or a state, as well as to himself.

CHAP. X. 1. As dead flies] In hot countries this effect

But in it was found a poor, wise man; 15
 And by his wisdom he preserved the city:
 Yet not any remembered this poor man.
 Then I said, Wisdom is better than strength: 16
 Yet the wisdom of a poor man is despised,
 And his words are often disregarded.
 The words of the wise should be quietly re- 17
 garded, [ruler.
 Rather than the clamour of a most foolish
 Wisdom is better than weapons of war; 18
 But one sinner destroyeth much good.

CHAPTER X.

Observations on wisdom and folly; on kings and what is due to them.

As dead flies cause the perfumer's oint- 1
 ment
 To send forth a stinking savour,
 So doth the least folly him reputed for wisdom and honour.
 The sense of the wise is at his right hand; 2
 But the sense of a fool is at his left hand.
 Yea, as the fool walketh in the way, 3
 He sheweth his want of understanding,
 And telleth all that he is a fool.
 If the anger of a ruler rise against thee, 4
 Leave not thy place;
 For mildness pacifieth for great offences.
 This evil have I also seen under the sun, 5
 An error which proceedeth from the prince:
 The foolish are raised to the highest dignity, 6
 And the noble and rich sit in a low place.
 I have seen servants riding on horses, 7
 And princes as servants walking on foot.
 He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; 8
 And whoso breaketh a fence, be bit by a serpent. [them;
 He that removeth stones will be hurt by 9
 And he that cleaveth wood, thereby be crushed. [ened,
 If the iron be blunt, and its edge not sharp- 10
 Then must a man use much more strength;
 But wisdom directs to act to advantage.
 If a serpent hath bitten without enchant- 11
 ment, [chanter.
 Then will there be no profit to the en-would soon be produced.—So a little folly] When a wise and elevated character does any thing imprudently, it is more noticed than in common cases.

2. The sense of the] The heart signifies the mind, the conscience, the sense, which term is adopted as best expressing the proverb.—Is at his right hand] Such a man is prepared to make use of every occurrence, but the fool has his sense to seek when he should use it.

3. He shoveth] Such a man by his words and actions betrays his folly.

4. Pacifieth for] Will remove the anger they may occasion, and is the readiest way to obtain forgiveness.

5—7. This evil] Nothing is more common in courts than for worthless men to become favourites, and to be loaded with honours, while the noble are often neglected.

10. But wisdom] It is the property of wisdom to direct a man to avail himself of every circumstance to gain his object.

11. To the enchanter] The meaning is, that remedies ought to be applied in due time.

- 12 The words of a wise man procure favour ;
But the lips of a fool swallow up himself.
- 13 The beginning of his discourse is folly,
And the end of his talk mischievous madness. [things,
- 14 A fool also multiplieth words, as to future
When yet no one can know what may be :
For what may be after him, who can tell him?
- 15 The work of the fool wearieth himself ;
For he knoweth not how to go to the city.
- 16 Wo to thee, O land, when thy king is a child,
And thy princes eat in the morning.
- 17 Happy land, whose king is the son of nobles,
And whose princes eat in due season,
For strength, and not for drunkenness.
- 18 By neglect the floor-beams decay.
And by idleness the house-roof is full of
- 19 A feast is made for joy, [drops.
And wine maketh glad the living ;
And money supplieth all these things.
- 20 Curse not the king even to thyself, [ber ;
Nor curse one noble even in thy bed-chamber
For a bird of the air will carry what is said,
And a winged creature will tell the matter.

CHAPTER XI. XII.

Prudence and charity recommended ; death and judgment should be regarded.

- 1 Sow thy bread-corn before the rains come ;
For after many days thou wilt find it.
- 2 Give a portion to seven, and also to eight ;
For thou knowest not what misery there is on earth.
- 3 If the clouds be full of rain,
They will empty themselves upon the earth ;
And if a tree fall to the south or the north,
In the place where it hath fallen it will abide.
- 4 He that observeth the wind will never sow,

16. Is a child] That is, weak as a child, possessing no capacity to govern. Such a man's court will be a scene of riot and intemperance ; and miserable is the land that hath such a king and such princes !

18. By neglect] This is true in private life ; and neglect and mismanagement in government destroys the political edifice.

19. Money supplieth] It affords the greatest temporal advantages, which ought to be improved.

20. Curse not] Neither his person, nor government, but pray for both and for all in authority.—For a bird of] This is a proverbial expression, and intimates that, by some surprising, unexpected method, it may be discovered, as if a bird flying by had heard and told it.

CHAP. XI. 1. Bread-corn] The word לחם is clearly used in this sense, Is. xxviii. 28 ; and it gives the best sense here.—Before the rain] Hebrew, 'On the face, or at the appearance of the waters ;' that is, before the rainy season commenced. This was the season for sowing. Some suppose rice to be denoted, but no lexicographer has given it this sense, nor could rice be cultivated much in Judea, wheat being their chief grain. Giving is like sowing our seed ; and what is given may for a season seem lost to ourselves ; but at last we shall find that God will return our kindness into our bosom with full interest.

3. If the clouds be] They will somewhere shed their treasures in due time ; so the charitable will dispense their bounties.—If a tree fall] There is no probability of its yielding fruit ; nor can we do good after we are cut off by death. Let us work while it is day.

- And he that regardeth the clouds will not reap.
- As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit,
Nor how the bones grow in the pregnant womb ;
So thou knowest not the work of God,
In what manner he maketh all things.
In the morning sow thy seed, 6
And in the evening withhold not thy hand,
For thou knowest not whether shall prosper,
Nor whether they both shall be alike good.
- Truly the light is sweet, 7
And to see the sun pleasant to the eyes :
Yet should a man live many years, 8
And should he rejoice in them all,
Still let him remember the days of darkness,
That they may be many ;
All that cometh may be vanity.
- Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, 9
And let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth ;
Yea, walk in the ways of thine own heart,
And pursue whatever thine eyes desire ;—
Yet know that for all these things
God will bring thee into judgment.
- Hence remove provocation from thy heart, 10
And put away impurity from thy flesh ;
For childhood and youth are vanity.

- REMEMBER then thy Creator in the days 1
of thy youth, [rive
Ere the evil days come, and the years ar-
When thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them.
- Ere the sun, and the light of the moon and 2
stars, become dark,
And the clouds return after the rain :
Ere the day when the keepers of the house 3
shall tremble,

4. Observeth the wind] And is afraid it will blow away his seed, will never sow ; or that is afraid of rain will never reap ; so he that will do no kind action until every thing suits his mind, will never do it.

5. Of the spirit] Our ignorance of God's works of providence, as well as nature, should not prevent us from adopting every method and using every mean to secure the end.

7. Truly the light] That is, life and the comforts of it are very agreeable.

9. Rejoice, O young man] This verse is the application of the two former. A young man enjoys the sweetness of the light, and the advantages of life ; and Solomon says ironically, Let him enjoy them, and pursue every object of his desire, but let him remember that there is a future judgment, when for all his actions he must give an account.

CHAP. XII. 1. Remember then thy] This verse is clearly an inference from the preceding ; and the chapters are improperly divided ; the conclusion is separated from the premises.

2. Ere the light of the moon] It is allowed that we have in this and the following verses a figurative description of the afflictions, weaknesses, and infirmities of old age.—The clouds return] Before that continued rain come which is the winter of Judea ; and when the lights of heaven are obscured. This seems the origin of the metaphor, which strongly paints old age as the winter of life.

3. Keepers of the house] The hands and arms, which are for the use and defence of the body, often called a house in the scriptures, Job iv. 19, and 2 Cor. v. 1.—Strong men

- And the strong men shall bow themselves ;
When the grinders shall cease, because few,
And those which look through the windows be darkened.
- 4 When the doors shall be shut in the streets
And the sound of the grinding is not heard ;
When men arise at the voice of a bird,
And all the daughters of song are depressed ;
- 5 When they shall be afraid of high places,
And when terrors shall be in the way ;
When the almond-tree shall flourish,
And the locust itself shall be a burden,
And appetite shall utterly fail ;
When man goeth to his long home,
And the mourners go about the streets :—
- 6 Ere the silver cord be relaxed,
And the golden bowl be broken,
Or the jar be shivered at the fountain,
Or the wheel be broken at the cistern.
- 7 Then will the dust return to the earth
whence it was, [gave it.
And the spirit will return to God who
- Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher, all 8
is vanity.
- The more wise the preacher became, 9
And the more he taught the people know-
And he examined and sought out, [ledge ;
And arranged many proverbs. [words ;
The preacher studied to find acceptable 10
And what is written are right words of truth.
The words of the wise are as goads, 11
Or as nails which are deeply fixed :
The collectors were appointed by one shepherd :
Moreover, by these, my son, be admonished : 12
For in composing books there is no end,
And excessive study is weariness to the body.
Let us hear the conclusion of the whole 13
matter :
Fear God, and keep his commandments ;
For this is the duty of every man ;
For God will bring every work into judg- 14
Together with every secret thing, [ment,
Whether they have been good or evil.

The feet and the legs. These, like the trembling hands, become feeble, and unable to perform their functions.—Grinders] The teeth, whose office it is to masticate and grind down the food for the stomach. They become few in number, and those few of little use. He alludes to the custom of female slaves grinding the corn, Exod. xii. 5.—Windows] The eyes are intended. These are closed in darkness.

4. When the doors] Most consider the lips to be meant, which are frequently compared to doors. These are shut ; old people having a difficulty in speaking, from the loss of their teeth, &c. Others conceive that this means, that the prime viæ are intended, which are obstructed, so that the regular operations of the system are not performed.—The grinding] Loss of appetite and want of digestion seem to be signified.—Voice of a bird] Sleeplessness, when the least noise awakes, and when there is no power to sing, the throat, breast, and lungs being unable to perform their office, for this purpose.

5. High-places] When men are old, they cannot ascend high places ; and they are even afraid of falling in the highway. Worn down, and unfit for any exertions, they dare not undertake any considerable journey.—Almond-tree] This tree puts out white flowers in December ; and may signify that white locks are the attendants of old age.—The locust] An old man is compared to a locust, on account of his emaciated frame, and its bending posture ; and how true is it, that in this state a man is a burden to himself.

6. The silver cord] There is a resumption here of the subject ; and the same affecting truths are illustrated by other metaphors. As the human frame had been compared to a house, and its domestics, so now he compares its interior and essential parts to a deep well, whose apparatus is broken and useless. The silver cord is the spinal marrow which runs along the back-bone, and gives off nerves to the lower extremities.—As the golden bowl] The brain, with its yellow covering, does to the upper part of the fabric. The jar most probably denotes the great artery, which receives the blood from the heart, to be distributed through all the parts of the body. The wheel was used to draw water out of a cistern or pit. And it is here used most probably to denote the lungs, on the play of which depends the movements of the heart itself. This is the great impelling power of the living system.

8. Vanity of] Such is truly human life, when considered in itself and without a reference to another.

9. Attentively sought] Does Solomon allude to the many proverbs which he uttered and wrote, as well as to what is contained in this book ?

11. The collectors] 'Masters of assemblies' are certainly not intended. The most clear and obvious sense is that given. By one shepherd Solomon means himself, as king of Israel.

13. This is the duty] The Hebrew is elliptical ; and the words supplied are evidently necessary. The reason of this duty is stated as arising from a future judgment, and the account which all men must give unto God.

SONG OF SOLOMON.

INTRODUCTION.

RESPECTING the nature of this song very different opinions have been formed. The common opinion that this song was written to celebrate Solomon's marriage with Pharaoh's daughter, Michaelis has called in question ; and concludes that the design of the poem is to exhibit the chaste passions of conjugal life, as they existed among the Jews, to whom polygamy was allowed.

This Song ought to be regarded as the genuine work of Solomon, and contains some few of the most excellent of those one thousand and five songs, which he is said to have written. 1 Kings iv. 32. The song evidently consists of various parts, of which some are dialogues, and others soliloquies. The division of several distinguished critics is adopted ; and to mark the names of the speakers, the initials of 'Solomon,' 'Bride,' and 'Virgins' are used.

CHAPTER I.

1 THE most excellent song of Solomon.

CHAP. I. 2. Let him kiss] The masculine verb and 645

B. Let him kiss me with the kisses of his 2
mouth ;

affixed pronoun ascertain that the bride is the speaker. She

- For thy love is more pleasant than wine.
- 3 Like the odour of thy own excellent perfumes
Is thy name—a perfume poured forth :
For this reason do the virgins love thee.
- 4 Draw me—we would still follow thee ;
The king hath led me to his apartments.
V. We will exult and rejoice in thee ;
We will celebrate thy love more than wine ;
Thou art most justly beloved.
- 5 B. Brown am I, but comely, O daughters of Jerusalem ; [Solomon.
As the tents of Kedar, as the tapestries of
- 6 Yet look not on me because I am brown,
Because the sun hath discoloured me.
My mother's children were severe with me ;
They made me keeper of the vineyards ;
But my own vineyard I did not keep.
- 7 Tell me, O thou whom my soul loveth,
Where thou feedest thy flock ;
Where thou makest it to rest at noon.
For why should I be as a wanderer
Among the flocks of thy companions ?
- 8 V. If thou know not, O fairest among women,
Go forth in the footsteps of the flock,
And let thy kids feed by the shepherds' tents.
- 9 S. I compare thee, O my beloved,
To one of the steeds in Pharaoh's chariot.
- 10 Beautiful are thy brows with rows of jewels,
And thy neck, with strings of pearls !
- 11 Yet rows of gold we will make for thee,
Together with studs of silver.
- 12 B. While the king sitteth at his banquet
My spikenard yieldeth its fragrance.
- 13 A bundle of myrrh is my beloved to me ;
He shall lie all night in my bosom.

addresses her virgin-attendants ; or rather speaks in their hearing, and expresses her affection to her spouse, as if he were present.

3. Like the odour] By this metaphor she expresses the amiableness of his character, and the lustre of his virtues.

4. Draw me] Here she expresses her satisfaction in being brought into his family ; and her virgin-attendants then compliment her on her affection and beauty.

5. Brown am I] Here the bride modestly states her own imperfections. I have rendered brown with Good, as the common version seems too strong.—As the tents] Lowth has observed, that the clauses of the first line answer to those of this, 'I am brown as the tents of Kedar, but comely as the tapestries of Solomon.'

6. Mother's children] Houbigant conjectured that these words signified the children of her mother by a former husband ; and hence their more severe treatment of her.

7. Tell me, O thou] The bride by this fine apostrophe still displays her ruling passion.

8. If thou know] The virgins answer her inquiries, and direct her to trace the footsteps of his flock, while she permitted her own charge to feed by the tents of the shepherds. She is supposed to follow this advice, and to go in search of her beloved. Here the first part ends, and the next begins, as if Solomon seeing her, breaks out in praise of, her affection.

12—14. While the king] Here Solomon is addressed as king, and while enjoying a private repast, his bride hopes to regale him with her perfumes ; and expresses her own ardent affection. The comparisons are all beautiful, as derived from the most agreeable natural objects.

15. Doves' eyes] To conceive the force of this expression

A cluster of cypress-flowers is my beloved, 14
From the vineyards of En-gedi.

S. Behold, thou art fair, O my love ! 15
Behold, thou art fair !—thou hast doves' eyes.

B. Behold, thou art fair, O my beloved ! 16
How pleasant, how green, is our spread couch !

The beams of our house are cedars, 17
And our rafters are firs.

I am only a rose of Sharon ; 1
A mere lily of the valleys.

S. As the lily among thorns, 2
So is my love among women. [the wood,

B. As the citron-tree among the trees of 3
So is my beloved among men :

Under his shade I desire to sit down,
For his fruit is sweet to my taste.

'O bring me' to the banqueting house ! 4
Spread the banner of love over me !

Support me with cordials ; 5
Support me with citrons ;

For still I languish with love.
His left hand is under my head,

And his right hand embraceth me.
I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, 7

By the roes, and by the hinds of the field,
That ye stir not up, nor awake

My beloved, until he please.

CHAPTER II.

B. It was the voice of my beloved. 8

Behold, he came leaping over the mound-
And bounding over the hills. [tains,

My beloved was like a roe, or a young hart. 9
Behold, he stood behind our wall ;

we must not refer to our common pigeons, but to the large and beautiful eyes of the doves of Syria.

16, 17. She elegantly applies his own language to herself, and describes the grove in which they were sitting.

CHAP. II. 1. I am only] The bride modestly asserts that she had no claims to such personal beauty as he ascribes to her ; but was only a rose of Sharon, &c. This was a district of Judea, between Mount Tabor and the lake of Tiberias. Good ingeniously supposes that the bride refers to her native place in this allusion.

3. Citron-tree] So the Chaldee ; and the allusion is much more elegant than 'apple-tree.' Solomon is supposed now to retire to rest, while the bride speaks to her virgin attendants.—Under his shade] Having compared him to a citron-tree, under its shade she desires to repose and to enjoy its fruit, the sweetness of which she had experienced.

4. Bring me] So the Greek translators read.—Banqueting-house] This is a delicate periphrasis for the couch on which she and her beloved reposed.

6, 7. His left hand] These verses support the opinion expressed above ; for the bride speaks as if her spouse had fallen asleep. Her address to her maids not to disturb his repose, is expressed in allusion to pastoral life.

8. It was the voice] This obviously begins a distinct song. The bride relates how the bridegroom, accompanied with his companions, had come, and invited her to come forth and enjoy the beauties of the spring. She repeats his fine pastoral address, and in conclusion breaks out into that charming epiphonema. Having thus heated her imagination, with repeating his tender words to her, in a transport of affection she addresses herself to him, as if he were present.

- He looked in through the windows ;
 He showed himself through the lattice.
- 10 My beloved spoke, and said to me,
 Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away.
- 11 For lo, the winter is past ;
 The rain is over, and gone ;
- 12 The flowers appear on the earth ;
 And the time of bird-singing hath come,
 And the turtle's voice is heard in our land.
- 13 The fig-tree sweeteneth her green figs,
 And the vine-flowers yield their odour.
 Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away.
- 14 O my dove, through the clefts of the rocks,
 From the hiding-place of the precipices,
 Let me see thy countenance,
 Let me hear thy voice ;
 For sweet is thy voice,
 And thy countenance lovely.
- 15 And ye, companions, take for us the jackals,
 The little jackals that spoil the vines ;
 For our vines are full of flowers.
- 16 My beloved is mine, and I am his ;
 He feedeth among the lilies.
- 17 Until the day break, and the shades flee
 Return unto me, O my love ; [away,
 And be thou like a roe, or a young hart
 Upon the mountains of Bether.

CHAPTER III.

- 1 B. On my bed, reposing by night,
 I sought him whom my soul loveth ;
 I sought him, but found him not.
- 2 I arose, and went about the city ;
 In the streets, and in the broad ways,
 I sought him whom my soul loveth ;
 I sought him, but I found him not.
- 3 The watchmen of the city found me ;
 Saw ye him whom my soul loveth ?
- 4 But a little had I passed from them,
 When I found him whom my soul loveth.
 I held him, and would not let him go Till I had brought him to my mother's
 house,

12. The time of bird-singing] Harmer observes that the nightingale is probably intended.

13. Sweeteneth] So Green properly renders, as the subject requires.—Vine-flowers] The versions so render.

14. O my dove] Solomon having personified his beloved under the character of a dove, here boldly ascribes to her the manners of this timid bird.

15. And ye, companions] If Solomon considered himself as a sportsman going into the country, he would of course have companions, whom he here addresses. The text implies this.

16. Among the lilies] That is, so sweet is his breath that he may be said 'to feed among lilies.'

CHAP. III. 1—5. On my bed] The bride here relates a dream. Full of the image of her beloved, she seemed to herself to arise and go about the streets of the city making inquiries. She accosted the watchmen, and at length happily in her own fancy met her beloved, and took him and conducted him to her own home. In this view the passage is excellent.

6. What is this] A new song and a new scene commences here. The bride seated in a chink or arbour, observing at a distance something, asks, What is this, &c.—

'To the apartments of her who conceived me.
 I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
 "By the roes and by the hinds of the field,"
 That ye stir not up, nor awake
 My beloved, until he please.

B. What is this that cometh from the wilderness, [myrrh,
 Like columns of smoke, perfumed with
 With incense, and all the powders of the merchant? [Solomon :

V. Behold! this is the palanquin of Solomon.
 Threescore valiant men are about it,
 Of the valiant of Israel.

They all bear swords, being expert in war ;
 Each hath his sword on his thigh,
 On account of the perils of the night.
 King Solomon hath made for himself

This couch of the wood of Lebanon.
 Its pillars hath he made of silver,
 Its bases of gold, its cushion of purple
 The middle of it is spread with love,
 By the daughters of Jerusalem.

B. Go forth, O ye daughters of Zion,
 And behold king Solomon with the crown
 With which his mother crowned him,
 On the day of his espousals ;
 On the day of the gladness of his heart.

CHAPTER IV.

- S. BEHOLD! thou art fair, my love,
 Behold! thou art fair! [eyes ;
 Thine eyes beneath thy locks are as doves'
 Thy hair is like that of a flock of goats,
 That browse about mount Gilead.
 Thy teeth are like the shorn flock,
 Which come up from the washing-pool,
 All of which have twins,
 And none is bereaved among them.
 Thy lips are like a thread of scarlet,
 And thy speech is delightful.
 As the blossom of the pomegranate,
 So are thy cheeks beneath thy locks.

From the wilderness] Percy explains it, from the quarter of the royal gardens, towards the wilderness.

7. Behold! this] This is the reply of some one of her attendant-virgins. It is, says she, the palanquin of Solomon. The palanquin is the common vehicle in which the great are carried throughout the east ; and in form like a sedan.—Threescore] These were the king's personal guard, well armed for defence and attack.

9. King Solomon] This couch or palanquin Solomon had ordered to be made probably on the day of his marriage with this fair one.

10. Its pillars] This shows the magnificence of this vehicle. It was made of the richest materials, and in the finest style.—Spread with love] That is, with cushions wrought in the most elegant manner, and ornamented with flowers.

11. Go forth] The bride now addresses the virgins, and exhorts them to go and see the monarch in his splendid robes.

CHAP. IV. 1—7. Solomon being introduced to the bride, and struck with her charms, commends her person in strong and highly figurative language.—Thy hair is like] The hair of the oriental goat is well known to be possessed of the fineness of the most delicate silk.

- 4 Thy neck is like the tower of David,
Constructed for an armoury;
A thousand shields are hung against it,
All the bucklers of mighty men.
- 5 Thy two breasts are like two young fawns,
'Twins of the roe, and feeding among lilies.
- 6 Till the day break,—and the shades flee
away,
I will betake me to this mountain of myrrh,
To this hill of frankincense.—
- 7 Thou art all fair, my love;
There is no defect in thee.
- 8 Come to me from Lebanon, my spouse,
Come to me from Lebanon.
Look from the top of Amana,
From the top of Shenir and of Hermon;
From the habitations of lions,
From the mountains of panthers.
- 9 Thou hast ravished my heart, my sister-
spouse, [thine eyes,
Thou hast ravished my heart at once with
At once with the turning of thy neck.
- 10 How delightful is thy love, my spouse,
How much sweeter is thy love than wine,
And the odour of thy perfumes than all spices!
- 11 Thy lips, O spouse, drop as the honey-comb;
Honey and milk are under thy tongue,
And the odour of thy garments is like that of Lebanon.
- 12 A garden enclosed is my sister-spouse,
A spring shut up, a fountain sealed.
- 13 Orchards and pomegranates are thy plantations, [nard;
With pleasant fruits, cypress, and spike-
- 14 Spikenard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon,
With all kinds of frankincense-trees;
Myrrh and aloes, with all chief spices:
- 15 The well of this garden is a fount of living water,
And its streams flow from Lebanon.
- 16 B. Awake, O north wind! and come thou south! [flow out;
Blow on my garden, that its spices may
That my beloved may enter into his garden,
And eat its most pleasant fruit.
- 1 S. I am come into my garden, my spouse;
I gather my myrrh with my spice;

I eat my honey-comb with my honey;
I drink my wine with my milk.
Eat, O my friends, O drink!
Yea, drink abundantly, O my beloved!

CHAPTER V.

B. I was sleeping, but my heart was 2
awake;
The voice of my beloved!—he knocketh.
Open, saith he, to me, my sister, my love;
My dove! my accomplished one;
For my head is filled with dew,
My locks with the drops of the night.
I have put off my vest—how can I put it 3
on? [them?
I have washed my feet—how shall I defile
My beloved put his hand through the hole, 4
And my bowels were moved for him.
I arose to open to my beloved, 5
And my hands dropped with myrrh,
And my fingers with fragrant myrrh,
Upon the handles of the bolt.
I opened to my beloved; 6
But my beloved had departed, and was gone;
My soul fainted on remembering his words.
I sought him, but I could not find him;
I called him—but he gave me no answer.
The watchmen of the city found me; 7
They smote me, they wounded me;
The wall-keepers took my veil from me.
I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, 8
If you find my beloved—
That ye should tell him I languish with love.
V. What is thy beloved more than an- 9 other's,
O thou fairest among women?
What is thy beloved more than another's,
That thou thus chargest us?
B. My beloved is white and ruddy, 10
The chief among ten thousand.
His head is as the finest gold; 11
Curling are his locks, and black as a raven;
His eyes are those of doves, washed with 12
milk,
Sitting at rest by the rivers of water;
His cheeks are beds of sweet-flowered spices; 13
His lips ruby-lilies, dropping liquid myrrh;
His hands rings of gold, beset with the 14
beryl;

4. Thy neck is] This elegant building was situated on Mount Zion. The graceful neck of the fair bride is compared to this consummate structure; and the radiance of the jewels that surrounded it, to the splendour of the arms and shields with which the tower of David was adorned.

8. Come to me] Here begins another distinct song. Solomon declares himself the protector of his bride, that he had received her pure and inviolate; and that he enjoyed all the comforts of the married state. The summits of the mountains mentioned were inhabited by wild beasts; and nothing can be more finely conceived than this address, inviting the bride to his arms as to a place of safety.

CHAP. V. 1. Eat, O my friends] Keeping up the metaphor in which he had addressed the bride, Solomon addresses his friends, and invites them to rejoice with him in his felicity.

2—7. I was sleeping] Another part of the poem begins here. Solomon is absent and the bride relates to her attendant virgins, a dream from this to the 7th verse inclusive. She imagined that her beloved came to her door and knocked and said, 'Open to me,' &c.

8—17. I charge you] Having told her dream, she addresses her attendants, to whom they reply, by asking, what is thy beloved, &c; which gives her an opportunity of describing the personal charms of Solomon.

11. Black as a raven] This is the favourite hue to the present day among all the orientals.

13. Ruby lilies] By Pliny rubens lilium. Unless we refer to this species of lily, the comparison is inapposite.

14. His body] Ivory was in great esteem with the ancients. Bishop Percy explains this to mean, that the blue veins appeared like sapphire through the white skin.

- His body polished ivory, inlaid with sapphires;
 15 His legs are pillars of marble
 Founded on bases of the finest gold;
 16 His countenance is like Lebanon,
 Majestic as the cedars.
 17 His mouth is most sweet,
 He is altogether lovely.
 Such is my beloved; such my friend,
 O daughters of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER VI.

- 1 V. Whither is thy beloved gone,
 O thou fairest among women?
 Whither is thy beloved turned aside,
 That we may seek him with thee?
 2 B. My beloved went into his garden,
 To his beds of aromatics,
 To feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies.
 3 I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine:
 He feedeth among the lilies.
 4 S. Beautiful art thou, my love, as Tirza,
 Lovely as Jerusalem,
 Awe-striking as bannered hosts.
 5 Turn away thine eyes from me,
 For they have overcome me.
 Thy hair is as a flock of goats
 That browse about mount Gilead;
 6 Thy teeth are as a flock of sheep
 Which come up from the washing-pool,
 All of which have twins,
 And none is bereaved among them.
 7 As the blossom of the pomegranate,
 So are thy cheeks beneath thy locks.
 8 In my palace are threescore queens
 And fourscore concubines, and virgins without number. [one;
 9 But she alone is my dove, my accomplished
 She is the darling of her mother,
 The esteemed one of her who bare her.
 The women saw her, and blessed her,

16. Majestic as the The cedar is a common emblem of majesty and greatness. She nearly exhausts metaphors to represent her beloved; and as if lost in admiration, she says, 'He is in all respects lovely.'

CHAP. VI. 1-3. Whither is thy The bride having finished her eulogy, the Virgins ask, whither he is gone. She replies that he had gone down to his garden; and while they are thus conversing, the bridegroom returns, and expresses his admiration of the beauty and graces of his bride.

4. As Tirza He compares her to the two most beautiful cities in Judea.—Awe-striking This compound term happily gives the just force of מַרְאֵה here; and it contains one of the finest compliments.

8. In my palace Good ingeniously supposes from this number of women collected in Solomon's harem, that he could not be more than twenty-six when he married the person celebrated in these poems.

9, 10. But she alone If we are to believe Solomon, no one of his wives or concubines engaged his heart as this rose of Sharon; and these two verses assure us that the transactions here related, were real and not fictitious.

11-13. I went down These verses contain another short song. The bride went to the garden of nuts, or almonds as some render, doubtless to meet her spouse and to enjoy converse with him.

13. Return I have rendered הוֹשִׁיעִית 'bride of Solomon,'

The queens and concubines, and thus praised her:

Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, 10
 Fair as the moon, bright as the sun,
 And awe-striking as bannered hosts?

B. I went down into the garden of nuts, 11
 To behold the fruits of the valley;
 To see whether the vine flourished,
Whether the pomegranates blossomed,
 "There I would have granted thee my love; 12
 But I knew not the timidity of my mind,
 Which made me as the chariots of Aminadab.

V. Return, return, O bride of Solomon; 13
 Return, return, that we may look on thee.

B. Why would ye look on the bride of Solomon? [hosts.

CHAPTER VII.

- V.* How beautiful are thy feet 1
 Within thy sandals, O prince's daughter!
 The mouldings of thy limbs are as jewels,
 The work of a skillful artist.
 Thy waist is as a well-turned goblet, 2
 Which is full of mixed wine.
 Thy bosom as twin-heaps of wheat,
 Surrounded with lilies.
 Thy breasts are as two twin fawns, 3
 Thy neck is a tower of ivory; 4
 Thine eyes as the fish-pools of Heshbon,
 By the gate of Beth-rabbim:
 Thy nose as the tower of Lebanon,
 Which looketh towards Damascus,
 Thine erect head is like Carmel, 5
 And its tresses are bound with purple;
The king is held captive in the ringlets.
S. How beautiful art thou, how pleasant! 6
 How formed, O my love, for delights.
 Such thy stature—it is like a palm-tree. 7
 And thy breasts are as clusters of dates.

as it is his name with a feminine termination, which imported her relation to him.—Squadron of two hosts Dazzling in their armour, and performing their evolutions with the greatest order and beauty.

CHAP. VII. 1-5. How beautiful This is the language of the virgins while they undress the bride, either for the purpose of bathing or of going to rest.—The mouldings This is an elegant rendering of Green. I however think that יָרֵךְ implies here the limbs in general, at least this is more delicate.

2. Thy waist Compare Prov. iii. 7, and note.—Twin-heaps of wheat It was customary among the Jews, as appears from Ruth iii. 7, and Hag. ii. 16, to lay their wheat in heaps when first thrashed out and fanned: which heaps, during the joyous time of harvest, were strewed with lilies.

4. Fish-pools That is, clear as these. Heshbon was well supplied with springs, and is celebrated for its fertility.

5. Thy erect head Hebrew, 'head upon thee.'—And its tresses The text is elliptical, and something must be supplied.—The ringlets Dr. Hodgson, from the Chaldee, has given this sense to the term, which is certainly more apposite than 'galleries.' The idea suggested is, that such is the beauty of her head-dress, that the king is captivated with it. The virgins having finished this address, Solomon is supposed to come in, and takes up their speech, and says, 'How beautiful!'

- 8 I said, I will go up to this palm-tree;
I will lay hold on its branches.
Yea, thy breasts shall now be as vine-clusters,
And the odour of thy breath as citrons.
- 9 Yea, thy speech is as the choicest wine,
Which goeth down most pleasantly,
Flowing through the lips "and the teeth."
- 10 B. I am my beloved's "and my beloved is mine,"
And "to him I yield obedience."
- 11 Come, my beloved, let us go into the fields,
Let us sojourn in the villages ;
- 12 Let us rise early to the vineyards ;
Let us see if the vine flourish,
If the tender grape appear,
If the pomegranates blossom :
There I will show to thee my love.
- 13 The mandrakes diffuse their odour,
And at our gates are all kinds of fruits,
Both new and old,
Which I have laid up for thee, my beloved.
- 1 O THAT thou wert as my brother,
Who sucketh at the breasts of my mother !
Should I find thee abroad I would kiss thee,
And none would then reproach me.
- 2 I would lead thee—I would conduct thee
Into the house of my mother,
"To the apartment of her who conceived
me:"
I would give thee to drink of aromatic wine,
Of the juice of my pomegranate.—
- 3 His left hand is now under my head,
And his right hand embraceth me.
- 4 I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
By the roes, and by the hinds of the field,
That ye stir not up, nor awake
My beloved until he please.
- V. Who is this that cometh from the wilderness,
Leaning upon her beloved ?

9, 10. (v) Versions.

10. I am my] Here the bride acknowledges the interest he has in her person.

CHAP. VIII. 1. O that thou] The speech of the bride is evidently continued to the fourth verse of this chapter. This wish of the bride's only means, that if he were an infant she might unblushingly caress him in public.

2. To the apartment] So the versions read here, as ch. iii. 4, which is more pertinent, and free from difficulty.

5. Who is this] This is the last part of this song. The virgins see the bride leaning on Solomon, coming from the way in the royal grounds towards the wilderness ; and they converse together.—Under that citron tree] The bridegroom reminds her of his first interview with her ; and of the place where her mother plighted her to him. She replies.

6. Set me as] Let thy affection to me never abate. The seal or signet was sometimes worn over the breast, suspended by a chain from the neck. Hence the signet because expressive of affection, Jer. xxii. 24 ; Prov. vi. 12,

- S. Under that citron tree I excited thee to love ;
There thy mother plighted thee ;
There she that bare thee plighted thee to me.
- B. Set me as a seal upon thy heart,
As a seal upon thine arms !
For love is strong as death,
And jealousy cruel as the grave :
Its flames are flames of fire,
And as the lightning of the heavens.
- S. Yet many waters cannot quench love ; 7
The floods cannot drown it.
If a man would give the wealth of his house
For love, he would be utterly despised.
- B. We have a little sister, 8
Whose breasts are not yet formed.
How shall we provide for our sister,
When she shall be demanded in marriage ?
- S. If she be compared to a wall, 9
We will build on it a turret of silver ;
If she be compared to a door,
We will inclose it with boards of cedar,
- B. I myself am a wall, and my breasts are 10
as towers ;
Hence have I found favour in his eyes.
Solomon hath a vineyard in Baal-hamon, 11
He hath let out the vineyard to tenants.
Each is to bring him for the fruit of it,
A thousand pieces of silver.
- This vineyard which belonged to me, 12
But which is now thine, O Solomon,
Brought in to me a thousand pieces of silver ;
And two hundred were the salary
To those who kept the fruits thereof.
- S. O thou that dwellest in the gardens, 13
My companions listen to thy voice ;
Let me also hear thy voice.
- B. Make haste, O my beloved, 14
And be thou like to a roe, or young hart,
Upon the mountains of spices.

and vii. 3.—For love] The queen states the reason of her request ; for love strong as hers can admit no rival ; without being converted into the most inflamed jealousy.

7. Yet many waters] Solomon catches the metaphor, and replies, if love be a flame, it is of such a nature that waters cannot quench it ; no trials will destroy it. Neither can it be purchased for money.

8. We have a] The bride is anxious to provide for her sister ; to whom the bridegroom replies in strong but expressive metaphors. If she be compared to a wall, we will inclose it with a turret of silver ; in plain language give her an ample fortune.

10—14. I myself am] The bride seizes the metaphor and applies it to herself. She then relates the little history of her own patrimony, which she seems to wish might be transferred to her young sister. For the text followed see note on Fam. Bib.

13, 14. The song concludes with expressions of mutual delight, and a desire to enjoy each other's society.

INTRODUCTION.

THE tradition of the Jews is, that Isaiah was of the house of David, and that his father was brother of Amaziah, king of Judah. This tradition may be true, but it is impossible to prove it to be so, from the scriptures. His name signifies, 'Jehovah will save,' or 'the salvation of Jehovah;' and no one prophesied so fully, and so clearly of the great salvation by Messiah as he did. Hence we find the Evangelists most frequently appealing to his prophecies, and declaring them fulfilled, in the person, works, and miracles of our Lord.

Isaiah discharged the duties of the prophetic office during a long period of time. If he received his appointment to this office in the last year of Uzziah's reign, and lived to the reign of Manasseh, he must have prophesied sixty-one years. Ehen-Ezra doubts the tradition, that he was sawn asunder by order of that king; and thinks it more probable, that he died before Hezekiah. It is, however, certain that he lived to the 15th or 16th year of the last-mentioned king; so that at the lowest computation he must have prophesied nearly sixty years.

His prophecies are placed the first in order, among the greater prophets, because he preceded them in time. Jonah is, however, the oldest of them all, 2 Kings xiv. 25; and Hosea was contemporary with him. It has been justly observed, that he excels them all in the elegance of his style, the force of his genius, the beauty and propriety of his metaphors, and the fulness and clearness of his predictions. As Paul may be justly called 'the chief of the Apostles,' so may Isaiah be regarded as the chief of the prophets!

CHAPTER I.

- 1 THE VISION OF ISAIAH, THE SON OF AMOZ,
WHICH HE SAW CONCERNING JUDAH
AND JERUSALEM, IN THE DAYS OF UZ-ZIAH, JOTHAM, AHAZ, AND HEZEKIAH,
KINGS OF JUDAH.
- 2 Hear, ye heavens; and give ear, O earth!
For Jehovah speaketh, saying,
I have nourished and brought up children,
And even they have rebelled against me.
- 3 The ox knoweth his owner,
And the ass the crib of his lord:
But Israel knoweth not "me,"
Neither doth my people consider. [quity!
- 4 Ah, sinful nation! people laden with ini-
A race of evil-doers! degenerate children!
They have forsaken Jehovah;
They have despised the holy one of Israel;
They are wholly estranged from him.
- 5 On what part shall ye be smitten again,
Should you increase your revolt?
The whole head is sick, and the whole heart
faint:
- 6 From the sole of the foot even to the head,
There is no soundness therein;
It is wound, and bruise, and putrifying sore:

It hath not been pressed, neither bound up,
Nor hath it been softened with ointment.
Your country is desolate; your cities burned 7
with fire; [sight
Your land—strangers devour it in your
It is desolate as if destroyed by an inundation. [in a vineyard,
And the daughter of Zion is left as a shed 8
As a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, as a city taken by siege.
Had not Jehovah of hosts left us a remnant, 9
We should soon have been as Sodom;
We should have become like unto Gomorrah.
Hear the word of Jehovah, ye princes of 10
Sodom! [Gomorrah!
Give ear to the law of our God, ye people of
What have I to do, saith Jehovah, 11
With the multitude of your sacrifices?
I am cloyed with the burnt-offerings of
And with the fat of fed beasts; [rams,
And in the blood of bullocks, and of lambs,
And of he-goats, I have no delight.
When ye come to appear before me, 12
Who hath required this at your hands
That ye should tread my courts? 13
Bring no more a vain oblation;

CHAP. I. 1. The vision] The former part of the title seems properly to belong to this particular prophecy; but the latter part extends it to the whole collection of prophecies delivered in the course of his ministry. Some refer this prophecy to the reign of Ahas, when the kingdom of Judah was assailed by the kings of Syria and Israel, and when the civil and religious state of the kingdom seems best to agree to the prophet's language.

2. Hear, O ye heavens] With this sublime address compare Deut. xxxii. 1; Ps. i. 3, 4; Jer. ii. 12, &c.

3. Knoweth not me] This sheweth the gross insensibility of the people, on whom neither favours nor judgments made scarcely any impression. (a) Sept. Vulg. Jer. iv. 22.

4. They are] The sense is given, in preference to the idiom, 'estranged backward.'

5. Should you] They had greatly revolted, for which the holy politic had been severely smitten. The prophet asks, 'On what part, as yet unaffected, can the stroke next fall, if you increase your revolt?'

6. It hath not been] The Vulg. Syr. and Arab. read in the singular. Sir John Chardin observes, that the comparison is taken from the plasters, ointments, oils, frictions, which are made use of in the east upon the belly and stomach in most maladies, Luke x. 34.
p

7. As by an inundation] For this version, see note Heb. Bib. The sense is, that the enemy had spared nothing; they had made the land a desolation. It most probably refers to the calamities brought on the land by Amaziah, 2 Kings xiv. 8—14.

8. As a shed] A little temporary hut, for a shelter from the heat by day, and the cold and dews by night, for the watchman, that kept the garden or vineyard.—Taken by siege] So Jerom and the Sept. render. Zion was little more than a heap of ruins.

10. Princes of Sodom] The incidental mention of Sodom and Gomorrah in the preceding verse, suggested to the prophet this spirited address to the rulers and inhabitants of Jerusalem, Rom. xv. 4, 5, and xiii. 13.

11—16. With the fat] The fat and the blood are particularly mentioned, because these were in all sacrifices set apart to God. Compare Levit. iv. and Amos v. 21—24.

12, 13. Called assembly] Vitringa has proved that those

For your hands are full of blood.

The evil of your doings from before mine

Though red as crimson, they shall be as

Ye shall eat the good of the land ;

For the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it.

I will be avenged of mine enemies.

And with potash I will smelt away thy dross,

And I will remove all thine alloy.
And I will restore thy judges, as at the first, 26
And thy counsellors, as at the beginning :
And afterwards thou shalt be called,
The city of righteousness, the faithful city.
Zion shall be redeemed in judgment, 27
And her captives in righteousness.
But revolvers and sinners shall at once perish, 28
And they who forsake Jehovah be consumed.
For "ye shall be ashamed" of the terebinths, 29
Which ye have so greatly desired ;
And ye shall blush for the gardens, ye have

And as a garden, wherein is no water.
And the strong shall be as tow, and his 31
work a blaze ;
And they shall both burn together, and none shall quench them.

CHAPTER II.

CHAP. II. III. IV. The kingdom of Messiah foretold ; the punishment of the Jews for their idolatry ; the Babylonian invasion and captivity, with the distress of the proud daughters of Zion ; and finally, promises of restoration to the favour of God.

THE WORD WHICH WAS REVEALED TO I
ISAIAH, THE SON OF AMOZ, CONCERNING JU-DAH AND JERUSALEM.

It shall come to pass in the latter days, 2
That the mountain of the house of Jehovah
Shall be established on the top of the mountains,

And it shall be exalted above the hills ;
And all nations shall flow unto it.
And many people shall go, and shall say, 3
Come ye, let us go up to the mount of Jehovah,

To the temple of the God of Jacob ;
And he will teach us of his ways,
And we will walk in his paths.
For out of Zion shall go forth the law,
And the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem.

days of their feasts are intended, when no work was to be done, but when holy convocations were to be held. Comp. Levit. xxiii. 2, 7, 8.

16. Wash ye] Referring to the preceding verse, "your hands are full of blood:" and alluding to the legal washings commanded on several occasions. See Levit. xiv. 8, 9, 47.

18. As scarlet] Be of the deepest die, they shall be forgiven on your repentance, as is stated in the next verse.

20. The sword of] "Enemy" is supplied, with the Chaldee, and the verb is read in the second person plural with the Sept. and Vulg.

21. A harlot] It is common to the prophets to represent cities as women, and to speak of their virtues and vices accordingly. Zion had gone after idols, and worshipped and served them.—(a) Sept.

22. Thy wine is] Though mixed wine denotes wine made strong, by more stimulating ingredients, Prov. xxiii. 30 ; Song viii. 2 ; yet here the ingredient "water" means, doubtless, deterioration.

24. Aha ! I will be] This is a strong instance of the metaphor called Anthropopathia. The foundation of this is obvious ; it arises from necessity : we have no idea of the natural attributes of God, of his pure essence, of his manner of existence, of his manner of acting : when therefore we would treat on these subjects, we find ourselves forced to express them by sensible images.—(a) Sept.

25. My hand over thee] To amend thee, by removing what is evil, as appears from what follows.

27. In judgment] By the exercise of God's strict justice in destroying the obdurate, see ver. 28, and delivering the penitent.

29. Terebinths] Or turpentine-trees. These trees formed the groves where the Canaanites and idolatrous Jews worshipped their various idols ; and to this the prophet refers. Compare Ezek. xx. 28 ; Hosea iv. 13—(v) Vulg. Chald. 2 MSS.

CHAP. II. 1. The word which] The prophecy extends to the close of the fourth chapter, and makes one continued discourse. It is supposed with great probability that it was delivered in the reign of Uzziah, when the kingdom enjoyed peace and abounded in wealth and luxury.

2. In the latter days] The best Jewish Rabbis hold that the latter days' always refer to the times of Messiah.—Mountain of the house] The temple was built on mount Moriah. This mountain is to be established and exalted above all others, which refers to the change which Messiah should introduce, by whom the church of God should be rendered glorious, and its gates opened for all nations.

- 4 And he shall judge among the nations,
And decide among many peoples ;
And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares,
And their spears into pruning-hooks ;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they any longer learn war.
- 5 O house of Jacob, come ye,
And let us walk in the light of Jehovah,
- 6 Truly thou rejectest thy people, the house of Jacob, [east,
Because they are filled with diviners from the
And with soothsayers, like the Philistines,
And have multiplied a brood of strange children.
- 7 And their land is full of silver and gold ;
And there is no end to their treasures :
And their land is also full of horses ;
Nor is there any end to their chariots.
- 8 Their land is also full of idols ;
To the work of their hands they bow down ;
To that which their own fingers have made.
- 9 Therefore shall the mean man be bowed
down,
And the mighty man shall be humbled :
For thou wilt not forgive them.
- 10 Go into the rock, and hide thyself in the dust, [majesty,
For fear of Jehovah, and the glory of his
"When he ariseth to strike the earth with terror."
- 11 The lofty eyes of men shall be humbled,
And the height of mortals brought down ;
And Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that
- 12 For the day of Jehovah of hosts [day.
Is against every thing high and lofty ;
Against every thing exalted, and it shall be humbled :
- 13 Even against all the cedars of Lebanon—
The high and the exalted ones ;
And against all the terebinths of Bashan :
- 14 And against all the high mountains ;
- And against all the hills—the exalted ones ;
And against every high-raised tower ; 15
And against every fortified wall ;
And against all the ships of Tarshish ; 16
And against every desirable work of art.
And the loftiness of man shall be bowed 17
down,
And the height of mortals shall be humbled, [day ;
And Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that
And the idols shall wholly disappear. 18
And they shall go into the caverns of rocks, 19
And into the holes of the earth,
For fear of Jehovah, and the glory of his majesty, [terror.
When he ariseth to strike the earth with
In that day shall a man cast away 20
His idols of silver, and his idols of gold,
Which 'he made for himself' to worship,
To the moles, and to the bats ;
To go into the caverns of the rocks, 21
And into the cliffs of the craggy rocks,
For fear of Jehovah, and the glory of his majesty, [terror.
When he ariseth to strike the earth with
- For behold, the Lord Jehovah of hosts 1
Removeth from Jerusalem, and from Judah,
Every kind of stay and support ; [of water ;
The whole stay of bread, and the whole stay
The mighty man, and the man of war ; 2

And the sage and the ruler of fifty, 3

bour ; [honourable

3. For from Zion] The new law, the glorious gospel of the blessed God.

4. And they shall] These rural and beautiful images portray general peace and security. Compare Mic. iv. 1—4.

5. O House of Jacob] The prophet speaks, personating the pious Jews, who at that time should exhort one another to walk in this light of Jehovah.

6. Filled with diviners] Some noun has clearly dropped from the text, and that adopted seems most natural.—A brood of] So the Sept., whom Lowth and others follow. The sense is, they were given wholly to idolatry.

7. Full of horses] This was contrary to God's express command, Deut. xvii. 16, 17.

8. Full of idols] In both the reigns of Jotham and Uzziah, the legal worship of God was maintained, 2 Kings xv. 3, 4, and 34. 35 ; but from this it appears that the people generally, though privately, worshipped idols.

10. When he ariseth] The Sept. has retained this line, as well as the Arab. and 1 MS. Comp. ver. 19, 21.

12. The day of Jehovah] The day in which he will judge and deal with his people in righteousness.

13—16. Even against] These verses Lowth considers a striking instance of the parabolical style of the prophets. Thus the cedars of Lebanon, and the oaks or turpentine trees of Bashan are used, in the way of metaphors and allegory, for kings, princes, potentates, of the highest rank ; high mountains and lofty hills, for kingdoms, republics, states, cities ; towers and fortresses, for defenders and protectors, whether by counsel or strength, in peace or war ; ships of Tarshish, and works of art and invention employed in adorning them, for merchants, men enriched by commerce, and abounding in all the luxuries and elegancies of life ; such as those of Tyre and Sidon.—Ships of Tarshish] Compare 1 Kings x. 22.

19—21. Caverns of the rocks] The country of Judea, being mountainous and rocky, is full of caverns ; as it appears from the history of David's persecution under Saul. Compare Judg. vi. 2, and 1 Sam. xiii. 6.—20. (v) Sept. Vulg.

22. [*Trust no more in man,
Whose breath is in his nostrils ;
For of what account is he to be made ?*]

This verse is wanting in the Sept. and marked as doubtful in the Arab. Origen, as we learn from Jerome, inserted it from Aquila.

CHAP. III. 1. Every kind of stay] Every kind of support, whether great or small, strong or weak.

2, 3. The mighty man] The best comment on these verses is the history of the event to which they refer, 2 Kings xxiv. 14.

4. I will make boys] This also was fully accomplished in the succession of weak and wicked princes, from the death of Josiah to the destruction of the city and temple.

- 6 Hence shall a man take hold of his brother,
Of the house of his father, by the garment,
Saying, Come, and be thou ruler over us;
And let thy hand support our ruinous state.
- 7 "Then" shall he openly declare, saying,
I will not be the healer of your breaches;
For in my house is neither bread nor raiment;
Appoint not me ruler of the people.
- 8 For Jerusalem tottereth, and Judah falleth;
Because their tongue "and their hands"
Are against Jehovah, to provoke the eyes
Of his glory. [them];
- 9 Their own countenance witnesseth against
For they publish their sin, like Sodom;
They hide it not; wo to their souls!
For themselves have they brought down evil.
- 10 Say to the just, that it shall be well with
them;
For the fruit of their deeds shall they eat.
- 11 Wo to the wicked! miserable shall they be;
For the work of their hands shall be repaid them. [sors,
- 12 As for my people, children are their oppres-
And women bear rule over them.
O my people, thy leaders cause thee to err,
And pervert the way of thy paths.
- 13 Jehovah ariseth to plead his cause;
He standeth up to judge "his" people.
- 14 Jehovah will enter into judgment
With the elders of his people, and their princes:
As for you, ye have consumed my vineyard;
The plunder of the poor is in your houses.
- 15 What mean ye that ye crush my people,
And grind the faces of the poor?
Saith Jehovah, the Lord of hosts.
- 16 Moreover Jehovah hath said,

Because the daughters of Zion are haughty,
And walk, stretching out the neck,
And falsely setting off their eyes with paint;
Mincing their steps as they go,
And with their feet lightly tripping along:
Hence will the Lord humble the head of 17
Zion's daughters,
And Jehovah will expose their nakedness.
In that day will the Lord take from them, 18
The ornaments of the feet-rings,
And the net-works, and the crescents,
The pendants, the bracelets, and the thin 19
veils;
The tires, and the fetters, and the zones, 20
And the perfume boxes, and the amulets;
The rings, and the jewels of the nostril; 21
The embroidered robes, and the tunics, 22
And the cloaks, and the little purses;
The transparent garments, and fine linen 23
And the turbans, and the mantles: [vests,
And instead of perfume shall be an ulcer; 24
And instead of well-girt raiment, rags;
And instead of high-dressed hair, baldness;
And instead of a zone, a girdle of sackcloth;
And a branded skin, instead of beauty.
Thy people shall fall by the sword, 25
And thy mighty men in the battle.
And her doors shall lament and mourn, 26
And desolate shall she sit on the ground.

AND seven women shall lay hold on one 1 man in that day, saying,
Our own bread will we eat, [clothed;
And with our own garments will we be
Only let us be called by thy name;
Take thou away our reproach.
In that day shall the Branch of Jehovah 2
Become glorious and honourable;

6. The house of] Where he lived retired, not meddling with public affairs.

7. Openly declare] I suppose קולו understood. Others think יר and render swear; but there is no necessity for him to take an oath.—Healer of] Compare Chron. xxx. 26.—Neither bread] Princes and great men are obliged to have a great stock of clothes in readiness for presents upon all occasions; and a great quantity of provisions for the table was equally necessary, 1 Kings iv. 22, 23; Neh. v. 17, 18.—(a) Sept. Syr.

9. Their own countenance] Their looks testify their pride and obduracy.

10, 11. Say to the] The term צדיק is taken in a collective sense, as the plural verb in the next lines proves it should be taken, and so in the next verse.

13, 15. Jehovah ariseth] That is, he is prepared and ready to support his own laws and authority. Compare Mic. iii. 1—3.—(v) Sept.

16. Setting off their eyes] This refers to the custom of tinging the eye-lids with stibium, so as to make them black, and set off the eyes to greater advantage. Compare Jer. iv. 30; Ezek. xxii. 40.

17. Humble the] So the Sept. The common reading has been rendered, 'smite with a scab,' and make bare or bald. Compare Nah. iii. 5, 6.

18. Feet-rings] Chains, or rings, which made a tinkling sound as they moved nimbly in walking.—Net-works] Our marginal version is as probable as any, and rests on the authority of Kimchi.—Crescents] Compare Judg. viii. 21, 26.

20. The tires] Head-dresses, rising high, as we learn from Exod. xxxix. 28.—Fetters] which they wore on the legs, to regulate their walk, and which produced a short, quick step.—Zones] With which they bound their flowing garments.—Perfume-boxes] These perfume-boxes were hung on the zones.—Amulets] Schroeder has proved that תלמי does not signify ear-rings, but the images of serpents, which were worn as charms to secure from, and to drive away evils.

21. Jewels of the] That the women had rings hanging from the nostril, is evident from Prov. xi. 22; Ezek. xvi. 11, 12.

22. Embroidered robes] So Schroeder renders, and the term has this sense still in the Arabic.—Tunics] The outermost garment. The Hyke, as the Arabians now call it, is meant.—Cloaks] The word חורט means a bag or purse in the form of a cone. See 2 Kings v. 23.

23. Transparent garments] So the Greek renders. It was, according to Pliny, a kind of silken dress, transparent like gauze; and was worn only by the more delicate.

24. Instead of perfume] Compare Esth. ii. 2; Song iv. 10, 11.—A branded skin] See Michaelis for this rendering. This was done to slaves, and must have been insupportable to the proud daughters of Zion.

CHAP. IV. 1. And seven women] The division of the chapters has interrupted the prophet's discourse, and broken it off almost in the midst of the sentence. 'The numbers slain in battle shall be so great, that seven women shall be left to one man.'

2. The Branch of] The Messiah of Jehovah, says the

- And the fruit of the land excellent and beautiful,
For such of Israel as shall have escaped.

And he who remaineth in Jerusalem,
Holy shall he be called; [rusalem;
Every one written among the living in Je-

The filth of the daughters of Zion,
And removed the blood of Jerusalem from
the midst of her, [burning:
By a spirit of judgment, and a spirit of 5 Then shall Jehovah create
On the station of mount Zion,
And on 'all' her called assemblies,
A cloud and a smoke by day, [night:
And the brightness of a flaming fire, by
Yea, over all shall the Glory be a covering.
6 And it shall become a tabernacle,
For a shade by day from the heat;
And for a covert, and for a shelter,
From the wide-sweeping rain-storm.

CHAPTER V.

God's vineyard, and the judgments to be inflicted on it; the crying sins of his people and their punishment.

- 1 I will now sing "a song" to my Beloved;
A song of love concerning his vineyard.
My beloved had a vineyard,
On a very high and fruitful hill: [stones;
2 And he fenced it, and cleared it of the
And he planted it with the choicest vine;
And he built a tower in the midst of it,
And he hewed out also a lake therein:
And he expected that it would bring forth
grapes;
But it brought forth poisonous berries.
3 And now, inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Judah; [yard:
Judge, I pray you, between me and my vine-
4 What could have been done to my vineyard,
More than what I have done unto it?
Why, when I expected it to bring forth
grapes,
Brought it forth poisonous berries? [you,
5 But come, now, and I will make known to

- What I purpose to do to my vineyard.
To remove its hedge, and it shall be devoured; [down.
To destroy its fence, and it shall be trodden
And I will make it a desolation; 6
It shall not be pruned, nor shall it be digged;
But briers and thorns shall spring up in it:
And I will command the clouds
That they cause no rain to fall upon it.
Verily, the vineyard of Jehovah of hosts, 7
Is the house of Israel;
And the men of Judah, the plant of his delight: [ranny;
And he looked for judgment, but behold ty
And for righteousness, but behold a cry.
Wo unto you, who join house to house; 8
Who lay field unto field together;
Until there be no place for others,
And ye are left alone amidst the land.
To mine ear hath Jehovah of hosts said it; 9
Surely many houses shall become a desolation; [ant.
Great and splendid ones, without an inhabit-Yea, ten acres of vineyard shall yield but 10
one bath;
And a homer of seed shall yield but an ephah.
Wo to them who rise early in the morning 11
That they may follow strong drink;
Who sit until evening, till wine inflame
them: [pipe,
And the lyre, the harp, and the tabour, and 12
And wine, are their entertainments;
But the work of Jehovah they regard not,
Nor consider the operation of his hands.
Therefore my people go into captivity, 13
Because they have no knowledge;
And their honourable men are famished,
And their multitude are parched with thirst.
Therefore hath he enlarged his appetite, 14
And opened his mouth wide beyond measure;
And down go her nobility, and her multitude,
And her populace and they who exult in her.
Thus the mean man shall be bowed down, 15
And the great man shall be brought low,
And the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled:

Chaldee. The Branch is an appropriate title of the Messiah; and the fruit of the land is only a parallel expression, signifying the blessings consequent upon the redemption procured by him. Compare chap. xlv. 8.

4. A spirit of judgment] Dath observes that מִן, spirit, often signifies the force or degree of a thing to which it is applied. He will bring them into a furnace, and purify them by the fire of his wrath. Comp. Ezek. xxii. 18—22.

5. All her called] The Sept. reading כל is adopted here, which seems more suitable. What follows is an evident allusion to the pillar of cloud and of fire. Compare Exod. xvi. 21, and xl. 38.—Over all] That is, over the station of mount Zion and her assemblies shall the glory be a covering. This is amplified in the next verse.

CHAP. V. 1. I will now sing] The prophet styles Jehovah 'his beloved,' and resolves to sing and to celebrate 'his love' to his vineyard, the house of Israel. Compare Ps. lxxx.—(a) Sept. 1 MS.

2. Choicest vine] Symmachus and the Chaldee render the term both in this place and Jeremiah, 'the choicest vine;' and this sense is the most probable.—Built a tower] Compare our Lord's parable, Matt. xxi. 33.—A lake] The word בֵּר means not the wine-press itself, but the lake; the large open place or vessel which, by a conduit, or spout, received the must from the wine-press.

3. And now judge] By this method they are made to judge and pass sentence on themselves, as David, 2 Sam. xii. 1—6.

5—7. But come now] No images can more forcibly paint the miseries that should come on the Jewish people.

11. Strong drink] The word means any kind of liquor made from grain, dates or grapes. It was usual for the Jews to eat and drink but little in the morning; as we learn from Eccles. x. 16; and Acts ii. 15; the evening being the customary time of their feasts. Hence the prophet rebukes their gross intemperance in not only drinking to excess, but indulging in it even in the morning.

13, 14. Their honourable men] These verses have a reference to the two preceding.

- 16 And Jehovah of hosts shall be exalted in judgment, [righteousness.
And the Holy God shall be sanctified in 17 Then shall the lambs feed unrestrained,
And the 'kids' shall eat up what remaineth,
In the desolate fields of the fat ones.
18 Wo to them who draw out iniquity as 'a long cable ;'
And sin, as the thick traces of a wain :
19 Who say, Let him make speed then,
Let him hasten his work that we may see it ;
And let the counsel of the Holy One of

And prudent in their own conceit.
22 Wo to them who are mighty to drink wine,
And men of strength to mingle strong drink :
23 Who justify the wicked for a reward,
And take the righteousness of the righteous
from him.
24 Therefore as the fire devoureth the stubble,
And as the flame consumeth the chaff ;
So shall their root become as touch-wood,
And their blossom shall go up like the dust :
Because they have despised the law of Jehovah, [Israel.
And rejected the word of the Holy One of them : [trembled ;

And he smote them, and the mountains

But his hand is stretched out still. [nations,

bound ; [bent ;

They shall bear it away, and none restore it.
And in that day they shall roar against 30
Like the roaring of the sea ; [them,
And these shall look down to the earth,
And behold, darkness and distress !
For the light is darkened with clouds.

CHAPTER VI.

*The vision which Isaiah saw ; the obstinacy of the people,
a remnant of whom only shall be saved.*

In the year in which Uzziah the king 1 died, I saw Jehovah sitting on a throne, high and lofty ; and 'his glory' filled the temple. Around it stood seraphs : each 2 one of them had six wings ; with two of them he covereth his face, with two of them he covereth his feet, and two of them he useth in flying. And they cried one to another, and said, 3
Holy, holy, holy, is Jehovah of hosts,
The whole earth is filled with his glory.
And the pillars of the vestibule were shaken 4
by the voice of their cry ; and the temple was filled with smoke. And I said, Alas 5 for me ! I am struck dumb : for I am a man of polluted lips ; and in the midst of a people of polluted lips do I dwell : for mine eyes have seen the king, Jehovah of hosts.

16. In judgment] Which he executeth on them ; and 'sanctified' or accounted holy by the display of his righteousness.

17. The kids] This reading of the Sept. as parallel with the lambs in the former line, is justly preferred by most critics.

18. A long cable.] This reading is certainly more clear than the textual one. Houbigant supposes the metaphor derived from a rope-maker, who by adling hemp lengthens
the cord, and by twisting several together, makes it as thick as he pleases. The meaning is that men, from less faults proceed to greater, till at length they reach the highest pitch of wickedness.—(v) Sept. Sym. &c.

25. Mountains trembled] Some refer to the earthquake in the days of Uzziah, Amos i. 1 ; Zech. xiv. 5.

26. And hiss to them] The metaphor is taken from the practice of those that keep bees ; who draw them out of their hives into the fields, and lead them back again by a hiss or whistle. Compare ch. vii. 18.—Swiftest speed]
This refers to the 19th verse. As the scoffer had challenged
God to hasten his work of vengeance ; so God now assures them that with the swiftest speed it should come.

28. The hoofs] As the ancients did not shoe their horses, it was of importance for the hoof of this animal to be hard and firm. Compare Amos vi. 12.—Of their chariots] Their military chariots.—(a) Sept. Arab.

30. With clouds] Michaelis, from the Arabic, gives clouds ;
as the sense.

CHAP. VI. 1. Uzziah died] Some think that this vision was the first in order of Isaiah's prophecies, as it contains a solemn designation to the prophetic office.—Throne high]
The scene of this vision is the temple, and particularly the most holy place, where was the ark and cherubs, above which Jehovah resided. Compare Jer. xvii. 12 ; Ezek. i.
xliii. 7 ; Rev. iv.—(v) Sept.

2. Around it] Namely, the throne. So the Sept.
renders ; and Gesen. gives this as the meaning of מִסְבֵּה here. See also Daubuz on Rev. iv. 6.—Seraphs] So called from their splendid fiery appearance, by which name holy angels seem to be represented, the ministers of God's providence, and burning with zeal in his service.

3. Holy, holy] This hymn, performed by the seraphs, divided into two choirs, is formed upon the practice of alternate singing, which prevailed in the Jewish church from the time of Moses to that of Ezra. Compare Exod. xv. 20, 21.
and Ezra iii. 11.

5. I am struck dumb] So the Syr. Vulg. and Sym. render. Comp. Exod. iv. 10, vi. 12 ; Jer. i. 6.

- 6 And one of the seraphs came flying unto me; and in his hand was a burning coal, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar. And he touched my mouth and said,
Lo! this hath touched thy lips:
Thy iniquity is removed, thy sin is expiated.
- 8 And I heard the voice of Jehovah, saying, Whom shall I send; and who will go for us?
- 9 And I said, 'Behold, here am I; send me. And he said, Go, and say thou to this people:
Hear ye indeed, but understand not:
See ye indeed, but perceive not.
- 10 For the heart of this people is become gross; [they closed;
And their ears are dull, and their eyes have
Lest they should see with their eyes,
And hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts,
And be converted, and I should heal them.
- 11 And I said, How long, O Jehovah? And he said, [ant;
Until cities be laid waste, without inhabit-
And houses, and there be no man left therein.
And the land be utterly made desolate:
- 12 Until Jehovah remove man far away,
And there be many a deserted woman in the land. [in it,
- 13 And though there be a tenth part remaining
Even this shall undergo repeated destruction: [down,
Yet, as the terebinth or oak, though cut
Hath its stock remaining in the earth,
So a holy seed shall be the stock of the nation.

CHAPTER VII.

The prophet assures Ahaz that the design of the kings of Israel and Syria should not succeed, but that he and his people should be punished by the king of Assyria, in whom they trusted.

- 1 IN the days of Ahaz, the son of Jotham,

6. Off the altar] That is, the altar of burnt-offerings, before the door of the temple. The fire on this altar was kept perpetually burning. Levit. vi. 12, 13.

7. Touched thy lips] The altar was considered peculiarly holy. It sanctified the gift offered on it. Hence the coal taken from it, and applied to the prophet's mouth, hallows him, and is a pledge that his pollution and sin were removed, so that he might now become the messenger of God to his people.

8. Will go for us] The Sept. and Arab. read, 'Who will go to this people?' The Syr. simply, 'who will go?' omitting the pronoun for us.

9, 10. Hear ye indeed] This prophecy is quoted Matt. xii. 14, 15; Acts xxviii. 26; Mark iv. 12; Luke viii. 10; and agrees with the Greek version here. Cappellus has observed that the present text differs from the Greek chiefly by false pointing. In the tenth verse the Greek is followed, as assigning the reason, why they heard but did not understand, &c.

11—13. How long, O Jehovah] How long shall this obduracy and wilful blindness continue? The answer to this question may lead us to think both of the desolation of the country by the Babylonians and the Romans, 2 Kings xxv. 12—22; and Jer. xl. 12.

12. A deserted woman] The feminine participle most the son of Uzziak, king of Judah, Retzin, king of Syria, and Pekah, the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, came up against Jerusalem, to besiege it; and they could not overcome it. And when it was told the house of David, that Syria was supported by Ephraim; the heart of the king, and the heart of his people, was moved, as the trees of the forest are moved before the wind. Then said Jehovah to Isaiah, Go out now to meet Ahaz; thou and Shearjashub, thy son; at the end of the aqueduct of the upper pool, at the causeway of the Fuller's field; and thou shalt say to him, Take heed and be still; fear not, nor be faint-hearted;

For the two tails of these smoking fire-brands;
For the fierce wrath of Retzin, and of the son Remaliah. [thee;
Because Syria hath devised evil against Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah, saying, Let us go up against Judah, and harass it; And let us rend off a part of it for ourselves, And let us set a king in it, the son of Tabeal.

Thus saith Jehovah 'God of hosts,' It shall not stand, neither shall it be. Though the head of Syria be Damascus; And the head of Damascus, Retzin; 'And the head of Ephraim be Samaria; And the head of Samaria, Remaliah's son;' Yet within threescore and five years, Ephraim shall be broken from being a people. [blished.

If ye believe not, truly ye shall not be established. And Jehovah spoke yet again to Ahaz, 10 saying,

Ask thee a sign from Jehovah, thy God; Ask it either in the depth, or in the height above.

But Ahaz said, I will not ask, neither will I tempt Jehovah. And he said, Hear ye now, O house of David; naturally suggests this version; and the opposition to the former line justifies it.

13. Tenth part] Scarcely so many were left by Nebuchadnezzar, or Titus.—Stock of the nation] So our marginal version, which is that of Piscator. The apostle perhaps alludes to this, Rom. ii. 18.

CHAR. VII. 1, 2. In the days of Ahaz] Here we have the time and the occasion of the following prophecy. Comp. 2 Kings xvi.

4. Smoking fire-brands] How lively is this image! The remains of two small twigs, burning with violence; sure therefore soon to disappear, reduced into ashes; so shall these two kings soon be no more.—(a) Syr.

6. Rend off a part] The confederate kings intended to occupy a part of the land of Judah, and make Tabeal king over the rest.

8, 9. Head of Ephraim] The design of the prophet, the coherence of the subject, and the parallelism, show that two lines have been transposed, in the text, as Dr. Jubb has observed. When they are restored to their proper place, the passage is beautiful.—Threescore and five years] Jackson dates them from the time that God had sent prophets to forewarn them of the captivity. Now from the year before Christ 753, when God first foretold the utter

Is it a small thing for you to weary men,
But will ye weary my God also?

14 Therefore shall Jehovah himself give you a sign: a son,

Behold! the virgin shall conceive and bear
And shall call his name Immanuel.

15 Butter and honey shall he eat, [evil,
When he shall know to refuse that which is
And to choose that which is good.

16 For before this child shall know
How to refuse the evil, and choose the good,
The land of thine enemies shall be forsaken,
By whose two kings thou art distressed.

17 But Jehovah shall bring upon thee,
And upon thy people, and upon thy father's Days, such as have not come, [house,
From the day that Ephraim departed from Judah.

18 And it shall come to pass in that day,
Jehovah will hiss for the fly, [Egypt;
Which is in the utmost part of the rivers of
And for the bee which is in the land of Assyria: [light

19 And they shall come, and shall all of them
On the desolate valleys, and on the craggy rocks,

And on the thickets, and on all the caverns.
20 In that day Jehovah shall shave by the hired razor, [of Assyria,
By the people beyond the river, by the king
The head and the hair of the feet;
And even the beard itself shall be destroyed.

21 And it shall come to pass in that day,
If a man shall feed a young cow and two sheep,

22 Such shall be the abundance of milk
Which they shall give that he shall eat butter;

Yea, butter and honey shall every one eat,
Who shall be left in the midst of the land.

23 And every vineyard having a thousand vines,

Valued at a thousand pieces of silver,
Shall become in that day briers and thorns.
With arrows and bow shall they come 24
thither; [thorns.
For all the land shall become briers and
And all hills which were dressed with the 25
mattock, [came.
Where the fear of briers and thorns never Shall become a range for oxen,
And for the treading of goats and of sheep.

CHAPTER VIII.

*A prophecy against Syria and Israel; also against Judah;
—who yet should be saved; comfort to those who fear God, the punishment of idolaters, the coming of our Lord and the effects of his ministry and Gospel.*

AND Jehovah said unto me, Take unto 1 thee a large tablet, and write on it with a workman's graving-tool, Maher-shalal-hash-baz [HASTE TO THE SPOIL; QUICKLY TAKE
THE PREV.] And I called to me for a tes- 2
timony, faithful witnesses; Uriah, the priest, 3 and Zechariah, the son of Jeberechiah. And I approached the prophetess; and she conceived and bare a son. And Jehovah said unto me, Call his name, Maher-shalal-hash-baz;
For before the child shall know 4
To pronounce my father and my mother,
The riches of Damascus shall be borne away, [Assyria.
And the spoil of Samaria, before the king of
And Jehovah spoke yet again to me, saying, 5
Because this people have rejected 6
The waters of Shiloah, which flow gently,
And rejoice in Retzin, and the son of Remaliah: [them
Therefore behold the Lord bringeth upon 7
The waters of the river, the strong and
mighty;
Even the king of Assyria, and all his force.
And he shall rise above all their channels,
And shall go over all their banks.

destruction of the kingdom of Israel, and the captivity of the people of the land, by Amos, to the year before Christ, 721, when Samaria was taken, and all the people of it were carried into captivity, is sixty-four years; and so within sixty-five years, as Isaiah foretold, Ephraim was broken from being any more a people, Chron. xx. 20.

11. Ask it in the depth] The Chaldee, 'Ask for thyself that a miracle may be wrought upon earth, or that a sign may appear to thee in the heavens.' Compare Matt. xvi. 1.
where 'signs from heaven' are opposed to the miracles which our Lord performed on earth.

14. Give you a sign] That the house of David shall not be cut off; for behold! the virgin, some one of the family of David, shall be with child, &c.—Immanuel] That is, God with us. This name must have suggested, that the child which the virgin should bear, must be the Messiah; and it is implied, that the house of David should be preserved until this person had been born.

15. Butter and honey] Were this child now born, when he arrives at an age to know good and evil, there will be prosperity, and his brothers shall enjoy the food usual in times of plenty, as in Josh. v. 6.

16. For before this child] Supposing him to be born, shall know how to refuse the evil, &c. the land of thine enemies, the kings of Israel and Syria, shall be made desolate. The prophet, though intending a future event, speaks of it as if present. He sees, as it were, the virgin with child; and bearing a son; and on supposition that he was actually born, he assures the king that he would not attain the years of discretion, before the accomplishment of their deliverance, and the restoration of peace and plenty.

17. But Jehovah] Though Judah should not be destroyed, yet they should suffer the greatest calamities, and at length be carried away captives.

20. By the hired razor] To shave with the hired razor the head, the feet, and the beard, is an expression highly paraboli; to denote the utter devastation of the country from one end to the other, and the plundering of the people from the highest to the lowest, by the Assyrians.

21—25. It shall come] These verses describe a country desolated and left to run wild.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Large tablet] It was usual to write on tablets of wood, or lead, or other metal, as well as on skins or parchment. The words he was commanded to write were to be predictive; and are explained in what follows.

4. For before the child] The prophecy was accordingly accomplished within three years, 2 Kings xvi. 9, xv. 29; 1
Chron. v. 26.

6, 7. The waters of Shiloah] The gentle waters of Shiloah, is an apt emblem of the state of the kingdom and house of David, much reduced in its apparent strength, yet supported by the blessing of God: and is finely contrasted with the waters of the Euphrates, great, rapid, and impetu-ous: the image of the Babylonian empire.

- 8 And he shall pass through Judah,
Overflowing and spreading abroad,
Even unto the neck shall he reach :
And the extension of his wings shall be
Over the full breadth of thy land, O Immanuel !
- 9 Associate, O ye peoples, and be dismayed ;
And give ear, all ye of distant lands :
Gird yourselves, and be dismayed ;—
Gird yourselves, and be dismayed.
- 10 Take ye counsel, and it shall come to nought ;
Speak the word, and it shall not stand ;
For God shall be with us.
- 11 For thus said Jehovah unto me,
When, taking me by the hand, he instructed me, [people,
That I should not walk in the way of this 12 Saying, Say ye not a confederacy, to all
Towhom this people shall say, a confederacy ;
And fear ye not their fear, neither be terrified.
- 13 Jehovah of hosts, sanctify ye him :
And let him be your fear, and your dread.
- 14 And he shall be unto you for a sanctuary ;
But for a stumbling-stone and rock of of-
To the two houses of Israel. [fence
- 15 And many among them shall stumble and
fall,
And be broken, and ensnared, and caught.
- 16 Bind up the testimony, will he say ;
Seal the law among those taught by me.
- 17 I will therefore wait for Jehovah,
Who hideth his face from the house of Jacob ;
Yea, I will look unto him.
- 18 Behold ! I, and the children Jehovah hath given me,
Are for signs and for wonders in Israel,
From Jehovah of hosts, who dwelleth in mount Zion.
- And when they shall say unto you, 19
Seek to the necromancers, and the wizards ;
To them who speak inwardly, and who mutter ;
Should not a people seek to their God ?
"Should they seek" for the living to the dead ? [seek ;
To the law, and to the testimony, let them 20
If they will not speak according to this word,
To them shall be nothing but darkness :
And they shall pass through it distressed 21
and famished ;
And it shall be, when vexed and famished,
They shall curse their king and their God,
And they shall look upward, 22
And then shall they look down to the earth ;
And behold ! distress and darkness !
Gloom, anguish, and accumulated darkness.
- But there shall be no gloom to the land 1
Which hath been thus distressed .
For as in the former time he debased
The land of Zebulun, and the land of Naph-tali ;
So in the latter time he will make glorious
The way of the sea, along the Jordan,
Even Galilee of the nations.
The people who walked in darkness 2
Have now seen a great light ;
They who dwell in the land of death-shade,
Upon them hath the light shined.
Thou hast multiplied the nation, and in- 3
creased the joy :
They joy before thee as the joy in harvest ;
They exult like those who divide the spoil.
For his burdensome yoke, the yoke on his 4
shoulder,
The rod of his oppressor, hast thou broken :
As in the day when Midian was vanquished .

8. Reach to the neck] The king of Assyria coming up to Jerusalem was like a flood reaching to the neck ; the whole country was overflowed, and the capital was in imminent danger.

9. Associate yourselves] The prophet, having predicted the invasion of the Assyrians, declares that their efforts to destroy it should be vain.

10. God shall be] Some manuscripts read Immanuel as a proper name ; but the prophet rather gives the sense of that name, and assigns a reason, why Judah should not be wholly destroyed.

12. Say ye not a confederacy] The prophet addresses the better part not to fear factions and conspiracies, but to fear and trust in God.

14, 15. For a sanctuary] That the sanctuary was regarded as an asylum, appears from 1 Kings i. 50, and ii. 28. — To the two houses] To the unbelieving part of the houses of Benjamin and Judah, 1 Pet. ii. 7, 8 ; Luke ii. 34.

16. Bind up the] The testimony and law Grotius refers to what the prophet had been commanded to write, ver. 1—4 ; and which he explained in what follows.

17. I will therefore wait] The prophet again speaks, testifying his own confidence in the divine promises, and hoping for his favour though he now hid his face from Jacob.

18. The children Jehovah] The prophet most probably speaks of his own children, who by the names divinely given to them, were for signs and wonders. Jerom understands, by children, other prophets, and sons of the prophets, or the pious who are born of God, Ezek. xxiv. 24, and Zechar. iii. 8. The apostle applies these words to our Lord, as the great prophet of the church, Heb. ii. 13.

19. When they shall] He now addresses his hearers not to follow the ways and counsels of those who worshipped idols, and practised superstitious arts. This suits the time of Ahaz, when idolatry was nearly general.—Should they seek] Is it not a proof of insanity for men to seek for oracles, or help to the dead ?—(a) Sept.

20. Testimony] Jerom observes that the prophet teaches his disciples when in doubt, to read Deut. xviii. 14, 15. The fulness and clearness of divine truth is contrasted with the muttering of wizards, &c.

21, 22. And they shall] The distress here described was occasioned by the invasion of Tiglath Pileser. The lands beyond the Jordan principally suffered from this invasion. Compare 2 Kings xv. 29, and 1 Chron. v. 26.

CHAR. IX. 1. But there shall be] A time will come when this gloom and distress shall cease, and when the light of truth and grace shall shine upon these lands with splendour.—Even Galilee] It was here our Lord dwelt, preached and performed many of his miracles ; and then was fulfilled this prophecy.

2. Seen a great light] The prophet here present, describes the effect of the appearance of the Messiah of the Saviour.

3. Had increased their joy] The negative particle destroys the sense, as the next lines prove.

4. Yoke on his shoulder] So Virgilia and others. 1 con-

- 5 When all the greaves of those armed for battle,
And the garments rolled in blood,
Were for a burning, even fuel for the fire.
- 6 For unto us a child is born, to us a son is given;
And the government shall be on his shoulder;
And his name shall be called,
Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God,
Father of the future age, the Prince of peace.
- 7 Of the increase of his government and peace shall be no end;
He shall rule upon the throne of David,
And over his kingdom, to fix and establish it,
With judgment and justice henceforth and for ever:
The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will do this.

CHAPTER IX.

A prophecy concerning the kingdom of Israel, or the ten tribes, extending to the 4th verse of chapter 10.

- 8 "JEHOVAH" hath a word against Jacob,
And it hath lighted upon Israel.
- 9 Because the people, all of them, behave proudly,
Ephraim, and the inhabitants of Samaria;
In pride and haughtiness of heart, saying,
- 10 The bricks are fallen down,
But we will build with hewn stones;
The sycamores are cut down,
But we will replace them with cedars.
- 11 Therefore will Jehovah raise up
The "princes" of Retzin against them,
And their enemies shall together attack them;
[behind;
- 12 The Syrians before, and the Philistines
And they shall devour Israel on every side.
For all this his anger is not turned away,
But his hand is stretched out still.

sider the term as denoting not a staff, but a yoke as it does, ch. lviii. 6, 9; Jerem. ii. 28.

5. When all the greaves] This verse is connected with the preceding, and refers to what occurred when the Midianites were destroyed, Judg. vii. Their armour and their blood-stained garments were taken and burnt. This seems to have been a custom among the Israelites, Josh. ii. 6; Nah. ii. 13; Ps. xvi. 9, Ezek. xxxix. 8—10.

6. For unto us a child] Here the prophet assigns the reason of what he had said in the preceding verses. He beholds the Saviour born, and describes his wonderful person, administration, and endless government.—Shall be called] That is, shall be. For this idiom, see Matt. v. 9, 45, and xxi. 13; Mark xi. 17; compared with Luke xix. 46.—Wonderful] The Saviour was thus called, both on account of his birth from a virgin, and the many miracles and wonders which he would perform. See Judg. 13, 18, 19.—Counsellor] Imparting, from the rich stores of his own wisdom, the best information to men.—Mighty God] Compare ch. x. 21. This only expresses what is meant by the name before given. Immanuel, God with us.—The father of the future age] That is, of the christian age; the whole period of Messiah's reign.

7. Of the increase] There shall be no limits to his empire; and his government most peaceful.—On the throne of David] As his son according to the flesh, and like him, but in a far superior manner, maintaining the honour of the divine law and worship, governing with justice, and showing mercy through every generation.

CHAP. IX. 8. to CHAP. X. 1—4. This whole passage,

Yet this people turn not to him that smote 13 them;

And Jehovah of hosts, they seek not.
Therefore will Jehovah cut off from Israel, 14
Head and tail, branch and rush, in one day.
The aged and honourable, he is the head; 15
And the prophet teaching lies, he is the tail.
[astray:
For the leaders of this people lead them 16
And those led by them shall be swallowed up.
[young men.
Therefore, Jehovah shall not joy in their 17
Nor on their orphans and widows have pity.

For every one is profane, and an evil-doer:
And every mouth speaketh foolishness.

For all this his anger is not turned away,
But his hand is stretched out still.

For wickedness burneth as a fire: 18

The brier and the bramble it shall consume:
And it shall kindle the thicket of the wood:
And they shall mount up in volumes of smoke. [is darkened;

By the wrath of Jehovah of hosts, the land 19
And the people shall be as fuel for the fire:
A man shall not even spare his brother.
But he shall snatch on the right, yet be 20
hungry:

And devour on the left, and not be satisfied
Every man shall devour the flesh of his neighbour, [seh:

Manasseh Ephraim, and Ephraim Manas- 21
And both of them shall be united against Judah.

For all this his anger is not turned away,
But his hand is stretched out still.

Wo to them that decree unjust decrees! 1

To the scribes, who prescribe oppression:

To turn aside the needy from judgment; 2

reduced to its proper and entire form, and healed of the dislocation, which it suffers by the absurd division of the chapters, makes a distinct prophecy; remarkable for the regularity of its dispositions, and the elegance of its plan.

It has no relation to the preceding or the following prophecy. This relates exclusively to the kingdom of Israel.—(v) MSS.

9. Behave proudly] So the Chaldee reads, and this is most suitable.

10. The bricks] The eastern bricks are only clay mixed with straw, and dried in the sun. They are properly opposed to hewn stone. The sycamores, timber of little worth, with equal propriety are opposed to the cedars. Compare 1 Kings x. 27.

11. Princes of Retzin] The text has enemies, which is obviously wrong, and MSS. yet read as given. The prophet predicts the perfidy of the Syrians, who would soon be found most formidable enemies.

12. On every side] Compare 2 Kings x. 21. They would spare none; they would ravage and depopulate every corner of the country.

13—17. Yet this people] Impiety and depravity pervaded the leaders, and the people in general followed their ways.

18. For wickedness] This will bring down the fire of God's wrath, which shall burn up the brier and thorn, the poor and the ignoble, and kindle the thicket of the wood, the great and noble.

20. The flesh of his neighbour] Distress and famine shall prevail; and thus shall men be led to quarrel and fight; with one another. Comp. Jerem. xix. 9.

- To rob of their right, the poor of my people :
That the widows may become their prey ;
And that they may plunder the orphans.
- 3 And what will ye do in the day of visitation ?
And in the desolation, which shall come
from afar ;
To whom will ye flee for succour ?
And where will ye deposit your wealth ?
- 4 If when bound, they bow not themselves
down
Then down with the slain shall they fall.
For all this his anger is not turned away,
But his hand is stretched out still.

CHAPTER X.

A prophecy of the invasion of Judea by Senacherib and of his sudden overthrow, &c.

- 5 Ho to the Assyrian, the rod of mine
anger,
The staff in his hand is that of my wrath !
- 6 Against a dissembling nation will I send him, [a charge ;
And against a people of my wrath give him
To gather the spoil, and to bear away the prey, [streets.
And to trample them as the mire of the purpose ; [many nations.

But to destroy is in his heart, and to cut off
- 8 For he saith, Are not my princes altogether
kings ?
- 9 Is not Calno become as Carchemish ?
Have I not done to Hamath as to Arphad ?
Have I not done to Samaria as to Damascus ?
- 10 As my hand hath seized the kingdoms,
Whose idols, and whose graven images
Excelled those of Jerusalem and of Samaria ;
- 11 As I have done to Samaria and her idols, Shall I not do to Jerusalem and her images ?
- 12 Wherefore it shall come to pass, when Jehovah hath performed his whole work,
On mount Zion, and on Jerusalem,
That he will visit the king of Assyria for his arrogance,
And for the triumphant look of his eyes.

CHAP. X. 4. If when bound] The sense is, if when bound as captives they do not submit, but make resistance, then they shall be slain with the sword.

5. Here begins a new and distinct prophecy, continued to the end of the twelfth chapter : and it appears from ver. 9—11. of this chapter, that this prophecy was delivered after the taking of Samaria by Salmaneser ; which was in the sixth year of the reign of Hezekiah : and as the former part of it foretells the invasion of Senacherib, and the destruction of his army, which makes the whole subject of this chapter, it must have been delivered before the fourteenth of the same reign.

8. Altogether kings] That is, they are equal in riches, power, and rank, with kings in general.

9—11. Calno—Carchemish] The former city is thought to be the same as Ctesiphon, situate on the east side of the Tigris ; the latter was on the Euphrates, 2 Chron. xxxv. 20. Arphad is thought to have been a city of Syria, as it is mentioned with Hamath.

12. For his arrogance] Hebrew, ‘the fruit of a proud heart,’ which means arrogance, as is clear from what follows.

For he saith, By my strong hand I have 13 done it ; [dently.
And by my wisdom ; for I have acted pru-
I have removed the bounds of the peoples ;
I have plundered their hoarded treasures ;
I have brought down those firmly seated.
Yea, my hand hath found, as a nest, the 14
riches of the peoples ; [serted,
And as one gathereth eggs, which are de-
So have I gathered the whole earth :
And there was no one that moved the wing,
That opened the beak, or chirped.

Shall the axe boast against him that hew- 15
eth with it ? [moveth it ?

Shall the saw magnify itself against him that
As if the rod should wield him that lifteth it
As if the staff should raise up its own master.
Therefore shall Jehovah, the Lord of hosts, 16
Send upon his fat ones leanness ; [ing
And under his glory shall he kindle a burn-
As the burning of a consuming fire.

And the light of Israel shall become a fire, 17
And his Holy One a flame ;

And he shall burn and consume his thorn,
and his brier in one day. [field,
The glory of his forest, and of his fruitful 18
Even the whole substance, shall he consume ;
And it shall be wasted, as what is wasted
away.

And the remainder of the trees of his forest 19
Shall be so few that a child may write them
down.

And it shall come to pass in that day, 20
No more shall the remnant of Israel,
And such as have escaped of the house of
Lean upon him, who smote them ; [Jacob
But they shall lean upon Jehovah,
The Holy One of Israel, in truth.

A remnant shall return, a remnant of Jacob, 21
Unto God the Mighty One.

For though thy people, O Israel, be as the 22
sand of the sea,

Yet but a remnant of them ‘shall be saved :’

The completion is decreed in righteousness ;

For the completion, now decreed, the Lord, 23

13. The bounds of the peoples] Dividing the conquered countries, and removing the people from one land to another.

14. Moved the wing] This strongly represents the terror which his arms had excited, and that no nation durst make any resistance.

15. Its own master] Hebrew, a no-wood. The sense is given. The king of Babylon was but an instrument in the hand of God, to accomplish his purposes, though he vainly conceived that he was the sole arbiter of those events in which he was concerned.

17, 18. Light of Israel] Perhaps God is so called from his leading them formerly by a pillar of fire, or as dwelling amidst light and splendour in the temple.—His thorn] The briars and thorns are the common people ; the glory of his forest are the nobles. The fire of God’s wrath shall destroy them from the soul to the flesh ; it shall consume them entirely and altogether.

22, 23. For the completion] This version is the same as to the sense with the Greek, and with Rom. ix. 28, 29. The two first lines of the 22d verse imply some awful visitation, in which only a few should be preserved. The com-

 And it shall come to pass in that day, 10
 That there shall be one from the root of Jesse, pletion of this was at hand; for though they should be delivered from Senacherib, yet would the Chaldeans conquer and destroy them; but as a remnant was then preserved, so Paul applies the words to the remnant that should be preserved from the sword of the Romans. See note, Fam. Bib.

24—26. Manner of Egypt] Compare Amos iv. 10. As the Egyptians treated you with severity, and sought to destroy you, so will the Assyrians, Judg. vii. 8; Exod. xiv. 25.

28—32. He is come to Aiath] The march of Senacherib's army approaching Jerusalem in order to invest it, spread terror and confusion as he advanced.

29. Passed the strait] That of Michmas; a very narrow passage between two sharp hills or rocks; see I Sam. xiv. 4, 5, where a great army might have been opposed with advantage by a very inferior force.

33, 34. Behold, Jehovah] The prophet having described the march of the enemy, now predicts his sudden destruction. The tallest and most flourishing branches must fall with a crash; the cedars of Lebanon must be hewn down.

CHAP. XI. 1. Spring forth a rod] This is a distinct prophecy, which might be delivered soon after the former.

3. He shall delight] The sense of the verb דריר in this connexion is disputed. The sense attributed to the verb by Gesen. is adopted, as most suitable to the places where it occurs.

5. Cincture] The meaning of this verse is, that a zeal for justice and truth shall make him active and strong in executing the great work, which he shall undertake. See note on ch. v. 27.

6—9. Then shall the wolf] The heathen poets have described the golden age in a nearly similar manner. The prophet has however much excelled them in describing the wonderful change which the presence, power, and grace of Messiah should make in the earth.

10. One from the root] The text is elliptical, root being put for a branch, or one sprung from the root, as in the first verse, and Rev. v. 5, and xxi. 16.—Who shall stand] This and the next line the apostle has quoted, Rom. xv. 12, according to the Greek version. They have given the sense, though not a literal version of the text. For as kings and rulers always had the command in war, to set up an ensign, and to bear rule, were equivalent expressions.

- Who shall stand for an ensign of the peoples,
And unto him shall the nations seek ;
And his resting-place shall be glorious.
- 11 And then will "Jehovah" a second time put forth his hand,
To recover the remnant of his people,
That shall be left from Assyria, and from Egypt, [Elam,
And from Pathros, and from Cush, and
And from Shinar, and from Hamath,
And from the regions of the western sea.
- 12 And he shall set up a signal for the nations ;
And he shall gather the outcasts of Israel,
And shall assemble the dispersed of Judah,
From the four extremities of the earth.
- 13 And the jealousy of Ephraim shall cease,
And the enmity of Judah shall be no more ;
Ephraim shall not be jealous of Judah,
And Judah shall not be at enmity with Ephraim. [the west ;
- 14 But they shall invade the Philistines on Together shall they spoil the people of the east ; [hand,
On Edom and Moab they shall lay their
And the Ammonites shall obey them.
- 15 As Jehovah formerly smote with a drought
The tongue-like strait of the Egyptian sea ;
So shall he shake his hand over the river,
The Euphrates with his vehement wind ;
And he shall strike it into seven streams,
And shall make them pass over it dry-shod.
- 16 And there shall be a highway for the remnant of his people,
Who shall be left from Assyria,
As there was unto Israel, in the day
When he came up from the land of Egypt.

- 1 And in that day thou shalt say,
I will praise thee, O Jehovah ;
For though thou hast been angry with me,
Thine anger is turned away, and thou comfortest me.
- 2 Behold ! God is become my salvation ;
I will trust, and not be afraid :
For my strength and my song is Jehovah,
And he is become my salvation.
- 3 And when ye shall draw waters with joy
4 from the fountains of salvation ; in that day ye shall say,

11. To recover the] This must refer to the many Jews who embraced the gospel in these places, and who, whether they belonged to the house of Judah, or the ten tribes, became one in Christ. This event is joined with the calling of the Gentiles in the next verse.—(v) MSS.

14. They shall invade] Hebrew, they shall fly against the shoulder ; but this is idiomatical, and signifies they shall invade and attack the Philistines. If we understand this literally, it may apply to the conquests of Judas Maccabeus and his brethren, who subdued all these nations.

15. Over the river] That is, the Euphrates. If we may believe Herodotus, Cyrus turned the course of this river, so that what is here said was literally fulfilled.

CHAP. XII. 1. In that day] That is, at the period when one from the root of Jesse shall reign, this song shall be sung. The Jews applied this hymn to the times of Messiah, John vii. 37, 38.

- Give ye thanks to Jehovah ; call on his name ;
Make known among the peoples his doings ;
Record ye how highly his name is exalted :
Sing to Jehovah, for he hath done excellent things ; 5
This is made manifest in all the earth,
Cry out, and shout, O inhabitants of Zion ; 6
For great amidst thee is the Holy One of Israel.

CHAPTERS XIII. XIV.

In these chapters the prophet predicts the destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians, and the happy consequences to the Jews.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING BABYLON, 1
WHICH WAS REVEALED TO ISAIAH, THE SON OF AMOS.

- UPON a lofty mountain raise the standard ; 2
Exalt the voice ; "beckon with the hand,
That they may enter the gates of princes.
I have commanded my select warriors ; 3
Yea, called my mighty ones to execute my wrath ;
Those who exult in their own dignity.
A sound of a multitude in the mountains, 4
As of a numerous people ;
A sound of the tumult of kingdoms,
Of nations gathered together ! [battle.
Jehovah of hosts mustereth the host for
They come from a far distant land, 5
From the extremity of the heavens ;
Jehovah and the instruments of his rage
To make desolate the whole land.
Howl ye, for the day of Jehovah is at 6 hand ; [come.
As a destruction from the Almighty shall it
Therefore shall all hands be slackened, 7
And every man's heart melt ; for they shall be afraid :
Torments and pangs shall seize them ; 8
They shall be in pain as a woman in travail ;
They shall be astonished one at another ;
Their countenances shall be like flames.
Behold, the day of Jehovah cometh, a cruel 9
one :
Even fierce anger, and burning wrath,
To make the land a desolation ;
And her sinners he shall destroy from out of her.

CHAP. XIII. 2. Upon a lofty] He opens the prophecy, calling on the forces to assemble, and attack Babylon.

3. My select] The term שׁרָפָה signifies not only holy, but appointed, chosen and prepared for any particular office or work. Compare Jer. i. 44, and ii. 27. (c) To them. Vulg. 1 MS.

4. For the battle] Cyrus's army was made up of many different nations.

6. Howl ye] This is addressed to the Babylonians, who were now in the zenith of their power. Vitringa supposes that this prophecy was delivered in the reign of Ahaz, and about two hundred years before the completion of it.

8. Like flames] Their torments and pangs shall be apparent in their hectic, feverish countenances. This is part of the description of the miseries to be inflicted on the Babylonians ; and cannot with any propriety be referred to their conquerors.

- And it shall come to pass in that day, that 3
Jehovah shall give thee rest from thy sorrow, and from thy fear, and from the hard servtude which was laid upon thee ; and thou 4 shalt pronounce this parable upon the king of Babylon, and shalt say,
How hath the oppressor ceased !
The exactress of gold ceased !
Jehovah hath broken the staff of the wicked, 5
The sceptre of the rulers.
He that smote the peoples in wrath 6
With a continual stroke ;
He that ruled the nations in anger,
Is persecuted, and none hindereth.
The whole earth is at rest, is quiet ; 7
They break forth into singing ;
Yea, the fir-trees rejoice over thee, 8
The cedars of Lebanon :
Since thou hast been laid low,
No feller hath come up against us.
Hades from beneath is moved for thee, 9
To meet thee at thy coming ;
He rouseth up for thee the mighty dead,
All the great chiefs of the earth ;
He maketh to rise up from their thrones

10. Yea, the stars] When kingdoms are represented prosperous, the sun, moon, and stars shine with increased splendour ; and their overthrow is represented by darkening these luminaries. Compare Joel ii. 10 ; iii. 15, 16. Amos viii. 9.

11. The world] That is, the Babylonian empire. In other instances, this general term is used for a particular empire or country. Compare Luke ii. 1, and Acts ii. 25.

12. More precious] So few shall be left in the general destruction, that even one shall be esteemed invaluable. Compare ch. iv. 1, and 1 Sam. iii. 1.

14. Chased roe] The roe and the sheep are most timid, and have no way to escape their foes, but by the swiftness of their flight. So timid should be the Babylonians.—(a) Sept.

16—18. Their infants] The cruel and sanguinary nature of ancient warfare is here justly stated. The victors were guilty of indiscriminate slaughter. Even unoffending infants and sucklings shared the fate of their parents.

19. Shall be overthrown] The comparison implies that Babylon should be wholly and for ever destroyed.

20—22. Satyrs] Some uncommon creatures of the goat-kind are most probably meant. This prediction has long been fulfilled ; so that ages past, the very site of this great city was scarcely known.

CHAP. XIV. 1—4. For Jehovah] The prophet rather supposes the captivity of the Israelites, and adverts to their deliverance, as the consequence of the taking of Babylon.

9—11. Hades from] In these verses we have one of the boldest prospectuses that ever was attempted ; and is executed with astonishing brevity and perspicuity and with that peculiar force, which in a great subject naturally results from both.

- All the kings of the nations.
 10 All of them shall speak, and say unto thee,
 Art thou, even thou, become weak as we?
 Art thou made like unto us?
 11 Is then thy pride brought down to the grave?
 The sound of thy sprightly instruments?
 Is the worm become thy couch?
 And the earth-worm thy covering?
 12 How art thou fallen from the heavens,
 O Lucifer, son of the morning!
 How art thou cut down to the ground,
 Thou that didst subdue the nations!
 13 Yet thou didst say in thy heart,
 I will ascend unto the heavens;
 Above the stars of God, I will exalt my throne,
 And I will sit on the mount of convention,
 On the sides of the north:
 14 I will ascend above the heights of the clouds;
 I will be like the Most High.
 15 Yet shalt thou be brought down to the grave;
 Even unto the sides of the pit. [thee;
 16 Those that see thee shall look well at
 They shall attentively consider thee, saying,
 Is this the man, that made the earth to tremble,
 That shook the kingdoms with terror?
 17 That made the world like a desert,
 And destroyed the cities thereof;
 That never dismissed his captives to their own home?
 18 All the kings of the nations, all of them,
 Lie down in glory, each in his own sepulchre;
 19 But thou art cast out of thy grave,
 Like the branch that is abominated;
 Invested with the slain, with those pierced
 by the sword; [the pit;
 With those that go down to the stones of
 Like a carcass trodden under the feet.
 20 Thou shalt not be joined to them in burial,
 Because thou hast destroyed thy country,
 And thy people thou hast slain:
 The seed of evil-doers shall never be renowned.
 21 Prepare ye slaughter for his children,
 For the iniquity of their fathers;

Lest they rise up, and possess the earth,
 And new enemies fill the habitable world.
 For I will arise against them, saith Jeho- 22
 vah of hosts, [remnant;
 And cut off from Babylon the name and
 And the son, and the son's son, saith Jehovah. [porcupine.
 And I will make it a possession for the 23
 And it shall become pools of water; [tion,
 And I will plunge it in the gulf of destruc-
 Saith Jehovah of hosts.

Jehovah of hosts hath sworn, saying, 24
 Surely as I have devised, so shall it be;
 And as I have purposed, so shall it stand:
 That I will crush the Assyrian in my land, 25
 And I will trample him on my mountains.
 Then shall his yoke depart from off them,
 And his burden be removed from off their shoulder.

This is the purpose which is determined 26
 Concerning the whole earth; [nations.
 And this the hand stretched out over all
 For Jehovah of hosts hath purposed, 27
 And who shall disannul it?
 And it is his hand that is stretched out,
 And who shall turn it back?

IN THE YEAR IN WHICH AHAZ THE KING 28
 DIED, THIS ORACLE WAS DELIVERED, CON-CERNING PHILISTIA.

Rejoice not, O Philistia, with one consent. 29
 Because the rod that smote thee is broken:
 For from the serpent's root shall come forth
 a basilisk,
 And his fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent.
 For the poor shall feed on my first fruits; 30
 And the needy shall lie down in safety:
 But thy root 'he will kill' with famine;
 And thy remnant he will slay,
 Howl, O gates; cry out, O city! 31
 O Philistia, thou art wholly dissolved!
 For from the north cometh a smoke;
 And there is no straggler among his troops.
 And what shall one answer the messengers 32
 of nations?

12—15. How art thou? The Jews now resume the speech: they address the king of Babylon as the morning star fallen from heaven.

13. Mount of convention Our translators, after others, thought, that this meant mount Zion, Ps. xlviii. 2. The opinion of Daëderlein is more probable, that the mount of convention is a poetic description of the north pole, because it appears to be the highest part, and as if the centre of the heavens, around which the stars revolve. The south part of the heavens are called 'the chambers of the south' Job x. 9.

16—20. Those that see We have now a different scene of a most happy image, to diversify the same subject, and give it a new turn and an additional force.

19. Like the branch Jerom explains it to mean 'a young shoot from the root of a tree, and which is cut down as useless,' and I may add, as injurious, by taking a part of that ornament with which the tree is supported.

21—24. Prepare ye The close of this prophecy is un- 663 commonly sublime. God is introduced as declaring the utter extirpation of the royal family, and the desolation of the city, confirming the decree by the awful sanction of his oath.—New enemies The term עֲרִים, as pointed, may be either a noun, signifying cities, or a participle, meaning enemies. The latter is adopted with the old versions.

28. In the year This is a new prophecy, and not in the least connected with the preceding. Uzziah had subdued the Philistines, 2 Chron. xxvi. 6, 7; and Uzziah therefore must be meant, by the rod that smote them, and by the serpent, from whom should spring the fiery-flying serpent; that is, Hezekiah, a much more terrible enemy than even Uzziah had been, 2 Kings xviii. 8. 30. (v) Sept.

31. For from the north That is, a cloud of dust raised by the march of Hezekiah's army against Philistia.

32. Ambassadors of The ambassadors of the neighbouring nations, that sent to congratulate Hezekiah on his success, are meant. See 2 Chron. xxxii. 23.

That Jehovah hath established Zion;
And in her the poor of his people find refuge.

CHAPTERS XV. XVI.

These chapters contain a prophecy of the calamities brought on Moab, by the invasion of Salmeser.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING MOAB.

Because Kir is utterly wasted, Moab is

- 3 In her streets they are girded with sack-
On her house-tops every one howleth,
And to her streets, descendeth with weeping.
- 4 And Heshbon and Elealeh cry out aloud;
Unto Jahaz is their voice heard:
Yea, the armed men of Moab cry out;
Her very life is become grievous unto her.
- 5 My heart crieth out for Moab;
Her fugitives, along even unto Zoar,
Cry out like the lowing of a young heifer:
Yea, the ascent of Lubith they shall ascend weeping.
Yea, along the way to Horonaim,
They shall raise a cry of destruction.
- 6 For the waters of Nimrim shall become desolate:
For the grass is withered and consumed;
The tender shoot, the green herb is no more.
- 7 Hence the abundance which they have gotten,
And the things which they have laid up,
Them shall they carry to the valley of willows. [Moab;
- 8 For a cry encompasseth the borders of

And unto Beer-Elim her howling.

For, the waters of Dimon are full of blood: 9
Yet I will bring more evils upon Dimon;
Upon the escaped of Moab and 'Ariel,'
And upon the remnant left in the land.

SEND ye the lamb to the ruler of the land, 1

Make thy shadow as the night amidst the

Hide the outcasts; discover not the fugitive.
Let the outcasts of Moab sojourn with thee; 4
Be thou a covert to them from the destroyer.
The oppressor is not; the destroyer hath

He that trampled on you is perished from
And the throne shall be established in 5
And in truth shall one sit thereon; [mercy;
In the tabernacle of David, a judge,
Searching out right, and despatching justice.
We have heard of the pride of Moab; 6
He is very proud—of his haughtiness and pride
And of his rage;—but vain are his lies.
Therefore shall Moab howl; 7
Yea, the whole land of Moab shall howl:
For 'the men of Kirharez' shall ye moan:
Verily they are stricken.
For the fields of Heshbon languish; 8
The lords of nations have broken the vine of Sibmah,
Whose generous shoots reached unto Jazer;
Her branches strayed even to the desert;
They extended themselves—they passed over the sea. [Jazer,
Hence I will weep, as with the weeping of 9
For the vine of Sibmah; [and Elealeh!
I will water thee with my tears, O Heshbon
For on thy harvest and vintage 'the destroyer' hath fallen.

CHAP. XV. 1. Because Ar] The most probable account is, that it was delivered soon after the foregoing, in the first year of Hezekiah; and that it was accomplished in his fourth year, when Salmeser invaded the kingdom of Israel. He might probably march through Moab; and to secure every thing behind him, possess himself of the whole country, by taking their principal strong places, Ar and Kirharez.

2. Beth-Dibon] So the Chaldee and Syriac, the vau having been inadvertently inserted, Jer. vii. 9.—(v) Sept. Arab.

3. To her open places] The arrangement of the text has suffered by an obvious transposition of one of its parts. I have followed, in rendering, what is the proper order and construction.

7. Them shall they] The Moabites shall seize and carry away to any place of security, as much of their wealth and store as possible, for fear of the enemy.

9. And Ariel] Ar of Moab was thus called, as we learn from Jerom and Theodoret; and as the Sept. so read, it is probably genuine.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Send ye the lamb] The prophet addresses the Moabites, and advises them to send a lamb as a tribute to the king of Israel, and by their submission to conciliate and secure the favour of the Jews, 2 Sam. viii. 24 and 2 Kings iii. 4.

2. Daughters of Moab] This is a reason why they should secure the friendship and aid of the Jews, that their women, driven from their homes, might find a place of refuge and security.

3. Impart counsel] The prophet addressed Zion, exhorting her people to consider what was their duty towards the distressed and flying Moabites.—Thy shadow as the night] The shadow denotes every thing which could contribute to alleviate their distress.

Outcasts of Moab] Setting the points aside, this is by much the most obvious construction of the Hebrew, as well as most agreeable to the context, and the design of the prophet.

6. We have heard] Though the prophet has advised the Jews to receive the fugitives of Moab, he now reverts to the moral causes of their visitation; their pride, their rage, and their idolatry. Compare Zeph. ii. 8—10.

7. Men of Kirharez] The text here is happily corrected by the parallel place, Jer. xlviii. 31; for 'foundations & flagons,' yields no suitable sense.

9. Thy harvest] Meaning all kinds of summer produce, and ending with the vintage, which was in autumn. See as in Jeremiah xlviii. 32.

- 10 And joy and gladness are taken from the fruitful field; [shout; And in the vineyards they shall not sing, nor In the vats the treader shall not tread out the wine; The vintage-shouting shall cease.
- 11 Therefore my bowels sound as a harp for Moab; And mine inward parts for Kirhahes.
- 12 And it shall come to pass, when Moab shall see [places, That he hath wearied himself on the high- That he shall enter his own sanctuary, In order to pray; but he shall not prevail.
- 13 This is the word which Jehovah spoke
- 14 concerning Moab long ago; But now Jehovah hath spoken, saying,
After three years, as the years of a hireling,
And the glory of Moab shall be debased,
In all his great multitude; [out strength!
And the remnant shall be very few, and with-

CHAPTERS XVII. XVIII.

This prophecy relates both to Damascus and Samaria; and as they were joined in alliance, so they were to be subverted together; but Judah was to be saved.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING DAMASCUS.

- 1 BEHOLD! Damascus is removed so as to be no city;
It shall even become a ruinous heap.
- 2 The cities are deserted "for ever;"
They shall be given up to the flocks;
They shall lie down, and none affright them.
- 3 And the fortress shall cease from Ephraim,
And the kingdom from Damascus;
And the remnant of Syria shall become,
As the glory of the sons of Israel, saith Jehovah of hosts.
- 4 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That the glory of Jacob shall be diminished,
And the fatness of his flesh shall become lean.
- 5 And as when one gathereth the harvest,
And his arm reapeth the ears of corn, shall it be;

12. On the high places] Some think that במה signifies their high altars, to which they ascended by steps. — Wearied himself] With the slaughter and offering of victims to Chemosh, which idol they worshipped. Numb. xxi. 29.

CHAR. XVII. 1. Behold, Damascus] This prophecy by its title should relate only to Damascus: but it full as much concerns, and more largely treats of, the kingdom of Samaria and the Israelites. It was fulfilled by Tiglath Pileser's taking Damascus, and carrying the people captives to Kir, 2 Kings xvi. 9.

2. For ever] The common text is here unintelligible; and it is a happy circumstance, that the Sept. has preserved the true reading.

5. As when one gathereth] The king of Assyria shall sweep away the whole body of the people, and the remnant shall be no more in proportion, than the scattered ears left to the gleaner.

8. Dedicated to] Literally the altars of the work of their hands; that is, of the idols. Thus Kimchi has explained it.

- Or as one gleaneth ears in the valley of Re- phaim: [olive; A gleanings shall be left on it, as on a beaten 6 Two or three berries on the top-most bough; Four or five on the fruitful branches, Saith Jehovah, the God of Israel.
- In that day shall a man regard his 7 Maker, [Israel. And his eyes look unto the Holy One of And he shall not regard the altars 8 Dedicated to the work of his own hands; And what his fingers made he shall not respect;
Nor the groves, nor the sun-images.
- In that day shall his fortified cities become 9 Like the desertion of the 'Hivites and Amorites," [Israel; Who deserted the land before the sons of And the land shall become a desolation.
- Because thou forgettest the God of thy sal- 10 vation, [strength; And rememberedst not the rock of thy Hence when thou hast planted pleasant plants,
And hast set shoots from a foreign soil:
In the day when thou hast made thy plants 11 to grow, [forth; And in the morn made thy shoots to spring
The harvest-heap, even in the day of posses- sion, Shall become the cause of desperate grief.
- Oh the multitudes of the numerous peo- 12 ples, [seas! Who make a sound like the sound of the Oh the roaring of the nations!
They roar as the roaring of mighty waters.
But God shall rebuke them, and they shall 13 flee afar off; [wind, And be driven as chaff of the hills before the And like thistle-down before the whirlwind.
- At the evening season behold terror! 14 Before the morning, and they are no more!
This is the portion of those that spoil us;
And this the lot of those that plunder us.

Ho! to the land shadowing with wings, 1
Which borders on the rivers of Cush:

9. Like the desertion] The Sept. has happily preserved what seems to be the true text. Kimchi and other Jewish critics explain it in the sense which the reading of the Sept. suggests.

11. The harvest-heap] When the harvest is collected together, the enemy shall seize it, and leave to you nothing.

12—14. Oh the multitude] The prophet having predicted the overthrow and desolation of the kingdoms of Syria and Israel, foretells the invasion of the kingdom of Judah, by Senacherib and his mighty hosts. He hears the sound of the people marching; their noise was terrible as the roaring of mighty waters.

13. Thistle-down] The word לללל means any thing light and rolling. Lowth renders gossamer, the down of plants, which sense I have followed.

14. Behold terror] Nothing can exceed this description of the destruction of the enemy. 'At evening they inspire terror, before the morning they are no more.'

CHAR. XVIII. 1. Ho! to the land] What land is

- 2 Which sendeth ambassadors on the sea,
And in floats of papyrus on the face of the waters.
Go, O ye swift messengers,
To a nation extended and fierce;
To a people terrible from the first and hitherto; [down,
A nation that useth the line, and treadeth
Whose land the rivers have spoiled.
- 3 All that inhabit the world, or dwell on the earth, [behold!
When the standard is raised on the hills,
And when the trumpet is sounded, hear.
- 4 For thus hath Jehovah said unto me,
I will sit still and regard my own abode;
I will be to it as the clear heat after rain;
As the cloud of dew "in the time" of harvest. [perfect,

He shall cut off the shoots with pruning-
And shall take away and cut down the branches.
- 6 And they shall be together abandoned
To the rapacious birds of the mountains,
And to the wild-beasts of the earth;
And the rapacious birds shall summer on them,
And the wild beasts shall winter on them.
- 7 At that time shall a gift be brought Unto Jehovah of hosts,
From a people extended and fierce;
A people terrible from the first, and hitherto;
A nation that useth the line, and treadeth down,
Whose land the rivers have spoiled;
To the place of the name of Jehovah of hosts, unto mount Zion.

meant, and why it is said to be shadowing with wings, has been much disputed. The chief part consider that the prophet intended to represent Egypt. The Jews fled under the wing of this country for protection. The prophet having predicted the destruction of these enemies, sends the news first to Egypt, and then exhorts the swift messengers of Egypt to send it to Nubia.

2. To a nation extended] Occupying a large extent of country, as the Nubians did. The Nubians had become formidable, and for some time had dominion over Egypt, as we shall see.

3. All ye that inhabit] The prophet calls now on all nations to attend to what God was about to do.

4. I will sit still] Senacherib invaded Egypt, and laid it nearly waste. No Ammon, or Thebes, was now destroyed, according to Nahum iii. 10. On his departure he laid siege to Pelusium, and spent much time without being able to reduce it. He was forced to break up the siege by the approach of Tirhakah, king of Nubia, with a formidable army. He, however, attacked the Nubians and overthrew them. While these events were occurring, the prophet represents Jehovah as sitting still, and protecting his own abode, and promising to be to it as refreshing as the mitigated heat after rain, or as the cloud of dew, &c.—(v) Versions and MSS.

5, 6. Surely before the] The images here are striking. When the vintage is at hand, and the husbandman expects the fruit, the loaded boughs and branches shall be cut down, and his hope become vain. So will God disappoint

CHAPTER XIX.

This prophecy relates the calamities brought on Egypt by intestine divisions and commotions.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING EGYPT.

- BEHOLD, Jehovah rideth on a swift cloud, 1
And goeth down to Egypt;
And the idols of Egypt shall be moved at his presence,
And the heart of Egypt shall melt within her. [tians,

And they shall seek to idols and sorcerers,
And to necromancers, and to wizards.
And I will give up the Egyptians 4
Into the hand of cruel lords;
And a fierce king shall rule over them,
Saith the Lord Jehovah of hosts.
Then shall the waters fail from the sea, 5
And the river shall be wasted and dried up.
And the streams shall become putrid; 6
And the canals shall be emptied and dried up. [river,

And the fishers shall mourn and lament; 8
All those that cast the hook into the river,
Or spread nets on the waters shall languish.
And they that work the fine flax, [ashamed. 9
And they that weave net-works, shall be
And her weavers shall be greatly distressed; 10
And all that make gain of pools for fish.
Surely the princes of Zoan are fools, 11

Senacherib and his troops, in respect to their designs against Judah.

7. A gift be brought] If the people to whom the messengers are sent were the Nubians, then they are the people who are to send gifts to Jehovah on the destruction of the Assyrians.

CHAP. XIX. 1. Behold, Jehovah] Jehovah maketh the clouds his chariot, and comes to inspect Egypt and inflict on her his judgments. Compare Ps. civ. 3.

2. And I will raise] This denotes civil dissensions. After the invasion of this country by Senacherib, and his retreat, a perfect anarchy took place and prevailed for some years: this was followed by the tyranny of twelve princes, who divided the country between them.

4. Cruel lords] The twelve princes who divided Egypt among them; and the 'fierce king,' Psammethichus, who having subdued his rivals, reigned for fifty-four years.

7. Marshy meadows] So Kimchi and the Sept. Alex. The word in the Egyptian tongue means, 'whatever grows in marshy ground,' as Jerom on this place has observed.

8. And the fishers] The Nile, says Diodorus, lib. i. abounds with incredible numbers of all sorts of fish.

10. And her weavers] The Chald. and Sept. among the ancient versions support this sense—And all that make] Compare for the version Exod. vii. 19.

11. Zoan] This was the Tanis of the Greeks; and in the time of Moses, and long after, the royal city of Egypt. Compare Numb. xiii. 23; Ps. lxxviii. 12, 43.

 The princes of Noph are deceived ;
 They have caused Egypt to err ;—

 And they shall tremble and be afraid,
 At the shaking of the hand of Jehovah of

 Which he himself shall shake over them.
 17 And the land of Judah shall be a terror to Egypt ; [fear,
 Whosoever mentions it to them they shall

 Which he hath counselled against them.
 18 In that day shall be five cities in the land of Egypt,
 Speaking the language of Canaan,
 And swearing unto Jehovah of hosts :
 One shall be called, The city of "the Sun."

 tians, [that day,
 And the Egyptians shall know Jehovah in
 And serve him with sacrifice and oblation ;
 And shall vow a vow to Jehovah and perform it.

13. Noph) The ancients consider this the same city as Memphis. This was the greatest city in Upper Egypt, except Thebes, situate on the west bank of the Nile.

15. Head or tail) The king or people ; all should be so dispirited, as not to be able to do any thing.

[8—25. City of the Sun) The Jews of Egypt, after the building of the temple at Heliopolis, called that city, then become the rival of Jerusalem, 'the city of righteousness.' On the contrary, the Palestine Jews called it 'the city of destruction.' The conquest of the Persians by Alexander, was the deliverance of Egypt ; especially as he and his successors greatly favoured the people, and improved the country. What is here said applies in its full sense to the times of the gospel.

CHAP. XX. 1. In the year that Tartan] Tartan be-

 He shall even smite and also heal them ;
 For they shall turn unto Jehovah,
 And he will be entreated by them and heal

 In that day there shall be a highway from 23
 And the Assyrian shall come into Egypt,
 And the Egyptian shall go into Assyria,
 And the Egyptian shall worship with the Assyrian.
 In that day Israel shall be the third, 24
 Together with Egypt and Assyria,
 A blessing in the midst of the earth :
 Whom Jehovah of hosts shall bless, saying, 25
 Blessed be my people, the Egyptians ;
 And the Assyrians, the work of my hands ;
 And Israel mine own inheritance.

CHAPTERS XX. XXI.

A prophecy against Ashdod ; of the overthrow of Babylon, and concerning Dumah and Arabia.

THE ORACLE AGAINST ASHDOD.

- In the year that Tartan came to Ashdod, 1
 whither he was sent by Sargon, king of Assyria, (and he fought against Ashdod, and took it :) At that time Jehovah spoke by 2
 Isaiah, the son of Amoz, saying,
 Go loose the sackcloth from off thy loins ;
 And put off thy shoes from thy feet.
 And he did so, walking stripped and bare- 3 foot ;
 And Jehovah said,
 As my servant Isaiah hath walked,
 Stripped and barefoot, for three days,
 It is for a sign and a prodigy of three years,
 In respect to Egypt and Cush :
 Thus shall the king of Assyria lead 4
 The captives of Egypt, and the exiles of Cush, [foot ;
 The young and the old, stripped and bare-
 With the hind parts bare to the shame of Egypt.
 And they of Ashdod shall be terrified, 5
 And ashamed of Cush, in whom they trusted,
 And of Egypt in whom they gloried.
 And the inhabitants of this country shall say, 6
 in that day, [dence,
 Behold ! such are the objects of our confi-
 To whom we fled for assistance ;

sieged Ashdod, or Azotus ; which probably belonged at this time to Hezekiah's dominions : see 2 Kings xviii. 8. Rosenmuller supposes that Sargon might be the successor of Salmaneser, but dying soon, no further mention is made of him. This seems as probable as any thing hitherto advanced.

3. Stripped) Nothing more is meant by this than to put off the upper garments.

4. The hind parts bare] It was often the barbarous custom of conquerors in ancient times to strip the vanquished, without regard to age or sex ; as we learn not only from the sacred, but from profane authors.

6. Such are the objects] This indirectly reproves the prophet's own people, who were ever prone to trust to Egypt for help.

To be delivered from the king of Assyria ;
How then shall we escape ?

CHAPTER XXI.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING THE SOUTHERN DESERT, OF BABYLON.

- 1 LIKE the southern tempests rushing along,
From the desert he cometh, from a terrible land.
- 2 A dreadful vision ! it is revealed unto me :
The spoiler is spoiled ! the destroyer destroyed !
Go up, O Elam ; form the siege, O Media !
All her vexations have I made to cease.
- 3 Therefore are my loins filled with pain ;
Pangs seize me, as the pangs of one in travail :
I am convulsed, so that I cannot hear ;
I am confounded, so that I cannot see.
- 4 My mind is bewildered ; terrors affright me ;
The night I desired, is turned into horror.
- 5 The table is prepared, the watch appointed ;
They eat, they drink ; but suddenly one cries,
Rise, O ye princes ; anoint the shield.
- 6 For thus had the Lord said unto me :
Go, and appoint the watchman on his station : [thee.
And whatever he seeth, let him declare to
- 7 And he saw chariots and bands of horsemen :
Riders on asses, and riders on camels :
And he observed with the closest attention.
- 8 And he that looked out on the watch, cried :
O my Lord, I keep my station all the day long, [night.
And on my ward have I continued every

And bands of horsemen come on.
And one spoke and said, Fallen, fallen is Babylon : [ground.
And all her idol gods are broken to the

O my thrashing, and the corn of my floor : 10
What I have heard from Jehovah of hosts,
The God of Israel, that I have declared to you.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING DUMAH. 11

A voice crieth unto one from Seir,
Watchman, what from the night ?
Watchman, what from the night ?
The watchman replieth, 12
The morning cometh, and also the night :
If ye will inquire, inquire ye : come again.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING ARABIA. 13

In the forest, at evening shall ye lodge,
O ye travelling companies of Dedan :
To meet the thirsty bring forth water, 14
O inhabitants of the land of Tema ;
With bread supply him that fleeth.
For from the face of the sword they shall flee ; 15
From the face of the drawn sword,
And from the face of the bended bow,
And from the face of the grievous war.
For thus hath the Lord said unto me, 16
Within yet a year, as the years of a hireling,
And all the glory of Kedar shall be consumed.
And the residue of the number of bow-men, 17
The mighty men of Kedar, shall be diminished :
For Jehovah, God of Israel, hath spoken it.

CHAPTER XXII.

A prophecy showing the distress, confusion, and vices of the people of Jerusalem, on the approach of the Assyrians to besiege that city ; and the fall of Shebna.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING THE VALLEY OF VISION.

WHAT aileth thee now, 1
That all the people are gone up to the house-tops ?
O thou that wast full of noise, 2

CHAP. XXI. 1. From the desert] Nothing can exceed the beauty and force of this language. The prophet sees at a distance the dreadful storm that is gathering, and is ready to fall upon Babylon. The enemy is on his march, a terrible enemy, before whom none can stand.

3, 4. Therefore are my loins] In these verses the prophet personates Babylon, and expresses the distress of his own mind, at the view of the calamities now impending.

5. The table is] The prophet sees them, after having appointed the watch, sit down and enjoy themselves ; but suddenly some one interrupts their pleasures, by crying, ' Rise, ye princes, ' &c.

6, 7. For thus had] In the former verse, the prophet mentions that the Babylonians had appointed a watch ; and in this he informs us, that God had ordered him to appoint one to look out and to inform him of what he saw. Xenophon's account of the taking of Babylon justifies the version given. See Cyr. lib. ii.

10. O my thrashing] The prophet now turns to the Israelites, who suffered greatly from the tyranny and oppression of Babylon, and represents God as speaking to them, ' O my, ' &c.

11. Dumah] That Edom or Idumæa is intended is certain, as the watchman calls from Seir, a mountain of that country.—What from the night] The prophet introduces the distressed Edomites as calling to him for information, as the Lord's watchman. What from the night ? When shall this night of calamity be past ? When will the morning of a happier day dawn ?

12. The morning cometh] Some relief will be afforded, but a night of calamity will again return.—If ye will inquire] That is, be serious in your inquiry ; come again and again for instruction ; or return from your idolatry, and come worship Jehovah.

13. The oracle] This is the title of the prophecy.—In the forest] Ye shall seek a hiding-place from the enemy.

14. Land of Tema] Kedar is joined with Tema, Jerem. xxv. 23. The people of this district are exhorted to relieve their fugitive brethren.

16. Within yet a year] Not any indefinite period, but within a year, consisting of the same number of months as the year of a hireling, this shall take place. Compare ch. xvi. 14.

CHAP. XXII. 1. The oracle] This prophecy, ending with the 14th verse of this chapter, is entitled, ' The Oracle concerning the Valley of Vision, ' by which is meant Jerusalem, because it was the place of prophecy. The title of this oracle seems derived from the words in the 5th verse.

- A tumultuous city, a joyous city !
Thy slain were not slain by the sword,
Neither did they die in battle.
- 3 All thy leaders went off together ;
But they are taken and bound by the archers ; [gether,
All that are found in thee are bound to-
And they that had fled far away.
- 4 Wherefore I said, Turn away from me ;
And let me weep bitterly ; labour not to comfort me ; [people.

down, and perplexity ;
From the Lord Jehovah of hosts, in the valley of vision :
The house-walls resound with tumult ;
The cry reacheth unto the mountains.
- 6 And Elam beareth the quiver ; ["Syrian ;"
With chariots and horsemen cometh the
And Kir uncovereth the shield.

And horsemen shall array themselves at the

And thou shalt look, in that day,
To the armoury of the house of the forest.
- 9 And the breaches of the city of David,
Ye shall see that they are many ;
And ye shall collect the waters of the lower pool. [lem,
- 10 And ye shall number the houses of Jerusa-
And break down the houses to fortify the wall.
- 11 A lake shall ye make between the two walls,
To receive the waters of the old pool.
But ye look not to him that doeth this ;
And him that formed it of old, ye regard not.
- 12 And the Lord Jehovah of hosts called,
In that day, to weeping and lamentation,
And to baldness, and to girding with sackcloth,
- 13 But, behold ! joy and gladness,
Slaying of oxen, and killing of sheep ;

9. Not slain with] They have not the honour to die in war, but by want and famine, Lament, iv. 9.

3. All that were found in thee] Thy inhabitants, and all such as, dreading a siege, sought a safe retreat elsewhere, they shall be made captives.

5. The house-walls] For the version, see note Fam. Bib. The people shall cry aloud in their houses, and the sound extend to the neighbouring hills ; yea, the very air shall resound with their bitter wailings.

6. The Syrian] So Houbigant, which is most probable. See 2 Kings xvi. 9.

8. And the veil] That is, thou shalt be treated with insult and disgrace, as a modest woman would be by having her veil removed, and her person isolated.

9—11. Waters of the lower pool] There were two pools in or near Jerusalem, supplied by springs. 2 Kings xx. 20 ; 2 Chron. xxxii. 2, 3, 5, 30.

12, 13. Weeping] This visitation was designed to lead to repentance ; but many were hardened, adopting the maxim of the Epicureans, " Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die."

15. Unto Shebna] Shebna, the scribe, mentioned in the history of Hezekiah, chap. xxxvi. seems to have been a dif-

- Eating of flesh, and drinking of wine ;
Let us eat and drink ; for to-morrow we die.
And Jehovah of hosts revealed to me ; 14

Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, Go, get thee 15

He will assuredly lay hold on thee ;
He will whirl thee around, and cast thee 18
away,
Like a ball from a sling into a wide country :
And there thou shalt die, and thy glorious chariots
Shall become the shame of thy Lord's house.
And I will drive thee from thy station, 19
And from thy state "I will bring thee down."
And in that day I will call my servant, 20
Even Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah :
And I will clothe him with thy robe, 21
And with thy girdle will I strengthen him ;
And thy government I will commit to his

And I will lay the key of David's house on 22

And he shall shut, and none shall open.
And I will fasten him as a nail in a sure 23

ferent person from this Shebna, the treasurer or steward of the household, to whom the prophecy relates. The Eliakim here mentioned was probably the person who, at the time of Sennacherib's invasion, was actually treasurer, the son of Hilkiah.

16. Sepulchre on high] The vanity of Shebna is set forth by his being so studious and careful to have his sepulchre on high ; in a lofty vault, and that probably in a high situation, that it might be more conspicuous. Compare 2 Chron. xxxii. 33.

17. He will assuredly] A ball must be taken and put into the sling, before it can be whirled about and cast away.

19. (v) Syr. Vulg.

22. Key of David's house] From this it is clear that the keys of the ancients were of considerable magnitude ; and like the robe and the girdle were signs of office, Matt. xvi. 19 ; Rev. iii. 7.

23. A glorious throne] The basis of the honour, or the founder of the glory of his father's house.

24. They shall hang] The prophet resumes the metaphor of the nail fastened, and all the persons of his father's house, like vessels of every kind hung on a nail, shall depend on him, and be indebted to him for their rank and honour.

The nail fastened in a sure place shall be removed;
And it shall be hewn down and shall fall,—
And the burden that was upon it shall be cut off:
For Jehovah hath spoken it.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A prophecy of the destruction of Tyre by the Chaldeans.

THE ORACLE CONCERNING TYRE.

- 1 Howl, O ships of Tarshish! she is laid waste;
[it:] No house remaineth, nor any one to enter
From the land of Chittim this is showed to them.
- 2 Be silent, ye inhabitants of the sea-coast;
The merchants of Sidon, passing the sea, crowded thee.
- 3 The seed of Sihor, amidst abundant waters,
The harvest of the river was her revenue:
And she became the mart of the nations.
- 4 Be thou ashamed, O Sidon; for the sea,
Even the fortress of the sea, hath spoken, saying,
I travail not, nor do I bear children!
Nor do I nourish youths, or bring up virgins.
- 5 As if the report had been concerning Egypt,
They shall be pained at the report of Tyre.
- 6 Pass ye over to Tarshish;
Howl, ye inhabitants of the sea-coast!
- 7 Is this indeed your exulting city.
Whose antiquity is of the earliest date?
Her own feet bear her far away to sojourn.
- 8 Who hath purposed this against Tyre,
A city which dispensed crowns;
Whose merchants were princes;
Whose traders were the nobles of the land?
- 9 Jehovah of hosts hath purposed it;

25. The nail that is fastened] This refers to Shebna, who now seemed to himself and to others, like a nail fastened in a sure place; but the nail must be removed, and whatever is hung upon it, must be cut off, and like it be cast away.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Howl, O ye ships] The prophecy opens with an address to the Tyrian negotiators and sailors at Tarshish, most probably supposed to be Tartessus in Spain. The news of the destruction of Tyre by Nebuchadnezzar is said to be brought to them from Chittim, the islands and coasts of the Mediterranean: 'for the Tyrians,' says Jerom on ver. 6, 'when they saw they had no other means of escaping, fled in their ships, and took refuge in Carthage, and in the islands of the Ionian and Egean Sea.'

2. Inhabitants of] This means the Tyrians, as the same expressions most evidently do in the 6th verse.—Merchants of Sidon] Tyre is called the daughter of Sidon, as sprung from her. They were in fact one people, and connected in the closest bonds.

3. The seed of Sihor] This is one of the names of the Nile, denominated from its blackness. Compare Jer. ii. 18, and 1 Chron. xiii. 5.—For the sea] Tyre is called the sea, because surrounded by it; and the fortress of the sea, because of its amazing strength.

5. As if the report] This shows the flourishing condition of Egypt at that period, and how much the maritime states were interested in her prosperity. The Sidonians should be pained at the report concerning Tyre, as they would have been at the report of the like calamity having come upon Egypt.

7. Is of the earliest date] It was a strong city in the time of Joshua, Joshua xix. 29, and 2 Sam. xxiv. 7.

To stain the pride of all beauty;
To make vile all the nobles of the earth.
Overflow thy land, like a river, 10
O daughter of Tarshish, since there is no restraint.

He hath stretched his hand over the sea; 11
Jehovah hath shaken the kingdoms;
He hath commanded concerning Canaan,
That they should destroy her strong-holds.
And he hath said, Thou shalt exult no more, 12
Thou oppressed virgin, daughter of Sidon.
Arise, pass over to Chittim;
But even there thou shalt have no rest.
Behold the land of the Chaldeans; 13
(This people were formerly of no account, wanderers of the desert, till the Assyrians founded them:)

They raise up their towers against Tyre;
They make an assault on her palaces;
They make her an utter desolation.
Howl, O ye ships of Tarshish, 14
For your strong-hold is laid waste.

And it shall come to pass in that day, 15
That Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years,
According to the duration of one kingdom;
But at the end of these seventy years,
Tyre shall sing as the harlot singeth.
Take thy lyre, go about the city, O harlot 16
forgotten;

Strike thy lyre skilfully; multiply the song,
That thou mayest be again remembered.
And it shall be at the end of seventy years 17
That Jehovah will attentively regard Tyre;
And she shall return to her gainful trade,
And enjoy intercourse with all kingdoms
Which are upon the face of the whole earth.
But her traffic and gain shall be holy to 18
Jehovah; [store;
It shall not be treasured up, nor kept in

8. Dispensed crowns] To such as ruled in her colonies, or among the people whom she conquered, and brought into subjection.

10. Overflow thy land] As the daughter of Zion means the citizens of Zion, so the daughter of Tarshish means the inhabitants of Tarshish; and now being under no restraints from the mother country; the prophet intimates, that they would increase and prosper, spread abroad like a fertilizing river.

11. Concerning Canaan] That is, the whole of the country so called.

13. Behold the land] The prophet now names the people who should destroy Tyre.—Wanderers of the desert] Such they were in the time of Job, i. 17.

15. Seventy years] Nebuchadnezzar began his conquests in the first year of his reign; from thence to the taking of Babylon by Cyrus are seventy years. These seventy years limit the duration of the Babylonish monarchy. Tyre was taken by him towards the middle of that period; so did not serve the king of Babylon during the whole period, but only for the remaining part of it.—As the harlot singeth] This shows the manner in which such women endeavoured to attract notice.

17. At the end of] Tyre, after its destruction by Nebuchadnezzar, recovered, as it is here foretold, its ancient trade, wealth, and grandeur.—Have intercourse] The allusion to the harlot is still kept up, but evidently means nothing more, than that she should again carry on trade among all nations. The last verse clearly refers to the conversion of the people to God, especially in the time of the gospel, Acts xxi. 4.

For her traffic shall be for those that dwell
before Jehovah,
For food sufficient, and for durable clothing.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A prophecy, shewing the miseries brought on Israel, by the king of Babylon.

- 1 Lo, Jehovah emptieth the land, and wasteth it; [ants.
He subverteth it, and scattereth its inhabit-
- 2 And it shall be, as with people, so with priest;
As with the servant, so with the master;
As with the hand-maid, so with her mistress;
As with the buyer, so with the seller;
As with the borrower, so with the lender;
As with the usurer, so with the giver of usury. [spoiled;
- 3 The land shall be utterly emptied and
For Jehovah hath spoken this word.
- 4 The land mourneth, it fadeth away;
The world languisheth, it fadeth away.
The haughty people of the land languish.
- 5 The land is even polluted under its inhabitants;
For they have transgressed 'the law';
They have changed the ordinance;
They have broken the everlasting covenant.
- 6 Therefore hath a curse devoured the land;
For they who dwell in her are found guilty.
Therefore the inhabitants of the land perish;
And few are the mortals that are left in her.
- 7 The new wine mourneth; the vine languisheth;
All that were glad of heart sigh.
- 8 The joyful sound of the tabor ceaseth;
The noise of those exulting is no more;
The joyful sound of the harp ceaseth.
- 9 They shall no more drink wine with songs;
Bitter shall be the palm-wine to such as drink it.
- 10 The city is broken down; it is desolate;
Every house is shut up, so that no one can enter.
- 11 There is a cry in the streets for wine;
All gladness hath passed away;
The joy of the "whole" land is banished.
- 12 Desolation only is left in the city;
And with tumult the gate is battered down.
- 13 Surely thus shall it be in the midst of the
land,
Among the people, as the beating of the olive;

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Emptieth the land] After having foretold the destruction of the foreign nations, the prophet declares the judgments impending on the people of God themselves, for their wickedness and apostasy.

2. As with people] All ranks and conditions of men shall be alike subject to the same judgments.

5. (v) Versions.

6—12. Are found guilty] In the former verse the prophet narrates their sins, and in this their punishment.

11. (a) Sept. Arab. MSS.

13—15. Surely, thus] This refers to those who had escaped from the calamities of their own country, and had found an asylum among the neighbouring or distant nations.

As the gleanings, when the vintage is finished.
Those left shall raise their voice, and shall 14
sing; [Jehovah.

The waters shall resound with the majesty of Wherefore in 'distant coasts,' glorify ye Je- 15
Among the distant isles of the sea, [hovah;
The name of Jehovah, the God of Israel.

From the most distant parts of the earth 16
We have heard songs, Glory to the righteous.

But I said, Alas, my calamity, my calamity,
Wo is me! the plunderers yet plunder;
Yea the plunderers continually plunder.

The terror, and the pit, and the snare, 17
Are upon thee, O inhabitant of the land.

And it shall come to pass, [into the pit; 18
That whoso fleeth from the terror shall fall
And whoso escapeth from the pit shall be taken in the snare.

For the flood-gates on high are opened,
And the foundations of the earth tremble.

The land is grievously shaken; 19
The land is utterly shattered to pieces;

The land is violently moved out of her place;

The land reeleth to and fro like a drunkard; 20
And moveth this way and that, like a night-shed;

For her transgression lieth heavy upon her;
And she shall fall, and not rise up again.

And it shall come to pass in that day, [high, 21
That Jehovah shall visit the high host on
And the kings of the earth upon earth,

And they shall be gathered together, 22
As in a bundle, to be cast into the pit;

And shall be closely shut up in the prison;
But after many days they shall be visited.

And the moon shall blush, and the sun be 23
For Jehovah of hosts shall reign [ashamed:
Upon mount Zion, and in Jerusalem,

And before his ancients shall he be glorified.

CHAPTER XXV.

The prophet praiseth God for his judgments, and for the saving benefits vouchsafed to his people; and then foretells the happiness of gospel times.

O JEHOVAH, thou art my God; 1
I will exalt thee; I will praise thy name:

For thou hast done wonderful things;
Thy counsels of old are faithfulness and
truth.

For thou hast made the city a heap; 2

15. (v) Sept.

16. But I said, alas] The prophet speaks in the person of the inhabitants of the land; who should suffer repeated distresses from the inroads and depredations of their powerful enemies.

17, 18. The terror and the pit] The sense is, if they escape one calamity they shall fall into another. Compare Amos v. 9; Jerem. xlviii. 43, 44.

21—23. The high host] The ecclesiastical and civil polity of the Jews; which shall be destroyed. The nation shall continue in a state of depression and dereliction for a long time.

CHAP. XXV. 2. The city a heap] Babylon is meant, and the various reading here and verse 5, is preferred, as

The strongly fortified city, a ruin : [city;
The palace of the 'proud' ones," to be no
That it may never be built up again.

3 Therefore shall the fierce people glorify thee ;
The city of the terrible nations shall fear
thee :

4 For thou hast been a defence to the poor ;
A defence to the needy in his distress :
A refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, [torrent.

When the wrath of the terrible was as a rapid 5 As the heat in a parched land,
The tumult of 'the proud' thou wilt repress ;
As the heat by the shadow of a thick cloud,
The triumph of the terrible shall be brought low.

6 Then shall Jehovah of hosts make
For all the peoples, in this mountain,
A feast of the best things, a feast of old wines ; [refined.

7 And on this mountain shall he destroy
The covering that covered the face of all people,
And the veil that was spread over all nations.

8 And he will swallow up death in victory ;
The Lord Jehovah shall wipe the tear from off all faces, [off the whole earth :
And remove the reproach of his people from
For Jehovah hath spoken it.

9 In that day shall they say, Lo this is our God ; [us :

We have waited for him, and he hath saved
This is Jehovah ; we waited for him ;
We will rejoice and exult in his salvation.

10 For the hand of Jehovah shall give rest on this mountain,

And Moab shall be trodden down in his place,
As straw is trodden down for the dunghill.

11 And he shall stretch out his hands amidst thereof, [swim :

As the swimmer stretcheth out his hands to
But God shall bring down his pride,
Together with the vigour of his hands.

Shall he lay low, and bring down to the
He shall lay them even in the dust.

more apposite. Compare Ps. liv. 5, and lxxxvi. 14. (v) Sept. MSS.

3. The fierce people Some shall acknowledge the hand of the God of Israel, in the judgments inflicted on their enemies, and shall be induced to reverence and worship him.

4. When the wrath Compare for this sense of וַיִּרָץ, Prov. xxix. 11; Eccles. x. 4; and Zech. vi. 8.—A rapid torrent This is the Arabic sense of the word.

6. A feast of the The feast here spoken of is to be celebrated on mount Zion, and all the peoples without distinction are to be invited to it. This can be no other than the celebration of the establishment of Christ's kingdom, Matt. viii. 11. See also Luke xiv. 16; xxii. 29, 30.

8. Death in victory So both Aquila and Theodotion render, as well as Paul, 1 Cor. xv. 24.

10. Shall give rest That is, peace and rest by destroying the enemy. Moab seems to be used for any enemy of God's church.

11. And he shall Moab, the enemy, shall stretch out his

CHAPTER XXVI.

Another song of praise, inciting to confidence in God; the improvement of his judgments, and the hope of a restored state to Israel.

In that day shall this song be sung : 1
In the land of Judah we have a strong city ; Salvation shall God appoint for walls and bulwarks.

Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation, 2
Which keepeth the truth, may enter.

Fixed in purpose, thou wilt preserve them, 3
In perfect peace that put their trust in thee.

Trust ye in Jehovah for ever ; 4
For Jehovah is an everlasting refuge.

For he hath humbled those that dwell on 5
high ;

The lofty city, he hath brought her down :
He hath brought her down to the ground ;
He hath levelled her with the dust.

The feet shall trample upon her ; 6
The foot of the poor, the steps of the needy.

The way of the just is perfectly right ; 7
The path of the just thou makest exactly straight.

Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Jehovah, 8
We have hoped in thee, even in thy name ;

And to remember thee is the desire of our soul. [night ;

With my soul have I desired thee in the 9
Yea, with my inmost spirit have I sought
thee.

For when thy judgments are in the earth,
The inhabitants of the world learn righteousness.

Though favour be shown to the wicked, 10
Yet will he not learn righteousness ;

In the land of uprightness he will deal unjustly.

And will not regard the majesty of Jehovah.
Jehovah, thy lifted up hand will they not see ; 11
But they shall see, and be ashamed, thy zeal
for thy people :

Yea, the fire shall devour thine adversaries.
Jehovah, thou wilt ordain for us peace ; 12
For even all our works thou hast wrought
O Jehovah, our God. [for us,

Other lords, besides thee, have ruled over us ; 13 hands, exert his power as the swimmer does, to support himself and to escape, but his attempt shall be vain. In the next verse he expresses in literal terms the destruction of Moab.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. A strong city In opposition to the city of the enemy which God had destroyed, ch. xxv. 1. This city shall not need walls or bulwarks; for God will appoint salvation instead of them.

2. Righteous nation The pious Israelites, who loved the truth.

3. Fixed in The prophet utters the same truth as the Psalmist, Ps. cxxv. 1.

5, 6. For he hath The fall and ruin of the oppressive city, is contrasted with the peace and security of Zion.

10. Though favour be There are some so wicked that mercies never move them, and it is necessary severely to chastise them to bring them to repentance.

13—15. Other lords The prophet adverts to the tyranny exercised over Israel, and beholds with delight their oppress-

 And shut thy doors after thee ;
 Hide thyself for a little while, for a moment,
 Until the indignation shall have passed away.
 2 For behold, Jehovah cometh from his place,
 To punish for their iniquity the inhabitants of the earth : [her,
 And the earth shall disclose the blood shed on
 And shall no longer cover her slain.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The prophet comforts his own people by foretelling the punishment of their enemies ; God's care of his vineyard, the design of his chastisements, &c.

1 IN that day will Jehovah punish ors destroyed, and his own people multiplied and prosperous. 16. (v) Sept.

17. Thus have we been Here and in the next verse we have the confession of the people.

19. Thy dead God addresses the Jewish church, assuring her that though she was spiritually and politically dead, the dead bodies of her members should be raised to life. Hence they are called to awake and sing on account of this foretold event.—For thy dew The mallow attracts a great portion of dew, and hence was green and flourishing. There was a power as reviving to the Jewish church, as the dew was to the mallow ; that power was the promise and grace of God her Saviour.—(v) Syr. Chald.

CHAP. XXVII. 1. Leviathan Compare Job iii. 7, and
 xl. and xli. chapters. This animal is considered as a species of the תנין, or larger kind of serpents. Hence it is called the flying and crooked serpent, on account of its rapid motion, and its art in attacking its prey.

2. Beloved vineyard The common text is much more idiomatical than the other reading, which our translators followed. The third to the sixth verse contain the responsive song between Jehovah and his vineyard ; and I have put the initials of each to show it more clearly.

With his well-tempered, great, and strong
 sword,

Leviathan, the flying serpent ;
 And Leviathan, the crooked serpent ;
 And shall slay the monster that is in the sea.

In that day as to the beloved vineyard, 2
 Sing ye responsively concerning her :

J. It is I, Jehovah, who preserve her. 3
 I will water her every moment ;

I will take care of her by night,
 And by day I will keep guard over her.

V. I have "no wall" for my defence : 4
 O that I had a fence of the thorn and brier

J. Against them should I march in battle,
 I should burn them up together. [tion.

 V. Let him make peace with me !

Peace let him make with me !

And fill the face of the world with fruit.

And as the slaughter of his slayers is he
 In measure, when he inflicteth the stroke, 8

He will indeed contend with him ; [away
 But by his strong wind he will remove them

On the day of the raging tempest.

By this then shall the guilt of Jacob be ex- 9
 piated, [sin ;

And this be all the fruit, the removal of his

And the groves and sun images shall rise

But the fortified city shall become deso- 10
 A habitation forsaken, and left as a wilderness.

There shall the calf feed, and there lie down,

And browse on the tender shoots thereof.

When her withered boughs are broken off, 11

Women shall come and set them on a blaze,

For they are a people of no understanding ;

4. I have no wall So the Sept. and Syr. The vineyard wishes for a wall, and a fence of thorns ; human strength and protection ; JEHOVAH replies that this would nought avail her, nor defend her against his wrath : he counsels her therefore to betake herself to his protection. On which she entreats him to make peace with her.

6. In future days There is an ellipsis of ימים, days ;
 comp. ch. xxxix. 6. Jehovah comforts the people by assuring them of growing prosperity.

7. Hath he smitten "Hath God smitten Israel, as he smiteth Babylon ?" This introduces the reply in the next verse.

8. In measure That is, with moderation God will punish his people.—But will remove I derive תהרה from הרה, and follow the marginal version. See Gesen. and Michael. in verb.

9. Stones of the altar Of every idolatrous altar. Comp.
 Deut. ix. 21 ; Hos. x. 8.

10. The fortified city This refers to Babylon, which was to be wholly laid waste, and for ever to remain so.

11. Her withered The prophet alludes to the vineyard, to paint the destruction now coming on Babylon.

- Therefore, he that made them shall not pity them, [favour.
 And he that formed them, show them no

 That Jehovah shall beat off and gather his fruit, [Egypt;
 From the flood of the river to the stream of

 13 And it shall come to pass in that day,
 That the great trumpet shall be blown,
 And those perishing in the land of Assyria,
 And those dispersed in the land of Egypt shall come,
 And they shall worship Jehovah,
 In the holy mountain in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The kingdom of Israel threatened; the sins of Judah stated; the Saviour promised; and the punishment of the disobedient foretold.

 And when in his hand he then swalloweth it.
 5 In that day shall Jehovah of hosts be for a glorious crown, [his people:
 And a splendid diadem to the remnant of

 And for strength to them that turn the battle
 7 But even these have erred through wine;
 And through strong drink have they reeled;

12, 13. Gather up his fruit] The following clauses explain this.

CHAP. XXXVIII. 1. Proud crown] Samaria is situated on a long mount of an oval figure; having first a fruitful valley, and then a range of hills running round about it. The city thus situated, suggested the idea of a wreath of flowers, worn upon their head on occasions of festivity; expressed by the proud crown, and the fading flower of the drunkards.

4. As the early fruit] Compare Jer. xxiv. 2, and Hos. ix. 10. This is mentioned by Dr. Shaw as most delicious, and eagerly sought and plucked. For the text see note Heb. Bib.

5. In that day] Thus far the prophecy relates to the Israelites, and manifestly denounces their approaching destruction by Salmanezer. Here it turns to the two tribes of Judah and Benjamin.

9. Whom can such] Such drunken priests and prophets were as unqualified for their office as newly weaned infants;

Priest and prophet have erred through strong drink;

They have been overpowered with wine;
 Through strong drink have they reeled;
 They have erred in vision, and stumbled in judgment.

For all their tables are full of vomit, 8
 And of filthiness, so that no place is free.

Whom can such teach knowledge? 9
 To whom can they impart instruction?

They are like children weaned from the milk,

Like those just restrained from the breasts.

For command is on command, command on 10

Wherefore hear the word of Jehovah, ye 14 scoffers;

Ye people who use sententious speeches;

Ye of this people who dwell in Jerusalem:

Who say, we have made a covenant with 15
 death,

And with hades have entered into a treaty;

When the overflowing scourge passeth through,

It shall not come near unto us;

For we have made falsehood our refuge,

And under deceit have hid ourselves.

Wherefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, 16

Behold I lay in Zion for a foundation, [stone,

A stone, a tried stone; a precious corner

A foundation the most firm and sure:

He that believeth in him shall not be ashamed.

yea, they were but as children in their instructions, giving command upon command, &c.

10. For command] Although I have adopted the usual version, I strongly incline to the opinion of Arivillius, that the prophet uses the figure mimesis, and that the text contains not words, but syllables, to paint more strongly the imperfect utterance—the stammering of these drunken priests.

11. Verily by stammering] The apostle applies this to the gift of various tongues, which were for a sign to those who did not believe, 1 Cor. xiv. 21.

15. Who say] To be in covenant with is a kind of proverbial expression to denote perfect security from evil and mischief of any sort. Compare Job v. 23; Hos. ii. 18.

16. Behold, I lay] Those sinners had, as they thought, laid a firm foundation for their safety; in opposition to which, God declares that he only can lay such a foundation, such a corner-stone as shall yield security to that which is

But not for ever will he thus thrash it,
Nor break it with the wheel of his wain ;
Nor bruise it with the hoofs of his cattle.
This also cometh from Jehovah of hosts ; 29
Wonderful in counsel, and great in operation.

CHAPTER XXIX.

This prophecy respects the Assyrian invasion, and contains promises and threatenings according to the character of the people.

- Wo to Ariel, "the city where David 1 dwelt !
Add year to year ; let the feasts go round.
Still will I bring distress upon Ariel ; 2
And there shall be mourning and-sorrow :

And I will erect towers against thee.
And thou shalt be brought very low ; 4
Thou shalt speak as from beneath the earth :

speech ;
And thy voice shall come out of the ground,
Like the voice of the necromancer :
And out of the dust thou shalt mutter thy

But the multitude of "the proud" shall be as 5
And the multitude of the terrible as the

This shall be done suddenly—in an instant.

Shall it be with the multitude of all na-

That fight against and distress her and her fortress.

And lo, he seemeth to eat ; but he awaketh, built upon it. Peter applies it to our Lord ; and he was most certainly the object of the hope of the fathers, 1 Pet. ii. 6, 17—19. And I will mete] With those who do not believe and betake themselves to the hope set before them, God will deal in righteous judgment.

20. For the bed] A proverbial saying, the meaning of which is, that they will find all means of defence and protection insufficient to secure them, and cover them from the evils coming upon them.

23—25. Give ear] As the husbandman uses various methods in preparing his land, and in separating the corn from the straw and the chaff by different instruments, according to the nature of the different sorts of grain : so God, with unerring wisdom, and with strict justice, instructs, admonishes, and corrects his people ; in order to reclaim the wicked, to improve the good ; and finally, to separate, the one from the other.

CHAP. XXIX. 1. Ariel] The capital of Persia, Schiraz, signifies a lion, the same as Ariel, a stout lion ; and this name seems given by the prophet to denote the great strength of the city, as well as to intimate the pride and stubbornness of the inhabitants.—(a) Ariel] Sept. Syr. 1 MS.

2. Yet as to me] That is, fierce and untractable, not regarding my reproofs nor submitting to my laws.

3. I will encamp] By the Assyrians, who were but God's instruments.

4. Speak as from] After the manner of necromancers, who either by a feigned voice, or by their art as ventriloquists, made their voice come as it were out of the ground, so as to personate the ghosts of the dead.

5. Done suddenly] This verse forcibly describes the overthrow of Sennacherib, and the sudden manner of it.—(c) Sept.

6. With thunder] We should not understand this literally, but these mighty agents of nature are selected to show the greatness, extent, and horror of that event. Compare 2 Kings xix. 35, and note.

8. For as when] This fine comparison shows the sad disappointment of the Assyrians.

- And his appetite is still unsatisfied :
 Or as when a thirsty man dreameth,
 And lo, he seemeth to drink ; but he awaketh,
 And he is still faint, and his appetite craving :
 So shall it be with the multitude of all na-

- 9 They are amazed ; they stand astonished ;
 They look on themselves and are agitated ;
 They are drunken, but not with wine ;
 They stagger, but not with strong drink.

 The house of Jacob ; he who redeemed

CHAPTER XXX.

The prophet reproves the Israelites for seeking help from Egypt, and not regarding God's word.

Wo to the rebellious children, saith Jeho- 1
 Who form counsels, but not from me ; [vail,
 Who ratify covenants, but not by my spirit ;
 That they may add sin to sin :
 Who set out to go down to Egypt, 2
 But have not inquired at my mouth ;

 And to trust in the shadow of Egypt. [raoh,
 But the strength of Pharaoh shall be your 3

 And their ambassadors arrived at Hanes.
 They were all ashamed of a people 5
 That could not profit them,
 Who instead of being for a help or a profit,
 Were but for a shame and a reproach to
 them. [ward,
 As to the burden carried by beasts south- 6
 Through a land of distress and anguish ;
 Whence come the lioness and fierce lion ;
 The viper and the fiery flying serpent :

9—12. They are amazed] The prophet now addresses the false prophets and wicked rulers. He represents God as having given them up to blindness, so that they could not see nor understand his will revealed to them.

10. Blinded] Literally covered ; but the connexion requires the sense given.

13. Vain is their] So the Sept. and they are supported by two evangelists. The people approached the temple, and observed the forms of religion, while they were wholly strangers to its power ; nay, they even regarded the forms as more the appointment of men than of God ; and listened to the commands of their false prophets as if they were doctrines of divine truth.

16. Esteemed as the clay] Will you deny that I have made you ? This is a fine reproof.

17—21. Lebanon—Carmel] This is a proverbial saying, expressing any great revolution of things, and has been supposed to refer to the change effected by the coming of Messiah and his doctrine among Jews and Gentiles. See Matt. xxi. 43 ; Rom. ix. 31.

23. His children see] This version arises from the omission of one letter, and is supported by two of the versions, Sept. and Syr. By this change both the construction and sense are cleared.

CHAP. XXX. 1. But not by my spirit] Not as my spirit in my prophets directs. The time of this prophecy was the invasion of Israel by Salmaneser, when the kingdom of Judah must also have been much afraid, and perhaps much distressed.

6. A land of distress] The same deserts are here spoken of, which the Israelites passed through, Deut. vii. 15.

- They carry on the shoulder of colts their wealth, [sures,
And on the bunch of camels their treat-
To a people that will not profit them.
7 For Egypt is a vapour; in vain shall they help;
Wherefore I have cried concerning this;
Full of pride are they, yet an indolent people.
8 Go now, write it before them on a tablet;
And record it in letters upon a book;
That it may be for future time,
For a "testimony" even for ever.
9 For they are a rebellious people, lying children; [hovah:
Children that will not regard the law of Je-

And to the prophets, Prophecy not right things; [ceits.

12 Wherefore thus saith the Holy One of Israel,
Because ye have despised this word,
And have trusted in fraud and perversion,
And have wholly leaned thereon:
13 Therefore shall this iniquity be to you,
Like a breach ready to fall down,
Like a swelling in a very high wall,
Whose bursting cometh suddenly in an instant. [vessel:
14 It is broken as one breaketh a potter's
He dasheth it to pieces; he spareth it not:
So that a shield is not found among the pieces, [hearth;
Large enough to take up fire from the
Or to take up water from the cistern.
15 Verily thus saith the Lord Jehovah,
The Holy One of Israel:
By abiding still and quiet ye shall be saved;
In tranquil confidence shall be your strength:
But to him ye would not hearken. [flee;
16 For ye said, Nay, but on horses we will Therefore shall ye be put to flight:
Yea, on swift horses we will ride;
Therefore shall they be swift that pursue you.
17 At the rebuke of one, one thousand;

At the rebuke of five, ten thousand shall flee;
Until so few be left that ye shall be
As a standard on the top of a mountain,
And as a beacon on a very high hill.
Yet will Jehovah wait to show favour to 18
you; [you.
And be exalted that he may have mercy on
For Jehovah is a God of judgment:
Blessed are all they that wait for him.
Truly a "holy" people shall yet dwell in 19
Zion:
In Jerusalem ye shall not weep any more;
At the voice of your cry, he shall be very gracious;
When he heareth it, he shall answer you.
Though Jehovah hath given unto you 20
The bread of distress and the water of afflic-tion;
Yet shall your teachers no more be removed;
But your eyes shall see your own teachers.
And your ears shall hear a word behind you, 21
Saying, This is the way; walk ye in it;
Turn "not" aside to the right or to the left.
And ye shall treat as defiled 22
Your idols which are covered with silver,
And your images which are clothed with
gold,
Ye shall cast them away as a polluted thing;
Ye shall say to them, Be gone from us.
And he shall give rain for your seed, 23
With which ye shall sow the ground;
And bread of the produce of the ground,
And it shall be abundant and plenteous.
Then shall your cattle feed in large pastures;
And the oxen and asses that till the ground 24
Shall eat the best mixed provender,
Winnowed with the van and the sieve.
And on every high mountain and hill, 25
Shall be purling rills and streams of water,
In the day of great slaughter, when the mighty fall.
And the light of the moon shall be 26
As the light of the sun;
And the light of the sun shall be sevenfold,*
When Jehovah bindeth up the fracture of his people, [made.
And healeth the wound which his stroke had Behold! Jehovah himself cometh from afar; 27

7. Full of pride] The prophet thus draws the character of the Egyptians; and they seem more indebted to their soil for their wealth than to their industry, and to the situation of their country, more than their courage, for their own security.

8—14. Go now] In this paragraph the prophet reproves the spirit and impiety of the people, who neglected the law, and even wished the prophets to flatter them in their sins. —(v) Syr. Vulg. Chald.

15. By abiding still] So most of the Hebrew interpreters render; and the parallelism supports this sense.

17. Ten thousand] A word has dropped from the text, which is supplied from Deut. xxxii. 30; Levit. xxxvi. 8.

19. (a) Sept.
20. Your teachers] The text implies that the prophets, the Jewish teachers, were not always suffered to discharge the duties of their office.

21. (v) Versions.

22. As defiled] The silver and gold which covered your idols, ye shall use as a common thing. Com. Deut. vii. 25.
25. Mighty fall] So the Chaldee, Aquila, and Symmachus. The day of the great slaughter, means the time when God would destroy the enemies of his people.

26. The light of the moon] No image can represent more strongly the happiness and glory of the church than this of the prophet.—(o) As the light of seven days, Sept.

27—33. Jehovah himself] Hebrew, 'the name of Jehovah;' but name is used for himself, as what follows clearly proves. From this verse to the end of the chapter, the prophet exhibits Jehovah as ready to take vengeance on the enemies of his people. He comes as an enraged enemy; thunder and lightning attend him; he fights with and conquers his enemies, he then binds them and casts them into the burning lake.

His wrath burneth, and the flame rageth ;
His lips are full of indignation ;
And his tongue is as a consuming fire.
28 His spirit is like a torrent overflowing ;
It shall reach to the middle of the neck :
He will toss the nations in the van of perdition ;
And there shall be in the jaws of the people,
A bridle, to lead them astray.
29 But to you shall be a song, as in the night,
When the sacred feast is proclaimed ;
And joy of heart, as when marching to the pipe [Israel.
To go to the mount of Jehovah, the rock of 30 And Jehovah shall make his glorious voice heard ;
And the lighting down of his arm to be seen ;
With fierce wrath, and a flame of consuming fire ; [stones.
With a violent storm, tempest and hail.
31 For by the voice of Jehovah shall be beat down
The Assyrian ready to smite with his staff.
32 And wherever shall pass the rod of 'correction,"
Which Jehovah shall make to rest on him,
It shall be accompanied with tabrets and harps ; [them.
And with fierce battles shall he fight against 33 For Tophet is ordained of old ;
Yea, by the king the same is prepared :
He hath made it deep ; he hath made it large ;
A fiery pyre, and abundance of wood ;
The breath of Jehovah, like a stream of Shall kindle it. [sulphur,

CHAPTER XXXI.

CHAP. XXXI. and XXXII. The people reproved for their confidence in Egypt ; the overthrow of the Assyrians promised ; the pious reign of Hezekiah celebrated ; the desolation of Judea, the captivity and restoration of the people foretold.

1 Wo to them that go down to Egypt for
And rely on horses for support ; [help,
And trust in chariots, because they are many : [strong ;
And in horsemen because they are very

32. Tabrets and harps] With every demonstration of joy and thanksgiving for the destruction of the enemy in so wonderful a manner: with hymns of praise, accompanied with musical instruments.

33. For Tophet] Tophet was a valley very near to Jerusalem, to the south-east, called also the valley of Hinnom, or Gehenna ; where the Canaanites, and afterwards the Israelites, sacrificed their children, by making them pass through the fire, 2 Chron. xxxi.

CHAP. XXXI. 2. Yet is he wise] So as to know all their secret counsels, and to defeat them.

3. Are men, and not God] That is, frailty itself, but dust and ashes, and not possessing any power to help you, as God does.—Flesh and not spirit] That is, infirm, easily destroyed, and not invincible, as ye seem to imagine.

4. Like as the lion] The comparison in this verse is forcible.—So will Jehovah] So will not Jehovah be defeated, and deprived of his prey when he descendeth to fight for Jerusalem.

But look not to the Holy One of Israel,
And of Jehovah they ask not counsel.
Yet is he wise, and will bring evil on them, 2
And his words he will not make vain ;
He will rise up against the house of evil-doers,
And the helpers of the workers of iniquity.
For the Egyptians are men, and not God ; 3
And their horses flesh, and not spirit.
When Jehovah shall stretch out his hand,
The helper shall stumble, and the helped
fall,
And together shall all of them be destroyed.
For thus hath Jehovah said unto me, 4
Like as the lion roareth,
Even the young lion, over his prey :
Though many shepherds be called against
him,
Yet at their voice he will not be terrified,
Nor at their tumult will he be humbled ;
So shall Jehovah of hosts descend,
To fight for mount Zion, for his own hill.
For as mother-birds protect their young, 5
So will Jehovah of hosts protect Jerusalem ;
Protecting and delivering ; leaping forward and rescuing her.
Return unto him, O ye sons of Israel, 6
From whom ye have so deeply revolted.
Verily in that day shall they cast away 7
Each one his idols of silver, and his idols of
gold,
The sin, which their own hands have made.
And the Assyrian shall fall by a sword not of man ; [him.
Yea the sword not of a mortal shall devour
And he shall flee from the face of the sword
And the courage of his chosen men shall fail.
And through terror he shall pass beyond his 9 strong-hold ; [fied.
And at his flight his princes shall be terri-
Thus saith Jehovah, whose fire is in Zion,
And whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXXII.

BEHOLD! a king shall reign in righteousness- 1
And princes shall rule with equity. [ness,
And the man shall be as a covert from the storm,

5. Leaping forward] See Kings xviii. 26. Here the comparison limits the sense to the action of the mother-bird springing forward to cover her young with her wings. In this manner God did, as it were, leap forward to protect the houses of the Israelites when the destroying angel passed through the land of Egypt, Exod. xii. 23.

7. The sin] That is, the objects which induced them to sin.

9. Beyond his strong-hold] He shall be so confounded a not to know what he does, but shall miss the fortress in which he hoped to find security.—Whose fire] This denotes, that he would manifest himself as a fire to consume his enemies Compare Zech. ii. 5, and xii. 6.

CHAP. XXXII. 1. A king shall] Most expositors consider Hezekiah to be intended, in whose reign religion flourished, and justice was duly administered. He ought to be regarded as typical of Christ.

2. And the man] He shall be esteemed for his justice and mercy, as much as a covert is by the storm-beaten traveller

- And as a hiding-place from the tempest ;
 As purling rills of water in a dry place ;
 As the shade of a great rock in a desert land. [him,
 3 And the eyes of those that see shall regard
 And the ears of those that hear shall be attentive. [ledge,
 4 The heart also of the rash shall attain know-
 And the tongue of stammerers speak plainly.
 5 The vile shall no more be called honourable ;
 And the niggard shall no more be called liberal.
 6 For the vile will still utter what is vile ;
 And his heart will devise iniquity :
 Doing wickedness, and speaking wrong of Jehovah ;
 To keep empty the soul of the hungry,
 And to deprive the thirsty of drink.
 7 As for the niggard, his instruments are evil ;
 He plotteth mischievous devices ;
 To ensnare the humble with lying words,
 And defeat the assertions of the poor in judgment.
 8 But the liberal will devise liberal things ;
 And he by liberal things shall be established.
 9 Ye women at ease, arise, hear my voice ;
 Ye daughters secure, give ear to my speech :
 10 Many years shall ye that are secure be troubled ; [not.
 For the vintage faileth, the gathering cometh
 11 Tremble ye at ease ; be troubled, ye secure ones :
 Strip ye, make ye bare ; gird ye sackcloth
 12 Upon your loins, and upon your breasts ;
 "Mourn" for the pleasant "field," the fruitful vine.
 13 Over the land of my people
 Shall thorns and briers come up ;
 Yea, over all the joyous houses of the exulting city.
 14 For the palace is now forsaken ;
 The populous city is left desolate ; [dens,
 Ophel and the watch-towers shall be even
 A joy of wild asses, a pasture for flocks :

Till the spirit from on high be poured on us, 15
 And the wilderness become a fruitful field,
 And the fruitful field be esteemed a forest :
 And judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, 16
 And righteousness reside in the fruitful field.
 And the work of righteousness shall be peace, 17
 And the effect of righteousness shall be
 Quietness and security even for ever.
 And my people shall dwell in a peaceful 18 mansion ; [places.
 In secure habitations and tranquil resting-
 For the hail shall bring down the forest, 19
 And the city shall be laid level with the plain.
 Blessed are ye that sow on all well watered 20
 places ;
 Who send forth the foot of the ox and the ass.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

God's judgments on the enemies of his people, the Assyrians ; the privileges of such as fear and serve God.

Wo to thee, O spoiler, who hast not been 1
 spoiled ; [thee :
 And thou plunderer, and none plundered
 When thou ceasest to spoil, thou shalt be spoiled ; [plunder thee.
 When weary of plundering, they shall O Jehovah, be gracious to us ; on thee 2
 we wait ;
 Be thou "our" strength every morning ;
 Even our salvation in the time of distress.
 From "thy terrible" voice the peoples fled ; 3
 At thy rising up the nations were dispersed.
 But your spoil shall be gathered, as the lo- 4
 cust gathereth ; [they run and seize it.
 As the caterpillar runneth to and fro, so shall Jehovah is exalted ; yea, he dwelleth on 5
 high ; [tice,
 He hath filled Zion with judgment and jus-
 The security of thy times shall be power, 6
 Salvation, wisdom, and knowledge ;
 The fear of Jehovah, this shall be "thy"
 treasure,
 Behold the mighty raise a grievous cry ; 7
 The ambassadors of peace weep bitterly.

3. Shall regard him] For the text, see note Fam. Bib.

4. Tongue of stammerers] The rash and hasty shall learn to be cautious and prudent, and the diffident shall acquire confidence to speak in their own defence.

5. The vile person] Men shall be esteemed and treated according to their real characters.

7. His instruments] His machinations and designs. The paronomasia suggested this term.

9. Ye women] Here commences a new prophecy, and which has respect to the desolation of the land by Nebuchadnezzar, and even to the times of the gospel.

12. Mourn] The reading of the versions are here necessary ; for what propriety is there in tears, or breasts ; or how is it associated with the vine ?

14. Ophel and the] It was a part of mount Zion rising higher than the rest ; at the eastern extremity, near to the temple, a little to the south of it : called by Micah, iv. 8. 'Ophel of the daughter of Zion.'

17. The work of] When God has restored his people, and instead of being like a wilderness, hath made them as a fruitful field, they shall work righteousness, and enjoy peace, prosperity, and security.

19. For the hail] Hail often denotes divine judgments. Compare ch. xxvi. 5 ; xxviii. 2, 17. 'By the forest,' the Babylonians seem to be intended ; and 'by the city,' Babylon.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. Thou spoiler] The prophet addresses himself to Sennacherib, briefly, but strongly expressing the injustice of his ambitious designs, and the sudden disappointment of them.
